Three look to unseat incumbent sheriff Copeland

Copeland seeking another term

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com

Gray County Sheriff Don Copeland has almost 50 years of law enforcement under his belt, having worked as a DPS officer for 27 years, as well as with the Wheeler County Sheriff's Office and the Shamrock Police Department. But he's not ready to hang up his hat yet.

"I had announced that I might retire, and I visited with a good friend, and I told him by the time I run this term out, I'll have 47 years in law enforcement," said Copeland during the Top O' Texas Republican Women's Forum in March. "He said, 'Man, I hate a quitter.' So here I am."

Copeland was first elected as Gray County's sheriff in 1997.

"I have a strong belief in law enforcement," he said. "I started in 1963, so I've grown up with the changing laws over the years."

Copeland considers his staff a major strength of his department.

"We have excellent employees at

Douglas says it's time for change

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com

With 10 years of law enforcement experience — nine of which as a Gray County deputy — Robert Douglas thinks it's time for a change in the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

"We need a few improvements in the office," he said. "Over time, when somebody's been in there a long time, you just need to step it up a notch."

As a candidate for sheriff, Douglas would like to see some changes in the jail.

"We don't have an interview room (in the jail), and that's something that should be addressed," he said. "The people in the jail, this proves their innocence or guilt, either way. That's something that really needs to happen."

"The jail is owned by the citizens here in Gray County, publicly owned, and it should be a non-smoking facility, because it's the only public building that I know of anywhere that still allows

Lee banks on years of experience

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com

David Lee feels like ascending to sheriff in his Gray County home is a good next step in his career.

A veteran peace officer of over 30 years, Lee began in law enforcement in Amarillo in 1977 before spending 22 years as a police officer in Pampa. His career also includes a stint working undercover in Borger and a run as a deputized U.S. marshal in the mid-to late 90s.

"Whenever we were in narcotics from '93 to '97," Lee explained, "the whole narcotics division was working along with the D.A. The U.S. Marshal service was part of that drug task force... and everybody that was in the task force at that time got deputized by a federal judge to be a U.S. Marshal. We had, of course, our task force run the 26 northern counties (of the Panhandle) and we had the legal right to arrest people in other states, because when we needed to, we'd go different places

Stubblefield looks to regain post

 editor@thepampanews.com

"I started my law enforcement career here in Gray County," said Randy Stubblefield, "and I want to finish it up here in Gray County."

Stubblefield, who kicked off a long career in law enforcement by joining Pampa's police force in 1974, aims to do exactly that by becoming the county's next sheriff, a post he'd previously held from 1993 to 1997.

Stubblefield also cited a stint as a part-time deputy in Roberts County and his current, 11-year tenure as a deputy in Donley County as part of a long history of law enforcement that would serve him well should he be elected.

"I have the advantage of my past experience to fall back on," he said. "I have a relationship built with county commissioners. Joe Wheeley and Judge Peet, they were on board on the commissioners court while I was sheriff so I have worked with them. I still maintain a relationship with all the area law enforcement

El Paso may face water restrictions

EL PASO (AP) — El Paso authorities are asking residents to voluntarily curtail water use for the next two weeks to try to prevent mandatory restrictions.

El Paso Water Utilities officials tell the El Paso Times (<http://bit.ly/J8e53B>) that the lack of water in the Rio Grande and forecasts for scorching temperatures are prompting the calls for people to curtail lawn watering and take shorter showers.

The Rio Grande accounts for half of the city's water supply and low water in the river has forced the shut-down of two treatment plants.

Utilities spokesman Martin Bartlett also is asking people to fix water leaks.

Officials set a goal of 125 million gallons of water use daily for May. That goal was met four days later week.

Record heat in Southeast Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston and several nearby southeast Texas cities are in record heat territory for the year.

Over the nearly first five months of 2012, Houston's average temperature is 66.9 degrees. That's the warmest ever since recordkeeping began 120 years ago, topping the 66.5-degree average posted in 1911.

Galveston's been keeping track of weather for 137 years and its 68.3 degrees is 1.3 degrees above the current record from 1882. And College Station's 65.2 degrees is a tick over the 65.1-degree mark from 1911. College Station weather records go back 110 years.

