Salvation Army's youth clubs in summer groove

Captains Laurie and Mark Martin

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

The Salvation Army's Boys and Girls Club summer program is in full swing. Captains Mark and Laurie Martin with the Salvation Army in Pampa said today that kids in their program have toured the Pampa Fire Department and will visit the White Deer Land Museum this week. They will soon have a nutrition program presented by the Gray County Extension Service.

In addition, Laurie said, the kids in the Boys and Girls Club summer program will go on a variety of field trips in alternating weeks. They will also have movies at the Salvation Army location, 701 S. Cúyler. They also have enrichment programs with bicycles and computers and games such as kick-ball and baseball for recreation. One of their educational programs, called Passport Through America, teaches the students about each state, including the state capitol, state bird, state flower and location. "They're learning," she said, "but they don't realize they're learning. They think they're having fun." "We have a short devotional everyday," Laurie said. SALVATION cont. on page 3

A Pampa man was in Gray County jail today after a drug raid last Thursday night. Alfredo Morris Gomez, 34, was in jail today on a charge of possession of a controlled substance greater than four grams but less than 200 grams. Gray County Justice of the Peace Kurt Curfman set bond for Gomez at $10,000. Four Pampa police officers along with Gray County sheriff deputies swept down on a rural address outside of Pampa about 6:30 p.m. NABBED cont. on page 3

New military family support group starts at VFW

Al and Jamie Almanza can still remember clearly the day that their now-19-year-old son, Chance, left to join the Marine Corps. "It was one year ago in March," said Jamie. "He made an adult decision, but, wow, as a mother, it's so difficult to watch your son go." "It can be very difficult as a parent," agreed Al. "You're very proud of what your son is doing, but being cut off from him like that, as a father, you worry." "I cried for a solid year," said Jamie. "It's hard. I cried until I saw him at boot camp graduation." Understanding the apprehension of having a loved one in the military, the Almanzas are looking to start the Military Families' Support Group, a gathering of people that can serve as a sounding board for anyone who has someone dear to them in the armed forces. "It's for anyone who has a child or a loved one in any branch of the service at any time, whether they're serving now, fixing to join up or fixing to leave," said Jamie. "We'll be here for them and help give them moral support." Al said that there's no feeling in the SUPPORT cont. on page 3

Obituaries

Ruby Alice (Forrest) Risley, 93

REEDLY, Calif.—Ruby Alice Forrest Risley, 93, died June 20, 2010 in Reedley, Calif.

Ruby Alice Forrest was born on January 31, 1917 near Zybach in Hemphill County to John W. and Clara B. Forrest. Her family farmed there until 1934 when they bought another farm south of Canadian, about 35 miles from Zybach. She grew up in the depression years and was not afraid of hard work. She often talked about riding her horse and the farm chores of milking cows and feeding the animals. She attended schools in Allison and Canadian. After leaving school, she worked as a housekeeper and then worked as a telephone operator for several years when manual switchboards were still in use.

She married Clyde W. Risley in Sayre, Okla., on August 11, 1939, and they made their home in Canadian. They moved to Montebello, Calif., in 1941, but returned to Canadian when Clyde was drafted into the Army in 1943. After the war, she resumed her work as a telephone operator and Clyde operated a service station for several years before serving as Hemphill County Sheriff. They raised cattle and crops for several years before again seeing California as the land of opportunity. They packed their belongings and moved to a ranch on Goodfellow between Reedley and Sanger, Calif. in 1955, where they raised livestock. They enjoyed going out to breakfast at the local eateries and made many friends in the Reedly and Sanger area. After Clyde's death in 1997, Ruby moved to Grover Beach, Calif. and lived there until coming to the Sierra View Nursing Home in 2005. She went to be with our Lord on June 20, 2010.

Ruby saw a lot of changes in her 93 years and she brought many fond memories to all who knew her. She had a great sense of humor and enjoyed gardening, canning, dancing, working crossword puzzles and her grandchildren. She will be missed. She is survived by her children, Bill and his wife Sandy of Squaw Valley; Bob and his wife Judy of Coarsegold, Calif.; and Evna Williams and her husband Ken of Grover Beach, Calif.; a sister, Agnes Brumfield of Pampa; six grandchildren, Dan, Rod, Elisha, Jessica, Troy and Shalene; and 12 great grandchildren, Andrew, Jake, Alec, Travis, Austin, Jordan, Cody, Casey, Marlee, Mike, Josh and Tyler.

