Musician, Guthrie fan LaFave stops in Pampa

Ask Texas-born singer-songwriter Jimmy LaFave who his musical idol is, and he won't hesitate to answer: Woody Guthrie.

A dedicated Guthrie fanatic, LaFave is a member of the Woody Guthrie Coalition, which organizes the Woody Guthrie Folk Festival ("WoodyFest," as it's affectionately known) in Guthrie's birthplace of Okemah, Okla., and has performed there every year since the first event in 1998. In 1996, LaFave, hand-picked by Guthrie's daughter Nora, appeared at a tribute to Guthrie at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland, along with such heavyweights as Bruce Springsteen, the Indigo Girls, Billy Bragg, Ani DiFranco and Pete Seeger. He shared a microphone with Springsteen and Guthrie's son Arlo during the show's finale, trading verses to Guthrie's classic, "I've Got To Know."

LaFave has even paid tribute to Guthrie in his own music, naming a song, simply titled "Woody Guthrie," after him on his 2001 album, "Texoma."

Reports heard by PISD board

MOLLIE BRYANT
mbryant@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Independent School District (PISD) board of trustees heard several notable reports at its meeting Thursday evening at the Pampa High School library.

A report on student drug and alcohol use found that 8th, 10th, and 12th graders surveyed were at or slightly above the state in most categories. Questions included whether a student has tried alcohol or drugs, if they are a regular user, how often they binge drink and how accessible these substances are. However, PISD superintendent Barry Haenisch noted that the district's students are also ahead of the curve in terms of awareness of dangers pertaining to drugs and alcohol.

"It appears that as far as being educated on the problems that it creates and the laws that it violates and those types of things, our students report that they are trained in those areas more often than the average student in Texas, but also that they engage in those dangerous behaviors more often than the average student in Texas would," he said.

State redistricting mess leaves local election office in limbo

editor@thepampanews.com

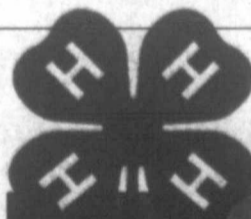

The Texas redistricting chaos [Editor's Note: See page 3 for the full story] is wreaking havoc at the Gray County Election Office. "It has just been crazy," said Gray County election administrator Linda Lewis with a smile. "You just never know what's going to happen. We're all just watching and waiting to see what's going to happen next."

Waiting, in Lewis' case, with bated breath. The issue, she said, is that the redistricting uncertainty is holding up the release of voter registration cards for Gray County residents. Lewis said that she called the Texas Secretary of State on Friday morning to seek clarification on how Friday's Supreme Court decision affected the registration process.

"I asked them what this means," Lewis said. "Can we go forward? Is the April 3 deadline still effective? They don't know. They said it muddies the water even more."

"The main thing I want to do," Lewis continued, "is we're having a lot of people come in, Gray County residents, who are normally getting their voter ID cards the end VOTING cont. on page 8A

Texas gets $31M wildfire grant

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government has earmarked $31 million for Texas wildfires recovery with most of the money going to devastated Bastrop County.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Shaun Donovan on Friday announced the Texas share as part of $400 million in nationwide natural disaster assistance.

Community development block grants will help pay for housing, business and infrastructure needs beyond other public and private help.

HUD says at least 80 percent of the Texas grants are for the Bastrop area, 30 miles east of Austin. The drought-fed and wind-driven fire that began Labor Day weekend left two people dead and destroyed about 1,500 homes.

The Texas Forest Service says last year's wildfire season was the worst in state history, destroying nearly 4 million acres. About 4,000 structures were lost. Ten people died.

No smoking in SA Fiesta parades

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Smokers have been banned from lighting up along the routes of three San Antonio parades.

The San Antonio City Council on Thursday extended a public smoking ban to routes along the River Parade, the Battle of Flowers Parade and the Flambeau Parade. All are part of the Fiesta San Antonio celebration in April.

Smoking will not be allowed along the streets, sidewalks and San Antonio River that are in the public right of way. The ban does not extend to private property, such as restaurants or lots where viewing seats are sold.

Fiesta San Antonio began as a way to honor the memory of the heroes of the Alamo and the Battle of San Jacinto. It has since expanded to a celebration of San Antonio's diverse cultures.

4 hurt in 18-vehicle pileup

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Authorities say four motorists have been hurt in an 18-vehicle pileup during smoky conditions from grass fires in the Texas Panhandle.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Gabriel Medrano said Friday that the crashes near Amarillo happened during low visibility from several grass fires.

Medrano says a vehicle apparently blew a tire, sparking the fires Thursday afternoon along Highway 60.

Medrano says the wind sent the smoke across the highway, causing multiple crashes in the eastbound lanes.

He says nobody suffered life-threatening injuries in the accidents. Traffic had to be diverted for several hours.

CAP exercise planned for Texas

HOUSTON (AP) - The Civil Air Patrol has scheduled an exercise across Texas to brush up on skills used in emergency operations like Hurricane Ike.

Details of the Jan. 28-29 exercise were announced Friday, with plans for many of the state's more than 3,400 volunteer members to take part.

The command post will be at David Wayne Hooks Memorial Airport in Spring. Incident command posts are planned in Dallas, Denton, Odessa, San Antonio, Tyler, west Houston and Victoria.

Maj. Risher Lewis says air and ground teams will train on missions usually associated with responses to natural disasters, missing people or downed aircraft. Aerial photography also plays a role.

Lewis says the CAP, when Ike hit in September 2008, flew more than 350 missions and provided about 40,000 high-definition photos for damage assessment.

$14M scheme draws conviction

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) - A federal jury in Dallas has convicted a Riverside, Calif., man of deceiving more than 200 people in a $14 million investment scheme.

Federal prosecutors announced Thursday that 37-year-old Bradley Stark was convicted of seven counts of wire fraud and one count of securities fraud.

Prosecutors say Stark, who represented himself at trial, tricked investors into putting money into a company he created called Sardaukar Holdings. Investigators say Stark then squandered most of the money on cars, entertainment and jewelry.

Each count of wire fraud carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $250,000 fine. The securities fraud count carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. Sentencing is scheduled for April 21 in Dallas.

Texas to hire at state hospitals

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas health department has taken over hiring authority of all doctors at its 10 mental health facilities following newspaper reports that psychiatrists were hired with a documented history of sexual misconduct.