National Weather Service forecaster Charles Roeseler tells the Houston Chronicle (<http://bit.ly/JgbF48>) the lack of winter this year and warmer overnight low temperatures are responsible for the overall average temperature jumps.

Man sentenced in two ton drug bust

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Texas man has been sentenced to 10 years in prison in a 2-ton marijuana bust in a ring that prosecutors said stretched from Mexico to Kentucky.

U.S. District Judge John G. Heyburn II on Monday also sentenced Exsaul Silva-Garcia of McAllen, Texas, to five years of supervised release. A federal jury in Louisville in February found Silva-Garcia guilty of possession with intent to distribute more than 1,000 kilograms of marijuana.

Silva-Garcia and five others were arrested on Feb. 25, 2010 near Louisville. Police say they found a tractor-trailer stuck in sod that was carrying 3,766 pounds of marijuana in a hidden compartment. Prosecutors say Silva-Garcia and two others had called for a tow truck and were arrested.

Four other men were sentenced from three to 26 years in prison.

Convicted killer's execution delayed

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The execution of a man early next month for the slaying of a Dallas woman at her apartment more than 20 years ago has been delayed.

Dallas County prosecutors asked a judge to withdraw the June 6 execution date for 39-year-old Bobby Lee Hines because results of additional DNA testing in his case won't be available by then. District Court Judge Don Adams in Dallas approved the request Friday.

Hines was convicted of the 1991 murder of 26-year-old Michelle Wendy Haupt. She was stabbed with an ice pick and strangled.

Hines was 19 at the time and on probation for a burglary conviction. He was staying with the apartment complex maintenance man who lived next door to the victim and had access to all the keys in the development.

Dog recovered in puppy theft

HOUSTON (AP) — Two people are in custody for stealing an expensive puppy from a Houston pet store in an incident where a woman used her two small children to help in the theft.

Harris County sheriff's officials say they arrested a woman Monday at an apartment complex after getting a call the puppy was there. Then she told them about a man in a nearby apartment and he was arrested while trying to flee out a window.

The puppy, a $3,000 English bulldog, has been recovered and safely returned to the store.

A surveillance video showed the woman and two kids, accompanied by two men, ask to see the dog Sunday. While the children are petting the dog, they all run off with the animal, jump into their car and speed away.

Man caught with abducted woman

EL PASO (AP) — A 31-year-old El Paso man is facing multiple charges after authorities say he was arrested at the border trying to flee to Mexico with his abducted girlfriend.

Police say after Manuel Aguirre was arrested Sunday morning, he was taken to a hospital for medical treatment and disappeared. El Paso police had to secure a surrounding area until he was found hiding in a ceiling above a rest room.

Authorities say the woman was in another car, tried to run away after he rammed it repeatedly with his SUV and was grabbed and forced into his vehicle. They were stopped by border officials at a bridge to Mexico.

El Paso police say he had outstanding warrants and previous convictions and is held Monday on bond totaling nearly $580,000.

AAA estimates travel up for weekend

HOUSTON (AP) — AAA Texas is estimating 2.8 million Texans will travel at least 50 miles from home during the upcoming Memorial Day holiday weekend.

That's up 2 percent from a year ago.

Travel by car is the most common transportation mode, with nearly 2.5 million Texans hitting the roads for destinations more than 50 miles away. The motor club said Monday another 213,000 Texas residents will be flying and another 138,000 boarding buses, trains or cruise ships.

The average round trip for them is 580 miles and the AAA estimates the average family will spend $533 during the Thursday through Monday holiday period.

for arresting people. A lot of my drug cases took me to New Mexico, Oklahoma and stuff like that."

As a former narcotics cop, Lee said that he recognizes that drugs stands as the county's biggest crime problem.

"I know it is," he said. "Yeah, there is a definite problem in all counties, and Pampa's no different. I'd say that there was probably as much drugs in Pampa, Texas, per capita as what Amarillo is."

Lee added that his experience could be valuable in sharpening the Sheriff's Office's skills in the fight against drugs.

"I've worked narcotics and I know how to train other guys and help them along to work it, too," he said. "Our problem is that we have officers that can go out and write a ticket or they can go out and take calls, but very, very few officers are actually trained in narcotics. You know, it just takes a different breed to work (narcotics). ... I feel that I have experience and I've trained officers in narcotics and actually trained them how to do interdiction and work local stuff, which is a whole lot different than just working highways.

