No sale: PJHS deal derailed by asbestos, zoning

DAVID BOWSER
 dbowser@thepampanews.com

The devil's in the details. Negotiations have broken down over the old Pampa Junior High School building in the 2400 block of Charles.

The Pampa Independent School District initially had planned to move the district's administration offices into the building when the new junior high was built north of town, but the costs involved in asbestos abatement caused a pause in the plan.

David Smith, a Pampa accountant and oil man, then proposed to buy the building to develop an alcohol recovery center.

The school board put the property up for sale, and Smith was the only person to bid on it.

The bid was $51,000 with certain requirements.

The school board accepted the bid and began negotiating the requirements.

In the end, Smith withdrew his bid.

Pampa Independent School District Barry Haenisch said today that the property will be discussed at the next school board meeting, Thursday, Nov. 18.

He said that while there were several questions, the two main points appeared to be the indemnification of the asbestos and zoning.

Haenisch said he thought they had worked out the indemnification question, but zoning remained a problem.

"That was the big issue," he said.

Logan Turley examines damage done to stage sets and costumes in the Baker School gym by vandals over the weekend. Students, parents and volunteers from the community gathered Monday night at the school to try to salvage what they could for the choir's musical-play "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" next week at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Vandals in custody; PHS musical still a go

Four middle school students were in custody today after being arrested in connection with vandalism of choir sets at Baker School.

Officer Stormy McCullar said the four, three boys and a girl, were arrested shortly before noon Monday on charges of felony burglary and felony criminal mischief.

She said the arrests were the result of quick action Monday by Jason Rushing, Pampa Police Department's School Resource Officer.

McCullar said the four were being held by juvenile authorities today.

The four were accused of breaking into the gym of Baker School, 300 E. Tuke, Saturday night and destroying choir costumes and stage sets.

The sets were for the Pampa High School Choir's production of "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" next week.

Officials said the stage sets, including a two-story structure, were broken up and paint was poured on them and the costumes.

Hinkle named Pampa Artist of the Year

 editor@thepampanews.com

The colors of the West were everywhere you looked — summer yellow greens, burnt fall ochres, bright blue skies. There were turkeys, horses, and even a cowboy or two. Every so often, the clouds would be interrupted by ramshackle contour of a dilapidated barn.

No, this wasn't a Panhandle panorama or the opening shot to some old Texas movie.

It was inside the exhibition space at the White Deer Land Museum on Sunday, where Norma Hinkle's art was on display after she was honored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association as its 2010 Artist of the Year.

"I paint what I know," said Hinkle, surrounded by 50 of her pieces in charcoal, oil and watercolor. "I have kind of a thing for old, falling down buildings. I don't know why."

Hinkle said that art has always been a passion for her since her youth, and once she pursued it in earnest, she has never looked back.

"I started painting sincerely in 65," Hinkle said. "I always had the desire. I started taking lessons from a lady in Memphis."

"I grew up in Clarendon, and I'd drive to Memphis every Saturday morning. I did that for two years and learned the basics."

From those beginnings, Hinkle said that she has always carried painting close to her heart. After HINKLE cont. on page 6A

In 1905, Wilbur Wright kept the Wright Flyer in the air for 39 minutes, the first plane to stay airborne for over half an hour. The average wage was about a quarter an hour. Teddy Roosevelt was in the White House, and Oklahoma was known as the Indian Territory.

That's where Iva Lee Overstreet-Thomas was born — 105 years ago this coming Thursday.

Surrounded by family and friends, she had an early birthday celebration on Sunday in the education building of First United Methodist Church. Still positive after all these years, Thomas said she is very blessed to live this long and only one person knows the secret.

"Ask the Lord," Thomas said.

The youngest of eight children, Thomas came from a tightly knit family. While the age gap between her and her oldest Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday, November 10, 2010, at Mary Ellen & Harvester Church of Christ, with Zeb Sailors, Church of Christ minister, officiating.

