Rice: Class IV meeting encouraging, informative

ARNIE AURELLANO editor@thepampanews.com

After attending Thursday's Class IV Winds and Renewables seminar in Amarillo, Pampa Development Economic Corporation Executive Director Clay Rice said that things are looking up for the wind power industry in the Panhandle.

"It was a good meeting," said Rice. "There were several developers developing in the Panhandle, over what's happening here in our area. "They had a lot of great information," Rice added. "They talked about the hundreds of millions of dollars that are going to be invested in the Panhandle in the future in wind.

The PEDC was one of two "gigawatt" sponsors for the event, along with Burndy Products, manufacturers of transmission line connectors and hardware.

They were a fitting sponsor, because, as Rice said, much of the future of wind in the area hinges on the construction of transmission lines in the near future.

"The whole crux of this thing is transmission lines and how long they take to develop," Rice said. "We understand that (the development of those lines) is still on course for 2013. That was the understanding they left us with yesterday.'

Rice conceded that wind development progress in the region has taken time to develop, but said that this meeting had the feeling of WIND cont. on page 3

Kiwanis gives out law enforcement, fire honors

ARNIE AURELLANO editor@thepampanews.com

The Kiwanis Club of Pampa wants local law enforcement officials and firefighters to know that theirs is not a thankless job. The club handed out its 2010

Enforcement Officer and Firefighters of the Year awards on Friday during its regular weekly meeting. Law Enforcement Officer of the Year was presented to Lynn Hudson Jr., and Leroy Cox was named Firefighter of the Year.

Raised in Terry County, Hudson's history of helping others extends to his youth. He volunteered for the Wellman Fire Department as a senior in high school and attended EMT training, spending weekends as part of an ambulance crew in Brownfield.

He first became involved in law enforcement in 1992. becoming a jailer and dispatcher for the Terry County Sheriff's Office. He worked for Terry County for 13 years before moving to the Gray County Sheriff's Department's McLean beat in 2006

"(Hudson) serves the citizens of our county as if they were his own family," said Sheriff Don Copeland. "He is a role model for the younger officers employed here and a friend to

"(Hudson) takes pride in his work," echoed Lt. Joe B. Hoard, "He loves what he does and is good at it."

Garcia new assistant at Chamber of Commerce

RANDY PRIBBLE

Garcia was named the new administrative assistant and began her duties on Sept. 2.

"We had some great candidates," said Chamber Executive Secretary Joe Weaver. "Erica had all the qualifications we were seeking. She is a pleasant and energetic person to have at the front desk. Her organizational skills are impressive and she has already streamlined some processes.'

Garcia is not a stranger to Pampa. She grew up in Dumas from lived in Pampa a few years ago and was employed at Bank of America.

"So I remember a lot of people I worked with then, she said.

However, she added with a smile: "There are so many people in the chamber it is going to take me a while to remember them all.

The new job, she said, is "great."

"There is a lot to do and every day is different," she said. "I'm just taking it and running with it."

She lives in Pampa with her husband, Matthew Mears, as well as a dog and two cats.

There are many Americans that have guns in the home either for protection or for hunting. In cases of guns in the home with children, we as parents have a responsibility to our children and our community to keep our guns in a secure location for the safety of our children. "Common Sense about Kids and Guns" (http:// www.kidsandguns. org" www.kidsandguns.org) said in 2005, every nine hours a child or teen was killed in a firearm-related accident or suicide. The National Rifle Association (NRA) states if your child is not ready to be trained to handle a gun, he or she needs to follow the gun safety rules "STOP! Don't touch. Leave the Area. Tell an Adult." Pampa Police Department wants the community to be aware that it is also illegal for a person to leave a firearm that can be accessible to a child, Penal Code 46.13 states "A person commits an offense if a child gains access to a readily dischargeable firearm and the person with criminal negligence: failed to secure the firearm; or left the firearm in a place to which the person knew or should have known the child would gain access". If you have any questions regarding Cop's Corner please contact Officer McCullar at the Pampa Police Department.

Perry touts First Amendment

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Rick Perry says he doesn't condone a plan to build an Islamic center near ground zero in New York or a Florida pastor's threat to burn the Quran on Sept. 11 but supports their First Amendment right to Perry said Friday on the eve of the ninth anniversary of 9/11 that private property rights override the objections people have about building a mosque so close to the place where 2,752 died in terrorist attacks.

Florida pastor Terry Jones has backed off on his threat to mark the anniversary of the attacks by burning copies of the Quran but says he is reconsidering.

Perry was speaking at an Austin firehouse as he accepted the endorsement of the Texas Association of Fire Fighters.

Gov.: Wyo. can't regulate gases

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Gov. Dave Freudenthal is telling the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency that Wyoming law prevents the state from regulating greenhouse gases.

The EPA is telling 13 states they need to toughen up their rules to regulate greenhouse gases by Jan. 2. Otherwise, the federal agency will step in and regulate the emissions instead. The EPA has opened the proposal for comment.

Wyoming isn't among the 13 states. Even so, Freudenthal wrote the EPA Thursday explaining that a law passed in 1999 says Wyoming won't enact any rules reducing emissions under the Kyoto Protocol. That 1997 treaty calls on industrial nations to cut greenhouse emis-

The Democratic governor says Wyoming won't be able to consider changing its law until the Legislature convenes in 2011.

Stocks have escaped their August doldrums and moved steadily higher in September thanks to a series of encouraging signals on the economy. The latest came Friday morning with a report that wholesale inventories shot up in July, a sign of confidence that retail sales will pick up.

"It's becoming more evident that confidence by consumers and the labor market is improving," said Tim Speiss, chairman of EisnerAmper's Personal Wealth Advisors practice. "It's tepid; It's weak; But it's progress."

The energy sector got a lift from a jump in oil prices. Oil climbed about 2 percent after a pipeline that delivers oil to Midwest refineries was shut down. Oil companies like Chevron Corp. and Schlumberger rose on the news.

Man accused of posing as veteran

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A man masquerading as a down-on-his-luck soldier needing travel funds scammed good Samaritans out of nearly $500 before police caught up with him, a prosecutor said Friday

James Schuder, 43, of Indianapolis, faces seven misdemeanor counts each of deception and panhandling. He was being held on $14,000 bond Friday at the Johnson County Jail in Franklin, about 20 miles south of Indianapolis. Seven counts carry maximum penalties of a year in jail and $5,000 fines. The others have penalties of 60 days and $500 fines.

