Fire coverage to old Celanese plant goes to city

By TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE thowsare@thepampanews.com
 The City of Pampa Fire Department will be the first responder for fire coverage at the former Celanese Plant, which is now an industrial park owned by the Pampa Economic Development Corporation (PEDC). County and city officials, along with Hoover Volunteer Fire Department chief Joe Millican, deliberated at Monday's regular meeting of the Gray County Commissioners Court on who should provide coverage at the former manufacturing campus, which had its own fire department. That department handled most of the fires on the Celanese property with assistance when needed from the city and/or the HVFD. After about a half hour of discussion, the commissioners decided to give the responsibility to the city. The area is bordered by U.S. Highway 60, FM 2300 and County roads J and 2. The plant closed in 2008 and is now being redeveloped as a site for energy companies and manufacturers. GX2 is building a plant to convert natural gas into methanol and Enbridge has plans to locate FIRE cont. on page 3

Those proposed rate increase ordinances are on the commission's agenda for second and final reading. In other business, the commission will consider:

 • Adopting on final reading an ordinance of tonnage fees to be charged at the city's sanitary landfill.
 • Authorizing the City Manager to enter into an amended Solid Waste Disposal Agreement with the following cities and companies: Allied Waste, City of Canadian, City of Clarendon, City of Higgins, City of Lefors, City of McLean, City of Skellytown, City of Wheeler, City of White Deer, Hemphill County, Texas Trash Can, Waste Wranglers Inc. and Wasteco, Inc.

PISD raises more than $22,000 for United Way.

 Last year, the seven school campuses within the Pampa ISD raised $13,000 for United Way, a local program dedicated to helping the community. "It's important for us to team up and support this great program because a lot of what they do affects many of the students within our district," said Superintendent Dr. David Young. This year, Young and the other employees at the Carver Center challenged the seven school campuses to raise $17,500 for the program. The challenge began Aug. 15 and ended Sept. 6. Over the course of this time, faculty and staff within each school either pledged a portion of each paycheck for the year or gave a flat donation, and the final number far exceeded the challenge goal. All together, the members of PISD donated $22,129 to United Way. Dr. Young was impressed by the dedication demonstrated to the program over the three-week long donation period. Since the challenge goal was met, Young and the PISD administrative staff agreed to wash the cars of the employees from the two schools with the most donations. The winners were Wilson Elementary and The Pampa Learning Center. On Friday, the Carver Center staff, along with Jana Gregory, executive administrator of United Way, made good on their word at Wilson Elementary, a school that had 100 percent participation among employees in donations, and on Saturday they held a free car wash at Pampa High School for all district employees.

 Patti Hudson was named sixth in Remax's Vanguard Category. She has been with Remax for five years.

By LINDSEY TOMASCHIK
 LKTomaschik@thepampanews.com
 Patti Hudson was recently named one of Remax Realty's top producing individuals within her category. "I ended up being sixth in the Vanguard category," Hudson said. Categories are based on town size, and over the past year Hudson brought in over $7 million in sales, earning her the right to be named one of the best. The top producers are determined based on the sales number and not necessarily the number of transactions a realtor has over the course of the year. Still, Hudson had an impressive number of 46 transactions in 2013. Originally working in the home-improvement business, Hudson drifted into different aspects of the home business for years before her husband suggested she try her hand at real estate so that she could still be in the industry she loves and not burn herself out doing the hard labor aspect of flipping houses, which is what Hudson was doing at that time. He also thought there might be more profit in real estate than in flipping houses. Hudson decided to listen and has now been in the real estate business for six years, five of which have been spent with Remax. Her original goal was to get her real estate license and be an agent until enough time passed for her to get her broker's license and open her own agency. This plan of course changed when Remax recruited her and offered her a larger commission than any previous company. Remax also came to her about purchasing the Pampa chapter of the franchise one year later, and Hudson accepted. Hudson enjoys her job because she still ended up getting to have her own business, but she likes the fact that it is part of an internationally known franchise so people from all over the globe can look at available property in Pampa. "I have always loved homes and I love getting to go in and making suggestions because I come from a background in home improvement," she said. "I also really enjoy meeting new people, which is a lot of what this job is about."

a small operation on the site. Because most of the property associated with the old plant is owned by the PEDC, it now becomes part of the city, said Judge Richard Peet, who oversees the Commissioners Court. "Whose coverage is it now that Celanese isn't there?" he asked.

