Happy President's Day

by Martha Randolph Carr

Actually, the third Monday in February is still officially on the books as George Washington's Birthday. No one in Washington has ever gotten around to changing the name even though it's widely accepted that this we remember the contribution of everyone who's held the highest office in America.

That's a great sentiment and considering how much we love to kick around whoever is currently the president, offering a little respect for the office is a good idea.

President Chester Arthur started the holiday in 1885 as a way to celebrate George Washington as our founding father. Arthur, who was most famous for becoming president after James Garfield was assassinated, was a Baptist, a lawyer and a Republican who fell out of favor with his own party. They wouldn't give him the nomination even though he was the sitting president. That's rough politics. That's also more than most of us have probably ever known about Arthur.

His most positive accomplishment, besides the federal holiday, is the Pendleton Civil Service Act, which is well regarded today but is believed to be what cost him the nomination. It created the modern civil service system and points out the reason the day eventually grew to include all presidents. Despite all of the pomp and perks, this is a civil service job where we all get the opportunity to choose who

It makes the day a great time to pause and reflect on how we can all be of service. No matter what job each of us has, we can approach our duties with the idea of being of service to others. It's a lot harder to feel resentment over the details we don't like if we can see all of it as serving a purpose. Then it's no longer about our ego and whether or not we shine and more about being a grateful member of society. That's where George Washington, our very first president, really set the standard for the rest of us. The monarchs of that era fully expected Washington to make a power grab and declare himself, presidentfor-life. That would have been the norm and a more proven system of continuity as a means to keep a country moving along peacefully. Countries were seen as most vulnerable when the leader was brand new and untested. To purposely set up a system in the US that chose to change the commander in chief every four years and then let the common people decide who'd get to lead was thought of as

But, when the second term ended and even the voters begged Washington to stay, he declined, refusing once again to allow anyone to compare him to royalty. It was a very important turning point for our country as Washington chose to uphold an ideal and let go of the control.

Imagine a CEO of an enormous conglomerate stepping back and letting the shareholders decide who gets to take his place. Imagine that over 200 years later, eve when your choice doesn't win, the corporation continues to grow and thrive. We have been the somewhat grateful recipients of all of that, and all

Lady Harvesters come up short against Canyon

BY ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

Pampa Lady Harvesters played a hard fought game Saturday but came up short in a 2-0 loss to the Canyon Lady Eagles at Harvester Field.

Head Coach John True said they played the hardest they had all season.

"If we can keep playing hard, then the technical and tactical stuff would take care of itself," True said. "I'm very proud of them. They didn't give up. It was a physical game and we rose to the occasion as physical game went."

Both teams went through the first half without scoring a goal. As both goalies made key saves to keep their team from falling behind.

Courtney Womack opened the scoring for the Eagles in the second half, taking advantage of Pampa's mistake in playing back defense. Womack scored another goal towards the last half of the second half to reach the final score. True said the goals against his team was the result of a defensive mistake and Canyon making a good pass.

We had mistakes in the back with not bringing the ball down," True said. "On the second one we gave the girl two much time on the ball to pass, we didn't pressure quick enough."

True was pleased with how is goalie Bree Howard played during the game.

"Our goalkeeper played awesome today," True said. "Outside of those two goals there's nothing else she could have done. She played awesome. So, it really wasn't a goaltender

The Pampa Harvesters soccer team is still looking for its first win of the season as they lost 4-0 to the Canyon Eagles Saturday in Canyon.

Head Coach John True said his team didn't come out to play in that game and hopes for a better result Monday

"I don't think we played very hard," True said. "For most of the game we had parts where we played hard but I don't think we played very hard especially in the second half.

Both teams kicked the ball back and forth in the first several minutes of the game. The Eagles got on the scoreboard, about halfway through the first when Wayne Munger scored to make it 1-0. A few minutes later Munger expanded the lead with his second goal of the game making it 2-0 Eagles. Canyon would carry this two-goal lead into halftime.

