START THE PRESSES!

Photos by Timothy P. Howsare

Friday, Nov. 5 was a historic night for The Pampa News. After months of anticipation and hundreds of hours of hard work, we printed our first paper, the Nov. 6, 2013 edition, on our new Harris press. While the Harris machine was manufactured in the 1980s and purchased USED from one of our sister newspapers in Crawfordsville, Ind. it is nonetheless light years more advanced than the old Goss press, pictured in the background, that was built in 1959. The only thing that was saved from the old press was the paper tensioner, which had to be modified to fit the new press. Business insiders say the Goss printing presses are so obsolete that even newspapers in Mexico and South America won't buy them used from American companies anymore, opting for the newer Harris presses. The new press has the advantage of "four-on-four" color printing, meaning page 2, which is in back of page 1, can now be color. It also is faster and produces better color. "I'm very excited to have the new press up and running," said Publisher ReDonn Woods. "The new color and page capabilities will be an asset to our paper." Top photo, press room manager Marcus Elkins uses his eagle eye to check the color registration, or the alignment of the four colors used in the print process. Above left, Elkins makes an adjustment to the registration. Above right, the new press in operation.

Volunteers sought to cut down dead trees

■ Individuals wanting firewood encouraged to show up with chainsaws.

STAFF REPORT

A community project now is being organized by several civic groups to cut down and remove many of the dead trees in city parks in Pampa and along major thoroughfares. If there is enough community support, similar projects could be scheduled in the near future. The goal is to bring citizens from all walks of life together to help beautify the city. The project will begin at 8 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 16, at Alameda Park on Duncan Street across from Austin Elementary School, then Highland Park at Hobart and Somerville. As time permits other dead trees in the area can be cut for firewood or removal. Anyone who wants to volunteer should show up at Alameda at 8 a.m. Individuals as well as groups from churches, schools and clubs are encouraged to participate. Children can come with their parents to help pick up litter in the parks. Anyone wishing to cut up the dead trees for firewood is encouraged to show up and bring chain saws. Trees not cut up for firewood will be hauled away to the city's landfill. For more information, call Pampa Regional Medical Center administration at 806-663-5500.

■ Sweet Adelines chapter brings dinner theater to Borger.

BY TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

Watch as toys made in Santa's workshop come to life and experience their very first Christmas. Then, almost magically, all the toys start singing in four-part harmony. The Palo Duro Metro Chorus of Sweet Adelines brings "A Toy's First Christmas" dinner theater to Borger on Saturday, Nov. 23. The dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. and the performance starts at 7:30. Both dinner and show will be held in the Graced Land East dining room, three miles east of Borger on State Highway 152 (Borger Highway).

Constance "Connie" Crabb McDaniel

Constance "Connie" Crabb McDaniel, 94, of Raleigh, N.C. and formerly of Pampa, died Nov. 6, 2013, in Raleigh. Connie was born Sept. 3, 1919, in Plainview. She graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School in Dallas, and attended Decatur Baptist College in Decatur (now called Dallas Baptist University). On April 12, 1941, in Dallas, she married MacField McDaniel, M.D. Following his return from World War II in 1946, they moved to Pampa where Dr. McDaniel practiced medicine until his death on Nov. 7, 1993.

After Dr. McDaniel's death, Connie moved to Amarillo, and lived near her son, David McDaniel, and daughter-in-law, Jane Wells McDaniel. She resided in Amarillo until 2001, and then moved to Raleigh, N.C., living near her daughter, Ellen McDaniel, and son-in-law, Robert E. Young. She often visited and was very involved with her other children, Helen McDaniel and husband Thomas "Tommy" Brower of San Antonio, and James McDaniel and wife Edith of Palm Springs, Calif.

While in Pampa, Mrs. McDaniel was an active member of the district, state and national medical auxiliaries. She belonged to the Twentieth Century Forum Study Club and served many years on the Pampa Community Concert Board and Friends of the Library Board. She was active in PTA, and in 1966, was named Pampa's "Woman of the Year." She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Pampa, Texas, where she taught Sunday School for over 20 years in the Senior High School department.

