'Capturing' among claims against Prime

(Editor's note: The following story is the last in a series about accusations surrounding the business practices of Prime Healthcare Services, new owners of Pampa Regional Medical Center.)

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com

Prime Healthcare Services, the California-based hospital chain which recently purchased the Pampa Regional Medical Center (PRMC), was the subject of a February hearing in California that examined the company's emergency room practices. California lawmakers have since reconsidered state law that allows hospitals to charge insurers high rates for the treatment of privately insured patients who are outside of the hospital's medical network.

Health care providers Heritage Provider Network and Kaiser Permanente have accused Prime of "patient capturing," a practice that involves refusing to transfer patients to generate higher revenue for out-of-network patient treatment. Kaiser and Heritage, which are both involved in litigation with Prime, declined to comment for this story.

Sandy Taylor-Davey of Garden Grove, Calif., testified that her family experienced this firsthand when her grandmother, Dorothy Taylor, stayed at Prime's West Anaheim Medical Center in June of 2009. Taylor's family requested her transfer to Orange Coast Memorial Hospital to be treated by her primary care doctor, but medical staff at Prime told them that she was unstable for transfer, and had come down with septicemia and pneumonia, in addition to having a heart valve issue, which the staff planned to fix.

"When the doctor eventually came by, I expected he would at least be clearer on the matters at hand," said Taylor-Davey during testimony. "Instead, he said in front of my grandmother that she could die on the trip

Two indicted by Hemphill County jury

THE PAMPA NEWS

A Hemphill County grand jury returned three indictments against two people last month.

Taylor Anthony Adkins, 28, was indicted on two charges of burglary of a habitation, in connection with two December 2011 incidents. Bond for Adkins was set at $50,000.

Christopher Paul Moreno, 25, was indicted on a charge of intentionally or knowingly failing to provide his address as a registered sex offender, in connection with a February incident. Bond for Moreno was set at $30,000.

Hemphill County is part of the 31st Judicial District of Texas, along with Gray, Lipscomb, Roberts, and Wheeler counties.

Texas GOP's Mechler to speak in Pampa

ARNIE AURELLANO
 editor@thepampanews.com

The Top Of Texas Republican Women are bringing another high-ranking member of the Texas Republican Party to Pampa to speak at one of its meetings, and this time, it's a familiar face.

The keynote speaker will be Tom Mechler of Amarillo, the treasurer of the state GOP. Mechler is a former Pampan and local party official, becoming the county party chair in 1993.

Mechler follows Texas parry head Steve Munisteri in appearing at a Republican Women meeting; Munisteri spoke in Pampa this past April. Mechler unsus-with us also, so we set it up then for him to come."

Mechler will speak at the TOTRW meeting at noon on Wed., June 20, at the Pampa Senior Citizens Center.

The talk, like Munisteri's, will be open cessfully ran against Munisteri for Texas GOP chairman in 2010.

"You know, Tom actually came when Steve Munisteri came," said Jana Vinson, president of the TOTRW. "He said he'd like to speak to the public and free of charge.

"It's open for anybody, even if they're not a member of our club," Vinson said. "We want to invite the public to come to this. We just think it's very important because we want everyone to be informed about what's going on. This is a big election, and we don't want to look back and say, 'Why didn't we do that?'"

Mechler, especially, is a relevant speaker because of his ties to the area, Vinson said.

"We've been grateful that he's willing to come to Pampa and share with us what's happening in the Republican Party," Vinson said. "I think it's great that to Orange Coast Memorial, so they wouldn't allow the transfer. So now he's frightened my grandmother about the trip to Orange Coast, hasn't provided much more information and also stated to me directly that the hospital was fully capable and allowed to be performing the heart valve procedure themselves."

"We felt trapped by that hospital, and it felt like an episode of Twilight Zone," she added.

Two days later, Taylor was transferred to Orange Coast Memorial Hospital, where she was diagnosed with kidney trouble and a urinary tract infection. Doctors there didn't find any trouble with her heart valve.

"The entire situation at West Anaheim Medical was incredibly stressful," testified Taylor-Davey. "I don't think I've ever experienced something so bizarre in my life. They just wouldn't let her out. What if my grandmother had been alone? What if my family didn't know so much about her care?"

