Trevathan arraigned in federal court

■ Bank fraud suspect released on own recognizance instead of cash bond.

BY TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

An arraignment was held during Erin Dawn Trevathan's initial appearance Thursday morning in federal court in Amarillo.

Trevathan, a former loan officer at Pampa Teachers Federal Credit Union, is charged with one count of bank fraud. She appeared before U.S. Magistrate Judge Clinton E. Averitte.

In lieu of a cash bond, Trevathan was released on a personal recognizance bond.

"That means she has made a promise to appear as directed and abide by the law and to meet all conditions as required by the court," said Christy Drake, the assistant U.S. Attorney prosecuting Trevathan's case.

Trevathan has retained an attorney, Adam Tisdell of the Blackburn and Tisdell law firm in Amarillo, according to the U.S. District Court Clerk's Office in Amarillo.

A trial date has not yet been set, a repre-

Construction accident case still under investigation

BY SASHA HELLER
 sheller@thepampanews.com

The construction site accident two weeks ago at Pampa Energy Center that left one man dead and another critically injured is still being investigated by Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) officials.

OSHA lead investigator Rodrigo Lopez could provide little information, as the investigation is still ongoing, but said the agency is analyzing all of the case details and expects to reach a decision soon.

According to police reports, Jesus J. Ramirez-Chavez, 44, Pampa, was killed after a portion of a building collapsed and was pronounced dead at the scene. At 2:40 p.m., the Pampa Police Department received a 911 call from an employee of a company dismantling building components of the former Celanese Chemical Company.

The caller had advised that a portion of the building had collapsed causing two workers to fall from approximately 40 feet.

Both workers were employed by Universal Wrecking, of Pampa, which had been contracted by the Pampa Energy Center to demolish portions of the former Celanese plant.

It is unsure at this time how the investigation will affect development at the Pampa Energy Center. Pampa Economic Development Corp. Executive Director Clay Rice was unavailable Friday to provide updated information. Pampa Fuels recently broke ground on the lot adjacent to the site of the construction accident with plans to operate a methanol plant.

FUN IN THE SUN

 An off-roader takes off for some fun at the Rosita Meadows area of Lake Meredith along the bed of the Canadian River. Spanning more than 40,000 acres, the Lake Meredith Recreation Area near Fritch provides plenty of space for not only off-road cruising, but for boating, horseback riding, fishing and hunting.

A balancing act

■ Lake Meredith officials developing plan to keep off-roaders, other park users happy while minimizing damage to natural resources.

BY TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

FRITCH — As a mandate by the National Park Service, Arlene Wimer, Chief of Resource Management at the Lake Meredith National Recreation Area, must finalize a plan to manage off-road vehicles at the park about 45 miles west of Pampa.

As you might guess, the draft is one of those thick federal government tomes, with hundreds of pages of background and analysis, charts, graphs and maps.

In a nutshell, however, the plan can be summarized in one sentence: "To manage ORV (off-road vehicles) use in the national recreation area for visitor enjoyment and recreation opportunities, while minimizing and correcting damage to resources."

But even if the NPS wasn't requiring Wimer — along with Chief Ranger Paul Jones — to develop a plan, she said it's a good idea to have one anyway.

"Part of the mission of park service is perpetuity," she said. "If we don't do this we won't have sustainability."

City Commission to consider rezoning request, RV site fees

 sheller@thepampanews.com

The Pampa City Commission will meet at 4 p.m., Tuesday, to consider adopting, upon second and final reading, an ordinance validating a petition filed on Dec. 26 to call for a local option liquor election. The ordinance also provides notice of a general election to elect a mayor and commissioners for Wards 1 and 3, and it provides notice of a special election to legalize, within city limits, the sale of mixed beverages by food and beverage certificate holders only. The special election has been tentatively set for May 11.

A public hearing will be held to hear public comments concerning Edward Losoya's request to rezone property at 908 S. Wells from single-family-3 residential to commercial. Losoya plans to establish a landscaping business along with a nursery.

According to city records, the Planning and Zoning Commission voted in favor of the property's rezoning. City staff has researched the zoning request and found no issues with spot zoning.

The commission will consider authorizing City Manager Richard Morris to execute a change order for Plains Builders Inc., concerning construction of the new Pampa Animal Welfare Facility. The financial impact of the change order is $739. The change order would allow for installation of a conduit for routing the facility's telecommunications network from service debarb to a VoIP cross-connect location and provide for an additional outlet in the Community Room.

Also on the agenda is adoption, upon second and final reading, of an ordinance to amend fees for RV sites and the group shelter at Recreation Park.

Joyce Stone Gikas

Joyce Stone Gikas, 84, went to be with the Lord on February 14, 2013, after a long illness. She was born to Barney Stone and Tommie Singleton Stone on April 11, 1928, in Archer City, Texas, and spent her childhood in Kingsmill and Pampa. She graduated from Pampa High School in 1946. Joyce married John Gikas in 1948 in San Antonio and they made their home in Pampa until 2002 when they moved to Lubbock to be closer to family. She was a member of First Baptist Church of Pampa since 1933, where she faithfully taught kindergarten Sunday school for 46 years.

Joyce worked with the Acteen girls youth program at First Baptist and was a volunteer softball coach for youth softball leagues. She loved ceramics, crocheting and shopping. For many years, Joyce helped with PHS Senior Banquets hosted annually by First Baptist Church. As a homemaker, she supported the many activities of her husband, children and grandchildren. She could always be counted on to serve hot lunches on school days to her children, grandchildren and their friends while at Pampa High at the house one block from the school. Joyce was an avid PHS sports fan, always attending games when possible, and following them by media after moving to Lubbock. She enjoyed vacations at Durango and Lake Vallecito, Colo., especially when joined by friends and family. In Lubbock, she was a member of Calvary Baptist Church where she helped in the kindergarten Sunday school class when possible. Joyce was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, John; and siblings, Robert and Roberta Stone. Those left to cherish her life are son, Tim of Fredericksburg; daughter, Karen and husband, Doug, of Lubbock; son, Grant, and wife, Brenda, of Dallas; sister, Dorothy Stone Porter and husband, Mike, of Pampa; seven grandchildren, nine great grandchildren, nieces, nephews and many Singleton cousins. Her niece Cheryl Porter Patterson of Amarillo was a dedicated and loving supporter during the past three years. A memorial service to celebrate her life is planned for Saturday, April 13, 2013 in Pampa. In lieu of flowers, donations in memory of Joyce Gikas should be made to First Baptist Church of Pampa.