The second half started the same way as the first with both teams exchangpossessions. The Eagles brought their lead to three about a fourth of the way through the second half on a Colt Welch goal. Juan Garcia got the last goal for the Eagles about halfway through the second half. Dillion Heiman played goalie and got the shutout in his second start.

with how his goalie Marlon Ibarra played.

"I think our goalkeeper did a good job today for the most part," True said. "He did what he was supposed to and that's it. I think our goalkeeper was the best player today for us.

True said it's been hard for his team not winning in awhile but they have to keep playing.

"At the same time they got to pick themselves and be ready to play Caprock," True said. "Caprock is not going to give up. We have to come out and be ready to play.'

Lady Harvesters softball seeks deeper playoff run

BY ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

Pampa Lady Harvesters softball team is looking to make history in 2010 as the season starts Tuesday in Pampa.

Head Coach Bobbi Gill said her team is ready to play and start the season.

"We've got a lot of returners," Gill said. "A lot of young kids and we are ready to get going."

Gill's players are ready to get the season started as well.

"We're really ready," Sammie Pearson said. "We've been waiting four years for this season.'

Senior Ashley Facio agreed and said they have a pretty good team coming back.

"We're pretty experienced," Facio said. "We're just ready to get out there and start competing."

Last season, Pampa made it to the third round of the playoffs where they were eliminated by district foe Randall. Pearson said the seniors want to leave their mark on the program.

"We want to go further than we've been before," Pearson said. "We want to make it to at least the fourth round, maybe the fifth round or state."

Senior Brooklyn Barker said they have to have a whole new leadership.

"It's a different team from last year," Barker said. "I'm pretty pumped that we'll do just as good if not better than last year."

The Lady Harvesters also have a lofty goal for district and that's finish undefeated. Senior pitcher Carly Tiechmann said she thinks the team will compete very well in district.

"We have a good stick (bat) and have really good defense," Tiechmann said. "We want to go 12-0. That's one of our goals to win district 12-0.'

Gill said this team is capable of great things and everything must fall

"Going undefeated is a goal they want to do every year," Gill said. "I think that's every team's goal going in is go unbeaten if you can. I think this group, they are capable of doing that. If everything falls in line and they take care of what they should, everything should fall in place."

The Lady Harvesters open the season with Childress with the junior varsity starting at 4 p.m. and the varsity starting at 5:30 p.m.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and I haven't spoken in more than two years because of something I said regarding her grandson, "Joey," who is my great-grandson. The last time I saw this boy, who lives in another state, he was 7 or 8.

My daughter's husband was expressing how proud he was of Joey, who is a star football player -- a linebacker at 200 pounds and over 6 feet tall. I said, "Wow, the last time I saw him he was 7 or 8 and fat as a little pig." My words were not wisely chosen, but an expression I have used many times. It was just a comment.

They left the state in early spring without a call or a goodbye. On Mother's Day I received a "gushy" card, which I returned with a note saying how much I would have loved the card - if I had felt it was sin-

I am 86 and hate what has happened, but I feel am being punished for just "being me?" Should I make the first move or just let sleeping dogs lie? -- OUTSPOKEN GRANDMA IN FLORIDA

DEAR OUTSPOKEN GRANDMA: You should have apologized for your comment the minute you realized you had struck a nerve. And returning the card the way you did only added fuel to the fire. My advice is to write your daughter and son-in-law a note of apology and do it soon, because at 86, you don't have any time to waste.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman from a family of females who are all largebusted. Sad to say, I am the exception. My husband not only looks but stares when he sees a big-breasted woman. He promised me a few years ago I could get implants. He even let me consult two plastic surgeons, and then twice prevented me with excuses from having it done.

I do not want this because of his actions but because I have always wanted a well-balanced body. I have been told by family members to go ahead and get the implants without his knowledge. I believe he would love the end result, but I'm not sure this is the right way to do it. What do you think? --NO MORE EXCUSES IN LOUISIANA

DEAR NO MORE EXCUSES: I think that if you want to have breast augmentation, you should do it. BUT NOT THE WAY YOUR FAMILY IS SUGGESTING! Have a serious talk with your husband, so you can explain how you feel about having the surgery and he can tell you exactly what his qualms are. While he may enjoy looking at largebreasted women, he married you just the way you are, and he may be worried that something could happen during the procedure that could cost him the love of his life. Hear him out.

