Hooper explained that the neighboring pieces of property, belonging to Martha Mackay, Donny Hooper, Pampa's public would also need to be changed to prevent spot zoning.

"You can't have one without the other," Hooper said.

 The commission also awarded a bid of $154, 608 to Plains Builders Inc. of Amarillo for construction of a Recycling Center Building at the landfill.

Joe Dooley was speechless. "I just feel honored to serve the citizens of Gray County," said Crystal Brown.

The two opened Smokin' Joe's Grill just before

Thanksgiving last fall.

This month they were recognized for having the Best Hamburger and Fries in Pampa, according to the readers of The Pampa News.

Brown said that while they may have the best burger and fries in town, she thinks they have the best customers as well.

"We do put a lot of effort in it," said Dooley, a Montana native, who runs the kitchen operation. "I try to make a real good burger."

PJHS parent meetings next week

RANDY PRIBBLE rpribble@thepampanews.com

Parent meetings/final registration has been set for next week for parents and students of Pampa Junior High School

This is something new," said Principal Paul Nies. "We will still have our parent meeting at the beginning of the school year in the fall, but there seems to be some confusion over our course selections."

Nies noted that the school has already had a preregistration of students, but there is still some confusion about different levels of courses, for instance the College Prep and College Prep I courses.

"We will have a brief informational meeting about the courses we offer," the principal said, "and we will have our staff on hand to answer any questions." Computers will be available to allow for course selection changes at the meetings. "We also want to make sure we are all clear about some of our fine arts stuff, like band," Nies said. "We always have umpteen schedule changes in the fall and we are trying to eliminate that nightmare. The scheduled meetings for different grades are as follows:

Monday, May 2 at 5:30 p.m:

Incoming 6th graders. Monday, May 2 at 7 p.m. Incoming 7th graders

. Tuesday, May 3 at 5:30 p.m. Incoming 8th graders.

For more information about the meetings, call Principal Nies at 669-4900.

At least one tornado in storm

FORT WORTH (AP) - The National Weather Service says it is likely that at least one tornado slammed into a tiny rural community in East Texas as a wave of severe weather swept the South.

Meteorologist Ted Ryan says a tornado "almost certainly" hit between Edom and Van on Tuesday.

At least three people died in Mississippi on Tuesday as a massive storm swept the region from Memphis to Dallas.

AUSTIN (AP) — The GOP-led Texas House has scheduled debate on a controversial redistricting plan that would pit several Republicans against each

A new map for the state House is on the agenda for Wednesday. Dozens of amendments will be considered, and opponents will attempt procedural

The Republicans have a lopsided 101-49 majority in the 150-member House, a supermajority so big that they can transact business even if Democrats don't show up for work.

With so many seats to protect, GOP leaders can't draw enough safe districts to protect all their incumbents in the next election, in 2012.

Initial proposals would draw several Republicans into the same districts, as conservative rural areas shrink relative to suburban areas. Hispanics, accounting for two-thirds of Texas' growth since 2000, are demanding more Latino-dominated seats.

Wildfire forces evacuation

ODESSA (AP) — At least two homes have burned and a West Texas community near Odessa has been year. evacuated after new wildfires erupted in parts of the windswept, tinder-dry region.

Two fires prompted the evacuation of the 800-resident community of Pleasant Farms, about 12 miles south of Odessa.

division already have burned. No injuries have been in benefit

Westerly winds of up to 30 mph with gusts of up to 40 mph combined with relative humidity readings in the single digits to create an explosive wildfire potential in the area, which has suffered from destructive wildfires for more than two weeks.

The National Weather Service predicted an extreme potential for wildfires in all of Texas except for North, Central and East Texas today.

Galveston residents lose power

GALVESTON (AP) - Power outages linked to dry weather have hit Southeast Texas a day after several nearby refineries and chemical plants lost electricity

Houston-based CenterPoint Energy on Wednesday reported nearly 13,000 customers without power in the Galveston area after three substations failed.

Utility spokeswoman Penny Todd told The Associated Press that the outages are due to accumulation of salt on power lines.

