Travis Elementary holds 15th annual Veterans Day Celebration.

BY JOHN LEE
 jlee@thepampanews.com

Most schools and cities hold their major patriotic celebrations around the Fourth of July. But Travis Elementary School holds arguably the biggest celebration for Veterans Day.

Shoppers at the Hastings Entertainment Store on Hobart may have thought that the retail store was holding Black Friday sales a few weeks early as the parking lot was loaded with cars. But the cars were parking there for the Veteran's Day Celebration across the street at the MK Brown center as a large flag welcomed those strolling into the building.

Taking months of planning, the Veterans Day Celebration for Veterans Day.

SUBMITTED

FRITCH — Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument has rescheduled FlintFest 2013 for Saturday, Nov. 16 from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m.

This annual event celebrates the unique resource known as Alibates flint and its usage through the ages.

The highlight of the day will be a "knap-in," featuring flintknappers from around the area who will demonstrate the skill of making stone tools and weapons.

Visitors can watch arrowheads and spearpoints being made on site, and can learn about the flintknapping process.

Also featured will be special Ruins Tours to the village and petroglyph sites associated with the Antelope Creek Phase of the Plains Village culture (ca. AD 1150-1450).

Tours are free, but reservations are required for both the special Ruins Tours and the regular Quarries Tours. Visitors who had reservations that were cancelled due to the government shutdown should call to reschedule their tours.

Other activities that will be available include atl-atl throwing, beading, and displays of the bugs and mammals native to the Texas Panhandle region.

Visitors may also view the award-winning film, "The Sharp Edge of Survival," walk the nearby Mesquite Trail, and shop in the bookstore. Books and posters featuring flintknapping and stone tools and weapons will be available.

For more information or to make reservations, please contact Lake Meredith headquarters at 806-857-3151 or Alibates Flint Quarries at 806-857-6680.

When you're a true-blue animal lover, animals that would otherwise be put to sleep or abandoned seem to find their way into your life.

In Brandie Wallin's case, it was two "armless Chihuahuas."

Three years ago, when a litter of Chihuahua/Shih Tzu pups were born at her house, one of the male puppies didn't have front bration was held in the auditorium of the MK Brown Center. MK Brown was filled to near capacity with veterans, in or out of military garb, as they watched Travis Elementary students sing them various patriotic tunes including "American Soldier," "God Bless America" and, of course, the "Star Spangled Banner." "It started out just a program in the Travis auditorium," school counselor for Travis Elementary Ann Thrasher said. "It has evolved into this." After the celebration, there was a reception for the veterans and their families. There was a series of "Honor Boards" where family members could look up where their loved one was and go find it. "We think that it's extremely important for us to teach our students to be patriotic, this is an excellent way to do it," Thrasher. "The students love doing the Veterans Day Celebration. Part of our motto this year is 'We are Travis.' We have twenty words that tell what we are. "One of our words is patriotic. We are pleased and proud that our students learn to be patriotic, and that they learn to love our veterans and appreciate what they have done."

Dogs

legs. The puppy didn't look very healthy and the mother didn't want him, she said. "His mother kept pushing him into a corner and I kept moving him back," she said. "Other people said, 'You need to put him to sleep.'"

However, Wallin figured if the little guy made it through the night, it was God's will that he survive. Wallin was right. Her "armless Chihuahua," named Journey, gets around just fine hopping around on his back legs. She said whenever she takes him to her vet, Easley Animal Hospital, he gets a "clean bill of health."

Some dogs without either front or back legs have little sets of wheels to help them scoot around, but Journey's got enough strength in his rear haunches to jump up on the bed, Wallin said.

"He has no problem getting up on things, he just can't get back down," she said. Also, Journey can't get through the doggie door like her other four dogs.

And when we got the heavy snows this winter,

Journey had to "be real quick getting onto his back legs," Wallin said.

Wallin's second "armless Chihuahua" became a part of her life three weeks ago. A few of her friends discovered two Chihuahua mixes, one male and one female, abandoned in the bed of an abandoned pickup truck near the former Rosie's Bar.

The male dog had been born without front legs, just like Journey.

Her friends figured that since Wallin was already caring for one Chihuahua sans front legs, if anybody knew how to care for the dog, it would be her.

