Martindale to play at benefit barn dance

ARNIE AURELLANO
 editor@thepampanews.com
 What's better than a good old fashioned barn dance? How about a good old fashioned barn dance to benefit local kids?
 The Pampa Education Foundation is hosting a barn dance tonight from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Terry barn, the first barn on the left past the Little Red Schoolhouse, five miles north of Pampa on Highway 70.

 Tickets to the dance are $25 per person, with proceeds going to benefit the Pampa Education Foundation's various contributions to Pampa classrooms — everything from microscopes to TI calculators to computers to lighting for the drama department to teacher training.
 "We've been in existence for four years," said ex officio PEF member Dana Terry, "and we do teacher grants. We have a committee that we take requests from teachers for unbudgeted items, anything that can help the teachers teach those kids."

 "I just think it's just a great thing," Terry added. "Being a former Pampa graduate, it's something I can throw myself into."
 Music for the dance will be provided by Pampa native

Matt Martindale and his band. Martindale, who now lives in Amarillo, said that he was looking forward to returning to his hometown and pitching in to help.
 "I'm excited to do anything that I can for Pampa," he said. "Anything that I can for the Education Foundation and any kind of fundraiser I can do to help Pampa in any way, shape or DANCE cont. on page 5

With spike in burglaries, PD urges caution

 mbryant@thepampanews.com
 As Pampa continues to see a spike in home and car burglaries, the Pampa Police Department recommends people remain vigilant in securing their property.
 During May through August, there were about 100 burglaries, up from about 50 in the previous four month period. The majority of the recent break-ins occurred after people failed to lock their doors or windows.
 "It's still important for people to lock up their property," said Stormy McCullar, Pampa Police Department's Crime Prevention Officer.
 A cluster of car break-ins last Saturday was a reminder for people to secure not just their homes, but their vehicles as well.
 "People are going through and checking cars," said McCullar. "If they're unlocked, they get into them, and if they aren't, they go to the next one."
 While checking locks is a great precaution to take, keeping an eye on your surroundings is equally important.
 "I encourage people to go into Neighborhood Watch programs. We need neighborhoods to get involved," said McCullar. "It's up CRIMES cont. on page 5

Pride of Pampa heads to UIL competition Saturday

ANDREW GLOVER
 aglover@thepampanews.com
 The Pride of Pampa marching band will see how they measure up to the other Panhandle area bands when it attends the UIL Marching Band Competition on Saturday at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.
 The band performs at 5:45 p.m. Band director Joe Barrow said the band is competing for a top rating, which will go towards the UIL Sweepstakes Award.
 "We are given a rating based on the quality of our performance," Barrow said. "A rating of one or first division is the best. It goes down from there."
 To earn a sweepstakes award, a school must get a first division rating in marching band, sight reading and concert performance. Barrow said Pampa is not competing against other bands, but the standard of the rating.

"All the bands that go could get a first division or none of the bands can get a first division," Barrow said. "We are competing to be graded on your performance."
 Pampa will find out its result after all 3A bands have performed. Barrow said he feels confident about where his band stands.
 "The band is rehearsing really well," Barrow said. "We are improving every performance. We've held additional rehearsals in the evenings and after school. The kids are working really hard and the morale is up."

I'm confident that we are prepared and will do really well."

Barrow said this year's theme is a survey of rock music.

"We start out the show doing an old Guns 'N' Roses song "Sweet Child O' Mine", Barrow said. "Then we do an Ozzy Osborne tune called "Paranoid." We switch gears and play a newer song called "All I Do Is Win"...We end the show with "Seven Nation Army," which is a rock standard now that was made popular by the White Stripes in the late 90s. It's kind of a rock show that catches the whole spectrum of the last 20 or 30 years."

Barrow said he is proud of how hard his students have worked.

"We are working to have our very best performance," Barrow said. "We feel that if things go the way they are supposed to, we should be very happy with the result."

Tea Party pushes immigration bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Tea party supporters in Texas are calling on Gov. Rick Perry to revive efforts to crack down on illegal immigration by giving police broader powers to ask people they detain about their citizenship.

Perry made the issue an emergency item, seemingly fast-tracking it toward passage, during the Texas legislative session this year.

The House passed a version during the regular session, and the Senate passed one in the special session that followed. Democratic opposition kept those from becoming law.

Tea party activists on Thursday urged Perry to call another special session or sign an executive order.

Perry and supporters say it will help police fight crime committed by illegal immigrants. But opponents, including law enforcement chiefs in Texas' largest cities, say it will allow rogue officers to target Hispanics.

Skull could be prehistoric

GEORGETOWN (AP) - A skull found at the edge of Lake Georgetown has drawn the attention of anthropologists at Texas State University over its age.

Assistant professor Kate Spradley says the skull, apparently of a Native American man, could be from hundreds to thousands of years old. Spradley said Wednesday that the skull is likely prehistoric because of certain features, including three molars that are worn down, possibly due to a gritty diet.

The Texas drought has led to lower lake levels.

The Austin American-Statesman reports some people who were fishing discovered the skull Monday near Russell Park. Spradley says the skull is well preserved and she thinks it was embedded in the bank of the lake.

TSU experts were contacted as police sought to rule out foul play.

Guards lose jobs at Kingsville

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) - More than 50 private security guards at Naval Air Station Kingsville in South Texas will be losing their jobs due to a new federal rule.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times reports the jobs are ending as part of a rule change requiring security personnel at all Defense Department facilities to be federal employees.

The rule change went into effect on Oct. 1, the start of the federal fiscal year.

Naval Air Station Kingsville spokesman Jon Gagne says Securiguard Inc.'s contract won't be renewed when it expires Nov. 30.

Virginia-based Securiguard referred questions about the layoffs to the naval air station.

Gagne says qualified Securiguard employees were invited to apply for new civilian federal security jobs, although those jobs will be fewer than the ones being lost.

FEMA trailers for fire victims

BASTROP (AP) - The government has started providing trailers to families needing housing after their homes burned during Central Texas wildfires.

The first temporary housing units arrived this week in Bastrop County, courtesy of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

FEMA spokesman Ray Perez said Wednesday that the trailers will be available for up to 18 months.

More than 1,500 homes were destroyed during wildfires that began Labor Day weekend in the Bastrop area, about 30 miles east of Austin.

Eligible residents need to apply to be considered for FEMA housing assistance. Two- and three-bedroom trailers are available.

Objections to Confederate plate

AUSTIN (AP) - More than 22,000 people have signed petitions against a proposed Confederate flag license plate for Texas.

The Austin American-Statesman reports the petitions were offered Wednesday in Austin.

The governing board of the Texas Department of Motor Vehicles could decide on the plate in November. Board members had no comment Wednesday.

The specialty plate has been proposed by the Sons of Confederate Veterans, which is an ancestral history group. Supporters have also raised free speech issues.

Critics include Gary Bledsoe with the NAACP, who says the Confederate flag is as offensive as a swastika and creates fear and intimidation. Another official with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Yannis Banks, says the flag represents slavery and hate.