"Right now, they have two or three guys down there on I-40 and that's all they do. They do that drug interdiction, but they had to go to schools to do that, to learn all that. Myself, I know how to train these guys and tell them what they need to do without sending them away, I know how to tell my guys, 'This is what you're looking for.'"

Overall, though, Lee said that he believes that the Sheriff's Department is doing a good job and expressed his respect for current sheriff Don Copeland, who he called "a good man who (he's) known a long time."

"I went over to Don (Copeland) and I talked to Don," Lee said. "Don told me he wasn't going to run, so that sort of made my decision to go ahead and run. Then, Don, of course, decided he was going to run, but I had already filed and put it out in the public that I was going to run. Well, if you don't know David Lee, if he told you he's going to do something, David Lee's going to do it, and that's just the way he is. If he told you he was going to do it, he's not going to back down from nobody, he's going to get her done."

"And another thing," he said with a laugh. "Somebody asked me (why I wanted to run), and I said, 'Well, when I grow up, I want to be Sheriff.' I figure, I've been thirty-something years in law enforcement, I could retire and go from there. I just wasn't ready to retire."

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, May 22, the 143rd day of 2012. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 22, 1972, President Richard Nixon began a visit to the Soviet Union, during which he and Kremlin leaders signed the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

On this date:

In 1761, the first American life insurance policy was issued in Philadelphia to a Rev. Francis Allison, whose premium was six pounds per year.

In 1860, the United States and Japan exchanged ratifications of the Treaty of Amity and Commerce during a ceremony in Washington.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared before Congress to explain his decision to veto a bill that would have allowed World War I veterans to cash in bonus certificates before their 1945 due date.

In 1939, the foreign ministers of Germany and Italy, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Galeazzo Ciano, signed a "Pact of Steel" committing the two countries to a military alliance.

In 1947, the Truman Doctrine was enacted as Congress appropriated military and economic aid for Greece and Turkey.

In 1960, an earthquake of magnitude 9.5, the strongest on record, struck southern Chile, claiming some 1,655 lives.

In 1962, Continental Airlines Flight 11, en route from Chicago to Kansas City, Mo., crashed after a bomb apparently brought on board by a passenger exploded, killing all 45 occupants of the Boeing 707.

In 1968, the nuclear-powered submarine USS Scorpion, with 99 men aboard, sank in the Atlantic Ocean. (The remains of the sub were later found on the ocean floor 400 miles southwest of the Azores.)

In 1969, the lunar module of Apollo 10, with Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene Cernan aboard, flew to within nine miles of the moon's surface in a dress rehearsal for the first lunar landing.

In 1972, the island nation of Ceylon became the republic of Sri Lanka.

In 1981 "Yorkshire Ripper" Peter Sutcliffe was convicted in London of murdering 13 women and was sentenced to life in prison.

In 1992, after a reign lasting nearly 30 years, Johnny Carson hosted NBC's "Tonight Show" for the last time.

Ten years ago: A jury in Birmingham, Ala., convicted former Ku Klux Klansman Bobby Frank Cherry of murder in a 1963 church bombing that killed four black girls. (Cherry, sentenced to life, died in a prison hospital in 2004.) The remains of Chandra Levy, the federal intern who'd disappeared more than a year earlier, were found in Washington, D.C.'s Rock Creek Park.

Five years ago: British prosecutors accused former KGB agent Andrei Lugovoi of murder in the radioactive poisoning of Alexander Litvinenko. (Russia, however, has refused to extradite Lugovoi.) Olympic gold medalist speedskater Apolo Anton Ohno and his professional dance partner, Julianne Hough (huhf), won ABC's "Dancing With the Stars."

One year ago: A tornado devastated Joplin, Mo., with winds up to 250 mph, claiming at least 159 lives and destroying about 8,000 homes and businesses. President Barack Obama defended his endorsement of Israel's 1967 boundaries as the basis for a future Palestine, telling the American Israel Public Affairs Committee his views reflected longstanding U.S. policy. Joseph Brooks, 73, the Academy Award-winning songwriter of "You Light Up My Life" who was awaiting trial for rape, was found dead in his Manhattan apartment, a suicide.

