SPLASH INTO SUMMER

John Allen, 13, dives headfirst into the water at M.K. Brown Swimming Pool, one of the many places around the community kids can go for summer fun.

Plenty of local options for Pampa kids

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

School is out and local children have plenty of time on their hands.

Not to worry — there are plenty of summertime activities for kids in Pampa.

Enrique Cabrales, superintendent of the city's Recreation Department, said the city slow pitch softball league and the kickball league will start June 14. The leagues play their games at the softball complex.

Cabrales noted that the M.K. Brown Swimming Pool is a popular place for children to hang out at during the summer. "We get pretty close to capacity," Cabrales said. "During the first month we are open we average around 200 and we have 300 capacity. It tapers off some after the first month but it stays strong throughout the year."

The Pampa Red Cross offers swim lessons at the M.K. Swimming Pool. Executive assistant Vanessa Vick said their lifeguards teach the lessons and they usually have a large turnout in the summer.

"We have one waiting list open," Vick said. "Another session filled up the first two levels."

A good reason for children to sign up for swimming lessons is to learn water safety.

"Parents want their kids to know how and what to do to survive in water," Vick explained. "We have little one year olds who are jumping off the diving board. Lessons help kids to not be afraid of the water and enjoy it."

The Lovett Memorial Library offers a summer reading program. The program allows children to learn about different subjects and interests. Marsha Rollins said the biggest draw at the library is that it is inexpensive for the parents/

"It's no cost," Rollins said. "Especially now that things are tight. Having some place for the kids to go that's good for them and a positive environment and no cost to them is a big deal."

Create-a-Beat offers children two programs in the summer. Assistant Childcare Director Cherylann Moore said the program offers an art program where children do crafts, learn music, drama, water-play, and creative writing. The program will take place June 7-18. The other program is July 11-30 and is exclusively drama. In this program children work on a musical and perform it publicly on July 30. Moore said it's amazing what children do.

"Children learn lines, songs and dance moves," Moore said.

Tech study counts Prairie Chickens by helicopter

ARNIE AURELLANO
editor@thepampanews.com

Remember that adage about not counting your chickens? That doesn't apply to Jennifer Timmer.

Timmer, a graduate student at Texas Tech, has spent the past three months in Gray County cataloging the numbers and locations of lesser prairie chickens by helicopter. Her rounds are part of a two-year study being conducted by Texas Tech with funding from Texas Parks and Wildlife and the Department of Energy, focusing on lesser prairie chicken populations in the Texas Panhandle.

"Obviously, (the prairie chickens) are kind of a hot topic right now," Timmer said. "The more data we have on the birds, the better informed we'll be, so that's basically why I've been here for the last few months."

For the duration of her Pampa stay, Timmer (along with another two Texas Tech grad students) has spent her mornings in pursuit of the elusive little birds, scanning the ranchlands of Gray and neighboring counties for lesser prairie chicken "leks," or communal breeding grounds. Because of the nature of the chickens, Timmer explained, the job is always an early morning affair.

"You wake up very early, assuming the weather's good. No fog, no precip, no winds over 40 miles an hour. Our port of call, based on other surveys and based on the bird's biology, is sunrise to two and a half hours after sunrise. Too long after that and they'll start to move away from the leks and go feed."

"We'll meet the helicopter pilot usually at Miami Airport or Wheeler Airport and take off from there. The flight path will be loaded into our GPS units, and then we just look for the birds."

"Basically, you just fly along the transect and you just keep your eye out. Usually the pilot has your front pretty covered, because he's also looking out for power lines. But you still have to scan around the side of you. You're just kind of looking all around the immediate vicinity around the helicopter for them."

"It's not the most exciting thing in the world, necessarily," Timmer laughed, "but it is cool when you find them."

Timmer said that the chickens are most easily spotted during their distinctive breeding display.

"I always tell people to YouTube them," she said. "It's hard to describe, but their breeding display is really, really cool."

"Do you remember Luigi from Mario Bros.? With the really fast feet? That's what they do. They just move around with these really fast feet, and they have these air sacs that they pop, and they kind of cackle like monkeys when they fight with each other. It's really neat."

Oswald's getaway cab to be auctioned in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — The Checker cab once known as Lee Harvey Oswald's getaway car is going up on the auction block.

Cab 36 will be sold Saturday along with the rest of the collection from the defunct Pate Museum of Transportation in Cresson, about 17 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

Checker Motors Corp. donated the cab to the museum in 1979 with a letter of authentication.

"It's a big piece of history," said Donnie Gould, a car specialist for RM Auctions, which is handling the sale. "It's tough to get an automobile that tells a story the way this car does."

The 1962 cab is estimated to conservatively fetch $20,000 to $30,000, he said.

That's far more than the nickel tip Oswald paid the cab driver for his 95-cent metered cab fare on Nov. 22, 1963.

Oswald hailed the cab after the bus he tried to escape in got stuck in traffic moments after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

Oswald is accused of having fired the fatal shot from the sixth floor window of the old Texas School Book Depository in Dallas as Kennedy's motorcade passed by.