"Somebody impersonating someone in uniform ... taking advantage of people like that, is just despicable," said 61-year-old Ken Bush, of Greenwood, one of Schuder's

The Johnson County Sheriff's Department said Schuder, with his hair cropped short and wearing Army combat fatigues, approached people to ask for money to buy plane tickets or cover other travel expenses, or to get free car rides to nearby towns.

There's no record of Schuder ever serving in the military, authorities said.

No death penalty in Katrina case

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Justice Department says it will not seek the death penalty against four current or former New Orleans police officers charged in deadly shootings on a bridge after Hurricane Katrina.

Prosecutors disclosed the decision in court documents Friday. They did not say why they were not seeking the death penalty.

Less than a week after the 2005 storm, two people were killed and four others were wounded by police on the Danziger Bridge. The shootings led to a widespread investigation of the police department.

Five former officers already have pleaded guilty to charges they helped cover up the shootings. Prosecutors have said police fabricated witnesses, falsified reports and plotted to plant a gun to make it appear that the shootings were justified.

Atheists erect Okla. billboard

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Atheists in Oklahoma City have erected a billboard seeking fellow non-believers, and Satanists have scheduled a conference in a cityowned building, drawing criticism from ministers in a state where more than eight out of 10 people say they are Christians.

"It's not a question of 'Can you?' It's a question of 'Should you?'" said Dan Fisher, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church in Yukon. "It's kind of like they're poking a finger in your eye."

Nick Singer, the coordinator of a local atheists' group called "Coalition of Reason," recently received $5,250 from its national counterpart to erect the billboard along Interstate 44 near the Oklahoma State Fair, which opens Wednesday. Its message reads, "Don't believe in God? -Join the club."

One more U.S. rig

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased by one this week to 1,654.

Houston-based drilling systems provider Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday 980 rigs were exploring for natural gas and 663 for oil. Eleven were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago, the rig count stood at 999.

Hermine death toll up as two bodies found

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The bodies of two men found Friday in swollen Texas waterways pushed the death toll caused by remnants of Tropical Storm Hermine to six, while a scaled-back search resumed for another woman swept away in flooding caused by a record drenching.

Five people in Texas and one in Oklahoma have died in flooding caused by Hermine, which proved more deadly and devastating this week while dissolving over land than it did after coming ashore in Mexico on Monday.

Hermine's weakening march north through Texas flooded homes, set off tornadoes and led to more than 100 high-water rescues. Only one search continued Friday — for an Austin woman who drove around a police barricade and into a fast-moving creek Tuesday night.

Divers were pulled from the search for the woman, who disappeared after her sport utility vehicle was washed down swollen Bull Creek, said Austin fire Lt. Josh Portie.

"It's safe to call it a recovery operation," Portie said.

Hermine set rainfall records for the calendar day up and down the Interstate 35 corridor, including nearly 16 inches in Georgetown, according to the National Weather Service. Other cities from Austin to Denton received upward of 10 inches of rain over Tuesday and Wednesday.

"These records pretty much smashed the old ones," National Weather Service meteorologist Ted Ryan

In the San Antonio area Friday, search teams recovered the bodies of two men missing in separate, swollen waterways. One was the second of two swimmers killed in flooding in the Guadalupe River in New Braunfels, a day after authorities found the progress because of the initiative of the developers present. Among the developers that spoke at the event were Pattern Energy, Iberdrola Renewables, Cielo Wind Power, Pattern Energy, National Wind and E.ON Energy.

"There have been other developers, but these developers tend to be more in our area," said Rice. "These developers have land leased in our part of the Panhandle. The people are probably getting tired of hearing about this, but this is something that's massive and still new enough that it takes time to develop.

"The economy has slowed things down, but it seems to be picking things up again. More companies in the U.S. are manufacturing parts of turbines. The industry is still young, but it's really starting to pick up."

Rice said that Class IV Winds and Renewables has been a valuable partner for the PEDC in researching and attracting wind power to the area.

"They have really diligently worked to inform our area about what's going on with wind and create relationships with turbine companies," he said. "Also with other EDCs, with communities — really and truly, they have done a great job of ensuring that we all get a great education in wind development."

junior high opened, but repairs to the old building, primarily asbestos abatement, proved to be expensive. A Pampa family has offered to buy the old school for use as a drug and alcohol rehabilitation facility.

The school board will also deliberate traffic problems at the new junior high school. At present, the only way in and out of the new junior high school is Bad Cattle Company Lane from the school to Texas Highway 70 on the north side of Pampa. The PISD school board will meet at 6 p.m., Monday, in the Pampa High School commons area, 111 East in the river Wednesday.

Authorities on Friday also found the body of 57-year-old Calvin Gibson, who tried crossing the flooded Cibolo Creek in his car despite his wife telling him not to risk it.

Hermine caused relatively few problems when it made landfall as a tropical storm Monday night, with the worst of the rainfall falling harmlessly into the Gulf. But once the storm was fully on land, its remnants moved north into Texas and Oklahoma and the flooding caught some people off guard.

Hermine was the third tropical system this year to hit the Rio Grande Valley, a flood-prone area that encompasses northeastern Mexico and southeastern Texas.

Ryan said Hermine dumped so much rain in one swoop that it could take as few as 2-4 more inches of rain in some places to set new records for September.

Tots-n-Training

All children between the ages of 2 and 5 (not yet in kindergarten) that live in Pampa are eligible to be a part of Tots-n-Training.

The Tots-N-Training program is designed to promote early reading and hopefully as Pampa ISD partners with families of pre school children we will assist parents in preparing their child for school. Each week your child will be given a free book that you will enjoy reading together along with a parent newsletter that is full of ideas and activities.

Come by one of the following locations to pick up your FREE BOOK, newsletter, prize and educational materials. Let your child be a part of something educational and fun!

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 11, 2001, nearly 3,000 people were killed on America's worst day of terrorism. Hijackers seized four jetliners, two of which smashed into New York's World Trade Center, causing the twin towers to fall; one jetliner plowed into the Pentagon; and the fourth was crashed into a field in western Pennsylvania.

