County mulls abatement for wind project

Public hearing on tax abatement set for March 1 Commission meeting.

By SASHA HELLER
 sheller@thepampanews.com

The Gray County Commissioners Court debated the merits of granting a tax abatement for a wind power generating project proposed by Pioneer Green Energy, of Austin. Pioneer Vice President Colin Fleming presented the project's outline to the County Commission Friday morning.

The plan involves Pioneer operating wind farms in Roberts and Hemphill counties but would require installing power lines throughout the western portion of Gray County to connect the wind generators to a power substation located south of Lefors.

On Friday, the Commission approved, by 3-1 vote, to establish criteria of a Reinvestment Zone, covering the area in which the power lines would run through Gray County. Commissioner Jeff Haley cast the lone, nay vote.

Pioneer is requesting a tax abatement within that zone, which led to the commissioners' debate.

Haley asked Fleming why Pioneer is seeking the abatement.

Fleming said it's necessary to make the project work due to its size and complexity.

Judge Richard Peet agreed with Haley and said he's not sure why the abatement is needed to run power lines.

BROTHERLY LOVE

An original love story

By TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

Long time Pampa resident Dick Stowers got a call from his older brother Jim, who lives in Kansas City, Mo., a few weeks ago.

Jim was calling to ask if Dick and his wife, Dorothy, could get together for a few days with him and his wife, Virginia, at Jim's expansive vacation in house La Jolla, Calif.

Both couples got married on Feb. 4, but not in the same year. Dick and Dorothy tied the knot in 1951, while the Kansas City Stowers said their vows in 1954.

Dick said he's not sure exactly how Jim and Virginia decided to play copy cats, but he suspects Virginia is the culprit.

"It's ordinarily the women who pick the dates," said Dick, who is vice president of the Culbertson-Stowers car dealerships in Pampa.

Dick said his brother was very emphatic when he phone: "I want you out here."

James E. Stowers Jr. is someone who doesn't take no for an answer, according to his kid brother.

An astute businessman, Jim founded a company called 21st Century Mutual Funds, now called American Century Mutual Funds, and is the founder of the Stowers Institute for Medical Research in Kansas City.

Jim decided to establish the research hospital after he survived prostate cancer and Virginia survived breast cancer.

"He wants to find a cure for both," said Dick, who, like his brother, was born in Kansas City.

So — in response to Jim's terse demand — Dick replied, "I'll make my arrangements."

But Jim wouldn't have any of that. Why would he want his brother and his sweetheart to fly on a cramped plane and wait in long lines at the airport?

"No! I'll send out my jet," Jim answered.

"I like that," Dick said with a grin during an interview with The Pampa News.

Jim's private jet landed at Perry-Lefors Airport outside of Pampa, where Dick and Dorothy were greeted by a smiling hostess and a pilot who carried their luggage from their car trunk to the plane.

The flight to San Diego took about two hours, and they were served breakfast and given the royal treatment by the plane's crew.

• 23-year-old Justin Demeulemaere, Momence, Ill. was arrested Thursday by the Department of Public Safety for driving while intoxicated.

• 37-year-old Jaime Theresa Jackson, Pampa, was arrested Thursday by the bond surrender — aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Federal agent in Austin charged with solicitation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State authorities say they've arrested a federal agent in Central Texas for using the Internet to arrange a sexual tryst with an underage girl.

The attorney general's office announced Friday that 50-year-old Forrest William Johnson was charged with a felony count of online solicitation of a minor.

Johnson worked in law enforcement for U.S. Customs and Border Protection at Austin-Bergstrom International Airport.

Authorities say Johnson posted an explicit online advertisement and was contacted by an undercover officer posing as a 15-year-old girl. He was arrested Wednesday when he arrived for the encounter.

The Austin resident posted a $20,000 bond Thursday. If convicted, he faces two to 10 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

Williamson County jail records did not indicate an attorney representing Johnson.

Following a high-speed vehicle chase.

Capt. Jon Moore of the Harris County Constable's Office Precinct 3 says the man fatally shot Thursday had earlier eluded deputies during a chase in which the man's car reached speeds of about 100 mph. The man ran when the car crashed.

Later, a Harris County Constable's Office Precinct 3 sergeant located the suspect in the back area of the store, ordering him to stand up and show his hands.

Moore tells the Houston Chronicle the man began to comply but then crouched down and moved aggressively toward the sergeant. He appeared to have something in his hand.

Moore was uncertain if the man had a weapon.

2 get prison time for Ponzi scheme

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two people have been given prison sentences for running a Ponzi scheme that involved more than 150 people and resulted in losses of more than $10 million.

Christopher Brown Cornett of Buda, Texas, was sentenced to 40 years in prison Friday. Heidi Beryl Beyer of Scottsdale, Ariz., received 6 years.

Deputy constable kills suspect in Harris Co.

HOUSTON (AP) — A deputy constable shot and killed a man during a confrontation inside a Harris County convenience store

The U.S. attorney's office says Cornett and Beyer collected money from across the country to trade in foreign currency exchange markets. They brought in a total of $14.6 million, about half of which they lost in bad trades.

Authorities say the rest went to make payments to investors and a range of personal expenses, from gambling losses in Las Vegas to a new Chevrolet Corvette.

Corbett had previously served prison time for federal bank fraud.

Both pleaded guilty last October.

Texas school district OKs guns in schools

CHILDRESS, Texas (AP) — Employees of a West Texas school district will have access to firearms as part of increased security measures approved by the school board.

The weapons will be placed in a secure location at schools in the Childress Independent School District, about 115 miles southeast of Amarillo.

The district board on Monday approved a plan to allow selected employees to have access to weapons. They won't be allowed to regularly carry them.

Superintendent Rick

Teran says planning for the security measures is in the preliminary stages. He says a security company will train employees during the summer and fall.

The board also approved hiring a school resource police officer for next school year.

Childress joins other Texas communities that have approved employee access to firearms on campuses.

Ft. Worth officer with two DWIs is fired

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Fort Worth police officer who already had a driving while intoxicated charge pending when he was arrested in the fall on suspicion of drunken driving has been fired.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports that according to a disciplinary letter filed with the Civil Service Commission, Zebadiah Rosado's termination was effective Jan. 18. Rosado has appealed his firing.

The letter says lab results taken after he was stopped in Fort Worth in October showed a blood alcohol concentration of 0.10, above the legal limit of 0.08.

