No city elections in '10; candidates unopposed

BY DAVID BOWSER dbowser@thepampanews.com

There won't be any city elections this May in Pampa.

City Secretary Karen Price said that the two Pampa City Commissioners running for reelection face no opposition in the spring elections.

Bill Allison, who represents Ward 2, and Neal Fulton, who represents Ward 4, are the only ones to register for the positions. "It saves us quite a bit of money,"

Six arrested in connection with Sunday robbery

BY DAVID BOWSER

Six people are in Gray County jail today after being arrested on charges of aggravated robbery in connection with a Pampa home break-in on Sunday morning.

Michael Don Burns, 27, Ashli Diane Harris, 22, and Brittany Nichols Jones, 19, were arrested by law enforcement officers Wednesday evening in connection with the Sunday morning break-in of a home at 1806 North Sumner.

Aemon Troy Layton, 26, and Jesus Rodriguez, 30, were arrested by officers Thursday afternoon.

Anthony Lee Williams, also known as Tony Hall, 33, was in Guadalupe County jail today in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Pampa police officers arrested Burns about 6 p.m. Wednesday and arrested Harris shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday. Police officers arrested Rodriguez about 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

Gray County deputies arrested Jones shortly before 8 p.m. Wednesday and Layton about 1 p.m. Thursday.

Rodriguez was being held on $125,000 bond today. Layton was being held on $120,000 bond. Burns, Harris and Jones were each being held on $100,000 bond. Gray County Justice of the Peace Kurt Curfman set the bonds. ARRESTS cont. on page 3

Indictments for seven in slaying

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal authorities have announced the indictment of seven people in connection with kidnapping of a Texas man later found slain in a Mexican street with his arms chopped off.

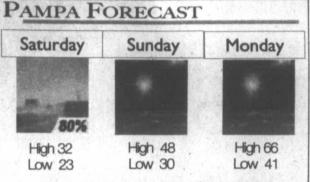

Rafael Vega, 26, of Tornillo, and Cesar Obregon-Reyes, 21, and Omar Obregon-Ortiz, 21, both Mexican citizens living in Tornillo, were charged with kidnapping and conspiracy in the death of Sergio Saucedo, officials said Thursday.

These charges stem from the kidnapping of Saucedo from his home in Horizon City in September 2009. He was taken to Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, where authorities believe he was murdered and mutilated in retaliation for the loss of a marijuana load seized at the Sierra Blanca checkpoint in El Paso.

in Juarez shootings

McALLEN, Texas (AP) - More than 200 federal, state and local law enforcement officers swept through El Paso on Thursday, picking up suspected members of the Barrio Azteca gang in an effort to find new leads into the killings of three people with ties to the U.S. Consulate in Ciudad Juarez last weekend. "The El Paso law enforcement community has come together today to locate Barrio Azteca members as part of a major intelligence collection effort in an attempt to generate leads into Saturday's Juarez murders," FBI Special Agent Andrea Simmons said.

Investigators also are seeking information that could help them find the leader of the gang's Juarez operations, Eduardo "Tablas" Ravelo, who was named to the FBI's Ten Most Wanted Fugitives list last year.

Gang members with outstanding warrants were being arrested, but the goal of the all-day sweep dubbed "Operation Knock Down" is gathering intelligence, Simmons said. By late afternoon, officers had interviewed about 100 gang members, she said.

Earlier this week, Mexican authorities said U.S. intelligence pointed toward involvement in the slavings by the Aztecas, which operate on both sides of the U.S.-Mexico border and work for the Juarez drug cartel.

Consulate employee Lesley A. Enriquez and her husband, Arthur H. Redelfs, were killed Saturday in Juarez when gunmen opened fire on their sport utility vehicle after they left a birthday party.

Arrests

Two of the gang of five broke into the home at 1806 North Sumner shortly before 10 a.m. Sunday.

A woman who lives there surprised them as they ransacked the house, officers said. When she confronted them, investigators said one person ran out of the home while the other pulled a weapon and threatened the woman.