Wallin said both abandoned dogs were in a frightened state and each had toe nails that were an inch long.

From the condition of their teeth, she said, their former owner wasn't feeding them properly.

"They were in terrible condition," she said.

A huge fan of late singer Janis Joplin, Wallin decided to call the dogs Janis and Joplin.

The female with all four legs, Janis, is either the sister or mother of Joplin, the male dog with only back legs.

The two Chihuahua

mixes are very attached to each other, and that was a priority when finding foster parents for them, Wallin said.

"I interviewed a lot of people but they wanted to split the dogs up," Wallin said.

Both Janis and Joplin have been fixed, with the cost being paid for by PAWS (Pampa Animal Welfare Society).

The dogs are now being cared for by two of Wallin's friends, Amy Woodruff and Mollie Crossman.

"They've come a long way in three weeks," Crossman said.

Janis is the more outgoing of the two, running up to greet this reporter as he approached the house.

Joplin is a little shy, but becomes a friend after a few minutes.

Wallin said Joplin gets around on his back legs even better than Journey.

Crossman said Janis and Joplin have adapted well in their new home.

"They have a blast with my other dogs," Crossman said.

Though she's the smallest canine in the roost, it's Janis who rules the roost.

"Even my pit bull is scared of her."

Sixth Floor Museum adds items

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas museum chronicling the life and death of President John F. Kennedy has added several items visible in a Pulitzer Prize-winning photograph of Jack Ruby shooting Kennedy assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

The Sixth Floor Museum at Dealey Plaza announced Friday the additions as the nation marks the 50th anniversary of Kennedy's Nov. 22, 1963, assassination.

New items include the tan suit worn by police Detective Jim Leavelle and the handcuffs that linked him to Oswald during the attempted jail transfer. Also added were Ruby's gray fedora and the Nikon camera Dallas Times Herald photographer Bob Jackson used to make the photo.

What better way to express gratitude for bountiful blessings than to share with those in need?

LaVerna Evans Fillingim

LaVerna Evans Fillingim joined our Heavenly Father on Sunday, Nov. 3, 2013.

Celebration of her Life was at 2 p.m., Friday, Nov. 8, 2013 in the First Baptist Church of Wheeler with the Rev. Larry Mitchell and the Rev. Aaron Laverty, officiating. Burial followed at Gageby Cemetery. Arrangements were by Peppers Funeral Home of Wheeler.

LaVerna was born April 25, 1922 to the Rev. O.C. and Earl Jane Evans. She married Willis E. Fillingim on March 25, 1943. He preceded her in death on Dec. 20, 2005. LaVerna graduated from Briscoe High School and West Texas State Teachers College in 1942.

LaVerna taught school at the Briscoe school for many years before she and Willis began their farm in the Gageby community north of Briscoe. She thoroughly enjoyed being the homemaker of the home by providing her delicious meals and baking her famous peanut butter cookies. She and Willis raised chickens, farmed their land, milked cows on their dairy, and they were known for their abundant gardens in which they loved giving vegetables to many friends and family members. LaVerna was a vital part of the Gageby Baptist Church for many years, serving in many capacities. She thoroughly enjoyed her church family and especially loved going to Sunday night singings. She also was a very competitive domino player, she always said she let others win to make them happy but she could've won. She and Willis loved having large gatherings at their home to play dominoes and to enjoy homemade ice cream and baked goods. LaVerna was well-known for her Gageby News and later as the Country News in the Wheeler Times newspaper, the countless years she wrote her articles kept everyone up with the news of the community.

LaVerna and Willis moved to Wheeler in 2001 and gained their extended church family at First Baptist Church of Wheeler. LaVerna as well as Willis were known for their endless faith in God, and taught many along the way the Word. Their love of the Lord was shown by attending numerous Gideons events, Church Revivals and supporting the Missionary activities. LaVerna and Willis opened their home to so many throughout the years, helped many in need and gave so much to make sure others had more than they did.

LaVerna was preceded in death by husband Willis, her parents Rev. O.C. and Earl Jane Evans, Sisters Val Massey, Pauline Hefley and Mary Van Zandt, brothers Eldred Evans and Gene Evans.