Cab driver William Wayne Whaley recalled that when Oswald approached his taxi, he at first thought he might be a wino because it looked like he had slept in his clothes, the Dallas Morning News reported in Friday editions.

Whaley, who has since passed away, said Oswald wasn't chatty. The cabbie dropped him off a few blocks past the rooming house where it was later learned Oswald lived.

The cab driver saw Oswald again — in a police lineup the next day.

Texas officials 'not overly concerned' about oil spill

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil spewing into the Gulf of Mexico is steering clear of Texas.

The Texas General Land Office said Friday the latest forecasting models don't suggest that the spill will drift toward the Texas shoreline. The agency also says that some tar balls found along state beaches are normal and not part of the spill.

Agency officials say they're preparing in case the spill does begin drifting west, but for now, "we're not overly concerned."

Meanwhile, Texas is helping the states where crude is washing ashore. It has lent about 1,000 feet of boom to help block oil, as well as two trailers to treat wildlife.

"They design and build their sets and make their costumes. We did Noah's Ark last year and the kids started with a white t-shirt and used paint to create their animal costumes."

Moore said the big draw for children is the variety of things they get to do in the programs.

"They have three stations in a day," Moore said. "They have a scrapbooking class, then they go to choir. They have a music station where they can play different instruments. After lunch they have water slides, swimming pools and water guns. Kids are being active, not like a day-care where they sit in one class all day."

Other activities around town include Central Park, Super Playground, other parks, Harvester Lanes and the sports camps at the high school.

The Lady Harvester basketball camp is July 7 through July 11 and people can register until the morning of the first day. The Hustlin' Harvesters basketball camp is July 14-18. The Graystone Volleyball camp is June 14-15 at Pampa Junior High School. The Lady Harvester softball camp is June 21-June 25. Tennis camp is also June 21-June 25. Volleyball camp is July 22-July 23. Football camp is July 27 through July 30.

The birds' characteristic noises are usually the easiest way to locate them, Timmer said. "Even from the air, I usually find them by listening for them. You can't really see them from up there a lot of the time. They're not that big, and if they're not flapping in the air fighting with each other or they're not right in front of you on the transect, they can be really hard to see."

"They call them booming grounds. I wouldn't exactly call it a boom, but it's kind of like a low echo when they pop their air sacs. Then, when they fight with each other, it's like monkeys cackling. They're noisy little things."

Upon spotting a lek, Timmer said, a waypoint is marked noting its location and the number of birds within the lek. The sizes of each specific lek often vary, with Timmer and the other counters paying particular attention to small set sizes.

"We've had leks as small as one or two males, just displaying and booming," Timmer said. "Or maybe the birds just got flushed from a nearby lek, or maybe it's a nesting hen, or maybe just a singular bird hanging out eating or something. The largest one we've had was only about 17 or 18, which is not very big. They used to be up in the hundreds back in the 1950s and 60s." "What we're trying to do, especially for the single birds, is mark where they are. Then we can talk to the landowners so that, maybe two weeks later, we can come back and see if there's a lek here near that single bird that we missed." The procedure seems simple enough: Fly over land, find birds, repeat every morning. And for the most part, Timmer said, it's not a difficult formula to follow. The catch, though, lies in the details.

"They're not easy animals to find," she explained. "They're small birds, so it's hard to find them from the air sometimes. Most of the traditional surveys are road based, so you drive along county roads and you listen. And you do find them, but then they're biased towards roads, and of course, not all birds are along country roads. What we're trying to do is get away from that road-based bias. We can cover everything from the air, so it's supposed to be a little bit more accurate than the road-based surveys. "They've done this quite a bit with the turkeys and quails. This is the first time it's been done with the chickens. I'm just now starting to go back through the data sheets and fill in all the gaps. Based on our detection probabilities (calculated odds that more birds are in the area given how many birds are actually spotted), how many didn't we see? From the data that we have collected, we can estimate and say, 'Oh, there's roughly this density of chickens and this given area.' Timmer and her fellow chicken counters have tried to fly their routes everyday, weather permitting. They have flown 97 blocks, each roughly 20 and a quarter square miles. The blocks are 18 transects, roughly four and a half miles long spaced 400 meters apart. Timmer said that keeping accurate record of where the chickens are is key because of the specific goals of the study. "The project is looking at human impacts on the prairie chickens," Timmer said, "because they're about to be endangered. I shouldn't say they're about to be listed, but they're a candidate species to be listed. We're trying to get more information to either prevent that listing or say 'Yes, they do need to be listed.' "We're trying to see how all these power lines and all the wind farms might impact their distribution." With Timmer taking her last helicopter flight at the end of May, her focus now shifts to comparing the chicken populations to the locations of man-made structures in the area. "Now, what I'm going to do is plot out where their locations are in relation to the power lines already on the landscape, active oil and gas pads, things like that. We want to see if that's really what's affecting their distribution. "When we're done, we can tell (the TPW and the Department of Energy) that, oh, we found that birds were never located less than 200 meters from a power line, or no closer than 400 meters, or whatever. That's the data they're interested in."