Ex-official nailed on embezzling

EL PASO (AP) — A former intelligence analyst for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement pleaded guilty Thursday to embezzling federal funds by presenting bogus travel reports and using his diplomatic passport for personal trips.

Ahmed Adil Abdallat agreed to the plea in exchange for prosecutors dismissing six of the eight charges of misusing his diplomatic passport he faced.

Abdallat had received $116,392.34 as reimbursement for 13 trips to the Washington D.C. area made between February 2009 and September 2010. He got part of that money by presenting fraudulent receipts for lodging, parking and car rental.

The investigation showed there were no charges to his government issued credit card for lodging and other expenses Abdallat reported, prosecutor Gregg McDonald told Magistrate Judge Richard Mesa during the plea hearing.

Select the proper wood for shelving

Dear Pat: My kids have a lot of magazines and just plain old stuff laying around on the floors. I want to build some shelves/bookcases myself. What is the best wood for the shelves? And give me some building tips. — Grace F.

Dear Grace: Stacks of books and magazines seem to breed and grow taller on their own. You should be able to build some functional, yet attractive, wooden shelves in just several hours. With just a little extra trim and another hour or so of work, they can be attractive enough for your living room.

Selecting the proper type of wood for the shelves can make a significant improvement in how they look and function and in their cost. No. 2 pine boards are commonly used and are relatively inexpensive, at just a bit over one dollar per board foot.

These pine boards are easy to saw and assemble, take paint well and have a rustic appearance with the rough knots. The quality can vary, so inspect each piece carefully to make sure it is straight and flat. You may have to fill some of the knots with wood filler. It is not a good wood if you want to stain it with a natural finish.

Clear pine has all the benefits of No. 2 pine board, and it does not have knots or other flaws. Its drawbacks are it is about three times more expensive and stains very poorly. Either leave it the natural color and finish it with clear urethane or paint it.

Birch, oak and maple boards are very attractive, but even more expensive than clear pine. These attractive woods are usually finished naturally, but maple and birch will take paint well. Oak is more difficult to paint smoothly. Since these are fairly hard woods, they are more difficult to cut, sand and nail or screw together.

HOME HOW-TO

Birch plywood is a reasonably priced option. It is attractive, smooth, flat and strong. It cuts and nails easily, and you can finish it with paint or a clear natural finish. It does not stain well, and you must cut the shelves from a 4-foot by 8-foot sheet. For a professional appearance, the exposed cut edges will have to be covered with a veneer.

Oak plywood is slightly more expensive than birch, but it takes a stain better. Fir plywood is inexpensive and is easy to work with. The smoother grades (code AB) will also accept paint well. As with any plywood, the cut edges should be covered. Particle board is the least expensive material, but avoid the temptation to buy it. It is weaker and not easy to cut or nail.

When planning your shelf/bookcase project, first determine what items you want to store on the shelves. This will help you determine if any shelves will require extra support for heavy items and the depth of the shelves.

As a rule of thumb, the following are some standard shelf depths for common items:

- Compact discs — 6 inches
- Paperback books — 9 inches
- Average books — 11 inches
- Magazines — 11 inches
- Display books — 13 inches
- Record albums — 13 inches
- Stereo equipment — 17 inches

Three feet is a good stable height for most shelving. If you make it much higher than this, it can become unstable and tip over, especially when young children decide to use it for mountain climbing. Attach it securely to the wall.

Send your questions to Here's How, 6906 Royalgreen Dr., Cincinnati, OH 45244 or visit www.dulley.com.

HOME HOW-TO

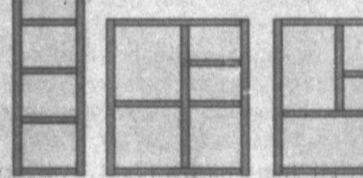

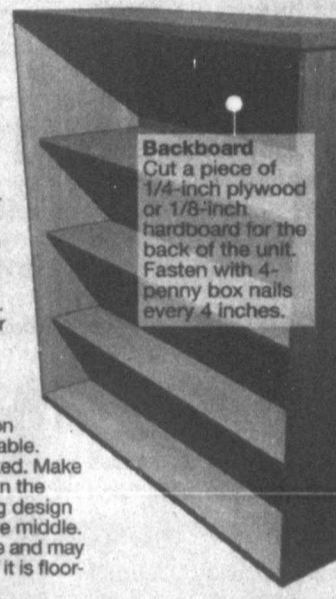

Shelving

There are several methods of building shelving units to maximize your storage abilities. Setting up shelving is not complicated, but it does require some knowledge and planning.

Material
Before you purchase material for the shelving unit, you'll need to know the dimensions of the unit. This will help you decide the quantity of materials and components to be used.

Construction
Use wood that's strong, durable and not too expensive. One-inch-thick lumber can span greater distances than soft woods or plywoods without intermediate support. Before selecting, measure the actual board dimensions. Lumber is labeled using the "nominal size" method. The size designates approximate, rather than actual, size.

Design
Cabinets can be made in a variety of different shapes and sizes depending on what they will hold and the space available. A wall-hung cabinet must be securely fixed. Make a scale drawing to consider variations in the proportion of the cabinet design. A long design may need extra support in the middle. A tall design may not be stable and may need fixing to the wall, even if it is floor-standing.

Half of job fund recipients gave to Perry

AUSTIN (AP) - Nearly half of the companies receiving grants from the governor's Texas Enterprise Fund also gave money to Gov. Rick Perry's re-election campaigns or the Republican Governor's Association, according to a report released Thursday by a watchdog group.

Texans for Public Justice analyzed state records, campaign finance reports and non-profit filings. The group found that 43 out of the 90 companies receiving state money gave almost $7 million to the Republican Governor's Association while Perry was a leader there, or made donations directly to his campaign fund.

"Companies sometimes made corporate contributions directly to the RGA, while company PACs, owners or executives gave to both the RGA and to Perry's campaign, which cannot accept corporate funds," the report said. "These contributions included $1,652,159 to Perry's gubernatorial campaigns and $5,331,701 to the RGA."

Perry has repeatedly said all of the grants provided by the Texas Enterprise Fund were based on merit, completely transparent and subject to oversight.

Critics, though, have called Perry's use of the fund to attract businesses to Texas crony capitalism. Both conservative and liberal lawmakers have tried to move the fund out of the governor's office, but without success.

In all, the fund has given out almost $440 million in

Today in History

Today is Friday, Oct. 14, the 287th day of 2011. There are 78 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 14, 1960, Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy suggested the idea of a Peace Corps while addressing an audience of students at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

On this date:

In 1066, Normans under William the Conqueror defeated the English at the Battle of Hastings.

In 1586, Mary, Queen of Scots, went on trial in England, accused of committing treason against Queen Elizabeth I. (Mary was beheaded in February 1587.)

In 1890, Dwight D. Eisenhower, 34th president of the United States, was born in Denison, Texas.

In 1912, Theodore Roosevelt, campaigning for the presidency, was shot in the chest in Milwaukee. Despite the wound, he went ahead with a scheduled speech.