Peet said that traditionally the PFD has covered the city and some areas out to Loop 171 and along Price Road. The HVFD covered everything out in the county.

"I'd like to know what the problem is," said Richard Morris, city manager.

Peet answered that the commissioners wanted to clarify whose coverage area it would now be so there wouldn't be any confusion. Commissioner Joe Wheeley said if you look at an old map, the area after Celanese shut down would now be Hoover's.

"I think our response would be we would want to continue coverage to that area," Morris said. "I've been with the city 20 years and we've always had an agreement with Celanese."

Millican said it was his understanding that HVFD would take over the area. He said when the plant closed, Celanese donated its fire equipment to HVFD and that the department also has bought more equipment, including a new engine.

"We purchased special equipment for that because we thought it was our coverage area," he said. "We had looked forward to representing the county at the Celanese plant."

"It's not the county's property, it's city property. It's their (the city's) call on that," Peet said.

Commissioner Gary Wiloughby said he had spoken to officials at both GX2 and Enbridge who said they wanted to stay with the city.

Morris said in the future if somebody wants additional coverage, that issue could be addressed but it is not a concern right now. Pampa Fire Chief Kim Powell said regardless of whatever department the commissioners choose as the first responder, all fire departments have the same goal — to save lives and protect property.

She explained that whenever the department gets a call in a "gray area" where it's uncertain whether PFD or HVFD is the primary responder, they always answer the call.

"This may need to be defined in government but in the heart of a firefighter it is all the same work," she said.

The commissioners voted to approve a map that showed the area where the city fire department will now cover.

Prairie Plains Perspective

Painfully aware of government intrusion

Last Tuesday, the Pampa City Commission adopted a resolution recognizing September 2013 as

DENNIS PALMITIER

National Preparedness Month. Until reading such, I never knew there is a month to be nationally prepared, so I let my fingers walk the keyboard into the Internet to do a little studying on National Preparedness Month.

Seems FEMA is the catalyst behind wanting Americans to be prepared, evidently usurping that privilege away from the Boy Scouts, parents, ourselves and common sense along with using the events that took place on 9/11/2001 as a means to teach Americans that first, government will be there to help us if something dire were to once again befall us, and second, that we won't have to think for ourselves in case of an emergency, rather government will act for us and that all we meek have to do in case of a disaster is tune in to our TVs and radios and await directions from father government.

It is more than evident and getting too obvious, government simply does not want us thinking for ourselves. It's pretty easy to understand why.

If not, well then, enjoy playing the minion or refer to George Orwell if you don't follow that statement, and if my words still befuddle you, look at the current administration residing in Washington D.C. and note the significant change in direction America has gone since January 2009.

That should add (I hope) some clarity.

By its National Preparedness Month action, FEMA has pointed out that the events of 9/11/2001 is cause for Americans to be more prepared.

In other words, America should have been prepared for a bunch of Islamic terrorists with ill intentions boarding air planes with box knives on their person, or the whacko in Denver who opened fire on movie goers in Aurora, Colorado with a semi automatic rifle.

I can just see the future scenario for us Americans before starting the new day.

This is your government speaking, "Are you and your family prepared?"

That will be the case when you hear the tornado warning siren go off.

Rather than step outdoors to see if a tornado is indeed coming, government will be so pleased by all of us sitting by to await instructions on how to cover your head.

Say a tornado strikes Pampa and there is a need to use the phone to call the government. What are the chances of getting a ring tone with 17,994 citizens call all at once.

This isn't rocket science folks, every day government is intruding deeper and deeper into our lives.

Sad thing is, we're letting it happen.

We are well on the way to being victims by our own device. Accountability and personal responsibility will no longer be our worry, for government will be our savior. As for me and this National Preparedness Month, I am more than prepared to be totally aware of what my government is up to and hopefully by my and others' right to vote, put an end to this nonsense.

September is also Pain Awareness Month. Indeed, for I am painfully aware that government is intruding more and more into our lives.

Pampa resident Dennis Palmitier is a regular contributor to the opinion page on issues that affect Pampa and Gray County. He can be reached at denpalm1949@yahoo.com.

BRANDON'S Flowers & Fine Gifts
Fresh Flowers • Silk • Gifts & More!

Q. Brandon, I have some beautiful outdoor hanging plants. Before it turns cold can you give me any tips to preserve my plant till next summer?