Now, Timmer will return to a lab to lay her data out in spreadsheets and feed it into computers. The information she collects here will be part of a larger set; she'll be going down to an area southwest of Lubbock to do the same helicopter surveys next year to add to her data. The results of the study won't be ready for over a year, maybe two. Still, while she will soon be leaving, Timmer said, her experience in Pampa and Gray County has been a positive one. "This is a really nice community," Timmer said. "Everyone here is very friendly, and the people who we've worked with have been just great. "Nine out of 10 landowners have been very cooperative. The people that live on the land — the ranchers whose families have been out there for years — they're the ones who have very helpful. They'd say, 'Oh, I remember when there were hundreds of birds out here.' You can tell that they do care about these animals."

Texas NRCS offers additional assistance for Lesser Prairie-Chicken habitat

Lubbock — The USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Texas has announced $2 million available through a national initiative to help reduce the threat to lesser prairie-chicken (LPC) habitat in historic rangeland sites.

"This additional assistance, through the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP), offers landowners the opportunity to enhance the LPC habitat in the High Plains and South Plains regions," said Manuel De Leon, NRCS wildlife biologist, Lubbock. "The initiative supplements what we have already been doing to assist landowners in their efforts to improve the habitat."

NRCS will be accepting applications through August 1, 2010. "Landowners interested in the initiative for the LPC should inquire now for technical and financial assistance to help establish and improve the habitat," said De Leon.

The WHIP program is a voluntary conservation program for people who want to develop and improve wildlife habitat on private lands. The program offers a continuous signup.

Clint Rollins, NRCS rangeland management specialist, Amarillo, said, "Landowners can develop a comprehensive wildlife management plan that can specifically address the LPC habitat."

The initiative is part of a multi-state opportunity that also includes New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma.

"Good LPC habitat equates to good rangeland that can improve or increase beef production if managed properly," said Rollins. "I encourage all producers in this region to contact the NRCS to find out how the program options can benefit their needs for wildlife enhancement and management."

For additional information about the lesser prairie-chicken initiative and how to apply, please contact the local NRCS office in your county, or visit the Texas NRCS website at www.tx.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/whip.

Texas Rangers seize Collin County clerk's records

DALLAS (AP) — The recently elected district clerk in Collin County is accused of using her employees to campaign on county time.

Patricia Wysong Crigger, who won the post in an April runoff, is to take office Jan. 1. She has declined to comment on the allegations.

But earlier this week,

Texas Rangers executed a search warrant at the Collin County Courthouse where Crigger is the chief deputy district clerk. Rangers seized her campaign literature, computer hard drives, calendars and other materials.

Citing the search affidavit, The Dallas Morning News reports that Crigger and five district clerk employees allegedly falsified time and attendance records for employees, giving unapproved paid leave to those who worked on her campaign.

The investigation of possible criminal charges is ongoing.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, June 5, the 156th day of 2010. There are 209 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 5, 1968, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was assassinated in Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel after claiming victory in California's Democratic presidential primary. Gunman Sirhan Bishara Sirhan was immediately arrested.

On this date:

In 1884, Civil War hero General William T. Sherman refused the Republican presidential nomination, saying, "I will not accept if nominated and will not serve if elected."

In 1910, author William Sydney Porter, who'd written short stories under the pen name "O. Henry," died in New York at age 47.

In 1916, the Arab Revolt against Turkish Ottoman rule began during World War I.

In 1933, the United States went off the gold standard.

In 1940, during the World War II Battle of France, Germany attacked French forces along the Somme line.

In 1947, Secretary of State George C. Marshall gave a speech at Harvard University in which he outlined an aid program for Europe that came to be known as The Marshall Plan.

In 1950, the U.S. Supreme Court, in Henderson v. United States, struck down racially segregated railroad dining cars.

In 1967, war erupted in the Mideast as Israel raided military aircraft parked on the ground in Egypt; Syria, Jordan and Iraq entered the conflict.

US-Mexico border isn't so dangerous

BY MARTHA MENDOZA
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY (AP) — It's one of the safest parts of America, and it's getting safer.

It's the U.S.-Mexico border, and even as politicians say more federal troops are needed to fight rising violence, government data obtained by The Associated Press show it actually isn't so dangerous after all.

The top four big cities in America with the lowest rates of violent crime are all in border states: San Diego, Phoenix, El Paso and Austin, according to a new FBI report. And an in-house Customs and Border Protection report shows that Border Patrol agents face far less danger than street cops in most U.S. cities.

The Customs and Border Protection study, obtained with a Freedom of Information Act request, shows 3 percent of Border Patrol agents and officers were assaulted last year, mostly when assailants threw rocks at them. That compares with 11 percent of police officers and sheriff's deputies assaulted during the same period, usually with guns or knives.