She cited dry conditions along the Gulf of Mexico, sand in the air, high winds and no rain to keep the Crews have been dispatched to clean the exposed power lines.

The outage came a day after power failures in Texas City cut electricity to several refineries and chemical plants. Utility officials had cited salt on power lines as a possible source of the outages.

Barataria seafood declared safe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Recreational and commercial fishing has been reopened in the Barataria basin, the coastal area hit the hardest by the massive. BP oil spill.

Officials say tests show it is safe to fish in selling sugary drinks under Barataria, an important seafood estuary. Parts of the basin were closed to commercial fishermen until Tuesday's announcement.

Robert Barham, the state's wildlife and fisheries secretary, ordered the opening after the Food and Drug Administration advised that shrimp, crabs and finfish are safe to eat based on tissue samples tested from closed areas.

"Today we are one step closer to resuming normal fishing practices," Barham said.

Now, more than 99 percent of state waters are open for fishing.

CHRIS KAHN AP Energy Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The swift rise in oil prices should produce a windfall for the petroleum industry in the first quarter and set up its best year since 2008.

Exxon Mobil Corp., Chevron Corp. and ConocoPhillips are expected to report this week a Ryan says the weather service will send a team to combined $18.2 billion in first-quarter earnings, according to FactSet. That's a 40-percent increase from a year ago and just short of the $20.2 billion they earned in the first three months of 2008.

Bigger profits will certainly benefit oil company shareholders, including millions of people owning 401(k)s and pension plans. But for businesses and consumers, the increased cost of petroleum means rising prices for unleaded gas and diesel, as well as food, airline fares, shipping costs and other things.

Gasoline rose more than 53 cents per gallon from January to March as a rebellion in Libya threatened its oil fields and helped push oil from $91 to $107 per barrel. The national average for gasoline is close to $3.90 per gallon. For diesel, it's at $4.14.

This has stoked frustrations about the sluggish pace of oil exploration in the U.S. while adding weight to efforts by President Obama to end the $4 billion in subsidies that taxpayers give to oil companies every year.

While oil companies enjoy big profits, "you're paying near record prices at the pump," Obama said in his weekly radio address on Saturday. Last week he appointed a task force to look into manipulation of oil and gas prices.

In 2008, Exxon established quarterly and annual profit records for a public company - $14.83 billion in the third quarter and $45.22 billion for the year. Wall Street is calling for the company to make $40.71 billion this year, about $1 billion more than it made in 2007. Analysts currently expect Chevron to top its 2008 profit of $23.93 billion by about $840

Oil hit a high of $147 per barrel in 2008. It settled Tuesday at $112.21, up around 23 percent for the companies' control. Reports show that global oil consumption rose to 88.02 million barrels per day in the first quarter, above pre-recession levels. That, and the loss of production in Libya, is making global supplies tighter.

Experts say oil is rising for reasons beyond the

A week U.S. dollar is also part of the problem. The Federal Reserve has kept interest rates low while pumping billions of dollars into the economy, effectively weakening the dollar versus other major currencies. Oil, which is traded in dollars, tends to rise as a falling dollar makes the oil cheaper for investors holding foreign currencies.

John Felmy, chief economist for the American Petroleum Institute, the chief lobbying group for the oil industry, said, "China and other developing countries," are also contributing to higher oil prices. Consumers there are buying more cars even as Americans cut back on filling up their tanks.

Oil averaged $94.64 per barrel between January and March, compared with $78.89 in the same period last year. However, oil companies also were forced to pay for idled rigs and other equipment in the Gulf of Mexico because of a ban on drilling following the BP oil spill.

Some were forced to evacuate workers from parts of North Africa this year as uprisings spread through

BP, Royal Dutch Shell and Occidental Petroleum Corp. also will announce their first-quarter results

Natural gas production is a bigger determinant of results than it was in 2008. Exxon and Shell have bulked up gas operations in North American following discoveries of large reserves. Unlike oil, natural gas prices remain low compared with three years ago. It's currently trading at $4.38 per 1,000 cubic feet. In April 2008, natural gas contracts fetched more than twice that.