A. The best thing to do is bring it indoors. Check to see if it needs any new soil or needs to be repotted. Over the summer it's possible a lot of the soil could have been depleted through watering. Also, healthy plants will grow quite a bit during the season and will need a larger pot for more growth.

Another helpful tip is to clip it back. This is a way to limit the amount of sun needed by a plant. A plant will do fine if it only has a few hours of sun through a window. If for some reason you don't want it in the house, you can also set it in the garage or building as long as it doesn't get below 38 degrees.

For plants that are in a large free standing pots that can not be moved you can try insulating the plant. After you have trimmed it back cover it with newspaper or paper bags and layer it with sawdust and then cedar chips or mulch. This will keep it warmer and keep the bugs from making it their winter food.

If you have plants in the ground the mentioned insulation will help. Also, providing wind breakers will be of benefit. The wind is just as harsh to a plant as frost and snow. For insurance purposes, you might consider saving some of the seeds it produces to plant the next spring.

Brandon's Flowers will report your small plants and trim them back for you if you need the help. If you have questions, just give us a call.

Officer charged with shooting unarmed man

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina police officer accused of shooting and killing an unarmed man who had apparently been in an automobile wreck was scheduled to appear in court Monday to face a voluntary manslaughter charge.

Jonathan A. Ferrell, 24, a former Florida A&M University football player, was killed early Saturday.

He had sought help at a nearby house, according to a statement from Charlotte-Mecklenburg police. A woman answered the door and, when she didn't recognize the man, called 911.

Officers responding to the breaking and entering call found Ferrell nearby. Ferrell ran toward the officers, who tried to stop him with a Taser. Police said he continued to run toward them when officer Randall Kerrick fired his gun, hitting Ferrell several times. Ferrell died at the scene.

A police statement Saturday said the investigation showed the shooting was excessive and "Kerrick did not have a lawful right to discharge his weapon during this encounter."

Ferrell's mother and brother are holding a news conference with their attorney, Chris Chestnut, on Monday morning in Charlotte. Chestnut also has represented the family of Robert Champion, a FAMU drum major who died during a hazing ritual in November 2011.

FAMU Interim Athletic Director Michael Smith said Ferrell played the safety position for the school's football team during the 2009 and 2010 seasons.

In describing the accident, Police Chief Rodney Monroe has said Ferrell was driving a vehicle that crashed into trees off a northeast Charlotte road early Saturday, and the wreck was so severe he would have had to climb out of the back window to escape. Monroe said he did not know what caused the crash and did not say whether Ferrell suffered injuries.

Ferrell apparently walked about a half-mile to the nearest house and was "banging on the door viciously" to attract attention, Monroe said. Thinking it was her husband coming home late from work, the woman who lives there opened the door. When she saw Ferrell, she shut it and called police about 2:30 a.m., Monroe said.

Monroe said he didn't think the unarmed Ferrell made threats or tried to rob the woman.

A take on an old classic

Directed by the legendary Billy Wilder, "Double Indemnity" (1944) stars Fred MacMurray as Walter Neff, Barbara Stanwyck as the love interest and Edward G. Robinson as an insurance investigator. It cost $927,262 to make and made $2.5 million at the box-office. The original ending, filmed in an actual gas chamber, wasn't used and burned up $150,000 of the budget. The movie starts out (and ends) with Neff, an insurance salesman, bleeding from a bullet hole near his heart and making a recorded confession of how he fell for a woman who used him to write a fraudulent insurance policy on her husband and then how he and she killed the man for the payout. The majority of the movie is told as a series of flashbacks with an occasional flash forward to reinforce Neff's role as narrator. Although we know the what-happened we don't know the how-it-happened, or why the scheme fell apart, which is the crux of the story.

The movie was based on a 1935 crime novella written by James M. Cain and adapted for the screen by Billy Wilder and famous ex-detective-turned-crime writer Raymond Chandler.

That novella was based on the real life adulteress and murderess Ruth Snyder of Queens, New York who in 1927 took out a life insurance policy on her husband with a double indemnity clause that paid twice the listed payout if her husband suffered a violent death then, with the help of her boyfriend, violently killed her husband in order to collect.