In 1939, a German U-boat torpedoed and sank the HMS Royal Oak, a British battleship anchored at Scapa Flow in Scotland's Orkney Islands; 833 of the more than 1,200 men aboard were killed.

In 1944, German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel committed suicide rather than face execution for allegedly conspiring against Adolf Hitler.

In 1947, Air Force test pilot Charles E. ("Chuck") Yeager broke the sound barrier as he flew the experimental Bell XS-1 (later X-1) rocket plane over Muroc Dry Lake in California.

In 1961, the Frank Loesser musical "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," starring Robert Morse as J. Pierrepont Finch, opened on Broadway.

In 1977, singer Bing Crosby died outside Madrid, Spain, at age 74.

In 1987, a 58-hour drama began in Midland, Texas, as 18-month-old Jessica McClure slid 22 feet down an abandoned well at a private day care center; she was rescued on Oct. 16.

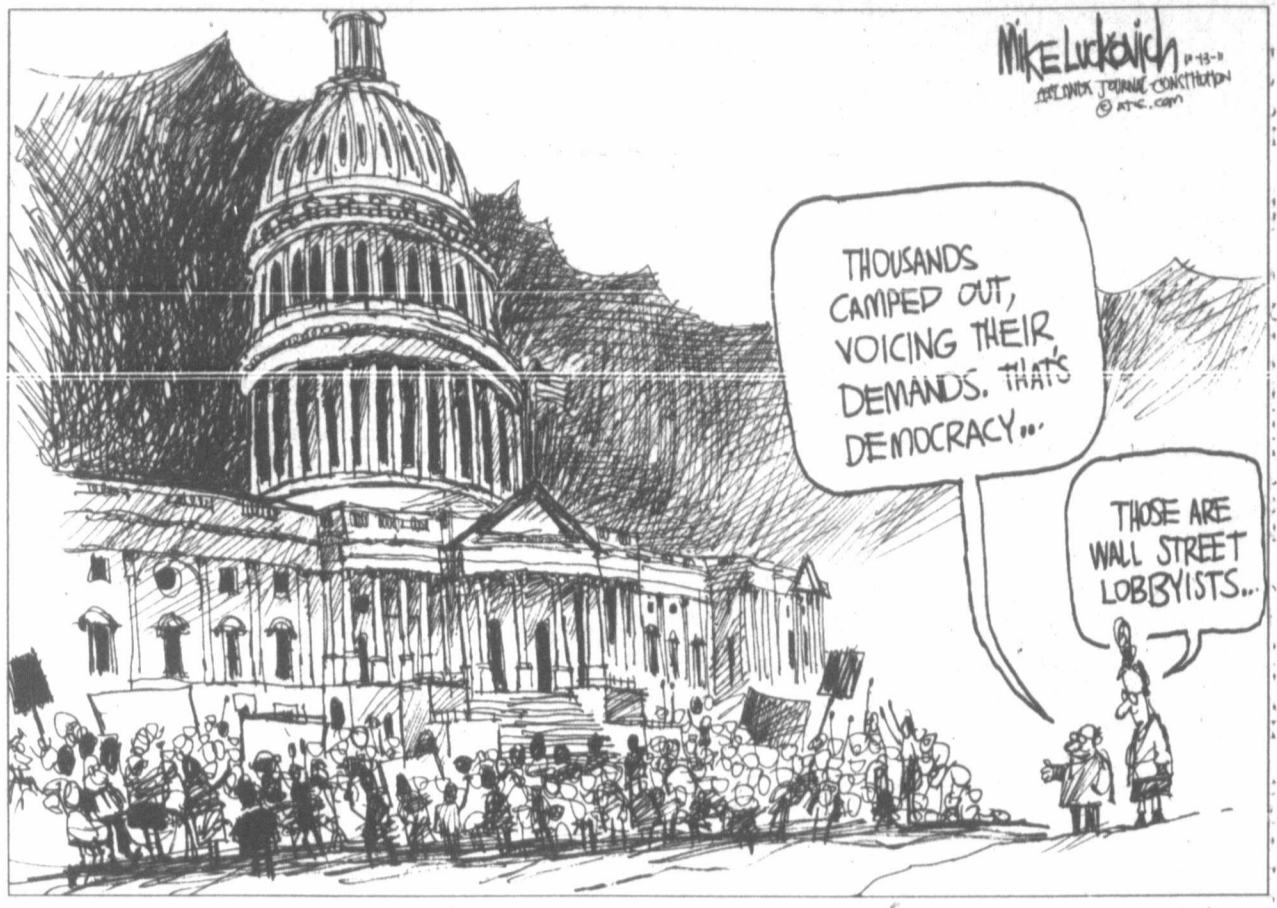

Ten years ago: As U.S. jets opened a second week of raids in Afghanistan, President George W. Bush sternly rejected a Taliban offer to discuss handing over Osama bin Laden to a third country, saying, "They must have not heard. There's no negotiations."

Five years ago: The U.N. Security Council voted unanimously to impose punishing sanctions on North Korea for carrying out a nuclear test.

One year ago: Chile's 33 rescued miners posed with President Sebastian Pinera and were examined by doctors a day after they were freed from their underground prison.

Playing Washington's inside game

And then there were 12. When the 435 House members and 100 senators failed in July to agree on a long-term deficit reduction plan, congressional leaders did what they often do when they don't know what to do: They appointed a committee. But don't sneer, for this is -- cue the trumpets -- a supercommittee!

Made up of only a dozen lawmakers and perfectly balanced between Repubs and Dems, this panel is to find about $1.5 trillion in spending cuts and new revenues to shrink the federal deficit. They are to come to an agreement by Thanksgiving -- how's that for a symbolic deadline? The theory is that the group will be small enough to work together across partisan lines for the good of the country, independent of the competing budgetary needs of various groups and the demands of special interests.

The problem with theories, however, is that reality has a way of intruding on their perfection. In this case, the intrusion is literal. The 12 solons will not be sitting at the table alone, for such names as AT&T, BlueCross/BlueShield, Citigroup and GE have been escorted inside by the members. They'll not go in physically -- but monetarily. For they are among the top donors of campaign cash to the 12 budgeteers, giving them an advantage over us plain citizens.

For example, Wall Streeters have invested $17 million in the campaigns of the supercommittee's six Republicans and $15 million in the six Democrats. That pile of political money will be a screaming presence in the negotiating room, for members will be thinking about their need to get more of it for the next election and will not want to offend donors.

By the way, one of the first decisions reached by the committee members was that they would allow themselves to continue collecting campaign donations while they decide whose programs and subsidies get cut -- and whose don't. How do you think that'll work out? Turkeys are not the only endangered species this Thanksgiving!

This is one congressional committee that's likely to affect your life, for it's going to decide such things as whether to whack your Social Security benefits or cut back on Big Oil's $4-billion-a-year taxpayer subsidy. You might have an opinion about which choice the supercommittee members should make, but can you reach any of the members personally and get a chance to bend their ear? No? Too bad, because Big Oil can. And it is.