Crowded field vying to succeed Paul

WILL WEISSERT
Associated Press

LAKE JACKSON (AP) — When Republican congressional hopeful Randy Weber knocks on doors in Ron Paul's hometown and says he'd like to take "Dr. No's" place in Washington, he offers a caveat.

"I hasten to add that Ron Paul's not running again," said Weber, a two-term Texas state representative. "It's happening less now, but a lot of people look at you like, 'why would you want to run against him? How dare you?'"

Weber, 58, is one of nine Republicans vying for the party's nomination in Paul's congressional district, which includes Lake Jackson, where the 76-year-old Paul delivered hundreds of babies as an obstetrician, sends out holiday cookbooks with his wife Carol, and goes jogging or biking along Oyster Creek Drive.

In 2008, when Paul ran unsuccessfully for president, he also simultaneously ran for and was easily re-elected to Congress. This year, he only made a failed bid for the White House — and hasn't endorsed anyone in a crowded GOP field to take his House seat. If no candidate gets more than 50 percent of the party's vote during Texas' May 29 primary, a runoff will be held July 31.

"It's sort of like being the coach after Bear Bryant," said Jay Old, a 49-year-old Beaumont defense attorney and another Republican contender, referring to the University of Alabama legend.

While there's no reliable polling, the top Republican choices are thought to be Weber, Old, former Texas State University System regent Michael Truncale and Felicia Harris, a city council member from Pearland.

Jeff Crosby is a Democratic consultant in Austin who grew up in Paul's district and worked for challengers who previously tried to unseat him. He said locals like hardboiled politicians: "a lot of people down there, they're grumpy. There's no other way to put it."

Old took a more nuanced view, saying district voters, "lend themselves to independent-minded candidates who are willing to take a stand for what they and their people think is right."

"I feel comfortable with going in and being an independent voice," he said, "but not being Ron Paul's voice."

Paul endorsed Weber's two runs for the Texas House, and he hints that Paul might eventually support his congressional run too. But Weber also conceded he'd, "never fill his shoes completely because Dr. Paul's very much beloved and he's an icon in the area."

Paul represented the district for 24 years but not consecutively. He retired from Congress in 1984 and ran for president as a Libertarian four years later, before winning the Republican nomination to return to the House in 1997. Also, redistricting means the new district stretches along the Gulf Coast to encompass cities like Beaumont while skirting the suburbs south of Houston.

That could be good news for the likely Democratic nominee in the general election in November, former U.S. Rep. Nick Lampson. He served four terms in the House but was defeated in 2004. Lampson says about 80 percent of the geographic area in the district Paul is leaving behind now overlaps with his old district.

The area is a mix of shrimpers and fishing interests, rice farmers, oil and gas concerns, petrochemical firms and industry and shipping magnates. Many decry federal regulation of everything from oyster beds to emissions standards — but others chide Washington for failing to invest adequately in the region's ports, or rely on subsidy-dependent fields like the aerospace industry.

Paul largely managed to keep such disparate interests happy by being personally accessible, but also refused to deviate from his Libertarian principles — so much so that he was known on Capitol Hill as "Dr. No" for so often voting against legislation he saw as government overreach.

"There's a strong Libertarian base here, but there's also a substantial amount of people who think the world of Dr. Paul, as I do, but don't necessarily line up behind every issue with him," said Lake Jackson Mayor Bob Sipple, who has endorsed Weber in the primary.

When Hurricane Ike pounded Galveston on the Gulf Coast in 2008, Paul voted against disaster relief. Both Weber and Old say conservative values resonate with district voters. They agree on restoring fiscal discipline in Washington, rolling back federal regulation and repealing President Barack Obama's health care reform.

Both break with Paul in supporting government spending to bolster economic opportunity. Weber applauds using state funds to attract firms to Texas, while Old says Washington needs to do more to help the district's ports stay competitive.

At Weber's campaign headquarters, there's a bumper sticker with a coiled rattle snake over the words, "Don't tread on my gun rights" and five unflattering cartoons lambasting Obama and health care reform.

But at a recent reception in the waterfront community of Texas City, when a voter asked about Wisconsin Republican Rep. Paul Ryan's plan to gradually overhaul Medicare, Weber replied, "honestly I have not looked at it. I've only heard about it."

