Redesigned Pampa branch location set to be completed by Thanksgiving.

Representatives with the Pampa branch of Amarillo Federal Credit Union (AFCU) joined members of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's Gold Coats and the community on Monday for a ceremonial ground-breaking of its new branch location on Hobart Street.

Construction of the redesigned AFCU branch is scheduled to be completed by Thanksgiving.

"Mid-November is what we're hoping for," said branch manager Allison Watson.

Watson then shared some physical improvements planned for the new facility.

"It will have a four-lane drive-up with the first lane being ATM only," she said, adding that the new branch will be larger than the old one and will have improved technology. Watson said the tellers will have at their disposal automatic cash dispensers that will count the money for them.

"Another improvement will be a covered drive-up," Watson said. She added that credit union customers had complained in the past about how the old facility did not feature a covering for the drive-up service.

AFCU's Pampa branch will operate at a temporary location at 808 W. Francis Ave. while the new branch is under construction.

The new AFCU branch, upon completion, will be located at the site of the former facility, at 900 N. Hobart St.

Gregg Bliss, architect from Amarillo, will lead the design of the new credit union branch.

AFCU maintains charter member facilities in Gray, Potter and Randall counties.

AFCU and Bennigan's both broke ground on their new establishments this week, serving as a sign of growth and economic development for Pampa.

Two injured in Monday crash

BY TIMOTHY P. HOSWARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

Two women were transported to the hospital around 3 p.m., Monday for minor injuries after they were involved in a vehicle collision at Duncan Street and Kentucky Avenue.

Jana Gregory, 57, of Pampa, was driving her 2006 Mazda north on Duncan Street, according to a Pampa Police Department crash report.

Jessie Roberts, 19, of Pampa, traveling east-bound on Kentucky Avenue, failed to yield the right of way to Gregory in her 1995 Cutlass Ciera and drove across the intersection.

Gregory then crashed into the passenger's side of Roberts' car, according to the accident report.

Gregory and her passenger, Allison Stark, 26, were transported by Pampa EMS to Pampa Regional Medical Center.

Roberts was cited for failure to yield right of way from a stop sign and violation of driver's license restriction B, which is failure to have a driver 21 or older in the front seat.

Gregory is the executive administrator of the Pampa United Way and Stark is administrative assistant for the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Stark's supervisor, Chamber Director Lori Byrne, said both women were released from the hospital Monday night and were doing OK Tuesday.

How to save water indoors

SUBMITTED

Single-family residential indoor water use in the United States is an average of 69 gallons per person per day!

It doesn't take much to realize that figure can be substantially reduced, mostly with just a change of habits, though serious conservers will want to consider replacing some fixtures and appliances.

Most residential water use is, not surprisingly, in the bathroom.

Toilets made before 1980 use 5 to 7 gallons per flush (gpf). In the 80s, 3.5 gpf was the standard, and since 1992 new toilets sold in Texas must use no more than 1.6 gpf. And while earlier "low-flow" models often took repeated flushes — thereby negating the advantage — newer models (some as low as .8 gpf) have addressed that issue and work well.

If you have an older model, put a plastic bottle or bag filled with water in the tank to displace water, thereby saving 0.5 to 1.5 gpf. (Do not use a brick as they can crumble and damage the fixture.) Make sure the tank does not leak (you can test it with a few drops of food coloring) and don't use the bowl for a trash can.

Do you prefer a bath to a shower? A five-minute shower uses only 10-25 gallons. A full bathtub, however, can require up to 70 gallons of water. Pre-1980 showerheads use 5 to 8 gallons per minute. Since 1994, showerheads must use a maximum of 2.5 gallons per minute, and newer models — like the newer toilets — work much better than older models.

House budget chief: 'We're going to have a deal'

AUSTIN (AP) — The budget chief in the Texas House says a deal with the Senate is imminent and that the Legislature shouldn't be pushed into a special session over spending. Republican Jim Pitts said Tuesday "we're going to have a deal on everything." Pitts says that includes $2 billion for water, which has been a priority this 140-day session for Gov. Rick Perry and Republicans and Democrats. The apparent breakthrough comes less than a week after negotiations between the House and Senate stalled, raising the potential of a deal not being struck before the Legislature adjourns May 27. Pitts says the money for a new state water fund will be pulled from the state's Rainy Day Fund.