Attorneys for Rosado did not immediately return calls Friday.

procedural medicine, general medicine and emergency medicine. "Pampa Regional is the perfect laboratory for all of that," Morse said. "All of our doctors at Pampa Regional are more than qualified to teach medicine to the residents and this is evident by Texas Tech entering into this agreement to affiliate with our hospital here in Pampa. Dr. Sharma is the first in line and there are more to come." Sharma started his residency on Wednesday. "I'm enjoying it," he said Thursday. "The doctors that I've met are willing to help, willing to teach and help us (the residents) for our betterment. They are so happy we are coming here." Sharma said when he first visited Pampa he was expecting a much smaller town. "It's a much bigger town than I thought," he said. "It looks like a fun town." The residents are board screened at Tech and have to stay there for a year, sometimes two, before they can come to PRMC, according to a released statement. The agreement with Tech for the residency program was spearheaded late last year by several citizens whose goal is to bring more family practice doctors to the Pampa area.

said. Dick and Dorothy left for La Jolla on Jan. 31 and returned to Pampa on Feb. 5. What did they do in California? Dick said not much — but that's a good thing. "We stayed at the house and went out to dinner a couple of times," Dick said. "We visited with each other and enjoyed being together. They have a very lovely house." The house has three levels and a huge deck that faces the ocean with something called an "infinity pool." Dick explained that when you're inside the house looking out at the pool, you don't see the deck on the other side. Instead, it looks as if the pool and ocean are merged as one body of water. "This is how the other half lives," Dick said of his brother's financial success. But Dick contends the guy is very down to earth and you wouldn't know he's that wealthy if you saw him walking down the street. "He's just like you or me or anybody else," Dick said. Asked how he and Dorothy have stayed happily married for 62 years, Dick said, "You have to listen to your spouse. There has to be a lot of give and take." Dick's son, Richard, who works for the dealership, recalls growing up with parents who were strict, yet had a sense of humor. "It just goes back to their roots," Richard said. Dick concluded the interview with this thought on his marriage and family: "We've had a good life. We've had some tough experiences along the way, but we always share."

"I just don't see the necessity," Peet said. He added that, typically, the county would approve a tax abatement for a project that offers employment opportunities for Gray County citizens. The only jobs created for this phase of the project would be for the initial construction work, which would last between 6-7 months. "I don't see the incentive," Peet said, adding that the county would not recognize considerable tax revenues from power lines. He said the real incentive is for Roberts and Hemphill counties, where the wind turbines would be located. Haley said that if the county were to grant the tax abatement, other operators could come seeking abatements for their projects. However, abatements cannot be granted retroactively; they are specifically for new projects. "How do we pick and choose the winners and losers?" asked Haley. "Will we just show favoritism to the best lobbyist?" Peet said the abatement would include a disclaimer that approval would not reflect upon any other working business relationships between the county and other companies who currently operate large projects in Gray County. "I'm not comfortable with the concept," Haley said. "You're going to build this project anyway, right? It's coming across, regardless," said Commissioner Gary Willoughby. Fleming replied that he could not provide a definitive answer at this time. The proposed tax abatement would run for a 10-year period. The Reinvestment Zone would last five years but could be renewed. "All this does is open the door to allow us to have a public hearing and consider granting an abatement," Willoughby said. A public hearing is set for the March 1 County Commission meeting.

Obama's gangster government operates above the law

Presidents' State of the Union addresses are delivered in the chamber of the House of Representatives in the Capitol. The classical majesty of this building where laws are made symbolizes the idea that we live under the rule of law.

Unfortunately, the 44th president is running an administration that too often seems to ignore the rule of law. "We can't wait," Barack Obama took to saying after the Republicans captured a majority in the House and refused to pass laws he wanted. He would act to get what he wanted regardless of law.

One example: his recess appointments in January 2012 of three members of the National Labor Relations Board and the head of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. Last month, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled unanimously that the NLRB recess appointments were unconstitutional. The decision, written by Judge David Sentelle, noted that the Constitution speaks of "the recess," not "a recess," and reasoned that it could only be referring to the recess between annual sessions of Congress.

Obama, like many presidents before him, interpreted the phrase as referring to any recess during which Congress is not in session. But he went one step further. When Harry Reid became Senate majority leader in 2007, he started holding pro forma meetings of the Senate every three days and stating that the Senate was not in recess. George W. Bush, who had made recess appointments before, stopped doing so. Bush took the view that, since the Constitution says that each branch of Congress makes its own rules, the Senate was in session if the Senate said so. Obama took the view that he would decide whether the Senate was in session. Who cares what the Constitution says? As Sentelle pointed out, Obama's view would entitle the president to make a recess appointment any time the Senate broke for lunch. "This cannot be the law," the judge wrote.

Critics of his decision argue that under it the recess appointment power would be vanishingly small. But under Obama's view, the Senate's power to advise and consent could effectively vanish. The Framers contemplated that the Congress would take long recesses (as for many years it did) and that it could take months for senators to return to Washington to act on appointments. It's plausible that the Framers would have considered recess appointments unnecessary in an era of jet travel. It's not plausible that they would have approved of getting rid of the Senate's power to vote on appointments altogether.

Meanwhile, decisions of the NLRB and the CFPB are in legal limbo, pending a Supreme Court decision. Hundreds of thousands of people and are affected and millions of dollars are at stake. There is a price for not observing the rule of law.

There are other examples. For several years, the Obama administration has refused to obey a law requiring the president's budget to be submitted on a certain date. As Budget Director, Treasury nominee Jack Lew refused to obey the law requiring him to issue a report in response to the trustees' report on Medicare. During the 2012 campaign, the Pentagon told defense contractors not to inform employees that they may be laid off if the sequester took effect as required by the WARN Act. University of Pennsylvania law professor David Skeel pointed out that this violated the standard rules of bankruptcy law established, interestingly, during the New Deal.

How can you close the college savings gap?

Dear Carrie, I'm the father of three teenage daughters. I've been saving for college since they were babies, so I'm shocked to find myself $100,000 short. How can I cover this gap? The oldest is 16. --A Reader

Dear Reader, First, I want to congratulate you for making saving for your daughters' educations a priority. It's no easy task to keep that as a primary goal in the face of all the other costs of raising children.

CARRIE SCHWAB-POMERANTZ Pays for College 2012," found that the typical family covered just 28 percent of their kids' college costs through savings and income in 2011-12. So give yourself a little credit.

But it's no wonder that parents are struggling. According to the College Board, average total charges for in-state students at four-year public colleges and universities in 2011-12 were close to $18,000 a year. Total costs for out-of-state students were over $30,000 per year. Yearly total costs at private nonprofit four-year institutions were close to $40,000. And these are just the averages! Multiply these average annual costs by four years and then by three children and you have a tremendous challenge. Fortunately, with some research and planning -- and a little help from your daughters themselves -- there are ways to meet it head-on.