Oppenheimer & Co. analyst Fadel Gheit said that companies like Exxon and Chevron can rely on oil production to drive earnings. But smaller players such as Apache Corp., Devon Energy Corp. and EOG Resources Inc. depend much more on their natural gas fields and won't come close to the profits of three years ago, Gheit said.

Bush rides bike race

TERLINGUA (AP) -Former president George W. Bush will finish a kilometer tain bike race across Big Bend National Park on Wednesday, along with 14 members of the armed forces who have suffered serious wounds in Iraq or Afghanistan.

The 3-day-long Warrior 100 race started Monday and will finish Wednesday. Bush is expected to deliver remarks on the race and his commitment to soldiers that have been injured in combat.

The 14 soldiers are members of the Wounded Warrior Project, a nonprofit organization dedicated to helping rehabilitate soldiers wounded in service after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

Sugary drink bill approved

AUSTIN (AP) - Schools would be prohibited from legislation approved by the Texas House.

The bill, which was adopted Tuesday, would ban the campus sale of drinks other than 1 percent milk, unsweetened water, 100-percent vegetable or fruit juices and zero-calorie electrolyte drinks. The campus ban would only apply during the school day.

Census: Women surpass men in advanced degrees

HOPE YEN Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) - For the first time, American women have passed men in gaining advanced college degrees as well as bachelor's degrees, part of a trend that is helping redefine who goes off to work and who stays home with the kids.

Census figures highlight the latest education milestone for women, who began to exceed men in college enrollment in the early 1980s. The findings come amid record shares of women in the workplace and a steady decline in stay-at-home moth-

The educational gains for women are giving them greater access to a wider range of jobs, contributing to a shift of traditional gender roles at home and work. Based on one demographer's estimate, the number of stay-at-home dads who are the primary caregivers for their children reached nearly 2 million last year, or one in 15 fathers. The official census tally was 154,000, based on a narrower definition that excludes those working part-time or looking for jobs

"The gaps we're seeing in bachelor's and advanced degrees mean that women will be better protected against the next recession," said Mark Perry, an economics professor at the University of Michigan-Flint who is a visiting scholar at the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank.

"Men now might be the ones more likely to be staying home, doing the more traditional child rearing," he said.

Among adults 25 and older, 10.6 million U.S. women have master's degrees or higher, compared with 10.5 million men. Measured by shares, about 10.2 percent of women have advanced degrees compared with 10.9 percent of men - a gap steadily narrowing in recent years. Women still trail men in professional subcategories such as business, science and engineering.

When it comes to finishing college, roughly 20.1 million women have bachelor's degrees, compared with nearly 18.7 million men - a gap of more than 1.4 million that has remained steady in recent years. Women first passed men in bachelor's degrees in 1996

Some researchers, including Perry, have dubbed the current economic slump a "man-cession" because of the huge job losses in the male-dominated construction and manufacturing industries, which require less schooling. Measured by pay, women with full-time jobs now make 78.2 percent of what men earn, up from about 64 percent in 2000.

Unemployment for men currently stands at 9.3 percent compared with 8.3 percent for women, who now make up half of the U.S. work force. The number of stay-at-home moms, meanwhile, dropped last year for a fourth year in a row to 5 million, or roughly one in four married-couple households. That's down from nearly half of such households in 1969.

By the census' admittedly outmoded measure, the number of stayat-home dads has remained largely flat in recent years, making up less than 1 percent of married-couple households.

Whatever the exact numbers, Census Bureau researchers have detailed a connection between women's educational attainment and declines in traditional stay-at-home parenting. For instance, they found that stay-at-home mothers today are more likely to be young, foreignborn Hispanics who lack college degrees than professional women who set aside careers for full-time family life after giving birth.

"We're not saying the census definition of a 'stay-at-home' parent is what reflects families today," said Rose Kreider, a family demographer at the Census Bureau. "We're simply tracking how many families fit that situation over time." She said in an interview that the bureau's definition of a stay-at-home parent is based on a 1950s stereotype of a breadwinner-homemaker family that wasn't necessarily predominant then and isn't now

Beth Latshaw, an assistant professor of sociology at Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C., notes the figures are based on a narrow definition in which the wife must be in the labor force for the entire year and the husband outside the official labor force for the specifically cited reason of "taking care of home and family."