Pampa police officers and Gray County deputies investigated the breakin that resulted in the arrests on Wednesday and Thursday. Police Chief Kelly Rushing said today that close cooperation between "People who invade the sanctuary of a person's home are dangerous and this behavior will not be tolerated."

He said that although it was a Pampa Police Department case, Rushing said Sheriff Don Copeland immediately provided help from the sheriff's department.

"Because of our unified efforts, things came together quickly, and we were able to identify suspects, secure evidence and gather information needed to secure arrest warrants," Rushing said. - He said the police officers and deputies worked

Operation seeks leads | Renewable energy projects announced

AUSTIN - Texas Comptroller Susan Combs announced on Tuesday that 32 renewable energy projects around the state have been selected to receive a first round of federal stimulus grants as part of the Distributed Renewable Energy Technolog/ Program.

Approximately $32 million will go to cities, school districts, colleges and universities and other loca'and state government entities in the first round of gants. More project applications are currently undergoing federal National Environmental Policy Act review.

Recipients will use the grants to install renewable energy infrastructure at public facilities o generate electricity at those sites, reduce utility costs and save tax dollars.

The projects will also increase the amount of installed renewable energy in Tex1s, which would reduce the demand on power plants and cut emissions from the plants.

"Some projects offer even more benefits," Combs

DEAR ABBY: I'm a career woman, working for a family-owned business. Last year was difficult because there have been a number of layoffs and no raises. When I had my annual review, I received an outstanding evaluation but was again told no raise would be forthcoming because business is slow.

I could understand this because of the current economy if the owners of the company weren't takexpensive vacations ing buying new luxury and cars.

I have a hard time accepting there's no money for raises when they spend so extravagantly. I understand it's not my business how they spend their money, but it's difficult to swallow when I feel so taken advantage of. I'm not the only one here feeling the way I do, and it's beginning to create a hostile environment. Am I wrong to feel this way? -- BITTER IN THE NORTHEAST

DEAR BITTER: If vour employers are claiming poverty while indulging in conspicuous consumption, your feelings are understandable. And don't want any hard feelings from the other family members, but my daughter is determined to have me as her matron of honor. -- DONNA IN SOUTH CAROLINA DEAR DONNA: If what your daughter said is true, and you were the only one who had faith in her and loved her unconditionally, then you should accept her offer to stand with her at the altar. And yes, it has been done before.

DEAR ABBY: I am a freelance writer who works from home. I have flexibility when it comes to my work hours, but I decide that on my own terms. I have lost count of the number of times friends and family have asked me to baby-sit, have lunch or go out shopping with them because, according to them, writing isn't "real work" and working from home means having no fixed hours.

Last week my husband called me from his office and asked me to bring him some documents he had forgotten at home. When I realized it wasn't urgent, I told him no and that he had interrupted my train of thought. He has been sulking for days. Was I wrong? In this digital age, with more people working from home, it still means adhering to a schedule. Oh, and one more thing please remind your readers that writing is very much a REAL job. -- FREELANCE WRITER IN TENNESSEE DEAR FREELANCE WRITER: Consider it done. Writing requires concentration, and it IS a very real job. However. you may be bringing some of your problems on yourself by not informing your friends and family that you write between certain hours every day. And an effective way to isolate yourself and ensure you won't be interrupted by annoying phone calls would be to turn your phone off during the hours that you're writing.

aid. "For example, Texas State Technical College (TSTC) campuses in Waco and Harlingen will install solar panels that will not only provide electricity but also serve as hands-on training labs. TSTC plans to have students in solar energy technology programs perform efficiency and maintenance work or other training with the panels. This will enhance the value of their technical career skills."

Entities in the first round of grants will use the funds for solar power installation. Projects that also include other types of renewable energy technologies are currently being reviewed.

The Comptroller's State Energy Conservation Office will administer the stimulus grants. The grants range from $95,000 to $2 million.

For a summary of the projects selected to date for grants, go to http://www.seco.cpa.state.tx.us/arra/ sep/renewable/index.php. The site will be updated as additional projects get selected for renewable energy grants.

