Reindeer delivered with love

olume 105 • No. 192

BY DAVID BOWSER dbowser@thepampanews.com

On a cold Saturday last week. Pat Stewart stood at the corner of Foster and Cuyler passing out candy canes decorated as reindeer.

Sitting in the back of the Woody Guthrie Music Center Friday afternoon, Stewart was busy making new holiday reindeer from candy canes, pipe cleaners and his imagination for this weekend.

They are to be given away in the Christmas spirit, he said, although some people tried to pay him for them.

Stewart said that with the help of Pampa Girl Scout troops more than 1,500 of the reindeer have been given away. Joe Weaver with the Pampa Chamber of Commerce helped buy supplies for the project. While most of Stewart's holiday reindeer have found homes in Pampa, the St. Louis, Mo., native smiled as he recounted his encounter with a young girl in his hometown a few weeks ago.

"I always keep some of them handy," he said, waving a half-finished candy cane reindeer. He had given a reindeer to a small girl at a McDonald's restaurant in St. Louis.

"When I was leaving," Stewart said, "she came up and pulled on my pants and said, Santa, I broke the reindeer's eyes off."

Stewart, a rather large man with a white beard and moustache, explained that he was Santa's helper and gave her another one, telling her that he would take the other one to the reindeer hospital to be mended. The little girl took the new food restaurant. "She wanted to make sure that nothing happened to that reindeer," Stewart laughed.

Despite the number of candy cane reindeer that he's made, Stewart said it doesn't begin to match the work done by the Girl Scouts in Pampa.

"They did a lot of work," he said.

A herd of candy cane reindeers await delivery to good little boys and girls on the streets of Pampa.

Novel combo improves breast cancer survival

SAN ANTONIO (AP) so that alone is exciting," -Some women with very advanced breast cancer may have a new treatment option. A combination of two drugs that more precisely target tumors significantly extended the lives of women who had stopped responding to other medicines, doctors reported Friday.

It was the first big test of combining Herceptin and Tykerb. In a study of 300 patients, women receiving both drugs lived nearly five months longer than those given Tykerb alone.

Doctors hope for an even bigger benefit in women with less advanced disease, and were elated at this much improvement for very sick women who were facing certain death. "We don't see a lot that works in patients who have seen six prior therapies as they did in this trial, said Dr. Jennifer Litton, a breast cancer specialist at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Cancer Center.

The good results are in stark contrast to two other studies that found no survival advantage from Avastin, a drug whose approval for breast cancer patients was very controversial. Two infusions of Avastin a month, as needed for this treatment, cost about $30,000 with fees for administering the drug.

Considering Avastin's potential side effects blood clots in the lungs, poor wound healing, kidney problems - a survival benefit "would have made the cost of the drug less painful to take," Litton said.

She had no role in any of the studies, which were reported Friday at the San Antonio Breast Cancer Symposium. Herceptin and Tykerb aim at a protein called HER-2 that is made in abnormally large quantities in about one-fourth of all breast cancers. Herceptin blocks the protein on the cell's surface; Tykerb does it inside the cell.

"It's kind of like having a double brake on your tumor. If the first one fails, the second one does the job," said the Dr. Kimberly Blackwell of Duke University. She led the combo treatment study and has consulted for its sponsor, British-based GlaxoSmithKline PLC, which makes Tykerb, and for Genentech, which makes Herceptin and Avastin.

Women in the study had already received

PRMC welcomes ER services director

Pampa Regional Medical Center is pleased to welcome Dr. Donald Hubbard to the position of Medical Director of Emergency Room Services.

"Dr. Hubbard brings with him a wealth of knowledge and experience that will benefit Pampa Regional Medical Center and those that seek emergency medical services at our facility," said Todd Lorenz, CEO.

Lorenz added, "With a busy emergency department that averages over 980 visits a month and maintains an average total turn around time, which is the time from registration to discharge or admission to the hospital, of less than two hours it is crucial to have physicians the caliber of Dr. Hubbard"

He graduated from Texas Tech University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Clinical Laboratory Science in 1989. This is the course study and practice of diagnostic lab medicine. Clinical laboratory professionals provide 70 percent of the critical objective information for diagnosis, treatment and preventative health care. These individuals analyze body tissues and fluids using complex instrumentation, sophisticated techniques and specialized knowledge. Oil below $70 for first time since October

NEW YORK (AP) — A nine-month rally in oil prices appeared to falter as a gradual sell-off that began in late October gained momentum.

Crude prices declined Friday for the eighth day in a row. The contract for January delivery gave up 67 cents to settle at $69.87 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. It's the first time that oil has closed below $70 a barrel since early October. Prices tumbled as the dollar gained strength and investors took a second look at paltry demand figures in the West.

U.S. consumption of petroleum products including heating oil and diesel, has fallen about 20 percent from a year earlier, Barclays Capital said in a report.

Pump prices fell by less than a penny overnight to a new national average of $2.623, according to auto club AAA, Wright Express and Oil Price Information Service.

A grateful nation must honor veterans for their service

BY U.S. SENATOR KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

One of the greatest honors I have in my public life is the opportunity to thank our veterans for their service to America. Throughout our history, U.S. servicemen from every corner of our state - from Laredo to Lubbock to Longview - have signed up to defend the free world from tyrannical dictatorships. To those who have stepped forward in war and peace, raised their right hand, and said, "Here I am; send me," no measure of thanks, however bountiful, can ever suffice.