The Austin American-Statesman reports that an Austin-based administrator for the Department of State Health Services must review and approve psychiatrists before they are hired. The policy was being implemented this week.

The hospital staff can still interview and select candidates, but final approval will no longer be up to hospital superintendents.

Health department spokeswoman Carrie Williams says the decision "boils down to adding more checks and balances to protect patients."

Weekly US rig count up 2,008

HOUSTON (AP) - The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. has risen by 21 this week to 2,008.

The Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,223 rigs were exploring for oil and 780 for natural gas. Five were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week Baker Hughes reported 1,713 active rigs.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Oklahoma gained nine rigs, Wyoming and North Dakota each gained four, Colorado's rig count rose by two and Pennsylvania and West Virginia each added one. Texas and Louisiana both dropped two rigs, while California and New Mexico each lost one. Alaska and Arkansas remained unchanged.

The rig count peaked at 4,530 in 1981 and bottomed at 488 in 1999.

Court throws out Texas electoral maps

MARK SHERMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court on Friday threw out electoral maps drawn by federal judges in Texas that favored minorities. The decision ultimately could affect control of the U.S. House of Representatives and leaves the fate of Texas' April primaries unclear.

The justices ordered the three-judge court in San Antonio to come up with new plans that pay more attention to maps created by Texas' Republican-dominated state Legislature. All four of the state's new congressional seats could swing based on the outcome.

But the Supreme Court did not compel the use of the state's maps in this year's elections, as Texas wanted. Only Justice Clarence Thomas said he would have gone that far.

The court's unsigned opinion thus did not blaze any new trails in election law or signal retreat from a key provision of the Voting Rights Act, as some supporters of the law feared would result from this case.

Still, the outcome appeared to favor Republicans by instructing the judges to stick more closely to what the Legislature did, said election law expert Richard Hasen, a professor at the University of California, Irvine, law school.

Controversy over the maps arose from redrawing political boundaries based on results of the 2010 census that found that Texas had added more than 4 million new residents, mostly Latinos and African-Americans, since 2000. The minority groups complained they were denied sufficient voting power by Republican lawmakers who sought to maximize GOP electoral gains in violation of the landmark Voting Rights Act.

Texas will have 36 seats in the next Congress, a gain of four districts. A divided court in San Antonio drew maps that differed from the Legislature's efforts, giving Democrats a chance to prevail in three or four more congressional districts. Republicans now represent 23 of the 32 current districts.

The high court said the judges appeared in some instances not to pay enough attention to the state's choices. The judges made mistakes in their plans, particularly in altering district lines for state legislative and congressional seats in parts of the state where there is no allegation of discrimination on the part of the Legislature, the high court said.

"In the absence of any legal flaw in this respect in the state's plan, the district court had no basis to modify that plan," the justices said, talking about state House districts in north and east Texas.

Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott said the ruling was a clear victory for the state.

"The Court made clear in a strongly worded opinion that the district court must give deference to elected leaders of this state, and it's clear by the Supreme Court ruling that the district court abandoned these guiding principles," he said in statement.

But Jose Garza, who argued the high court case on behalf of the minority groups and Texas Democrats, said Abbott is "celebrating too early." He said he expects the new maps to look a lot like the ones the justices threw out. Garza said he believes the biggest problem with the court-drawn maps is that the judges "could have done a better job of explaining themselves."

Texas Democratic state Sen. Wendy Davis said she views the decision as essentially endorsing the judges' work in making changes to her Fort Worth area district. Davis filed a lawsuit against the state Senate plan after Republicans split Latino and African-Americans she currently represents into three districts, weakening her re-election prospects.

The Supreme Court acted quickly, just 11 days after hearing arguments and a month and a half after intervening in the case, but set no deadline for new maps to emerge from the court in Texas. State officials have said they need to have something in place by February 1 to hold primary elections, already delayed once, on April 3. The Texas Republican party also has said that Texas may have no voice in the Republican presidential nominating process if the primary is held later than mid-April.

The complicated legal fight over redistricting in Texas is playing out in three federal courts. In addition to the Supreme Court and federal court in San Antonio, a three-judge court in Washington is evaluating the state plans under a key provision of the Voting Rights Act that forces states, mainly in the South, with a history of discrimination in voting to get advance approval before making any changes to the way they conduct elections.

Even without the Washington court's approval, Texas said it should be able to use its own maps just for this year because time is running short before the primaries.

The minority groups, as well as the Obama administration, say such an outcome is strictly forbidden by the Voting Rights Act and would, in essence, eviscerate the law's most potent weapon, the advance approval requirement, also known as preclearance.

The justices chose not to allow the state maps to be used without preclearance. But Thomas, who earlier had said he would strike down the advance approval requirement, said Texas "duly enacted redistricting plans should govern the upcoming elections."

The cases, all dealt with in one opinion, are Perry v. Perez, 11-713, Perry v. Davis, 11-714, and Perry v. Perez, 11-715.

Perry returns home, long term plans uncertain

AUSTIN (AP) - When Gov. Rick Perry announced his bid for the presidency last year, dozens of Republican politicians calculated possible career opportunities.

The governor has held the state's top office for 12 years. That has denied other Republicans a chance to move up the ladder. Now that Perry has dropped out of the presidential race, Texas politicians are readjusting their plans for 2014. Perry says he will remain in politics, but some question whether Republicans want to keep him in office until 2019.

If there is an heir apparent to the governor's mansion, it is Republican Attorney General Greg Abbott, who announced this week that he has amassed $12 million campaign funds.

Other statewide officials are watching the U.S. Senate race to see if Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst's job comes open.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 2012. There are 345 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 21, 1908, New York City's Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance prohibiting women from smoking in public. (Although the measure was vetoed two weeks later by Mayor George B. McClellan Jr., at least one woman, Katie Mulcahey, was arrested and spent a night in jail after being unable to pay a $5 fine.)

On this date:

In 1648, Margaret Brent went before the Maryland colonial assembly to seek two votes in that body, one for herself as a landowner, the other as the legal representative of the absent Lord Baltimore; the assembly turned her down.

In 1793, during the French Revolution, King Louis XVI, condemned for treason, was executed on the guillotine.

In 1861, Jefferson Davis of Mississippi and four other Southerners whose states had seceded from the Union resigned from the U.S. Senate.

In 1950, former State Department official Alger Hiss, accused of being part of a Communist spy ring, was found guilty in New York of lying to a grand jury. (Hiss, who proclaimed his innocence, served less than four years in prison.)