Burial will be at Memory Gardens Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Blakeney was born November 25, 1936, in Antlers, Okla. As a young girl, her family moved to Stinnett. She attended schools in Stinnett, graduating from Stinnett High School. She married Bob Blakeney on September 4, 1955, in Stinnett. She had been a resident of Pampa since 1960. She attended Pampa College of Hairdressing, and later worked as an instructor, retiring after 24 years of service. She was a member of Mary Ellen & Harvester Church of Christ. Bob and Charlene were married 55 years this past September and everyone knows "Bobby Gene loves Charlene." Charlene showed her family how to balance love, hard work and family devotion. She was proud to be Mrs. Bobby Gene Blakeney, but answered to many names. Her nieces and nephews often called her "Aunt Chuck," her cousins called her "Twin," and her many cosmetology students simply called her "Blakeney." In addition to her three biological daughters, her years of cosmetology instruction in Pampa, Borger and Lubbock produced dozens of surrogate daughters who looked to Charlene as a mother. The family wishes to thank the compassionate care of Peggy Miller, the P. J. Miller House staff, and Interim Health Care.

Survivors include her husband, Bob Blakeney of the home; three daughters, Kerry Latrece Barrett and husband Vernon Don of Alvord, Sherry Denece Blakeney of Pampa, and Sabrina Ruena Stratford of Broomfield, Colo.; two sisters, Sherlene Riddle of Jonesboro, Ark., and Janice Armbruster and husband C.D. of Norman, Okla.; sister-in-law, Vera Thomas of Buena Vista; two grandsons, Blakeney Ray Barrett of Alvord and Cole Ryan Hosselkus of Greeley, Colo.; four nieces and five nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents, Fred and Edna Wheeler Thomas; a brother, Ray Randolph Thomas; and brother-in-law, Tony Riddle.

Memorials may be made to P. J. Miller House, 1711 Evergreen, Pampa, TX 79065.

Visitation will be at Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Home from 6:30 to 8 p.m., Tuesday, November 9.

Prosecutors question fundraiser

AUSTIN (AP) — Prosecutors have resumed questioning a political action committee fundraiser in former U.S. House Majority Leader Tom DeLay's money laundering trial.

Susan Lilly, an Austin-based political consultant, continued telling jurors Tuesday about her work for DeLay's PAC. She first took the witness stand on Monday.

Lilly worked raising individual donations for DeLay's PAC. Last week, another PAC fundraiser testified about his work raising corporate donations.

Prosecutors allege DeLay used the PAC to illegally funnel $190,000 in corporate funds into 2002 Texas GOP legislative races.

DeLay denies wrongdoing.

Fla. recount 10 years old

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Memories of hanging, dimpled and pregnant chads are being revived in Florida 10 years after helping make George W. Bush president.

Chads, those little fragments voters punched out of paper cards - or left hanging, dimpled or pregnant - are the enduring symbols of Florida's 2000 presidential election recount.

They're just one part, though, of the historic recount being recalled by judges, lawyers and other participants at a reunion Tuesday in Tallahassee.

After more than five weeks, the U.S. Supreme Court ended it before all votes were recounted and Bush only 537 votes ahead of Democrat Al Gore. That gave the Republican Florida's 25 electoral votes and the presidency.

The punch cards - and their chads - have since been banned in Florida.

Farewell to 'City Limits' venue

AUSTIN (AP) — Lyle Lovett helped bid a musical farewell to the "Austin City Limits" venue on the University of Texas campus.

The singer and songwriter was the final act Monday night as the public broadcasting show, in its 36th season, prepares to move to new digs in downtown Austin.

Lovett, during he taping, led a singalong of his song "Closing Time."

The Moody Theater complex, located across the street from Austin City Hall, opens next month. The venue will seat about 2,750 people, up from the current studio's capacity of 320.

Bush kicks off book tour

DALLAS (AP) — Former President George W. Bush kicked off his book tour with a signing about a mile from his Dallas house.

At least 1,000 people, including some who waited overnight, joined a long line to have Bush sign "Decision Points" on Tuesday, the day it was released.

Terry and Tammy Jones, a husband and wife who had been in line since Monday afternoon, said that when they told Bush how long they'd waited, he told them he was signing the books "with admiration."

His book "Decision Points" outlines the process the two-term president went through to make various decisions throughout his life. Topics include the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, his decisions to send troops to Afghanistan and Iraq and the response to Hurricane Katrina.

Museum closet yields surprises

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 1615 King James Bible and Civil War photos are among 200 items discovered in a walled-up closet during the renovation of a former Carnegie Library, according to the San Antonio Public Library System.

The bible appears to have been printed in London, has no cover and some chapters are missing, said a spokeswoman for the library system, Beth Graham.

"It otherwise is in astoundingly good shape for being nearly 400 years old," Graham said.

"It's kind of a time capsule," she said of the surprise haul. She had no idea why the closet was closed up.