Jonathan Gluck, senior executive and counsel at Heritage, noted during testimony that 36 percent of Heritage's patients have one to two-day stays at non-Prime hospitals.

"At the Prime facilities, 64 percent of our patients who go to the emergency room are admitted for a one- or two-day length of stay," said Gluck. "That is simply not statistically credible. It doesn't make any sense other than the fact that the emergency room is being used as an admission mechanism. We then are expected to pay—or they seek full bill charges, and if full bill charges are not paid, we wind up being sued."

"If you have a heart attack and you go to the hospital, you're not going to be admitted for a one or two-day length of stay," he added. "You're going to have a much longer length of stay. So if you look at those really short stays, those are the ones where you can tell that it may be because the emergency department is being used, not as a care provision mechanism, but more as a revolving door into the hospital mechanism."

Gluck said that Prime can generate additional revenue by billing for services and per diems during short stays in a noncontracted facility.

Brad Morse, CEO of PRMC said that emergency room patients must be kept by law until something is decided.

"You can't just transfer them to another hospital because you're not on their plan, so we were taking care of the patient, doing what we needed to do for the patient, and if the patient didn't want to go, we weren't sending them back to a place they didn't want to go," said Morse.

Court won't hear candy cane case

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court says it will not review a lower court's decision that two Dallas-area elementary school principals have immunity from liability for stopping students from handing out Christian candy cane pens and other on-campus religious expressions.

The Supreme Court said Monday that it will not review the decision made last fall by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. Also in that decision, a majority held that the principals went too far and may have violated the children's free-speech rights.

Four families with students in Plano schools sued in 2004, claiming their children had been banned from handing out the materials in what became known as the "candy cane" case.

Other parts of the case continue in other courts.

Hearing to challenge voter law

GALVESTON (AP) — A federal judge in Galveston is to consider motions in a lawsuit filed by a Washington-based voters' rights group that contends Texas laws make it illegally difficult to register voters.

The group Voting for America is seeking an injunction to block enforcement of laws they say keep registration records from the public, attack voter registration drives and impede its "mission of voter advocacy."

State lawyers deny anything improper and say the organization has met none of the requirements for obtaining an injunction. They also argue that the group wants to process voter registrations it collects with no state oversight and risk no penalty if ineligible citizens become registered voters.

The hearing set for Monday afternoon is before U.S. District Judge Gregg Costa.

Texas top refugee destination

HOUSTON (AP) — A report finds Texas has become the favorite destination for refugees seeking haven in the United States.

Houston on Monday began marking World Refugee Day, which is June 20.

The Houston Chronicle reports more than 5,600 refugees reached Texas last year. Houston was the favorite city nationwide.

The federal Office of Refugee Resettlement says a total of 56,419 refugees settled in the U.S. during 2011, with about 10 percent in Texas.

Caitriona Lyons with the state's Refugee Resettlement Program credits the strong Texas economy and affordable housing.

A refugee is defined as someone unable or unwilling to return to his or her homeland because of persecution or a well-founded fear of persecution due to race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group or political opinion.

Texas offers grants to replace diesel

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Commission on Environmental Quality is offering $5.7 million in grants to replace diesel vehicles with ones that use hybrid or alternative energy technology.

The grants are available under the Texas Clean Fleet Program and can be applied to vehicles using electricity, natural gas, propane, hydrogen or methanol. Organizations that have at least 75 on-road vehicles and intend to replace at least 20 diesel vehicles can apply for the grants.

Texas lawmakers have tried to encourage companies with large fleets of big diesel vehicles to switch to cleaner fuels. They have also passed laws encouraging natural gas fueling stations around the Dallas-Houston-San Antonio triangle.

Many Texas cities are close to violating federal clean air standards. Replacing older trucks and buses could help avert triggering strict federal rules.

Paint ball gun stops burglar

GALVESTON (AP) — Police say a Southeast Texas woman whipped out a paint ball gun and opened fire with distinctive yellow hue to stop a burglary suspect.

Galveston police say a 53-year-old man who sometimes mowed the woman's yard was arrested inside her home.

Bond has been set at $40,000 for Elvis Alexander of Galveston on a charge of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit theft. Online jail records Monday did not list an attorney for Alexander.