In addition, violent attacks against agents declined in 2009 along most of the border for the first time in seven years. So far this year assaults are slightly up, but data is incomplete.

"The border is safer now than it's ever been," said U.S. Customs and Border Protection spokesman Lloyd Easterling.

He said one factor is that with fewer jobs available amid the U.S. recession, illegal immigration has dropped. And responding to security concerns after 9-11, the Border Patrol has doubled the number of agents in the region since 2004.

Nonetheless, border lawmakers and governors say their region is under siege and needs more troops.

"Violence in the vicinity of the U.S.-Mexico border continues to increase at an alarming rate. We believe that this violence represents a serious threat to the national security of the United States as well as a serious threat to U.S. citizens that live along the 1,969-mile long border," a dozen bipartisan members of Congress from border states wrote President Obama.

In Arizona, a stringent new immigration law takes effect next month, requiring police to question suspects' immigration status if officers believe they're in the country illegally.

Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer said in a televised interview last weekend: "We are out here on the battlefield getting the impact of all this illegal immigration, and all the crime that comes with it."

In response to the concerns from the border states, Obama pledged to send 1,200 National Guard troops to help and spend an extra $500 million on border security.

His one-time rival for the presidency, Arizona Sen. John McCain, said he should send at least 6,000 troops, which are needed because he said Arizona leads the nation in marijuana seizures, suffered 368 kidnappings in 2008 and has the highest property crime rates in the U.S.

But FBI crime reports for 2009 says violent crime in Arizona declined. And violent crimes in southwest border counties are among the lowest in the nation per capita — they've dropped by more than 30 percent in the last two decades. Of America's 25 largest cities, San Diego — with one out of four residents an immigrant — has the lowest number of violent crimes per capita.

Opponents of increased border security are frustrated by descriptions of a wave of violence when the statistics show the region to be relatively safe.

"Politicians are hyping up this incredible fear across the country about the border, but these numbers show these are lies being perpetrated on the American public," said immigrant advocate Isabel Garcia at Tucson-based Derechos Humanos. "The warnings about violence are just an excuse to crack down on migrants who want to work and be with their families."

Even residents of the border region who want more security are surprised by the talk of violence.

"I have to say, a lot of this is way overblown," said Gary Brasher of Tuboc, Arizona, who is president of the Coalition for a Safe and Secure Border.

So why send troops to the region?

"That's really something to ask the White House," Easterling said.

White House spokesman Mike Hammer said "there are other rationales for why those border deployments are occurring" but declined to name any of them. "I would really put this to the Department of Homeland Security," he said.

Homeland Security spokesman Matthew Chandler said he couldn't answer the question. He later sent a written statement that said more help is needed "to expand long-term the successes that have been realized to date."

Governors along the border say improved crime rates don't counter their concerns about risk.

"The federal government currently does not know who is entering our country and when, which obviously creates tremendous security concerns," said Brewer's spokesman Paul Senseman.

And in Texas, "we respond to threats based on risk, not occurrence," said Gov. Rick Perry's spokeswoman Katherine Cesinger. Thus Perry has activated a secret state border protection emergency plan.

"With the safety of Texans on the line, we can't afford to wait," he said.

New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson, who ordered the National Guard to patrol the border in his state six weeks ago, is concerned about "the potential for drug cartel violence spilling over the border," spokesman Gilbert Gallegos said.

California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger spokesman Francisco Castillo said that while "we've seen some success," troops are needed "to provide more security along our borders."

Concerns about danger come, in part, from Mexico, where raging cartel violence has taken 23,000 lives in three years, often within view of the U.S. border. There's frequent talk of the potential for that violence to spread across the border, although so far it hasn't happened to any significant degree.

Several high-profile and frightening incidents have added to the fears: Authorities suspect an illegal immigrant working for drug smugglers killed Arizona rancher Robert

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm working on a school project with several other girls, but I have an issue with one of them. "Sara" wanted to write the paper for our project, which is a huge part of our grade. Once she started writing it, we all realized she wasn't very good at it. I felt I could do a better job, and asked if I could do it instead — or help critique and edit it. Sara refuses.

I don't want to start a fight or anything, but this is a large part of my grade, and the project is being entered in a contest that I really want to win. Is there a way I can get her to let me help, or should I just let it go? — REALLY WANTS TO WIN IN OHIO

DEAR REALLY WANTS TO WIN: I'm sure your desire to win the contest is no less strong than that of your teammates. Who submits the paper should be a decision that the majority of you agree on. Discuss your concerns with them and take a vote.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently had dinner with two other couples. As soon as the meal was finished, the woman on my left turned her back to me and leaned forward so I could neither see nor converse with the person sitting to her left.

She remained like that for the duration of the dinner party.

Our friends say she wasn't angry or upset with me. She has done the same thing in other group gatherings, always with the same friend over whom she "hovers." She will whisper to this friend and exclude everyone else.