Veterans represent our nation's best. They are our most patriotic, brave and valorous citizens: men and women of character who have determined that the defense of democracy is worth the risk to life and limb. Eleven million Americans served in World War II; 1.8 million participated in the Korean War; another 3 million fought in Vietnam; over 500,000 helped liberate Kuwait in the first Persian Gulf War; and today almost 1.5 million active duty personnel proudly wear the U.S. uniform. Today, fully one out of ten who serve on active duty call Texas home. With the planned growth at Ft. Sam Houston, Ft. Bliss and Ft. Hood, Texas will soon be home to nearly one out of five active duty soldiers. Many will stay permanently, increasing our state's veteran population, which already stands at 1.7 million. President Lincoln once said, a grateful nation must "care for him who shall have borne the battle." As your U.S. Senator, I have strived to ensure that America takes positive action to honor and pay our nation's debt to our veterans. For example, back in 2003, the VA Capital Asset Realignment for Enhanced Services (CARES) Commission released a draft plan that called for the closure of the Waco and Big Spring VA hospitals. I fiercely resisted this proposal. I asked the VA, "What will happen to the veterans in those communities?" They answered - with no trace of irony – "They can go to El Paso." When I told them that was the equivalent of asking veterans in Washington, D.C. to travel to New York City for their care, they stared at me with incomprehension. It never occurred to them how large Texas is, and just how irresponsible their proposal was. Thankfully, after a sustained push with the help of local leaders, the VA kept both facilities open and expanded the movmembers ing there made it essential that we expand care for veterans. When the polytrauma facility opens, it will be capable of providing first-class service designed specifically for veterans with multiple serious injuries. I was glad to be part of concerted local efforts to convince the VA San Antonio was the right choice for expansion. And once completed, it will be a fitting USA." grateful As a nation, America will continue to care those who "have borne the battle." It is because of those who have defended this nation - from the early Revolutionary War to today's Global War on Terror - that we have the liberties that are necessary for America to become and remain the most vibrant and prosper-as a "Mental Health Care Center of Excellence," just at the time the military increased its focus on posttraumatic stress.

Waco Veterans Hospital

For years, our heroes in the Rio Grande Valley were having to endure 500 mile, ten-hour roundtrip treks to San Antonio for basic procedures and routine check-ups and then wait hours and many times ous nation in the history have to spend the night. After a major effort, we were able to convince the VA to build a state-of-theart outpatient healthcare center in Harlingen. This facility, once completed, will eliminate travel to San Antonio by 95 percent. Make no mistake: this is only a down payment on a much larger debt that must still be paid - a hospital that serves the needs of South Texas veterans. Survivability is higher in the type of warfare our military is fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan. So the VA is increasing its treatment, provision of artificial limbs and rehabilitation. Veterans in the San Antonio area will also be greatly helped by the construction of a Level One Polytrauma Facility. San Antonio is already known as America's Number One center for military medicine, but the explosive growth of former military have made tremendous sacrifices to safeguard liberty at home and abroad. And I pledge to keep doing my part to ensure our government honors our veterans and their families who have sacrificed so much on our behalf.

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: For the first time in eight years, my husband and I will be staying in a hotel when we visit his parents for Christmas. While I love his family, their home is small, and we are relegated to a trundle bed and must share the sole bathroom with the entire family. It's impossible for us to be comfortable with so many people in such close quarters. We assumed that sleeping in a nearby hotel and visiting during the days and evenings would be a fair compromise.

We were shocked at their reaction when we discussed our plans with the family. They are very hurt about our decision and extremely offended. They are begging us to reconsider and stay in their home.

Are our actions selfish and cold-hearted? We mean no harm, and are so surprised at the strong reaction that we're starting to question our judgment. Should we travel and stay in the hotel, or just scrap the trip altogether? --STAYING HOME NEXT YEAR

DEAR STAYING HOME: No, you, your husband and his parents should discuss this more fully. You didn't mention how many family members will be spending the holidays in that small house. While I sympathize with family traditions, as children grow into adulthood certain realities come into play

If you prefer to sleep in a hotel and have a private bathroom and the ability to have a private conversation if you wish, I don't think it's too much to ask. But I'd hate to see you cancel a family visit because of the pressure that is being exerted. That's in no one's hest interests

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to offer another example of an act of kindness that might be worthy of your column. My youngest daughter and her little girl were traveling across several states after visiting her two brothers, a sister and

My daughter had a CB in her car and while she was driving, was talking on and off with different truckers on the road. A car full of young men began to harass her by tailgating, passing her dangerously close, then pulling sharply in front of her and slowing down. Each time she'd manage to pass them, the harassment would begin again.

She related her problem over the CB to a trucker. As if by magic, three trucks appeared! One got behind her, and another maneuvered in front -- while a third sort of "nudged" the offending car out of her way, then positioned his rig alongside my daughter's car. Those truckers talked to her the whole time and continued in formation until the men who'd been hassling her gave up and took off.

The truckers continued maintain contact with my daughter until she reached her exit, and I am deeply grateful to them. Because I never got to thank them personally, I hope they'll read this in your column.

Abby, may God continue to guide you as you strive to assist others, and watch over you always. --MOM MC C. IN OHIO

DEAR MOM MC C .: Thank you for the blessing, and for the testimonial that acts of chivalry still occur on our highways. Perhaps your letter will motivate other motorists to watch out for the other guy -- or gal, as the case may be.