Research — and apply for — all financial aid

A lot of parents make the mistake of thinking their kids won't qualify for financial aid -- and make the even bigger mistake of not applying for it. But whether it's through private scholarships or government grants and loans, there's a considerable amount of financial help out there -- and not all of it is asset based.

Again, according to the College Board, in 2011-12, full-time undergraduate students received an average of $13,218 per student in financial aid from a combination of federal loans and other sources. That's pretty encouraging.

Equally encouraging is the fact that the Department of Education has made the FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) process more streamlined and easier to navigate.

Consider, too, that in FAFSA calculations, only 5.64 percent of parents' assets are considered available for college expenses. There's also an asset protection allowance (which increases as the parents age), so a certain percentage of assets won't be counted. Retirement accounts and the value of your primary residence are also excluded.

I don't know how close your daughters are in age, but another factor that increases eligibility for aid is how many kids you have in college at the same time. Finaid.org is a good resource to research ways to maximize financial aid eligibility.

Help with student loans

There's a lot written about the burden of student debt these days, and there's no denying that paying back student loans can be an albatross for many years if not managed wisely. But today, student loans are a fact of life and a viable way to pay for an education. The average student loan debt for 2011 graduates was $26,500. However, you don't necessarily have to saddle your daughters with the entire bill. To cover the shortfall in savings, you could finance a certain percentage of college costs through student loans (ideally federal) and help your daughters pay them back over time.

You can also put your kids to work, be tax-smart and protect your own retirement.

Media could go easier on GOP extremists

It's a sad day for extremism when the head of the National Rifle Association gets yelled at on Fox News Channel.

Last weekend, Fox News' Chris Wallace challenged Wayne LaPierre on that infamous NRA ad in which a dark voice asks: "Are the president's kids more important than yours? Then why is he skeptical about putting armed security in our schools when his kids are protected by armed guards at their schools?"

TOM ROSSHIRT When LaPierre defended the ad, Wallace said: "Do you really think that the president's children are the same kind of target as every schoolchild in America? That's ridiculous, and you know it, sir."

LaPierre probably did not expect that. Fox News has tended to be a safe haven for extremists. But something is happening there — and elsewhere.

Fox News Channel hit a 12-year low in prime-time ratings last month in the 25- to 54-year-old demographic. The network has cut loose Dick Morris and Sarah Palin — two of the channel's most extreme voices. And that should make one thing clear: Extremism isn't selling as well these days.

On election night, Republicans and Fox News viewers had a rendezvous with reality. Since then, on taxes, immigration and guns, Republicans have made votes or statements that directly oppose past party orthodoxy.

But the Republican Party establishment is beginning to repudiate extremism. The reason isn't that extremist policies won't work; they never were going to work, and that was never the issue. It's because extremist politics won't win.

If this Republican Party makeover takes the form of abandoning extremist positions in controversial policy debates, this is a very good thing, both for the Republican Party and for the country. But if the effort broadens into a campaign to target and defeat extremist Republican candidates — as Karl Rove's new Conservative Victory Fund proposes — it could cause an eruption of the long-simmering Republican civil war.

Extremists always feel under siege, even in the best of times. It's hard to maintain rigid views in a fluid world, so facts and change are constantly keeping extremists on the defensive. But taking direct character attacks from their own party's leadership — being told they are not fit to lead — that is beyond what they will bear. After he was elected president in 1968 with 43 percent of the vote, Richard Nixon began working hard to convince "the great silent majority" of Americans that he was on their side against civil rights, busing, anti-war protests and spoiled, rebellious college students. Nixon's aim was to bring together in 1972 the 57 percent of the voters who supported either him or Wallace in 1968.

Nixon got what he wanted; the Wallace voters are now part of the Republican Party. If Republicans want to change their party, they should try to do it slowly and skillfully and respectfully. If they make frontal assaults on the extremists — trying to suppress them and shame them — they will make revolutionaries of the people they're trying to defeat.

Pressure doesn't always work so well with extremists. They're extremists. Good luck, Karl.

Homeless Serb finds comfort in tomb among the dead

NIS, Serbia (AP) — To Bratislav Stojanovic, the best way to cope in the world of the living is to descend among the dead.

The 42-year-old homeless man has been dwelling at a cemetery in Nis, a city in southern Serbia, for more than 15 years, turning one of the underground tombs there into a place of his own.

Stojanovic has spent many of his days — and nights — holed up in deadly silence among the human remains. He says he finds the experience strangely comforting rather than unnerving.

"It is quiet here," he explained. "I'm not afraid of the dead, they can't harm me. The living can."

Stojanovic has piled a mattress and blankets in the tomb, which has a concrete roof but is open on one side. It is how he slides into the tiny space, but the opening also allows in cold and rain. Scattered in the tomb are old plastic bottles as well as candles that he picked up from other graves and which he burns at night to see. There is even a skull lying around, he said.

The old cemetery is located in the downtown and has been closed since the mid-1970s, when the last of its dead were laid to rest there and authorities set up a new burial location away from the center.

The headstone of Stojanovic's resting place is partly broken but still bears pictures of the people buried below. Around the cemetery some graves have been opened and apparently robbed.

"Hardly anyone comes here anymore," Stojanovic said. "I am all by myself."

Stojanovic has been out in the streets since the mid-1990s, when his country got caught up in a swirl of ethnic wars, international sanctions and crippling economic crisis.

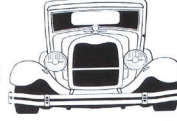

Formerly a construction worker, Stojanovic at one point could no longer hold down a job and found it hard to get along with his aging father, with whom he was living.

Over the years, Stojanovic found himself spending more time in the streets than at home. Two years ago, the family house caught fire and burned to the ground, killing his father and leaving him with nothing.

The local authorities in Nis have offered Stojanovic a place in a home for the elderly, but he has refused. He said there are people who help him from time to time, but he mostly gets by on what he finds in garbage containers, including food, cigarettes and clothes.

Meteor explodes over Russia, injures 1,100 people

MOSCOW (AP) — A meteor streaked across the sky and exploded over Russia's Ural Mountains with the power of an atomic bomb Friday, its sonic blasts shattering countless windows and injuring about 1,100 people.

The spectacle deeply frightened many Russians, with some elderly women declaring that the world was coming to an end.

Many of the injured were cut by flying glass as they flocked to windows, curious about what had produced such a blinding flash of light.

The meteor — estimated to be about 10 tons — entered the Earth's atmosphere at a hypersonic speed of at least 54,000 kph (33,000 mph) and shattered into pieces about 30-50 kilometers (18-32 miles) above the ground, the Russian Academy of Sciences said in a statement.