Among the documents discovered is one dated 1861, and another that Graham described as "a proclamation by the Governor of New Mexico calling up the militia to repel Confederate raiders coming in to the territory from Texas."

Graham said the museum estimates that the closet was walled up in the early 1950s.

Judges closes permit hearing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday barred news organizations from a conference over a company's claim that the government has not yet issued a single permit to allow offshore drilling even though a moratorium was lifted in October.

U.S. District Judge Martin Feldman said the hearing would be held in his chambers. He said news organizations had no right to attend.

The government is defending the time it is taking to approve deepwater offshore drilling permits that would have been suspended under the moratorium that was lifted nearly a month ago.

EnSCO Offshore claims that since the ban was lifted Oct. 12, the government has not issued a single permit that would allow the resumption of any previously suspended drilling activities.

Chevron to acquire Atlas Energy

NEW YORK (AP) — Chevron is buying natural producer Atlas Energy Inc. in a cash-and-stock deal worth $3.4 billion.

Atlas, based in Moon Township, Pa., near Pittsburgh, said Tuesday that its shareholders will receive a package worth $43.34 per share, a 37 percent premium to the company's closing price on Monday. The package includes $38.25 in cash for each outstanding share along with units of Atlas Pipeline Holdings.

Including debt, the deal is worth $4.3 billion.

Chevron Corp., based in San Ramon, Calif., is the latest major energy company to make a big acquisition in the natural gas sector, following Irving, Texas-based Exxon Mobil and Royal Dutch Shell. Atlas is a big player in the Marcellus shale of Western Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — For people of a certain age, the name "Pan Am" still strikes a chord.

From its birth in 1929 to its demise in 1991, Pan American World Airways was the gold standard in air travel, and Brownsville played a key role, serving as Pan American's "Gateway to Latin America" from 1929 to 1959 and the company's Western Division headquarters almost as long.

Pan Am was a major presence, and a major employer, in Brownsville for three decades.

Now Pan American Airways Inc. appears poised to take off again from Brownsville.

The company has taken up residence in the elegantly stuccoed 1930s Pan American Building on Amelia Earhart Drive at what was once Brownsville-Pan American Airport and is now Brownsville/South Padre Island International Airport.

It's no coincidence: The company picked the name to match its new headquarters, and Pan American Airways the name under which Pan American World Airways was originally incorporated happened to be available.

Just don't expect glamorous fleets of Brownsville-based Pan Am Clippers bound for exotic South American destinations, like in the old days.

Do expect beginning in 2011 70 cargo flights a month from Brownsville to various Latin American destinations, including service to Rio de Janeiro, said PAA President Robert Hedrick.

The company plans an official announcement Friday at its historic Amelia Earhart Drive digs.

"We will be announcing the reopening of Pan American Airways," Hedrick said. "We will also be announcing the reopening of the Gateway to Latin America, started by Pan American back in 1929. Then they're going to rededicate this building at the same time."

PAA and its sister company, Hedrick's freight-management firm World-Wide Consolidated Logistics Inc., have opened a screening facility at Brownsville/SPI airport that's certified by the Transportation Security Agency and available to any air carrier or cargo company.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 9, the 313th day of 2010. There are 52 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 9, 1965, the great Northeast blackout occurred as a series of power failures lasting up to 13 1/2 hours left 30 million people in seven states and part of Canada without electricity.

On this date:
In 1872, fire destroyed nearly 800 buildings in Boston.

In 1918, it was announced that Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm II would abdicate. He then fled to the Netherlands.

In 1935, United Mine Workers president John L. Lewis and other labor leaders formed the Committee for Industrial Organization (later renamed the Congress of Industrial Organizations).

In 1938, Nazis looted and burned synagogues as well as Jewish-owned stores and houses in Germany and Austria in a pogrom that became known as "Kristallnacht."

In 1953, author-poet Dylan Thomas died in New York at age 39.

In 1963, twin disasters struck Japan as some 450 miners were killed in a coal-dust explosion, and about 160 people died in a train crash.

In 1967, a Saturn V rocket carrying an unmanned Apollo spacecraft blasted off from Cape Kennedy on a successful test flight.

In 1970, former French President Charles de Gaulle died at age 79.

In 1976, the U.N. General Assembly approved resolutions condemning apartheid in South Africa, including one characterizing the white-ruled government as "illegitimate."

In 1989, communist East Germany threw open its borders, allowing citizens to travel freely to the West; joyous Germans danced atop the Berlin Wall.