NTING REPORT

Weekly migratory bird hunting reports are posted from early September through early February

High Plains Mallard Management Unit: The cold front pushed lots of new ducks and geese to the Panhandle. Decoying action has been steady for geese, with some 40-bird hunts reported. Both Canada geese and snow geese have been making up the bag around Dumas and Etter. Duck hunting has been excellent as well, except for shallow ponds that iced over during the weekend. Lots of mallards and gadwalls have worked feed lot ponds and playas. Sandhill cranes are still around and have been steady over decoys. Pheasant hunting has been outstanding as well. Prospects are very good.

North Zone Duck: There is no shortage of water in the North Zone; and, since the recent front, no shortage of ducks. More mallards have shown on lakes, sloughs, rivers and reservoirs. A freeze-up in the northern states sent greenheads south in search of open water. Wood duck numbers are good in backwater timber. Big water areas are holding lots of diver ducks like ringed-necks, scaup and canvasbacks.

The prairies around IH-10 have plenty of water and lots of green-winged teal, shovelers, pintails, gadwalls and wigeons. Prospects for the entire North Zone look solid for the second opener Dec. 12.

South Zone Duck: Snow blanketed the coastal prairie over the weekend, but goose hunting did not improve much. Blowing snow filled decoys with ice and made them droopy and stationary in the wind. A small crop of young snow geese have made decoying action very tough; and, specklebellies have wised up as well. Success has been hit-or-miss and mud and water-filled fields have made the effort unjustifiable for many seasoned goose hunters. The good news is duck numbers are incredible across the coastal prairies, and the second opener on Dec. 12 should be a banger. More mallards have shown this week along the coast. Green-winged teal concentrations have improved as well. Many goose hunters have reported tons of decoying pintails over white spreads. Bay hunters saw another influx of divers on saline shorelines. Prospects are excellent for ducks, fair at best for geese.

For most of us, the holidays represent a treasured time of year, and we work hard to make it special for the people we care about most. We decorate our homes with great thought and detail, and entertain friends and family by hosting parties and cooking elaborate meals and treats. But as we do these things, fire safety is rarely a thought. It may seem that the holidays and home fires are two completely different topics, but they're not; national statistics show that the holiday season turns sorrowful, and sometimes even fatal for so many households each year as the result of home fires. Cooking, Christmas trees, candles and holiday lights - all key parts of the holiday season - are significant causes of fires that occur this time of year. While it's quite a somber perspective on the holiday season, the good news is that it doesn't have to be this way. With just one or two minor changes, often taking a few minutes, or even seconds, of time, the holidays can stay festive and safe for everybody. It's important for people to take basic but vital fire safety precautions as they plan and prepare for the upcoming holiday season. These simple steps can greatly reduce the risk of fire and its potentially devastating impact on homes and families:

Cooking: NFPA statistics show that unattended cooking is the leading cause of U.S. home fires and home fire injuries. Stay in the kitchen while you're frying, grilling or broiling food. Most cooking fires involve the stovetop, so keep anything that can catch fire away from it, and turn off the stove when you leave the kitchen, even if it's for a short period of time. If you're simmering, boiling, baking or roasting food, check it regularly and use a timer to remind you that you're cooking. Create a "kid-free zone" of at least three feet around the stove and areas where hot food and drinks are prepared or carried.

Candles: Candles are widely used throughout the holidays, and December is the peak month for home candle fires. More than half of all candle fires start because the candle was too close to things that could catch fire. Consider using flameless candles, which look and smell like real candles. However, if you do use traditional candles, keep them at least 12 inches away from anything that can burn, and remember to blow them out when turn 011 Christmas tree lights before leaving the home or going to bed.

After Christmas, get rid of the tree. Dried-out trees are a fire hazard and should not be left in the home or garage, or placed outside the home.

Think green. Check to see if your community has a Christmas tree recycling program.

Bring outdoor electrical lights inside after the holidays to prevent hazards and make them last longer.

The holidays are a truly special time of year. Following these fire safety precautions and measures will ensure it remains one. For more tips, advice and information about holiday fire safety, please visit http://www.nfpa.org/holiday.

Sports North Garland runs past Pampa in shootout opener

BY ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Harvesters fell behind by double digits early and lost the opening game of the Nichols Shootout 84-73 to the North Garland Raiders Friday at North Garland High School.

Head Coach Dustin Miller said North Garland's athleticism and turnovers cost his team early

"They were quicker and more athletic," Miller said. "We had several turnovers that put us in a bind and dug ourselves too big of a hole."

In the first quarter, Pampa missed their first four shots of the game and turned it over once allowing the Raiders to take a 4-0 lead. The Harvesters would score the next five points to take a 5-4 lead. North Garland would not allow the Harvesters to take the lead again. The Raiders scored the next five points to retake the lead 9-5 and would lead 24-13 after the first quarter.

The Raiders maintained control in the second quarter not allowing Pampa to get closer than eight. The Harvesters turned the ball over three times and allowed eight offensive rebounds. The Raiders largest lead of the quarter was 16 when they led 29-13. North Garland led 40-29 at halftime.

The Harvesters rallied at the beginning of the third quarter. Pampa outscored North Garland 14-6 to start the quarter to get within three. Pampa had the chance to tie the game but turned it over and the Raiders quickly converted and expanded their lead to 48-43. Pampa turned it over their next three possessions leading to six points by the Raiders. North Garland led 66-50 after the third quarter.

Miller said his team couldn't even things up when they got close.

"That was the problem," Miller said. "Every time we made a run we would allow them to pull back away."

The final quarter was very competitive. North Garland gained their largest lead of the game at 71-52. Latigo Collins would score 11 of Pampa's next 14 points cutting North Garland's lead to 75-65. The Harvesters would outscore North Garland 23-18 in the fourth to reach the final score.