She will be cremated and a service will be held at the Reedley Cemetery Memorial Building on July 10, 2010 at 10 a.m. She will be interred with her beloved husband, Clyde, at the cemetery. The family wishes to thank the Sierra View staff for the wonderful care given to her over the last five years.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that a contribution be made in Ruby's name to Sierra View Homes, 1155 East Springfield Avenue, Reedley, CA 93654.

Gene E. Lunsford, 84

KELLER—Gene E. Lunsford, 84, died June 24, 2010 in Keller.

Services are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors of Pampa.

Mr. Lunsford was born December 22, 1925 in Megargel to Cecil and Vada Lunsford. The family moved to Pampa when he was a young child where he grew up and attended Pampa schools. He was a 1943 graduate of Pampa High School and then served in the Army Air Corps until 1945. After his discharge, he followed his high school sweetheart, Shirley Sone, to the University of Oklahoma where he received a degree in mechanical engineering. Gene and Shirley married in 1946 and had two daughters, Lynn and Lea. Gene worked as a housing inspector for FHA and as a project engineer for both Cabot and Celanese Corp.

He was also a homebuilder in Pampa. After 40 years of marriage, Shirley died in 1987. He married for a second time in 1988 to Ruth Busse. After Ruth's death in 2008, Gene moved to Keller to live with his daughter Lea, where he graciously tolerated being pampered by his daughters, three granddaughters, his sister, and neighborhood friends for the last three years of his life, even though he still called Pampa his "home."

Survivors include his two daughters, Lynn Wright and husband Gene of Austin, and Lea Hobbs and husband John of Keller; a sister, Joan Kuhne and husband Bob of Richardson; three granddaughters, Lauren Hobbs, Jennifer Hobbs and Christie Wright.

Memorials may be made to Book of Remembrance, First Presbyterian Church,

FAA OKs border drones

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has approved the expansion of unmanned drone aircraft flights to patrol the entire Texas-Mexico border.

In a prepared statement, U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison announced the Wednesday decision expanding the flights long sought by Texas officials.

According to the statement, U.S. Customs and Border Enforcement will be allowed to begin the flights along the entire length of the Texas-Mexico border on Sept. 1.

On May 14, the FAA approved the use of unarmed, unmanned surveillance drones over the border between Mexico and West Texas and New Mexico. Those flights began June 1. Drone flights were approved previously for the Arizona-Mexico border.

Pilot punished for buzzing beach

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal aviation officials have revoked the pilot's license of a man who flew a single-engine plane as low as 15 feet above a Galveston County beach.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday that Joseph Bryan Kirbow flew so low in the March incident that the plane snagged a man's fishing line, breaking his pole. Wind from the plane also blew another man's hat off.

One witness told investigators that he thought the plane was going to crash until he saw the pilot smile and buzz the group at least twice.

Kirbow can't apply for a new license for at least a year.

Planes must fly at least 1,000 feet in the air over populated areas.

'No regrets' for non-arrest

DALLAS (AP) — A suburban Dallas police chief says he has no regrets about the decision not to arrest the son of Dallas police chief David Brown hours before the son shot and killed a police officer.

David Brown Jr. shot and killed 23-year-old neighbor Jeremy McMillian, then Lancaster police officer Craig Shaw before police killed him.

Lancaster Police Chief Keith Humphrey said Wednesday there was nothing his officers could have done differently when they responded to a domestic disturbance call from the younger Brown's girlfriend at an apartment complex Sunday.

The call occurred seven hours before the fatal shots were fired.

Castro against Arizona law

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — After easily winning election last year, Mayor Julian Castro has enjoyed a rapid rise in Democratic politics, earning praise for his handling of a bungled nuclear power expansion and push to revitalize San Antonio as a green, technology-driven city.

On Thursday, San Antonio is expected to join other big cities like Los Angeles and San Francisco in condemning Arizona's controversial immigration law when the city council votes on the first resolution Castro has written. Castro said the resolution is needed to keep Texas from passing a similar law.

"San Antonio has a story of economic and social success to tell, that America can learn from," Castro said. "My principal concern is that legislators in Texas fully intend to introduce this in January for an Arizona-like law to take effect."

Two state Republican lawmakers have announced plans to file legislation similar to Arizona's law, although Republican Gov. Rick Perry has come out against calls for similar laws in Texas, saying it "would not be the right direction" for the state.