In 1954, the first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, was launched at Groton, Conn. (However, the Nautilus did not make its first nuclear-powered run until nearly a year later.)

In 1977, President Jimmy Carter pardoned almost all Vietnam War draft evaders.

In 1997, Speaker Newt Gingrich was reprimanded and fined as the House voted for the first time in history to discipline its leader for ethical misconduct.

Ten years ago: Sultry singer Peggy Lee died in Bel Air, Calif., at age 81.

Five years ago: Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez told U.S. officials to "Go to hell, gringos!" and called Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice "missy" on his weekly radio and TV show, lashing out at Washington for what he called unacceptable meddling in his country's affairs.

One year ago: Gabrielle Giffords, the Arizona congresswoman seriously wounded in a shooting rampage, was transferred from the University Medical Center trauma center in Tucson to Texas Medical Center in Houston to undergo months of therapy. Ed Mauer, the oldest living member of a 101st Airborne Division company that became known as the "Band of Brothers" during World War II, died in Omaha, Neb., at age 94.

Today's Birthdays: World Golf Hall of Famer Jack Nicklaus is 72. Opera singer Placido Domingo is 71. Singer Richie Havens is 71. Singer Mac Davis is 70. Actress Jill Eikenberry is 65. Country musician Jim Ibbotson (The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band) is 65. Singer-songwriter Billy Ocean is 62. Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen is 59. Actor-director Robby Benson is 56. Thought for Today: "I honestly think it is better to be a failure at something you love than to be a success at something you hate." - George Burns, American comedian (1896-1996).

STAY THE COURSE

Waving happy trails to all my readers

When I first began this column, the News assigned its name: Chamber Music. I wasn't sure I liked it at first. I thought maybe another phrase with "Chamber" in it might be more appropriate. Unfortunately, all I could come up with was "Chamber Pot" and I didn't figure that would fly, so "Chamber Music" it was.

Besides, it gave me the opportunity to interject some of my opinions about music once in a while, as well as use song titles for my section headings. With the music connection, this particular column could be titled "Swan Song".

A "swan song" is defined as "a final gesture or performance, given before dying or retirement." It comes from the legend—not true, incidentally—that swans sing a beautiful song before they die.

Now, I am not dying (as far as I know...any more than any other mortal, anyway) and I am not retiring. I have, however, turned in my resignation as Executive Director of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, so this will be my final column in that capacity.

The reasons are multitude, but basically, after being here the better part of three years, I realized that the goals I had set for the Chamber apparently differed from those of the membership.

Not seeing any changes likely in the near—or even the distant—future, I couldn't see spending any more time at it. When I discussed my move with some friends, they told me they felt that my skills were not being fully utilized, so...

I appreciate all my loyal readers. Since I went on hiatus in December many of you have commented that you missed the column. I was amazed how much I missed it myself—I kept thinking of comments that I wanted to include in my column.

The reason for taking the break was that I got a part in Amarillo Little Theatre's production "Of Mice and Men". Some time in early December I got an email from a friend who has long been associated with ALT. She told me what the play was (I was familiar with the story) and said, "They need men your age to audition." I thought, "Well, it is so darn seldom that anybody needs a man my age for anything, so why not?"

Chamber Music

JOE WEAVER

I'll admit I was scared to death and nearly backed out. I requested a small part, and that's what I got—maybe fifteen lines and one non-speaking appearance. It's been a long time since I've had to memorize anything and I knew the rehearsal schedule would pretty much take up any spare time I had—and it has proved to be so.

But it's been a lot of fun. I thought I would get tired of rehearsals, and especially tired of driving to Amarillo, but it has been a pleasure, mostly. On the way over I work on my lines and on the way back I listen to an audio book or a storyteller.

My wife has accompanied me a time or two, and I've enjoyed the drive with her. The late hour of bedtime has made me pretty lax getting to the gym, but that will change.

One of the things that has been impressive to watch are how director Allen Shankles and his assistant Melanie Sanders can see what a scene or a character needs. Another thing is to watch the other actors, the "real" ones. (By that I mean the ones who have done this a number of times.) The sets are incredible, as well.

A couple of funny things have come up because of this play. I needed a leather vest for my part as "The Boss" so I borrowed one from Charles Bowers. He told me he had bought a ticket so he could see his clothes on stage. I told him that I had worked hard to learn my lines and find my place in the action, but I was afraid that I would mess up. "Charles," I told him, "You may not see me at my best, but you will certainly see me in your vest!" (Charles is also the one who gave me the idea of a cigar as a prop.)

I tell most people that I have a part in "Of Mice and Men" then follow it up with "I play a mouse." That usually gets a smile, but Pat Bagley got a big laugh when I tried that line on the Goldcoats Monday. He came back with "You sure you're not playing a rat?"

A Vested Interest

Speaking of the vest...I thought I might buy one, so I went to Wayne's Western Wear to see what they had. A bright, friendly, and attractive young lady named Leisha (?) waited on me. She showed me several different kinds. I really liked one, but I just wasn't sure if I'd ever wear it after the play. I thanked her and told her she was a great salesman. (I know that is sexist terminology, but old habits die hard.) She seemed to think I meant it as a criticism, but I intended just the opposite. She was pleasant, knowledgeable, and attentive without being pushy—a perfect saleswoman...uh, salesperson!

Cowboy Serenade

If I'm not mistaken, I called my first column "Back in the Saddle Again", referring to the old Gene Autry tune. It's been a great ride, and I thank you, the Pampa News, and the Chamber for it. All I can say is "Happy Trails!"

What's In A Name

OK, I've got to do this one more time. It has been my good fortune to get to know Stormy McCullar, the Public Relations Officer for the Pampa Police Department. I don't know if I've ever known anyone with a more contradictory name. "Sunny" might be a better name for her, as it always brightens my day to see her. She calls the Chamber once in a while and Lori will say, "It's Stormy at the Police Department!" I sit there a minute wondering why I care what's going on at the PD until I realize she means the phone is for me.

Once in a while, though it doesn't happen as often as it did when I first met her, I can't recall her name. Try as I might, it just won't come. I'll be thinking and thinking, telling myself, "It's some weather condition...Misty? No, that's not it... Windy? That's not right either...I'm pretty sure it's not Overcast..."

will take the annual survey into account in future programs, including its Big Decisions curriculum.