Collins led the team in scoring with 22 points. Alex Clendening had 17 points, Travis Hagerman and Ryan Jimenez had eight points each. Garrett Ericson had two points but left the game in the second half with an injured ankle. Jonathan Polasek came off the bench and scored nine points and Reid Miller scored seven points. Clendening led the team in rebounds with 14, Collins and Hagerman each had four, Polasek had three, Jimenez had two and Reid

Miller had one. The Harvesters (6-5) will play Dallas Roosevelt 10:30 a.m. today at South Garland High School and will visit Borger Monday.

Colt McCoy highlights big awards night

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Colt McCoy's near blunder in the final seconds of the Big 12 title game hasn't cost him on the awards circuit so far. It hasn't hurt the conference, either.

McCoy capped a big Thursday night for the Big 12, winning the Maxwell Award honoring the nation's best all-around player.

It was just the latest in a series of postseason honors for McCoy, who also is a finalist for the Heisman Trophy. He won the Walter Camp Football Foundation's player of the year award for the second consecutive season earlier in the day.

Before he beat out fellow Heisman finalists Mark Ingram of Alabama and Tim Tebow of Florida for the Maxwell, he picked up the Davey O'Brien Award at the annual college football awards at LAKE BUENA VISTA, Disney World, given to the la. (AP) — Colt McCoy's nation's best quarterback.

"To win awards like this shows that you're greatly respected," McCoy said. "It means people see the things that you do, and you're rewarded for them." Apparently they didn't see his last play. Or maybe they just let it slip. The Longhorns (13-0) needed a field goal as time expired to beat Nebraska 13-12 in the Big 12 title game Saturday night. But on the second-to-last play, McCoy nearly let the clock strike zero on a rollout that surely had Longhorns fans gasping.

The player chasing him all night made out just fine Thursday night, too.

Nebraska's Ndamukong Suh, also a Heisman finalist, won the Chuck Bednarik Award as the nation's best defensive player, and took home the Outland Trophy for the best interior lineman.

your "sled" with one of TPWD's four conservation license plates to show your affinity for wildflowers, horned lizards, largemouth bass or white-tailed deer? A portion of every $30 license plate goes to support state parks, wildlife diversity, state fishing programs and research, and wildlife management and research. Since their inception, the conservation license plates have generated more than $4 million in sales for Texas land and water conservation initiatives.

Help support TPWD conservation efforts while adding to your art collection by purchasing the 2008 collector's edition of hunting and fishing stamps. The collection sells for $21.65 and includes six different ers from the past 17 Texas Wildlife Expos held each fall in Austin for only $10 each. Or for that special saltwater angler on your shopping list, pick up the "Saltwater Fishes of Texas" poster, or one of Sea Center Texas' posters featuring a spotted sea trout or redfish. Freshwater fishing aficionados may prefer the "Freshwater Fishes of Texas" or the

Daily Horoscope

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Dec. 13.2009

This year, you often will assume a low profile. For you, this type of behavior is most unusual and different. Others might check in more often as they demonstrate concern about this new attitude. You could feel touched but still closed off. Evaluate what is going on with you, and many of you will try to push past a newfound shyness or caution. If you are single, you will meet many people, but more often than not, the person who gives you a case of the butterflies could misrepresent who he or she is. Take your time getting to know someone you are dating. If you are attached, share more of your vulnerabilities, and both of you will come out much better. SCORPIO reads you cold.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Your caring and responsiveness touch many. Even if you want to do something quite differently and far more innovatively than in the past, you'll most likely opt to stay more in the conventional lane. Make that OK and quit judging yourself. Tonight: Respond to another person. Let this person's wishes be your command.

This Week: Get as much done as possi-

This Week: Take a hard look at your budget, then determine your holiday budget midweek.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Take your time, and don't move too fast, for your own good. Listen to family members and exchange your point of view. A vagueness surrounds communication, and you might misread what someone else is thinking. Tonight: Do your own thing.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; Have: 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Strong feelings could motivate you, far more than you realize. Confusion concerning plans could be the direct result of this fact. You have strong boundaries, though you might have a tendency toward excess. Tonight: Quality time with someone you care about. This Week: Take a stand only after you have done adequate research.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ The wise move is to defer, especially if plans don't make much of a difference to you. An older relative cares far more than you realize. Jump to another person's tune, allowing greater give-andtake. Tonight: Say "yes" to a request. You might like the end results more than vou know

This Week: Relate directly with others, discovering what is important. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Maintain an easy pace, understanding exactly what needs to happen. Your emotional creativity and high energy come out. Stay easy with someone at a distance. Excitement adds a twist to plans. Tonight: Make it an early night. This Week: Others run the show — let them

ble. By midweek, network. Open your door to others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) $\star \star \star$ No one questions your desire and need to stay close to home. Enjoy yourself in the company of others. Don't lock into judging yourself and what you should do. Complete writing cards and other such activities. Let others relax with you. Tonight: Happy as can be.

This Week: Your creativity flourishes, though you might need to funnel your energy Wednesday or Thursday. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★★ Meet a friend for brunch and maybe a movie. Some of you could decide to run your holiday errands together. What is most important is visiting together rather than the activity. Consider news rather than react to it. Tonight: Live the moment.

This Week: Stay close to home. Let your imagination concoct a solution when no one else can

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Your are generous by nature, but do remember yourself. There is a tendency to go overboard, and you just might make that perfectly OK. Whether you are living life or off on a shopping spree, know that there are always limits. Tonight: Balance your checkbook first, then decide

This Week: Make the first move. Let others know where you are coming from. Wednesday on, stay close to home. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★★ Seize the moment. Though you could be frustrated with a workrelated matter or someone you see as in charge, forget it for now. Your job right now is to maximize the moment. Know that there is nothing you won't succeed at. Tonight: As you like.