Mrs. McDaniel was "mother" to American Field Service (AFS) exchange student, Pedro (Peter) Kadoum, from Brazil, and Altrusa exchange student, Evelyn Arellano, from Guatemala. She was also close to AFS exchange students Riina Hultquist of Sweden and Kathy Zaphiriou of Greece. These wonderful people became her extended family, and she remained close to them and their families until her death.

Connie McDaniel is survived by her sons, James MacField McDaniel of Palm Springs, Calif., and David Alan McDaniel of Plano, and her twin daughters, Helen McDaniel of San Antonio, and Ellen McDaniel of Raleigh, N.C. She is also survived by her six grandsons: David's sons, David Curtis McDaniel and Gregory Brent McDaniel; Ellen's sons, Nathan Joel Young and MacField McDaniel Young; and Helen's sons, Brian George Brower and Sean Eric Brower. She also has one great grandson, Evan Davis McDaniel, son of Curtis and Larisa McDaniel.

She was preceded in death by parents Rupert McIver Crabb and Ellen Isbell Crabb (Shipp), sisters Geraldine Crabb McGraw and Helen Crabb Brockles, and brother Rupert McIver Crabb, Jr.

In her more recent life, Connie was a member of the First Baptist Church in Amarillo and Raleigh. In Raleigh, she volunteered at Raleigh Little Theater, mainly making costumes, and SAFEchild child abuse prevention agency, where she did office and phone support. She believed fervently in the people and mission of SAFEchild. She also nurtured a lifelong love of theater.

Connie's last years were spent at Magnolia Glen retirement community in Raleigh, where she lived happily and had many friends, including her close companion of more than two years, Russell Groves. Her last days were made comfortable by the caring staff of Mayview Convalescent Center and Hospice of Wake County.

Memorial services for Connie will be announced at a later date. Connie leaves behind what can only be called a fan club of people who were crazy about her.

Her family and friends will miss her deeply.

In lieu of flowers or gifts, Connie asks that you make a contribution to SAFEchild NC, 864 W. Morgan Street, Raleigh, NC 27603, or at www.safechildnc.org.

Leoma M. Walker

Leoma M. Walker, currently of Amarillo, 88, formerly a resident of Pampa died November 12, 2013 in Amarillo.

Leoma Walker

The family will receive visitors at Schooler Funeral Home in Amarillo today from 3-5 p.m. and on Thursday morning from 9- 11 a.m. at Carmichael Whatley Funeral Home 600 N Ward St., Pampa. A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. on Thursday at the Shamrock Cemetery in Shamrock. Arrangements are by Schooler Funeral Home, 4100 S. Georgia St., with much gratitude for and assistance from Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Home in Pampa.

Leoma was born Sept. 12, 1925 in Shamrock to Eugene and Velvie Martin.

Leoma was a 1943 graduate of Shamrock High School. She was employed by Farmers and Merchant State Bank following graduation until 1951. She then moved to Pampa where she was employed by Cabot Company an Ingersoll Rand until her retirement in 1982. In 1954 she met and married the love of her life Norris Calvin Walker. Leoma and Norris were happily married for 54 years.

All the years of Leoma's life were sent in service to others. She was a volunteer for the Red Cross and World Bible Missions. Both Leoma and Norris served many years as volunteers for Meals on Wheels. No matter the inclement West Texas weather, Leoma made sure meals were delivered to the needy. Leoma and Norris were generous supporters to many Christian charities. They were intently dedicated to helping disadvantaged children through their donations to residential programs for children both in Texas and New Mexico.

Leoma was a lifelong Christian. She loved Jesus and loved to go to church. She regularly attended Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ in Pampa. She continued her faithfulness to worship at Bell Avenue Church of Christ following her move to Amarillo. Even as Leoma's health began to fade she faithfully attended church regardless of what it took to get there. She was an inspiration to many.

Although Leoma and Norris did not have children of their own, they doted on their many nieces and nephews. She will be remembered for her listening ear and love she poured into each of their lives. She was our sweet Aunt Lee, always ready to welcome us into her home and into her life. She will be sorely missed.

The family would like to thank the caregivers, friends, and church members who visited Leoma. We would like to say a special thank you to her nephew David Kilpatrick and his wife Carroll. They were her angels on earth. They did the daily things only a family knows to do.