Ex-Illinois cop screams, gets prison in wife's death

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Drew Peterson showed nearly no emotion during his trial, yet the once famously jocular ex-Illinois police officer screamed out his innocence before he was sentenced to 38 years in prison for his third wife's death in an outburst that suggested reality may be settling in.

"I did not kill Kathleen!" Peterson shouted as he leaned into a courtroom microphone Thursday, emphasizing each of the five words.

Without missing a beat, his dead wife's sister, Susan Doman, shouted back, "Yes, you did! You liar!" before the judge ordered sheriff's deputies to remove her from the courtroom.

For years, Peterson casually dismissed and even joked about suggestions he killed his third wife, Kathleen Savio, in 2004, or that he was behind the 2007 disappearance of his fourth wife, Stacy Peterson.

His sudden explosion of fury Thursday as he stepped up to address the judge who would sentence him for Savio's death left spectators gasping. Lead state prosecutor James Glasgow said it exposed the real Drew Peterson — the one more than capable of murder.

"We all got an opportunity to see a psychopath reveal himself in open court," Glasgow told reporters shortly after Thursday's hearing. "That shrill ... screech. ... That's the guy that killed Kathy."

"It was scary," said Doman later. "This is what my sister had to go through."

It was a climax in a long-running drama that has played out in the media amid speculation that Peterson sought to use his law enforcement expertise to get away with murder.

Savio's death was initially ruled an accident after her body was found jammed into a dry bathtub at her home, a gash on the back of her head and her hair soaked in blood. It was Stacy Peterson's 2007 disappearance that prompted authorities to take another look and eventually reclassify Savio's death as a homicide.

But the sentencing likely isn't the end of the story. Prosecutors said they could charge Peterson in the disappearance of his fourth wife, who vanished when she was 23. An appeal also awaits, and defense attorneys believe the conviction could easily get tossed, in part because prosecutors heavily relied on hearsay evidence.

"It has a good a chance of a successful appeal as any case I've ever seen," Steve Greenberg, one of Peterson's attorneys, said late Thursday.

Illinois does not have the death penalty, and the 59-year-old Peterson had faced a maximum 60-year prison term. Judge Edward Burmila gave him four years' credit for time he has served since his 2009 arrest.

Before the sentence was announced, Peterson started his statement to the judge with a startling scream — then went on for 30 more minutes, continuing in mostly hushed tones, crying and trying to regain his composure at times. His voice quivered and his hands were shaking as he reached for a glass of water.

"I loved Kathy. She was a good mom," he said, tearing up. "She did not deserve to die. But she died in an accident."

At times, Peterson seemed to wallow in self-pity, telling the judge tearfully: "I don't deserve this." Another time, he seethed, blaming prosecutors for what he called "the largest railroad job ever" in his case.

Minutes later, Peterson glared at Glasgow and challenged him to look him in the eyes. Glasgow, who had been taking notes, laid down his pen, folded his arms and looked straight back at Peterson. "Never forget what you've done here," Peterson said.

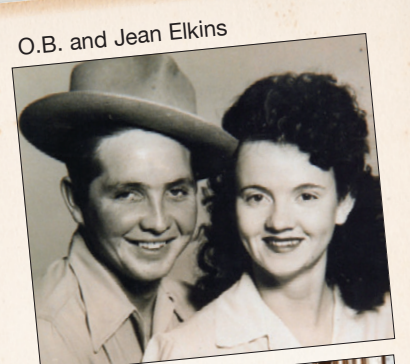

Glasgow later told reporters about that moment, saying, "I was thinking, 'You're a cold-blooded murderer and I'll stare you down until I die.'"

Peterson had divorced Savio a year before her death. His motive for killing her, prosecutors said, was fear that a pending settlement would wipe him out financially.

The 4 alternatives being considered at Lake Meredith

SUBMITTED BY NPS

Alternative A represents the continuation of current ORV use. Under this alternative, ORVs are allowed below the 3,000-foot elevation line in Rosita Flats and from cutbank to cutbank at Blue Creek.

Alternative B manages ORV use through a zone system. At Rosita Flats, two ORV areas would be established and a number of routes would be designated. At Blue Creek, ORVs would only be allowed on the sandy bottom areas and on designated routes. ORV permits would be required to obtain a free permit for educational purposes.

Alternative C manages ORV use through a fee permit system and user limits. Permits would include a fee and studies would be required to determine the appropriate use limit. ORV routes and areas would be designated.

Alternative D is the NPS preferred alternative. Under this alternative, ORV use would be managed through a zone system. At Rosita Flats, two ORV areas would be established and a number of routes would be designated. At Blue Creek, ORVs would only be allowed on sandy bottom areas and on designated routes. ORV permits would be required and a fee would apply.

Permit fees would be used to recover costs associated with ORV management. New and current education and outreach efforts would also continue under alternative D.

A RIVER RUNS THROUGH IT. The Lake Meredith Recreation Area, originally called the Sanford Recreation Area when the dam on the Canadian River was built in 1964, provides thousands of acres of open space for boating, fishing, hunting, horse back riding and off-road cruising. The land is owned and managed by the National Park Service, while the water is owned and managed by the state of Texas.

ORVs

We want people to be able to enjoy the park for years to come. You can see where tree roots have been exposed from off-road vehicles.”

There is no intention to ban ORVs from the area, which was created in 1964 when the federal Bureau of Reclamation built the Sanford Dam, but to create a written policy to enforce that will make everybody happy, officials at Lake Meredith said.

“We don’t have a plan so we need to develop one,” Wimer said. “But we do have some stipulations on what you can and can’t do.”

ORV use is limited to two areas within the 40,000-acre recreation area — the 1,900-acre Rosita Meadows on the southern tip of the park and the 289-acre Blue Creek area to the north in Moore County.

Also, ORVs are not allowed to roam out of the park onto private lands, but that often happens, Jones said.

“It’s getting harder to keep ORVs where you want them and not breach the fence and go onto private property,” he said. “We are always replacing fence.”

Jones said in the past, off-roaders stayed primarily in river bed because in the old days — the 1950s, ’60s and ’70s — the vehicles didn’t have much horsepower.

“But now with more horsepower you can get out of river bed and up the banks and do massive damage and cause soil erosion,” he said.

Most of the ORVs he sees at the recreation area are four-wheel drive pickups or “sand rails,” which are dune buggies with light, tubular frames and high-output motors.

He said the sand rails are popular among off-roaders at the park because the river beds are sandy, and the vehicles do well in that terrain.

“People will often have $60,000 to $100,000 into one of these things,” he said.