On this date:

In 1789, Alexander Hamilton was appointed the first U.S. Secretary of the Treasury.

In 1814, an American fleet scored a decisive victory over the British in the Battle of Lake Champlain in the War of 1812. In 1857, the Mountain Meadows Massacre took place in present-day southern Utah as a 120-member Arkansas immigrant party was slaughtered by Mormon militiamen aided by Paiute Indians.

In 1885, author D.H. Lawrence was born in Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, England.

In 1941, groundbreaking took place for the Pentagon, now headquarters of the U.S. Department of Defense. In an address to an America First rally in Des Moines, Iowa, Charles A. Lindbergh charged that "the British, the Jewish and the Roosevelt administration" were pushing the United States

In 1954, the Miss America pageant made its network TV debut on ABC; Miss California, Lee Meriwether, was crowned the winner.

In 1960, the Rome Summer Olympics ended.

In 1970, Ford Motor Co. introduced the Pinto, a compact that would become caught up in controversy over the safety of its gas tank. (The Pinto was discontinued in 1980.)

In 1973, Chilean President Salvador Allende died in a violent military coup.

In 1985, Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds cracked career hit number 4,192 off Eric Show of the San Diego Padres, eclipsing the record held by Ty Cobb.

Ten years ago: A report released by the Federal Trade Commission said the movie, video game and music industries aggressively marketed to underage youths violent products that carried adult ratings, a finding rejected by entertainment producers.

Five years ago: Weeping relatives marked the fourth anniversary of 9/11 with prayers, solemn remembrances and heartfelt messages at the site where the World Trade Center collapsed. Japanese voters handed Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi's ruling coalition a landslide victory in elections for the lower house of parliament. Roger Federer blew away Andre Agassi 6-3, 2-6, 7-6 (1), 6-1 to capture a second straight U.S. Open and sixth Grand Slam title. Sportscaster Chris Schenkel died in Fort Wayne, Ind. at age 82.

One year ago: On his first 9/11 anniversary as president, Barack Obama urged Americans to come together in service just as they united after the terrorist attacks. Anti-abortion activist James Pouillon was shot to death near a high school in Owosso, Mich. (Harlan James Drake was convicted of firstdegree murder in the killing of Pouillon and the owner of a gravel pit, Mike Fuoss, and sentenced to life in prison.) Death claimed Hollywood writer Larry Gelbart at age 81; poet and punk rocker Jim Carroll at age 60; and Gertrude Baines, recognized as the world's oldest person, at age 115.

We don't need no (for-profit) education

With summer nearly over, the nation's college campuses are bustling once again.

For many students however, the rites of passage associated with higher education won't be rushing a sorority, winning the big game or planning a spring break trip to Florida.

No, looking back, a growing number of students will regale their children with horror stories about being ripped off by a for-profit college.

Of late, the U.S. Senate's Health, Education, Labor, and Pension Committee has been investigating the booming multi-billion dollar for-profit college industry -- think Kaplan University or DeVry for example. What it has found thus far is not pretty.

According to a report released by the committee earlier this summer, some major players in the field are spending about as much on marketing and recruitment as they are on educating students. Those numbers are worse at exclusively online forprofit institutions.

So, just what type of marketing and recruitment is all of that money buying? An undercover investigation by the nonpartisan Government Accountability Office (GAO) this summer found that of fifteen forprofit colleges tested, four encouraged undercover applicants to "falsify their financial aid forms to qualify for federal aid" while all fifteen "made deceptive or otherwise questionable statements."

"Fictitious prospective" applicants that filled out online forms indicating their interest were met with a barrage of aggressive phone calls at all hours of the day and night with one GAO applicant receiving "more than 180 phone calls in a month.' One GAO investigator was actually offered a $14,000 massage therapy certificate and told it was 'a good value" despite the fact that the same certificate cost only $520 at a local community college.

These hardball recruitment tactics work out quite nicely for the bottom lines of these big corporations but students end up paying a hefty price far more lifechanging than the degrees or certificates they may end up receiving.

Take for example, the recently reported case of Michelle Zuver. After finishing a for-profit col-$86,000 in debt, all for a degree in criminal justice that is not even recognized by many police agencies. Sadly, Zuver is not the only student left buried in debt and unable to pursue the career promised by her for-profit education. Many more share her story.

These marketing and recruitment activities along with the troubling lack of quality are funded in large part by taxpayers.

Up to 90 percent of the money for-profit colleges bring in each year is in the form of federal student aid dollars. In fact, University of Phoenix -- the Wall-Mart of for-profit colleges -- saw at least 86 percent of its $3.77 billion in revenue last year paid by taxpayers. These shocking percentages are likely even larger because the figures do not include federal funds from other programs like the G.I. Bill.

like these Numbers should make conservatives lose their tea in anger but it is Republicans who have shown little interest in solving this problem. During Senate hearings on the matter, GOP members of the upper chamber dem-

Unfortunately, Republicans in the Senate have yet to step up and join their Democratic colleagues and the Obama administration in seriously addressing the problem.

Perhaps these GOP Senators are enrolled in a special online course in "creative problem avoidance" at University of Phoenix Luckily for us the certificates are likely worthless.

> Michael Bromwich, director of the Bureau Ocean Energy Management, Regulation and Enforcement, told The Associated Press during a break in a public forum in coastal Mississippi that the industry must comply with current and soon-tobe-imposed safety regulations.

He said the government is mindful of the impact the moratorium has had on communities that rely on offshore drilling. But it must also be concerned about the impact from the April 20 Deepwater Horizon oil rig explosion in the Gulf of Mexico that killed 11 workers and led to 206 million gallons of oil spewing from BP PLC's undersea well.

Bromwich hopes to report to Interior Secretary Ken Salazar in coming weeks and possibly make recommendations on the scope and duration of the moratorium.

He said that among the options the government could consider would be lifting the moratorium early or lifting it with conditions. "There really haven't been any discussions about lengthening it," Bromwich said.