Leoma was preceded in death by her parents, her husband Norris, her brother Eugene Martin, her sisters Lavern Martin, Maurine Martin Kilpatrick and Geraldine Martin Hawk.

She is survived by one sister, Bonnie Martin Beller, and numerous other loving family members.

In lieu of flowers the family suggests memorials to Gideon's International, P.O. Box 140800, Nashville, Tenn. 37214 or BSA Hospice.

Buddy Poppy, wear it proudly

In honor of Veterans Day the White Deer Land Museum would like to extend a special thank you to all of those who have served.

COURTNEY OXLEY

The Veterans of Foreign Wars organization began a tradition just before Memorial Day in 1922. They distributed little red poppies. The theme was adopted from a popular poem, “In Flander’s Field” by John McCrae, during World War I. It was during the 1923 encampment that the VFW decided that VFW Buddy Poppies would be assembled by disabled and needy veterans who would be paid for their work, which provided them with some form of financial assistance.

istered the name “Buddy Poppy” with the U.S. Patent Office.

Today, VFW Buddy Poppies are still assembled by disabled and needy veterans in VA hospitals.

In Flander’s Field

by John McCrae

*In Flanders Fields the poppies blow,
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky,
The larks, still bravely singing,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead.
Short days ago,
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved and now we lie,
In Flanders Fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe
To you, from failing hands, we throw,*

*The torch, be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us, who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow,
In Flanders Fields.*

Visit the White Deer Land Museum in downtown Pampa. Regular tours are offered Tuesday through Saturday from 1-4 pm. If you would like to schedule a special or group tour, please call or email the museum at (806)669-8041 or courtney.oxley@graycch.com.

The kids are amazing

For many American children, the floor has become their closet. This drives me crazy. I walk into a room where an urchin resides, and there are clothes scattered everywhere. Believe me, I know the passive-aggressive tactics that kids use to torture their parents, but something else is going on here.

BILL O'REILLY

More than a few times, I've heard parents describe their offspring as “amazing.” If you look up that word, you will see this meaning: “To cause great wonder or astonishment.” That’s what “amazing” means. So occasionally, I will ask the parent of an “amazing” child to tell me exactly why that word applies to their tyke. What is the “great wonder” associated with him or her?

“He just is” comes the usual reply, along with a look that could kill a cactus. Many children fully realize their parents see them as astonishing creatures and incorporate that into their daily presentations. That is, they throw their stuff on the floor because if you are truly amazing you can pretty much do what you want. Right?

When I confront the urchins about strewn clothing, I sometimes get a blank look. So I read their minds. And the brain waves come back this way: “Why are you bothering me? This is interfering with my texting. Someone will pick up my clothes. And if they don’t, so what?” American children are being done a great disservice by adult society.

For reasons only Dr. Phil understands, many parents have decided to attach their own self-image to their children. So if the kid is amazing, that means the father or mother is amazing, as well. That’s what’s going on.

The huge downside is that it takes a lot of work and perseverance to become amazing, and most human beings never reach that status. But children are generally not told that. They are rarely confronted with the fact that life is tough and that to succeed you have to be honest, industrious and disciplined. The discipline part kicks in when you hang up your clothing.

The disturbing thing about childhood these days is that some parents and grandparents excuse a lot of questionable behavior because they want their kids to approve of them. It all goes back to “amazing” again. If your extra-special kid doesn’t like you at the moment, maybe you aren’t topnotch.

Americans whose parents were raised during the Great Depression or World War II understand how drastically things have changed on the home front. My father did not care a whit whether I liked him, and it would have been unthinkable for him to pick up my stuff. There were rules in the house, and they were enforced.

So today, as an adult, I still pick up my stuff and recycle and keep a neat house. That is routine and not at all amazing. But I’m not sure that tradition will survive the next generation.

Veteran TV news anchor Bill O'Reilly is host of the Fox News show "The O'Reilly Factor" and author of many books, including the newly released "Killing Jesus."

Are politicians who cut food stamps and deny health access truly ‘pro-life’?