This Week: You are in prime shape. Work with someone directly. Be careful with money commitments

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 $\star \star \star \star$ Zero in on what you want. Listen to feedback. Be willing to allow others to see your vulnerability. The more people around, the happier you will be. You might overspend or overindulge, and you just might not care. Tonight: Where the action is.

This Week: Use Monday and Tuesday to do research. Act later. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★ You might not appreciate all you need to do, but at the same time, events will proceed as you would like. You have enough energy to cover all the bases, handle responsibilities and still have a good time. Tonight: As you like.

This Week: Zero in on what you want at the beginning of the week. Play it lowkey Wednesday on.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★★ Reach out for others who might not be in the immediate vicinity. Make plans to get together sooner rather than later. Stay in touch with your inner desires and keep reaching within before you make a decision in a key relationship. Tonight: Read between the lines. This Week: Take a stand carly on in the week. Expect only (or mostly) success.

Free Christmas dinner

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ will serve a free Christmas dinner, from 11 a.m until 2 p.m. Friday, December 25 in the church's fellowship hall.

If you need take-out meals, call the church office, 665-0031 by noon, December 18 to reserve those meals.

The church membership says, "Come and share wit us the blessing and surplus of God's grace as we eat on Christmas Day."

Once again Meals On Wheels is sponsoring a program for the Holidays that allows individuals to pay for patrons that are presently receiving meals, but do not have the ability to pay, or can only pay the minimum of .25 cents per meal. This is approximately 60% of our patrons. Our patrons have the need of a warm, nutritious meal which has to be addressed daily. The cost of each meal is averaging $4.00. This leaves us with quite a large deficit for each meal. If you would like to pay for the meals of a patron for one week ($20.00); one month ($80.00); or one year ($960.00), please fill out the form below and return with your check to: Pampa Meals on Wheels, P. O. Box 939, Pampa, Texas 79065, or bring to our office located at 302 E. Foster. Any donation is appreciated.

Santa letters aren't all about toys- or manners

Parents may be surprised at what is on their kids' wish lists – and what's not

(AP) — A microscope. A new puppy. A mother. And absolutely, positively NO CLOTHES.

From the humorous to the heart-wrenching, children's wish lists to Santa reveal that children aren't as toy-centric as parents think — and that they're not as polite as perhaps they should be.

Carole Slotterback, a psychology professor at the University of Scranton, analyzed nearly 1,200 letters sent between 1998 and 2003 to the central post office in Scranton, a struggling former coal city in northeastern Pennsylvania. The missives were scrawled or painstakingly handwritten on every type of paper and in every shade of ink. Many were decorated with drawings, stickers or glitter; some children gave Santa not only their addresses but their phone numbers, parents' cell phone numbers and their school pictures - just to make sure the Big Guy knew how to find them on Christmas.

Slotterback, who describes her findings in the book "The Psychology of Santa," said the letters "touched me in so many different ways."

"Some are just absolutely a stitch, and others are some of the saddest things I've ever read," she said.

One kid asked to be an elf. Another made a list that included Pokemon cards, a camera and a microscope. But about every third item, the child wrote: "NO clothes."

And then there was the one written in careful cursive on bright pink paper, in which Santa was asked for perhaps the greatest gift of all: a mom.

"Not just for me but my daddy, brother and granny ... my daddy works so hard and then he comes home to cook and clean and it should be easier," the letter read.

The child drew a 5-cent "stamp" on the envelope before dropping it in the mailbox.

The U.S. Postal Service receives hundreds of thousands of letters to Santa each year, with increases during tough economic times, said spokeswoman Sue Brennan.

None of them make it to the North Pole. But some do get responses through Operation Santa; about 500,000 letters in New York City alone were answered last year by individuals, companies and postal employees, Brennan said.

Some are funny — one asked Santa to check the appropriate box: Real or not real? — but many more are not, she said.

"I've never gone 5 or 10 minutes without getting teary," said Brennan. "It's very emotional."

Children who sent letters instead of lists were generally more polite and chatty, for instance asking about Mrs. Claus, Slotterback said.

Except for the death threat. One child wrote: "Dear Santa, I am going to kill you and steal the toys from your workshop." Slotterback reported it to the postmaster, who agreed to contact people at the return address, which she believes was a juvenile facility.

The letters also show kids are sensitive to current events. In 2001, just months after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, children's letters were very patriotic, Slotterback said. Kids drew pictures of Santa's sleigh with American flags hanging off the back, and of St. Nick putting flags in stockings; they also asked for fewer toys that year, she found. And there was no indication that children feared the terrorists would get Santa, she said.

"Terrorists can do all kinds of things to our world, and they can hurt us in many ways, but one thing they can't do is touch Santa," said Slotterback. "And that was nice to see." Overall, between 3 percent and 6 percent of letters had what Slotterback called "family requests," such as for a sick grandmother to get better or for Mom and Dad to stop fighting.

She suggested parents ask to see their kids' wish lists, because they might be surprised at what is and what's not — on it. Requests are often "simpler kids of things than you might think," Slotterback said.

But she noted a surprising lack of social niceties in the correspondence, unless the child was asking for a pet. A boy who asked for a golden retriever used "please" 16 times, she said. The next-highest use came from a girl who wanted a horse.

Slotterback cited other research that found people who expect their requests to be fulfilled — like a boss asking an employee to do something — are less likely to say please. Perhaps likewise, she said, kids expect Santa to come through.