As Bromwich spoke, crews in the Gulf were preparing to transfer the failed blowout preventer - a key piece of evidence that was raised last weekend from the seafloor — to a barge that will bring it to shore to be analyzed by government investigators. At the forum in Biloxi at a convention center across the street from the beach along the Gulf, Bromwich heard from industry experts and elected officials about oil spill response methods and concerns over the deepwater drilling moratorium.

Gary Rook, techni-

disaster preparedness.

He also implored government to allow skimming operations in the future to run 24 hours a day instead of the 12 hours they were allowed with the Deepwater Horizon disaster.

Bromwich told the panel that the "industry must develop more effective oil spill response techniques."

Meanwhile, BP is inching closer to plugging its well for good. The socalled bottom kill operation in which mud and cement will be pumped in through a relief well to seal the busted well from the bottom was initially supposed to occur in early August. Rough weather, a decision to remove the failed blowout preventer first, testing procedures and other factors caused a number of delays.

Retired Coast Guard Adm. Thad Allen, the government's point person on the oil spill response, told reporters Friday that he still is not ready to give a new firm timeline for completing the relief well and doing the bottom kill. but he indicated it could occur before the end of September.

The blowout preventer that failed to stop the oil spill in the first place was lifted from a mile beneath the Gulf last Saturday and secured to the deck of the Helix Q4000. A Coast Guard spokeswoman, Lt. Suzanne Kerver, said Friday that crews were preparing to transfer the 300-ton device to a barge that will bring it to a NASA facility in New Orleans to be analyzed. The transfer could take several hours

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Like most 16-year-old girls, I have a cell phone. My father pays for it and I'm grateful that he does, even though I live with my mom and he's a two-hour drive away. He has been paying for it for a year and a half.

Every month when I visit him he demands to see my phone. Then he looks through my messages and photos. There's nothing 'bad" on my phone, but I feel my personal space is being invaded. I brought it up to him a few times, but he just said, "Deal with it!" He said if I don't want him to see something, I should delete it.

What can I do to get my dad to respect my privacy? I feel he wants to control my life. I want my own space. GETTING GRIEF IN GRANTS PASS, ORE.

DEAR GETTING GRIEF: I'm sure your father means well, but his attempt at "supervision" when you visit him seems heavy-handed. The first thing you should do is discuss your feelings with your mother. Perhaps she can help him understand that you're mature enough to be trusted. But if that doesn't work, you will have to figure out a way to come up with the money to pay for your own cell phone.

DEAR ABBY: My father went to prison when I was 2 months old. My mother and maternal grandparents made sure I had a relationship with him through phone calls and letters. They told me early on what he did, and I have worked through it.

After 22 years and eight parole hearings, my father has been granted a parole. He will be home with my paternal grandparents in October. I'm happy and excited, but he's trying to make up for lost time. He has a son who wants nothing to do with any of us, so it's all left to me. He said, "Your mother had you for the first 22 holidays. I get the next 22," and he expects me to spend the entire first week he's home at my grandparents' house with him.

I am very close to my mom and younger siblings. I love our holiday traditions and don't want to give any of that up. Furthermore, I'm not comfortable staying at my grandparents' home. I don't know them well, and I don't sleep well in strange places.

I work full-time, go to school and have my own house with my fiance. I think my father wants more than I am ready to give right now. What do I do? - FEELING ANXIOUS IN MICHIGAN ANXIOUS: DEAR Your father is starved for family, which is understandable, but he has overlooked the fact that rebuilding a relationship can't be done on a sevenday timetable. What you need to do is tell him that he is demanding more than you are ready, able and comfortable giving -- and you would prefer to get to know him at your own pace. And stand by that, or he may devour you as he tries to make up for all the years he has wasted because of his mistakes. Frankly, I think his demand is presumptuous, and I'm glad you wrote.

DEAR ABBY: I have two large dogs. They are very sweet, but they are young and can be hyperactive. On more than one occasion guests have requested that I put my dogs outside so they can be more comfortable.

I feel it's rude to ask such a thing when it is the dogs' home. They knew about my dogs prior to the visit. Am I wrong for not catering to my guests? Or are my guests wrong for even asking? - BARK-ING UP THE WRONG TREE IN ARIZONA

DEAR BARKING: It is your responsibility as a pet owner to control your dogs and teach them good manners. If the presence of guests on the premises so overstimulates the dogs that they can't control themselves, then as a gracious host, you should remove them so they can calm down - or not entertain at your home.

Medal of honor for living vet

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - A 25-year-old soldier from Iowa who exposed himself to enemy gunfire to try to save two fellow soldiers will become the first living service member from the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq to receive the Medal of Honor, the White House announced Friday.

President Barack Obama phoned Army Staff Sgt. Salvatore Giunta, on Thursday at the base in Italy where he's stationed to tell him he'd be receiving the nation's highest military honor, Giunta's father told The Associated Press. He will become the eighth service member to receive the Medal of Honor during operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. The seven previous medals were awarded posthumously.

"It's bittersweet for us," said Steven Giunta, of Hiawatha. "We're very proud of Sal. We can't mention that enough, but in this event, two other soldiers were killed and that weighs heavy on us. You get very happy and very proud and then you start dealing with the loss as well. You can't have one without the other."

Giunta was serving as a rifle team leader with Company B 2nd Battalion, 503rd Infantry Regiment when an insurgent ambush split his squad into two groups on Oct. 25, 2007, in the Korengal Valley in Afghanistan, the White House said in a news release.

Giunta went above and beyond the call of duty when he exposed himself to enemy fire to pull a fellow soldier back to cover. He engaged the enemy again when he saw two insurgents carrying way a wounded soldier 22-year-old Sgt. Joshua C. Brennan, of McFarland, Wis. Giunta killed one insurgent and wounded the other before tending to Brennan, who died the next day.

"His courage and leadership while under extreme enemy fire were integral to his platoon's ability to defeat an enemy ambush and recover a fellow American soldier from enemy hands," the White House said.

Giunta, who was previously awarded a Bronze Star and Purple Heart, among other medals, called his parents after hearing from the president, his father said. He was very honored to talk to the president but he's very reserved about it," Steven Giunta said. "It's not something he's comfortable with, the event or the Medal of Honor.

Steven Giunta said his son is humbled because he believes he was just doing what he was supposed to be doing.