"Part of the Big Decisions curriculum, which is our abstinence education, is connected to that in many ways, because it's talking about that big decision of sexual activity," he said. "It's also talking about making good choices. And so, the curriculum is a little bit broader than just sexual decisions, but it also includes all of those big decisions, which to begin using alcohol or to begin using drugs would be one of those big decisions. So we think that our students' introduction to that curriculum and their work in that area will also have some benefit as these kind of decisions are concerned also."

The board heard a second report, which compared PISD attendance from the first three six weeks of this year to the same period last year. Attendance was up at each campus, and attendance for the district went up almost one percent, the largest increase Haenisch has seen during his time with PISD.

"To have that kind of a jump was pretty significant," he said. "That translates to about 25 more students a day who are in school than we would have expected, and so that has two ramifications. One is financial, because we are paid on the number of students who come to school on an average day, so there are going to be financial implications."

Haenisch said the attendance increase amounts to a funding increase — $125,000 more a year for PISD — since the state takes average attendance into account when determining funding. Greater academic consistency is a second benefit.

"It means that across the district, on any day, we've got 25 more children in attendance who are going to be getting instruction, and so their chances of being successful academically simply go up, because instead of being out, they are coming to school," he said.

Haenisch believes the improved attendance has much to do with assigning a staff member to cover district-wide attendance duties. Previously, each principal determined attendance procedures, managed absences and addressed attendance issues on his or her own campus. Giving one person these responsibilities has likely improved consistency in the process, he said.

"The attendance report for the district goes to one place," said Haenisch. "So what we've done is we've been able to standardize our expectations for attendance across the district, so it's not different at each elementary school, and then different at the junior high, and then different at the high school. The expectations for a pre-kindergartener, as far as attendance is concerned, are the same for a senior."

"It's been an opportunity to inform families, and it's been an opportunity, in some cases, to work with families," added

Haenisch. "What we discovered is if there is a family that has a real emergency that's keeping them from seeing that their children come to school, the school has been able to help. We've been able to run buses to pick up children if they legitimately do not have a car that will run."

PISD's enrollment also is on the rise. At the moment, the district has 187 more students than they did at the same time last year. To cope with increasing student bodies, the district asked the Texas Education Agency for 11 class size waivers in September, but that number has reduced to two.

"We only have two (classes) that are above the state mandated size now," said Haenisch. "While our total number has remained the same, fortunately, the classes that we had too many kids in have (had kids move) away, and the ones coming back in have been in other campuses at other places, so that we are in better shape. We have more students, but they're distributed better than they were in September."

A PISD employee survey conducted by the Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) showed favorable results across the district. The survey looked at employees' views including those on support from coworkers and supervisors, working conditions and job satisfaction.

"(TASB has) done hundreds of surveys across the state," said Haenisch. "We had the best participation of any district where they've done it, and the best results that they've ever gotten back. It was a very good report, very positive in almost all areas of the school (district). The board was very pleased with the participation and very pleased with the attitudes of our staff as revealed by the survey."

Tomorrow is Sunday, Jan. 22, the 22nd day of 2012. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 22, 1912, the Florida Keys Over-Sea Railroad, which connected the Keys with the mainland, went into service; aboard the first train to reach Key West was the line's founder, Henry Flagler. (Following the damaging 1935 Labor Day hurricane, the rail line from the mainland was abandoned and replaced with a highway.)

In 1922, Pope Benedict XV died; he was succeeded by Pius XI.

In 1944, during World War II, Allied forces began landing at Anzio, Italy.

In 1959, 12 workers were killed in the Knox Mine Disaster in Pennsylvania.

In 1962, one of Hollywood's most famous, as well as tumultuous, romances bloomed as Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton filmed their first scene together on the set of "Cleopatra" at the Cinecitta studios in Rome.

In 1973, the U.S. Supreme Court, in its Roe v. Wade decision, legalized abortions using a trimester approach. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson died at age 64.

In 1984, the Los Angeles Raiders defeated the Washington Redskins 38-9 to win Super Bowl XVIII (18), played at Tampa Stadium in Florida. (The game broadcast on CBS-TV featured Apple Computer's famous "1984" ad introducing the Macintosh computer.)

In 1987, Pennsylvania treasurer R. Budd Dwyer, convicted of defrauding the state, proclaimed his innocence at a news conference before shooting himself to death in front of horrified spectators.

In 1995, Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy died at the Kennedy compound at Hyannis Port, Mass., at age 104.

In 1997, the Senate confirmed Madeleine Albright as the nation's first female secretary of state.

Jack Shea, a gold medal-winning speedskater and patriarch of the nation's first family with three generations of Olympians, died in Lake Placid, N.Y., of injuries suffered in a car accident; he was 91.

Five years ago: A car bombing of a predominantly Shiite commercial area in Baghdad killed 88 people. Iran announced it had barred 38 nuclear inspectors on a United Nations list from entering the country in apparent retaliation for U.N. sanctions imposed the previous month.

One year ago: Drawing inspiration from the revolt in Tunisia, thousands of Yemenis demanded the ouster of President Ali Abdullah Saleh in a noisy demonstration that appeared to be the first large-scale public challenge to the strongman. Pope Benedict XVI told priests to do a better job counseling would-be spouses to ensure their marriages last, and said that no one had an absolute right to a wedding.

sunday horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Jan. 22, 2011:

This year you want to be more authentic, yet you get twisted up in language like "I should" or "someone expects." By getting to know the real you, people will be more at peace with interactions. If you are single, different types of people will appeal to you. Try to avoid commitments this year. If attached, the two of you play many games. Take your interactions with a grain of salt, and continue to express your caring. AQUARIUS could be a soul mate.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ A partner could be far more out of sorts than you might realize. Be sensitive to his or her comments. Remain responsive, as the alternative is no fun for either of you. Tonight: So what if tomorrow is Monday?

This Week: Use Monday and Tuesday to the max.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Keep reaching out for someone new. The dialogue could be interesting, as you are two very different people from equally different backgrounds. Make plans, if possible. You will gain much insight from this bond. Tonight: Up to the wee hours. You choose the activity.

This Week: The spotlight is on you. Success follows.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Relate to a partner or special friend. Make plans for the two of you. Even friendships need quality time. You could get flak from a loved one without intending to. Tonight: Your imagination could take you on quite an adventure.

This Week: A dream becomes a possibility.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Relate directly to a partner. This person will feel more valued, allowing more openness. You will discover that this is true, even if you have related to this person for many years. Tonight: Let the warmth in!