That didn't sit well with the questioner, retired engineer Jim Vayogas, who said of Weber, "I heard a lot of good discussion around the big topics but no specific answers."

Weber calls himself the "No. 1 conservative in the Texas Legislature," though his state House district has very little overlap with the congressional district. And, amid criticisms that he didn't live in the district, Weber recently sold his house and moved just a half-mile inside the district's boundaries.

Weber has lent his campaign more than $100,000, with Old paying $50,000 to bolster his run. But Old has raised more money — enough to air radio and television ads. Old has also drawn some criticism, however, for contributing to Democratic campaigns in the past, and voting in a Democratic primary as recently as 2010.

Old says Jefferson County, where he lives, has historically been heavily Democratic — and supporting the party was the only way to make a difference in local races.

"I'm not a wild-haired, yellow-dog Democrat guy," he said. "But I've got to support the local guys that are best for our community."

Fort Hood suspect dons mask in court

WACO (AP) — A soldier accused of planning to bomb Fort Hood troops in a restaurant last summer wore a mask in court for the first time Monday as a jury was selected in his federal trial.

Pfc. Naser Jason Abdo, who has been accused of spitting blood on authorities escorting him, wore an oval mask over his nose and mouth. Several U.S. marshals seated near him in the Texas courtroom wore protective glasses.

Abdo, a Muslim soldier who was AWOL from Fort Campbell, Ky., is accused of planning to bomb a restaurant in Killeen that was filled with soldiers from nearby Fort Hood and then shoot any survivors.

He faces up to life in prison if convicted of attempting to use a weapon of mass destruction and five other charges. Opening statements are expected to begin Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Waco, about 50 miles northeast of Killeen. Abdo, 22, is not being tried in military court.

His lead defense attorney, Zachary Boyd, referred to the mask while questioning potential jurors Monday.

"I have a concern. My client looks a little different today because he has a mask on," Boyd said, then asking if they had a problem with Abdo's mask. Nobody raised a hand.

The soldier has been accused of biting through his lip and spitting blood on a deputy U.S. marshal and a sheriff's deputy who were escorting him after a court hearing last month. Officials reported a previous blood-spitting incident on a jailer.

McLennan County Sheriff Larry Lynch said he couldn't comment on why Abdo was wearing a mask in court, and a gag order prevents attorneys from discussing anything about the case publicly.

Killeen police began investigating Abdo after an employee from Guns Galore called July 26, saying a young man bought six pounds of smokeless gunpowder, shotgun ammunition and a magazine for a semiautomatic pistol — while seeming to know little about his purchases, according to previous court testimony and documents.

Copeland

The Gray County Sheriff's Office in the jail, deputies, dispatch and secretaries," he said. "Everybody's good and they take care of the citizens of Gray County very well."

"We have a sufficient number of jail staff now, and we are strong advocates of good law enforcement officers who act with honesty and integrity," he added.

Copeland makes it a point that his employees stay up with the state's training requirements.

"Training is very important to law enforcement to stay up with what's new," he said. "We've had 500-plus hours distributed among our deputies since last August, and we continue to do that."

For Copeland, the main crime facing the county isn't much of a mystery.

"To me, drug use is probably the number one problem we have, as well as everyone else in the United States," he said. "It causes people to commit other crimes like theft and robbery."

Copeland hopes to continue the work he has been doing the last 16 years.

"We try to enforce the policies of the county," he said. "I appreciate the confidence of Gray County allowing me to be their sheriff the last 15 and a half years, and would appreciate their continued support."

Financial planning for those who can't

The Savage Truth on money

Many families focus on Mother's Day and Father's Day during this season of the year. But for many moms and dads, it is a bittersweet recognition. They are parents of children with disabilities — children who will never be fully capable of caring for themselves, living independently, earning a living and managing their finances.

For them, the task of parenting has a never-ending timeline. And what they worry about most is what will happen when they, in all likelihood, pass on ahead of their children.

How do you create a lifetime plan for someone who will always need care? It's not only a question of money, but a question of responsibility. Fortunately, there is a financial planner who has dedicated her life to creating a planning system for families of children with disabilities.

Mary Anne Ehlert's interest in planning for these children started with her own sister, whose disabilities as result of cerebral palsy affected the entire family. The story is detailed in Ehlert's book, "The Gift I Was Given."