Ten years ago: George W. Bush's lead over Al Gore in all-or-nothing Florida slipped beneath 300 votes in a suspense-filled recount, as Democrats threw the presidential election to the courts, claiming "an injustice unparalleled in our history."

Five years ago: Three suicide bombers carried out nearly simultaneous attacks on three U.S.-based hotels in Amman, Jordan, killing 60 victims, and wounding hundreds. Oil executives testified before Congress that their huge profits were justified, but got a skeptical reaction from lawmakers.

One year ago: The Dow Jones industrial average rose 203.52, or 2 percent, to 10,226.94, its highest finish since Oct. 3, 2008, as a falling dollar boosted prices for gold, oil and other commodities. Germany celebrated the 20th anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall.

Today's Birthdays: Former Democratic vice-presidential candidate R. Sargent Shriver is 95. Baseball Hall of Famer Whitey Herzog is 79. Baseball Hall of Famer Bob Gibson is 75. Actor Charlie Robinson is 65. Movie director Bille August is 62. Actor Robert David Hall ("CST") is 62. Actor Lou Ferrigno is 59. Sen. Sherrod Brown (D-Ohio) is 58. Gospel singer Donnie McClurkin is 51. Rapper Pepa (Salt-N-Pepa) is 41. Blues singer Susan Tedeschi is 40. Actor Jason Antoon is 39. Actor Eric Dane is 38. Rhythm-and-blues singer Sisqo (Dru Hill) is 32. Actress Nikki Blonsky is 22.

Thought for Today: "Half the world is composed of people who have something to say and can't, and the other half who have nothing to say and keep on saying it." — Robert Frost, American poet (1874-1963)

An attempt to annihilate Christianity

Sunday, on the eve of All Saints' Day, Nov. 1, 2010, the faithful gathered at the Assyrian Catholic Church of Our Lady of Salvation in Baghdad.

As Father Wassim Sabih finished the mass, eight al-Qaida stormed in, began shooting and forced him to the floor. As the priest pleaded that his parishioners be spared, they executed him and began their mission of mass murder.

When security forces broke in, the killers threw grenades to finish off the surviving Christians and detonated explosive-laden vests to kill the police. The toll was 46 parishioners and two priests killed, 78 others wounded, many in critical condition after losing limbs.

Within 48 hours, al-Qaida in Mesopotamia issued a bulletin: "All Christian centers, organizations and institutions, leaders and followers, are legitimate targets for the (holy warriors)."

It was the worst massacre of Christians — yet. For Assyrian Catholics known as Chaldeans, whose ancestors were converted by St. Thomas the Apostle, the U.S. war of liberation has been seven years of hell.

Estimates of the number of Christians in Iraq in 2003 vary from 800,000 to 1.5 million. But hundreds of thousands have fled since the invasion. Seven of the 14 churches in Baghdad have closed, and two-thirds of the city's 500,000 Christians are gone.

While Saddam Hussein, a secularist, had protected religious minorities, Muslim vigilantes — Shia, Sunni and Kurd, as well as al-Qaida — have attacked the Christians who have endured kidnappings, pillage, rapes, beatings and assassinations.

And what has happened to this Christian community, which had lived peacefully alongside Muslim neighbors for centuries, must be marked down as one of the predictable and predicted consequences of America's war in Iraq.

In editor Tom Fleming's Chronicles, just days before President Bush ordered the invasion, columnist Wayne Allensworth warned pointedly:

"Iraqi Christians fear they will be the first victims of a war that might dismember their country, unleashing ethnic and religious conflicts that Baghdad had previously suppressed. Tariq, a Christian merchant in Baghdad, told the French weekly Marianne that 'If the United States goes to war against our country ... (t)he Wahhabis and other fundamentalists will take advantage of the confusion to throw us out of our homes, destroy us as a community and declare Iraq an Islamic nation.'"

"If recent history is any indication, Tariq has cause for concern," wrote Allensworth. "The Shiite uprising in southern Iraq during the first Gulf War — encouraged and then abandoned by Washington — targeted Christians. Many Christians had supported Saddam's regime, in spite of creeping Islamicization, as their best hope of survival in the Islamic Middle East."

"We let the Shia genie out of the bottle," said a rueful Yitzhak Rabin after Israel's invasion of Lebanon gave birth to Hezbollah.