The NPS is proposing four alternatives, which are outlined in the sidebar to this story at the top of the page.

The NPS’ preferred plan, Alternative 4, includes charging fees for taking your ORV into the park, but Wimer believes there won’t be much resistance if they require the off-roaders to pony up.

“People have said they would not object to paying the fee if they know the money is put back into park,” she said. “They realize there is small minority of a bad element and having the fee will keep them out.”

Asked if hikers, horse back riders and other park users who like peace and quiet object to ORVs, Jones said no.

“We usually don’t have a user conflict,” he said. “We have 40,000 acres of property and ORVs are only allowed in two relatively small areas.”

Jones said the primary user group of ORVs in the park is family-oriented.

“We have extended families that come out here with five different machines,” he said.

Wimer said that all NPS parks and recreations areas without an ORV plan must develop one in response to a lawsuit against the Department of Interior by Friends of the Earth International, a network of environment groups with offices in Washington, D.C. and Berkeley, Calif.

“They’re not suing Lake Meredith directly but we have become part of that because they are suing other parks,” she said.

Lake Meredith officials will hold public meetings next week on Feb. 26 and 27 seeking input on the ORV plan. The public meetings will be held Feb. 26 from 5:30 -7:30 p.m. at the Ashmore Inn and Suites, located at 2301 East I-40 (Grand Street exit) in Amarillo and on Feb. 27, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. at the Sanford-Fritch schools business office, located at 540 Eagle Blvd. in Fritch. Recreation area staff will be available to answer questions during the meeting. The input received at the public meetings and during the public comment period will be used to help develop the final plan.

The hypocrisy of amnesty advocates

Insanity is doing the same thing over and over again but expecting different results. The Ronald Reagan amnesty of 1986 was a conspicuous failure, and a virtually identical plan failed in 2007 when it was pushed by John McCain, Ted Kennedy and

PHYLLIS SCHAFLY

George W. Bush.

Now the establishment has lined up eight senators plus a media chorus to resurrect the Reagan amnesty. That may make sense if you are seeking left-wing Democratic votes, but it is insanity for conservatives and Republicans.

The Reagan amnesty admitted twice as many illegals as expected and was riddled with fraud and cheating. It started a gigantic stream of illegal aliens to walk, swim or bribe their way across the border into the U.S., and that has continued to this day.

The amnesty pushers are counting on Americans not to remember the Reagan failure and counting on the American people's ignorance of arithmetic and politics. They are also hoping to make Republicans believe amnesty is the key to getting the Hispanic vote, plus the key to conning religious citizens into believing amnesty is the way to practice Christian compassion.

The amnesty proposal cooked up by six senators who claim to be bipartisan is essentially the same plan that aroused the fury of the grassroots in 2007 and covered congressmen with a tsunami of messages. But there is one big difference today; this time we know the cost, and that's truly scary.

Robert Rector of the Heritage Foundation estimates that this amnesty plan will cost the U.S. taxpayers "$2.5 Trillion above any taxes paid in" because the majority of illegal aliens who would eventually be legalized by the proposal are uneducated and poor. At least 60 percent are high school dropouts, so they live below the poverty level and will be eligible to receive many of our 79 varieties of welfare handouts.

The entire plan should be illegal because it violates an explicit tenet of federal law that anyone granted entry into the U.S. must be financially self-supporting and not likely to become a public charge. Of course President Obama is not shy about issuing illegal executive orders.

Republican Senator Jeff Sessions of Alabama pointed out, "We know already that the administration refuses to enforce existing law restricting immigrant welfare use, and in fact promotes expanded welfare use to immigrants, including food stamps, public housing and Medicaid. ... What good are promises of future enforcement when the administration covertly undermines those laws now in place?"

There is no way that supporting amnesty will give Republicans the Hispanic vote, and amnesty advocates are plainly dishonest when they assert the contrary. In the election following the Reagan amnesty, George H.W. Bush got only 30 percent of the Hispanic vote in 1988 and only 25 percent when he ran for reelection in 1992.

We've been told that George W. Bush was well liked by the Hispanics, but he got only 35 percent of the vote when he was elected in 2000. There is no evidence that any plan can give Republicans 50 percent of the Hispanic vote.

When Hispanics are asked what issues they care most about, immigration usually ranks only fifth.

Hispanics who come from countries where big government is a permanent fact of life and where the economic systems are based on bribery are unlikely prospects for the Republican message of limited government and restraints on government spending.

Letter to the Editor

Reader praises vet for sharing war experiences

Kudos to Mr. Larry Ray ("Once a Marine, always a Marine," Tuesday, Feb. 19) for his recognition of Iwo Jima Day. Most military troops don't talk about war experiences.

I remember one vet who survived the Bataan Death March. He lived on the edge with his motorcycle and "raisin jack" (a type of home brew). Another vet was at Iwo and he would not talk about it unless he was drunk and then he came to tears telling about all the Japanese troops who were killed and the civilians who would jump off the cliffs with their children.

I lost a cousin in Korea and they never found a fragment of his body.

There were students who I taught in high school who came back in body bags.

War is not the same today. Who wouldn't be traumatized if confronted by a 10-year-old carrying an explosive device just wanting food? Give the vets a salute.

10 reasons I wish George Washington were still alive — part one

Many conservatives point to great modern men and leaders, such as Ronald Reagan, as models we can follow, and I concur with their sentiments. But I think the best leaders lived long ago, during the founding of our republic, away from the lime-light and luster of today's politics and Washington drama. With Feb. 18's being Presidents Day and Feb. 22's being the actual day George Washington was born, I thought there would no better time to honor the man I consider to be one of the greatest leaders ever born. And I'm going to take a few weeks (columns) to do it.

Let me begin by highlighting a few background notes for some who might not be so familiar with this pillar of American life beyond the basics, as documented by the University of Virginia and the History channel.

On Feb. 22, 1732, George Washington was born to a family of middling wealth in Westmoreland County, Va., the second son from the second marriage of a Colonial plantation owner. In 1752, Washington joined the British army and served as a lieutenant in the French and Indian War.

In 1759, he married Martha Dandridge Custis, a wealthy widow, and adopted her two children.

In 1775, at age 43, Washington became the commander in chief of the Continental Army, and in 1783, he led America to victory over the British after eight years of war.

As far as his political career goes, Washington served as a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses from 1759 until 1774. He was also a member of the first and second Continental Congresses in 1774 and 1775. But while others were signing the Declaration of Independence, Washington was already on the battlefield, fighting for independence. As the president of the Constitutional Convention in 1787, however, Washington was the first signer of the U.S. Constitution.