I honestly don't think she is aware of how rude she is being. Any idea how I might approach her without hurting her feelings? — BLOCKED AT THE PARTY

DEAR BLOCKED: The next time it happens, speak up and say, "Excuse me, but I'm isolated over here! Would you mind if I change places with your friend, so I can participate in a conversation while you two talk?" And in the future, because this happens regularly, their preference for talking only to each other should be taken into consideration when the seating is arranged.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old woman. Three weeks ago, I found out that my boyfriend of five months, "Louie," and I are going to have a baby. This was not planned, and not a happy revelation.

Louie and I are beginning to cope, and friends are really helping. My parents, however, are not.

They are pushing me to marry Louie before the baby comes. I explained that I don't want that stigma and that I would like to have a big wedding later, perhaps in 2012.

My parents disagree and want nothing to do with a big wedding down the road since I won't marry Louie now. This will be their first grandchild, and they are ruining the experience by stressing me out. By the way, because of financial hardship, I currently live at home with them. What should I do? — MAMA-TO-BE IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR MAMA-TO-BE: At 27 you are an adult, and presumably able to make important decisions for yourself. Do not allow yourself to be rushed into a loveless marriage that could lead to more children and a subsequent divorce. If you and Louie are still together in 2012, you can have the wedding of your dreams then. But please be aware that your parents are under no obligation to pay for it.

Krentz in March, and last year Border Patrol agent Robert Rosas, 30, was murdered while on patrol near San Diego.

"Agents now have to question if they will be ambushed," U.S. District Judge M. James Lorenz said as he sentenced a 17-year-old Mexican to 40 years for killing Rosas.

In fact, agents in the San Diego region are less likely to be attacked these days.

"Agent Rosas' death changed the way we do business. Agents are on high alert, we have to be ready. But if you just look at the numbers, assaults here are down 27 percent," said Border Patrol spokesman Jerry Conley, who worked with Rosas. He said that since Rosas' death, officers don't venture into potentially dangerous situations without backup. Solo patrols are rare, and they emphasize safety precautions.

There are exceptions to the trend: Assaults on agents in the Laredo, Texas, region increased from 44 in 2008 to 118 in 2009, and they increased in the neighboring Rio Grande Valley as well.

But the bigger picture is one of increased safety. In fiscal year 2009, there were 1,073 violent attacks — mostly thrown rocks, bottles and sticks but also 48 incidents in which a gun was fired — against the 20,119 Border Patrol agents, down from 1,097 violent incidents against 17,819 agents in 2008.

In addition to those agents, another 22,000 officers work at the nation's border crossings and airports, checking people as they enter and exit the country.

It's one of the safest jobs in law enforcement: Last year 17 of them were assaulted, a 74 percent decrease from 2008.

Edward Alden, a senior fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations, said it's time for lawmakers to reconsider what they'd like to see happening in the region.

"Border security has become the most overused, and least understood, concept in the struggle over what to do about our broken immigration system," he said. "While an election year may not be the best time, the United States finally needs an honest debate over what it means to secure the country's borders."

Class of '58 establishes new scholarship fund

by Ralph Depee

The PHS Class of 1958 is at it again. After returning to Pampa in 2008 to celebrate their 50th anniversary, class members have continued to pursue suggestions to initiate and fund scholarships for new PHS graduates.

Class members say they know they are now "seniors" of a different kind, and they want to express their appreciation for what they have received by helping new PHS Harvesters to get education and training in a field of their choice.

Emphasis is being placed on the fact that PHS Harvesters from all years have been invited and challenged to contribute small or large donations to the newly established fund. Small donations of $25 or $50 will help PHS students get started. During the next few years Pampa students will need support to buy textbooks, pay the cost of an online course, or get the needed training.

The scholarships will be called Harvesters Helping Harvesters. Alumni officers from all graduating classes are currently being contacted.

Officers for the fund will consist of PHS graduates of classes who have celebrated their 50th reunion, with one board member being replaced each year as another successive class celebrates their 50th.

Current committee members include Bob Brown, Ralph Depee, Carol Rose Miller Frances, Joy Dawn Vanderburg Rice, Charlie Ritthaler, Don Roy, Loyd Waters, and Heidi Schneider Roupp, Chairperson.

Priority for recipients will be given to good students in need, and not necessarily to academic superiority, to help them develop their talents to become skilled, productive adults.

The Foundation's goal is $100,000 to be invested conservatively with annual scholarship awards to be dispensed.

The class of 1958 has already collected $5,000 and challenges other classes to do likewise, with emphasis placed on importance of small tax deductible donations.

This is intended to be a vote of confidence and expression of pride in Pampa schools.

Greg Brown, vice-president of Happy State Bank of Pampa, has agreed to receive the donations and keep the records of donations which are tax deductible.

Checks should be made out to the PHS Foundation, Harvesters Helping Harvesters fund.

All PHS graduates are encouraged to send their donations to him at Happy State Bank, 221 Gray St., Pampa, Texas, 79065.

Checks should be made payable to the PHS Foundation "Harvesters Helping Harvesters" fund.