Amateur video showed an object speeding across the sky about 9:20 a.m. local time, just after sunrise, leaving a thick white contrail and an intense flash.

"There was panic. People had no idea what was happening," said Sergey Hametov, a resident of Chelyabinsk, a city of 1 million about 1,500 kilometers (930 miles) east of Moscow.

"We saw a big burst of light, then went outside to see what it was and we heard a really loud, thundering sound," he told The Associated Press by telephone.

The meteor hit less than a day before Asteroid 2012 DA14 is to make the closest recorded pass of an asteroid to the Earth — about 17,150 miles (28,000 kilometers).

But the European Space Agency said its experts had determined there was no connection — just cosmic coincidence.

The meteor released several kilotons of energy above the region, the Russian science academy said. According to NASA, it was about 15 meters (49 feet) wide before it hit the atmosphere, about one-quarter the size of the passing asteroid.

Some meteorite fragments fell in a reservoir outside the town of Cherbakul. The crash left an eight-meter (26-foot) wide crater in the ice.

The shock wave blew in an estimated 100,000 square meters (more than 1 million square feet) of glass, according to city officials, who said 3,000 buildings in the city were damaged. At one zinc factory, part of the roof collapsed.

The Interior Ministry said about 1,100 people sought medical care after the shock wave and 48 of them were hospitalized.

Most of the injuries were caused by flying glass, officials said.

There was no immediate word on any deaths or anyone struck by space fragments.

Meteors typically cause sizeable sonic booms when they enter the atmosphere because they are traveling so much faster than the speed of sound. Injuries on the scale reported Friday, however, are extraordinarily rare.

"I went to see what that flash in the sky was about," recalled resident Marat Lobkovsky. "And then the window glass shattered, bouncing back on me. My beard was cut open, but not deep. They patched me up. It's OK now."

Another resident, Valya Kazakov, said some elderly women in his neighborhood started crying out that the world was ending.

Russian-language hashtags for the meteorite quickly shot up into Twitter's top trends.

Lessons had just started at Chelyabinsk schools when the meteor exploded, and officials said 258 schoolchildren were among those injured.

Amateur video footage showed a teacher speaking to her class as a powerful shockwave hit the room.

Yekaterina Melikhova, a high school student whose nose was bloody and whose upper lip was covered with a bandage, said she was in her geography class when a bright light flashed outside.

"After the flash, nothing happened for about three minutes. Then we rushed outdoors. I was not alone, I was there with Katya. The door was made of glass, a shock wave made it hit us," she said.

Russian television ran footage of athletes at a city sports arena who were showered by shards of glass from huge windows. Some of them were still bleeding. Other videos showed a long shard of glass slamming into the floor close to a factory worker and massive doors blown away by the shock wave.

The vast implosion of glass windows exposed many residents to the bitter cold as temperatures in the city were expected to plummet to minus 20 Celsius (minus 4 Fahrenheit) overnight. The regional governor immediately urged any worker who can pane windows to rush to the area to help out.

Meteoroids are small pieces of space debris — usually parts of comets or asteroids — that are on a collision course with the Earth. They become meteors when they enter the Earth's atmosphere. Most meteors burn up in the atmosphere, but if they survive the frictional heating and strike the surface of the Earth they are called meteorites. The site of Friday's spectacular show is about 5,000 kilometers (3,000 miles) west of Tunguska, which in 1908 was the site of the largest recorded explosion of a space object plunging to Earth.

Plans for prom barring gays rocks Ind. town

SULLIVAN, Ind. (AP) — A small Indiana community best known for its parks and corn festival has become the center of a national discussion about intolerance over a group's plans to host a "traditional" prom that bans gay students.

Residents and officials in Sullivan, a city of about 4,200 near the Illinois border, are scrambling to escape the uncomfortable spotlight cast when a teacher supporting the "traditional" prom for Sullivan High School said she believes people choose to be gay and that gays have no purpose in life.

"I just ... I don't understand it," Diana Medley, referring to gays, told Terre Haute television station WTWO.

The comments by Medley, a special education teacher in a neighboring school district, have gone viral and sparked online campaigns to have her fired. A petition on Change.org calling for her dismissal had generated more than 17,500 signatures from as far away as the United Kingdom as of Thursday, and a Facebook page supporting a prom that includes all students had more than 27,000 likes.

The fallout has surprised many residents, who say the issue roiling the community in an area known for coal mining and attractive parks is being blown out of proportion.

"We are conservative around here. That's just the way of this town," said Nancy Woodard, 60, who owns the Hidden Treasure Exchange store. "In any town in this county, you'll find four or five churches no matter how small the town. ... The Bible is a big belief system here."

"Everybody has jumped on this little town. To me, there isn't any need for it," she said.

Sullivan High School Principal David Springer said talk of the "traditional" prom began in January, after a student began circulating a petition demanding that gays be allowed to participate in the grand march at Sullivan's April 27 prom. The "traditional" prom would not be sanctioned by the district and wouldn't be held at the school.

Springer said the school, which has 545 students in grades 9-12, has never banned same-sex pairs from the event.

"I've been to eight grand marches and ... we always had girls go out together, and a lot of times they just didn't have a date," Springer said. "Our prom is open to all of our students."

But others say calls for a "traditional" prom, fueled by Medley's comments, speak to a larger climate in which gay students fear being bullied and aren't welcome.

"When someone says your kid has no purpose, how do you think that makes a parent feel?" asked Annette Gross, Indiana state coordinator for Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG), whose son came out at age 19.

Aaron Getinger, a 20-year-old Stanford University student who graduated from Sullivan High in 2011, said he isn't surprised by the push for a "traditional" prom that would ban gay students. He said he was bullied daily because he is gay and encountered viewpoints similar to those espoused by Medley.

"It's just the way that it is," he said. "It's part of a way of thinking that the rest of the country needs to know still exists and goes on."

Organizers of the "traditional" prom declined to comment, and it's unclear whether the event will still happen.

School officials and the minister of a church where planners met Sunday have worked to distance themselves from the flap.

Dale Wise, the church's senior minister at Sullivan First Christian Church, said his church turned off its fax machine and took its website offline Tuesday because both were the target of hate mail and pornographic messages.

Wise said the planning group met at the church because it allows community meetings to take place there but the church "had no affiliation whatsoever" with the "traditional" prom effort.

Springer said his staff has been inundated with calls and emails about Medley, whom he noted doesn't work for his school. She teaches in the Northeast School Corp., a neighboring district.

Neither Medley nor Northeast officials returned calls seeking comment.

The district issued a statement this week saying Medley was "expressing her First Amendment rights" and that "the views expressed are not the views of the Northeast School Corporation and/or the Board of Education."