"He mentions every other soldier would have done the same thing. It kind of rocks his world that he's being awarded the Medal of Honor for something each and every one of them would have done. He's very aware of that."

"What a privilege and honor it is and what the men have done over the years to receive it, the feat, the above and beyond portion of it, it's amazing to me," Steven Giunta said.

Exchange students relate experiences

DARLENE BIRKES
Special to The Pampa News

"We love Pampa!" said the AFS exchange students in unison when introduced on the Chautauqua stage on Labor Day. That brought instant cheers from the crowd. It was a good start for then with the beginning of a new school year, a different home, and a different experience.

"It is very different, but I like it — so it is good," said Camila Ahumadi from Chili, who comes from a very different area. Her town of Calama, in central Chile, is located at one of the driest places on earth.

They have no grass, no plants, but do have some very different trees. They have no snow and no rain. The town is by the largest underground copper mine. One time the copper mine had to expand, and they moved all the residents to another area nearby.

They also have some volcanoes in central and southern Chile. One town had to move because of eruptions and the toxic ashes. There are volcanoes and mountains in Camila's town but they are not active. "Some times we see a little smoke at the top of a volcano," she said. There are earthquakes, and she quickly recalled the last one on February 27 this year.

"I was with my brother in our vacation apartment during our summer vacation at the ocean. We fled to a park. We were close to the epicenter and feared a tsunami."

"All people are unified in Chile, and people help each other," she said, in regard to disasters. "We know the time of year and the history (of earthquakes)" she added. "We have a lot of relief people who help the kids, hurt ones, older people who need money. The supermarkets help with food. There is not a lot of looting."

On that topic, she also mentioned that there are areas of very poor, and she and her mother visit in homes and give them clothes. People help children in poor schools if they have good grades and they need food.

"It is very sad," said Camila.

Camila comes from an area that enjoys salads with both lunch and dinner meals. The lunch meal is the larger meal of the day. She finds our food very different, but she likes all the food and likes to try new things.

She likes to play tennis and ride horses. She arrived the opening day of the rodeo and got to see her host sister, Megan Pirtle, in her rodeo clothes.

"I really enjoyed that. She really looked like a cowgirl," said Camilla. She had never seen a rodeo another new experience.

Camila will probably repeat the eleventh grade when she returns home as she will have to take tests and they may not be acceptable. She will have to put on that school uniform when she goes back, Camila is hosted by the Steve Pirtle family. Liaison is Meredith Bagwell.

Patrizia Niemann of Germany is from famous Nuremburg, a town of 500,000. She enjoys the arts - painting, piano and dance. She will be taking private lessons in piano, and has enrolled in art and choir as electives at Pampa High. Patrizia really likes the teachers at Pampa

"The pupils and teachers are like friends. They talk to each other, not like in Germany. They are nice in Germany, but not like friends," she said.

"Everybody was friendly at school," added Patrizia. "Somebody showed me where the classrooms were, and it was not easy but not as bad as I thought it would be. I always knew I could ask someone."

Her brother was an exchange student in New Mexico, and her family had hosted an exchange student from Venezuela, so she was familiar with the exchange program.

exchange program.

She has just graduated from high school and will return to Germany to study in vocational school for either graphic design or hotel management.

"I'm totally undecided right now." she added.

Patrizia states that German food is much heavier than Texas food. One of her favorite dishes is gurkengulasch, which includes potatoes, meat and cucumbers. The meat is usually pork.

TransCanada seeks US crude for oil sands pipeline

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) no guarantee domestic A Canadian company is inviting U.S. oil producers to bid on rights to use a proposed pipeline from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, easing worries that domestic crude could get left out of the project.

TransCanada Corp. and Montana Gov. Brian Schweitzer plan an official announcement Monday to kick off a so-called "open season" to solicit interest in the pipeline's capacity from companies in Montana and North Dakota.

Calgary-based TransCanada has faced political pressure to allow U.S. oil on its 1,980-mile Keystone XL pipeline.

The project will carry crude from Canadian oil sands to Gulf Coast refineries, following a route that passes through or near several major oil fields along the Montana-North Dakota border.

Industry representatives say interest in developing the U.S. reserves has been hampered in the past by a lack of refineries, pipelines and rail facilities.

"This is an opportunity for producers in the Bakken and the Cedar Creek Anticline in both Montana and North Dakota to get their oil out," Schweitzer said, referring to major oil formations in the region.

TransCanada spokesman Terry Cunha confirmed the company's plans after being contacted Friday by The Associated Press.

"TransCanada is excited about our impending announcement. We have been developing a Bakken play for some time and are pleased with the support from local residents, officials and the commercial interest shown to date," Cunha said.

However, there still is producers will be able to access the pipeline. They first must demonstrate enough interest, and then TransCanada or another company would have to build smaller pipelines and other infrastructure to feed into Keystone XL.

Approval of Keystone XL is pending before the U.S. State Department, which has jurisdiction because it is an international project.

On Friday, Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., released a letter he sent to Secretary of State Hillary Clinton urging a quick decision on the pipeline.

Baucus said the project was too important to be held up by "bureaucratic red tape" and would provide a needed boost to local tax revenues.

Environmental have pushed the State Department to reject TransCanada's application. They say the pipeline would speed the expansion of oil sands extraction to a rate that could exacerbate global warming.

With Keystone XL and a second pipeline, Keystone, TransCanada plans to invest $12 billion in its efforts to export as much as 1.5 million barrels of oil a day to U.S. refineries.

Montana and North Dakota combined produce about 380,000 barrels of oil daily, primarily from North Dakota, said Justin Kringstad, director of the North Dakota Pipeline Authority.

Industry representatives have said that figure could triple over the next several years

Today in History

Tomorrow is Saturday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 2010. There are 111 days left in the year. This is Patriot Day.

Tomorrow's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 11, 2001, nearly 3,000 people were killed on America's worst day of terrorism. Hijackers seized four jetliners, two of which smashed into New York's World Trade Center, causing the twin towers to fall; one jetliner plowed into the Pentagon; and the fourth was crashed into a field in western Pennsylvania.

On this date:

In 1789, Alexander Hamilton was appointed the first U.S. Secretary of the Treasury.