In 1789, Washington became the first president of the United States of America.

He was elected unanimously by the 69 presidential electors to serve his first term, which was from 1789 to 1793. He was elected unanimously again for his second term, from 1793 to 1797. He declined a third term.

So here are my top 10 reasons I wish George Washington were still alive and why I believe the model of his life is still worthy to shadow today.

(These are also the reasons I often cited in my New York Times best-seller "Black Belt Patriotism," which has an expanded paperback edition.)

10) Even as a youth, Washington was a role model for many. At just 14, George wrote out in freehand by his own volition "110 Rules of Civility & Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation." At 17, George's first official job was as the official surveyor of Culpeper County, Va.

9) Washington epitomized courage. While others were frightened by their signing of the Declaration of Independence, Washington was on the front lines, battling for its tenets. He faced his fears, endured grave hardships and even shared death in the eyes while helping others to do the same. Who can forget the severe conditions of Valley Forge? And what about the repeated threat of personal injury?

Washington even dodged bullets on several occasions. The University of Virginia documented a few of them: "at Braddock's Defeat where two horses were shot under him and he had four bullets in his clothes; at the final skirmish of the Forbes expedition, on November 12, 1758, where he rushed between two parties of British who were firing at each other; at Kip's Bay skirmish on September 15, 1776, where he rashly exposed himself in an attempt to rally the militia; at the battle of Princeton, January 3, 1777; and when making a reconnaissance of the British after the landing at the Head of Elk on August 26, 1777."

8) Washington wasn't afraid of public opinion or challenging the status quo. As History's website explained, "he struggled with advisors over what sort of image a president should project. He preferred one of dignity and humility and stumbled when encouraged to act out of character or monarchical. ... A member of the Virginia planter class, he grew increasingly uncomfortable with the hypocrisy of owning slaves, yet publicly he promoted a gradual abolition of slavery.

In his will he requested that his slaves be freed upon Martha's death." As far back as 1786, Washington wrote, "There is not a man living who wishes more sincerely than I do, to see a plan adopted for the abolition of (slavery)."

7) Washington was a man of integrity and character yet just as human as the rest of us. History explained: "Washington possessed that intangible quality of a born leader and had earned a reputation for coolness under fire and as a strict disciplinarian during the French and Indian campaign. ... An extraordinary figure in American history and unusually tall at 6'3", Washington was also an ordinary man. He loved cricket and fox-hunting, moved gracefully around a ballroom, was a Freemason and possibly a Deist, and was an astute observer of the darker side of human nature.

His favorite foods were pineapples, Brazil nuts (hence the missing teeth from cracking the shells) and Saturday dinners of salt cod. He possessed a wry sense of humor and, like his wife Martha, tried to resist the vanities of public life. Washington could also explode into a rage when vexed in war or political battles. Loyal almost to a fault, he could also be unforgiving and cold when crossed.

When Republican Thomas Jefferson admitted to slandering the president in an anonymous newspaper article for his support of Federalist Alexander Hamilton's policies, Washington cut Jefferson out of his life. On at least one occasion, Washington's stubbornness inspired John Adams to refer to him as Old Muttonhead."

Next week, I will discuss a few more controversial aspects about Washington's life, such as his family values. For more on the monumental figure, I recommend the amazing book "George Washington's Sacred Fire," by Peter Lillback and Jerry Newcombe.

Utah state trooper accused of making bogus DUI arrests

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — During her 10 years as a Utah state trooper, Lisa Steed built a reputation as an officer with a knack for nabbing drunken motorists in a state with a long tradition of teetotaling and some of the nation's strictest liquor laws.

Steed used the uncanny talent — as one supervisor once described it — to garner hundreds of arrests, setting records, earning praise as a rising star and becoming the first woman to become trooper of the year.

Today, however, Steed is out of work, fired from the Utah Highway Patrol, and she — and her former superiors — are facing a lawsuit in which some of those she arrested allege she filed bogus DUI reports.

"If we don't stand up to Lisa Steed or law enforcement, they just pull people over for whatever reason they want," said attorney Michael Studebaker.

Steed declined to comment, but her attorney Greg Skordas said she denies the allegations. She is trying to get her job back.

The people snared by Steed say the arrests disrupted their lives and were costly to resolve.

Michael Choate, a now-retired aircraft logistics specialist at Hill Air Force Base, said he nearly lost his security clearance and job.

Steed stopped him because he was wearing a Halloween costume and booked him even though three breathalyzers tests showed no alcohol in his system. Choate said he spent $3,800 and had to take four days off of work to get his DUI charged dismissed.

The 49-page lawsuit includes two defendants, but Studebaker said dozens of others are lined up and willing to tell their stories. He said they are requesting the lawsuit be broadened into a class action lawsuit.

Every one of her DUI stops back to at least 2006 should be under suspicion, he said, adding that could be as many as 1,500 people.

The lawsuit, filed in December, also accuses the Utah Highway Patrol of ignoring Steed's patterns of higher-than-normal DUI bookings and waited too long to take her off patrol. The agency declined to comment.

Steed joined the agency in 2002, and during her first five years, she earned a reputation as a hard-worker whose efficiency led to high arrest totals. By the time she ascended to trooper of the year in 2007, she was held up as one of the agency's top stars.

In 2009, Steed became a member of the DUI squad. Her 400 DUI arrests that year were thought to be a state record, and more than double the number made by any other highway trooper. She earned special recognition at the state Capitol.

"With her training and experience, it's second nature for her to find these people who are driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol," her DUI squad boss at the time, Lt. Steve Winward, told the Deseret News.

During a ride-along with the newspaper, Steed said it was simply a "numbers game," noting that one in every 10 drivers stopped for a violation is driving impaired. "It's a lot of hard work, but you make a ton of stops, and you're going to run into them," she said.

Steed's career, however, turned. In 2012, while on the stand in a DUI court case, Steed acknowledged purposely leaving her microphone in her patrol car so that superiors wouldn't know she was violating agency policy.

By April 2012, her credibility had come into question so much that a prosecutor said he would no longer prosecute DUIs if Steed's testimony was the only evidence.

In October, the Salt Lake Tribune obtained a memo written in May 2010 in which Utah Highway Patrol Sgt. Rob Nixon flagged Steed's "pattern" of questionable DUI arrests. He wrote that the bulk of Steed's arrestees had no signs of "impairing drugs" in their systems.

The memo said she based most of her arrests on signs of impairment such as dilated pupils and leg and body tremors.