Bunnies take toll on cars at airport

DENVER (AP) — Silly rabbits.

The furry creatures are wreaking havoc on cars parked at Denver International Airport by eating spark plug cables and other wiring.

To stop the problem, federal wildlife workers are removing at least 100 bunnies a month while parking companies install better fences and build perches for predator hawks and eagles.

KCNC-TV reported Thursday there's another way to stop the damage that can cost thousands of dollars to repair.

Ex-mayor's $1B in gambling woes stun San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Maureen O'Connor was a physical education teacher who won a seat on the San Diego City Council when she was only 25 years old, later winning two terms as the city's first female mayor as she charmed voters with a populist flair.

But her rapid rise was matched by her fall, culminating Thursday when she acknowledged in federal court that she took $2.1 million from her late husband's charitable foundation during a decade-long gambling spree in which she won — and lost — more than $1 billion. O'Connor pleaded not guilty to a money laundering charge in an agreement with the Justice Department that defers prosecution for two years while she tries to repay the foundation and receives treatment for gambling.

O'Connor, 66, once had a personal fortune that her attorney estimated between $40 million and $50 million, inherited from her husband of 17 years, Robert O. Peterson, founder of the Jack in the Box Inc. fast-food chain. She is now virtually broke, living with a sister.

O'Connor walked across the courtroom with a cane, appearing frail and struggling to maintain composure at one point as her attorney wrapped his arm around her shoulder and placed his hand on her head. At a news conference, she said she always intended to repay the foundation and appeared to blame her behavior on a brain tumor that was diagnosed in 2011.

"There are two Maureens — Maureen No. 1 and Maureen No. 2," said O'Connor, who declined to take questions. "Maureen No. 2 is the Maureen who did not know she had a tumor growing in her brain." O'Connor's game of choice was video poker at casinos in San Diego, Las Vegas and Atlantic City, N.J. Her attorney, Eugene Iredale, said she played for hours at a time.

Hustlin' Harvesters prepare for Lubbock Cooper

By ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Hustlin' Harvesters will play the Lubbock Cooper Pirates at 8 p.m. on Monday night at Canyon High School. The team played Hale Center last night in a warmup game for the playoffs.

The Pampa News talked with the seniors and the coach on what the team is expecting when they face Cooper.

"I am very excited we've been able to keep the playoff streak alive for the community and our fans. My guys have committed to one another and are working hard every day to make this town proud of them," said Pampa coach Matt Embry. "I get to see these kids work day in and day out and I know that they will fight on Monday like they have never fought before. This team is very special to me being my first year as a head coach, and I am proud to call this group of young men my team."

Embry added that the team will go in a little anxious and nervous, but when the ball is thrown up our focus and determination will hopefully erase all of that. "Cooper is a great team and they will get after you on defense and can shoot from the cheap seats, so we will have to counter that with our size and athleticism," added Embry.

Tyler Powell said Hale Center will give Pampa great practice going into the playoffs. "They are a ranked team, so we will get the feel of what it is like to play an upbeat team. For the Cooper game I am expecting a really physical dogfight kind of game."

Powell added he is excited about getting to continue playing with his teammates and hopefully bringing home the gold ball. "My favorite moment was in the Perryton game last year when we hit the buzzer beater shot for the win. I think we met our main goal as a team this year of becoming closer together like a family."

Oliver Cabrales said he expects the Cooper game to be intense, loud and physical. He thinks playing Hale Center will help the Pampa continue to grow as a team. "Having a long layoff between district and playoffs would not be ideal, and I feel this game will help us continue to grow and gain more game experience. I am ready for the experience of playoffs and continuing this journey with my brothers."

Cabrales said his favorite moment was the tournaments and growing closer with the team during those times. "We definitely met some of the goals we had, but whether or not we exceed them will be determined by the type of men we become later on in life. Cabrales wanted to thank God because "without Him, none of this would be possible."

Jake Green said he believes playing Hale Center will help keep up a routine. "We get the opportunity to play a small but talented team before entering the playoffs." Green also said people don't know what Pampa is capable of it they play their game they can make a huge run. "The last few weeks we have started to spark and peak to what we really can do — now is the time to take that success into the playoffs."

Green hopes his favorite memory from his career has not happened yet and that it will this playoffs. "Individually I have (accepted) my role and I try to put numbers on the board with the minutes I have been blessed with. The team is bigger than me and people will remember us as a whole and not just No. 10." Green wanted to share that these are the days that each one of the players will remember. "We need to stick together, put it all on the line for the guy next to you and make this last run count. This is where it really matters, no more fancy records or talk: doing work on the court is the only thing that matters now."

Derrek Pollard expects to come out and play a playoff game on Monday and nothing less. He added Hale Center will be a fun and good game to play in. Pollard looks forward to racking up gold balls and playing different teams on different courts. His favorite memory is playing on Texas Tech's court and being on the news when Pampa played Monterey. "I would like to thank everyone who has come out to support my teammates and I this season," Pollard said.

Jon Cox says that Hale Center plays the same type of game as Pampa so it will help the Harvester prepare for when it matters on Monday. "I am looking forward to playing in the playoff environment. My favorite moment of my career is the Dallas trip from this season," said Cox. "We have met our goals by making the playoffs, but we aren't done yet."

Ty Hutto echoed sentiments from previous players by saying Hale Center is a very similar team to Cooper and it will be a good game. "I am looking forward to spending time with the team and playing good teams in the playoffs. My favorite moments were the overnight trips because we had fun as a team," said Hutto. "Our team goal is to go to the regional tournament so we will see how it goes. Individually my goal is the same." Hutto wanted to add that it has been a great year and he could not have asked for a better team to play with. "I want to thank all the fans that have supported us and my family for backing me everyday and for the community support."

Patterson Alvey said he expects Lubbock Cooper to play hard and give the Harvesters nothing easy. "Playing Hale Center will give Pampa a playoff game feeling and more practice," added Alvey. "My favorite moments have been the practices, the off-season workouts and the locker room time with all of my teammates." Alvey said the team could have always done better, but that the team has grown and become a family, which is worth much more.

Romel Lee said playing Hale Center will give Pampa an understanding of what types of plays that Lubbock Cooper will run and the defenses they will show Pampa. "I expect hard fought game Monday," said Lee. "I am looking forward to surviving and advancing into the playoffs. My individual goal was to get stronger and get done whatever my team needed me to do this season."

The other three juniors and one freshman on the team spoke about what they expect to see in the playoffs as well.