Cops indicted for excessive force

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County grand jury has indicted four Houston police officers accused of beating a teenage burglary suspect in March.

The beating was captured on surveillance video. Harris County District Attorney Pat Lykos said Wednesday that all four officers were charged with official oppression. Two also were charged with violation of civil rights of a prisoner.

Each charge is punishable by up to a year in jail and a $4,000 fine.

The incident was captured on surveillance camera video at a self-storage business in southwest Houston. Although the video hasn't been made public, community activists say it shows officers beating and kicking the handcuffed teenager.

The incident initially led to the April suspensions of seven officers and one sergeant for alleged use of excessive force against the then-15-year-old boy.

Murder-suicide in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police say the shooting deaths of a woman and her estranged husband, in front of her daughter, appear to be a murder and a suicide.

Police on Wednesday identified the pair as Gloria Gonzales and William Lee Roe. Both were 40.

Police say Gonzales was in a vehicle Tuesday night, in the driver's seat, when she was confronted by Roe, who stood by the car door.

Roe allegedly pulled a pistol and shot her several times, then turned the gun on himself. He died later at a hospital.

Police say the woman's daughter was in the back seat and wasn't hurt.

Legislator implicated in fraud

McALLEN (AP) — State Rep. Tara Rios Ybarra is the fourth south Texas dentist indicted in a federal case alleging Medicaid fraud and a referral kickback scheme.

Prosecutors say Dr. Gary Schwarz of McAllen billed Medicaid for services not done and for services performed by unlicensed employees. Schwarz also allegedly paid a 15 percent kickback to Mission dentists Willis Egger and Reynaldo Casares for referrals.

The indictment says Rios Ybarra also received kickbacks for referring patients to Schwarz.

Rios Ybarra, of South Padre Island, had her initial court appearance Wednesday in Brownsville. A judge set bail at $100,000.

A man who answered the phone Wednesday in her district office declined comment and said Rios Ybarra likely would not comment.

She lost in the March Democratic primary.

world that quite compares to the anxiety of missing a loved one during an armed conflict.

"I've had friends grab me and just start crying," said Al. "They would say, you know, 'I'm so worried about my child, I just don't know what to do.'"

"We want to be there to relate to so that people don't have to be alone when they have that same feeling. Whether it's a child, a sibling, a spouse or a good friend, we want to be there to help ease that feeling."

"When the child that you've had and cared for for 18 years decides that he's going to join the military, it's tough on you as a parent," added Jamie. "It's a decision that you're proud of, but there are a lot of feelings that come with that. It's very tough to deal with, especially when he leaves. For any loved one, it's always going to be hard, so we want to make sure that anyone who's dealing with that doesn't have to do it by themselves."

The Almanzas said that they have seen both sides of the coin, both as family members of someone in the military and as friends of people in the same situation.

"We didn't have any support besides a few friends and family members that knew and understood what it's like," said Jamie. "There are people here who don't have family for support, and we want to be here for them."

"We both work at the prison, and I know several people out there who have family members in the military," added Al. "Many of them had nobody to talk to while their loved ones were away, and they would ask us, 'Would you pray for my son?'"

"We just gathered around right there and started praying. That's basically what this is. It's a place for people to go when they need that emotional support. Somebody to talk to when you think the whole world is against you."

Tentatively, the group will meet at 7 p.m. every Wednesday at the VFW Post at 105 S. Cuyler, though the Almanzas said that the day and time could be subject to change depending on the schedules of those wanting to attend. Once the group gets off the ground, they are looking to schedule guest speakers who have gone through the same experiences and send care packages to troops serving overseas.

In the meantime, though, both Jamie and Al said that they will be there every Wednesday evening, willing to offer an ear to listen and a shoulder to lean on for anyone who might need it.

"Every week, we'll be here," said Al. "We might be the only ones here that day, but just in case anyone needs moral support, we'll be here. We don't care if it's one person or a whole group. We're here for everyone."

Salvation

This summer, she said, will be on Old Testament heroes.

Although the husband and wife team are both ordained ministers, they teach no specific doctrine as such.

The Salvation Army's Boy's and Girl's Club summer program is from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays, including lunch.

Laurie said they participate in the school lunch program. The lunches are prepared and brought to the Salvation Army location.

Mark said that the summer program costs $30 a week, but there are scholarships available.

"We try to bring it down to fit the financial situation of a family," he said.