Steed was taken off road patrol in April 2012 and fired in November. She was accused of violating department policies, falsifying police reports and using questionable practices when making DUI arrests.

The lawsuit is based on two defendants: Thomas Romero and Julie Tapia.

Romero was stopped after Steed said he was swerving, according to the lawsuit. After Romero said he wasn't drinking, Steed gave him a roadside sobriety test anyway. She booked him for DUI even though his blood alcohol content was 0.00. Charges were dismissed.

Tapia went to pick up her ex-husband, who had been drinking. Steed approached Tapia as she got out of her car at her house, saying Tapia had been speeding, the lawsuit said. Steed said she could smell alcohol, and Tapia told her it was coming from her ex-husband.

Tapia was arrested for a DUI; her ex-husband for public intoxication. Tapia's blood test showed no alcohol. Charges were dropped.

Choate, who hopes to join the lawsuit, said the entire agency should be held responsible for the damage Steed caused

DPS: 19 arrested in TX-based cocaine ring

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Officers have arrested 19 suspects in a Central Texas-based cocaine and cash smuggling ring with ties to Mexico.

The Texas Department of Public Safety on Thursday announced the arrests in a multi-agency investigation dubbed Operation Treasure.

Authorities have seized $1 million and more than 120 pounds of cocaine in a criminal network operating from the Austin area. Investigators say cocaine was also transported to Houston and Dallas, along with Kentucky, Georgia, North Carolina, Florida and Alabama.

A federal indictment returned Tuesday and unsealed Thursday charges the suspects with conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine. Six individuals also face charges of bulk cash smuggling.

Prosecutors say proceeds from cocaine sales were transported back to Austin and eventually to Mexico.

Lawyer charged with bribery takes stand

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A Texas attorney charged with bribery and racketeering in cases linked to a disgraced judge has testified he enjoys taking big cases against corporations.

The Valley Morning Star reports Marc Rosenthal of Austin was scheduled to return to the stand Friday in Corpus Christi.

sentative with the clerk's office said.

Drake said now that the formal charges have been read and Trevathan has a lawyer, the next steps are discovery of evidence and for attorneys on both sides to file motions with the court.

After that, there will either be a trial or the defendant will enter a guilty plea without a trial, she said.

Trevathan is accused by a federal grand jury of falsifying bank reports and statements from 2008 until she was terminated in December 2010.

She also is accused of altering books and records of the credit union to conceal the manipulation and reconciliation of accounts.

The credit union on North Hobart Street has about 800 members.

sunday horoscope

A baby born today has a Sun in Pisces and a Moon in Leo if born before 10:52 p.m. (PST). Afterward, the Moon will be in Virgo. HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Feb. 24, 2013: This year you stay mel-low and focused on your daily life. You will find that your attitude brings a lot of satisfaction to others; however, sometimes you could become critical and touchy, especially when dealing with loved ones. Do your best not to fall into a negative mindset. If you are single, you meet people with ease. Choosing the right person might take time. In the meantime, enjoy the dating process. If you are attached, you could be unusually emotional with your sweetie. Remember to relax. LEO knows how to draw you into his or her way of thinking.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Good will seem abundant, and it's all around you. You might wonder what is too much in this atmosphere, as people easily could go overboard. Worry less, and enjoy the moment. Open up to a partner or loved one. Tonight: Allow the child within you to emerge. This Week: Refrain from taking action or making decisions until midweek. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Listen to news more openly and be willing to let go of previously held judgments. You will relate to others better if you follow through on this. Unexpected moments of fun and caring might not happen as much as you would like. Talk less and listen more. Tonight: Happy at home. This Week: Your ingenuity can make a difference in a project. GEMINI (May 21-June 22) ★★★★★ Reach out to someone you care about. A disagreement of some sort often separates the two of you. You might want to approach this situation differently. A little indulgence and a lot of good will tend to go a long way. Tonight: Let the good times rock and roll. This Week: You won't feel up to snuff until Wednesday. CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Your creativity and ability to get past an immediate issue could mark the next few days. A sense of cheerfulness surrounds your home and loved ones. A reason for celebration appears to be in the offing. Unexpected news heads your way. Tonight: Paint the town red. This Week: Clear up any issues you might have Monday and Tuesday. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Your energy attracts many people. Don't decide to settle in with a good book; instead, let go and enjoy yourself with others. Moments like this build memories. Confusion surrounds plans and conversations. Laugh rather than get angry. Tonight: Be spontaneous. This Week: Curb a need to be possessive or do a lot of shopping. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★ If you want to handle certain matters alone, do so -- even if others are off enjoying this lovely Sunday. You might feel more indulgent as you complete an important task. Your sense of well-being is enhanced by your actions. Tonight: Play it low-key. This Week: You roll into Monday a force to behold. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Listen to news. Join friends, and let go of the tension you currently are experiencing. Why would you let negative thoughts affect you when good company is all around you? Someone you meet could prove to be very important. Tonight: Continue the moment. This Week: Time is your ally. Don't move too quickly. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★ Deal with an older friend directly. Make time to get together or have a talk with this person. You can't avoid this situation much longer, so know what is expected of you. Lighten up the mood. Your laugh makes others smile. Tonight: Try to be reasonable, and call it a night. This Week: Meetings are essential to your decision-making process. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Your mind drifts to adventure. Grab a loved one, and do something together that you both love. Make it a point to enjoy each other, and try not to be so in control. You might be surprised and delighted at what occurs. Tonight: Take a risk, and reveal more of yourself. This Week: Tension builds as you attempt to guide others. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Remain reasonable with someone who often triggers you. You understand more than you realize. Keep the moment light, and you'll discover the true value of accepting someone as he or she is. Tonight: Work with a partner in order to create greater closeness between you. This Week: Reach out for new information, then act. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ You can't say "no" to an invitation, even if you want to. Someone might be so enticing that he or she is nearly impossible to resist. Choose to be happy and content with what evolves from this situation. Stop judging yourself so harshly. Tonight: Forget tomorrow. Live now. This Week: Partnership matters come forward. Do some much-needed research. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★ Get to work on a long-overdue project. If you find yourself caught in the middle of a misunderstanding, just relax and keep your cool. Try not to hold a grudge or stand on ceremony. Curb a tendency to go to extremes. Kick back and enjoy. Tonight: Make it early. This Week: Allow someone to go forward and assume responsibility.

Bulldogs too much for Pampa Friday night

Embry praises seniors.

BY ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Hustlin' Harvesters traveled to Lubbock for a game against the Abilene Wylie Bulldogs at Frenship High School on Friday night. The game was the area round of the playoffs.

