Most wanted fugitive captured in Amarillo

AUSTIN – Rojelio “Roger” Reyes, 32, a Texas 10 Most Wanted Fugitive, is now in custody after being arrested on Wednesday in Amarillo. Reyes is a known Tango Blast gang member with a violent criminal past, and he was wanted for parole violation.

Rojelio Reyes

Responding to a Crime Stoppers tip, Texas Department of Public Safety Criminal Investigations Division agents and the Randall County Sheriff’s Office located Reyes at a residence in Amarillo. He was arrested and taken into custody without incident. This capture was the result of a tip, and a reward up to $10,000 will be paid.

Reyes’ apprehension marks the first Texas 10 Most Wanted Fugitive arrest in 2014. In 2013, DPS and other agencies arrested an all-time record of 32 Texas 10 Most Wanted Fugitives and Sex Offenders. Texas Crime Stoppers, which is funded by the Governor’s Criminal Justice Division, offers cash rewards to any person who provides information that leads to the arrest of one of the Texas 10 Most Wanted fugitives or sex offenders.

DPS investigators work with local law enforcement agencies to select fugitives for the Texas 10 Most Wanted Fugitive and Sex Offender lists. You can find the current lists – with photos – on the DPS website at <http://www.dps.texas.gov/texas10mostwanted/>.

Do not attempt to apprehend these fugitives; they are considered armed and dangerous.

The ladies of the Gray County livestock show and auction

SUBMITTED

Listed are the senior ladies of the Gray County Livestock Show and Auction:

Emily Terry

Emily Terry is the daughter of Dana, and the late Bebo Terry.

Emily is a senior captain of the PHS tennis team, vice president of Pampa FFA, student body treasurer, president of ASTRA and a member of National Honor Society.

Emily enjoys FFA leadership development events and livestock judging. She has shown pigs since the third grade and added steers to the mix in fifth grade. Emily also enjoys playing tennis and playing the fiddle.

Emily is going to attend Texas A&M in the Fall of 2014 and study animal science, pursuing a doctorate of veterinary medicine.

Emily Lickliger

Emily is the 17-year-old daughter of Allen and Jennifer Lickliger. She is a senior at Pampa High School. She is a four-year member of FFA and was a 4-H member starting in the third grade. Emily has shown pigs since she was three years old. She has exhibited at all the major shows in Texas and also has shown at the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colo., and at the World Pork Expo in Des Moines, Iowa. She has exhibited the Champion Barrow at the Gray County Livestock Show the past two years.

Above, Daniel Mark Ambriz, owner of Vape Avenue, has been open for the last four-to-five months and is already looking to expand his business to Amarillo. It is located at 2133 N. Hobart. Below, Ambriz assembles an electronic cigarette as a demonstration.

By JOHN LEE
 jlee@thepampanews.com

Located on Hobart street is a shop that offers something most other stores in Pampa don’t. Vape Avenue, an electronic cigarette shop, offers customers over 100 different flavors of electronic cigarette fluids for their customers to use.

“We have been open going on four-to-five months. We started in September. (We carry) electronic cigarettes,” Vape Avenue owner Daniel Mark Ambriz said. “We carry e-fluid (or e-juice) and e-cig supplies. We also offer tattoos and piercing.”

Ambriz said that tattoos and piercings are his secondary services and that he is primarily a vape-shop. “Vape” is the word used to describe the action of “smoking” an electronic cigarette because instead of smoke, it is vapor that is dispersed from the electronic cigarette apparatus.

“I brought the idea from Oklahoma City,” Ambriz said. “My family all smoked and when we went there to visit they were all vaping. We bought some when we got back here and liked the idea.

The way the electronic cigarettes work is there is a battery and an atomizer. The battery charges the heating coil in the atomizer which evaporates the liquid and makes the vapor, which the user inhales for the nicotine.

“We can go from 0-nicotine to 24 milligrams of nicotine,” Ambriz said. “That is the potency of the nicotine, let’s say if you have a Marlboro Light, a 12-nicotine would be in a Marlboro Light.

A concern of non-e-cigarette users is the appeal of the candy flavoring towards young users. But Ambriz emphasizes that, as with his tattoos and piercings, he will not sell them to those under 18-years-old.

E-cigarettes are still new enough that where they are permitted to be used is still in question. Ambriz says he is discreet about his use so he has not been approached to stop smoking it, but he acknowledges that that is not an umbrella policy, some establishments may not permit it.

Ambriz has also seen his customers use electronic cigarettes as a means to quit smoking, some have even weened themselves off both.

Ambriz and some of his customers prefer electronic cigarettes because they can also be a cheaper alternative to smoking. Some of the electronic cigarettes cost as

Ex-rodeo clown Dobbs, 72, dies in West Texas

COAHOMA, Texas (AP) — Quail Dobbs, who spent 35 years as a rodeo clown before becoming a judge in West Texas, has died.

Dobbs died Wednesday at his home in Coahoma (kuh-HOH'-muh). Judy Dobbs said Friday that her husband had Parkinson's disease and other health issues. He was 72.

Dobbs retired as a rodeo clown at the end of 1998. The following year he took office as a justice of the peace in Howard County.

Dobbs, whose gags included a pretend hat-cleaning operation, was inducted into the Colorado-based ProRodeo Hall of Fame in 2002. Dobbs was also a member of the Texas Cowboy Hall of Fame and the Texas Rodeo Cowboy Hall of Fame.

RSP Permian raises $390 million from IPO

NEW YORK (AP) — Independent oil and natural gas company RSP Permian has raised $390 million from an initial public offering of its common stock.