Her own survey found that many fathers who had primary child-care responsibility at home while working part time or pursuing a degree viewed themselves as stay-at-home fathers. When those factors are included as well as unmarried and single dads, the share of fathers who stay at home to raise children jumps from less than 1 percent to more than 6 percent.

Put another way, roughly one of every five stay-at-home parents is a father.

The remaining share of households without stay-at-home parents - the majority of U.S. families - are cases in which both parents work full time while their children attend school or day care or are watched by nannies or grandparents, or in which fathers work full time while the mothers work part time and care for children part time.

"There's still a pervasive belief that men can't care for children as well as women can, reinforcing the father-as-breadwinner ideology," said Latshaw, whose research is being published next month in the peer-reviewed journal "Fathering." She is urging census to expand its definition to highlight the growing numbers, which she believes will encourage wider use of paternity leave and other family-friendly poliitself Bre cut d

The new "Mr. Moms" include Todd Krater, 38, of Lakemoor, Ill. a Chicago suburb. Krater has been a self-described stay-at-home dad for the past seven years to his three sons after his wife, who earned a master's business degree, began to flourish in her career as a software specialist.

Krater said he found it difficult adjusting at first and got little support from other mothers who treated him as an outcast at school functions. He eventually started writing a blog, "A Man Among Mommies," to encourage other fathers to take a larger role in child care and says he now revels in seeing more dads at the park, library and school events.

"What was once an uncommon sight of a dad with the kids during the day is becoming more and more prevalent," said Krater, who is now studying part time to become a registered nurse. "But many still feel the pressure of gender roles and feel if they don't make money they are somehow less of a man."

The census numbers come from the government's Current Population Survey as of March 2010. Among other findings:

 Among adults 25 and older. women are more likely than men to have finished high school, 87.6 percent to 86.6 percent.

· Broken down by race and ethnicity, 52 percent of Asian-Americans had at least a bachelor's degree. That's compared with 33 percent for non-Hispanic whites, 20 percent for blacks and 14 percent for Hispanics.

· Thirty percent of foreign-born residents in the U.S. had less than a high school diploma, compared with 10 percent of U.S.-born residents and 19 percent of naturalized citizens. At the same time, the foreignborn population was just as likely as U.S.-born residents to have at least a bachelor's degree, at roughly 30 percent.

Jeremy Adam Smith, author of the 2009 book "The Daddy Shift: How Stay-at-Home Dads, Breadwinning Moms and Shared Parenting are Transforming the American Family," described a cultural shift as women began to surpass men in college enrollment in the 1980s. The 1983 movie, "Mr. Mom," openly broached the idea that out-of-work fathers can contribute to families as stay-at-home dads, allowing more men to be accepting of the role in subsequent recessions, he said.

"Over the long term, the numbers are just going to keep going up,' Smith said.

"We spend a little bit more for the burger itself," Dooley said. "It comes out better." Brown said their French fries are fresh

"We go through about 1,400 pounds of potatoes a week," Dooley said. "We go through a lot of French fries.

He said that includes their homemade mashed potatoes, too.

Dooley said that because of the reception of the restaurant by their customers, Smokin' Joe's Grill plans to begin serving

"It'll include homemade hash browns," he grinned

Dooley said winning the Best Hamburger and Fries was a pleasant surprise, but that's not all they feature.

"We do sell a lot of steaks," he said.

"That's for sure."

He said they trim their steaks very lean. "We're just happy to be recognized," Brown said

"Wait until they try the biscuits and gravy," Dooley said with a broad smile.

The restaurant's proprietors weren't the only ones taken aback; one of Smokin' Joe's gregarious servers, Woodrow Putman, was surprised by the award for the Best Waiter in Pampa.

When told he must be doing something right, he replied, "I don't have a clue."

With his neatly trimmed beard and trademark tropical shirt and ball cap, Putman looked like he'd be more at home at the helm of a sailboat than behind a menu at Smokin' Joe's Grill.

"I don't know why I was picked," he said.

"There are definitely people here that can wait circles around me.