The Galveston County Daily News reports 34-year-old Carrie King called police Friday to say an intruder was in her home and she was hiding.

An arriving officer heard the firing of a paint ball gun and the sound of impact.

Police say Alexander was struck several times. He did not require medical help.

Man kills daughter's attacker

SHINER (AP) — A father beat to death with his hands a man who tried molesting his 4-year-old daughter after the little girl was heard screaming on the family's rural Texas ranch, authorities said Monday.

Lavaca County Sheriff Micah Harmon said the father, whose name has not been released, is unlikely to be arrested for Saturday's killing and that no evidence so far has led investigators to doubt his story.

"There doesn't appear to be any reason other than what he told us," Harmon said.

Harmon said the victim was a 47-year-old man from Gonzales with no apparent prior criminal history. His name continued to be withheld Monday because authorities still hadn't tracked down any of his family.

The victim was an "acquaintance" of the father who had come to help care for some horses, Harmon said. He did not know how long the two men may have known each other. The girl was taken to a hospital to be examined and has since been released, Harmon said.

The father called police late Saturday afternoon and told them he attacked a man caught trying to sexually assault his daughter, Harmon said. The alleged attack happened near a barn where some horses were being kept.

"In the course of trying to get her away from him, and protect her, he struck the subject several times in the head and the subject died," Harmon said.

States have millions to give away!

The Savage Truth on money

More than $7 billion of Federal TARP (Troubled Asset Relief Program) funds are sitting around in 18 states and the District of Columbia — just waiting to be given to homeowners who have fallen behind in their mortgage payments!

This is not a fantasy. It is cold, hard cash that was meant to help keep the unemployed from losing their homes. But some states are having a tough time actually putting the money to work. The irony is that this is named the "Hardest Hit" program — but the money isn't getting to its destination.

There is $300 million sitting at the Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA) — just waiting to help homeowners who have fallen behind on their mortgages. The website for information is www.IllinoisHardestHit.org.

But Illinois isn't alone: Florida also has millions to give away to troubled homeowners. It's website for the program is www.FLHardestHitHelp.org.

And Michigan still has some of its nearly $500 million in housing money left. The website in Michigan is www.StepForwardMichigan.org.

And some of Nevada's Hardest Hit mortgage funding is available at www.NevadaHardestHitFund.nv.gov.

In Tennessee, you can find the program at www.HardestHitTN.org.

While each state has crafted its own program to distribute the money, the entire concept of the TARP "Hardest Hit" program is aimed directly at helping people before the situation gets out of hand. Those who are a few months behind in paying their mortgage can get a grant — free money — to bring them up to date. And the program will keep helping them pay their mortgage so they can stay in their homes!

This program couldn't come at a better time — because our nation's housing crisis just won't go away. Part of the problem is directly attributable to the unemployment situation. Those who have lost jobs are almost certain to lose their homes to foreclosure. That's why the Hardest Hit program is authorized to make mortgage payments (with some restrictions) for those who are unemployed, or underemployed.

It's not as if there haven't been attempts to stop the foreclosure crisis. Under the Bush administration, a telephone hotline was set up — 888-995-HOPE. It helped few people, and was mired in red tape as financial institutions struggled to deal with delinquencies.

That was followed by the Obama administration's "Making Home Affordable" program (www.MakingHomeAffordable.gov). But it, too, failed to stem the tide of foreclosures, as its HAMP modification plan was viewed as too complex for mortgage servicers to handle.

That was followed last fall by HARP (Home Affordable Refinance Program), designed for people who were current on their payments, but underwater on the value of their home vs. the amount of the mortgage. Both programs remain in effect, but have had minimal impact on foreclosures.

The federal Hardest Hit program started slowly, and at year-end 2011, only about 30,000 families had been helped.

One cause of the delay in pushing money through the system was the reluctance of mortgage servicers (and Fannie and Freddie) to accept payments from the program! But in most states that challenge has been overcome. And although each state has a slightly different program and restrictions, in every instance the first step requires meeting with a HUD-certified housing counseling agency. Illinois has succeeded in getting processing finished and payments to lenders within 60 days of application.