When Wendy Davis proclaimed that she is “pro-life” — a description long since appropriated by conservatives opposed to abortion rights — the right-wing media practically exploded with indignation. How could she dare to say that? But having won national fame when she filibustered nearly 12 hours against a law designed to shutter Lone Star State abortion clinics, the Texas state senator with the pink shoes doesn’t hesitate to provoke outrage among the righteous.

JOE CONASON

Speaking to a crowd at the University of Texas in Brownsville last Tuesday, Davis, now running for governor as a Democrat, made a deceptively simple but profound declaration: “I am pro-life. I care about the life of every child: every child that goes to bed hungry, every child that goes to bed without a proper education, every child that goes to bed without being able to be a part of the Texas dream, every woman and man who worry their children’s future and their ability to provide for that.”

Her argument directly pierced to the contradiction within the right’s “pro-life” sloganeering. So far the feeble answer from the right is that Davis must be “lying” because nobody who supports a woman’s right to choose is pro-life.

But that response is merely a repetition that seeks to evade her deeper philosophical thrust. Whatever anyone may think about abortion, the persistent question for self-styled pro-lifers is why they tend to insist on making life so much more difficult for so many children who have entered the world. The same Republicans — and they are nearly all Republicans — most vocally opposed to reproductive rights are also most likely to cut assistance to poor families, infants and children at every opportunity, from the moment of birth long into adolescence and beyond.

The imperiled Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program is only the latest instance of this drearily familiar anti-life syndrome. This week, more than 48 million Americans, including 22 million children, saw their food stamp benefits cut as a temporary enhancement of the program expired. That was worse than bad enough. But next year, if the Republicans have their way, the government would cut $40 billion from the program over the next 10 years — immediately depriving 4 million people of food assistance and then another 3 million every year.

Supposedly, the excuse for this cruel scheme is to encourage able-bodied adults to work, even though jobs continue to be scarce. But what about the children who will go hungry, thanks to the budget advanced by the “pro-life” House leadership?

Incidentally, these are the same “pro-lifers” who will do almost anything to frustrate the long-sought national objective of universal health insurance. On that issue, one of their favorite complaints is that expanding health care to all will increase the availability of family planning, including abortion. But what of the tens of thousands of Americans who die every year because they lack insurance? Saving their lives is evidently not a “pro-life” priority.

Wendy Davis is right, but perhaps she didn’t go far enough. You see, the other self-serving sobriquet appropriated by the right is “pro-family,” a code term for opponents of reproductive rights, marriage equality, and other progressive policies that actually empower families of all kinds. Again, these same politicians tend to disparage not only Obamacare, but also extended unemployment insurance, Social Security’s old age and disability assistance, Medicaid, Medicare, student loans, tuition assistance, family leave, the earned income tax credit, and the entire panoply of successful government programs that help to keep real working families from disintegrating under economic, social, and medical stress.

In fact, Davis might reasonably question whether the minions of the religious right and the tea party are even truly “anti-abortion,” although they have long since tried to escape that category. It is true that right-wingers have tried incessantly (and unsuccessfully) to outlaw abortion. But today they often seek to restrict contraception and effective sex education as well, even though preventing unwanted pregnancies is the most obvious way to reduce the number of abortions.

How would conservatives behave if they honestly wanted to save the family — as House Republicans will now claim when they kill the Employment Non-Discrimination Act, banning workplace bias against lesbians and gays? They might begin by reconsidering their ideological project of dismantling federal programs, long supported by Republicans and Democrats alike, that help families maintain stability, care for each other, maintain healthy children, and advance in each generation.

The real enemies of “life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness” for American families are those who seek to polarize incomes, destroy the social safety net, and impose misery on women and children in the name of religious morality.