Still, she said, "you'd think if you were asking for a lot of presents, you would throw in a 'please' or a 'thank you."

Do-it-yourself holiday gifts cost less, mean more f ever there has been a year to give a homemade holiday gift, this is it. The economy's in the dumps and budgets are tight. Gift-givers have to be more creative than ever if they want to delight their friends and family with something unusual.

Meanwhile, business is booming in the world of homemade crafts. Not only has scrapbooking launched an industry of its own, but the notion of do-it-yourself has produced thousands of new products, services, classes, and ideas that now jostle for space on the Web and in stores.

With all these choices, the question remains: What to give? Here are some ideas:

— Aprons are big this year, according to Kathy Rogers of Oak Park, Calif. These kitchen cover-ups are useful and they're easy to sew, even for novices.

"People are having fun with it; I've seen a lot of aprons with retro patterns," said Rogers, a fiber artist and teacher who is president of the California Art Education Association. "That seriously seems to be a very hot item."

Can't sew at all? Order a white cotton twill apron from the Bay Area-based Dharma Trading Company, http://www.dharmatrading.com/. They start at around $7.00 and can be dressed up with tie-dye, buttons, decals, fabric paint and just about anything else.

— If you like to give your gifts early, try a wreath. Jenny Bosben, a Madison, Wis., art teacher, estimates she spends about $3 per wreath for a metal frame and some craft wire. Then she heads into her backyard to chop off a few pieces of Arbor Vitae, an evergreen shrub. If you don't have access to evergreens, boughs are available to buy at Christmas time.

Just wrap the boughs securely onto the frame with the wire, overlapping so the stems don't show.

"You can add whatever you want: holly berries, dried flowers from the backyard," said Bosben. "It's something people really enjoy because it's real and it smells good."

— Homemade cards are also popular this year, according to craft store buyers. Molly Heyn-DeVinaspre, a sculptor, photographer and art teacher in Boise, Idaho, created the following instructions to create stationary from crayons:

Crayon Melt Stationary Set

Materials: Electric fry pan, foil, original crayons (not washable), card stock, envelopes, paper towels, hot pad or oven mitts.

Line pan with foil

Turn on pan until hot enough to melt crayons.

Peel paper off crayons. (If working with kids have them use oven mitts to avoid burns.)

Melt or draw with the crayons on the foil until desired look is achieved; thick pools of melted crayons end up creating interesting shapes.

Place paper on top of melted wax.

Gently blot with paper towel to stick the wax onto the paper.

Lift paper off and allow cooling time.

Fold in half to create card.

Wipe excess wax off foil with paper towel and create another! Package all the cards with envelopes and tie a piece of yarn around everything.

— If you're making gifts with children, try baked goods, said Laurie Nagus, who runs playgroups at the Madison Waldorf School in Madison, Wis.

Nagus likes to give homemade fudge as a gift. She also makes shortbread every year for neighbors and friends. "We give it with a candle and a tiny bottle of wine," she said. — Bosben also makes ornaments from a salt clay recipe that her mother used. Baked hard, the ornaments can be painted and decorated. Salt clay renders the ornaments both rock-hard and unappetizing to the family dog.

"The ones my mom made, they lasted forever," Bosben said.

Bosben's holiday ornament recipe:

- 1 cup flour
- 3/4 cup salt
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 cup cooking oil

Mix flour, salt and oil with wooden spoon. Add water gradually. Shape, add hook for hanging from tree, and then bake pieces at 300 degrees for 1 to 2 hours, until hard. Paint and decorate.

How to keep holidays happy AND healthy for kids

NEW YORK (AP) - Worried your kids are going to pack on the pounds over winter break?

Before you cut out the cookies for Santa, pumpkin pie and doughnuts, take a look at these tips from the experts.

MODEL HEALTHY EATING BEHAVIOR: If kids see their parents piling their plates, they will probably do the same, said Dr. Sarah Hampl, medical director of PHIT Kids (Promoting Health in Teens and Kids), a weight management program at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Mo.

ADD, DON'T TAKE AWAY: If you have a family tradition of decorating cookies, don't take away that fun, said Susan Z. Yanovski, an obesity expert at the National Institutes of Health. "That doesn't mean you need to leave the cookies out for everyone to nibble on," she said. But you can always give them away.

PLAN PLAN PLAN: Give kids a small healthy snack, such as string cheese or yogurt before going to a holiday party, so they are not ravenous, said Sarah Krieger, a dietitian at All Children's Hospital in St. Petersburg, Fla. She also suggests bringing something healthy to parties like a fruit salad. "People will eat that if it's there."

INCREASE ACTIVITY: Physical activity goes down during the holidays when sports practices and dance and karate lessons are canceled. Fight the temptation to hibernate, said Dr. David Ludwig, director of the Optimal Weight for Life Program, Children's Hospital Boston. "Now is the time to be more rather than less physically active," he said. Children who are busy are also less likely to rummage through the cupboards or the Halloween candy stash.

GET KIDS INVOLVED: Work with kids to come up with healthier alternatives to the way food is prepared, said Dr. Thomas Robinson of Lucile Packard Children's Hospital at Stanford. Children will feel like they are part of changing the way the family does things. "People's taste and preference are quite malleable."

DON'T RESTRICT: Don't restrict foods, said Dr. Goutham Rao, clinical director of the Weight Management and Wellness Center at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh. It makes the food more valuable. "Help children know that this is a time when you can make healthy choices, even though they are out of school. It's not a time to go crazy."