The House voted 95-52 Tuesday to send the bill to Gov. Rick Perry, who will face pressure from conservative groups to veto it. Supporters say it will crack down on "dark money" or contributions to groups that are active in politics but avoid disclosure laws. Opponents argue it violates free speech. When the Senate first approved the bill, so many grassroots groups bristled that tea party senators tried unsuccessfully to recall it. On Monday, its House sponsor, Republican Rep. Charlie Geren, fought off repeated attempts to modify the bill on the floor — since any change would have killed it. His efforts prompted a final vote that went smoothly.

House sends donor disclosure bill to Perry

AUSTIN (AP) — A contentious bill requiring politically active nonprofits to make the names of their major donors public has cleared the Texas Legislature.

Water

Save water by taking shorter showers, and take showers instead of baths. Save even more by replacing your showerhead with an efficient model. In the kitchen and laundry room: Installing faucet aerators on sinks is a simple, cost-effective way to save water. The faucet's efficiency can double without sacrificing performance. Aerators are inexpensive and do not require special adapters. Run the dishwasher with a full load to save water, energy, detergent, and money and use the machine's short wash cycle when dishes are only lightly soiled. High-efficiency dishwashers use a maximum of 7 gallons per load, some as little as 4.5 gallons. Replacing an older model with a water-efficient model could cut dishwasher water use in half. When doing laundry, match the load setting with the amount of laundry to be washed and use the shortest wash cycle for lightly soiled loads. High-efficiency washers use 35 to 55 percent less water and 50 percent less energy. They also require less detergent, rinse more thoroughly, are less abrasive on clothes, and can fit larger capacity loads in the same size drum.

General water-saving tips

- Leaks should be stopped as soon as they are noticed. In any event, place a bowl or cup under dripping faucets. Use the captured water to water plants or pets.
- When waiting for the water to get hot in a shower or a faucet, place a receptacle to capture the cold water to use in other places.
- Fill a basin or the sink with soapy water instead of letting the water run when washing dishes by hand. Soak pans rather than scrubbing them while the water is running.
- Rinse produce in a pan of cold water instead of letting the water run.

- Transfer frozen foods to the refrigerator to defrost the night before you need them instead of letting water run over them. We want to make sure that water is available and affordable. When it comes to water, we're all in it together!

Live free or move

Forty-three million Americans moved from one state to another between 1995 and 2010 — about one-seventh of Americans.

It's good that we can move! Moving provides one of the few limits on the megalomania of state bureaucrats.

Americans have moved away from high-taxed, heavily regulated states to lower-taxed, less-regulated states. Most don't think of it as a political decision. They just go where opportunities are, and that usually means where there's less government.

They're leaving my state, New York, in droves. California, despite its great weather, also lost people, and wealth. Other biggest losers were Illinois, New Jersey and Ohio.

Travis Brown, author of "Money Walks," tracked the movements using IRS data. On my TV show, he revealed that Florida was the state that gained the most: "You're seeing a massive amount of people and their income coming in: $86 billion."

Arizona and Texas also gained, which made me wonder if Americans just move to states where it's warm. "No," said Darcy Olsen, president of Arizona's Goldwater Institute. "Weather explains just 5 percent of the migration ... the Census Bureau asks, and they say, 'to find a job.'"

People move where jobs are, and the states gaining the most — which also include North Carolina and Nevada — follow what she calls "the magic formula. Lower taxes and good labor policy, which means, to a business, being free to hire and fire the people you want. (In) the most successful states you see both — no income tax or low taxes coupled with right-to-work laws."

The states that lost the most people and money were New York, California, Illinois, New Jersey and Ohio.

This competition between states makes it possible for states to learn from each other's suc-

T.W. Shannon, speaker of the Oklahoma House of Representatives, told me that he's learned. His state, where the economy had long been sluggish, finally figured out they could spur growth with tax cuts.

"We are moving to reduce our state income tax rate. ... Every time we have done it in the past, we have seen increased revenues and growth," Shannon adds, "Capital won't flow to a hostile environment."

No, it won't. You'd think politicians would figure that out. But they rarely do. Brown's income data shows that capital flows to friendly environments: "States like (Texas, without a state income tax) gained $146 billion, whereas the reverse, the states with the highest among personal income-tax rates, lost over $120 billion."

The owners of the basketball team the Houston Rockets give prospective players pamphlets that detail how many Rolex watches and Bentleys they could buy just from tax money they'd save if they move to Texas.

Behind this clash is the larger disagreement about how to handle the economy — promote growth by shrinking government or boost public services for the poor. The state-by-state contrast keeps getting sharper. Crudely put, blue states keep getting bluer, and red states keep getting redder. Krugman looks at Texas and sees policies — and Republican politicians — he doesn't like.