The Palo Duro Metro Chorus is a chapter of Sweet Adelines International, a worldwide organization of female singers committed to advancing the musical art form of barbershop harmony through education, competition and performance. The independent, nonprofit music education association is one of the world's largest singing organizations for women. All the music is sang unaccompanied, said Loretta Martin, who has been a member of the chorus for eight years. "It's a fun, almost full-time hobby," she quipped about singing in the group. Most of the Palo Duro Metro Chorus members are from Amarillo and Canyon, but one drives from the Oklahoma panhandle to attend rehearsals in Amarillo and sing at numerous civic activities throughout the area, Martin said. While a musical background is lot required, membership to the group is very selective because one must audition and must be able to carry a tune, Martin said. There are around 25 members in the Palo Duro chapter, she said, and there are smaller groups within the larger group that sing at quarters or double quartets. Martin described "A Toy's First Christmas" as a light-hearted musical that combines contemporary Christmas songs with more traditional church carols. One of the songs was written about 50 years ago by one of their chorus members, she said. In the story, Mrs. Claus provides the narrative as all the toy characters just made by Santa Claus come to life. "It is their first time to see Christmas trees and to see children," she said. This delightful, original show will be sure to please children, adults and even your pastor, Martin said. "There will be a great variety of music to appeal to young and old alike," she said. "The original story of Christmas, Jesus' birth, is told through some of the music." Tickets are $30 per person and are available at the Borger Chamber of Commerce or by calling 806-570-1858. For more information about the Palo Duro Metro Chorus of Sweet Adelines, call Natalie Stephenson at 806-672-5898.

World Trade Center named tallest US building

CHICAGO (AP) — The new World Trade Center tower in New York will replace Chicago's Willis Tower as the nation's tallest building when it is completed next year, an international panel of architects announced Tuesday. The Height Committee of the Council on Tall Buildings and Urban Habitat said that because the needle atop the New York skyscraper is a permanent spire and not an antenna it can be counted when measuring the structure's height. The needle, measuring 408 feet tall, was more than enough to confirm Chicago is the Second City when it comes to tall buildings. With the needle, 1 World Trade Center is a symbolically important 1,776 feet tall. Without it, the building would have been only 1,368 feet tall — well short of the 1,451-foot Willis Tower. At stake was more than just the pride of two cities that feast on superlatives and the tourist dollars that might follow: 1 World Trade Center, with its beacon on top will stand as a monument to those killed in the 9/11 attacks, and its architects had sought to capture the echo of America's founding year in the structure's height. Not only that, but the building's height without the needle also holds symbolism because at 1,368 feet it is the height of the original World Trade Center. Antony Wood, the council's executive director, said the needle is particularly important as a "structural and symbolic element." Further, he said, the decision to put the spire atop the building was part of a "quest" to build a permanent reminder of what the nation went through. "This was not an economic quest for bragging rights to the U.S.'s tallest," he said. "This was a quest to put something meaningful and symbolic on that site because of the horrible history of what happened on that site." He said the antennae on top of the Willis Tower help to make the committee's point about permanence, explaining that when the building went up there were no antennae, and that the original antennae have been replaced with taller ones. Wood also made another point that, though not a factor on the committee's decision, is significant: that the Willis Tower will continue to be an attraction for years just like the Empire State Building is decades after it, too, was eclipsed by taller buildings. "Are any fewer people going to come to Chicago or even travel and visit the Willis Tower because it no longer holds the title of the U.S. tallest?" he asked. "No," I don't think it does." The Height Committee comprises about two dozen industry professionals from all over the world and is widely recognized as the final arbiter of official building heights around the world. They conferred behind closed doors last week in Chicago, where the world's first skyscraper appeared in 1884. The new World Trade Center tower remains under construction and is expected to open next year. The designers originally had intended to enclose the mast's communications gear in decorative cladding made of fiberglass and steel. But the developer removed that exterior shell from the design, saying it would be impossible to properly maintain or repair. Without it, the question was whether the mast was now primarily just a broadcast antenna.

Dad saved my life

I was about 7 or 8 years old and my dad and I went fishing one day with his dad, my grandfather, J. W. "Red" Sublett. We were on Bridgeport Lake, up on Big Creek, and since the recent rains had been sizable, way more water than normal was being forced down our fishing hole into the main body of the lake. I really didn't notice much about the current. My dad warned me several times, but as was too often true, I wasn't paying very close attention.

We fished for a while, but the rushing water made the catching slim. I got bored pretty quickly. Boredom prompted a search for something to relieve the boredom, so I started constructing miniature forts and pillboxes for an imaginary battle I had planned. I fixed the location of one of the forts about 20 feet away from the water's edge. I built three enclosures for hiding my personal invisible army — the good guys. When I got that part of the construction completed, I started looking for a place for the bad guy's encampment.