Survivors are son, Dan Fillingim of Elk City, Okla., daughter Mary Newman of Waxahachie, Texas, grandson Dallas Fillingim and wife Krystal of Windthorst, Texas, granddaughter Lindsey Thomas and husband Mike of Canyon, grandson Clint Newman and wife Laura of DeSoto, Texas, and granddaughter Kaitlyn Newman. LaVerna was especially proud of her great-grandchildren Blain and Dagen Thomas, Keaira, Kamry and Karissa Fill-ingim, as well as many other loved relatives and friends.

Serving as pall bearers are David Hefley, Mack Shields, David Pearson, Mark Meek, Lawrence Fillingim, Ray Hudson, Glenn Thomas and Chuck Hartline.

Honorary pall bearers are Darren Hefley, Jim Alvey, Ed Hershman, Leo Shuler, Marion Grimes, Randy McCurley, Cecil Meadows, Darrell Gaines and Dan Cornett.

The Memorials can be sent to First Baptist Church of Wheeler, 601 S. Main, Wheeler, TX 79096, or Gageby Baptist Church, Attn: Ray Hudson FM 1046, Briscoe, TX 79011.

Terry R. Mullins

Terry R. Mullins, 52, of Mobeetie went to be with our Lord on Nov. 1, 2013.

Memorial services are 10 a.m. today at The United Methodist Church in Mobeetie with Doug Boyd, Gary Jahnel, and Wesley Holland, officiating.

Terry was born on Aug. 14, 1961 in Madera, Calif. to John Terry Mullins and Willene Burke. He graduated from Pampa High School in 1979.

While winning every award possible, when attending the Bruce Ford Bareback Riding School in Colorado, Bruce told Terry, "You have the biggest heart I've ever seen in a little man and if you don't ride bucking horses for a living it will be a shame!" Injuries put a halt to that dream.

Terry traveled with his parents on the pipeline throughout his childhood and decided early on that welding was what he wanted to do for a living. He loved the pipeline, the work, the traveling and the people. Terry enjoyed hunting, fishing, golf, riding his motorcycle, learning to play the guitar, and he could spend all day at a flea market looking for that special treasure.

Terry was a member of Pipeliners Local Union 798, The United Association, Elks Lodge, a member of the United Methodist Church in Mobeetie and was a Master Mason.

Terry was preceded in death by his stepmother, Carol A. Mullins; his stepfather, Arthur Don Burke; father-in-law, Stephen Wise and a nephew, Jonathon Weishaar.

Terry is survived by his wife, Christine Denise (Wise) Mullins; his father, John Terry Mullins of Yuma, Ariz.; his mother, Willene Burke of Mobeetie and her special friend, Kermit Taylor of Wheeler; two brothers, David Mullins of Amarillo, Greg Burke and wife Ronda of Wichita Falls; sister-in-law, Teresa Weishaar and husband Dennis of Abilene, Kansas; brother-in-law, Steve Wise and wife Laurie of Wichita, Kan.; nieces, Amber Arnold and husband Tanner of Dumas, Michelle Wise of Wichita, Kan., Kristen Burke of Wichita Falls, Texas; nephews, Christopher and Michael Wise of Wichita, Kan.; great nieces, Paisley Arnold of Dumas, Texas, Ryleigh Wise of Wichita, Kan.; great-nephews, Hunter Wise of Wichita, Kan., Benjamin Burke of Wichita Falls; honorary brothers, Rick Rice and wife DeAnn of Amarillo, Gene Hale of Calhoun, La.; the child Terry never had, Justin Pfaff and wife, Rachael and their son, Bo of Ottumwa, Iowa, and so many wonderful aunts, uncles, friends and pipeliners.

The Family suggests memorials be sent to The United Methodist Church of Mobeetie, P.O. Box 7, Mobeetie, TX 79061 or BSA Hospice of Pampa, 800 N. Sumner, Pampa, TX 79065.

You may send condolences online at www.peppersfuneralhome.com.

Bouncin' Around Hanging on to fall a little longer

Halloween is over, and the stores already have Christmas decorations fully on display. The holiday commercials have already begun. But I'm not ready to jump into winter with both feet just yet. I want to hang on to autumn a bit longer. Growing up in Southern California, we didn't experience all four seasons in the traditional manner. We had summer, hotter summer, cooler summer and chilly summer.