DEAR ABBY: I am an only child who has been married for almost 30 years to a wonderful man who is also an only child. We have no children.

We are moving to another state where we don't know anyone. I am worried that one day I'll be all alone in the world with no one to turn to. (Women statistically tend to live longer than men, and my husband is seven years my senior.)

What do people do when they have no. one, and how do I not let this ruin our otherwise great life now? -- AFRAID TO BE ALONE

DEAR AFRAID: First of all, quit preoccupying yourself with thoughts of death and isolation. When you arrive at your destination, join a church or synagogue if you are religious. If you're not, find organizations where you and your husband can volunteer time and meet people. Join social clubs if you're moving to a sizable city. "Old age" will happen years from now, if you're lucky. And regardless of what "statistics" say, you could go before your husband -- so stop worrying and enjoy the time you have together.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Feb. 16, 2010:

This year, you have an opportunity to stabilize your finances and create greater monetary flow and security. Your understanding of those in your immediate environment comes out frequently. Others will tend to confide in you; learn to keep a secret. If you are single, you will want to impress a new sweetie. Be careful. You want someone to care for the real you. If you are attached, dote on your significant other a little more often. You will witness a change. Enjoy the new warmth. ARIES adds wit to any conversation.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
PAMPA AREA
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Traveling through White Deer a few days ago, I stopped in Clint and Sons. Josh Cook showed me their line of Traeger Grills that use wood pellets. One of these days, winter will be over and outdoor cooking time will be here. Stop in now to find the cooker right for your needs. And don't forget that Clint and Sons Jerky is available at several places in Pampa. While I was "out that way", I also stopped in at Britten Feed and Seed, just inside the county line. I grew up going to feed stores, and the smell brought back old memories. You would be hard-pressed to find an animal in the area they don't have feed for. Many thanks to Martha Alonso and Erica Guzman at Happy State Bank for translating the text of our chamber brochure into Spanish. And did you know that HSB was voted one of the best places to work for in Texas in 2009? Have you looked online at "pampatx.com"? Operated Vision Computer Services, "Pampa's Online Business Directory" is a handy resource to finding what you need in our city. We have been remiss about offering a hearty welcome to Josh Hess, new manager of Wal-Mart. Josh is likely to become a familiar face around town, as he has become active in the Chamber, Rotary, and