In 1814, an American fleet scored a decisive victory over the British in the Battle of Lake Champlain in the War of 1812.

In 1857, the Mountain Meadows Massacre took place in present-day southern Utah as a 120-member Arkansas immigrant party was slaughtered by Mormon militiamen aided by Paiute Indians.

In 1885, author D.H. Lawrence was born in Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, England.

In 1941, groundbreaking took place for the Pentagon, now headquarters of the U.S. Department of Defense. In an address to an America First rally in Des Moines, Iowa, Charles A. Lindbergh charged that "the British, the Jewish and the Roosevelt administration" were pushing the United States

In 1954, the Miss America pageant made its network TV debut on ABC; Miss California, Lee Meriwether, was crowned the winner.

In 1960, the Rome Summer Olympics ended.

In 1970, Ford Motor Co. introduced the Pinto, a compact that would become caught up in controversy over the safety of its gas tank. (The Pinto was discontinued in 1980.)

In 1973, Chilean President Salvador Allende died in a violent military coup.

In 1985, Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds cracked career hit number 4,192 off Eric Show of the San Diego Padres, eclipsing the record held by Ty Cobb.

Ten years ago: A report released by the Federal Trade Commission said the movie, video game and music industries aggressively marketed to underage youths violent products that carried adult ratings, a finding rejected by entertainment producers.

Five years ago: Weeping relatives marked the fourth anniversary of 9/11 with prayers, solemn remembrances and heartfelt messages at the site where the World Trade Center collapsed. Japanese voters handed Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi's ruling coalition a landslide victory in elections for the lower house of parliament.

One year ago: On his first 9/11 anniversary as president, Barack Obama urged Americans to come together in service just as they united after the terrorist attacks. Anti-abortion activist James Pouillon was shot to death near a high school in Owosso, Mich. (Harlan James Drake was convicted of firstdegree murder in the killing of Pouillon and the owner of a gravel pit, Mike Fuoss, and sentenced to life in prison.)

Randall takes early momentum, runs past Pampa

ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

Pampa Head Football Coach Heath Parker said earlier in the week before the game that the key would be gaining momentum early. Unfortunately for the Harvesters, the Randall Raiders gained the early momentum as they routed Pampa 69-28 Friday at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in Canyon.

Parker said they were getting beat up physically early in the game and Randall controlled the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball.

"We are not able to establish a running game or defend the run and quick screen stuff," Parker said. "It's not just linemen, it's getting 'out-physicaled."

The head coach said they might have to be more aggressive in practice.

'We really need to have live practices and take all the way to the ground on Mondays and Tuesdays," Parker said. "It's almost a Catch-22. You don't want to lose someone in practice but we need to be more physical as a football Randall Head Coach Bryan Wood said they have been able to start quickly in all three games.

"We got rolling early," Wood said. "We got a big turnover and a kickoff return and that helped us take control early."

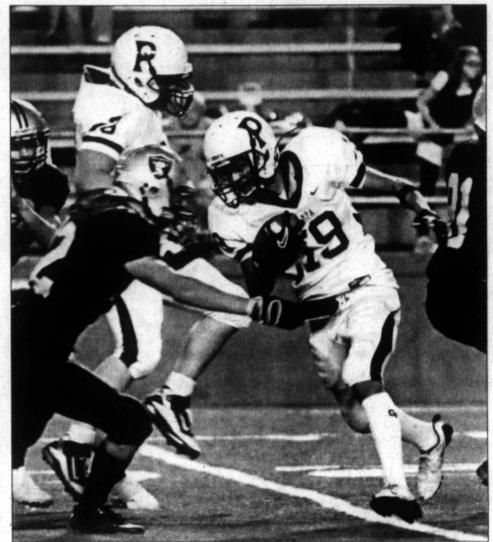

Junior Reid Miller completed 20 passes out of 46

all eleven of us. We're just for 286 yards, threw four touchdowns and two interceptions. Miller also led the team in rushing with 67 yards on eight carries. Senior Garrett Ericson led the team in receiving with nine receptions for 125 yards and three touchdowns. Junior Latigo Collins caught seven passes for 141 yards and one touchdown.

Raiders quarterback Hunter Alford completed 10 passes out of 12 attempts for 162 yards and three touchdowns. Gage Moore led Randall in rushing with 12 carries for 73 yards and one touchdown. Tristen Woods led the team in receiving with three receptions for 30 yards and scored one touchdown.

The Raiders got the ball first and struck on their opening drive. Gage Moore scored on a nine-yard run that capped off a 10-play 71-yard drive that lasted 1:51. The defense got Randall's next score when Aaron White intercepted a Reid Miller pass and took it 80 yards for a touchdown.

Panthers strike often, dominate Miami

ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

In a battle of top 10 Division I and Division II teams, the Follett Panthers (2-1) got the best of the Miami Warriors (2-1) 56-6 Friday in Miami.

Head coach Jack Graves said Follett had the momentum from the beginning.

"We had opportunities early," Graves said. "We were down on the one and couldn't score. We had them on third or fourth down three or four times and they got a big play." Graves said senior Candido Meija had a good game receiving with 4 receptions for 101 yards. Miami's head coach gave credit to Follett for how they played. "They're good, no excuses," Graves said. "We got to get back up and work harder." Miami (2-1) host Lubbock Christ the King 7:30 p.m.

McLean (2-1) 56 Hedley (1-2) 8, McLean

The McLean Tigers avoided a letdown after they upset Motley County last week, and routed the Hedley Owls 56-8 Friday in McLean.

Head coach David Jurado said they Emphasized all week that they have to focus on the current week and was proud of their performance.

"We preached to them new week, new game and they bought in to it," Jurado said. "They bought into it. The fans and players were into the game.'

Jurado said his line and running backs did a good job offensively.

"The line blocked well and we got great runs from our running backs," Jurado said. "We came out and got some quick scores. We looked really good on both sides of the ball.'

Senior Clay Crockett rushed for 200 yards and scored four touchdowns. Senior Tanner Cadra ran for 51 yards and three touchdowns. The Tigers (2-1) visit Samnorwood next

White Deer (3-0) 40 West Texas (2-1) 14, Stinnett

The White Deer Bucks turned a close game at halftime into a 26-point victory as they defeated the West Texas Comanches 40-14 Friday in Stinnett.