Sometimes we had wet summer. Then I moved to Illinois and the first thing that happened was a bitterly cold winter unlike any they had seen there in many years. Then it snowed. And snowed. And snowed some more. Spring finally came, and I saw flowers and blooming trees I had never seen before. Summer brought heat, humidity, and bugs like I'd never seen before. Ah, but then autumn. The hard maples suddenly blazed forth in shades of red and gold, and oaks in their rusty orange. We took long drives in the Wisconsin countryside just to look at the riot of colors. For the first time in my life, I raked piles of leaves and jumped in them just for fun. Before burn restrictions were put in force, you could smell leaves burning everywhere you drove, and late at night when it was quiet, you could hear flocks of geese honking their way south. When we bought our first house, there were three trees in the front yard: two box elders and one red maple. In the side yard there was another box elder, and in the back yard there were another hard maple and a birch tree. For the first few years, the trees were small enough that they didn't produce that many fallen leaves and most of them blew away. By the time we left that house twenty years later, we were bagging upwards of twenty bags of leaves at the end of autumn, and I still enjoyed jumping in the leaves just for fun. A family tradition involved a trip to Racine, Wisconsin, to visit Jerry Smith's Pumpkin Farm. In addition to acres of pumpkins and displays of pumpkins painted and dressed to look like movie and cartoon characters, they had hayrides, a haunted bus, a country store, freshly-grilled bratwurst and hot dogs (which, when the man who ran the grill saw me, he automatically said "Burn one for you, Ma'am?"), and big, warm, soft cookies. We later moved to Indiana, and bought a house with enormous oak and maple trees in the yard, and we treated ourselves to a leaf blower. We didn't have to bag the leaves, but raked and/or blew them out to the street where they were picked up by city trucks with huge vacuum hoses. By then we had a small grandson, and we always saved a big pile of leaves for him to jump in. When he was joined by his triplet siblings, I think we scattered more leaves than we raked, and the kids had great fun burying us in the leaves. As we lived in a more rural area, we could hear not only the geese migrating at night, but coyotes yipping, and the occasional owl outside our bedroom window. The temperatures here in the Panhandle of Texas have moderated from the 100's of summer, and since we've had a fair amount of rain, the trees have burst forth in multicolored leaves. We have a new home and I'm sure that there will be leaf piles that the grandkids... and their grandma... can jump in, just for fun. Yesterday I heard geese winging their way south, but I also heard the quiet, melodic call of sand hill cranes migrating. The days are shorter, but there will also be some very pleasant temperatures before the winter winds start to howl. Let's enjoy the sights and sounds and smells of fall for a while and wait until at least the day after Thanksgiving for winter and Christmas.