Today in History

Today is Friday, March 19, the 78th day of 2010. There are 287 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 19, 1860, lawyer, congressman, threetime Democratic presidential nominee and U.S. Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan was born in Salem, Ill.

On this date:

In 1859, the opera "Faust" by Charles Gounod premiered in Paris.

In 1917, the Supreme Court, in Wilson v. New, upheld the eight-hour work day for railroad workers. In 1918, Congress approved Daylight-Saving Time.

In 1920, the Senate rejected, for a second time, the Treaty of Versailles by a vote of 49 in favor, 35 against, falling short of the two-thirds majority needed for approval.

In 1931, Nevada Governor Fred B. Balzar signed a measure legalizing casino gambling.

In 1953, the Academy Awards ceremony was televised for the first time; "The Greatest Show on Earth" was named best picture of 1952.

In 1987, televangelist Jim Bakker resigned as chairman of his PTL ministry organization amid a sex and money scandal involving Jessica Hahn, a former church secretary.

In 2003, President George W. Bush ordered the start of war against Iraq. (Because of the time difference, it was early March 20th in Iraq.)

Ten years ago: President Bill Clinton arrived outside New Delhi on the first presidential visit to India in 22 years as he opened a six-day trip through troubled South Asia.

Five years ago: Police in Citrus County, Fla. found the body of 9-year-old Jessica Lunsford, more than three weeks after she'd disappeared from her bedroom. (Convicted sex offender John Evander Couey was later sentenced to death for kidnapping, raping and burying Jessica alive; he died of natural causes in Sept. 2009.) Automaker John Z. DeLorean died in Summit, N.J. at age 80.

One year ago: Pope Benedict XVI, visiting Cameroon, told Muslim leaders that true religion rejected violence; the pontiff also held up peaceful coexistence between Christianity and Islam in the country as "a beacon to other African nations."

Thought for Today:

Health bill's abortion inclusion is more than just intolerable politics

BY MIKE REAGAN CaglePost.com

Anyone that knows my politics understands that I consider myself pro-life; however, as I have written often, I also recognize that millions of Americans feel differently than I do and that we must continue to respect each other as Americans even though we share this fundamental difference of opinion.

But today I am deeply concerned about the use of tax dollars to fund elective abortions.

Earlier this week, the House Budget Committee narrowly defeated the inclusion of language from the Stupak-Pitts amendment in the health care reconciliation bill. That language, drafted by Democratic Congressman Bart Stupak of Michigan, would have effectively prevented any use of federal funds for abortion in the package of "fixes being considered for the Senate bill. In November 2009, pro-life members of both parties were able to defeat the misleading Capps amendment to the final House bill, which would have allowed federal funding of elective abortions through a loophole regarding direct funds. This was yet another progressive, Liberal trick to use our hard-earned tax dollars to support elective abortions and more federal mandates on an issue that pro-choice folks ironically say is a matter of private reflection rather than government control.

The Stupak-Pitts amendment replaced the Capps amendment, but the language of the Senate bill -- the bill House members are being asked to accept through the ambiguous "reconciliation" process -- undoes many of the strides made by Bart Stupak. It, in fact, offers little more protection than the Hyde amendment, a temporary law attached to the budget which could be thrown out during any year and which too many insurers and pro-choice legislators have already figured out how to dance nimbly around.

Thankfully, the Stupak-Pitts amendment may get the attention of the full House of Representatives later this week, and it is imperative that Americans from across the nation let their representatives know that regardless of their position on the issue of life versus choice, it is entirely inappropriate for our tax dollars to be used to pay for these procedures.

elective abortions. In that, the question is no longer a matter of an individual's choice but about the full involvement of society. I am not alone in my staunch objection. In fact, the overwhelming majority of Americans clearly support this position.

A recent poll taken by Quinnipiac University showed that voters oppose public money in the health care bill to pay for abortions by 67 percent to 27 percent. Other polls have consistently shown a majority of Americans opposing federal health care dollars for elective abortions. These Americans, all 67 percent of them, need to have their voices heard now or it will be too late.