I paused for a couple of minutes to check on Dad and Grandpa. They had caught a few crappies, but not enough to entice me to pick up my fishing pole again. Dad asked me if I was having fun and so I began to give him a detailed report on my battle plans. I returned to my project and began to look for a place to put the bad guys.

I don't know what in the world made me pick a place over near the edge of the creek. I guess it was the not-paying-any-attention part of me that did that. I began to haul some sticks and branches and leaves over to the selected spot. A couple of times my dad warned, "Now Mike, you be careful over there by the water. This current is fast and you could drown." I didn't pay very much attention to dad's words, after all I was an excellent swimmer; well at least I thought so.

Halfway through the construction I saw a branch floating my way in the water. For some reason I just couldn't live without that branch. So I crawled over to the edge of the creek and reached out as far as I could. I could quickly tell that it wasn't going to be quite far enough to reach the branch. I saw a place thick with grass and so I leaned out over the water and put my hand down to secure me. What I didn't think of was the grass was growing out over the water, in spots there was no ground under the grass. As I tried to plant my hand on some dirt, SPLASH.

In a second I was out of sight in fast moving muddy water. All I remember under the water is that I hadn't taken much of a breath and so I instinctively tried to suck in some air. That's when I began to choke. I tried to get to the surface, but the water was moving so fast that I couldn't. For an instant I thought I was going to die.

Then suddenly there was another SPLASH, but this one was huge. Something hit me hard, grabbed my arms so hard that it made me cry and then threw me through the air out on to the bank. Dad told me that I kept crying for awhile and that all I said was, "You hurt me. You hurt me."

Strange, huh? He saved my life and all I could say was, "You hurt me." I have thanked him a hundred times since that day on Big Creek. My dad saved my life. If he had missed me when he first jumped into the water I would have just become another drowning statistic. He told me later that he couldn't see where I was under the water, he just made his best guess of where he thought I might be and jumped. And when he grabbed me he wasn't trying to be soft and tender. He was trying to save me so he grabbed me hard; a little hurt wasn't a big deal to him. And when he threw me out it still left him under the water; he risked his life for me that day.

This is kind of how it is with God when we foolishly disregard His warnings and fall off into the flooding waters of darkness and sin. The misery and death of our situation registers so in our heart we cry out for help. But we are in such a mess that God can't save us softly and tenderly. So He hits us hard to get our attention and then He grabs us so hard that He bruises us to help bring us to our senses. Then with all His might, He throws us out of sin and on to the safe bank of His Kingdom. And then all too often we just want to complain about how hard He was on us instead of how splendid His rescue was.

Father God, forgive me for all of the griping I have done over the years when you were saving me and spanking me because you loved me. My earthly dad saved me one day and I thank you for putting him in my life. But, Lord, you saved me in the most important way. I can't ever put into words a "thank you" that is anything like what you deserve. Just know that in my heart it is a huge, spectacular thank you. I owe you forever and I will serve you forever. Amen.

CHURCH SPOTLIGHT

Let me be God's canvas

I love this time of year. I like to get up early, go outside and look at the morning sky, just after sunrise. It reminds me how awesome God is.

The sky is God's canvas. He rolls out the sky every morning and paints a majestic picture for us to enjoy. It's all in His hands, and He creates a work of beauty each day. It's really amazing to think about.

We should let our hearts become God's canvas, too — to let Him make us into who He wants us to be. When we put our lives into His hand, He does just that. We come to Him a mess, and He takes us and makes us into something beautiful. He makes us into something He can use.

We are works in progress, though. As the master artist, God is continually working on us, changing us and making us better. Sometimes, the changes are easy, and we gladly accept them. But sometimes we resist the changes He wants to make in us. God waits patiently until we are ready to yield our will to Him and allow Him to work on us again.

Sometimes, we get so far off track that God has to start over. It's like a potter, who, after starting work on a vessel, finds a major flaw in it and has to start over. His work is not flawed. It's the clay that has become hard or unyielding. The potter has to make radical changes to get the results he wants. But in the end, he will have a masterpiece.