Cory Ponce said he expects an exciting and tough game against Cooper. "Playing Hale Center will help prepare us for the playoffs and help us understand where we need to improve," said Ponce. "I am looking forward to the playoff atmosphere, the fans cheering and yelling and also being a part of a team that can make it far." Ponce's favorite memory was being able to go to the playoffs as a sophomore. "I have not met my individual goals yet but I plan to change that for the playoffs," added Ponce.

Gabe Garcia expects a high intensity game against Cooper. "Playing Hale Center will help us by getting our focus right," said Garcia. "I am looking forward to the experience with my team throughout the playoffs." Garcia's favorite memory was the first three-pointer he made this season. "It was a confidence booster," said Garcia. "As an individual I do not feel like I met my goal to push myself to go 110 percent all the time. I did, however, become more of a team player." Garcia wanted to add that this season has been a blast and he will always remember it. "I will miss the seniors that will be gone next year, but I plan to fill their shoes and step into that leadership position."

Ryan Powell expects the Cooper game to be a close game, but also fun. "Hale Center will keep us in game mode," Powell said. "Playing teams we normally wouldn't is something I look forward to in the playoffs." Powell's favorite memory was being on the court with his brother again this season. Powell added "we didn't win as many games as we wanted, but we made the playoffs and that is what matters."

And last, but certainly not least is freshman Cade Engle. "I expect a very physical, low scoring game with a lot of big shots against Cooper. Hale Center is very physical and plays the same defenses, which will help us get ready for Cooper," said Engle. "Getting to play where everything is on the line is what I look forward to in the playoffs. The most important game of the year is every game. It is what we wait for all season." Engle said that his favorite moment was beat-

Penn State: Scandal costs stand at more than $27M

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State's bill for legal fees, consultants and other costs associated with the Jerry Sandusky child sex abuse scandal stands at more than $27.6 million.

An updated figure as of November 2012 was provided this week on a university website.

It includes a $13 million price tag for board of trustees communications and the internal investigation into the scandal by former FBI Director Louis Freeh.

Freeh's findings released last summer were the subject of renewed scrutiny earlier this week after Joe Paterno's family released an extensive response conducted by its own experts.

The late coach's family said the report was flawed and said Freeh made unfounded accusations that Paterno acted to cover up allegations against Sandusky.

Sandusky, a former assistant football coach under Paterno, is serving a prison term for 45 counts of child sexual abuse involving 10 boys.

He maintains his innocence.

Among other Penn State costs, nearly $7.5 million went to university legal services or defense, including the law firm representing the university to facilitate settlements with people who have told the school they suffered damages related to the Sandusky scandal.

About $4 million covered other legal defense fees including those for three school ex-administrators facing criminal charges related to the scandal.

University insurance policies should reimburse some of the fees and costs, but Penn State has said it won't dip into tuition dollars, state appropriations or donations.

The $27.6 million total doesn't include the first of five $12 million annual installments, paid by athletics in December, to begin covering the $60 million fine handed down by the NCAA as part of its landmark sanctions.

Kid Scoop® FIT & FUN™

Join Kid Scoop's SCRUB SQUAD

Remember the last time you had a cold or the flu?

It was pretty miserable. You sneezed, coughed and had no energy. But there's an easy way to avoid all that: Just join Kid Scoop's SCRUB SQUAD.

Doctors around the world agree that one of the best ways to avoid getting sick and spreading germs is to wash your hands.

HOW TO JOIN: You join automatically every time you wash your hands!

Standards Links: Health: Know basic personal hygiene habits required to maintain health.

Experts say that washing your hands for at least 20 seconds is the best way to make sure you remove germs and gunk. Memorize and sing this song while you scrub to help you wash long enough.

THE SCRUB SQUAD SONG

(Sung to the tune of "Old MacDonald")

Washing hands is sudsy fun
 Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub!
 I wash eight fingers and two thumbs
 Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub!
 With a little soap here
 And a little more there
 Bubbles here
 Bubbles there
 Give those germs a splashing scare!
 Washing hands is sudsy fun
 Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub!

If your hands are extra dirty, sing this second verse and keep on scrubbing!

Now my hands are getting clean
 Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub!
 Even dirt that can't be seen
 Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub!
 With a little soap here
 And a little more there
 Bubbles here
 Bubbles there
 Watch them floating in the air
 Now my hands are nice and clean
 Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! Scrub!

Standards Links: Music: Memorize and sing simple songs.

HAND SANITIZER vs. SOAP & WATER

Using hand sanitizer shouldn't be a _____ for washing your hands with soap and _____. While sanitizer does kill _____, it doesn't do a very good job of getting rid of _____ dirt. Think of hand sanitizer as just a little "touch-up" _____ hand washings with good ol' soap and water.

Fill in the missing words.

- WATER
- GERMS
- BETWEEN
- REPLACEMENT
- VISIBLE

THE SCRUB SQUAD 5 STEP PLAN

- 1 Rub your hands together under warm running water. Make sure to get wet up to your wrists.
- 2 Use a generous amount of soap. Liquid soap, powdered soap or bar soap are all great.
- 3 SCRUB: Get the palms, back of your hands, wrists, under your nails and between your fingers for at least 20 seconds.
- 4 Rinse your hands to get rid of the soap (and dirt and germs).
- 5 Air dry your hands or use a clean towel, either cloth or paper.

Standards Links: Health: Students know practicing good personal hygiene is a way to prevent or reduce risk of disease.

How many hands and bubbles can you find on this page?

Extra! Extra! Synonym Search

A synonym is a word that means the same or nearly the same thing as another word. Search the newspaper for synonyms for the word CLEAN. Then, look for synonyms for the word DIRTY. Which were easier to find?

Standards Links: Vocabulary: Identify grade-level appropriate vocabulary in reading.

More fun hand-washing songs at www.kidscoop.com/kids

Hand Exercises

Now that your hands are nice and clean, they could use a little exercise. Try these:

Stretch & Squeeze
 Spread your fingers out as far as possible. Feel that s-t-r-e-t-c-h? Now squeeze them into two tight fists. Repeat 10 times.

The Big Reach
 Stand with your feet slightly apart. Reach your hands up, up, UP as high as you can. Now bend and reach for your toes. Repeat 10 times.

Helicopter Hands
 Extend your arms straight out, level with your shoulders. Slowly start twirling your arms in a circular motion. Spin them faster and faster for 60 seconds.

Pat on the Back
 Hold your hands out in front of you. Reach over your shoulders and pat your back for 30 seconds. Cross your arms and try again. Do this for 30 seconds. You deserve a pat on the back!