While I do see this as a matter of life and death. I also see it is a matter of an increasingly intrusive federal government that is forcing a nation that is divided on the issue of abortion to use our collective monies to pay for them. This is no small matter, and no small majority. Given the opposition Democrats are already facing from the American public with their attempt to ram this health care legislation down our throats, I find it even more amazing that they seem content to move forward with elements that would expand health coverage to women seeking elective abortions.

"No one is such a liar as the indignant man." -Friedrich Nietzsche, German philosopher (1844-1900).

We've had decades of debate over abortion, and we are likely to see decades more. In our courtrooms and legislative chambers, this heated issue has far to go, and we must see that debate through.

But what we cannot, must not, debate or tolerate for one single moment is the spending of our federal tax dollars to subsidize purely

This is stupid politics. This is bad governance. This is immoral.

A 'fear first-aid kit' for these trying times

BY MARTHA RANDOLPH CARR CaglePost.com

Fear is one of those emotions that can save a life or slowly destroy it depending on how it's used. When it's a stranger who is sending out the wrong vibe it can be the feeling that gets us to walk quickly in the other direction. That's a good thing.

In this job market fear can be the trigger for millions of job seekers who have been turned down until they're hoping that Starbucks is still hiring. That's a good option for a lot of people, Starbucks offers benefits to their employees, but fear can make it difficult to see whether or not that's the right option for you.

The kind of fear I'm talking about is the one that seems to gnaw at the middle and has a lot more to do with not being able to control the situation or predict an outcome than the reality.

I've been known to start out on job hunts with a sunny disposition, confidently ending out resumes and filling out applications. Even after the first time they choose someone else, I'm still thinking that it's a numbers game. It's only a matter of time.

But, if we let it, there's that small idea in our minds planted back there by a third grade teacher or a well-meaning parent that we're shooting too high, or just don't quite have what it takes. We start to feed that idea just a little and before you know it that becomes some kind of new truth about us.

I've had friends point out that it took them a year or two years to get another good job accompanied by plenty of wincing facial gestures and deep sighs.

So, let's take a motto from FDR and remember that in cases like these fear is really the problem. Take a deep breath and turn away from the future you've dreamed up for yourself where you're living on someone's couch.

Write down what's working out in your life. This is key in order to turn our attention away from what's really a giant lie we're gazing at and back to a little reality who's also suffering in not going to pay attention your realm from a long job hunt or a serious illness or any kind of heavy heart. Call and give them a few minutes of your time. Resist the urge to jump in with both feet about your calamities. Send out a note through the regular mail to a friend who is now an empty nester. In other words, stop making the day entirely about you.

Fear can make it seem like we're the most important thing going on, and until our problem is solved everyone should hear about it. Reaching out to help others can put us back to the right size in our own lives.

It also has the added benefit of being a confidence booster because when we help someone else, we realize we still have valuable things to offer. It's like a civil service reminder.

Then, say out loud with a little force that you're to this nonsense anymore. You have better things to :do, and you do.

There are always things we can do instead of staring off into the distance wondering where we'd find enough boxes to store all of our possessions. Vacuum, take a walk, polish silver, do the taxes, clean out the fridge or fill out paperwork. There's bound to be something. A lot of people refer to this as the next right thing.

Even if it takes some effort, get up, get moving and do whatever is right in front of you. In order to stop inviting in useless fear a lot less thinking, analyzing and plotting is required.

And, take this part as an absolute truth. The Great Recession will end, jobs are out there and there is definitely one waiting for you. Now take another deep breath and go.

Lady Harvesters run-rule PD for first district win

BY ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvesters won their first district game of the season, with a 10-0 victory over the Palo Duro Lady Dons Thursday in Pampa.

Head Softball Coach Bobbi Gilı said her team did a good job of adjusting to the other team's pitching. "The girls did a good job at being patient at the plate and getting good hit selection," Gill said. "That's always key."