We Americans did the same with our wars against Saddam's Iraq. Why is Christianity being murdered in its cradle by Muslim fanatics?

Multiple reasons. A return of Islamic militancy. The rise of ethnic nationalism that conflates tribal and religious identity. Hatred of America for its domination of the region, for our war on terror that they see as a war on Islam and for our support of Israel in its suppression of the Palestinians.

Christians across the Middle East are now seen as both members of an alien religion and a fifth column of the Crusaders inside their camp.

Paul Marshall of Hudson Institute's Center for Religious Freedom warns that we may be in another great wave of persecution, "as Christians flee the Palestinian areas, Lebanon, Turkey, and Egypt."

Christians are gone from Jerusalem, gone from Nazareth, gone from Bethlehem. From Egypt to Iran, the Vatican counts 17 million left.

"Across the Middle East," writes Robert Fisk in The Independent, "it is the same story of despairing — sometimes frightened — Christian minorities, and of an exodus that reaches almost Biblical proportions."

In an essay titled in Christ's own words, "Whoever Loses His Life for My Sake ..." columnist Doug Bandow writes,

"Although Christians are no longer tossed to the lions in the Roman Colosseum, believers are routinely murdered, imprisoned, tortured and beaten. Churches, businesses and homes are regularly destroyed. The opportunity to meet for worship and prayer is blocked. There is real persecution rather than the cultural hostility often denounced as 'persecution' in America."

America remains the most Christianized of the Western nations. Yet, the protests of the White House, State Department and major media over the eradication of Christianity in the Middle East is muted.

Where is the outrage? What happened to the America whose president, with a British prime minister in Placentia Bay, on the eve of war sang with his sailors, "Onward Christian Soldiers"?

Are we so wary of offending Muslim sensibilities or inflaming Muslim rage we cannot denounce the pogroms perpetrated against Christians in the name of Allah?

Of what worth these wars for democracy if we end up freeing fanatics to annihilate communities or expel populations of our own Christian brothers and sisters across the Middle East?

New tax law affects capital gains rate for children

TERRY SAVAGE
Creator's Syndicate

Consider this news to be another step in the Tax Accountants Full Employment Act.

The latest change in the tax law: The "Kiddie Tax" now applies to much older kids! The new tax law puts a crimp in the plans of wealthy parents who had planned to gift highly appreciated stocks to their college-age children, who could then sell the shares and pay a very low capital gains tax rate based on their low income.

Raising the age threshold until 2005, the tax on a child's unearned income, such as dividends, interest and capital gains, was paid at the parents' marginal rate if the child was under age 14. But last year, the age limit was raised, requiring children under age 18 to be taxed at the parents' rate. And starting in tax year 2008, the age limit will apply to children under age 19 - or to "kiddies" who are full-time students under the age of 24.

(Note: This rule does not apply to "earned income," such as from a summer job, or even to a baby who earns modeling fees. That earned income can still be reported on a child's separate return, and taxed at the child's lower rate.)

The concept of gifting appreciated stock to children who would pay lower tax rates was considered a "loophole" by the pro-tax lobby, who believes all income belongs to the government, and it will decide how much you can keep.

By closing that opportunity, the government expects to collect as much as $1.5 billion in extra tax revenues over the next 10 years.

This "loophole" has been a particularly enticing opportunity in recent years, because of capital gains rates that have been dropping for those in the lowest two brackets (10 percent and 15 percent).

The maximum capital gains tax rate on assets held for at least one year is 15 percent - no matter what your ordinary income tax bracket (with a few exceptions for collectibles and some other assets). But for those in the lowest two brackets in tax year 2007, the maximum tax on capital gains is only 5 percent.

(For 2007, on an individual return, that 10 percent bracket applies to those who have taxable income less than $7,825. The 15 percent tax bracket tops out at taxable income of $31,850.)

In 2008, it would have been an even better deal, because in 2008, the capital gains tax rates will drop to zero - yes, you read correctly: zero percent - for those in the lowest two tax brackets. This zero rate will be particularly helpful to low-income senior citizens who may have to sell long-held stocks to pay living expenses. Now parents who want to transfer appreciated stocks to low-income kids - who would be able to cash in at the lowest or zero capital gains rates - will find themselves locked out of this deal.

Mark Luscombe, principal tax analyst at CCH, says there are a few exceptions: "These kiddie tax rules do not apply to a child who is married and files a joint return. And a new rule says the kiddie tax does not apply if the child's own earned income provides more than one-half of their support."