The movie is a study in hard-edged stylized black and white camerawork and is told in narrative; both of which are solid "film noir" devices. The movie is considered by many to be a high watermark for American film noir, setting the standard for all that followed. "Double Indemnity" was nominated for seven academy awards but won zero. It was selected for preservation in the National Film Registry by the U.S. Library of Congress in 1992 and in 1998 it was ranked #38 on the American Film Institute's list of the 100 best American films of the 20th century. It appears in many "Top 100" movie lists (but not mine).

I asked 10 filmmaker friends and actors to rate the movie on the five-star scale. I asked the same of another group of ten, made up of normal people, family and friends. The filmmakers were obviously enamored with the skill of the cinematographers, craft of the actors and vision of the director. They spoke of the groundbreaking plot and subject matter, of the career risk that Stanwyck took by portraying a black-widow type when at the time she was the highest paid actress in America and had made her career doing fluff-kitten roles. At this time Fred MacMurray was the fourth-highest paid American actor. My filmy friends used words like "paradigmatic" and "defining" then gave the film five stars.

Most of the regular people who watched the film used terms like "gritty", "stylized" and "edgy" then averaged it at four and a half stars, with the lone dissenting vote saying "That was a wasted 107 minutes of my life." Although "film noir" translates into "black film," roughly meaning "dark content and dark intentions," when I hear the term I think; "end's wrong" "tragic losers" and "wasted evening." I can be miserable all on my own; I don't need the help of a movie to do that.

"Double Indemnity" was praised by critics and loved by audiences when released, and judging by my friends, it still is today. With a nod to the obvious skill and talent that went into it, I barely give "Double Indemnity" three stars.

Please go to my blog and let me know what you think about "Double Indemnity."

Texas man gets life term for killing doctor

LUBBOCK (AP) — A Texas man who pleaded guilty to killing a doctor in what prosecutors say was a murder-for-hire plot has been sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

David Neal Shepard was sentenced during a brief hearing Monday in Lubbock. He pleaded guilty last month to capital murder in the July 2012 fatal shooting of Dr. Joseph Sonnier III. As part of his plea deal, prosecutors agreed to not seek the death penalty.

Prosecutors say Thomas Michael Dixon hired Shepard to kill Sonnier, who was dating Dixon's ex-girlfriend.

They say Shepard broke into Sonnier's home and shot him several times with a gun Dixon had given him and stabbed him.

Dixon, of Amarillo, remains in jail on a capital murder charge.

TV station explains dismal Jags

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An Orlando television station has issued an on-air explanation for why it's airing the struggling Jacksonville Jaguars while many NFL fans probably would have preferred seeing the Denver Broncos-New York Giants game, a possible Super Bowl preview featuring Peyton and Eli Manning. WKMG TV issued the scrolled message on Sunday. It read that NFL policy states the station must carry all Jags away games. At the end the message said: "We apologize for any inconvenience." Viewers then took to Twitter to remark on what many saw as an apology from the station. But WKMG Vice President and General Manager Skip Valet says the arrangement is nothing new. He says for nearly two decades Orlando has been designated the secondary Jaguars market and has carried all the away games.

TRI-STATE HIGH SCHOOL RODEO

The Tri-State High School Rodeo was here in Pampa this past weekend. This is a large event for high school rodeo enthusiasts in the area.

"It's pretty big for us, it is one of the few two-day (events) we have," President of the Pampa High School Rodeo Club, Bailey Wichert, said. "And because it is in our home town, we get to put it on, which is cool. About 200 contestants come out with their families and they stay the night because it is a two-day (event)."

Wichert also said there is a lot of work on the side to make the event happen.

"To make this event you don't see all the people (behind-the-scenes) work," Wichert said. "We have people on the side working the poles in the mud, setting the barrels and we had people setting the holes for the stakes. We had to dig trenches so the water would come out. We had to have people donate tractors and sell advertising. We had to have stock contract workers to manage the horses. It's a big deal." Look for the results in future publications of the Chiefs start 2-0 after beating Cowboys 17-16

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The all-red uniforms that the Kansas City Chiefs donned for the first time against the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday represented quite the fashion statement.

The way the Chiefs performed made another kind of statement.

It said that these aren't the same bumbling bunch of sad-sacks who struggled to the worst record in franchise history last year. They aren't the same team that so embarrassed their fans that many of them began to organize rebellions as the season lurched to an end.

No, behind new coach Andy Reid and the near-flawless play of quarterback Alex Smith, the Chiefs are off to an unbeaten start. They held on for a 17-16 victory over the Cowboys to match their entire win total from last year just two weeks into the season.