The Bulldogs started the game off with a 7-0 run before a Derrek Pollard layup and Cade Engle added a three-pointer and pulled Pampa back within two points at 7-5. The full-court press put on by the Bulldogs gave Pampa fits all night. After the first quarter, Pampa trailed 16-9.

After the second quarter, Pampa trailed 32-13. Abilene Wylie would outscore Pampa 29-9 in the third to take a 61-22 lead into the final period.

The final score on Friday night was Abilene Wylie 73, Pampa 35.

"I couldn't be more proud of this group of guys. We faced a better team tonight and chose to fight," said Pampa coach Matt Embry. "We could have laid down in the fourth after that third quarter but we didn't. We actually won the fourth quarter."

Embry added, "My hope is that when these kids walk out of this experience they come out better than they came in. This game is more about life. It is not always about wins and losses."

"When people ask if was a successful season, my answer is always, 'I will tell you in 5 to 10 years when we see what kind of men they are in this world.'"

Embry said he has no doubt that Pampa is sending out eight seniors that will do great things in this life. "They know that if they ever need me or my staff later on down the road that no matter what we are doing we will be there for them."

Pollard led Pampa with nine points, including one three-pointer. Jon Cox finished with six points and sank three out of his four throw shots. Engle had a three-pointer and scored five points. Ty Hutto also had a three and finished with five points. Jake Green and Romel Lee both hit threes and scored three points each. Gabe Garcia and Oliver Cabrales finished with two points each.

The loss brings Pampa's final season record to 12-17 and ends their season.

Best of luck to Jake Green, Romel Lee, Ty Hutto, Patterson Alvey, Oliver Cabrales, Derrek Pollard, Tyler Powell and Jon Cox. Dakota Eppison, Drew Facio and Jacob Crippen are seniors that helped the team in various facets all year. Good luck in your future endeavors.

The Pampa News would like to congratulate all of the Hustlin' Harvesters for a great season.

Editor's note: More pictures from Friday's game will be published in the Tuesday edition.

Pace, Iaconelli tied for Bassmaster lead

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Cliff Pace of Petal, Miss., and 2003 Bassmaster Classic champ Michael Iaconelli of Pittsboro, N.C., tied for the first-day lead at the world championship of bass fishing on Grand Lake O' the Cherokees.

They both brought 21 pounds, 8 ounces to the scales at Tulsa's BOK Center on Friday, the first of three days of competition for the $500,000 top prize of the Bassmaster Classic.

Pace pulled off his big weight in the last few hours of competition by adding a 6-pound, 8-ounce bass. That big one and another fish came after a nerve-racking lull of almost two hours without a bite.

"I don't know if I just wasn't around them, or they weren't in the right frame of mind to bite. But then I caught two pretty good fish in the last couple of hours," he said.

If Pace can keep his momentum and win, it would be his first Classic victory. For Iaconelli, his 21-8 on Friday showed him a path to a possible second Classic crown.

"It's the kind of start you have to have to win the Classic," he said.

Iaconelli, and other Classic competitors, weren't bothered by a passing cold front and the chilly temperatures.

"A lot of time after a very, very cold night like we had, the fishing gets better," he said.

In third place after the first round was a Classic rookie, Hank Cherry of Maiden, N.C. He brought in 20-15, trailing the leaders by 9 ounces.

In fourth place with 19-12 was four-time Bassmaster Classic champion Kevin VanDam of Kalamazoo, Mich. Just 2 ounces behind VanDam was Tracy Adams of Wilkesboro, N.C., who had 19-10. Local favorite Jason Christie of Park Hill, Okla., was sixth with 18-12.

The Carhartt Big Bass of the day was a 7-pound, 4 ounce largemouth by Mark Pierce of Clarksville, Tenn. The biggest bass brought to the scales over three days of Classic competition could be worth a $2,500 bonus from Carhartt.

After Saturday, the field will be cut to the top 25 anglers. They'll return Sunday to Grand Lake for the final day of competition. The Classic champ will be crowned at the BOK Center on Sunday.

Classic competitors will launch their boats Saturday and Sunday at Wolf Creek Park in Grove, Okla. The anglers will leave the docks at 7 a.m.

Golf thought of the week

■ Anchoring: A short summary of a long debate.

The much debated ban on “anchoring” during the putting stroke is one of the hottest topics in golf today. But it’s somewhat misunderstood. I hear various stances on the topic and an array of interpretations. I do come across some excellent takes on the issue, but there are plenty of misinformed statements. Here are the bare bones you need to know.

The proposed change is to rule 14 of the universally accepted laws of golf endorsed by both the R&A and the USGA. The 90-day consultation period announced is set to close at the end of February and, if the governing bodies have their way, the ban will come into play on the first day of 2016. That’s in line with their four-year cycle of maintaining the rules.

The legislation may sound complex, but there is a simple principle that guides the entire change: there should be no anchoring of the Putter or arms to the body at any stage of the putting stroke. That leaves plenty of unconventional stances outside the scope of the proposed change. All of the following would be unaffected and remain legal: the claw grip, broom handle Putter, holding the elbows against the body, grip resting against the forearm. Any form of anchoring of the grip to the body is very much a part of the proposed ban, as is forming an anchor point between the forearm and the body.

Is this written in stone? In short, no. Plenty of Tour players are strongly opposed to the ban. Four-time major winner Ernie Els has become a major voice for this group. “Hopefully they don’t ban it,” he says, “because I really don’t think there’s any data that really confirms that they have to ban it.”

Manufacturers are also likely to enter the battle. They will argue that anchoring is one option to help Amateur and Professional players alike. And that makes it a good thing for golf - more fun, more players, more business.

I’d be very interested to hear your views. Have you ever tried anchoring your Putter? Are you in favor of the ban?

Either way, feel free to contact me to learn more about your own putting stroke and the best equipment for you. I’m here to make you a better golfer — with or without an anchored Putter!

LaughFest aims for mustache record

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Organizers of a Grand Rapids laughter festival are going for a third world record in as many years. They're asking participants to help set a new Guinness World Record for the largest gathering of people wearing fake mustaches. Gilda's LaughFest says the record try will take place March 7. Those who come to Rosa Parks Circle that day will be provided with an official LaughFest mustache. According to LaughFest officials, the current fake mustache world record of 648 participants was set in September at an event organized by the St. Louis Rams.

Last year, LaughFest's kickoff event broke a Guinness World Record for the largest number of people wearing fake animal noses. The year before that it was people tossing rubber chickens. LaughFest runs March 7-17.