This Week: A partner means what he or she says. Find alternatives.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ You might have plans to indulge in a favorite pastime. You might think your ideas are great, but someone who would like to join you doesn't agree. You might be surprised by what he or she would like to do. Tonight: Who said you need to be in bed early?

This Week: Others dominate. Think mini-vacation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ You could be taken aback by all that is going on. Why not toss yourself into the immediate activity? Fun often results from spontaneity. Whether learning a new hobby or simply being silly with a dear friend, you have a great time. Tonight: Slowly unwind.

This Week: Dig into work and network as much as possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You could be far more tuned in to what is happening around you than you share. You have keen powers of observation. Ask yourself how you feel about all the goings-on. Why not toss yourself into the mix? Tonight: Be pro-active and create what you want.

This Week: Creativity could be distracting without self-discipline.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ You might want to approach a situation differently. A discussion reveals a lack of sensitivity on one person's part. He or she might not have intended to hurt someone's feelings. Rather than internalize, clear out a misunderstanding. Tonight: Invite family over.

This Week: Getting going might be impossible if looking at work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Be aware of what is not working in your life. You alone are in a position to turn it around. Tap into a deeply fertile imagination, loosening up any restrictions. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news.

This Week: Communicate what you think. You cannot control others' responses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Use the daylight hours to the max. Express your vitality and enthusiasm. A parent or someone you look up to might be slightly negative. Do not take on what is not yours. Let go of others' judgments and just be you. Tonight: Make it your treat.

This Week: Be sensitive to a money issue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Maintain the low profile you desire. Whatever is occupying your mind is very important. Give yourself some space. Eat more vegetables. Tonight: The sign of friendship is finally ready to socialize.

This Week: Breeze into the week as a powerhouse. You can do it! Yes, you can.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Go where people are. You will feel most comfortable around crowds, friends and a happening of some sort. Remember, you could just get together with someone for a late lunch. Use caution with finances. The unexpected could strike your wallet! Count your change. Tonight: R and R.

This Week: Not in work mode or social mode, you retreat until your tune changes.

Naturally then, after a visit to fellow Guthrie enthusiast Barry Olman's private collection of Woody memorabilia in Denver, LaFave made the time to stop in Pampa on Tuesday, taking a detour on the way home to Austin to visit with the folks at the Woody Guthrie Folk Center on Cuyler Street. He was the guest of honor at an impromptu roundtable discussion at the center with a few local Guthrie devotees, including center regulars Mike Sinks, Pat Stewart, Rick Scott, Reed Echols, Thelma Bray and Joe Weaver.

"I was up in Denver researching some Woody archives for my new show, and then it occurred to me that this was right on the way back, so I thought, well, you know, I think I'll stop in Pampa and have a look at the Woody Guthrie Center there since I'd never been," LaFave said. "I've driven by before, but it was always some weird hour of the night when there was no one around. I'm looking for some new stuff that Woody said and some new things to incorporate into the show."

"The show," aptly enough, is "Walking Woody's Road," set to debut at the One World Theater in Austin on Jan. 28. A tribute to Guthrie in the centennial year of the folk legend's birth, the show will chronicle Guthrie's life through his own songs, writings and images from his life, including his time in Pampa.

"I'm going to try to have a visual element to (the show)," LaFave said, "maybe project something onto a screen. Maybe when we're talking about Pampa, we could have a picture of Harris Drug to project behind us and give people a sense of, 'Hey, it's still there, maybe we can go see it.'"

It isn't LaFave's first visit to the area; he worked for his father's oil-related business in high school and made deliveries out into the Panhandle, into Pampa, Borger, Perryton and Canadian. With seven or eight years since his last visit, though, he thought it was time that he came back and saw the Guthrie Center. He contacted the center's Mike Sinks, who he'd met during one of the WoodyFests in Okemah, and Sinks was happy to invite him to come.

"It's so great to have him here," said a beaming Sinks. "We've wanted to have him come visit for a while."

The feeling, LaFave said, was mutual.

"It's living history," LaFave said of the center. "You walk right through the door and his spirit's right here. Even looking through his original manuscripts... it's not a copy of something, it's the original. You think, wow."

"It's something," LaFave added, "that the next time I come up, I'll probably come a day early and take my time and walk around, explore some of the places."

LaFave is serious about a return visit. He and Sinks have discussed the possibility of a Pampa performance in line with Guthrie's centennial celebration. With Arlo, a gifted folk troubadour in his own right, set to visit Pampa on March 11, LaFave said that he hopes this year could be the start of something big for commemorating Guthrie's Pampa past.

"There should be more going on here for Woody Guthrie," said LaFave. "It's just as important as Okemah, and it's a lot bigger town than Okemah. ... You could really get a good little tourism boost (from promoting Woody Guthrie) here. This should be a must-see stop for American musicians traveling coast to coast, to just get off of I-40 and come up here. I think more and more, we have to let it be known that the Woody Guthrie Center is here and get the word out."

Told of the anti-Guthrie bias that has existed in Pampa due to the perception that he was a communist and atheist, LaFave laughed, eliciting smiles from the center's devoted Guthrie fans.

"Those people are slowly fading away," LaFave said. "The townspeople (didn't) realize how much they had in common with Woody. He really had the same values as the people here, you know — hard work. Even the people who would stand up and say, 'He was an atheist, he was a communist.' No. He was one of you, and he came from right here. This is where he really began to explode in music and song."

Stopping in Pampa, LaFave said, was of particular importance because of his current Woody-based walkabout, a journey of re-exploration of Guthrie's life, legend and influence. With such a seminal part of Guthrie's musical development tied to Pampa, that made the center a must-see.

"It's like I told Nora a few weeks back in a letter," LaFave said. "I said it's time. The centennial's coming up. I've got to totally immerse myself in Woody again, re-remember a lot of things, go revisit a lot of places he was. That's what I've been doing, and along that line, all of a sudden, there's just more to be found. You think, 'Well, I've already seen that show.' Well, it's like endless. One door opens another door. ... There's just all kinds of undiscovered things, things that I haven't seen yet, and I thought, 'I've just got to come to Pampa and see what they have of Woody's there.'"