The reduced rates for the 10 week summer program are possible because of the participation of various civic clubs, he explained. It helps reduce the financial strain on families.

Mark said that they are trying to raise enough money now to buy a bus to transport the children and sponsors to and from the various field day activities.

So far, they've raised $28,000 toward the $58,000 bus, but they are also looking at building a new facility.

"We're working with an architect on an 80 by 100 foot building," he said, "that will contain classrooms, a kitchen, restrooms and a half court basketball court."

It will be built on land behind the Salvation Army's facilities on Cuyler, he said.

"It's a great opportunity for us to make a difference in the children's lives," she said.

Thursday, armed with a search warrant.

Officers arrested Gomez at the home west of Pampa and searched the residence.

Officer Stormy McCullar said today that officers found and seized more than more four ounces of what appeared to be cocaine, estimated to have a street value of $3,200, and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Today in History

Today is Thursday, June 24, the 175th day of 2010. There are 190 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 24, 1509, Henry VIII was crowned king of England; his wife, Catherine of Aragon, was crowned queen consort.

On this date:

In 1314, the forces of Scotland's King Robert I defeated the English in the Battle of Bannockburn.

In 1807, a grand jury in Richmond, Va., indicted former Vice President Aaron Burr on charges of treason and high misdemeanor (he was later acquitted).

In 1910, Italian automaker Alfa Romeo was founded in Milan.

In 1940, France signed an armistice with Italy during World War II.

In 1948, Communist forces cut off all land and water routes between West Germany and West Berlin, prompting the western allies to organize the Berlin Airlift. The Republican National Convention, meeting in Philadelphia, nominated New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for president.

In 1975, 113 people were killed when an Eastern Airlines Boeing 727 crashed while attempting to land during a thunderstorm at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport.

In 1983, the space shuttle Challenger — carrying America's first woman in space, Sally K. Ride — coasted to a safe landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

In 1990, Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan was virtually drowned out by jeering demonstrators as he addressed the Sixth International AIDS conference in San Francisco.

Ten years ago: After months of political violence, Zimbabweans crowded polling booths to begin two days of balloting in the country's most competitive election since independence. (The result was a narrow win for President Robert Mugabe's ruling party.)

Five years ago: Despite growing anxiety about the war in Iraq, President George W. Bush refused to set a timetable for bringing home U.S. troops and declared, "I'm not giving up on the mission. We're doing the right thing."

One year ago: South Carolina Gov. Mark Sanford admitted flying to Argentina to visit a mistress during a mysterious seven-day absence.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Al Molinaro is 91. Comedian Jack Carter is 87. Movie director Claude Chabrol is 80. Actress Michele Lee is 68. Actor-director Georg Stanford Brown is 67. Obama response not enough for GOP crude

This just in: Barack Obama is not a superhero. He can't plunge into the Gulf of Mexico to seal BP's underwater oil gusher with heat vision or super-breath. Unlike Superman, he can't fly around the globe from west to east faster than the speed of light, traveling backward in time to fire the knuckleheads running BP before its doomed drilling rig exploded. Even Ronald Reagan couldn't do that.

The presidency isn't an action/adventure film, or even a reality TV show. Yet watching the national political media reflexively turning a complex tragedy into a simplistic melodrama, it's easy to wonder how many Americans actually understand that.

We've become so accustomed to seeing politics as soap opera, i.e., as dramatic narrative whose featured characters strut, pose and scheme against a backdrop of iconic monuments — the White House, U.S. Capitol, etc. — that the Washington press functions more like TV critics than reporters or analysts. To many, it's all about personalities, "narratives" and "scenarios."

Hence, one of the more farcical interludes in recent Washington history. Last week, pundits of every persuasion competed to denounce President Obama's allegedly passionless Oval Office address about BP's catastrophic oil spill.

Even MSNBC's Keith Olbermann and Rachel Maddow, who as recently as 2008 insinuated that all criticism of Obama derived from racism, swung away. Maddow delivered an address of her own, posing before an Oval Office backdrop and blithely proposing to fix the nation's energy and climate problems by executive order — a constitutional impossibility.

An American president not only lacks super powers, you see; he's also weaker than a European prime minister, unable to order his own party to pass legislation, much less to overcome a GOP filibuster by fiat.