I want to be a vessel that God can work on and use. I will never be the masterpiece God intends me to be unless I continue to let Him work on me and change me. At the end of this life, I want God to be able to look back over my life and see how He took me from a mess and made me into something beautiful He will be proud to display in His heavenly kingdom.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, Nov. 14, 2013:

This year your creativity surges; however, every once in a while there could be a lull. Your intuition comes through in all ventures, especially risky ones. If you are single, you could find it challenging to find a match who is on the same wavelength, but you will have fun dating. If you are attached, you seem to have a sixth sense about your sweetie. Still, know that you will not always be right. Listen to your sweetie and understand where he or she might be coming from. ARIES can match your energy. The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You see a situation differently from how others see it. What has been hazy could become crystal clear through others' actions. Express your concern in a way that it can be received. Opportunities might emerge from a real-estate matter. Tonight: Get into weekend mode. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ You could be more aware of what a friendship offers you as opposed to your idealistic dreams. Reality can be harsh at first. You will want to take your time integrating your feelings. Don't take action or make a decision until you have adjusted. Tonight: Get some R and R. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Aim for more of what you would want, and treat it as though others are not actively making requests of you. A boss or parent could reveal a new side of him- or herself that you need to acknowledge. Others might not be as clear as you would like. Tonight: Out and about. CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You are in a position to take action, but a question remains unresolved in your mind. Think about what you have all the facts at hand. You don't need to make an error. Tonight: Get extra work done. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You'll see a partner in a new light. You might feel as if a veil has been dropped, and you can see the real person now. As you digest all this newness, you might experience quite a few feelings. You actually do like what you see; you simply need to adjust. Tonight: Out on the town. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Deal with others directly, and understand that you could get several mixed messages. You will gain insight into a particular group of friends involved in a common interest. Opportunities abound. Follow the advice of a trusted friend. Tonight: Go for togetherness. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Others appear to be very strong-willed, no matter what your choices are. If you could change the direction of a situation, where would you go? You might be pleasantly surprised if you share your thoughts. Others will join in on your ideas. Tonight: Be with your best friend. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You could be experiencing a reversal with a child or loved one. What you are seeing is that your perception of what might be going on is very different from reality. Take it all in, but get busy in order to prevent any obsessive behavior from happening. Tonight: Get errands done first. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Listen to news with an open mind. Someone close to you might have a skeleton in his or her closet. You recently might have seen some signs of this well-kept secret. You will want to understand more of what is going on. Stay open. Tonight: Be spontaneous. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Note if your sixth sense is improving. If so, you might want to be more willing to follow your intuition. You will see excellent results, as you often pick up on what is happening around you on a subconscious level. Tonight: Make weekend plans. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Stopping you could be difficult, as you are on mission. You have a lot on your plate and a desire to complete as much as possible. A discussion might not mesh well with what you are feeling. Do little and observe a lot. Tonight: Hang out with friends and loved ones. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You see an item that you really want. You might have difficulty saying "no." As you look at your budget, you could question the value of making the purchase. Make sure that you really want this thing. Confusion surrounds your finances. Tonight: Your treat.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: With the holidays approaching, a reminder is in order. People: Don't forget those thank-you notes! I don't mean an email, but a REAL, honest-to-gosh thank-you note sent through the mail with postage.

My mother always told me that a gift is not truly yours until a proper thank-you has been sent. She said it "completed the transfer."

I was not allowed to play with the item or use it until that note was written. This is especially true for young people today, who seemingly were not taught this in school or by their parents. Very young children can draw a picture, and the parent can add a line to say it was drawn to express thanks. As the child matures, he/she can use his/her own words of gratitude.

I can't tell you how many parents comment on the absence of this display of etiquette. Good manners are never out of date. They are noticed and appreciated. From time to time I have seen you mention your booklet on "How to Write Letters."

If it includes a section on thank-you notes, I'm sure it would be helpful to a lot of people in the next two months. — ELINOR IN SURPRISE, ARIZ.

DEAR ELINOR: The booklet does. Not a day goes by that I don't receive letters and emails from readers who are upset enough to write because they haven't received a thank-you note for a birthday, graduation, wedding or holiday gift they sent. Some of the writers say they are so hurt and offended that they will stop giving gifts because they were left hanging, wondering if their gift was ever received. The problem may be that many parents no longer insist their children practice this courtesy, so the kids never learn how to do it.