"It's just a really enriching thing to hang out and learn more and more about what he meant to a lot of people, his place in history now and all the ways he's still affecting everyone," he continued. "You know, Bill Moyers just came out with a beautiful piece this week (on Guthrie). Jimi Hendrix carried Woody Guthrie lyrics in his pocket. Nora has letters from people like John Lennon or the Beatles. The importance of Woody to everybody is just beginning to explode. It's just amazing how it was lost in history that long, but the last 10 to 15 years, it's just been a great journey to be part of it."

Along the way, according to LaFave, he's been a part of opening a treasure chest of sorts: The discovery of so many of Guthrie's lost or hidden work. Guthrie was a prolific writer, and LaFave said that he's found writings from Guthrie's pen recently that even he didn't know about, much of which he's unearthed from fellow enthusiasts or in places like Pampa where Guthrie once called home.

"That's one of my favorite things about Woody was the way he just rambled," LaFave said. "In his songs, you see all that imagery, even in 'This Land Is Your Land.' Even at Barry's, he had a handwritten thing of Woody of 'This Land Is Your Land.' It wasn't the original one that Nora has, so it was probably a few years later, but it was Woody, and instead of saying 'redwood forests,' he said 'Canadian mountains.' I found on that a whole verse of 'This Land Is Your Land' that's never been seen about the 'tip-top tree-tops.' It's a missing verse."

"I've asked Nora about that and she said, 'You know, there's a lot of verses we have scattered here and there that he wrote.' The family prefers we stick to the seven official verses, and a lot of that is because of publishers. Publishers own stuff and they don't like you singing alternative verses. ... Still, it's fun to go back and find the real (alternative verses written by Guthrie). It's fun to be a part of history like that and help to — like, even the songs I have that have never been seen — to bring them out to the general public. Then, you have a whole other canon of songs of Woody Guthrie. I think he only ever recorded like 70 of his songs, and he wrote 3,000. It's a pretty interesting thing to be part of."

It's a phenomenon, LaFave said, that he wants

Pampa to be a part of, too.

"WoodyFest, when it started, it started in a little building about this size," LaFave said. "The first one, the festival was in a building this size with a stage that big. It was just what townspeople we could get together to get it going, and by the second year, it got bigger. Now, it's pretty big, but you have to help get things rolling. It takes a little bit of press, and you have to convince other people that are into Woody to donate their time and be a part of it."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about people who attempt to converse with you from another room? My boyfriend does it fairly often. He may be on the computer while I'm reading or watching TV, and he'll yell out a question or tell me something. Most of the time I answer him, but then he'll continue the conversation — all from the other room.

I find it rude, and to be quite honest, disrespectful. I also think it makes no sense because with the TV on it's difficult to hear him. If I want to speak to someone in another room, I get off my "keester" and go directly to him or her. That's common sense. My former roommate used to do the same thing. Do you think this is a "guy thing"? — CAN'T HEAR IN NEW YORK

DEAR CAN'T HEAR: Nope. It's just lazy. And it continues because you allow it. Tell your boyfriend that if he has something he wants to say to you, he should come and say it. Point out that you give him that respect. And if he "forgets," stay put and don't answer from the other room.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend with whom I exchange birthday and Christmas gifts. I make a great deal of effort to find things I know she would like, and I have been quite successful. My friend, however, buys me things I suspect she would like for herself.

Example: I'm always hot while she's always chilly. She bought me heavy pajamas and a warm robe for Christmas. I don't like spicy food — she does. She gave me two large containers of seasoning containing chili pepper. I love to read fiction while she prefers nonfiction. For my birthday I received a book about history.

This kind of exchange has been going on for years, and

I don't remember receiving one gift I could really use. What can I say to her? — PEEVED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR PEEVED: To say something would be rude. I do have a suggestion, however. On the next gift-giving occasion, give your friend some things YOU would like. Example: A pretty fan to accessorize a summer dress, a jar of your favorite jam, a novel or two you would enjoy reading — and then you can agree on a gift exchange. Problem solved.

More rain lessened drought, fell short of ending it

ROBERT BURNS
Texas AgriLife Extension Service

COLLEGE STATION — Winter rain accumulations varied across the state, from as much as 5 inches in some East Texas counties to 1 inch to 3 inches in Central and North Texas, according to reports from Texas AgriLife Extension Service personnel. Parts of the Rolling Plains also got rain, as much as 1.5 inches, while some areas in West Central Texas got more than 1 inch, according to reports by AgriLife Extension county agents.

The rest of the state remained mostly dry, receiving only light rains if any.

Where there was rain, winter forages and wheat benefited, and stock tanks and ponds were replenished to varying degrees.

The rains also improved U.S. Drought Monitor ratings for much of the state. As of Jan. 10, about 62 percent of the state was rated as being under severe to extreme drought. Though still high, it's an improvement over nearly 70 percent being under severe to extreme drought on Jan. 3, and a vast improvement from October when 97 percent of the state was under severe to extreme drought.

"Wheat was in better condition due to moisture received in December," said Scott Strawn, AgriLife Extension agent for Ochiltree County in the northeastern Panhandle. "All fields are up to a good stand. Subsoil moisture below 6 inches is very dry."

"Conditions have basically remained the same with the outlook not being positive with continued above-average temperatures, windy conditions and no precipitation in sight," said Toby Oliver, AgriLife Extension agent for King County, east of Lubbock. "Several rain chances were missed over the last few weeks."

"All of the county received from 1 inch to 2.5 inches of rain," said Todd Vineyard, AgriLife Extension agent for Wise County, northwest of Fort Worth. "The weather has been warm and sunny with cool nights. Small grains are making excellent growth."

"Pastures continue to green up after each rainfall event, but soils are still trying to recover from the drought," said

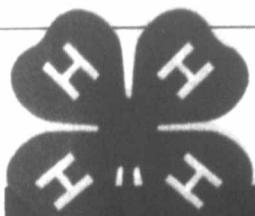

Shane McLellan, AgriLife Extension agent for McLennan County, Waco. "A slow, soaking rain is needed. Grasses are slow to respond to nitrogen fertilizer, much slower than normal. Many producers are attributing this to the drought's effect on the soil."

"Over the past two days we have received 4 inches of rain in Upshur County," said William Odowd, AgriLife Extension agent for Upshur County. "There is water standing in several spots, but this is not enough rain to take us out of the drought."

More information on the current Texas drought and wildfire alerts can be found on the AgriLife Extension Agricultural Drought Task Force website at <http://agrilife.tamu.edu/drought/>.