Head coach Wade Wilson said the game turned on their opening possession in the second half.

"Jesse Slaughter run to where his blockers were and followed their blocks for a 50-yard gain to the one," Wilson said. "We scored on the next play to make it 28-14.

White Deer led 20-14 at halftime. Wilson said the offense improved especially the passing game.

"Braden Montgomery look good throwing the ball," Wilson said.

Slaughter was the key player as he had a touchdown reception, an interception and punted twice for over 40 yards. The Bucks (3-0) play Fort Worth Trinity Christian 2 p.m. Saturday in Vernon.

Ryans looking forward to facing Manning

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Texans All-Pro middle linebacker DeMeco Ryans likes the challenge of trying to decipher Peyton Manning's frantic calls and signals before every snap.

Ryans knows better than to overanalyze each one when Houston opens its season against Manning and the Indianapolis Colts on Sunday. But if he * can pick out one important phrase and relay it to Houston's defense in time to ruin a play, he'll feel like he's earned a minor victory against the four-time

'You're always trying to find an edge, always trying to find a key on some type of play, anything you can find," Ryans said. "We're going to play our defense. But if I hear something, I'm definitely going to listen in and see what happens.

I'm trying to figure things out. If I can make things easier for my defensive guys, that's to our advantage.

Manning has had his way with the Texans, throwing 37 touchdown passes and only eight interceptions while winning 15 of 16 career meetings. He's completed 71.5 percent of his passes and built a passer rating over 100.0 in 12 of the games.

board on their next possession. Miller threw a 16-yard pass to Junior Latigo Collins for a touchdown to finish a nine-play 72-yard drive. Pampa's momentum lasted very briefly as White ran right through the Harvesters' coverage for an 80-yard return touchdown. Randall led 21-7 after the first quarter.

On Pampa's next possession, Miller threw his second interception to Tre' Norton who returned it for 15 yards. The Raiders had a shaky start to the drive as the snap went past Hunter Alford resulting in a loss of 24 yards. On third down and 34, Alford completed a 22-yard pass to White. Norton caught a 20-yard pass on fourth down and 12. Alford finished the drive with a touchdown pass to Briar Cordova for 14 yards

On Pampa's next possession, senior Garrett Ericson fumbled after patching an eight-yard pass and Randall's Brett Scheve recovered at the Harvesters' 39. Randall immediately struck with Alford throwing a 39-yard pass to Zack Constancio and expanded Raiders' lead to 35-7. Randall led 42-7 at halftime.

Pampa played evenly with the Raiders in the second half as they were only outscored 27-21. Miller threw two touchdown passes to Ericson and one to Collins. Collins said the passing game improved in the second half.

"We worked pretty heavy on the passing game in practice," Collins said. "We were able to get in a rhythm in the second half."

linebacker Senior Kendon Horst said the defensive effort was better in the second half.

To add to the game, tempers flared in the third quarter, Pampa junior Daniel Hulsey threw a punch after Randall gained a first down. The Raiders gained 15 more yards and Hulsey was ejected.

"We went to work," Horst said. "We played better and played as a team.'

Parker said several of the team units did good things but the trick is getting them to all play good at the same time.

"If our offensive line is playing good, our backs and receivers are not catching balls or missing holes," Parker said. "If our backs are getting hot we let someone leak up front. We just don't ever complete ourself."

IRVING — Tony Romo insisted all summer that everything would be fine.

Whatever problems the Dallas Cowboys had moving the ball in preseason, he was confident of working them out because, he said repeatedly, he treats practices as if they're games, even in training camp.

Considering the success Romo has had as a starter in September, maybe there really is nothing to worry about for the Cowboys.

Romo, the undrafted free agent turned threetime Pro Bowler, knows the significance of a strong start.

"I just think it's important to the season," Romo said. "You know how it goes if you don't start off winning football games." Especially when there are Super Bowl expectations and the unique opportunity to become the first host team to play in the championship game, though Romo insists that doesn't change anything.

"There's pressure to perform every year,"

Romo said.

Romo is 9-2 in September games since 2007, his first full season as a starting quarterback. He has won all three of his season openers. Only Brett Favre has won that many opening-month games in that span.

Both of Romo's September setbacks have been two-point losses at home against NFC East rivals. He is 5-0 the first month of the season on the road, where Dallas opens the season Sunday night — in Washington against the Redskins.

Romo enters 2010 with a 38-17 record in regularseason games, a .691 winning percentage.

Getting off to another strong start is essential for the Cowboys, especially considering their schedule down the stretch.

Dallas doesn't face a playoff team from last season until going to Minnesota in its fifth game, then three weeks later at Green Bay.

Enbridge: Ill. leak contained

HOUSTON (AP) — Enbridge Energy Partners LP said Friday crews have contained oil that leaked from a Chicagoarea pipeline and are working to determine how much spilled and how it hap-

am

The Houston company does not have a timetable for restoring the line to operation but is working to divert the volume to other pipelines and storage facilities.

The closure of the pipeline, which delivers oil to Midwest refineries, boosted oil prices more than $2 a gallon on Friday amid concerns about how long the supply may be disrupted.

Although oil and gasoline inventories are plentiful, oil traders are concerned that Midwest supplies could tighten if the pipeline stays closed for some time, analysts said.

In turn, that could send retail gasoline prices up in the upper Midwestern states, perhaps as much as 30 cents a gallon, depending on how long the pipeline is out of operation, said Tom Kloza, publisher and chief oil analyst at Oil Price Information Service. Chicago-area residents may pay $3 or more for a gallon of unleaded regular gasoline, Kloza said.

Administration estimated that a gallon of unleaded averages $2.86 in Chicago now. Enbridge Energy Partners shut the pipeline down after the leak was reported Thursday in the Chicago suburb of Romeoville. Oil spewed onto a roadway and into a nearby retention pond but no injuries were reported.

The company said the pipeline was transporting about 459,000 barrels per day of heavy crude when the leak occurred, but it doesn't know yet how much was spilled.

"The site has now been isolated and the oil contained," Terrance McGill, president of the partnership, said in a statement.

Work crews will focus on removing the oil and cleaning up the area. McGill said the pipeline will be excavated to find the cause of the leak.