But Luscombe goes on to point out: "This has really frustrated efforts to transfer assets to children to fund college tuition expenses."

But it is still useful for parents who want to transfer assets that their children can hold until the first year after graduation - before they are earning a big salary. Then the grad can sell at his own lower tax rate - and use the proceeds to pay off student loans."

As long as there is a Congress, there will be new tax rules. And there will be accountants to figure out a way around them.

Surely, we could put all this expensive talent to better use! The flat tax or national sales tax look more appealing every day.

Obama expresses MidEast concerns

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Barack Obama, visiting the world's most populous Muslim nation, expressed deep concern Tuesday that Israelis and Palestinians aren't making the "extra effort" to secure a breakthrough for achieving Middle East peace.

Obama said he hasn't seen the kind of progress in negotiations that "could finally create a framework for a secure Israel living side by side in peace with a sovereign Palestine." Asked at a news conference with Indonesia's President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono about Israeli settlement construction in East Jerusalem, Obama said, "Each of these incremental steps can end up breaking that trust between these parties."

Obama raised his Mideast concerns while appearing with Yudhoyono during his first visit to Indonesia as president to the country where he lived for four years as a child. He marveled over "sights and sounds" that evoked memories of the past and said that Indonesia's landscape of today barely resembles the land where he went to live at age 6 in 1967 after his mother married an Indonesian man.

The U.S. sees Indonesia as a counterweight to China's growing strength, though Obama said Tuesday he's not seeking to stop China's growth.

"We think China being prosperous and secure is a positive," Obama said. "We're not interested in containing that process."

students, parents and friends were busy Monday night trying to salvage the sets.

Kelly McElwain, mother of one of the choir members, said the musical play will go on as scheduled.

The musical will be performed beginning Thursday, Nov. 18, and running through Sunday, Nov. 21, at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

The vandalism was discovered Sunday afternoon when parents and choir officials were preparing to move some of the sets to the auditorium.

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce went out with a call Monday morning for funds, lumber, material and labor to repair or replace the damaged sets.

Others in the community are also joining in the rebuilding effort, which will continue in the evenings through the week.

a school, and apparently because of objection in the neighborhood, changing the zoning would be difficult at best.

Haenisch said that the district had received a letter from Smith saying that he was withdrawing his offer. He said in the letter that he may at some time be back with another offer, but that for now, it was off the table.

Smith was out of town this week and unavailable for comment.

siblings was quite large — some of them were already married when she was born, Thomas said — they were all always very close.

"We never had a disagreement," Thomas said.

Thomas and her family moved to the Texas Panhandle in 1909, in the midst of the Dust Bowl. Those years, Thomas recalled, were some of the most trying in her long life.

"There was miles of dust in the whole south," Thomas said. "It got in the house. I thought in a couple months we were all going to be covered up and the Lord was going to take us all."

Through it all, though, Thomas and her family endured, remaining in the Panhandle. In Pampa, she made her living as a hairdresser for 20 years.

Friend Sue Derington remembers going with her mother to Thomas' shop when she was 6 years old.

"I sat there and waited every week while she did my mother's hair," Derington said. "(Back then,) it was a wonderful adventure for me when I got to have permanent curls. You would have a burn here or there. I thought it was marvelous, if that's what it took to have the curls."

Thomas said she enjoyed working as a hair dresser.

"It was a wonderful time," Thomas said. "I enjoyed my customers because they were all very nice."

While she is out of the hairdressing business now, Thomas keeps herself busy. Not one for idle hands, Thomas is still active and does much of her own housework.

"She's was still shoveling snow in the winter and she's still out in the yard now," said friend Ramona Hite. "For her age, that's crazy. She really is quite amazing."

Nephew Gare Overstreet said she had to recently give up mowing the lawn.

"Her knees couldn't take it anymore," Overstreet said. "She's losing her eyesight and hearing. Other than that, she's in great health."

There have been many changes in the world during her near-105 years, Thomas said, but the greatest that stick out for her are the automobile and the telephone.

"It went from being a hand crank," Thomas said, "to carrying it around everywhere you go."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I read your advice to "Getting Grief in Grants Pass, Ore." (Sept. 11), whose father was reading her cell phone messages. You called his supervision "heavy-handed" and suggested she discuss it with him. While I applaud your suggestion to have a talk with her father, please reconsider the characterization that he was heavy-handed.