The need to confront the issues of financing and planning for her sister led Ehlert to create a simple workbook designed to chronicle life histories and catalog important information. It has since grown into a broad-based planning and advocacy program for the disabled.

You can find it all at www.ProtectedTomorrows.com. The website describes it best: "Protected Tomorrows Inc. is an advocacy firm that enhances the lives of people with special needs through a comprehensive life planning process. We create Future Care Plans, which address the needs of the individual with developmental disabilities, mental illness, physical disabilities or cognitive and neurological diseases in the following areas: education, residential, legal, financial, health care, government benefits and employment."

There are several ways to access all the assistance and information. Over the years, I've watched — and written about — Mary Anne as she works with families to help them find resources and work with attorneys to create special needs trusts to give their children the best opportunities. She also has a staff of planners who develop and coordinate care plans. There are even group sessions, where as many as 20 families learn the do's and don'ts of planning for their children.

The real genius, though, is Mary Anne's recognition that many families can't afford this kind of intensive planning. So she created a computerized program that costs $129 to get started, plus an annual fee of $29. It is an online program that helps families think through all the decisions that must be made on behalf of their children.

— Who will be the future caregivers and trustees?

— How can money be set aside for care without affecting federal benefit programs?

— What happens when your child reaches age 18, or 21, and "ages out" of many benefits for children, such as participation in the special education system?

— What plan is in place for when one or both parents die?

One of the critical elements of the process is the "My Special Life" workbook. Children who are able to understand the concept are encouraged to get involved — talking about their lives, posting pictures of themselves — all in a process to build self-esteem.

Says Ehlert: "It's as if you were creating a retirement plan for a child. It's a lifetime process that will need to be revised and updated, so having it well organized is important."

Sadly, despite modern medicine and genetic testing, there is a growing need for this kind of planning. According to the latest report (March 29, 2012) from the Centers for Disease Control, one in 88 children is being diagnosed with autism — up from one in 110 children in 2006. Among boys, the rate of autism disorders is one in 54, almost five times the rate for girls.

And those numbers create greater need for counseling and planning services. Ehlert is now working with corporations, presenting seminars as part of an employee benefit program. She estimates that in any employee group, it's likely that one in 20 has a family member who needs to deal with this issue. Employees who have access to her planning system are less likely to be distracted — or leave the workforce entirely to care for a family member. And Ehlert frequently offers public seminars, open to all.

For more information go to www.ProtectedTomorrows.com or call 847-522-8086.

I leave you with these words from the ProtectedTomorrows.com website:

We believe that every human being has a right to live life to his or her fullest potential. ... Provide a person with the means to live a fuller life and you give more meaning to yours. ... If only the strong were to survive, wouldn't all of our lives be greatly diminished?

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, May 23, 2012:
 You have a gift for effortlessly making friends this year. As a result, many of your long-term dreams could become realities. Learn to work with the unexpected more easily. If you can relax rather than become tense, you will be able to handle an innate volatility this year. If you are single, you'll meet several potential suitors and will have difficulty selecting. Don't, but take a workshop in the art of diplomacy. If you are attached, don't fight over money -- get separate checking accounts. CANCER is moody.
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ***** Sometimes even the best of intentions go haywire, making you wonder what your role in this mess was. At this point in time, you might have a very controlling boss or friend. Do your best not to respond to his or her game. Tonight: Happily head home.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ***** Communication runs amok, as someone might not do or say what you feel is needed in a certain circumstance. Clearly, someone you are dealing with wants to have things his or her way. Detach and let this person have just that. Tonight: Visit with pals.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ***** Your vision and another person's vision of what works might be in direct opposition. Choose not to make it an issue, and distance yourself appropriately. Let this person see the "rightness" of his or her ways, though do be nice. Tonight: Buy a new item for summer.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ***** You might feel that you are in an either-or situation. Don't take others' comments personally. Your best move might be to simply pull back until a situation is resolved. The unexpected occurs out of the blue. Avoid a power play at all costs. Tonight: What you want to do.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ***** You might choose to distance yourself some from all the goings-on around you. You feel as if someone is pushing too hard to have his or her way. A simple "no" doesn't seem to work. The unexpected occurs. Tonight: Take a personal night.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ***** You will need to focus, as many people might attempt to distract you. Could an argument be building with a child or loved one? He or she might need your reassurance. Deal with joint financial issues carefully. There is a latent issue emerging. Tonight: Among friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ***** Tension builds, as a respected elder, boss or parent demands that certain matters be done his or her way. Push easily comes to shove. Hard words are spoken. Don't get into this power play. The only way to win a control game is not to play. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ***** You might want to rethink a personal situation. Talk to someone with more experience in such matters who is not involved. Detach and don't get into a struggle of wills. Recognize that no one wins that way. Let the other party be upset for a while. You cannot be responsible for his or her mood. Tonight: Take in a different vision.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ***** Deal with each person individually, even if this isn't the norm for you. Relating directly helps you establish needed boundaries. Someone needs to understand that he or she doesn't have access to your funds as if they were his or her own! Tonight: A cozy dinner for two.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ***** You might want to rethink a personal issue rather than keep pushing to have your way. You might not realize how you are coming off. Do you really want the other party in this interaction to feel pushed? Tonight: Why not allow someone else to make the first move and choose the plans?
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ***** You are concerned about finishing up an errand or completing a project. Your mind is elsewhere; therefore, you could cause yourself a problem. An unexpected call or email could bring you back to the here and now. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ***** Your imagination takes over. Even when someone tries to be controlling, your sense of humor makes it close to impossible to take this person seriously. By not playing, you break past a new barrier. Tonight: Let the romantic in you out.