The Obama mess: Who done it? We done it

It may well be — I wouldn't deny it for a minute — that Barack Obama has less to recommend him as a U.S. president than any predecessor of the past century. Vain, cocksure, morose, disabled from admitting a mistake or a bad guess — what a guy! Small wonder no present poll shows him with majority public support. There is irony here. Majority public support is what catapulted him to the presidency. The things he's done which have lowered his reputation — e.g., put health care under federal control, fight for the redistribution of income, etc., — are pretty much the things he could have been heard pledging to do when he ran for the presidency. Except relatively few thought relatively much about the presumptive consequences. We, the people elected him. That's the point hardly ever acknowledged amid all the shouting and counter-shouting that drowned Washington, D.C. in perpetual racket. We twice, not just once, armed him, escorted him to the White House, opened the front door for him, and said, in effect, go to it. The anti-Obama backlash now becoming a central fact of American politics is likely overdue, and probably constructive insofar as it slows him, hinders his designs, makes him think twice about notions that bear small resemblance to the products of careful, considered reasoning. Nonetheless, we shouldn't be unduly hard on a guy we put where he is. Barack Obama is the product — perhaps the inevitable product — of an unresolved cultural conflict among his countrymen: one conservatives thought they had licked back in the '80s. Supposedly, Ronald Reagan had given such impetus to conservative free-market, anti-communist thinking that he forgot the questions that brought him to office. He had cut taxes, helped overthrow the Soviet commies, taken up for traditional morality. It was done! Hallelujah! It was going to be all right. Except it wasn't all right at all. With Reagan out of office, the great American political culture proved itself — if more hesitantly than would have been the case without Reagan — to be as bollixed as ever when it came to certain basic questions. To wit, how big should government be, and how much should that government cost? Is it government's duty to make everybody happy or just grant people the opportunity to become happy with minimal interference from outside? Things like that. The old conflicts and arguments broke out again. The old war cries rose. The rich had too much money! The poor had too little! Life wasn't fair! Government had to make it fair! Into the middle of our unresolved arguments strolled a community organizer whose race and education drew more attention than the unresolved nature of our conflicts. Many heard him giving more or less clear answers to the old questions. The rich had too much money? Yep, replied candidate Obama. Government needed to do more for more people? Yep. The free market wasn't as good as Reagan had made it out to be? Sure enough. Somehow, conservatives proved themselves unable — or reluctant — to make the case for smaller government at less cost. Obama's case for bigger, costlier government, reinforced by the public's Bush-fatigue, won the voters' hearts. He got the job he asked for — courtesy of those who liked what they were hearing. Why they liked it is another matter entirely. They liked it — that's the point. They promoted Barack Obama to run the whole country, which he proceeded to do in a way that is now producing buyers' remorse of a very widespread — not universal but still widespread — nature indeed. The presidency of Barack Obama, whose signature achievement is a health care "reform" stalled by a lousy website and castigated for an untenable, unaffordable economic approach, is the outcome of democratic deliberation — if you call it deliberation. We can't pin this job on a single man. Not when so many millions of fingerprints are all over the crime scene.

Memo to Merkel: Tell Obama to take a hike

Chutzpah. I believe that's the word for it. Just days after learning the Americans have been tapping her phones and taping her conversations, Angela Merkel has been publicly upbraided by the U.S. Treasury for being a bad global citizen.

PATRICK BUCHANAN

What did she do to deserve this? Merkel just won a third term as chancellor with a record vote and has an approval rating near 80 percent. But she is a bad global citizen because Germany is running the world's largest trade surplus. The Washington Post thinks the Treasury's tongue-lashing is overdue, as does Paul Krugman of the New York Times: "In this environment, a country that runs a trade surplus is ... begging its neighbors. It is diverting spending away from their goods and services to its own, and thereby taking away jobs." Is this not astonishing? Competing successfully in world markets is now tantamount to stealing food off the table of one's less-competent and less-successful neighbors. By this standard, America was a selfish nation and a rotten global citizen for the first seven decades of the 20th century, when we ran trade surpluses every year, averaging 4 percent of GDP. From the Civil War through the Roaring '20s, with a high tariff, we became the mightiest manufacturing power the world had ever seen. Our economic independence enabled us to stay out of two world wars. And when we did go in, we won within months in 1918, and we won again only a few years after Pearl Harbor. Is this a record to be ashamed of? Every modern nation that has risen to world power has done so through economic nationalism: Britain under the Acts of Navigation; the United States under protectionist Republicans from 1860-1914; Bismarck's Germany; postwar Japan, which rose from the ashes of 1945 to become the world's second economy; and China from 1980 to today. Trade surpluses, run at the expense of rival powers, have been the hallmark of great nations in their rise to preeminence. Though Germany is smaller than Montana, with a population not a fourth that of the United States, she is the powerhouse of the European Union, makes some of the finest products on earth, and sells abroad one-third of all she produces. Her unemployment rate is only 5 percent. Why is that not a record to be admired? And whom are the Germans supposed to emulate? Answer, if you can believe it, Obama's America. The Post and Krugman feel the Germans must shake off their habit of working and saving and start spending to get Club Med countries like Spain and Greece out of intensive care. The Post wants Merkel to embrace the Social Democrats' idea of raising the minimum wage to $11.50 an hour, which was too rich even for the mayor of D.C. The need, says Treasury, is for "rebalancing." Basically, what the globalists want is for prudent counties with trade surpluses to start running deficits to get money flowing, like transfusions, into the moribund economies. Where as "Engine Charlie" Wilson reportedly said, "What's good for General Motors is good for the country," the globalists retort, "What's good for the global economy is good for America." But is this true? From their behavior in recent decades, neither the Chinese nor Japanese nor Germans, proprietors of the second, third and fourth largest economies on earth, buy into this ideology. And how has America's conversion to globalism, since George H.W. Bush proclaimed the coming of the New World Order, worked out for us? From 1989 to 1993, Bush 1 ran $360 billion in trade deficits in goods, a U.S. record. Bill Clinton, who enlisted the Republican establishment to help ratify NAFTA and U.S. membership in a World Trade Organization where the United States has the same vote as Armenia, ran $1.8 trillion in trade deficits. Clinton's deficits were then dwarfed by George W. Bush's, who ran up $5.3 trillion in trade deficits in goods. In four years and eight months, Obama has piled up trade deficits totaling more than $3 trillion. Thus, during 25 years of free-trade globalism, the United States has run up well over 10 trillion, or ten thousand-billion, dollars in trade deficits in goods. And what do we have to show for it? Our economic independence is history. We rely on foreigners for the necessities of life. We are the greatest debtor nation in history. Beijing and Tokyo bank scores of billions in annual interest payments on the T-bills and Treasury bonds they hold. And as the gleaming cities of Asia rise, America's infrastructure visibly crumbles. The real wages of our working men and women have not risen in decades. In the first decade of this century, we lost 6 million manufacturing jobs as 55,000 factories disappeared. Why should successful Germans emulate the folly of the failed American politicians responsible for the decline of the greatest republic in the history of mankind?