With a grin, he said he guessed it was his conversational skills.

An Amarillo native, Putman said he has a lot of relatives in Pampa.

"I enjoy being here," Putman said. "There's some good people here. There's some good folks.

Dogs need socialization

MATTHEW "UNCLE MATTY" MARGOLIS Creator's Syndicate

Show me a seeing-eye dog, and I'll show you a dog that is 100 percent socialized. Friendly, outgoing, unflappable anytime, anywhere with anyone these are the qualities that describe a truly socialized dog. Unfortunately, more and more dog owners are taking their unsocialized dogs into social situations, demonstrating little regard for the safety of others. A 39-year-old Home Depot greeter in Ottawa came face-to-face with this trend last week when she leaned in to pet a customer's shih tzu and the dog bit off the tip of her nose. She was rushed to the hospital for emergency surgery

Are people foolish to assume a dog in a public place is safe for displays of "public" affection?

Should dog owners keep their antisocial canines out of the public eye?

As an increasing number of business es open their doors to our four-legged companions, dog owners everywhere should keep in mind that greater freedom means greater responsibility

If your dog likes most people, if he doesn't like other dogs or certain dogs, or if he shows disdain for children, or men, or women, or redheads, or anyone with a beard or carrying an umbrella, then he is not fully socialized. Friendly and outgoing with everyone — that is the goal and the result of proper social-

Lack of socialization can result in a shy dog. Poor breeding, kenneling a dog too long and lack of individual attention are also factors that can create a shy pup. Shyness tends to manifest as fearfulness or timidity. Left unchecked, these qualities can fester and lead to fear-based aggression. At that point, you have a real problem on your hands

Don't let it get to that point.

Socializing a dog takes time, energy and a little bit of creativity. It doesn't happen overnight, but the process is a lot of fun if you approach it with the right attitude.

Think of it as a journey of exposure. The objective is to expose your dog to as many people, animals, sights, sounds and environments as possible, in a positive and non-threatening manner. It means walking your dog in your neighborhood, and walking him beyond your neighborhood. It means strolling along quiet roads one day and hitting the hustle and bustle of a busy street the next. It means introducing him to family and friends at home, and sitting and watching strangers pass without incident out in the world.

Socializing your dog also requires that you know the difference between a good situation and a bad, and that you know how to protect him and when to let him be. Socialization necessitates and builds trust. While it is a necessary step that ideally would be taken early on in a pup's life, it is also an ongoing adventure that you can enjoy with your dog for the duration of your life together in the Pampa area. That's already more than half of the total reported in all of March, when, according to the NWS, Pampa received 0.26 inches of rain.

That number is well below the yearly average for the area. According to Darrell Sehorn, who serves as the official local observer for the NWS, the average March rainfall in Pampa is 0.81 inches, meaning that last month, the city received over half an inch of rain less than it normally does. For more contrast, consider the data for Amarillo's Rick Husband International Airport; there, the average rainfall in March is 1.13 inches.

With Pampa's April rainfall average at 1.31 inches, April is looking to be even drier.

"It's certainly one of our driest periods," said Darrell Sehorn, who serves as the official local observer for the NWS. "We've been running way below normal. The last appreciable rain (about two inches) was at the end of October.

Pampa has seen a few big snow days since then, but the spring has been especially unforgiving, and the figures throughout Texas aren't great, either. March 2011 was the driest on record for the state, over a period of 117 years of record-keeping. Experts with the National strong presence of La Nina in the eastern Pacific, which often causes a dry period in the southwest. As of the most recent U.S. Drought Drought Monitor, released by the NOAA on April 19, the whole state of Texas is in drought for the first time since the NOAA monitoring began. NOAA experts said during a drought webinar on Monday that, considering the state as a whole, drought has not been this significant for approximately 45 years.