So are insurance giants, Wall Street bankers, military contractors and other corporate powers -- not only because of their big-dollar campaign donations, but also because they have some very special lobbyists who're on a first-name basis with the members. You see, these lobbyists used to work for the 12 lawmakers on the supercommittee. In all, 109 former congressional staffers have now been hired by various corporate interests to lobby their old bosses.

General Electric, for example, has eight lobbyists on board who previously were on the staffs of supercommittee members. They include the head of GE's Washington lobbying brigade, who had been the chief of staff for Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont. Indeed, Baucus' Senate office seems to have been a training ground for influence-peddlers -- 26 of his former aides are now lobbying him and the other 11 deficit whackers to protect the subsidies that oil, insurance and other corporations receive from us taxpayers.

As one congressional watchdog dryly notes, "It's not like (the 12 members) are in an idealized, platonic debating society."

Indeed not. Once again, the game is rigged for those with the money and connections to play inside. Of course, the hired guns deny any insider advantage. The former chief of staff to supercommittee member Dave Camp, R-Mich., for example, is hustling Big Pharma's agenda, but he says flatly, "I make my case just like anyone else."

Oh, sure -- anyone else who has a top staffer-turned-lobbyist working the system for them, which leaves out roughly 99 percent of us! And they wonder why Congress and corporate lobbyists rank below E. coli bacteria in public approval ratings.

Prosecutor misdeeds may have let murderer kill again

AUSTIN (AP) — Caitlin Baker was 3 when her mother, Debra, was beaten to death and left naked in bed in her Austin home. Although the pain of the loss has faded in the 23 years since, her anger that her mother's killer was never caught has not.

Now, new DNA testing and the release of case files from an earlier slaying suggest that a prosecutor, who is now a judge, may have withheld evidence that could have implicated the man suspected of killing her mother — before she was killed.

"I was young when my mom died, so it's not as painful," said Baker. "It's just not knowing that really bothers me."

Last week, former grocery store inventory manager Michael Morton was freed after serving nearly 25 years of a life sentence on a wrongful conviction for killing his wife, Christine, in August 1986. Just like Baker, she was found beaten to death in her bed. New DNA testing on evidence collected after both killings linked them to a man with a long arrest record in several states. Authorities are trying to find the suspect, who they haven't publicly identified, and they haven't said whether he's suspected in any other killings.

Morton told investigators that his wife and 3-year-old son were fine when he left for work on the August 1986 day she was killed, and he has maintained throughout his ordeal that she must have been slain by an intruder. The evidence now suggests that 17 months later, his wife's attacker forced his way into Baker's nearby home and killed her.

Authorities discovered the DNA connection in the two cases after Morton's Houston-based attorney, John Raley, teamed up with the New York-based Innocence Project and spent years battling for additional testing of a bloody bandanna found near the Morton home. But they now also allege that Morton may never have been convicted if the former prosecutor who tried the case, Ken Anderson, hadn't concealed key evidence from the defense — potentially leaving the true killer free to strike again.

Among the evidence Morton's lawyers say Anderson concealed from the defense was a statement that Christine Morton's mother gave to the lead investigator, police Sgt. Don Wood. She told Wood that her grandson said he watched his mother get killed and that her attacker was a "monster," not his father, as police suspected. She implored Wood to try to find this monster.

They say Anderson also didn't tell Morton's defense lawyers that Christine Morton's credit card was used in San Antonio two days after her death and that a forged check in her name was cashed several days later. Michael Morton testified during his trial that his wife's purse had been taken from the home.

Anderson, who was appointed to the bench in 2002 by Gov. Rick Perry, did not respond to several requests made through his court administrator to discuss the Morton case and address the allegations. Wood has retired and could not be located for comment.

Morton's attorneys have detailed their accusations in filings before District Judge Sid Harle. They could lead to the state bar taking disciplinary action against Anderson, or Harle himself possibly urging state and federal prosecutors to investigate, said Barry Scheck, co-founder of the Innocence Project, which specializes in using DNA to secure exonerations.

"I think everybody can see how offensive this conduct is, if true," Scheck said. "I am profoundly troubled by this. Profoundly troubled, and determined to get answers."

Caitlin Baker called the allegations "unthinkable." "I would certainly hope that if it's true, there's some sort of consequence. But I don't think that would happen," she said. "I don't have a lot of faith in the Williamson County justice system. They couldn't do it 25 years ago. Why would they do it now?"

John Bradley, the current district attorney for Williamson County, said the Innocence Project's charges "are just allegations. No one has offered any proof."

Morton has declined to be interviewed until a Wednesday appeals court ruling overturning the charges against him officially takes effect next month. Prosecutors, when agreeing to the terms of Morton's release, promised to use that time to investigate allegations of police and prosecutorial misconduct.

Bradley filed a motion Thursday to waive the waiting period, which would allow Morton quicker access to about $2 million in compensation he's entitled to from the state. But he withdrew the motion hours later, calling it a misunderstanding, after Morton's lawyers rejected it and alleged that it was an attempt to sweep the misconduct investigation under the rug.

"Mr. Morton is entitled, at a minimum, to hold the state to its promise to let him make a limited inquiry as to how and why he was wrongfully convicted in the first place," Raley wrote.

Morton's lawyers had sought DNA testing on the bandanna since 2006. They finally won it on appeal, and received the results this summer. The bandanna wasn't submitted as evidence during Morton's trial and hadn't been tested for DNA because the necessary technology wasn't available in 1986. Bradley later fought their request, arguing that the bandanna wasn't relevant to the case.

"Let's face it, I was wrong," he said.

Bradley, who was not involved in prosecuting Morton's original case, also opposed a 2008 Public Records Act request by the Innocence Project, through which it was eventually able to obtain the police records that it says show Anderson concealed information to ensure Morton's conviction. Bradley argued unsuccessfully that releasing the documents could hinder ongoing investigations.

Morton's lawyers say the evidence that would have cast doubt on his guilt, including his mother-in-law's statements to police, didn't come up at his trial because Anderson didn't call Wood to testify, and at the time, police investigator files could only be brought up in court if the prosecution put the investigator on the stand.

Unable to question Wood or see his records, the defense asked presiding trial Judge William Lott to review all case materials. The Innocence Project contends that Anderson told Lott he'd confer with Wood to ensure the court got all of the investigation records — but that Lott only received a fraction of them and never knew about the allegations by the couple's son or the use of the victim's credit card and check.

After reviewing the records he did receive, Lott determined that they weren't relevant to the trial.

With Morton free and cleared of all charges, police have now told Baker they've reopened her mother's case — but she's not getting her hopes up.

"It hasn't changed anything yet," Baker said. "Unless something actually happens I can't think about it."

Alleged high-ranking cartel figure nabbed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican army said Thursday it captured a top drug cartel lieutenant who allegedly ordered an arson attack at a casino in northern Mexico that killed 52 people.

News of the capture of Carlos Oliva Castillo, alias "The Frog," a reputed leader of the extremely violent Zetas cartel, may have been the cause of a bloody fight between gang members at a prison outside Monterrey, the city in which the arson occurred in August. Seven inmates died.