Ironically, one reason Texas continues to have problems with poverty, despite its population growth, is that people don't just move between states. They also move from other countries in search of opportunity. For about a million people, that meant moving across the border from Mexico to Texas. They start low on the economic ladder but do tend to move upward over time.

For some reason, politicians most sympathetic to those immigrants are clueless about why U.S. citizens move from state to state.

Why my mom deserves the gift

My mom, Kelley Bilyeu, definitely deserves the gift, because ever since I was a baby, she has been taking care of me. When I was little she quit her job to stay home with me. She taught me a lot of things. I think that is why I'm so smart today! She is very nice! I love her!

Another thing my mom does is pay for my dance. My mom always makes sure that I am at the dance on time and at all of the practices. I am very grateful that she does that! If it wasn't for my mom I wouldn't even be in dance.

She would stay at all of my dance lessons, just because I didn't want her to leave. She did that for the whole first year!

Another reason my mom deserves the gift is she can buy me and my sister things we need, like clothes and food, and pays all of the bills. I am very thankful I have such a great mom!

One last reason my mom deserves this gift is that she always has taken me to church! I think that is very important, because everyone should know about Jesus! I sure know when I grow up I am going to tell my kids about Jesus! I really

Morehouse prez angers alumni while protecting Obama

When President Barack Obama speaks Sunday, May 19, at the 129th commencement of Morehouse

ROLAND S. MARTIN

College, the president of the school, Dr. John Silvanus Wilson Jr., will be beaming with pride as the nation's first black president addresses the nation's only college dedicated to educating primarily black men.

But when the speech is done and the photos are taken, President Obama will jump on Air Force One to head back to Washington, D.C. to battle his Republican critics.

As for Wilson, the man who served under Obama as executive director of the White House Initiative on Historically Black Colleges and Universities before being named the 11th president of Morehouse, is going to have to spend a lot of time repairing the rupture with his alumni that is of his own making.

It all began earlier this year when Wilson, a 1979 Morehouse graduate, invited Philadelphia pastor Kevin Johnson, who is also an alumnus of the school, to be the baccalaureate speaker this weekend. All was well until Wilson got wind of an opinion piece Johnson wrote in a black newspaper in Philadelphia that criticized President Obama's lack of blacks in his cabinet, as well as policies that would directly benefit African-Americans.

Wilson contacted Johnson about the piece, and instead of the university president accepting it as simply one man's opinion, he altered his previous decision. Johnson claims he was disinvited, but Wilson denies that, writing in a column posted on the university's website: "I subsequently made a decision to adjust the format of the Baccalaureate program and opted for a more creative, multi-speaker approach that is used by many leading institutions. This sharing of the stage comports with the spirit of upholding democratic ideals, including freedom of speech and expression, and is entirely consistent with the spirit of camaraderie that Morehouse holds dear."

"As president, I believe this is in the best interest of the college. In this instance, I decided to ask this invited speaker to share the Baccalaureate stage with two other speakers so as to reflect a broader and more inclusive range of viewpoints."

Let me break down Wilson's 451-word column he titled "Keeping Our Focus," down to two words: Absolute nonsense.

It is clear that Wilson was perfectly fine with all of the other things Johnson has said or written since he invited him to be the baccalaureate speaker. But lo and behold, when the pastor chose to criticize Wilson's former boss, President Obama, all of a sudden there was a need on the Morehouse campus for broader viewpoints.

The move by Wilson has angered a number of Morehouse graduates, a number of whom I've personally talked to and corresponded with over the last few weeks.

A group of prominent Morehouse graduates, calling themselves Citizens for Change, released a statement condemning Wilson's decision.

"If President Wilson turns his back on one of our most distinguished alums because of an exercise of free speech and political commentary, he will have set Morehouse on a dangerous course and departed from the great tradition bequeathed to us," said the Rev. Dr. Amos Brown, senior pastor of Third Baptist Church in San Francisco in the release.

"In 1947, Dr. King warned that, 'If we are not careful, our colleges will produce a group of close-minded, unscientific, illogical propagandists, consumed with immoral acts. Be careful, brethren! Be careful, teachers!' We are potentially witnessing the realization of King's greatest fears."

The invoking of King, a distinguished graduate of Morehouse, clearly rankled Wilson, who wrote in his column to the university, "In brief, this matter is not and has never been about censorship. Nor has it anything to do with stifling or limiting 'prophetic voices,' or deviating from any of the proud traditions of the College."