Czubinski and Pairsh sign to play football at OPSU

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

Lefors High School seniors Trever Czubinski and Wakely Pairsh signed letter of intents to play football at Oklahoma Panhandle State University next fall.

Last season, Czubinski ran for 1,063 yards on 104 carries, caught 27 passes for 569 yards, returned four kicks for 88 yards, and completed 12 of 15 passes for 232 yards and had 38 total touchdowns. Czubinski said he was didn't think he was going to be playing football after high school.

"They (OPSU) are going to give me an opportunity, so I'm going to take it," Czubinski said. "I'm glad that they are going to let me be a part of their team."

Pairsh ran for 392 yards on 65 carries, caught 20 passes for 425 yards and scored 15 total touchdowns last season. He said playing 11-man football will be an adjustment for him.

"A lot more guys on the field," Pairsh said with a laugh. "It will be a whole new world. I'm excited and it's going to be a whole lot of fun."

Czubinski said he is looking forward to playing 11-man football and concentrating on one position.

"I'm looking forward to focusing on one or two positions instead of five or six," Czubinski said. "It will be exciting just being in the group of the position and working with one coach that works that position."

Both Pairsh and Czubinski are looking forward to continuing their playing careers together and think it will make their transition into college easier.

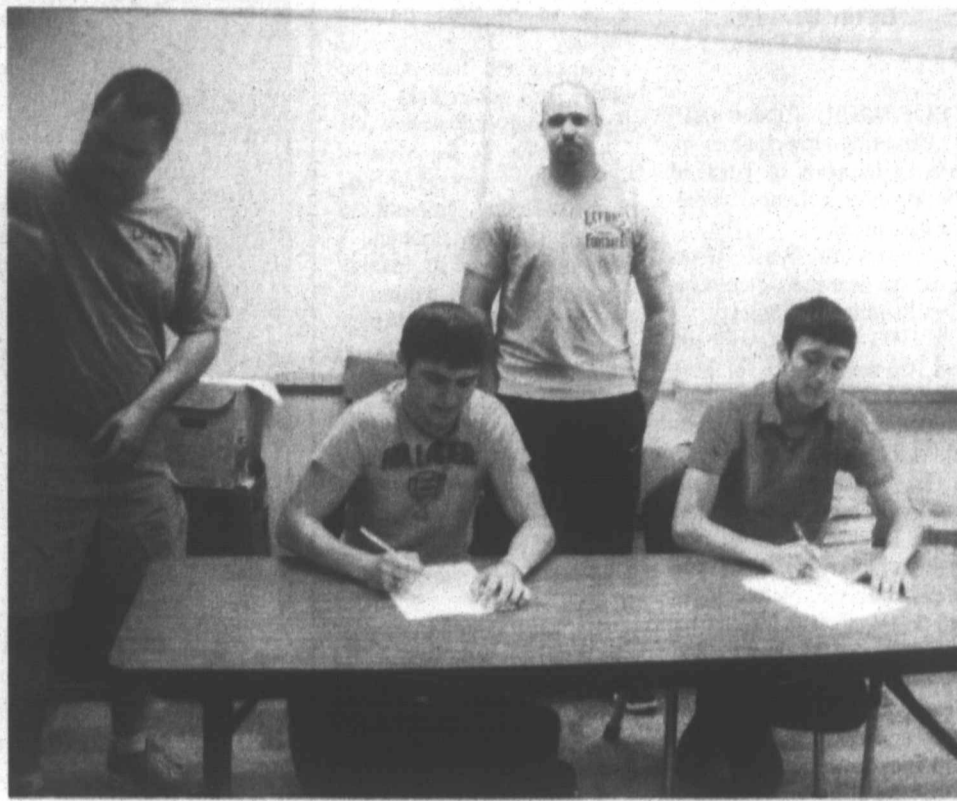

"I've played with him (Czubinski) since I've started playing football," Pairsh said. "So I know how he plays and he knows how I play. It will be good to have someone there with me that I know and I can work with."

"I'm rooming with some guy that I know," Czubinski said. "If we are both on offense and defense we both will have a better understanding of how to communicate."

Czubinski and Pairsh are the third Lefors athletes to sign letter of intents this year. Senior quarterback Keenan Lott signed with Northwest Oklahoma State last February. Head boys athletic coach Joey Czubinski said it makes him feel good to have his starting backfield playing in college.

"I coached them seven years and it makes you feel good as a coach to see your players play on," Coach Czubinski said. "All three (Lott, Czubinski and Pairsh) have worked really hard and all deserve it."

Robbins finishes soccer career at John Brown University

aglover@thepampanews.com

Former Harvester Nick Robbins played his final year in soccer at John Brown University last fall.

Robbins said the thing he enjoyed most about college was continuing the game he loved.

"It was an honor to play soccer in college while getting an education," Robbins said. "I got to be disciplined in my studies and sports."

Robbins earned a scholarship in a tryout when he was at Pampa and said it was nerve racking.