The lack of precipitation has not been lost on Austin. Gov. Rick Perry proclaimed last week that last Friday through the Easter weekend would be "Days of Prayer for Rain" and implored Texans statewide to pray for an end to the ongoing dry spell. The drought has been particularly unhelpful to Texas firefighters, who are currently battling the wildfires blazing through more than a million acres across Texas. Currently, 213 of the 254 Texas counties are reporting burn bans, including Gray and all surrounding coun-

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday. April 28, 2011:

This year, you express an usually creative bent. Others respond to your many ideas, especially within groups and meetings. Your strength lies in that realm rather than in one-on-one talks. You will succeed, mainly because of your determination and strength. If you are single, you could meet someone through your friends or on the way to a group event. If you are attached, work together on manifesting a key goal. You will bond much more close-

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ Step back. Use today to evaluate and consider what you have missed, as well as what is your next step. Some Rams simply don't care and want to take a day off, playing it low-key. Realize what is behind the scenes and what needs to change.

Tonight: Get some extra R and R. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 You might want to review a key project as you get closer to completion. Have you forgotten something? Is there a detail you have missed? Still, keep the next few days light and easy as you seek answers. Know what you want. Tonight: Hook up with friends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Consider your options more carefully. If you are in a leadership position, you might want to review recent decisions and actions. A creative, dynamic idea can be acted on, but not today. Tonight: In charge, but seemingly without enough clout.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Understand that if a detail is missing, there might be something you bypassed. Think long term and let go of filters in your thinking. Though you might not be able to change or see this block right now, you will. Detach rather than trigger. Tonight: Think positively.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 You might have difficulty getting the response or awareness you desire, You might try many different ways to get the desired response and still not achieve it. Don't worry; tomorrow is another day. Back off and give it a rest. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Defer to others. Don't be surprised if you have to repeat a process or discussion that seems to punctuate your day. Others will understand, but they won't be able to absorb the information as you desire. Tonight: Sort through suggestions. Plan your weekend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 You might want to focus on the desired results. You might need to pace yourself and perhaps do some rote work. Though you might have a lot of innate creativity, test an idea, not only now, but for a few days. Tonight: Choose a stress-

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* Your creativity flourishes. You might opt to take part of the day off to do something or to pursue a favorite hobby. Others don't seem to be as receptive as you would like. Tonight: Go with your imagination.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 You might choose to take a stronger course of action than in the past. The problem lies in the fact that your timing is off. Wait a couple of days or until after the weekend. Right now, you might be feeling more vulnerable than need be. Tonight: Mosey on home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Consider today a day off from any significant conversations or decisions. Even if you discover otherwise, you are likely to have to redo the talk or action again. Choose to occupy yourself with light and easy discussions. Tonight: Hanging out is fun.

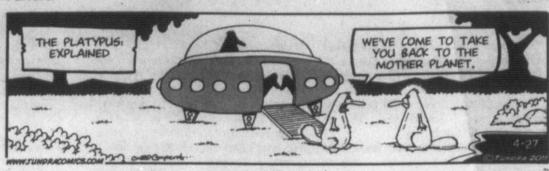

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 Your sense of direction and wellbeing permit many more choices. Though you are aching to have an important talk or have that key discussion, do postpone it for another day. Study a financial offer and do research, but test your conclusions tomorrow. Tonight: Your treat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Honor your feelings and don't get yourself in a position of feeling pushed. You might want to under what is going on within a key relationshi in order to feel good. The other party ap pears to be vexed. Tonight: Start thinking

ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

Pampa High School junior Logan Reagan spends a lot of time practicing the sport he loves: Golf.

"I usually practice from eighth period (2:48-3:37) until the sun goes down, Reagan said.

Reagan's hard work paid off as the junior finished in the Top 25 at regionals April 20-21.

Reagan made his first appearance at regionals and finished 21st. The junior enjoyed the two day tournament.

"It was fun getting to compete," Reagan said. "The course wasn't in good condition. I enjoyed getting to matchup with the best in the area.

In his third season, Reagan led his team in every tournament. The junior won the Pampa Invitational and finished fourth in the district to earn a regional spot. Reagan said this was his best year.

"I won my first tournament and it was here in Pampa, making it bigger," Reagan said. "District went good."

Reagan has played for the Harvesters since his freshman year and added he enjoys the competitiveness of the game.

"It's very competitive," Reagan said. "I like working out and getting better at the game. I like the integrity of the game."