In each state, housing advocates are trying to get the word out about this relatively new program. Neighborhood Housing Services Executive Director Ed Jacob says: "This is the best tool in our toolbox now for keeping people in their homes. It recognizes that the cause of foreclosure has moved to loss of income, as opposed to poorly underwritten loans. That's the real challenge we're seeing in the neighborhoods."

The real issue now is getting people into the program before they are too far behind on their mortgage to qualify for these funds.

Of course, there are restrictions on this helpful mortgage grant deal. Check with your state's Housing Development Authority to find out if there is Hardest Hit money available — and to get the rules.

The Illinois program is fairly typical:

— The property must be located in Illinois.

— The owners must have a documented income reduction of at least 20 percent, through unemployment or underemployment

— Household income must be below 120 percent of area median income. (In Chicago, that's $63,720 for an individual, or $72,840 for a two-person household.)

— Principal loan balance must not be more than $500,000.

— Household liquid assets cannot exceed $10,000 (or $12,500) depending on county of residence.

— Homeowner must reside in the property, and the homeowner cannot own any other residential property in Illinois, or in any state.

Since each program is set up by individual states, there is no one good place to get specific information. But here's a link to the National Council of State Housing Agencies www.ncsha.org/advocacy-issues/hardest-hit-foreclosure-initiative. It's a good place to learn more about the overall program and get an idea of what your state is doing to help those who are unable to stay current on their mortgage.

The news is getting out, and the funds are limited, so don't delay. It sounds too good to be true, I know. But it's the real deal. And that's the Savage Truth.

Wildfires continue in Colo., N.M.

BELLVUE, Colo. (AP) — Authorities say they have found the remains of a person reported missing in an area burned by a 64-square-mile fire in northern Colorado.

Larimer County Sheriff Justin Smith says 62-year-old Linda Steadman's home received two emergency notifications after the fire started this weekend, and a firefighter who tried to get her home to warn her was chased out by flames.

Smith says Steadman's remains were found Monday. Her family has asked to grieve privately. The fire also has damaged an estimated 118 structures west of Fort Collins and has prompted hundreds of evacuations. Firefighters haven't been determined how many were homes and how many were sheds or other structures.

The Colorado blaze and massive wildfires in drought-parched New Mexico have been testing the resources of state and federal crews. Meanwhile, the fast-moving wildfire in southern New Mexico now is 30 percent contained after air and ground crews took advantage of a break in the weather.

The blaze has charred tens of thousands of acres in just three days and forced hundreds of residents to leave their homes in southern New Mexico.

But winds subsided Monday and the almost 950 firefighters were able to build fire lines on the east side of the blaze. They now are concentrating on constructing additional lines on the south side, which is nearest to the mountain community of Ruidoso.

Dan Ware, a spokesman with New Mexico State Forestry, said Sunday that infrared mapping done overnight shows that the Little Bear fire has grown to more than 26,000 acres, or 40 square miles. Officials say the lightning-sparked fire in the Sierra Blanca mountain range still burned about 1,500 more acres Monday, pushing its total to about 36,000 acres.

Crews had estimated that 20 structures were destroyed, but increased that to 36 on Sunday. They could not say how many of the structures were homes.

New Mexico Gov. Susana Martinez was visiting Ruidoso on Sunday to get the latest developments and attend a meeting updating the public on firefighting efforts.

The mix of timber, dry grass and the steepness of the slopes were making the firefighting efforts more difficult.

The fire was burning in steep, rocky, inaccessible terrain in the White Mountain Wilderness of the Lincoln National Forest, which is home to Smokey Bear, who became the nation's symbol of fire prevention in the 1940s.

The firefighters were battling the blaze with help from three large air tankers, three heavy helicopters and three Blackhawk helicopters. There were also 100 National Guard troops in Ruidoso.