Standards Links: Physical Education: Use a variety of basic and advanced movement forms.

sunday horoscope

A baby born today has a Sun in Aquarius and a Moon in Taurus if born before 1:50 p.m. (PST). Afterward, the Moon will be in Gemini.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Feb. 17, 2013:

This year you move away from some of your firmly held positions. You see the power of being flexible and giving others their space. Your imagination is nothing less than a gift. Use it positively rather than make assumptions. If you are single, Cupid's arrow could hit the bull's-eye this year. A passionate bond could be in the offing. If you are attached, there might be times when no one can find the two of you. You act like newfound lovers. Enjoy! GEMINI can make your mind work overtime.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ You might be weighing the pros and cons of using a certain method to handle your finances. Others will push heavily for you to choose their method. Be sure to choose the right method for you, regardless of who it upsets. It is your life, after all. Tonight: Hang out with friends.

This Week: Use care with partners and money dealings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Others appreciate your impulsiveness, as it rarely is experienced. You can be creative, but putting that gift into action is uncommon for you. Get together with friends for a ballgame, to play some cards or to do whatever else the gang wants to do. Tonight: Out on the town.

This Week: Defer to others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★ Get some extra sleep if that would make you happy. You need some time to yourself. Your uniqueness separates you from others, and it is intriguing many people. Use your imagination when relating to an older relative or friend. Tonight: As you like it.

This Week: Nip a problem in the bud.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Go to a movie or someplace else where you will be entertained. You'll enjoy the energy that surrounds the crowd, as well as the pastime itself. You have a way of drawing other people close, and you'll do it again very soon. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

This Week: Make time for a loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You seem to assume your natural role as the leader. Instead, why not let go of this responsibility and join friends? You always have a good time with this group. Be careful, as tension between you and a partner could emerge. Tonight: Maximize the moment.

This Week: Meetings and get-togethers with others dominate your plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ Reach out to someone at a distance, as you have not visited this person in a while. Someone you care a lot about could add some confusion to your plans. Go with the flow, but verify that you are on the same page as others. Tonight: Touch base with an older friend.

This Week: You need to step up to the plate. Follow your inner voice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Defer to others in the morning -- it simply is easier. Use the afternoon for getting together with someone at a distance. Meet this person halfway. Confirm the time and meeting place, as confusion drifts through your day. Go with something different. Tonight: Dinner for two.

This Week: Reach out for new ideas. You'll find a solution.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Listen to what others suggest. Before you know it, you could have some interesting plans. A little spontaneity might bring you good luck. Make the most of every situation you encounter today. Tonight: Say "yes" to someone, and you will love the outcome.

This Week: Your mood could change quickly. Step back if need be.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Do something just for you this morning, whether it be sleeping in or reading the Sunday paper. By afternoon, you will have plans. Whatever you choose to do, you'll have a good time. Make sure there is not a misunderstanding as to when and where. Tonight: To the wee hours.

This Week: Find out where others stand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Express your enjoyment of a loved one by spending time with him or her. The two of you often act like two kids playing in a sandbox together. Share a fun hobby or pastime. Schedule time for yourself late this afternoon in order to relieve some stress. Tonight: Play it easy.

This Week: Friends dominate the scene, and your mood reflects it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You might not feel awake until midafternoon, but once you are, there is no stopping you. Whether you're seeking out a loved one, hanging with a child or laughing with friends, you simply have a great time. See what a little R and R can do? Tonight: Do your own thing.

This Week: Your ingenuity comes into play when dealing with a boss.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Keep asking important questions. Make calls in the morning to loved ones and friends. Inevitably, you will change your plans a few times because of your conversations. Enjoy the moment, but do not feel like you have to say anything. Tonight: Happiest at home.

This Week: If you really want to stay home, do. Perhaps you need several days off.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Feb. 18, 2013:
This year you have a unique opportunity to expand your horizons. Your creativity soars, and Lady Luck seems to be riding on your shoulder. Still, don't take anything for granted, and be sure to use good sense. If you are single, you could meet someone very special and significant to your life history. The process of getting to know each other will prove to be unusually rewarding. If you are attached, the two of you start acting like new lovers. Romance blooms, and a new addition to the family becomes a possibility. GEMINI helps you lighten up and laugh.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ If you don't accomplish what you want to do early on, you might find that it becomes more difficult as the day goes on. Others seem to interfere with your normal routine. View an obstacle that appears on your path as a sign to think carefully before continuing. Tonight: Talk to a friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Emphasize the role that others play in your life in order to manifest a goal. The additional responsibility you have shouldered in the past few weeks seems to pay off. If you're wondering which way to go with a present situation, listen to feedback. Tonight: Balance your budget.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ You'll head into work feeling sure of yourself. If you want something done your way, you'll have to take the lead. You might feel the need to start over, even if you don't want to lose the work, as you continue to see problems arise with this project. Tonight: To the wee hours.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Stop, and try to take in what is going on behind the scenes. Your fatigue is apparent, and you know when you have had enough. You might want to ask someone to fill in for you. Be reasonable in how you handle an unruly child or loved one. Tonight: Head home early.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Focus on long-term outcomes, especially if you are experiencing a lot of back-and-forth in your daily life. Financial matters come to the forefront. Make sure that you straighten out a hassle that has been affecting your domestic life. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ You could feel pressured and become tenser as a result of a certain situation. Key people in your life are optimistic; however, you might feel anxious when hearing the same news and information. Communication could become muddled. Tonight: Choose a stressbuster.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Your playfulness might become tempered by the realization of how much you need to do. Detach and prioritize, and you'll get more done than you thought possible. Recognize what is happening with an important relationship, and try to be more nurturing. Tonight: Make it easy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 20)
★★★ Your communication style seems to be transforming. You might not like everything that is being revealed right now. Use your ingenuity to solve these issues and more. Do not rush through the process for an answer. Take news with a grain of salt. Tonight: Easy works.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Approach a recurring situation differently. You might choose to be less verbal. Find out what the root of the problem is, and then work with others to fix it. As a result, you will have less to worry about. Tonight: Your optimism makes a big difference in your dealings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Realize what is happening within your immediate circle. Try to do something differently. What has not worked in the past suddenly will. Rethink a situation, brainstorm with others and approach it in a new way. Tonight: Live it up. Enjoy catching up on a friend's news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ You have been a bundle of energy as of late. Suddenly, the need to slow down hits you. How you deal with a situation could change radically because of your needs. Make no definitive statement just yet. Your finances could factor into your thinking. Tonight: Do a little shopping.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Your way of dealing with a problem could change radically. You'll observe others and see different ways of handling pressure and communication issues. If you like someone else's style, you might want to consider adapting certain elements of it. Tonight: As you like it.