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summary:

PANHANDLE: Temperatures were nearly average early in the reporting period, then warming to above average by week's end. Soil moisture varied from adequate to very short, with most counties reporting short to very short. The cotton harvest was almost completed. Winter wheat was in very poor to excellent condition, with most counties reporting poor to very poor. Some farmers were preparing fields for spring plantings. Rangeland and pastures were in very poor to fair condition, with most counties reporting poor to very poor. Cattle grazing on winter wheat were doing well.

of December. Nobody's gotten them yet."

Because information regarding the election districts is printed on the cards, the cards have yet to be generated.

"Because of that, we can't print anything out because it might change," Lewis said. "I want to reassure the public that we know they don't have their voter ID cards. We're on hold."

Lewis assured Gray County residents that if they registered and voted in the last election, they are still registered for the upcoming primaries and there is no need for them to do anything. The new voter ID cards will be mailed to them when they are printed.

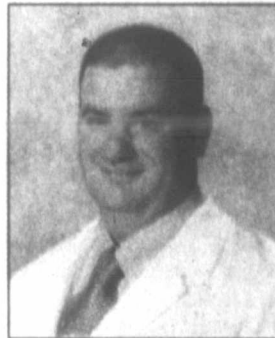

The worst case scenario, Lewis said, is that voters can come in and cast ballots with their driver's licenses if they still do not have their cards at the time of the primary. However, Lewis said, that is unlikely to happen.

"When all of this (election decision-making) is played out, they will tell us, 'OK, you can go ahead with your voter ID cards. They will go out hopefully on the 13th of February. That's the projected date they've given us for the voter registration cards being released."

Until then, though, the election administration office — like Texas voters themselves — remains in a holding pattern.

"When we get the go-ahead, we will forward the registration cards out," Lewis said. "Right now, we're just playing the waiting game."

Lady Harvesters down Lady Bulldogs in closing seconds

BORGER — Last season when the Pampa Lady Harvesters were needing a win to even their district record, the Borger Lady Bulldogs snuck away with a victory. Friday night in Borger, it was Pampa that pulled out a 40-38 victory.

With three seconds left, senior Caitlin Sieck air balled a three. Senior Delaney Clendening grabbed the ball out of a pile and threw the ball up and it went in the net as the buzzer sounded.

Sieck said the final seconds were intense.

"I was just glad I was able to depend on my teammates," Sieck said. "They were able to get the ball and put it in."

In the fourth quarter the lead changed hands three times. There was one tie at 38. Head coach Gene Valentine said his girls didn't give up like they did in their previous district games.

"We were always in striking distance," Valentine said. "Finally when we got over the hump, we maintained a lead."

The Lady Harvesters (12-12, 2-2) struggled to get the ball inside offensively and found themselves settling for jumpers. Also hampering its effort offensively was 11 turnovers. Pampa didn't lead by more than five.

Sieck said Borger went with a zone and Pampa had to adjust.

"We just had to find the holes in the defense and get our offense going," Sieck said.

The Lady Bulldogs (4-18, 0-4) also got off to a sluggish start, turning the ball over 10 times in the first quarter. Borger was held to seven points in the first quarter and trailed by two. The Lady Bulldogs' offense opened up in the second. Emma Woods led Borger's offense with six points. Towards the end of the second, Borger went on a 10-0 run, taking a 23-18 lead. The Lady Bulldogs led 23-20 at halftime.

Borger maintained its lead most of the third quarter. Pampa tied it three times but wasn't able to take a lead. Senior guard Kirsten Kuhn hit a three at the end of the quarter to cut the Lady Bulldogs' lead to 31-30.

Valentine said it was a big victory and should give his team confidence in its next game against Perryton.

"Perryton game will be big just like it was at their place," Valentine said. "I hope our place we will be more relaxed. I told them we can play with them."

Late lead slips again as Harvesters fall in overtime

BORGER — Pampa head coach Dustin Miller has constantly preached to his team about the importance of momentum.

Friday night in Borger, when the Harvesters needed to gain momentum the most, it couldn't grab it, as they fell to the Borger Bulldogs 50-45 in overtime.

"When we get a big shot, we can't let them hit one," head coach Dustin Miller said. "We turned around and left the guy wide open."

Senior Cole Engle hit a three to start the overtime period. Borger's Kolter Newton followed with one second later, tying the game at 47. Grant Boren and Jamon Hearn hit shots to put Borger ahead for good at 48-44 with less than two minutes left in the game.

Senior Latigo Collins had a chance to cut the lead to two but missed the front end of his free throws, only cutting it to three.

Engle said the team has several issues. "We had silly turnovers," Engle said. "We drew up a couple of inbounds plays and didn't run them right. We had a couple of calls not go our way."

For the second consecutive game, Pampa had a lead in the fourth quarter, only to see it slip away. The Harvesters led 36-31 in the final two minutes. Borger took advantage of missed shots and Pampa turnovers to tie the game at 38 with over a minute left.

Boren nailed a three to put Borger ahead with 30 seconds left. Senior Reid Miller responded with a three, tying the game with six seconds left.

Borger was able to limit Collins to three points in the second half. Collins hurt his shoulder in the fourth when he was fouled hard on a layup. Pampa had others carry the scoring load. Engle scored 10 of his 14 in the second half.

Reid hit two key threes.

Engle said it was what they had to do with Collins' production limited.

"With him not in the game, we have to hit shots," Engle said.

The Harvesters got off to a sluggish start offensively. Missed shots and turnovers kept Pampa from scoring. Besides a couple of small leads at the beginning of the first half, the Harvesters trailed.

Borger was able to hit its jumpers. Newton and Boren hit threes to pace the Bulldogs' scoring. Seven different Bulldogs scored in the first half. Borger led by as many as nine.

Dustin said Borger ran a zone and praised them for that.

"They were smart," Dustin said. "We aren't shooting the ball very well. We don't attack, we just set up for threes and dig ourselves a hole."

Pampa grabbed momentum towards the end of the half. Senior Cole Engle was fouled outside the three-point and sank all three free throws. Junior Derrek Pollard made a basket to cut Borger's lead to 23-20 at halftime.

In the second half, the Harvesters continued their momentum. Pollard stole the ball twice and added four points. Engle scored a pair of layups. Senior Reid Miller hit a three to give Pampa its largest lead of the game at 30-25. The Harvesters led 31-29 going into the third.

Engle said the team keeps playing to its opponents' level.