Writing in Salon, former Clinton administration Labor Secretary Robert Reich denounced Obama's speech as "vapid." He found the president's verbs particularly weak. "Tomorrow he's 'informing' the president of BP of BP's financial obligations," Reich complained. "'Informing' is what you do when you phone the newspaper to tell them it wasn't delivered today. Why not 'directing' or 'ordering'?"

Of course, "informing" often means just that: telling BP exactly how it's going to be. Which was, as the nation learned roughly 12 hours later, precisely what President Obama DID mean.

Pundits wanted action? They got $20 billion worth.

After what the New York Times described as "four days of intense negotiations," the White House announced that BP had agreed to put that astonishing sum into an escrow fund to be administered by Kenneth R. Feinberg, the universally respected mediator who ran a similar fund for 9/11 victims, to repay damages to Gulf coast fishermen and others harmed by the oil spill.

BP also ponied up another $100 million to pay workers idled by the current government moratorium on deep water drilling. By any standard, it was an unprecedented act of presidential leadership. My guess would be that the perceived weaknesses in Obama's speech were caused by last-minute foot-dragging by BP; also that the "intense negotiations" included phrases like "criminal negligence," so clearly justified by BP's actions.

Doubters should be directed to Joe Nocera's New York Times business column "BP Ignored the Omens of Disaster," which describes negligence "so profound that everyone I spoke to in the oil business found (it) truly inexplicable." Indeed, the fourth-largest corporation in the world appears to have conducted itself like an 1890s wildcatter for years. Likely the acquiescence of the British government, as opposed to the London tabloid press, comes from knowing that the corporation's slipshod practices would never be tolerated in the North Sea.

Nevertheless, many pundits are loath to admit error. After the fact, many clung to crude psychoanalysis. "He's the emotionally maimed type who lights up when he's stroked and adored but shuts down in the face of acrimony," once-adoring Times columnist Charles Blow wrote of Obama. "Other people's anxieties are dismissed as irrational and unworthy of engagement or empathy."

Meanwhile, the president's $20 billion worth of empathy evoked near hysteria on the Republican right. See, it's all very well for GOP leadership to pretend that Texas Rep. Joe Barton's mad apology to BP for a "$20 billion shakedown" was a spontaneous outburst from a congressman who's received a reported $1.4 million in donations from oil and gas companies.

Barton was reading from a script, in language crafted by the Republican Study Group, a House caucus. Other right-wing spokesmen characterized hauling BP before Congress as "Stalinist," (Rush Limbaugh), the "Salem witch trials" (Glenn Beck), and "Inca ritual slaughter" (Charles Krauthammer). Rep. Michele Bachmann, R-Minn., denounced Obama's "redistribution of wealth fund," and Rep. Tom Price, R-Ga., his "Chicago-style political shakedown." Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour worried aloud about BP's bottom line.

See, the passionless president had just struck a powerful blow on behalf of thousands of Americans who mostly didn't vote for him — seemingly the last thing anybody in Washington wanted you to think about.

Arkansas Democrat-Gazette columnist Gene Lyons is a winner of the 1980 National Magazine Award for Public Service for the Texas Monthly article "Why Teachers Can't Teach," an Associate Editor at Texas Monthly in 1981, and General Editor at Newsweek from 1982-86.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Today, I saw something that really offends me. South of Pampa, just south of the bowling alley, is a fireworks stand with five flags flying on it. Two of the flags are the flags of our great nation, one is the Texas flag, one is the flag of the fireworks company and the final flag is the flag of Mexico.

Now I ask you: What is the Mexican flag doing alongside our U.S. flag on this, the holiday of our nations birth?

Our forefathers and foremothers suffered many great losses in founding our country and we should take great pride in the United States of America.

To have a Mexican flag flown in our country shows disrespect for the U.S. and should not be permitted, but to do so on this holiday is completely out of line and unacceptable! Lately, we have all heard the term "politically correct," but I believe the meaning is different than the way it is being used.

I believe it means to adhere to the laws and customs of the land and not expect the citizens to adjust to you if you are from a foreign country. I know that the majority of us do not wish to offend anyone about their culture or background, but we require that same respect.

Take the flag down!

Austin Elementary student Dennise Pepi (center) holds up her grand prize-winning design for the Happy Harmonica Band t-shirt. Pepi is flanked by Andrew McKissick (left) and Dalton Riggs, who also received prizes for their designs, as well as music teacher Rebecca Lewis and gym teacher Eugene Polasek; all three won $100 savings bonds. The Happy Harmonica band is the group formed by the kids at the Shelter Workshop under the direction of Patrick Stewart and in conjunction with the Woody Guthrie Center.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old boy who is trying to figure out my career. I'm with "Jen," the girl of my dreams, and I intend on being with her forever. We plan to have kids in the future.