Until the year 1971, both February 12 and February 22 were separate holidays, marking the birth dates of George Washington (Feb. 22) and Abraham Lincoln (Feb. 12). In 1971, President Richard Nixon conjoined the two holidays, proclaiming one single federal public holiday we know as Presidents' Day, in honor of all presidents, as opposed to just two. Presidents' Day is now celebrated on the 3rd Monday of every February.

Lent devotionals

First Sunday – Praise The Lord!

And if you weren't planning on going, then there is still time to repent and GO!

God bless.

Day 5 – Monday

Scripture: Mt 22:15-22; Mk 12:13-17; Lk 20:20-26

Mike Sublett

Then the Pharisees went out and laid plans to trap him in his words. They hoped to catch Jesus in something he said so that they might hand him over to the power and authority of the governor. Keeping a close watch on him, they sent their disciples to him, along with the Herodians. So the spies, who pretended to be honest, questioned him: "Teacher, we know you are a man of integrity and that you teach the way of God in accordance with the truth. We know that you speak and teach what is right. You aren't swayed by men, because you pay no attention to who they are. You do not show partiality. Tell us then, what is your opinion? Is it right for us to pay taxes to Caesar or not? Should we pay or shouldn't we?"

But Jesus, knowing their evil intent, saw through their duplicity and said to them, "You hypocrites, why are you trying to trap me? Show me the coin used for paying the tax. Bring me a denarius and let me look at it." They brought him a denarius, and he asked them, "Whose portrait is this on it? And whose inscription?"

"Caesar's," they replied

Then Jesus said to them, "Give to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's."

When they heard this, they were amazed at him. And astonished by his answer, they became silent. They were unable to trap him in what he had said there in public. So they left him and went away.

(The Gospels Interwoven,)

Devotional:

It had Tiberius Caesar's image on it, one of the Roman coins of the realm. Those who came that day to trap Jesus had no idea that it would be His choice of weaponry to not only fend off their attack, but to leave them wounded in heart as well. They set their trap and immediately expected to hear the sound of intellectual steel crushing the spiritual bones of Jerusalem's biggest trouble causer.

Imagine their surprise when Jesus turned the tables and they found themselves in the middle of His trap, constructed from a coin and 12 words. "Give to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's." They tucked their tail between their legs in disgrace.

But how many times have I tried to get my way by bargaining with my Lord? Oh, maybe I wasn't so arrogant and bold as to try to trap Him, but neither was I eager to obey His command or follow His leading. Shame on me for my reluctance, my hesitation.

Prayer:

Lord Jesus, teach me the lesson of the dog with his tail between his hind legs. He only does that when he has been completely humbled or conquered. Conquer me, Lord. Humble me, Lord, that I might stop making deals with You and might just obey. Amen.

Pa. woman makes spectacle of self, returns glasses

MONROEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A woman has returned a pair of $2,000 eyeglasses she stole from a Pittsburgh-area shop after she made a spectacle of herself when surveillance video of the heist was broadcast on the local TV news.

Brad Childs, vice president of the Eyetique in Penn Center, tells WPXI-TV that the woman called the store after the station broadcast the video of Wednesday night's theft.

The woman, who isn't being identified and has not been charged by police, can be seen taking the glasses from a locked case while a man distracted a sales clerk.

Childs says the woman phoned him "after she saw herself on the news and asked me what we could do."

Police in Wilkins Township haven't decided whether the woman will be charged.

Thai couple sets new record for longest kiss

PATTAYA, Thailand (AP) — For the second time in three years, a Thai couple has set a new record for the longest kiss, locking their lips for 58 hours, 35 minutes and 58 seconds in a Valentine's Day "kiss-athon."

Ekkachai and Laksana Tiranarat from Bangkok emerged victorious Thursday in what organizers said was the longest recorded smooch in history.

The milestone must still be verified by officials from Guinness World Records.

The pair, who also won the annual contest in 2011, received a 100,000 baht ($3,300) cash prize and two diamond rings.

The event began Tuesday with nine couples. The contestants were not allowed to sit, rest or sleep.

They also had to go to the bathroom together with their lips locked.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have lived in an abusive marriage for 11 years. Now, when I have finally mustered the courage to leave, everybody says I must stay "for the children" as he is a "changed man."

I no longer love him and he refuses to give me a divorce. He also refuses to admit there is anything wrong in the marriage and says I'm exaggerating everything.

I have tried counseling and therapy alone because he refused to join me. I do not want my four children to be affected by my choice and wish for a mutual discussion, but he doesn't want to discuss divorce. I am afraid to stay and afraid to leave. I have no support system here. — WANTS OUT IN ILLINOIS

DEAR WANTS OUT: After 11 years of abuse and counseling and therapy alone because your husband would not accompany you, his wishes should no longer affect your decision. Pick up the phone and contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline, 800-799-7233. That's the place to find information about how to form an escape plan for yourself and your children. Whether your husband is willing to discuss divorce or not, he cannot force you to remain married to him. An attorney can help you with the process once you are out of there.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 23-year-old woman with a university degree, a fulfilling job, downtown apartment and a busy social life. I am also heavily tattooed. My tattoos bring me a great deal of happiness. I work in a field where visible tattoos are acceptable, and I'm very good at covering them when necessary.

My problem is how to politely deal with strangers who criticize my tattoos when I'm out in public. I have been told I have "ruined" myself, that I have no future, that I'll never find a husband, that I am ugly, an insult to women and trashy. I do not dress scantily and, in my opinion, these comments are uncalled for.

I usually tell people that I am affecting only myself and that I'm happy, but this usually results in scoffs or more rude remarks. Part of me wants to be rude back because I am offended. What should I say the next time I am inevitably picked on? — INKED AND IRKED IN CALGARY, CANADA

DEAR INKED AND IRKED: I printed a letter last spring about a Canadian woman who insisted that people north of the border are nicer than people in the U.S.A. Your letter shows that's not necessarily the case. The next time someone makes an unkind remark about your body art, look the person in the eye and say, "That you would say something so hurtful to me shows you are uglier on the inside than you think I am on the outside."

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have been dating for 11 months. He's 18 and I'm 17. Every date we go on is initiated and planned by me. For once, I'd like to be surprised and swept off my feet by his actually planning a date. I don't know how to go about this. I want to tell him without hurting his feelings. — GETTING A LITTLE BORED IN QUAKERTOWN, PA.

DEAR GETTING A LITTLE BORED: The basis for a successful relationship is communication. While I don't advise you to tell your boyfriend that you're "getting a little bored," I do think it would be helpful to express that you'd like HIM to plan your dates once or twice a month so you don't have to do all the work in maintaining the relationship. That's not hurtful; it's truthful.

A XYDLB A A X R
is LONG FELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