Davis, who repeatedly entered his truck to the delight of the crowd, blew a tire, shook trim off the back of the vehicle and, with his last run of the afternoon, caught his engine on fire, earning a special Burnout "Best in Show" award from Burnin' the Bricks organizers.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, June 13, 2012:
This year you might rely more on your creativity than you normally do. The results will be excellent, though you often might be challenged by a partner or loved one. Make this OK, as you will learn where there might be room for improvement with a plan. If you are single, you meet people with ease, but often discover that they are difficult, withdrawn or depressed. If you do not want this type of relationship, move on. If you are attached, avoid nitpicking over money with a partner. It won't help; instead, it will cause tremendous irritation. ARIES is a loyal and fun friend.
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ A serious edge to your communication style could color an important relationship. Consider moving in a new direction, which would allow more of your ingenuity and humor to emerge. You could turn a difficult situation into one that is far easier. Tonight: All smiles.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ You might want to play a passive or laid-back role in what is happening. You also might not have much of a choice, considering your obligations and energy level. You can push yourself only so far. Return calls. Tonight: Check that your budget is in order.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Keep your long-term goals in mind. You could be concerned by a loved one and his or her attitude. Understand your limitations, and know that you can do only so much. Recognize what you want from this situation, and quietly walk toward that goal. Tonight: Chat away.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ You often are sought out to handle difficult situations or to give advice. Such is the case today, but you also are juggling your own needs. A family member can be downright depressing. Walk away from negativity, whether it is personal or professional. Tonight: Indulge yourself for a change.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ You could opt to detach from what is occurring at the moment, and you might be a lot happier as a result. Conversations could be unduly heavy or serious. The more you avoid this energy and just deal with the issue, the better. Tonight: Get together with friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Deal with a partner directly. Hopefully this person can identify what is causing a sense of tension or concern with your budget. A conversation for only your ears could be more significant than you realize. Listen to what is being shared. Tonight: Out to dinner with a loved one.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You might feel overwhelmed and could be making this feeling even more intense by either ignoring it or inflating it. Your best bet is to just energize and get done what you must. As soon as you clear out some of your responsibilities or errands, you will feel better. Tonight: Stay sensitive to a loved one.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Remain even when dealing with an associate or someone who is a part of your daily life. If you feel negatively about a request or situation, be sure to weigh the pros against the cons before announcing your concerns. Also, ask for feedback from a friend or loved one. Tonight: Know when to call it a night.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Much is happening around you. Do you really want to be involved? Choose your battles wisely. Allow more friends and fun to permeate your relationships. Understand what is needed from you. Tonight: Already in weekend mode.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You are well-grounded on the basics of life, and you know how to encourage others. Someone around you could feel quite dejected, but you'll help this person get through it. Maintain a high level of privacy. Tonight: A must event.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Keep communication flowing. News or a call from a friend at a distance might put you off. Listen carefully, and you'll find that there are mitigating circumstances here. Not all is as it seems. Tap into your imagination, and you will see a situation differently. Tonight: Become a creature of the night.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Your ability to weave past a restriction is admirable, but a partner keeps blocking the path, leaving you in limbo. Detach as much as you can to gain understanding. Timing will be on your side later. Let go of a hassle for now. Tonight: Dinner for two.

Dear Abby...
By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who is 55, has been diagnosed with Pick's disease, or frontotemporal dementia. His prognosis is from two to seven years — only God knows. We are handling this with better-than-average concern. It is his diabetes that everyone keeps going on about. He's on medication and his diabetes is under control.

My problem is, I let my husband eat whatever he wants within reason. If we're out to dinner and he wants ice cream, or asks me to buy him his favorite lemon cookies, I don't argue. When people tell me I shouldn't do that, my husband replies that he is already dying, so why shouldn't he enjoy his life now?

He still enjoys baseball and taking our granddaughter to the zoo. He is still mobile and, in fact, has recently lost 45 pounds. People don't understand his attitude, but he is right. He IS dying, and I am letting him enjoy his final years. Am I wrong for doing this? I want him to enjoy what he can now, as there will come a time when he can't. — LOVES HIM IN NEBRASKA

DEAR LOVES HIM: Please accept my sympathy for your husband's diagnosis. As someone who also believes in quality of life rather than quantity, I see nothing wrong in allowing him those pleasures he enjoys. For your husband, the countdown to zero has begun. You are both being rational and realistic. Clarify that fact for the naysayers or ignore them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who suffers from syncope. I become light-headed whenever I must have blood drawn or a needle prick — it doesn't matter which. My physician and her nurse always accommodate me by allowing me to lie down during these procedures, and consequently I have never fainted.