ENDURING LOVE

Delbert and Shirley Barker

Delbert and Shirley Barker celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary with a cruise to Alaska this summer and a dinner with family and friends at Dyer's Bar-B-Que. They were married on February 24, 1963 in Arnett, Oklahoma. The happy couple have a son, Jimmy Barker and his wife, Lori and grandchildren, Brooklyn, Braydon and Brittnee Barker. They also have a daughter, Shelly, who passed away in 2010.

The Barkers, then and now.

Edwin and Charlotte Hogan

On February 23, 1948, this young couple left Mobeetie, Texas to get married in Wichita Falls, Texas. Their journey together has taken them all over the world and after 65 years, their love continues to grow. Their 2 children, 4 grandchildren and spouses, and 6 great-grandchildren, all wish to congratulate them on this milestone anniversary. We wish to thank them for being such an outstanding inspiration of love and devotion.

Etro creates kaleidoscope of powerful clothes

MILAN (AP) — The Etro collection for next winter was short and to the point.

Walking through a kaleidoscope of Etro patterns projected on a screen, the models marched down the runway in structured outfits, underlining the power silhouette that is becoming the No. 1 trend of the current Milan Fashion Week.

Friday's show, part of the womenswear preview showings for the fall-winter 2013-2014, featured coats and jackets with marked shoulders, slim skirts and belted waistlines, all signs of an aggressive urban mood. Creative designer Veronica Etro jazzed up the usually gentle Etro patterns with metallic touches. Many of the outfits also featured prominent zippers.

Cavalli thinks ethnic for women next winter

MILAN (AP) — Designer Roberto Cavalli drew inspiration for his second line "Just Cavalli" collection, from a recent trip to Thimphu, the capital of Bhutan, at the foot of the Himalayas.

"Riches there are measured by the values of happiness," the designer said ahead of Thursday's show, which had an ethnic, almost hippie feel to it.

Nearly the entire collection came in subdued native prints, fashioned in anything from tunics over pants to colorful evening gowns. Accessories included long silk necklaces like the ones worn by the Bhutan nobility, and a backpack to replace the more urban handbag.

Many designers are featuring fur this round of preview shows, including Cavalli who used it mainly to trim the hoods of his winter parkas. That was enough to draw the wrath of a small group of animal rights activists who disrupted the show holding up signs in Italian saying, "Your fashion is our death," until they were forcibly removed.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Feb. 25, 2013:
This year you will look at life's issues through many different lenses. As a result, the decisions you make will tend to be grounded. Many opportunities head your way. Take your time deciding which option is right for you. If you are single, your love life becomes very exciting come summer. In the period that follows, be open to meeting the right person. If you are attached, your sweetie could find you to be exciting, yet he or she might feel challenged by everything that is going on in your life. Take a special dream vacation together. VIRGO seems like your opposite, but you have the same issues.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ You are focused right now, despite some confusion in your mind about a different situation. Ask questions. Return all of your calls and emails. Opportunities appear, and you'll need to make a choice. Use care when dealing with a new person in your life. Tonight: Work late, if need be.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You can't control your thoughts, even when you know they're not relevant to the moment. You can choose not to share them, but is that helpful? Center yourself, and allow your mind to be present. Remember, you have limits. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Stay anchored, and know full well what is happening. At times, doing nothing can prove to be most effective. A boss might try to lure you into a project, but taking the lead won't be worth your while. Smile, but keep your ideas to yourself. Tonight: Mosey on home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Keep listening, even if you're shocked at what you hear. You might wonder how you can balance all of the different factors in your life. Reach out to someone at a distance whom you admire. This person always has a lot to share. Tonight: Your creativity flows; use it well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Curb a need to go overboard. You might want to consider why you are doing this. Only when you have that answer can you decide to hold back some. Your imagination opens up many different doors. Lose the mindset that you are stuck. Tonight: Your treat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Greet compliments and offers positively. A close loved one's kind gesture will motivate you to take a step back and observe what is happening around you. Changes are necessary, and you have more power than you might realize. Tonight: Go with someone's suggestion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ The time has come to assume a low profile. You might want to mellow out and try a different approach. You are surrounded by people who believe that they have better answers than you do. Detach, and you might understand where they're coming from. Tonight: Not to be found.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Confusion surrounds your long-term goals. Know that they might not be possible, considering your present commitments. Discussions provide unusually creative answers and solutions that might allow you to have it all! Tonight: Look at both the pros and the cons.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Take charge, and try not to worry so much about the here and now. Several different opportunities come from others who present you with one idea after another. Be happy rather than overwhelmed. You have so many choices! Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Look beyond the obvious. You could be overwhelmed by everything you need to do right now. Understand that you have one choice: prioritize. Fortunately, you have energy and discretion working for you. Be willing to let go of what doesn't work. Tonight: In the moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Relate to someone directly if you want to resolve a problem. The other party could have many ideas. Instead of making him or her out to be in the wrong, choose to find solutions that work for both of you. Your ingenuity will find the path. Tonight: Dinner and chat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Others think they have the answers, and they let you know. Don't get triggered. Look through a long-term lens in order to find alternative solutions. You have many options involving property and investments. Do your research before you decide. Tonight: At home.

Rug hooking exhibit at Panhandle museum

SUBMITTED

A wool rug hooking exhibit is on-going at the Carson County Square House Museum.

The Panhandle Rug Hookers include 15 rug hookers from Amarillo, White Deer and Floydada.

Sixty-seven hooked rugs, footstools, chair pads and purses are on exhibit through the month of February.

The Square House Museum staff said this is one of the best exhibits the museum has had.

Hundreds of people have viewed the exhibit and said it is one of the most unusual arts in the area.

Wool used in the making of the rugs can be purchased new or from used wool clothing. It must be felted (washed in cool water), dried in a dryer and cut into strips.

The width of the strips depends on the type of rug to be hooked. Small strips are used for fine rug hooking to make objects shaded and with more details. Wider strips are used for primitive folk art hooked rugs.

A pattern is put on linen. The linen is stretched on a frame.

A hook is used to pull up the strip of wool to make a loop on the top of the fabric. Different colors of wool make the design.

The Panhandle Rug Hookers have attended rug hooking classes in Missouri, Colorado and Pennsylvania. The Star of Texas Rug Hooking camp in Fredericksburg, Texas, is held each September and many ladies from this area attend that rug camp where five teachers have workshops and teach different rug hooking techniques.

Carson County Square House Museum is located on State Highway 207 in Panhandle.

The phone number is 806-537-3524 and the director is Viola Moore.