Oliva Castillo's capture Wednesday by soldiers in the northern city of Saltillo unleashed violence almost immediately, as his associates tried to spring him from custody, said a Defense Department spokesman, Col. Ricardo Trevilla.

Zetas gunmen opened fire on security forces in an attempt to distract soldiers and rescue Castillo, a sign of his importance to the criminal organization, Trevilla said.

The firing went on for several hours and caused panic in the city. Drug cartel gunmen in Mexico rarely attack authorities in a bid to free arrested leaders.

Rival gangs of prison inmates began fighting early Thursday, said Jorge Domene, security spokesman for Nuevo Leon state. Four prisoners were burned to death and three others were stabbed to death with homemade knives, Domene said.

Soldiers had to be called in to restore order in the prison, which is in the Monterrey suburb of Cadereyta.

Domene said the fight may have been a reaction to Oliva Castillo's detention, but the cause was still under investigation. The death or capture of top drug cartel operators often unleashes a wave of violence as rivals seek to fill the leadership vacuum.

Oliva Castillo allegedly led the Zetas gang on its home turf, in the northern Gulf coast state of Tamaulipas, as well as in the important northern battleground states of Coahuila.

Martindale added that he supports the PEF's cause of helping support the education of Pampa's youth.

"To me, kids are the most important thing that there is. It doesn't get more important than that and the education of the children, and I think that it all starts right there... The more gifts and the more things that we can provide for them, it makes a world of difference. Any way that I can help is very menial compared to the things that everyone else does."

to the community. They know their area and who comes and goes out of the houses. When you see someone out of the ordinary going into a house, give us a call."

Above all, though, make sure your home is well secured.

"Lock up your property, cars, houses and windows. If you're able to add secondary locks, that's great. With windows, it can be as simple as adding dowel rods to the windows. Get creative with securing your house," said McCullar.

Officer McCullar also continues to offer free home security surveys to anyone interested in learning how to keep their home more secure. And while she recommends Pampans to take every precaution they can, she doesn't expect this bump in crime to last forever.

"I predict (the burglaries) will level off after winter comes and things get colder. Criminals don't like to get out in the cold," she said.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Oct. 14, 2011:

This year you will end a sometimes-difficult transit that started a year ago. You actually are in the process of beginning a new life cycle. Make it OK to let go of what isn't working in your life. Sometimes you are overly serious and push others away. Is that what you really want? If you are single, you relate well to individuals but not necessarily in groups. Knowing that characteristic, opt for one-on-one relating on first dates, if possible. Don't dive into a relationship too quickly. If you are attached, the two of you need to be careful with your word choices and remain sensitive to each other. TAURUS wants to be close to you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You might be a tad self-indulgent, but you have the energy to get whatever you need done. In essence, you can live on both sides of the fence for today. A serious conversation illuminates an issue, allowing for greater trust and inspiring you. Tonight: Your treat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ The Bull demonstrates its vigor and kindness. A serious conversation weighs heavily on your mind. Let go of the matter. You will find the correct response with detachment. Let a boss or older friend give you some important feedback. Tonight: Easy works.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★ Don't be overly serious with a child or loved one. Loosen up and let this person take more responsibility. Be careful with what you share; not everyone can understand your thinking. Tonight: Let your imagination lead.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★★ Your jovial mood just might be contagious. Whether answering the phone or in a meeting, others hear you loud and clear. A partner might put you on a pedestal, or vice versa. Be careful, as being on a pedestal can only lead to falling down. Tonight: Where the action is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Be willing to take a stand for what you believe. Others also might seem very assertive. Express yourself in the most positive way possible. Understanding evolves because someone finally wants mutuality. Tonight: In the limelight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★★ Keep reaching out for more information. Consider alternatives that allow you to break out of patterns, at least concerning plans. The more adventurous some you become, the more fun that can be had. Let your imagination rock and roll. Tonight: Be open to someone very different.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Remain direct, and understand where others are coming from. You could take a comment rather personally. The smart move is to look the other way. You will be much happier as a result. This person might just be in a sour mood. Tonight: Dinner for two.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Listen to your intuition rather than mentally respond to a friend's or associate's gesture. Know that more offers could be coming in. Be careful with funds, expenditures and/or a matter on the home front. Tonight: Out with friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You might want to think before you commit to any more work. Others want your help, but you might not be ready to deal with the problem. Say "no" more often, and prevent a sense of feeling overwhelmed. Tonight: Choose something relaxing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Investigate what is ailing an associate or co-worker. You need to be more assertive with a friend or loved one. You might think you have a situation locked up. A detail could have been left out, causing a problem. Tonight: Fun and games.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★ Your instinct to head home might be right-on. Know when you have had enough and understand what you need to do. Evaluate the importance of a long-distance relationship or partnership. At times you find this person touchy. Tonight: Consider entertaining at home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★★ Keep talks flowing, though you could be saturated by another person's attitude or negativity. Listen to your inner voice. It might be there to inspire you. Let it point in the right direction. Keep an idea flowing. Tonight: With a favorite person.

Bastrop gets $850,000 grant to help wildfire cleanup

BASTROP (AP) - The Dallas-based Meadows Foundation announced Thursday it's donating $850,000 to help the Bastrop County area recover from wildfires that burned 50 square miles last month, including most of the popular Bastrop State Park.

Wildfires that began Labor Day weekend in the area about 30 miles east of Austin destroyed at least 1,500 homes and left two people dead. Fed by gusty winds, temperatures well into the 100s and no significant rain for much of the year, the wall of flames overwhelmed initial firefighting efforts and swept into the park which annually draws about 160,000 people. The 5,900-acre park's signature "Lost Pines" were destroyed but 13 cabins, built during the 1930s by the Civilian Conservation Corps, were saved.

"This gift, which will be divided among six governmental and nonprofit agencies, is a wonderful example of private philanthropy taking the lead in helping Texas recover from this catastrophe," Texas

Parks and Wildlife Executive Director Carter Smith said. "Considering the fiscal constraints facing state government, and the large and unexpected expenses associated with the wildfire, this grant from the Meadows Foundation is particularly welcome and tremendously appreciated."

The Texas Forest Service will receive $500,000 to pass along to volunteer fire departments.

"In Texas, local fire departments are the first line of defense against wildfires," Forest Service Director Tom Boggus said. "Many operate on little to no money with aging, battle-worn equipment. And they are made up primarily of volunteers, men and women who have other jobs."

Other recipients include the Dallas Chapter of the American Red Cross, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, the Salvation Army, SPCA of Texas and the Austin Humane Society.

The parks department grant money will be used to replace some firefighting equipment lost in the fire, plus two pickup trucks and an all-terrain vehicle that also were destroyed. Other money will go for hazard mitigation and erosion control at the park.

The private foundation was established in 1948 by Dallas oilman Al Meadows and his wife, Virginia, and has distributed $550 million in Texas.

Officials are hoping to reopen the park in December once thousands of burned trees are removed because they present a hazard to visitors.