The 34-inch pipeline can transport 670,000 barrels per day of oil products from Superior, Wis., to Griffith, Ind.

Earlier this summer, more than 800,000 gallons of oil leaked from an Enbridge Energy Partners pipeline into a creek that feeds the Kalamazoo River valley about 60 miles southeast of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Enbridge Energy Partners is an affiliate of Enbridge Inc., based in Calgary,

The U.S. Energy Information Report: U.S. must do better job of addressing homegrown terror

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. was slow to take seriously the threat posed by homegrown radicals and the government has failed to put systems in place to deal with the growing phenomenon, according to a new report compiled by the former heads of the Sept. 11 Commission.

The report says U.S. authorities failed to realize that Somali-American youths traveling from Minnesota to Mogadishu in 2008 to join extremists was not an isolated issue. Instead, the movement was one among several instances of a broader, more diverse threat that has surfaced across the country.

"Our long-held belief that homegrown terrorism couldn't happen here has thus created a situation where we are today stumbling blindly through the legal, operational and organizational minefield of countering terrorist radicalization and recruitment occurring in the United States," said the report.

As a result, there is still no federal agency specifically charged with identifying radicalization or working to prevent terrorist recruitment of U.S. citizens and residents, said the report, which was released Friday by the Washingtonbased Bipartisan Policy Center's National Security Preparedness Group.

The group, headed by former 9-11 commission leaders Tom Kean and Lee Hamilton, laid out a detailed description of domestic terror incidents ranging from the Fort Hood, Texas, shooting spree and the attempted Christmas Day airliner attack in late 2009 to last May's botched truck bombing in New York's Times Square.

"The threat has both diversified and become much more complex than it has been at any time since the attack on Sept. 11, 2001," said Bruce Hoffman, one of the authors of the report. There is no single profile of the terrorists threatening the United States today. What we see is an adversary that in essence is drawn from all sectors of society and all walks of life."

Over the past year, terrorism experts and government officials have warned of Health and Human Services, the threat posed by homegrown radicals, saying terror recruits who go abroad could return to the U.S. to carry out attacks. But the U.S., the group said, should have learned earlier from Britain's experience. Prior to the 2005 London suicide bombings, the British believed they were less vulnerable to an attack because Muslims there were better integrated, educated and wealthier than their counterparts elsewhere.

Similarly, the U.S. believed that its melting pot of nationalities and religions would protect it from internal radical strife, the report said.

The terrorists, said the report, may have discovered America's "Achilles" heel in that we currently have no strategy to counter the type of threat posed by homegrown terrorists and other radicalized recruits."

U.S. officials have acknowledged the need to address the radicalization problem, and for the first time, the White House this year added combating homegrown terrorism to its national security strategy.

The National Counterterrorism Center and a National Security Council interagency group of representatives from 13 federal agencies and offices have taken the lead in looking at ways to counter violent extremism within the U.S. and abroad, Denis McDonough, the chief of staff of the president's National Security Council, said in an interview with The Associated Press in June.

The effort includes officials from the departments of Defense, Education, Homeland Security, Justice and State.

The FBI has worked to reach out to Somali communities, in an effort to counter the radicalization of young people.

The report also points to an "Americanization" of the leadership of al-Qaida and its allied groups, noting that radical cleric Anwar al-Awlaki, who had links with suspects in the failed Times Square bombing and the Fort Hood shootings, grew up in New Mexico. And Chicagoan David Headley played a role in scoping the targets for the Lashkar-e-Taiba attacks on Mumbai in late 2008 that killed more than 160. Abroad, Al-Qaida, its affiliates and other extremist groups have splintered and spread, seeking safe havens in under-governed areas of Pakistan, Yemen, Somalia and places in North and East Africa. That diversified threat has intensified as militants reach out to potential recruits through the Internet.

Assessing future threats, the report lists potential future domestic targets, including passenger jets, western or American hotel chains, Jewish or Israeli sites and U.S. soldiers, even at their own bases in America.

Daily Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Sept. 12, 2010:

This year, you clear out some of the skeletons in your closet. You feel empowered as a result. Communication excels. If you are single, the person you are likely to choose could be very intense and sometimes difficult. If you are attached, the two of you talk more and feel far more connected — finally. Confirm conversations; make sure you are on the same page. A little selfdiscipline goes a long way. Trust SCORPIO with your secrets.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive: 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ During a discussion, clear up what has been a misunderstanding. You have felt that this person has been closed off. A partner or dear friend asks you to join him or her on a day trip or a weekend adventure in the near future. Tonight: Visit over dinner

This Week: To those observing, the change in you is like a dramatic new flavor. You express yourself differently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ A loved one really does care more than you think. If you are out of your normal day-to-day setting, a newfound closeness becomes possible. Touch base with an older friend. Tonight: Forget tomorrow; stay in the now. This Week: A partner seems to be more direct yet is still able to see the big picture. Enjoy

 Get into a project, whether it is putting away some of the summer furniture or painting a room. A friend or family member appears out of the blue. As you catch up on news, you understand why there has been distance recently.

Pheasant Lane .

2200 Coffee . .

This year, you will break precedent and open up to new possibilities. Certain situations need your focus and directness. At the same time, you remain anchored, allowing for an even smoother moment. You will discover that good will heads in your direction. At the same time, your responsibilities increase, perhaps adding additional pressure. If you are single, you suddenly have quite the pick of suitors. You can afford to take your time deciding who is right for you. If you are attached despite some issues, the two of you are able to flow more in unison. This newfound closeness makes both of you happy again. SAGITTARIUS can trigger

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Deal directly with someone who can affect much of what goes on in your life. Your fatigue level is subject to change. You might want to rethink a personal matter. Be careful not to push someone into a corner. Tonight: A talk establishes a stronger mutual base. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Defer to others, understanding what is going on behind the scenes. Your creativity will soar once you clear out a difficult problem. A boss or an authority figure is challenging. Tonight: Let the good times begin.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)  Stick to the basics until you get through a certain amount of errands and must-dos. A communication could trigger a long-overdue conversation. The unexpected adds insight and dimension to a situation. Tonight: Opt for something easy, but squeeze in some exercise. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