As a parent and high school assistant principal, I have seen too often the dangers of "sexting" and other illicit communications. Today's smart phone tells us all sorts of things that we as parents need to know. It also has connections to social networking and applications that allow teenagers to blindly send their phone numbers to anonymous users and have conversations.

The world has changed with this technology, and the attention we pay as parents must change with it. I strongly urge the parents at my school to check their children's phones and computers regularly. I suggest to parents to start doing it when their children are young and explain that it is part of their job as a parent. — DAVE MILLER, NEW YORK

DEAR DAVE: Thank you for writing and reminding me that kids today face many challenges that had never been an issue for them in past generations. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: The number of teens and children who engage in inappropriate sexting and texting is shocking. These behaviors can be evidence of sexual exploitation, harassment, bullying and teen dating violence. The results of this teenage behavior can be devastating and have lifetime consequences.

Kids sometimes are afraid to go to parents or other responsible adults to seek help when they need it; often kids may not even know they are in trouble or exposing themselves to danger by their behavior. How long do you think it takes a "sex" between a girl and her boyfriend to make it to a child porn website?

A cell phone is a computer, and parents are responsible for ensuring the safety of their children and protecting them from predators and others who might harm them.

If "Grief" is not engaging in inappropriate behavior, she shouldn't be embarrassed if her parents read the text messages. Abby, please use your column to help educate children, teens and their parents that a text/sext lasts a lifetime. — PATRICIA DAILEY LEWIS, DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL, DELAWARE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

DEAR ABBY: As a crime prevention officer, I regularly encourage parents to check a child's cell phone for bullying and sexting, most of which a child won't share with a parent. Especially if the child is the one who is using the phone to bully others, she certainly won't share her pictures with her parents.

Most children are unaware that state laws have not changed, and children who send pornographic pictures of themselves to others can be charged with distributing child pornography and may have to register as a sexual predator for the rest of their lives. Kudos to "Grief's" father for protecting his child not only from herself, but ensuring she is not hurting others! — CHILD ADVOCATE IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR ABBY: Once young people enter the work force, their e-mail, use of company phones and profiles on social sites will be monitored by their employers. There are consequences for living in a digital world, and our young people need to understand that.

I do not agree with her father telling her if she doesn't want him to see something, she should delete it. Please don't encourage children to lie. It won't lead to anything good down the road. For young men and women who think this is a good idea, remember that nothing deleted is ever truly gone -- it can be retrieved.

Whether it's online, on a computer or a cell phone, act with decorum, use common sense, and you'll never need to worry about getting in trouble for your behavior. — MOTHER OF TEENS IN SHARON, PA.

working full-time for many years, Hinkle now has the time to be a full-fledged artist of sorts. "I retired in '03, and I was invited to join the Pampa Art Club by Kay Crouch," Hinkle recalled. "Since then, that's what I do. I paint."

Crouch, a former Pampa Artist of the Year herself, said that Hinkle has earned the Artist of the Year designation. Past winners of the Artist of the Year award traditionally make the nomination for the newest honoree, and Crouch said that Hinkle's work made it a no-brainer. "I've known her for a long time and I've seen her really progress as an artist," Crouch said. "You can see her style in all of her work, and it's just beautiful. You can see in her use of color that she's fantastic. She just has a natural touch."

"We've seen the quality she does," echoed Darlene Holmes, another Artist of the Year winner. "Oh, she's good. She's just good. We paint with her on Tuesdays, and we could see that she just has a compositional way of putting her work together."

Hinkle, for her part, said that she was grateful for the honor and that the award has only motivated her to keep doing what she's doing. "I'm just going to continue painting," she said, smiling. "I enjoy it. I love it. I really do."

The exhibit of Hinkle's work will be on display at the White Deer Land Museum until Dec. 1.

Lady Pirates can't cash in from line, fall in opener

aglover@thepampanews.com

There's a saying that free throws are called free throws for a reason. Unfortunately for the Lefors Lady Pirates they couldn't cash in and lost their season opener 41-32 to the Miami Junior Varsity Monday in Miami.

Head coach Tory Peet said he was frustrated with their struggles from the line.

"We missed 16 free throws and we lost by nine," Peet said. "If we made 50 percent of the ones we missed, we only lead by one."

Peet was also frustrated with their lack of aggression on the offensive boards.

"We didn't rebound the ball well," Peet said. "When we did get the offensive rebound, we didn't go up strong."