"We hope to have contractors on board within the next few weeks, which will speed up recovery efforts," Todd McClanahan, the park superintendent, said Thursday.

grants to the 90 companies, which have promised to create 59,157 jobs. The 43 companies that donated to Perry campaigns or the RGA received 76 percent of the funds disbursed. So far, only about 39,000 jobs have been created, according to the latest numbers released by the governor's office.

The RGA has become Perry's largest single donor, providing his re-election campaign with $4 million since 2006, when Perry started raising money for the association. Perry served as the chairman of the RGA in 2008 and 2010-2011.

The Texas Enterprise Fund is administered by the governor's office, but grants must be approved by the governor, lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House. The funds are appropriated by the Legislature.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: When my son "Lyle" told my husband and me that his wife, "Becky," was leaving him and taking their kids where he would not be able to see them, we were shocked. Lyle consulted an attorney, filed for divorce that day, and got a restraining order to keep Becky from running off with the kids.

We begged them to go to counseling. As things progressed, Lyle learned about several of Becky's affairs, her drug use and her chronic lying, and told us every awful, shocking detail. He also made sure our entire family knew about his lying, cheating, conning wife. As talk began to circulate around our family, my husband told Lyle he knew from the beginning that all the things he had been told about Becky were true.

Well, today my son announced to us that he and Becky are back together! We are stunned. Abby, please warn people who are considering divorce to keep their mouths shut, because spreading dirt helps no one and can cause real problems later. Any advice on how to deal with this mess now? — WISH WE WERE NEVER TOLD

DEAR WISH: While I'm not a doctor, I am prescribing a healthy dose of collective amnesia for your family. It's the only way you'll be able to look Becky in the eye. Your son was lining up allies when he trashed her. Whether or not what he said about her was true or exaggerated, no one will regard her — or him — quite the way they did. What a shame.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, "Bernice," hasn't spoken to me since her son and I were married four years ago. We got along well prior to the wedding, but because I didn't let her make major decisions in the wedding she stopped speaking to me. I have done everything I can to mend our relationship — sent her letters of apology, birthday gifts, etc. — still no response.

My husband is in the middle. I have really had it with Bernice and don't want to try to mend fences with her any longer, but my husband is very close to his mom and wants me to keep trying. What can I do? Please help. — DAUGHTER-IN-LAW DILEMMA

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: Your husband isn't in the middle. His mother has been trying to push you out in left field for four years, and he is unwilling to put his foot down and stop her.

If you're smart, you will take the high road and continue with the gifts on special occasions. With luck, she'll continue to ignore them and you won't have to tolerate her. A mother-in-law who carries a grudge and thinks her "suggestions" are ironclad is a bona fide burden. Be glad you don't have to suffer her presence, and keep your fingers crossed.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are the parents of three young boys — ages 11, 8 and 3. My wife often walks around our bedroom and bathroom naked, or topless with lacy underpants. I feel it is inappropriate for her to walk around in this manner and that she should take care to cover up, especially in front of the older boys. What do you think? — BLUSHING IN SAN JOSE, CALIF.

DEAR BLUSHING: Although families have different standards regarding nudity, I think a touch of modesty is the best policy. If your wife enjoys being nude or topless in the confines of your bedroom and bathroom, she should keep the door shut, and ask that the boys knock and ask permission before entering.

BURNING ISSUES

► Chevy has already wrapped up its ninth consecutive manufacturer title, matching its 1983-91 streak.

► Seven Chevy drivers have combined to win 14 of the 30 races to date. Entering the current season, Chevy drivers have won the past six championships.

► Jimmie Johnson is four points behind in the Chase, but it feels like he's 20 ahead. The yearly onslaught appears to be on.

► Brad Keselowski, the Chase newcomer, continues to make the best of each race. He has performed like a veteran.

► In the weekend's most unintentional example of brassiness, Johnson said on radio that he thought Kasey Kahne might have been able to beat him "if the race was 50 or 60 laps longer."

► Johnson ended the longest dry spell, 21 races, of his career. He already has 55 career wins at age 36.

► With consecutive finishes of fourth and second, Kasey Kahne is going out in style at Team Red Bull and raising expectations for next year at Hendrick Motorsports.

► The wild card got Brad Keselowski into the Chase, but he didn't get the bonus points that otherwise would have gone to him for three regular-season victories. The absence of bonus points hurts, but he's fourth in the standings anyway.

► In the past two races, Johnson has earned 44 more points than Tony Stewart.

► It might be instructive to recall that Kevin Harvick, just a point behind Carl Edwards in the Chase, won the Chase Cup at Charlotte back in May.

Johnson

Hamlin

► Who's hot: Jimmie Johnson has finished second and first in consecutive races, and his hopes for a sixth consecutive championship are very much alive. ... Carl Edwards averted disaster to finish fifth and take the points lead.

► Who's not: Jeff Gordon ended up 35th after his Chevy's engine failure brought out the final caution flag and sent the race into overtime. ... Denny Hamlin had his best Chase finish, but it was only 16th.

WHERE WILL VICKERS BE NEXT SEASON?

Dean Vickers has worked his way back to the track after blood clotting issues forced him off in 2010. Now, the 27-year-old driver is faced with the uncertainty of finding another race team as Red Bull Racing is pulling out of NASCAR after this season.

Vickers Dealing With Adversity Again

After 2010 blood clot issue, racing future now the next big issue for Vickers

By Monte Dutton
 NASCAR This Week

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Brian Vickers has surmounted his share of obstacles this season, but more lie ahead. Vickers, who turns 28 on Oct. 24, missed most of the 2010 season with serious medical issues. After competing in only 11 Sprint Cup races, Vickers suffered a blood-clotting problem that required heart surgery. This year he returned to NASCAR's top level with a clean bill of health. It hasn't been easy. Vickers, who has won twice at the Cup level, is ranked 26th in points after a 19th in Kansas Speedway's Hollywood Casino 400. The highlights of his season to date were fifth-place finishes at Dover, Del., in May and Loudon, N.H., in September. Vickers won the championship of what is now the Nationwide Series in 2003, making him, at age 20, the youngest champion ever in one of NASCAR's three national touring series. Sitting out most of 2010 was difficult.

"Dale Earnhardt said one time when he was out of the car that it was like watching his wife cheat on him," Vickers said. "That's pretty much what it felt like sitting on top of that box, I know exactly what he went through. ... It's painful to sit there and try to watch your car."

Now Vickers' future is uncertain for another reason. Red Bull Racing, with whom he has been racing since 2007, may go out of business. Attempts are being made to keep some version of the team going since Red Bull announced it was pulling out of NASCAR earlier this year.

Teammate Kasey Kahne is moving to Hendrick Motorsports in 2012. Vickers is still looking, while all the time hoping his current team remains active.

"The unknown of next year is obviously tough," Vickers said recently, "but it's not even a comparison to what I went through last year. Maybe that's why I'm dealing so well with it."

Edwards fights back to take the standings lead

By Monte Dutton
 NASCAR This Week

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Carl Edwards said he found out his Ford was really bad on the first turn of the first lap of the Hollywood Casino 400.