However, if I go elsewhere for a procedure, as I recently did to a free medical screening, after telling the medical personnel about the syncope, the reactions I typically receive range from a look like I have two heads to comments like: "Oh, this will be real quick; you won't feel a thing," "Don't watch" or "Think of something else."

Well, I did experience an episode of syncope during that last screening, and it was very embarrassing. Why won't medical personnel LISTEN to what a patient tells them? Who knows my body better than I do? — SYNCO-PEEVED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR SYNCO-PEEVED: Believe me, I empathize. However, free screenings can be as jam-packed as a casting call for "American Idol." Overwhelmed medical personnel may not be able to accommodate someone who has special needs. That's why it's important when you hear comments such as those you mentioned that you insist on being helped by someone who understands what the implications of syncope are. You may have to wait a bit longer, but it may prevent a blackout.

DEAR ABBY: Should a mother call her son if he is a father to wish him a Happy Father's Day? — ANDRIETTA IN NEW YORK

DEAR ANDRIETTA: That would be a nice gesture. He qualifies.

Pampa alumni team seeks third straight vs. Borger

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

During the last two years, 2006 Pampa graduate Keenan Davis had his friends trying to get him to play on the alumni football team.

"I just didn't want to," Davis said. This year, Davis gave in to his friends and will be behind center on July 21 as Pampa's alumni football team seeks its third straight victory over Borger's alumni team at Harvester Field.

"I was a kicker and a backup quarterback in high school," Davis said. "They needed a quarterback. I said, 'Let's do this.'"

Davis takes over at quarterback for Jason Roark, who played the last two years. The 2006 graduate said it's been a challenge to get back in shape.

"I'm having to get the shoulder back in shape," Davis said. "Other than that, it's no big deal. Just another day and another game."

Marques Long, who has played running back the last two years, said most of the key players from the last two years are returning.

"We just have to get the new guys up to speed," Long said. "It's awesome that we have new guys. They are here every week and we are just trying to put them on a winning team."

Long said they've had different groups at practice since they started a few months ago.

"It's whoever is off (from work)," Long said. "We are just now getting it all together."

Davis said he's looking forward to getting another shot at victory against Borger.

"We did it in high school, and I'm going to keep doing it," Davis said.

Long said he hopes the community turns out.

"I just hope they understand how much work we put into this," Long said. "We really do it for Pampa. We do it for the pride of Pampa. We love football and playing with that 'P' on our helmet."

Pampa hosted Palo Duro on Nov. 5 last year, but turnout was hurt by the Harvesters playing their final game the day before and the Lady Harvesters volleyball team having their area round game in Lubbock on the same day.

The alumni team beat Borger 15-8 in 2010 at Harvester Field and 50-13 at Borger last year. Pampa also beat Amarillo Highland Park 33-15 in August and came back from a 20-0 deficit to defeat Palo Duro 34-25.

Game time is to be determined.

2012 NBA FINALS

Seattle not supporting ex-team

SEATTLE (AP) — Before they became critically acclaimed documentary filmmakers, Adam Brown and Jason Reid were simply basketball junkies. And being hoops aficionados, Brown and Reid can appreciate the way the Oklahoma City Thunder play.

But all it takes is one screen shot of owner Clay Bennett or one mention of the Thunder's past incarnation as the Seattle SuperSonics to help them recall why they can never cheer for that team.

"If this team was still here they would be the most fun and exciting team to watch in the league," said Brown, who was co-director of the "Sonicsgate" documentary that chronicled the Sonics' departure in 2008. "It's been so hard to root against a team that plays such an exciting brand of basketball."

Seeing Oklahoma City win the Western Conference crown last week was tough enough for Seattle fans. Now come the NBA Finals beginning Tuesday night against Miami and the chance that just four years after a messy divorce from the city of Seattle, the Thunder could be NBA champs, which would only twist the figurative knife for Sonics fans still smarting from the franchise's flight.

Outside of south Florida, there may be no larger collection of Heat fans for the next two weeks than in the Pacific Northwest.

Who knew Seattle could be so crazy for LeBron and the rest of Miami's stars?

Seattle Mariners ace Felix Hernandez, who has a shrine of Heat jerseys and memorabilia next to his clubhouse locker, said his Twitter feed was filled Saturday night with Seattle fans saying they'd be pulling for the Heat in the Finals.