Maybe Wilson can call President Obama and ask him how his fence-mending golf outings, dinners and drinks with the Republicans are going. He might be doing a lot of that soon in Atlanta and around the country to sooth the bitter feelings of Morehouse graduates.

Become like children No. 9

The next child who serves as a glistening example for us to follow can be found in 2 Kings 5:1-6. This young girl is not named in the Bible text, but we still know several things about her.

Since Syrian bands of raiders avoided cities and towns not wanting to stir up Israel's military, this young Jewish girl more than likely lived in a rural area when she was kidnapped. Think about what that must have been like for her. She lost her family, home, friends and freedom all in a single day. She was then no doubt taken to a slave market, more than likely in Damascus, the leading city in the Syrian empire. There she was sold, bought like a piece of property. She somehow stood out from the other slaves because an high official like Naaman would only have bought the best. And she must have been trustworthy and a good worker, again because Naaman wouldn't have allowed anything else.

If all of this happened to you, how would you be feeling about all those heathen Syrians? How about your master, Naaman? How would you be feeling about being a slave for his wife? Would you be full of hatred, seeking a moment of revenge?

She wasn't. In fact, she not only didn't wish suffering on her master, but wished healing for him; so much so that she said so to Naaman's wife. She even went so far as to speak of God's prophet, Elisha, and how he could heal Naaman of his leprosy. Well, the rest is history. Naaman owed everything to that slave girl. You see, Naaman was not only healed of his leprosy, but he surrendered to Jehovah, found salvation and returned to Syria as a sold out servant of the God of the Hebrews. All this because of a young Jewish servant girl who refused to let horrible circumstances and mistreatment pollute her faith or her spirit.

Outside of Jesus, I can't think of a better example in the entire Bible of someone who truly fulfilled: LOVE YOUR ENEMIES. After all that's what Jesus commanded in Matthew 5:44-45: "But I tell you, love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be children of your Father in heaven."

But do you know what the most amazing part is about this young girl loving her enemy? This young girl was obeying Jesus' command almost 900 years before He uttered those words. What an example she is for us today. God bless. Mike.

Change is a lifelong process

Most of us don't have a problem with the "Come As You Are" part of God's invitation to us to be a part of His kingdom. It's what comes next that some of us have trouble with.

While God accepts us just as we are when we first come to Him, He loves us too much to let us stay as we are. He wants to change us so that we line up with His good plan for our lives. It's not easy to change, especially when we've had habits ingrained into our lives.

I want to strive each day to become more like Jesus. Some days, it seems like I'm moving backward. I fall back into old habits. I can't give up, though. I must get back up and press on.

God calls us to live holy and godly lives, and He gives us the power we need to live for Him. He helps us to change.

Change is a lifelong process. It doesn't happen overnight. When we give our lives to Christ, Jesus comes in and begins to change us. He equips us with power to follow Him. Our old habits no longer seem as important because we want to live to please Him.

Jesus was tempted in every way just as we are, and He knows what we go through every day. He will help us if we will call on Him.

We will never attain perfection until we reach heaven. But we should strive to be the best we can be. Remember, God is a rewarder of those who seek Him!

The most important thing is to start right where we are and make a move toward God. He will take us as we are and then move us to greater heights. So press on today and never give up. You will reach your heavenly goal if you don't give up!