"I felt like a boy among men," Robbins said. "It was nerve racking but I played good enough to get the scholarship."

Robbins said his favorite moment in college came in his sophomore year.

"I scored the game winning goal against Oklahoma Christian with about a minute left," Robbins said.

In four years at John Brown, Robbins played in 52 games, scored four goals, three assists, 11 points, 35 shots and one game winning goal. Robbins said one of his challenges in adjusting to college soccer was the pace of the game.

"College soccer is 10 times faster than high school soccer," Robbins said. "My freshman year I didn't know what to expect. But I got better with time."

John Brown played in the conference tournament in all three seasons that Robbins played which he described the experience as nerve racking.

"We had one of the hardest conferences," Robbins said. "One team was in the top five and all but one or two teams were in the top 25. We lost to the number two team overall twice in the semifinals."

In college, Robbins played for two coaches:

Bob Gustavson and John Miglarese. Robbins said he really enjoyed playing for Miglarese.

"He knew the game," Robbins said of Miglarese. "He taught people about the game. He is very passionate and knows his stuff."

Migliarese said Robbins was one of four team captains last year and was a great leader for his team.

"He was a tireless worker," Miglarese said. "He had tremendous energy and was passionate. He took it personally when we lost. He was a great player and I was glad to coach him."

In high school, Robbins played for the Harvesters from 2002-2006. Pampa made the playoffs in his sophomore and junior years. For majority of his high school career, Byron May was the coach and Robbins said he loved him.

"He was one of my favorite coaches," Robbins said. "It was a big beginning for us (team) because May didn't have all that much experience coaching soccer but we had fun."

May said Robbins was tenacious and didn't back down from a challenge.

"Even though he loved scoring goals, he wanted to play the position that helped the team win, and was never too self-important to do the dirty work," May said. "He was a leader in word and deed. He was an extremely aggressive player."

Robbins is the son of Pampa mayor Lonny Robbins and enjoys being the son of a politician.

"My dad is outgoing," Nick Robbins said. "When we go out somewhere you get introduced to different people. I wouldn't trade it for anything."

After his graduation from John Brown with a bachelor's in business management, Nick Robbins will pursue his masters at Oral Roberts University.

Triple-digit heat comes early to parts of Texas

BETSY BLANEY
Associated Press

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Blistering temperatures are forecast for parts of Texas in coming days, arriving a bit earlier than usual.

Lubbock in West Texas could see near-record temperatures Saturday and Sunday.

In 1990, the mercury hit 106 and 107, respectively, for those two days. The normal high temperature through this weekend is 88.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area also will have temperatures about 10 degrees above normal, said John Lake, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Fort Worth. The forecast for Saturday is 100 degrees and 99 on Sunday. Unlike West Texas, though, high humidity — near 80 percent Sunday — will make the heat feel more uncomfortable.

"Early July is about when it start getting this warm" here, Lake said. "Instead it's early June."

El Paso in far West Texas also will sizzle. Temperatures there are forecast to be 103 or above Saturday through Tuesday.

Houston and San Antonio will remain cooler than triple digits through early next week.

A wrinkle in the weather pattern could spare Lubbock from sweltering temperatures through Thursday, though. A front may move far enough south out of the country's Central Plains to cool temperatures off to about 98 on Sunday, said Todd Lindley, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Lubbock.

If that happens there could be thunderstorms in the area late Sunday. Otherwise there is no rain forecast for the next 10 days.

The heat shouldn't worry cotton farmers who've just finished planting about 3.5 million acres on the South Plains, the world's largest contiguous growing patch in the world.

"It really should not be detrimental to any cotton that is planted and up," said Steve Verett, spokesman for the Plains Cotton Growers, which serves a 41-county region. "It's not the most ideal we'd like but we don't expect damage."

US oil rig count decreases by 29

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. decreased by 29 this week to 1,506.

Houston-based Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday that 947 rigs were exploring for natural gas and 545 for oil. Fourteen were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week, the rig count stood at 887.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, North Dakota gained eight rigs, West Virginia gained three and California gained one. Louisiana lost 22 rigs, Texas lost 10, Wyoming lost four, Oklahoma lost three and Alaska and Colorado each lost two. Arkansas, New Mexico and Pennsylvania were unchanged.

The rig count tally peaked at 4,530 in 1981, during the height of the oil boom. The industry posted a record low of 488 in 1999.

Texas average rig count as of May 14 was 639

AUSTIN — The Texas average rig count as of May 14 was 639, representing about 44 percent of all active land rigs in the United States.

In the last 12 months, total Texas reported production was 345 million barrels of oil and 7.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Texas natural gas production represents approximately 29 percent of total U.S. natural gas demand.

The Commission's estimated final production for March 2010 is 30,289,102 barrels of crude oil and 582,365,393 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas well gas.

The Commission derives final production numbers by multiplying the preliminary March 2010 production totals of 28,764,579 barrels of crude oil and 518,949,735 Mcf of gas well gas by a production adjustment factor of 1.0530 for crude oil and 1.1222 for gas well gas. (These production totals do not include casinghead gas or condensate.)