Ex-DA who prosecuted innocent man back in court

GEORGETOWN (AP) — A former prosecutor found guilty of misconduct for convicting an innocent man of murder returns to court for the first time since resigning as a state district judge.

Ken Anderson will be in court in Georgetown on Friday. Gov. Rick Perry appointed him to the Williamson County bench there in 2002, but Anderson stepped down in September.

While previously serving as Williamson County district attorney, Anderson helped convict Michael Morton, who was wrongfully imprisoned for nearly 25 years for his wife's 1986 slaying.

DNA evidence exonerated Morton in 2011.

In April, a special court of inquiry determined that Anderson intentionally concealed evidence favorable to Morton's defense.

Anderson faces charges of criminal contempt of court and evidence and records tampering.

He also faces possible disbarment by the State Bar of Texas.

Workers recall Six Flags coaster glitches

ARLINGTON (AP) — Workers operating a Six Flags Over Texas roller coaster from which a woman fell to her death in July recalled glitches with the safety features on the cars, according to police report.

Rosa Ayala-Goana died when she was ejected from the Texas Giant roller coaster July 19. One employee told police in the aftermath that the safety restraint on the car from which the Dallas woman fell 75 feet to the ground was "a little high, or not as tight as it should be," The Dallas Morning News (http://bit.ly/1gvdptC) reported Thursday.

The worker checked a safety light, determined the lap bar was secure on the woman and allowed the coaster train to leave, according to the police report, which the newspaper obtained.

Another employee reported the train had problems in the days previous, including "a trouble light" the week before, the police report says. "The sensors were not working properly and they had to have Maintenance come out and fix it," the police report stated.

The death has been ruled an accident by police, but the woman's family has filed a wrongful death lawsuit against Six Flags and Gerstlauer Amusement Rides GmbH, the German company that made the roller coaster train. Gerstlauer and Six Flags have both filed court papers denying any wrongdoing or liability.

This Week: Use Monday and Tuesday to the max.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

This Week: Tap into your imagination. Know that you can make a change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

This Week: Ask and you shall receive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ The Moon in your sign energizes you and puts you in a position where few will say "no" to you. If you do not have plans, make sure you are with the person you most enjoy and that you're doing what you most enjoy. Make the day memorable. Tonight: Go a little wild.