Chief among the reasons that thank-you notes aren't sent is that many people don't know what to say. They think the note has to be a long, flowery composition when, in fact, short and to the point is more effective.

Keeping a notepad handy when opening gifts and immediately taking a moment to jot down the first thought that comes to mind is helpful. (Example: Do you like the color? The style? Is it something you had been looking for and couldn't find? Is it a special homemade treat? Mmmm.) WRITE IT DOWN.

While letter-writing or even emailing may seem like a chore, there are times when a handwritten note is the most appropriate means of communicating one's thoughts. My booklet contains sample letters for almost any occasion. It can be ordered by sending your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds), to Dear Abby — Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price. Inside you will find many samples that can be used as patterns from which to write your own.

For anyone who has ever wondered where to begin when writing a note of thanks, offering warm congratulations, condolences, composing a love letter or the opposite — announcing a broken engagement or a decision to divorce — "How to Write Letters" is a handy guide for people who put off writing because they don't know what to say.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Safety Ed Reed says goodbye to Texans

HOUSTON (AP) — Ed Reed tweeted his thanks to the Houston Texans amid reports that the nine-time Pro Bowl safety will be released in what has been a disaster of a season.

Reed missed the first two games after offseason hip surgery and was recently relegated to a backup role.

On Friday, he expressed his displeasure at not starting, and on Sunday, after Houston's seventh straight loss, he publicly criticized the team and said the Texans were outplayed and outcoached.

The Houston Chronicle and KRIV-TV both reported that Reed was expected to be released Tuesday. Reed tweeted: "Thanks to the Texans! And the City of Htown!"

Broncos-Chiefs game shifts to afternoon slot

NEW YORK (AP) — The AFC West showdown between the Broncos and Chiefs on Dec. 1 is moving to a late-afternoon time slot.

The NFL announced Tuesday that the game would start at 4:25 p.m. EST on CBS. The Patriots-Texans matchup will shift to 1 p.m. on the network.

Kansas City is 9-0 and Denver is 8-1 heading into their first of two meetings in three weeks Sunday night.

The game between New England and Houston shaped up as a matchup of reigning division champs in the preseason, but the Texans have struggled to a 2-7 record.

ROTYs: Miami Marlins' Jose Fernandez and T.B. Ray's Wil Myers

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Fernandez arrived early. Wil Myers made it big after a blockbuster trade.

Neither one needed much time to create a splash, and together they brought both Rookie of the Year awards back to Florida.

Fernandez stood out in a very deep National League class this season, and the precocious Miami Marlins pitcher received 26 of 30 first-place votes from a Baseball Writers' Association of America panel in results announced Monday.

Myers won the American League prize after the Tampa Bay slugger put up impressive offensive numbers in barely half a season. The right fielder was chosen first on 23 of 30 ballots, beating out Detroit shortstop Jose Iglesias and

Jose Fernandez

Rays teammate Chris Archer.

"Honestly, when I was called up that didn't even cross my mind. As the season went on I could see I would have a chance," Myers said on a conference call from his North Carolina home. "To be able to win is just a huge honor and I'm very excited about it."

The two announcements marked the beginning of awards week in baseball. NL and AL Manager of the Year will be revealed Tuesday, with the Cy Young winners Wednesday and MVPs on Thursday.

Myers became the third Tampa Bay player in six years to be selected Rookie of the Year, joining Jeremy Hellickson (2011) and Evan Longoria (2008). Seated next to each other, Myers and Archer smiled and shook hands when the winner was revealed on MLB Network.

Fernandez easily topped runner-up Yasiel Puig of the Los Angeles Dodgers as Cuban players ran 1-2 in the NL race. The only previous Rookie of the Year winners from Cuba came in the AL: Jose Canseco in 1986 and Tony Oliva in 1964.

Wil Myers

"It means a lot just to be compared to those guys," Fernandez said. "I'm not sure I was even born when those guys were playing. But for sure I heard the names before. ... All the kids in Cuba play baseball."

Puig received the other four first-place votes and amassed 95 points to 142 for Fernandez, who made the All-Star team at age 20. He went 12-6 with a 2.19 ERA and 187 strikeouts for a last-place club that finished 62-100.