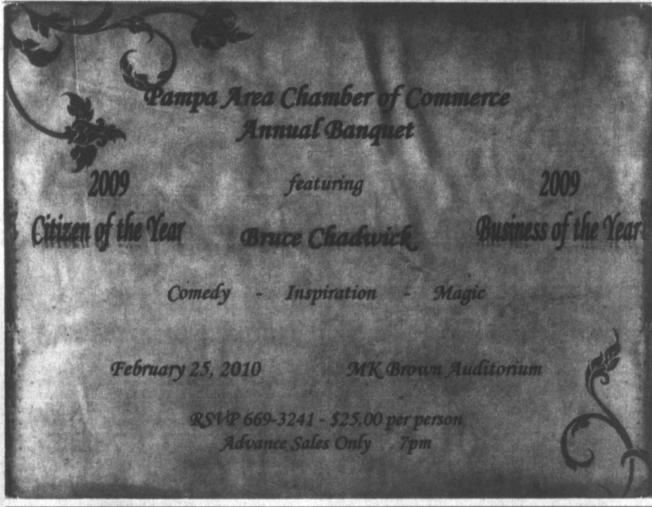

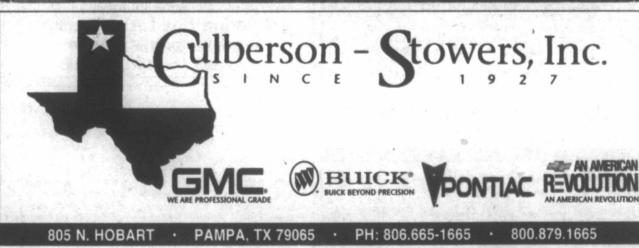

First Presbyterian Church. Congrats too, Josh, on the arrival of your little one! Did you know that YOU can be a member of the best community support and promotion organization in town? Individual memberships in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce are $65 annually...that's $1.25 a week, about the price of a cup of coffee. Which Pampa business was the featured success story in the February edition of the WTAMU Small Business Development Center's newsletter? Harvester Cleaners! In 1925, the Pampa Chamber of Commerce was founded. I don't know if we were the first in the Panhandle, but we beat Amarillo by a year. (In 1927 Culberson began selling Chevrolets in Pampa!) Check out the new website of the Pampa Economic Development Corporation-www. pampaedc.com. Congratulations to Rheams Diamond Shop for winning Business of the Year, 2009. Way to go, Ken and Stephane! Who will be honored as the Citizen of the Year? He or she will be announced at the Chamber banquet on February 25th. Get your ticket now!

On January 21, 2010, the Chamber of Commerce held a training session and was treated to a great meal served by Heather Dawn's, owned and operated by Heather Seabourn. Heather Dawn's joined the Chamber of Commerce on January 19, 2010. Poll: Texas voters would cut highway funding first AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Forty-one percent of Texas voters chose highway funding in a poll asking what they would cut to deal with a projected state budget shortfall as high as $16 billion next year.

About one in five surveyed in the poll said they would raise taxes or fees, and fewer said they would cut spending on education or health care for the poor.

or health care for the poor.

The Feb. 2-10 telephone survey of 1,508 registered voters has a margin of error of plus or minus 2.5 percentage points.

Blum & Weprin Associates Inc. conducted the poll for the AustinAmerican Statesman, The Dallas Morning News, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, the Houston Chronicle and the San Antonio ExpressNews.

Asked where to get money for roads, voters were even more ambivalent. Given five widely debated options, toll roads ranked the highest. Twenty-one percent of respondents chose that option.

"It tells me that 20 percent like toll roads, but 80 percent don't like them," said Dale Craymer, president of the Texas Taxpayer and Research Association, a nonpartisan research group.

The results come amid the high-profile Republican gubernatorial primary between Gov. Rick Perry and Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison. Debra Medina is also in the race.

Perry has made transportation a high priority in his campaign leading to the March 2 vote, while

Asked where to get Hutchison has been critical of toll roads, including a Perry-backed plan called the Trans-Texas Corridor.

Craymer said the poll shows that in times of budgetary duress, concrete-and-steel projects that are costly and take years to complete are the first to go in the minds of voters.

"It's not so much an indicator that people are willing to tolerate the traffic as much as it is recognition about the cost of fixing it," Craymer said. "You can throw billions at the problem and not make a dent."

lem and not make a dent."
While 38 percent of Texas voters said illegal immigrants should be deported, a combined majority picked two options that would allow them to stay. A path to citizenship was favored by 29 percent of voters, and 23 percent said they support giving immigrants work visas.

"There is a plurality for deporting them and the path to citizenship is not wildly popular in the state except among a few groups - minorities and the young," said the pollster, Mickey Blum.

The economy and jobs was a prevalent worry for many of those interviewed, especially coupled with the looming state deficit.

Most said they believed offering incentives for businesses to move to Texas was the best way to create jobs. Only 16 percent said the state should spend money on public projects as a way to put Texans back to work.

Texas agencies must propose 5 percent budget cuts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The deadline has arrived as state agencies are asked to recommend cuts as Texas faces a projected budget shortfall in 2011.

Gov. Rick Perry, Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst and House Speaker Joe Straus in January asked all state agencies to offer proposals cutting 5 percent of their budgets. The deadline was Monday.

Authorities have said the projected state budget shortfall could range from $10 billion to as high as $16 billion next year.

Texas corrections officials, looking for perhaps as much as $300 million in cut-backs in the 112-unit system, have not ruled out closing some prisons.

Some schools, including the University of Texas, could be facing possible tuition hikes.