For more information about rug hooking, visit Atharugs.com, the website for the Association of Traditional Hooking Artists.

Submitted Photo
Carolyn Rapstine, a longtime member of the Panhandle Rug Hookers, with some of the works in the wool rug hooking exhibit.

Sen. Seliger files higher education legislation

SUBMITTED

AUSTIN — With bipartisan support State Sen. Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) filed Senate Bill 15 earlier this which clarifies the role of Boards of Regents.

Kel Seliger

Seliger represents Pampa in the Texas State House.

As filed, SB 15 requires that all appointees to Boards of Regents be confirmed by the Senate and receive the statutorily mandated training prior to voting on budgetary or personnel matters. Additionally, it ensures that ethics must be part of the training appointees receive and more specifically defines the substance of the training.

This legislation also addresses allegations of micromanagement by amending statute to clearly state that all duties and responsibilities not specifically stated in law for University Systems or Governing Boards are reserved for the institutions. By defining the rights and responsibilities vested to Regents and systems, this language is intended to protect institutional autonomy in the same way that we all expect the 10th Amendment to protect state sovereignty from government overreach.

“It was made clear on Monday that university governance and allegations of micromanagement by Regents is an issue the Senate takes very seriously,” Seliger said. “Accordingly, I have filed SB 15 as a starting point for discussions on the proper role, duties and responsibilities of governing boards, systems, and institutions. I look forward to working with my Senate colleagues, including the nine joint-authors, to ensure our public universities remain first class.”

Tree orders now being taken

SUBMITTED

The Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) is now taking orders for windbreak and wildlife trees and shrubs.

These trees and shrubs will be delivered in March and April. A wide variety of trees are available for purchase through the District at a nominal cost. Several species of conifer seedlings are being offered including Arborvitae, Pinyon Pine, Ponderosa Pine, Rocky Mountain Juniper and Colorado Blue Spruce. Hardwoods available include Aromatic Sumac, Bur Oak, Caragana, Chinkapin Oak, Chokecherry, Cottonwood, Green Ash, Hackberry, Honeylocust, Hybrid Cottonwood, Lacebark Elm, Lilac, Nanking Cherry, Native Plum, Pecan and Skunkbush Sumac.

In addition, the district will be taking orders for larger trees in 1, 3, 5, 10 and 15 gallon sizes. Several species of conifers, shade trees, shrubs, fruit trees and ornamentals are available in those sizes.

For more information, come by the Gray County SWCD Office at 12125 E. Frederic St., 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., Monday through Friday, or call 806-665-6561, Ext. 102.

Texas lawyer charged with bribery takes stand

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A Texas attorney charged with bribery and racketeering in cases linked to a disgraced judge has testified he enjoys taking big cases against corporations.

The Valley Morning Star reports Marc Rosenthal of Austin was scheduled to return to the stand Friday in Corpus Christi.

Rosenthal faces 13 corruption-related allegations linked to former state District Judge Abel Limas of Brownsville. The judge who lost in his 2008 reelection bid later pleaded guilty to racketeering and awaits sentencing.

Rosenthal took the stand late Thursday and said he loves “representing David against Goliath.” The lawyer testified that he likes representing common, everyday families against big companies — especially when the corporations “are really wrong.”

Prosecutors say Rosenthal conspired to bribe the judge and witnesses in state and federal cases.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old student who reads your column every day, and I hope you can help me.

I want to be closer to my parents. They yell at my siblings and me and call us names. It hurts me very much. If we make a mistake — even a little one — or forget our chores, we can expect to be insulted, yelled at, etc. I have learned to tune them out, but I don't understand how such intelligent people like my parents can act this way.

Years ago, I decided to talk to them about it, but that was seen as an act of defiance. My parents, especially my father, can't take constructive criticism and respond with more yelling.

Each of our arguments leaves me upset for days. But I still believe I need to do something. I want to be close to them before it's too late, but I have lost so much respect and trust for them, and they probably feel the same.

Please, Abby, I don't know what to do. I would greatly appreciate your advice, although I know you are very busy. Thank you for taking the time to read my letter. — HOPEFUL IN NEW YORK

DEAR HOPEFUL: You have my sympathy. Harsh words can leave wounds that last longer than physical bruises. Some parents develop hair-trigger tempers when they are under financial pressure. Others, without realizing it, model their behavior on the way their parents raised THEM and overreact when their children make mistakes.

Because you haven't been able to get through to your father, talk to a trusted adult relative about the fact that you would like to be closer to your parents but don't know how. If they hear it from another adult, they might be more open to the message.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old mother of a 13-month-old daughter, "Lissa." I am a "by-the-book" mom. I'm still breastfeeding and I am strict about what I allow my daughter to eat. She has just barely started to eat table food.

I don't want my child to have bad eating habits, so I try to give her only healthy items at dinnertime. Her dad, on the other hand, thinks it's funny to give her junk, including sugar. When she was only 2 months old, I caught him giving her licorice. The other day, it was soda and ice cream. I don't agree with this, and it's causing us a lot of fights.

When we sit down to dinner, I have Lissa's meal set aside. But before I can sit down, her dad starts giving her things off his plate and then she won't eat her dinner. I have told him I don't like it, but he doesn't understand that I want to teach her good eating habits.

Am I wrong in trying so hard? Or should I just give up and let her eat junk? — TRYING MY BEST IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR TRYING: Parenting is supposed to be a team sport and I'm more concerned about the fact that Lissa's dad is undercutting you than what's going into her mouth right now. If he continues, in another year or two, your little girl will regard him as a pushover and you as a big meanie.

You may need an impartial mediator to get through to Lissa's father, and the perfect person to do that is your child's pediatrician. Let the doctor tell Daddy that the more she is given sweets, the more she'll crave them.

The only thing about your approach that might be of concern to me is your calling yourself a "by-the-book" mother. A conscientious parent not only goes by the book and is consistent, but she also uses her head and listens to her heart. I hope you will remember that.

NFL exec: HGH testing resolution needed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — NFL senior vice president Adolpho Birch says the league and players association need to reach agreement soon on HGH testing.

The NFL and the union agreed in principle to HGH testing when a new 10-year labor agreement was reached in August 2011. But protocols must be approved by both sides and the players have questioned the science in the testing procedures, stalling implementation.

Speaking at the scouting combine Thursday, Birch says the NFL has full confidence in the test and "should have been a year into this by now." He calls the delays "a disservice to all of us."

On Tuesday, the union said in a conference call it favors HGH testing, but only with a strong appeal process. Otherwise, NFLPA spokesman George Atallah said, "it's just a nonstarter."