This Week: Use Monday and Tuesday to the max.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Taking a day off might suit you fine. You go out of your way for so many people, and you rarely take time for yourself. You might decide to invite a loved one along on your lazy day. Your energy will start to build by late afternoon. Tonight: Out and about.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Nov. 11, 2013:
 This year you often demonstrate an unusually creative yet disciplined side of your personality. When you use it well, you could find that very little is unattainable. If you are single, you seem to be able to attract the type of person you desire. You will meet several desirable suitors. As a result, you will date a lot. If you are attached, your sweetie often finds you closed down. This person might be manipulative in his or her desire to have you open up. Avoid fighting, and understand where your significant other is coming from. PISCES often makes you feel like a kid again.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ★★★ You might want to keep a secret or allow a matter to stay hush-hush. You need to be intuitive, especially with others. Several friends could approach questions from a different angle as they try to find out what information you are holding back. Tonight: Watch your hot temper.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ★★★★★ Zero in on what appears to be a hot issue. You are capable of putting what lies ahead in perspective, which increases your ability to accomplish what you desire. Use your unique talent to detach and see the big picture. Tonight: A disagreement encourages a creative solution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ★★★ You might be trying to work through a problem. You are able to handle a lot, but tension keeps rising. Your effectiveness is dependent on your ability to process stress. You can't avoid certain situations. Take a walk at lunchtime, if need be. Tonight: A must appearance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ★★★★★ Detach and you'll gain a unique perspective, especially when dealing with a particularly contentious or controlling person. Your creativity falls flat, but a brainstorming session will open many doors. You'll get a better grasp of what is happening. Tonight: Look beyond the obvious.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★★★★ Work with others directly. You communicate effectively, and many people around you gain insight quickly. As a result, you can make changes nearly immediately. An associate could present a risk you might not be aware of. Tonight: Go along with someone else's request.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★★★★ Defer to others. Know when you are in a no-win situation. It is important to recognize what is happening before you encounter a problem. Allow others to experience some of the issues you face, and they might become more understanding. Tonight: Make time for a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★★ Your easygoing attitude allows others the space to be free and come forward. You tend to gain insight more easily about the people in your life because they reveal themselves often. Do not sit on anger. Tonight: Discuss a potential problem without becoming frustrated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★★★★ Many opportunities come forward that could involve adjusting your schedule. You might want to tap into someone's resourcefulness. Your seriousness will strengthen a situation. A friend could become very irritable. Tonight: Approach a loved one with sensitivity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ★★★ Your compassion comes out when dealing with a family member. Tap into your intuition in order to succeed today. Feedback from a family member presents a different idea that might not coincide with yours. Be sure to touch base with a superior. Tonight: Your home is your castle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ★★★★★ You could be moving forward with a project that is often discussed. A talk will help this goal become a reality. News from a distance could shake up plans. This newly shared enterprise will stick because time has encouraged perspective and thought. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ★★★ You will indulge yourself, whether it is sharing a favorite breakfast or taking a few hours for yourself. You'll maintain your responsibilities, even if the pace is more easy than usual. A partner might want to take a different approach. Anger could emerge. Tonight: Your treat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ★★★★★ You might need to handle a situation differently from how you anticipated. You could be upset with someone far away. The more you push, the more resistant this person becomes. Know when to leave a situation. Tonight: Allow someone to let off steam without becoming embroiled.

Golf Tips of the Week

■ Are you using the right irons for your game?

When you read an advert for a driver, it is easy to see what a brand is trying to convince you of – ‘more distance, more easily’ – as it is simple to scream out ‘our longest driver ever’. But, have you noticed how the iron adverts seem a lot more muted on their ‘result’?

That is because, whatever the technology, you will not hit your irons close more often (which is the point!), unless your grip, club weight, shaft flex, shaft length and lie angle are all set up correctly.

Manufacturers all know that if you pull an iron off the shelf and it is not set up for you then the perfect No. 5 iron shot could be 15 or 20 yards left or right, depending on where the setup is wrong, off the target! They also know that each of you have very different swings and will approach the ball with very different swing speeds from very different angles.

You might be an 8 handicap, but hit your irons very low on the face without any divot and be inclined to strike them towards the toe with an over the top, out to in swing. Or you could be a 14 handicap who strikes the ball high on the face with a down and through angle of attack. So, they can't even say if your handicap is from here to here, then this club will work for you.