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, May 16, 2013:
This year you see life from a renewed perspective. At times there could be some negativity around you, but you will do your best to find a more positive path or more suitable alternatives. Your personal life becomes a higher priority. Your needs will change because of a transformation that takes place in your daily life. If you are single, you meet people with ease. Just go out and be yourself. If you are attached, the two of you make a shift this year and head down a new path. Both of you will enjoy the excitement that follows. LEO serves as an anchor for you.
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ Don't worry if you wake up grumpy, because your mood will change quickly. Whether someone brought you doughnuts or a different type of treat, you have reason to smile. Creativity and good vibes work well with your spontaneous nature. Tonight: Continue being spontaneous.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You are anchored, and you know what you want. Someone might try to nudge you off that position, as it could come off as stubbornness. When you see the utility of continuing as you have been, others will notice. Be willing to try a suggestion. Tonight: Head home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Keep a conversation moving, and don't allow negativity to flow in. If you feel tired or drained, consider a checkup with the doctor. Once you relax, someone will share more of his or her thoughts. What you learn could surprise you. Tonight: Go with the moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Put 100 percent into whatever you do. You see what others don't. They appreciate your insights, depending on how they are delivered. A little diplomacy goes a long way. Try to stabilize a situation. A boss might make an unusual demand. Tonight: Run errands.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ A conversation is important, but don't make it a bigger deal than need be. In fact, a touch of lightness and concern will produce better, more positive results. The unexpected could play into your plans. You might hear news that forces you to regroup. Tonight: All smiles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ A conversation could be affecting your mood, and therefore your plans. Could you be making more of a comment than what was meant? Talk to an older friend or loved one. This person's insight will help you find the answer. Tonight: Do for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ A meeting could alter your plans. Your ability to get past an immediate issue will help you to function on a higher level once again. You could hear some unexpected, good news from a close loved one. Verify the details before taking any action. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ You might be limiting yourself with self-imposed restrictions. Take today and live in the moment by listening to what others are really thinking, feeling or saying. This detachment will help you determine how to break down your own barriers. Tonight: Could be late.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Get past a momentary sense of insecurity. You might discover that a bright new perspective will greet you as a result, which makes interactions fun, lively and worthwhile. A loved one could act in a way that forces you to give him or her attention. Tonight: Why stop?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Work with an individual directly, and you'll receive the results you want. Though your friends might mean well, they don't always have the best sense of direction. Don't ask for advice; however, if someone offers some, remember to be polite. Tonight: Chat over dinner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Others seek you out, because they enjoy your perspective. Enjoy all of the activity, and know that you are valued. Touch base with a child or loved one. Sometimes you get so busy that you forget to make time for a phone call or a caring gesture. Tonight: Hang out with a good friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You might want to turn a situation around, but you'll need to work within established boundaries. Use caution with any financial investments, as plans are likely to backfire right now. Avoid any careless spending, and be sure to count your change. Tonight: At a favorite place.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: When friends and family get together, the conversation often turns to the subject of health. They swap stories about the medications they may be taking and the lifestyle changes they're making to improve their health. They look to each other for support and tips to get through the flu or a nasty case of food poisoning, and rely on each other's experience to tackle challenges like quitting smoking, managing heart disease, diabetes, menopause or conquering insomnia.

There is no charge for the Friends and Family Health Kits and they're easy to order. Just send your name and address to Friends and Family Health Kit, Pueblo, CO 81009; go online to www.promotions.usa.gov/dearabby.html; or call: 888-8-PUEBLO (that's 888-878-3256) weekdays, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern time. The publications can also be read online in PDF format, or be downloaded to your computer and printed out. Print supplies are limited, so don't wait to order them.

want to rest and hang out with the friends I'll be staying with. Even when I avoid posting pictures of my vacation on Facebook until after the trip, I get comments or emails about me not stopping by or letting them know I was in town.

What's the polite way to tell these former co-workers and acquaintances that I don't want to spend my vacation time with them? Or should I just get over it and devote some time to them as well? — TRYING TO BE POLITE IN ANCHORAGE

DEAR TRYING TO BE POLITE: If you have any desire to continue the relationships with your former co-workers and acquaintances, why not arrange to meet a group of them at an agreed-upon place one afternoon for a "reunion"? If you don't, then either ignore their comments or respond to the emails by saying you needed to rest, which is the reason you didn't socialize more during your vacation.

To help your readers support their loved ones through these health issues and many more, the FDA's Office of Women's Health and the GSA's Federal Citizen Information Center have created the free Friends and Family Health Kit. It contains more than 20 publications that are quick to read, easy to understand, and feature health care and prevention tips for women and their families.

DEAR ABBY: I live in Alaska and have good friends I visit every summer on the East Coast. I have some acquaintances and former co-workers who live there, too. Many of them want me to visit when I come down. I have grown apart from these former friends and keep in touch only through occasional emails and Facebook.

Flying from Alaska to the East Coast is expensive and time-consuming. I really just

Abby, thank you for letting your readers know about the Friends and Family Health Kit, and for sharing advice we can all use to better care for ourselves and for one another. — MARSHA HENDERSON, FDA ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER FOR WOMEN'S HEALTH

DEAR MARSHA: Your letter is timely because we are in the middle of Women's Health Week, which runs from May 12-18. I'm always glad to receive your health kits because they are constantly being updated to reflect the latest information. This year's health kits cover subjects that include recognizing health scams, preventing food poisoning, managing your medications from pregnancy to menopause, participating in clinical trials (which can be a lifesaver), controlling asthma, selecting a mammography facility, and