"We got to fix it," Engle said.

The Harvesters (13-7, 0-2) host the Perryton Rangers 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Last season, Perryton took two of three.

Engle said Pampa will be ready for them.

"They want us and we want them," Engle said. "We have a little rivalry."

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Jan. 23, 2012:

You demonstrate immense creativity and dynamic thinking this year. Others count on you to have an answer. Confusion earmarks many discussions, resulting in sarcasm. Try to quell situations like this by transforming them into more open and viable conversations. Not everyone has to agree with you, though you do give a convincing argument. If you are single, your magnetism attracts many potential suitors. Use care in your choices. Anger appears to be an issue, whether you suppress it or not. If you are attached, you will need to find a viable way of letting others know how you feel. AQUARIUS cannot be roped in.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive;

3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You have too much on your plate. Oddly enough, in the process of trying to eliminate some excess, you add more work. A new beginning becomes possible within a special friendship, though you might need to rethink your role. Tonight: Out of sorts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ All the possibilities that surround a project might overwhelm you. A new beginning becomes possible professionally, if you worry a little less. Keep smiling. Your insights are appreciated. Tonight: Burning the candle at both ends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Reach out for someone at a distance. Your ability to zero in on an issue might not be as sharp as you would like. You could find that a relationship becomes far more touchy in the next few weeks. Understand in which direction you want to head. Tonight: Think through a situation by detaching.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You could become increasingly aggravated with someone you relate to on a daily basis. Try not to trigger. Stay on top of what you need to do. You might need to do some work on this relationship in the near future. Tonight: Make a decision honoring your waistline.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Use caution with finances in the next few months. You easily could make an error. Others seek you out, but they also want to have more control. Let them have their way, and they will better understand the complexity of your responsibilities. Tonight: Go with a suggestion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ You could be unusually irritable and cause yourself some problems in the near future. You will have a tendency to overthink after the fact, replaying the situation in your mind. Learn to think before saying or doing something. Tonight: All smiles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You could be out of sorts and somewhat more direct than usual. You could really stun someone as you reveal your feelings in a less-than-diplomatic manner. Try not to suppress your feelings as much, and reveal them before they turn into anger. Tonight: Go with a spontaneous bent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ You could be out of sorts, or a friend could stun you with a display of anger. Tread with care. Know that this, too, will pass, but you might need to have a discussion to clear the air. Others respond to your efforts! Tonight: Close to home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Pressure builds involving your work or a community project. A close associate could be quite frustrated, and he or she lets you know in no uncertain manner. Your lively stance and ability to bypass issues will be called upon. Tonight: Hang out with a pal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You could be far more touchy than you realize. News from a distance could upset you. A disagreement or lack of communication today, and for the next few weeks, could endure for a while. Tonight: Treat yourself on the way home.

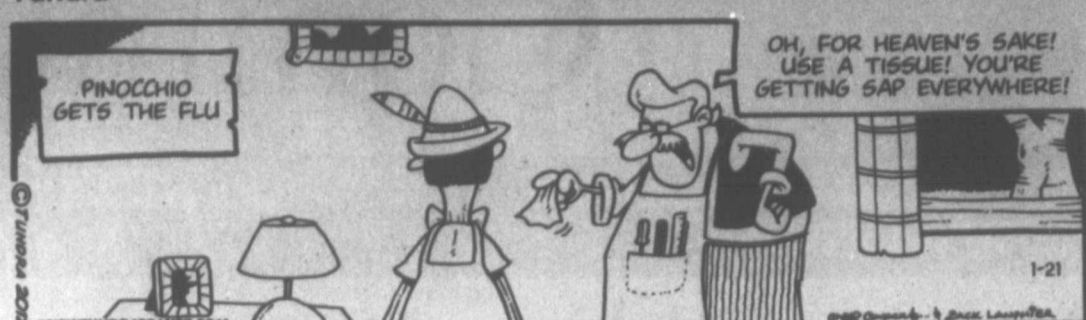

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You might be A-OK but unfortunately, a loved one, close associate or dear friend becomes even more feisty. You might wonder: Why me? In the next few weeks, his or her attitude could create a lot of frustration. Clear out feelings. Tonight: A new beginning is possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Zero in on a problem by observing instead of asking questions. You could be surprised by what you find out. Also, note what is not being said. Your intuition can help take the edge off for now. Tonight: Going along with another person's ideas.

Dear Shagg,
Do skunks make noise?
Tanya Aklea
Crestview, FL

YES, SKUNKS SCREECH LIKE A PIG, GRUMBLE, GRUNT, WHIMPER AND WHINE.

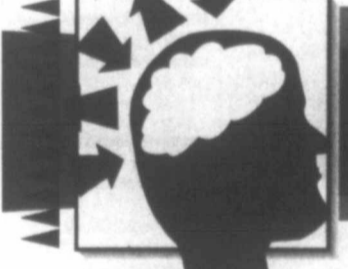

SHAGG E. DAWG, P.A.D.

SHAGG'S ANSWER: ALACK!

THE PIRANHA'S TEETH ARE SO SHARP THAT LOCAL NATIVES USE THE TEETH TO MAKE TOOLS AND WEAPONS.

HOPEFULLY, THE TEETH ARE REMOVED FIRST. ...ESPECIALLY WHEN SHAVING.

THESE ARE PRETTY MUCH THE SAME SOUNDS I MADE THE LAST TIME I GOT SKUNKED.

ENDURING LOVE

John and Adney Parker

Parkers observe 60 years of marriage

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker were recently honored on their 60th wedding anniversary with a special and private family gathering.

The couple married the 24th of January 1952 in an impressive candlelight ceremony. Miss Adney Pursley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ervin Pursley, became the bride of Mr. John Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Parker.

Vows were exchanged in the home of the brides' parents before the fireplace, where the bride descended from the stairway. The couple later purchased the home and resided there for 40 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker are founders of Parker Boats and Motors in Pampa and Amarillo. The Amarillo store remains in operation. The Parkers are members of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ where Mrs. Parker has been instrumental to the dedication of a new library. They both remain supportive members.

The Parkers resided in Pampa for 69 years until they moved their home to Amarillo in 2006.

Children and hosts are Tom and Paula Parker of Humble, Texas; Eddy and Patty Parker of Amarillo, Texas; Rebecca and Dale Greenhouse, Dudley and Janice Parker and Heath and Christy Parker, all of Pampa. They have eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.