Yes, there are some very interesting releases coming, but we don't actually care how far the No. 6 iron goes. We care how consistently a golfer can hit it and how accurate it is. And that means an assessment and a fitting! Please talk to us if you would like some more information or if you'd like to come in for an iron assessment and fitting.

Regards,
Tim

From the Press Box

■ Bullying now becomes national issue.

Name-calling, pushing, teasing and ridiculing. Being the “geeky” kid in school I was bullied, but everyone has been bullied at one point in their life. The expression, “there’s always a bigger fish” fits the mold because even a bully has a bigger bully. You don’t think about it too much as an adult, except you worry that your kids are being bullied. But when you go to work at your job or career, most people are mature enough to leave you to your work.

So the national headline this week in the NFL has been the alleged bullying from Miami Dolphins left tackle Richie Incognito against left guard Jonathan Martin. It’s no secret that the offensive linemen make up a special brotherhood in the locker room. When hearing that Martin left because of bullying, everyone was quick to jump on Incognito’s case because of his sketchy past and overly aggressive play on the field.

With the news that the coaches were apparently in on “toughening up” Martin, the situation has often been compared to the classic movie “A Few Good Men.”

I can imagine when playing offensive lineman you need to be tough and have an edge. I am not condoning bullying or anything of the sorts, but many players are saying that there has been a need to “toughen up” a player. Many have often called Martin soft because he ditched the team because he was bullied and didn’t stand up for himself.

Personally I find it to be a smart thing Martin did that, but at the same time, reports have come out that it isn’t all that it seems. Many players, including quarterback Ryan Tannehill, said they thought Incognito and Martin were best friends. Another player described Martin as “stand-offish” and “didn’t fit in.” So this saga is going to continue and probably change the culture of the locker room forever.

But it won’t stop at the locker room. If two big offensive linemen, who are grown men, can be involved in a bullying issue, then the light is shown on the issue of bullying itself.

This is great for all the little guys out there. Bullying will be monitored more and probably get more attention. So don’t worry, little guys. We got your back.

The all-new Silverado underwent more than 13 million miles of testing – resulting in a truck that's stronger, smarter and more capable than ever. All three qualities are embodied in our EcoTec3 engines. Our available EcoTec3 5.3L V8 provides 355 horsepower while offering up to 23 hwy mpg,† the most fuel-efficient gas V8 pickup engine ever. The standard 4.3L EcoTec3 V6 offers 305 lb-ft of torque, the most of any standard V6 in its class. Improvements continue beyond the hood. A boxed frame, larger axles and an available Max Trailering Package allow Silverado to offer a class-leading trailering capacity of up to 12,000 pounds.† Cargo bed enhancements like the CornerStep rear bumper, pocket handgrips and optional removable cargo tie-downs make it easy to secure cargo.

You will enjoy the more spacious and intelligent interior with every mile you drive in the all-new Silverado. Redesigned seating provides more rear space in Double and Crew Cabs, and the available MyLink† system allows you to stay connected and entertained, no matter where the road takes you.

Every 2014 Silverado comes with 2 years/24,000 miles of scheduled maintenance.† Add to that our already impressive warranties and Roadside Assistance and Courtesy Transportation for up to 5 years or 100,000 miles,† and you get the best pickup coverage in America.

THE 2014 SILVERADO EXCEEDS THE HIGHEST OF STANDARDS.

2014 CHEVROLET IMPALA

Vision is the cornerstone of good design and at the core of fearless innovation. The all-new 2014 Impala is proof of that, combining superior materials with meticulously crafted technology. Its bold stance and sculpted lines combine form with function to please the eye and effectively command aerodynamics for a smooth, dynamic ride.

The interior is transformed into an environment of sophistication and authenticity featuring premium materials thoroughly crafted with masterful technique resulting in superior finish in every detail. Engineered for excellence. Designed for drivers. The 2014 Chevrolet Impala is a stunning reinterpretation of the premium sedan. J.D. Power has recognized the 2013 Impala as the "Highest Ranked Large Car in Initial Quality."†

The sophistication of Impala is matched by the extensive care that Chevrolet provides. 2014 Impala comes standard with Chevrolet 2-Year Scheduled Maintenance coverage† that includes oil and oil filter changes, 4-wheel tire rotation and a 27-point vehicle inspection.