"I'll win, they'll win. We'll get two wins on Tuesday," said Hernandez, who'll be pitching for the Mariners on Tuesday night while Game 1 is taking place in Oklahoma City.

There is very little connection remaining between the current Thunder team and the former Sonics.

Nick Collison and Kevin Durant are the only two Thunder players who actually played for the Sonics in Seattle. Collison, who lives in Seattle during the offseason, has been with the franchise since 2004, while Durant played his rookie season in Seattle.

"We still remember everything, the teams in Seattle that were going to the finals and won the finals back in '79, the Gary Paytons, the Shawn Kemp, the Detlef Schrempf, the guys that played in this organization," Durant said. "But it feels good to have an opportunity to bring something to Oklahoma City."

What seems to irritate Seattle residents the most is hearing references to Sonics history, which Oklahoma City owns a share of as part of a settlement reached with Seattle. So when television announcers say it's the first Finals appearance for the Thunder franchise since 1996, when the Sonics lost in six games to the Chicago Bulls, it adds to the headache.

"They're the one championship team we've had here in Seattle," said Steven Rupp, who lives in the Queen Anne area around the Sonics' former home, Key Arena, and remembers when Sonics players lived in the neighborhood. "It would have been good to keep them here."

Chase Voss, with the tying run at third and the winning run on second, calmly struck out the next two batters as Glo-Valve Service edged Cabot Corporation 12-11 in the Pampa Optimist 11-12 Cal Ripken League Thursday. Cabot clinched the regular season championship Monday with a 10-6 win over Glo-Valve and lost for the first time bringing its league record to 6-1-1. Glo-Valve nailed down second place with a 5-3 record in league play and 7-3 overall. Glo-Valve came out swinging in the first inning scoring three times. Jace Ware opened with a walk. He stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Thomas Costley. Costley stole second came home on a single by Logan Martindale. Martindale stole two bases and trotted home on a double by Voss. Cabot roared back with a two-out rally to tie the score. Moses Avila walked. He made it to third when Fernando Anguiano was safe on an error. Avila scampered home on a wild pitch. Keshawn Stewart drove in Anguiano with a single. He stole second and scored after successive walks to Brayden Burrell, Carter Sprinkle and Braeden King. Glo-Valve took advantage of walks to Brenden Courtney, Chris Gowin, Tyler McCarn, Ware, Costley and Brayden Fry sandwiched around a single by Martindale, a wild pitch and an error to score six times in the second. Cabot came right back with four runs on a walk to Shandon Smith, singles by Bryson Paronto, Jace Clark, Avila and a double by Anguiano. Glo-Valve led 9-7 after two innings. In the top of the third inning, Kade Parker walked and went to third when Courtney was safe on an error. A ground out by Gowin scored Parker and Courtney tallied when McCarn reached base on an error. Glo-Valve led 11-7. Fry scored what turned out to be the winning run on pure hustle in Glo-Valve's half of the fourth. He reached base on an error, stole second and took third when the catcher's throw went into centerfield. He made Glo-Valve's final run of the game on a strikeout, coming in after a throw to first.

The league champions did not go quietly. In the bottom of the fourth Avila walked, stole second, took third on a single by Anguiano and scored on a wild pitch. Anguiano followed him home on a single by Stewart. Burrell singled and Sprinkle drew his third walk of the game to load the bases and bring on Voss. Voss gave up a two-run single to King before his dramatic strikeouts brought the game to an end after only four innings because of the time limit. Martindale was the leading hitter for Glo-Valve with two hits, two runs scored and three RBI. Anguiano, with a single, a double and three runs scored and Stewart with two hits, two runs and two RBI led Cabot. Stewart made the outstanding defensive play of the game for Cabot by catching a soft popup at third base and throwing a runner out at second for a doubleplay. A throw from Jakob Wilson in center to Ware at shortstop to Martindale blocking the plate nipped a Cabot runner trying to score for Glo-Valve's outstanding defensive play. A double-elimination City Tournament starts Monday. Cabot will take on Texas Rose Steakhouse at 5:45 p.m. while Glo-Valve and Duncan, Fraser & Bridges Insurance Agency clash at 7:45.