Ashley Facio was the starting pitcher for the Lady Harvesters and got off to a rough start but settled in after that. The lead-off batter singled and the next two batters walked to load the bases. Facio struck out the next two batters and got out of the inning tagging a runner at home trying to advance on a wild pitch.

Pampa's first two batters in the bottom of the first struck out and grounded out. Shelbie Watson got a two-out rally going with a triple to left field. Carlyn Teichmann drove Watson in with a single to give Pampa a 1-0 lead. Samantha Pearson would ground into a fielder's choice to end the inning.

Facio dominated the Lady Don batters in the top of the second, as she struck out the side on 12 pitches. In the bottom of the second, the Lady Harvesters were held scoreless as they stranded a runner at third. The Lady Dons turned a key double play when Jordan Mayhew flied out to center and Brooklyn Barker couldn't get back to first in time.

batters she faced in the top of the third. The Lady Dons would have their last baserunner of the game as they reached with a walk. Facio struck out the last batter of the inning and retired the last nine batters of the game. The Lady Harvesters expanded their lead in the third. Watson reached base on an error by the first baseman and scored on a triple by Pearson. Bailey Beck drove in Pearson with a single.

Pampa added three more runs in the bottom of the fourth 'to expand their lead to 6-0. Mayhew and Shanna Keown led off with singles. Mayhew stole second and scored when Facio grounded out to the pitcher. Keown scored on a double by Madi Shults. Watson joined the RBI parade with single bringing home Shults.

After a scoreless fifth inning, the Lady Harvesters finished off Palo Duro in the bottom of the sixth. Claire Hopkins led off with a walk and advanced to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball. Watson walked and Hopkins scored because the ball got away from the catcher. Teichmann tripled to drive in Watson and bring Pampa within two runs of reaching the 10-run rule. A wild pitch brought home Teichmann. Pearson walked, Beck singled, and Alanna Stephens walked to load the bases. Facio ended the game with a walk driving in Pearson.

Facio (5-4) got the win, pitched six innings, allowed one hit, walked three and struck out 13. Gill said Facio did well once she settled in.

"She threw well today," Gill said. "Early in the game she was a little amped up. She learned how to control it with the wind. Got herself out of a jam in the first inning and settled in. She's just a competitor on the mound."

Watson was two-forthree in hitting, with a triple and a single. The senior shortstop also scored three runs and had one RBI. Teichmann was also twofor-three with one of her hits a triple, scored one run and drove in two. Beck was a perfect three-for-three, drove in one and stole one base. Keown was one-forone and stole two bases.

The junior varsity beat Palo Duro 15-0. The Lady Harvesters scored 11 runs in the second inning. Almost everyone on the team scored a run.

On Wednesday the junior varsity won 4-2 at Randall. Last weekend, they won the Plainview Tournament. Coach Jim Gill said his team is continuing to play well.

"The thing is right now Heather (Coffee) and Tiffany (Britton) are both pitching well," Gill said. "But we're playing really good defense and that's the key to any ball game.'

The Lady Harvesters (11-9-1, 1-1) have a week until their next game against Dumas March 26, and host Caprock March 27. Bobbi Gill said her team will look to take care of business in that game.

"We'll do various things during the week to prep us for both games," Gill said. "We're definitely going to have to come out and play. We're playing at Dumas and anytime you go to Dumas you have to perform. We got Caprock call 669here. So we're looking to take care of them like we should."

Madi Shults belts a double in the fourth inning against Palo Duro Thursday in Pampa. The Lady Harvesters won 10-0 with the run-rule being invoked in the bottom of the sixth inning. Pampa improves to 1-1 in district and will visit Dumas March 26.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 20, 2010:

This year, you work hard to accomplish what you desire. There are some surprises on the way. Your ability to adjust counts. Lady Luck is on your side, even if you doubt it occasionally. You also are christening a new luck/life cycle. If you are single, you are likely to meet someone very special. Relating on an even level might not be a possibility. This person might be unpredictable in some fashion. If you are attached, work on respecting your differences and using them for the bettering of the bond. GEMINI is fun to share with