Freshman Khori Lott scored the first points for Lefors. Junior Kaittlyne Porter added a free throw to give the Lady Pirates a 3-0 lead. That would be their only lead. Lefors only made three free throws the rest of the quarter and turned the ball over six times. The Lady Warriors led 13-6 after the first quarter.

Peet said when Miami took the momentum his team put their heads down.

"That's something that happened last year," Peet said. "The moment something bad happens, we say to ourselves 'Oh no it's happening again.'"

In the second quarter, the Lady Warriors started where they left off. Miami out-scored Lefors 6-2 to own their largest lead of the game at 11. The Lady Pirates finished the quarter strong, outscoring the Lady Warriors 7-2. Miami led 21-15 at halftime.

The Lady Warriors took control of the game in the third quarter. Miami scored the first seven points of the quarter and expanded their advantage to 28-15. Lefors only scored four points in the third on two-made field goals and turned the ball over eight times. Miami led by as much as 15 and led 34-19 after the third.

Junior Story Pairsh said the third quarter was the turning point of the game.

"They made the first two baskets and we let that take us down," Pairsh said.

Senior Taylor Overstreet led the team in scoring with 17. Porter led the team in rebounds with 15 and in steals with four.

Peet said the good thing is everything they did wrong can be worked on in practice.

"They didn't just run us out of the gym," Peet said. "We can do better on defense. We need a lot of work."

The Lady Pirates (0-1) host White Deer either Friday or Saturday depending on White Deer's football team activities. Pairsh said she thinks White Deer will be better than Miami's junior varsity and will need to be more aggressive.

"We just to go out and play defense," Pairsh said.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Nov. 10, 2010:

This year, you build better relationships because of your willingness to listen and work with others. Often, you can become exasperated by the many demands and requests. You also can become quite depressed if you are left alone. In a sense, it might feel better to be overwhelmed. If you are single, you could meet someone quite exotic and different. Be open to a different style and MO. If you are attached, the two of you become much closer because of planning a trip or pursuing a mutual interest. CAPRICORN asks the right questions.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ★★★★★ You are in command of your own ship. Take news that is forthcoming with a grain of salt. Honor your commitments, but don't allow someone to hang on you. Understanding evolves within a partnership. Tonight: Dinner for two.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ★★★★★ Discussions evolve. The only way to solve a tension-laden issue is through a talk. Your way of handling a problem could be a lot different from another person's. Be willing to incorporate other ideas with a little more ease. Tonight: Easy does it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ★★★★★ A close relationship becomes more of a possibility than you first thought. However, you might not be in the mood for the type of discussions that are likely to occur. A steady, even pace, even in explaining your logic, helps others receive your ideas. Tonight: Be with a favorite person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ★★★★★ You could be out of sorts; defer to someone else. How you see a situation and the choices you make could be very different from this person. If the end results are the same or better, why would you mind? Tonight: Go with another's choices.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★★ Emphasize the possibilities. Someone close could be a bit sour or negative. Use this trait as an asset; let him or her play devil's advocate. Your strength on a personal, emotional level pays off in a big way. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★★★★ Being aware of the consequences of certain decisions could be critical. Although you are brainstorming and allowing creativity to flourish, you still need grounded thinking. Communication flourishes in an unprecedented manner. Tonight: Take a midweek break.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★★★★ You could be fighting yourself more than anything else. You need to deal with a situation differently, but will you? A family member has similar priorities when it comes to security. Tonight: Your home is your castle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★★★★ Put your best foot forward. By giving 100 percent, you will never have a reason to feel bad or do the "what if?" should a situation not tumble in your favor. You often are very hard on yourself. Tonight: Meet a friend, and catch up on his or her news.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ★★★★★ You don't need a majority consensus, but it is nice to have some agreement and support before taking action or making a decision. Your instincts serve you well financially. Honor who you are in a discussion. Tonight: Pay bills first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ★★★★★ Though you radiate and seem self-assured, someone is coming down on you very hard. You wonder what you need to do to change this person's attitude. Instead of wondering, why not start up a conversation and ask? Tonight: The world is your oyster.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ★★★★★ Your instincts serve you well. If you feel that an idea or a meeting is off, you might want to cancel it. Give yourself some space, as it appears unanticipated demands could come in from out of left field. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ★★★★★ Don't hesitate to zero in on what you want. Enlist others' support, and you will come to a conclusion much more quickly than you thought possible. You see the beauty of teamwork. Follow your knee-jerk reaction. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.