I want to be a pilot, and Jen wants to be a stay-at-home mom. I realize, though, that if I'm a pilot I won't be home much, and I know that's not good for a couple trying to start a family. All I ever dreamed about was becoming a pilot, and I don't think I can give this up.

At the same time, my family comes first. How do I go about solving this problem? — PLANNING AHEAD IN MISSOURI

DEAR PLANNING AHEAD: You appear to be a young man with his feet on the ground. What you're not taking into consideration is that there are many happily married pilots who enjoy flourishing family lives as well as careers. Do some more research about the various kinds of jobs that are offered in the aviation industry, and you may be pleased to find that you, too, can have both. And keep in mind that your ambitions may change as you get older.

DEAR ABBY: My 73-year-old mother took it upon herself to go to a senior center and learn how the computer works — Internet, e-mails, etc.

She has five children, and we're all on the Internet. She didn't tell us because she wanted it to be a surprise — and was it ever! I flipped when I turned on my computer and found her name on an incoming message!

Abby, Mom doesn't own a computer, and the nearest senior center that has one is 30 miles away, but that didn't stop her.

We're currently setting up a computer for her, and I'm proud to say that she'll be able to use it for more than playing one of her favorite card games, Hearts. We're all proud of Mom! — COLLEEN IN ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR COLLEEN: I salute your mother and the burgeoning number of seniors who refuse to be intimidated by technology. Computers and cell phones have become cheaper and easier to use, and Web-surfing isn't a "sport" that's meant to be enjoyed only by the young. The computer-phobic can learn a lot from your mother's example.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married five years and have a beautiful 4-year-old daughter. Two years ago, my wife cheated on three different occasions with three different men. Each time she admitted her infidelity to me the following day.

I was heartbroken. I have fallen out of love with her and no longer find her attractive. I didn't leave immediately because I didn't want our daughter to be raised in a broken home. Also, my wife didn't have a job. I thought I could forgive her and get over it, but I can't and don't think I ever will.

Should I leave her or stay in a marriage where I feel I am being unfair to myself and that I deserve better? Please advise. — BETRAYED IN KANSAS

DEAR BETRAYED: I'm sorry your wife cheated on you — three times, yet. But if you have to ask me for permission to leave her, the answer is no. You'll know the time is right when you are ready to take the responsibility for that decision all by yourself.

"Home care is my life. It's my calling."

Speaking from the heart

As a nurse with Accolade Home Care, I can give individualized treatment. The thing I love is that Accolade is owned by a nurse and run by nurses who believe in providing uncompromised medical care in the comfort of a patient's own home.

When I am in someone's home, I'm able to do and teach and take care of all of their needs right there. One patient has eight physicians, and one of the greatest things that home care can do is help him and his family coordinate everything with all of their specialists. To be able to offer home care needs in the home setting...it's a privilege and an honor to be able to do that.

Accolade Home Care Services

Include:

- Skilled Nursing
- Wound Care
- Telehealth/Cardiac
- Memory Care
- Lower Extremity Management
- Diabetic Teaching/Training

Tuckers to leave Pampa for positions in Lubbock

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

After working at Pampa High School for four years, head athletic trainer Kristin Tucker and assistant football and softball coach Ches Tucker are leaving for Lubbock Christian University and Frenship High School, respectively. Kristin will start as associate athletic trainer at Lubbock Christian University July 12 and will work with women's athletics. She said she's excited about the job.

"I've been wanting to do this for a long time," Kristin Tucker said. "I'm looking forward to working there, it's where I graduated from."

Ches Tucker will be an assistant volleyball coach at Frenship High School and will start August 2. He said he is excited about his new opportunity but will miss Pampa.

"We're (Ches and Kristin) are excited," Ches Tucker said. "We're disappointed to leave Pampa. We will miss the people and the kids we worked with."

Pampa Head Boys Basketball Coach Dustin Miller said he is excited for Kristin and Ches but selfishly doesn't want them to go.

"She is a great trainer," Miller said. "As a parent of an athlete she took outstanding care of our child. They are good people and you hate to lose that in our community. They have become great friends of ours and will be greatly missed."