"What happened last year, that laid the foundation," Chiefs safety Eric Berry said. "That brought us closer as a team, closer as a unit, and now we're just building forward."

The teams traded leads early, but Kansas City had pulled back ahead on Dwayne Bowe's touchdown catch and Ryan Succop's field goal.

The Cowboys (1-1) then marched deep into Chiefs territory late in the fourth quarter, but had to settle for Dan Bailey's 53-yard field goal with 3:55 left.

 The coaches reported that these were typical junior high games. A lot of things need to get better but they feel good about their teams.

Texans rally late again

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Texans needed a second big comeback in two weeks to beat Tennessee and improve to 2-0. The record has them exactly where they'd hoped to be, even if the way they've gone about winning is far from ideal. "I'd like to wrap these things up a little quicker than we (have) the last two weeks," defensive end J.J.

Watt said. Rookie DeAndre Hopkins grabbed a 3-yard touchdown pass in overtime and the Texans rallied for a 30-24 win over the Titans. With Andre Johnson out after being shaken up in the fourth quarter, Hopkins reached above Jason McCourty and pulled in the pass from Matt Schaub to give Houston the victory.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Sept. 18, 2013:
 This year you will learn to bend gracefully toward others' way of thinking without harboring resentment. You will come to an understanding as to how easy it is to respect differences and learn from them. If you are single, you will discover someone very special in your immediate environment. The attraction will be strong, but you might realize that you are very different people. Before making a commitment, get to know each other completely. If you are attached, the two of you act like a seesaw, in the sense that you each take turns leading and being right. PISCES appeals to you.
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ★★★★★ Your hard work and effort will pay off far more than you might've thought possible. You could find an instrumental partner to be overserious. Do not take this person's attitude personally. Opportunities surround your home and your personal life. Tonight: Not to be found!
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ★★★★★ Everything from your gait to the way you carry yourself exudes resilience and confidence. A partner could be jealous, and he or she might be very cold toward you as a result. Don't let this behavior get to you. Make your presence known. Tonight: Rearrange your plans, if need be.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ★★★★★ You have a strong sense of what needs to be done, and it is unlikely that you will settle for anything less than what you want. Money might flow out of your account as quickly as it goes in. Take a break in the afternoon in order to pace yourself. Tonight: A must appearance.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ★★★★★ You are in the position to make one of your long-desired dreams a reality, yet there might be some fear around realizing this wish. You could trip yourself up unless you are willing to root out the issue. Revamp plans with a key associate or loved one. Tonight: Buy tickets to a concert.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★★★★ You have pushed so hard lately that your energy seems to be waning, even though your enthusiasm remains high. If you would take just an hour for relaxing, and then delegate what you can to others, you will feel revitalized.

Tonight: Go along with a loved one's request.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★★★★ You tend to let others take the lead. Some people might not realize that you make a conscious choice to defer to them; otherwise, they could be taken aback. A meeting that transforms into a friendly get-together will be the highlight of your day. Tonight: Say "yes."
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★★★★ Emphasis is on routine and daily matters. You might want to make a situation more exciting. You are likely to tease someone whom you've put on a pedestal. Fortunately, all parties involved have a sense of humor. Tonight: Put your feet up and watch a favorite TV show.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★★★★ You might want to express concern about someone's interpretation of a situation. Perhaps you feel as though this person is way off. Realize that it could be just your wild imagination. Make a point to indulge a loved one. Tonight: Adapt to a friend's request.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ★★★★★ If you can play it low-key, you'll feel better by the end of the day. A partner could come through for you in a major way. You might not believe everything you hear. Do your own research, and as a result, you will feel more confident in making decisions. Tonight: At home.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ★★★★★ Emphasize your priorities. You know what will happen if you are able to get your way. Unfortunately, you might not have that opportunity, as a partner will be so charming that people naturally will gravitate toward his or her way of thinking instead. Tonight: Go with the flow.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ★★★★★ You might notice that you have a need to catch up with others financially. The good news is that this attitude is temporary. Your values could be considerably different from those around you. Try not to point out the differences, but do respect them. Tonight: Indulge a little.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ★★★★★ You are in your element. You would have to work very hard in order to displease someone in your life. You naturally say and do the right thing. You might not even be aware of the number of admirers you seem to have. Tonight: Be yourself, and let the good times roll.