Texas natural gas storage reported to the Commission for April 2010 was 359,156,678 Mcf compared to 343,769,899 Mcf in April 2009. The May 2010 gas storage estimate is 365,270,868 Mcf.

The Texas Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division set initial June 2010 natural gas production allowables for pro-rated fields in the state to meet market demand of 14,560,118 Mcf (thousand cubic feet). In setting the initial June 2010 allowables, the Commission used historical production figures from previous months, producers' demand forecasts for the coming month, and adjusted the figures based on well capability.

These initial allowables will be adjusted after actual production for June 2010 is reported.

Redistricting work gets under way

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators are going to travel around the state to talk redistricting.

The House redistricting committee and judiciary and civil jurisprudence committee will hold joint meetings on the subject that will occupy much of the 2011 legislative session. The first hearing outside of Austin is June 21 in San Antonio.

House Speaker Joe Straus' office said Friday the two committees will work together on the issue. Each decade, lawmakers draw new boundary lines for state legislative and congressional districts based on new census data.

A legislative memo says other hearings are planned for McAllen, Laredo and Corpus Christi in July; El Paso and Lubbock in August; Dallas, Richardson and Fort Worth in September; Beaumont and Marshall in October; and Houston and Austin in November.

The committees met this week in Austin.

Daily Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, June 6, 2010: This year, you could grow and evolve. Many new people could come into your life and change your life choices.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Take your time getting going this morning. What you think you will do with a situation could change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  Sometimes the less said the better. You might feel confused. An argument that starts between you and a loved one could go on much longer than you might think.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Your ability to turn difficult situations into winning ones emerges. Carefully consider a change on the home front.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)  Don't shy away from a difficult situation. You might want to relax with an older friend or a parent. This person's attitude suddenly seems more positive and beneficial to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Finally, your level of feistiness drops. You seem to be able to see the big picture. If you can take off for a day trip or go to the movies to escape the here and now, do. You could meet someone quite different from out of the blue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  You might start coming off as quite assertive and, to some, aggressive. How you deal with a changing situation within a partnership is your call.

Rotary Club claims Optimist League Championship

CHRIS ENGLE
Special to The Pampa News

Rotary wrapped up the 11-12 year old league championship on Tuesday night with a 10-5 victory over Cabot. The win gave Rotary a 10-1 overall record and 6-1 record in league play. Rotary struck the first blow of the game on a Cade Engle single. Engle stole second and third on successive pitches then scampered home on a sacrifice fly by Carson Eubank. Cabot came back to take a 2-1 lead with walks to Brett West and Bryson Burrell who both scored on pass balls to end the first inning. The lead switched again in the top of the second as Julian Silva drew a walk then Aaron McKinney-Danner hit a booming two run homer to give Rotary the 3-2 edge. Cabot came out in the bottom of the second with Chance Butler working a walk then scoring after a couple of Rotary errors to knot the score at 3-3 after two complete. Rotary's bats came alive in the top of the third scoring five runs on four hits to take a 8-3 lead. Arron Holliman lead off the third with a walk. He then stole second and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Kade Woods. Holliman then trotted home on a Brandon Sieck double. Sieck scored a couple of pitches later as he and Engle traded places on a double. Engle stole third and Cabot issued a free pass to Eubanks. Eubanks stole second then Rance Tipps hit a double to score both Engle and Eubanks. Tipps reached third on a pass ball then trotted home on a Julian Silva double. Rotary left Silva stranded but plated five runs in what had been a very close game. Cabot threatened in the bottom of the third loading the bases and walking in one run but that was all they could muster as their bats went cold. Neither Rotary or Cabot could do much in the fourth with the score knotted at 8-4. Rotary added a couple of insurance runs in the fifth when Sieck doubled then traded places with Engle on an RBI double. Engle stole third on the next pitch then scored on a Eubanks sacrifice to give Rotary a 10-4 lead with the time limit expired. Cabot got its only hit of the day when West poked a line drive to right field with one out in the bottom of the fifth. West stole second and went to third on a pass ball before scoring on a Rotary error that led to the defensive play of the game. Eubanks tried to throw out West at the plate but Engle cut the ball off and threw to Tipps who was alertly covering second base to catch Roden trying to take one to many bases on the error. Rotary ended any Cabot threat with a strike out to end the fifth inning as time expired. Engle picked up his seventh win and third save on the season against only one loss while pitching the first, second, fourth and fifth innings. He gave up four unearned runs, walked three and struck out eight on the night. Sieck relieved Engle in the third and part of the fourth. Sieck gave up one unearned run, he walked seven and struck out four. Nathan Furgason took the loss after pitching the first three innings. Furgason gave up eight earned runs, on eight hits. He walked two and struck out two. Butler relieved Furgason in the fourth inning giving up two earned runs on three hits, he walked three and struck out two. The Pampa Optimist Club is a United Way Organization.