Edwards started on the front row. During the middle portion of the Kansas Speedway race, he was two laps behind leader — and dominator — Jimmie Johnson.

Somehow, by working with crew chief Bob Osborne and taking advantage of NASCAR free passes, Edwards managed to finish ... fifth. And take sole position of the Sprint Cup points lead.

"We were two laps down ... under green (flag)," Edwards said. "I can't believe we finished fifth."

Miserable for much of the day, Edwards spoke afterward of "what a fun race it was."

"There was certainly a lot of luck involved there," he conceded. "Man, I wanted to win for these home fans at Kansas, but this is like getting a win considering how it looked like it could have been."

You can look it up — This was the eighth race of the season on a 1.5-mile track. There have been eight different winners: Carl Edwards, Matt Kenseth, Kevin Harvick, Brad Keselowski (in the first Kansas race), Kyle Busch, Jeff Gordon, Tony Stewart and now Jimmie Johnson.

"I think it just shows that it is so competitive, and pit strategy is so important, and those calls you make at the end of the race are important," said Edwards. "These races can be won by anyone."

In point of fact — The difference between first and second and points was the difference in fifth and sixth in the race. Edwards passed Kevin Harvick during the race's "green-white-checkered" overtime finish, thus putting himself a point ahead.

He's a kiddier — For those who

LEGENDS AND LORE

Remember 2008

It would be hard to beat the top five finishers in the 2008 Auto Club 500 in terms of persistence to the current Cup season. The top five — in order, Carl Edwards, Jimmie Johnson, Jeff Gordon, Kyle Busch and Matt Kenseth — are all in this year's Chase. Add in seventh-place Tony Stewart, eighth-place Kevin Harvick and 10th-place Ryan Newman, and there were eight finishers in the top 10 of a race run on Feb. 25, 2008, who went on to contend for the championship more than three years later. The winner of that race, Edwards, currently is the points leader.

Martinez brothers to honor Luis' memory vs. Borger

aglover@thepampanews.com

Pampa alumni team brothers James, Luis and Ramon Martinez' ages were so spread apart that they weren't able to play together in high school. When Luis heard that Pampa was forming an alumni team last year he thought it would be the perfect opportunity.

"Luis came to (Ramon) and I and said we should play," James said. "We could play our last high school game together."

On August 14, 2010, for the first time the three brothers took the field together against Borger's alumni. Sadly, it would also be the last.

Luis was killed in a head-on collision on October 11 of that year. He left behind James and Ramon, his wife Lidia and three sons, Ismael, Luis Jr. and Jesus.

Now, James and Ramon look to honor his memory when they take the field against Borger 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

James, who is six years older than Luis, said he is forever grateful for that opportunity.

"It was the last pictures we had together," James said. "We got to see each other every weekend when we had practices."

Ramon, who is four years younger than Luis, said it was something he would never forget.

"It was something we never dreamed of or imagined, coming together as three brothers to play together in a high school game," Ramon said. It was a dream come true to put on our pads together and walk out on the field together as brothers and represent our team and last name all at once."

Luis graduated from Pampa in 1996. That year the Harvesters advanced to the 4A State Semifinals, which is the farthest the program has advanced. Ramon said Luis always played his hardest.

"He never believed in 100 percent," Ramon said. "He said you always go 110 percent. Just go (all out) on every play and represent your last name."

Ramon said Luis picked 88 as his number because of Dallas Cowboys great Michael Irvin.

"(Irvin) was nicknamed 'The Playmaker,' Ramon said. "That's what (Luis) saw himself as."

James said he got Luis into football and let him play with his friends.

"He played with bigger guys and it made him pretty good," James said. "We lived on Magnolia and there was an empty lot at the end of our street. Those were the good days when you can run around all day and still be good the next day."

Ramon said Luis pushed him in high school to be the best player he could.

"When he would see that I was slacking off, not running hard enough, or wasn't getting good at catching the ball, he would always get on me," Ramon said. He told me 'You better get faster and catch the ball.' We always played catch out in the yard. He would start with me at short and we would slowly but surely start separating out."

Ramon said Luis invited him to play on his fourth grade Tiger League team.