Douglas

smoking inside," he added. Douglas also believes the office's computer system is in need of an update.

"(The computers) don't even have a spell check in them, and everything that comes through there comes through the computers, and we have to keep them updated," he said. "That's something that's very important. When you buy something, you need to buy it with all the amenities in it."

Douglas sees a need for a greater sense of stability in terms of employees in the office.

"We're working on our ninth chief deputy in 14 years," he said. "We've got the eleventh maintenance man in 14 years. ... You want to hire people you can keep, and retain those people. You don't want to retain everybody."

"That's an expense to the county, and these people have put in a lot of time and effort, and they're a valuable investment to Gray County. We need to keep them instead of changing over all the time."

Increased training could improve stability and interoffice collaboration, according to Douglas.

"That's something that you never get enough of, and then you have to go out and apply that," he said. "That goes back to stability of people being here, not changing them, so they'll know everybody, know people in the other counties. We are centered in Gray County, but we're part of the top 26 counties in the Panhandle. ... You have to have that relationship. Your officers have to work with these people. Everyone has to mesh."

Douglas has been involved with the Optimist Club, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H, the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, and has served as a deacon at his church and on the boards of the Pampa Municipal Credit Union and United Way, which reflects his philosophy of serving the community.

"I think that's very important, to pick out something that ties you to the community," he said. "I think you ought to give back. I don't think that you ought to be sitting here, living here a long time, and never have done anything for the community. It's important that you give back what you've received. Me and my wife, we've received a lot from this community."

Douglas has lived in Gray County almost 40 years, and he hopes to serve as sheriff in the community that he loves.

"I want to use my law enforcement experience to help those people, to serve them," he said. "That's what this job is, a job to serve the people."

Stubblefield

here. ... We can build a relationship with the police department here that would be beneficial to all the citizens."

Stubblefield said that he doesn't have any particularly deep criticisms for incumbent Don Copeland or for the way the Sheriff's Office is presently run, although as a long-time law enforcement officer, Stubblefield said that he does have a few reforms that he'd enact if he were elected.

"I see changes that I think need to be made," Stubblefield said. "There's things that I would be different than what the current administration's doing. The main thing I see that the Sheriff's Department needs is a full-time investigator. The system they have now is that an officer goes out and takes an initial report, and he's supposed to follow up on that. That's just not working out. ... With a full-time investigator, the officer would go out and make the initial report, and then the full-time investigator would go out and talk to suspects, follow up on the case and carry the case all the way through to presentation to either the county attorney or the district attorney. It's not the officer's fault. It's the way the system is right now. With all the duties and details they have to do — transporting prisoners, serving papers and all that — they can't be full-time investigators and do the other duties that's required of them."

Stubblefield also mentioned a need to lessen the population in the Gray County Jail.