This photo shows cherry-apricot crumb pie. A slice of pie on Thanksgiving is as traditional as a serving of turkey. You can make this tradition healthier by making good choices when choosing the crust. This cherry-apricot crumb pie is topped with a lowfat oat crumble made with whole-wheat flour that helps reduce any dietary regret. (AP Photo/Larry Crowe)

Black bears are reclaiming lost Texas territory

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Ray Hernandez was checking for oil at a pump jack this summer on a vast stretch of ranchland in Menard County when his cell phone rang. It was a well worker at a pipe yard on the property, insisting he'd seen a bear.

"I said, No, you didn't, you seen a stump, " Hernandez said. "And actually, there's a stump there that looks just like a bear."

In fact, the worker had seen a bear. And the June 23 sighting escalated swiftly into a bear hunt.

It ended with the crack of a rifle, a felled beast and a criminal charge against Hernandez, a self-identified Tonkawa Indian who did not fire the shot but decapitated the state-protected creature with a hacksaw and ferried home its head and paws.

His initial incredulity, however, was justified.

The black bear that wandered onto the Central Texas cattle ranch that day is the first ever confirmed in that part of the state, according to Capt. Alan Teague, a game warden with Texas Parks and Wildlife.

For Teague and others at the agency, it's further proof that the species is reclaiming lost territory.

Black bears roamed every ecosystem in Texas two centuries ago. Then settlers arrived, altering habitat, hunting bears to protect livestock and killing the creatures for sport.

decade, the creatures began crossing from northern Mexico into the southern reaches of West Texas.

For the past 15 years, a small population has bred there, mostly in the region's rugged mountains.

But bears in Texas recently have been on the move, staging an unprecedented return to regions such as the Edwards Plateau, Piney Woods and South Texas Plains, according to Nathan Garner, a biologist with Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Texas lists the black bear as threatened. The penalty for shooting one is a Class C misdemeanor and a fine of $500, plus a civil restitution of $11,907.50.

Reasons for bears forging deep into new territory are more varied.

Teague, the game warden, cites the recent severe drought as a likely motivator.

Garner, the biologist, says bear populations in Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma are expanding into eastern regions of Texas.

And bears in Mexico now are protected, so the population there is spilling into Texas, where many landowners have switched from raising sheep and goats to cattle, said Ruben Cantu, a TPWD regional director in San Angelo.

Game wardens investigate all killings, although there are limitations to the law.

"A landowner does have a right to protect his livestock" and human life, said Clint Graham, a game warden. But the state prefers to trap and relocate animals that are a threat, he said.

Pursuing a false rumor that Hernandez had shot the bear, investigators first went to his home, a rented bungalow in south Menard County.

The self-styled Indian decorates the house with painted animal skulls and collects American Indian accoutrements, including a sheepskin loincloth, elk hide the ants would "carnage on the meat, the hair and all that. They were really getting after it."

He said he planned to pull the bear's teeth from its skull and add them to a choker that already contains the teeth of a wolf and the claws of a mountain lion.

With those bones and five eagle feathers he says his grandmother left him, Hernandez believes the bear would have imbued him with an accumulated vigor.

"That was the completion," he said. "That had been my medicine. The bear would have filled a realm, the spiritual realm."

Instead, investigators confiscated the head and paws as evidence and hauled Hernandez to Menard County Jail.

Hernandez was charged with possession of threatened species parts and fined $500.

A Liberty County judge reputedly slaughtered 200 bears in the late 19th century, a pursuit that earned Lewis Hightower the handle "the Bear-Hunting Judge," according to the Handbook of Texas Online.

'I practice law for recreation," Hightower would say, "and hunt bear for a livin'."

By the 1950s, black bears were eradicated from Texas, experts say.

The state made bear hunting illegal in 1983. That

Investigators that day also found a rotting bear's head on a red ant mound and four bear paws in a sack inside an abandoned car.

Hernandez said he hoped has announced that he is seeking re-election to the office of Judge of the 31st Judicial District Court. The 31st Judicial District includes Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts and Wheeler Counties.

Judge Emmert states that he has strived to provide the citizens of the 31st Judicial District with a conscientious, fair and competent court, and will continue to do so. He is committed to providing a common sense approach in applying the laws of the State of Texas. Because he finds his work to be very interesting and challenging, he wants to continue to serve the citizens of the district as their State judge.

Judge Emmert and his family moved to Wheeler in 1986 where he maintained a private law practice until elected 31" District Judge in 1998. He also served as Wheeler County Attorney from 1990 until 1998 and served as a member of the State Bar of Texas Grievance Committee, Region 13A for two years.

In 2006, Judge Emmert was awarded a Certificate of Special Competence in General Jurisprudence from the Texas College for Judicial Studies. He is a member of the Judicial Section of the State Bar of Texas and the College of the State Bar of Texas.

Judge Emmert was reared in rural Collingsworth County where he continues to be involved in the ranching industry with his parents. LONDON (AP) — A delighted audience clapped and cheered as the lights came on after the premiere of James Cameron's sci-fi extravaganza "Avatar" in London on Thursday.

The 3-D epic about humans taking extraterrestrial form as they explore a distant world is reportedly one of the most expensive movies ever made, with a price tag well in excess of the $200 million spent to make "Titanic." It uses cutting-edge digital technology to create dizzying special effects, and provoked a breathless response from many in the audience.

"It's brilliant, it's as good as the hype, both the 3-D effects and the story," said 28-year-old Victoria Blasdale.