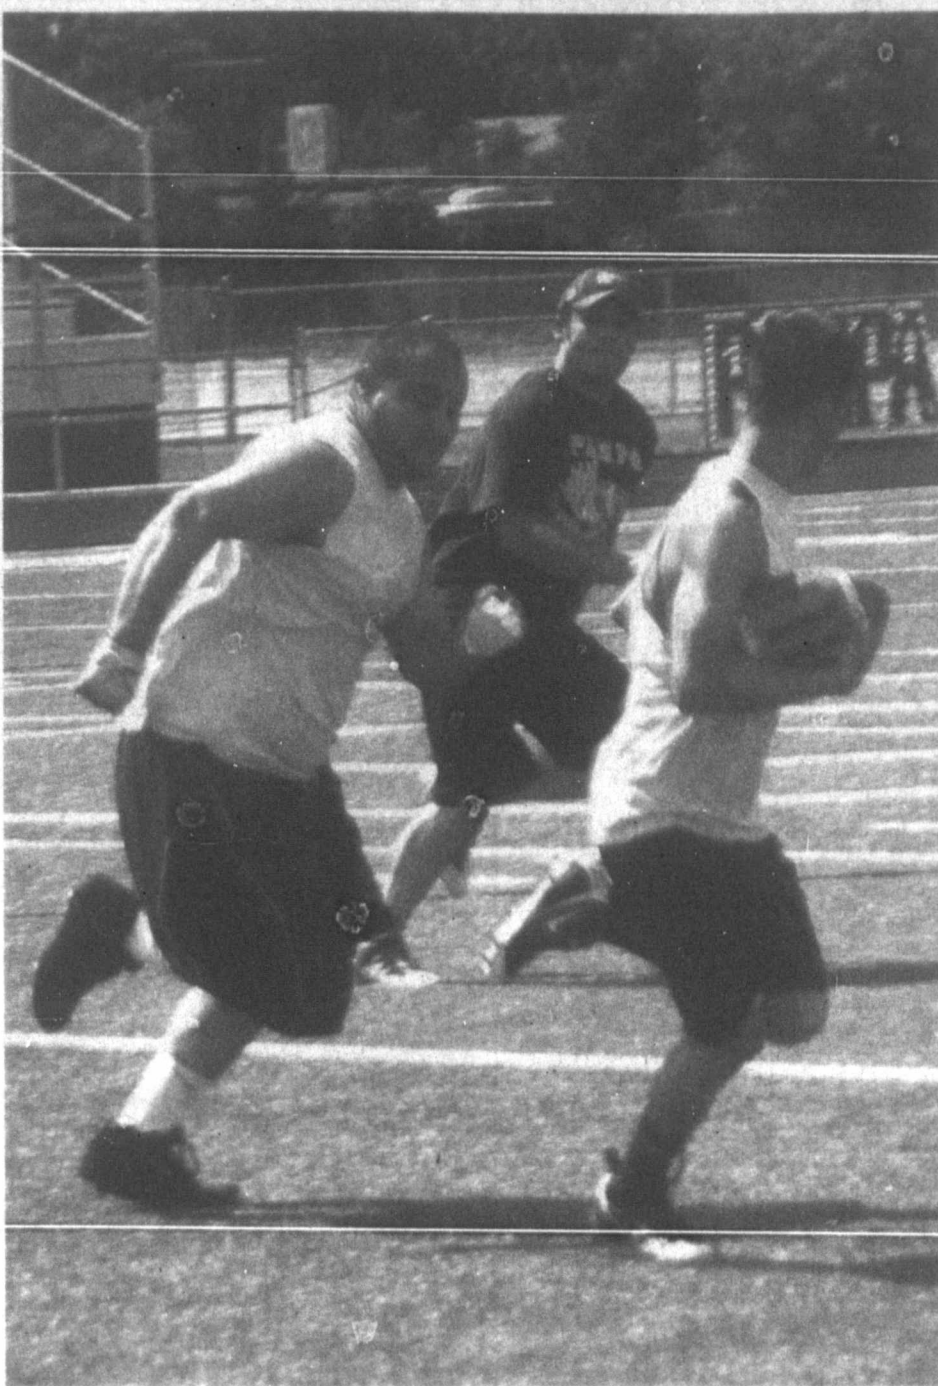

"I told the coach that I was in fourth grade and weighed 70 pounds," Ramon said. "They didn't find out until later in the season, when the coach was looking at my mouth and saw I still had my baby teeth."

Ramon said Luis' death has been tough on the family.

"It's a really tragic thing to go through," Ramon said. "As a family we were pretty tight and linked together. With that missing piece it's just not the same anymore... It's still tragic to this day that he is gone. We are still dumbfounded about the situation. Even though he is not, I still feel that his spirit is still here with us. He tries to guide us like a guardian angel over our shoulders."

When Pampa played Highland Park August 13, James wore Luis' number 88 and will again on Saturday. Both he and Ramon wore wristbands with Luis' initials. James said it felt amazing to wear his brother's number.

"It was something very special," James said. "It felt like my brother was right there. I felt uplifted and wanted to play my best."

PHS girls golf finishes eighth

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa High School's girls golf team struggled with the conditions and finished eighth in Amarillo Saturday.

Head coach Alan Segura said his team did not play well but showed improvement.

"The conditions were difficult and overall I feel we competed well," Segura said.

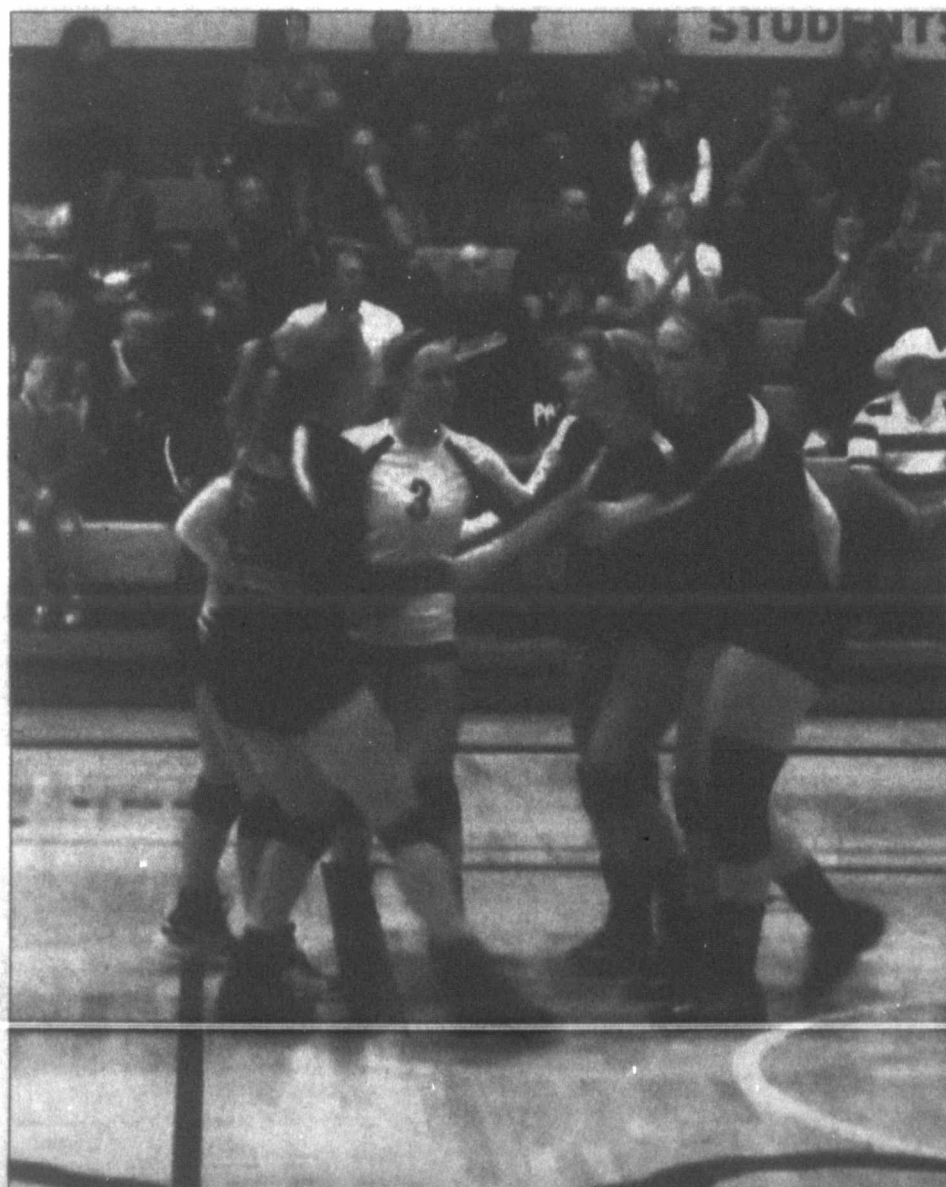

Pampa shot 840 and was 13 strokes out of seventh and 20 strokes ahead of ninth.

The Lady Harvesters finished 17 strokes worse than Borger, who finished sixth.

Senior Lindsey Brown led the team, shooting 208 (112-96). Junior Alison Alexander shot 218, senior Nicole Brashears shot 226, Ashley Keith shot 227 and Savanna Mertz shot 231.

The Harvesters didn't compete last weekend and will compete in Dumas on Friday and will continue play Saturday. The Lady Harvesters will compete in Borger on Saturday.

About Mark Shell Ministries: If the ministry was to be explained in a few simple words it would have to be described as "mind changing". Mark believes very simply in the power of the cross to cleanse the world with His blood sacrifice so that whoever accepted that substitution as their salvation is now the residence of the Holy Spirit and the Holy Spirit on a daily basis helps us renew our minds to think like Christ. In essence, as we change our minds, we change our lives.