"We're going to have to figure out some way to work with the judges and the prosecutors to relieve the overcrowding in the county jail," he said. "When I was sheriff, we tried to hold the jail population down into the 50s range. Right now, we've been having to farm out prisoners down to Childress, and that's been costing Gray County tax dollars to have them down there. What we need to do is work with the prosecutors and work with the judges, and the cases they feel would be better served justice-wise by doing plea bargains, we need to do that and get those cases taken care of and get those individuals out of jail."

As a former sheriff, Stubblefield added that he knows that any changes he'd make could require funds and that because he's held the office before, he knows how to be a good steward of the county's money.

"As someone who's held this position before, I'm used to the system working with the county commissioners and the county judge," he said. "I know that the changes that I want to make, I can only make if the funds are available. (I know) that those funds are tax dollars and that we as administrators of those tax dollars have to make sure that they are spent in the most favorable way for the taxpayer and the most beneficial way for law enforcement. It's not going to be a learning experience for me going to it, trying to figure out if I can buy this or can I afford that or whatever. I know what can be spent."

"The four years I was sheriff, I came in under budget every year," he continued. "I never had to go back to the commissioners court and say, 'Hey, I overspent.' In each area of the budget, you have line items. I would have to get transfers because I may be short on vehicle maintenance, but I was long on some other line item, so I could just enter budget transfers and make up the difference. But on the overall budget, every year, I turned back money to the county, which means savings for tax dollars."

All in all, Stubblefield said, he wants to return to the sheriff position to continue to give back to the entire community.

"The main thing is that I have always tried in my public service as a law enforcement officer to benefit the citizens I'm serving, whether it's in Roberts County or down in Donley County or right here at home in Gray County," he said. "When I was sheriff, I started the first drug program in Gray County, and that was 20 years ago, 18 years ago. We started the DARE program in the school system to try to teach kids to say no to drugs. We had that program going in Lefors, McLean and here in Pampa."

"(Lefors and McLean) are part of Gray County, too, a big part," he added. "When I was sheriff before, I would go to Lefors, I would go to McLean. I would go to parks department meetings, go down and visit with the city leaders. I'd say, 'OK, what do you want from your sheriff's office?' I've always been involved in the community, and I want to maintain that."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 42-year-old woman who has been living with my boyfriend, "Matt." He has asked me to marry him, and I said yes. The problem is, Matt is still married.

Matt and his wife have been separated for eight years. I keep telling him to get in touch with her and see if she filed for divorce, but he keeps putting it off.

I really do love this man, Abby. Matt is good to me and to my children and grandchildren, but sometimes I don't know what to think or do. I want us to buy a house, but I'm scared that if we do, she'll try to take it from us. He says she wouldn't. Please give me some advice. — LADY IN WAITING IN LOUISIANA

DEAR LADY IN WAITING: I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but a marriage proposal from a man who is still married means nothing. I urge you to PLEASE consult a lawyer before putting money into any joint financial ventures with this man. He may be "good" to you, your children and grandchildren, but he hasn't been completely forthright.

Your concerns are justified. Listen to your woman's intuition. It's sending you an important message.

Wheel Times, Inc. to hold first softball event today

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvesters' season may be over, but people can still get their softball fix as WheelTimes, Inc. will introduce the sport today at 6:30 p.m. at Harvester Football Field.

"I'm excited," Brad Pingel, Pampa mayor and group founder, said. "I'm not really sure how its going to go. (We're) going to see how the kids take to it, play the game and have fun."

WheelTimes, Inc. started last year and gives children with physical disabilities the chance to experience the joy of playing sports. The group has hosted an event every month.

Before the game, there will be free hot dogs and hamburgers at 6 p.m.

Pingel

Pingel said the game will be similar to softball but with some changes.

"It's going to be modified," Pingel said. "We are going to use the tee and we will still have volunteers that will help get the kids around the bases. They'll use a regular bat and softball to use."

Last year, the group held soccer and basketball events. During the high school basketball season, WheelTimes Inc. held competitions during halftime of the varsity boys basketball games. Participants were in wheelchairs the whole time.

Pingel said participants won't have to be in chairs the whole time today.

"We've got a couple of kids that feel more comfortable on their crutches," Pingel said. "They may choose to use their crutches to go around the bases."

Pingel said he has several people volunteering and encourages people to come out and watch.

"Cheer these kiddos on when they get a hit," Pingel said. "To me, the crowd is just as important as anything."