FIRST FIDELITY

Stars Sigourney Weaver and Zoe Saldana joined the crowds on a specially made blue carpet at London's Leicester Square before the gala screening at two massive side-by-side movie theaters.

The industry is watching closely to see how audiences respond to Cameron's first narrative film since 1997's "Titanic," which won 11 Academy Awards and has taken $1.8 billion worldwide at the box office.

Cameron said the movie, set in the future on an alien planet being pillaged by humans for natural resources, deals with how indigenous people are treated by newcomers.

"It's a way of connecting a thread through history. I take that thread further back to the 16th and 17th centuries and to how the Europeans pretty much took over South and Central America and displaced and marginalized the indigenous peoples there," he said.

"There's just this long, wonderful history of the human race written in blood going back as far as we can remember, where we have this tendency to just take what we want without asking," he said.

Weaver said she didn't consider the film a sci-fi movie. "I consider it an old-fashioned, epic swashbuckling romance," she said.

There's a topical environmental message too. As humans exploit their newfound world the indigenous species of the planet harmonize with nature to fight back.

"Avatar" opens around the world next week.

Hollywood hopes an ensemble cast boosts Blu-ray

LOS ANGELES (AP) ---Although prices for some Blu-ray players dropped below $100 this holiday season, customers are hesitating to jump into the next-generation video format. Even people who already own Blu-ray players are still buying movies on DVDs.

One big reason: Blu-ray discs won't play on standard DVD players found in cars, computers and bedrooms.

Hollywood -Now which is banking on the pricier Blu-ray discs to help lift sagging home video sales - is stepping up its efforts to win customers. Studios are packaging Blu-ray discs with regular versions on DVDs, and throwing in so-called "digital copies," which can play on computers and iPods.

Over the past month or so, "Up," ''Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince" and many other hit movies were released in such combo packs. Universal is releasing its "Bourne" movies on "flipper" discs with Blu-ray on one side and DVD on the other.

Such combos generally cost about $20 - sometimes 50 percent to 70 percent less than what it would cost to buy a Blu-ray disc and DVD separately.

Movie studios have been pushing Blu-ray for its crystal-clear sound and images, which can be enjoyed even without the best flat-panel TVs. Yet DVDs remain more convenient because players and computer drives that read DVD discs are ubiquitous. Two-thirds of the 92 million U.S. households that have a DVD player have more than one.

There are now Blu-ray players in nearly 12 million U.S. homes. But you still need to think hard about where you'd want to play a Blu-ray disc before you buy one.

"Blu-ray is landlocked.

6.6 percent, according to The Digital Entertainment Group, an industry organization.

Because Blu-ray discs are generally priced $10 or more than DVDs, without costing much more to produce, they could boost profit margins in Hollywood.

Until now, the pace of adoption for Blu-ray has matched what DVD had when it pushed aside video cassettes more than a decade ago. But DVDs didn't face as many competitors as Blu-ray has. Other delivery methods have emerged, including videos and movies over the Internet, sometimes sent straight to your TV.

Shoppers say utility and portability are sometimes more important than the picture and sound quality that Blu-ray enables. That's why studios have resorted over the past year to including computer- and iPod-friendly digital copies in many movie packages.

"With all these gadgets, of course, it is a convenience to have a digital copy, said Ross De La Cuesta, 63, holding his iPod and iPhone in the movie aisle at a Target store in Glendale, Calif.

De La Cuesta recently bought Disney/Pixar's "Up" for $20 in a combo pack that included a Bluray, DVD, digital copy and a disc with special features about the movie. Eventually he'll download the digital copy onto his phone so his 4-year-old granddaughter can watch it on long car rides.

Brett Bonowicz, a 25-year-old Los Angeles screenwriter, would give anything to have Blu-ray capabilities on his iMac computer, which has a 27-inch screen and sits in the living room. For now, he'll have to settle for the digital copy that comes with many Blu-ray discs.

"If there is one with a movie transactions rose marketing.

By using digital copies and other methods of propping up Blu-ray sales, studios may just be getting consumers used to Bluray's rivals. But those other formats could still help Hollywood. Studios have been working on technologies to let consumers buy a movie and then access it on any format or device. Disney has a system called "KeyChest"; other stu-dios are behind a "Digital Entertainment Content Ecosystem."

Those technologies could help end the confusion people face with all the options they have for getting movies and TV shows online and offline, through set-top boxes and DVD or Blu-ray players.

"The more we can do to provide clarity for consumers at an affordable price," Vitelli said, "the better off we're going to be."

It's home-locked," said Michael Vitelli, a vice president at Best Buy Co.

At a recent industry conference, Vitelli remarked that it shouldn't matter where consumers plan to watch a movie they buy, just as it shouldn't matter where Starbucks customers are going to drink their lattes. But these days, with an array of video formats and devices, it does matter.

The home video market is crucial for studios because that is where they recoup much of the cost of producing movies.

Yet the market has been sagging as people refrain from adding to their already well-stocked home collections and turn to rentals, which are far less profitable for Hollywood. U.S. home video revenue fell 3.2 percent to $4 billion in the third quarter, even though the number of home digital copy and one without, I definitely always get the one with the divital copy," he said.

According to Warner Bros., about 18 percent of buyers end up using the digital copy that comes with a Blu-ray.

Offering a digital copy costs studios just a little bit more per package in discprinting and labeling costs. Yet it can have significant benefits for Hollywood.

Not only does it help keep people buying in the Blu-ray format rather than buying or renting DVDs, the combo pack also lets the studio collect contact information from people who choose to register online when they redeem a code that unlocks the digital copy. That information can be used for future sales campaigns, surveys and other forms of direct