The offering of 20 million shares was priced at $19.50 per share.

RSP Permian Inc. is selling about 9.2 million shares, while selling stockholders are selling approximately 10.8 million shares.

The selling stockholders are giving the underwriters a 30-day option to buy up to an additional 3 million shares to cover any excess demand.

Dallas-based RSP Permian plans to use about $166 million in net proceeds to fully repay its term loan; to make cash payments to some existing investors; to pay bonuses to certain employees; to lower outstanding borrowings under a revolving credit facility and to fund part of its capital expenditure plan.

The company won't receive any proceeds from shares sold by the selling stockholders.

The stock is expected to start trading on the New York Stock Exchange on Friday under the "RSPP" ticker symbol.

The offering is expected to close on Thursday.

Harlem Ambassadors basketball game Jan. 25

BY LINDSEY TOMASCHIK
LKTomaschik@thepampanews.com

The Harlem Ambassadors co-ed basketball team will be in Pampa on Saturday, Jan. 25 to take on the Pampa Tipsters, a team composed of local leaders and citizens.

they include a showcase of elaborate dunks and alley-oops with a comedic aspect. The strict rules of the game are loosened to incorporate other fun quirks as well.

Ticket proceeds will go toward funding the Pampa Crime Stoppers program, which does not receive outside funding of any kind and is able to stay up and running thanks to private contributions and fundraising throughout the year. Pampa Crime Stoppers is a strong tool for the town and Gray County in that it provides aid to solve crimes quickly.

Crime Stoppers Coordinator and Crime Prevention Officer Brian Massey is hopeful that the event will be a success. Tickets are $7 if purchased before the night of the game and $9 at the door. Children four and under are free. To purchase your tickets, go to the Pampa Police Department lobby, www.brownpaper-tickets.com, or scan the QR code on any Harlem Ambassadors poster you see. All are welcome to see the Harlem Ambassadors take on the Pampa Tipsters at 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25 in the McNeely Field House.

Bouncin' Around Different plants from my past

As I looked at the sad, wilted poinsettia plants in our church this morning, I thought about what a difference location makes. As I've often mentioned here, I grew up in southern California. We had poinsettias in our yard which grew up higher than the house.

JUDITH SMITH

I have a picture of my mother standing by the garage at the rear of our duplex, and the poinsettias were about 14 feet high. Every year late in the summer my grandmother would tell me or my brother, "Go get the shears and cut those darn (a little nicer word than she used) weeds down!" As we cut the plants down, a milky substance oozed from the stalks and got all over us. Of course, they grew back just as high the next year and we would repeat the whole process. I never saw potted poinsettias until I was an adult living in Illinois. We were in a store early in December, and Gram saw the plants and how much they were charging for them and her comment was something like, "Who would pay good money for a weed in a pot?" Another plant that grows in profusion in southern California is the humble geranium. The entire front yard of one of the houses that we rented was planted in geraniums.

We had to chop them off when they grew up over the walk at the front of the house. They really were pretty plants and I loved (and still do love) the way they smelled. The only problem was that they encouraged snails. Gram used to go out every morning and stomp on the snails—we could hear the crunching inside the house and knew what she was doing. That action fed a lifelong promise that I would never eat escargot! One of the more exotic plants that grew in our yard was the Passion Flower (passiflora incarnata) a colorful and intricate tropical flower. Each part of the flower holds symbolic meaning in recognition of the story of Christ's crucifixion. We usually had one or more fruit trees, either apricot or peach.

There was an abundance of English walnut trees, and it usually fell to me to pick up the nuts after they fell, and crack and shell them. There were also avocado trees, and when I have to pay around $1.50 now for a single avocado in the store, I really do miss those trees! They are excellent shade trees, and their fruit (yes, avocado is considered a fruit) is something I can eat every day.

Now that we are living in Texas, I am in awe of the rosebushes here, and how prolifically they bloom. They seem to be harder than the bushes in Illinois and Indiana, and I can't wait to plant a good number of roses here at our new house.

I was happy to find that tulips, jonquils, daffodils, and hyacinths grow easily here. Those are flowers that I never knew existed when I lived on the left coast. With the changeable Panhandle weather, some of the bulbs I planted last fall are trying to come up already. I'm going to have a talk with them tomorrow before I cover them with some leaves.

Meanwhile, I may rescue one of the droopy poinsettia plants from church, and if I can keep it away from Boris, our cat, I'll see if I can get "that darn weed" to keep growing!

Judi Smith resides in Pampa and can be reached at jsmith46@aol.com.

The Heroes of 'Lone Survivor'

A few years back, during the Media Research Center's annual gala, I was honored to pay tribute to the family of a real American hero, Michael Murphy, the Navy SEAL posthumously awarded the first Congressional Medal of Honor for service in Afghanistan, and the first since the Vietnam War. Few in the room knew the story because only Fox and a handful of other outlets told it.

BRENT BOZELL

When the medal was announced in 2007, William Kristol noted on "Fox News Sunday" that the news received a tiny fraction of the coverage given to the Nobel Peace Prize. The Nobel that year was awarded to Al Gore and the U.N. "climate change" alarmists. That award received endless accolades from the sycophantic press. Kristol joked about the fans oozing over "what sacrifices he made" to make a scary documentary (while making fortunes of money off the issue as well).

Murphy made the ultimate sacrifice — his life — and yet, as Kristol noted about the Long Island native, not even the "all the news that's fit to print" people covered the story. "Michael Murphy gets the Congressional Medal of Honor, and The New York Times, our leading newspaper and the local newspaper in this case, can't notice it. There's something sick about our culture when we don't acknowledge genuine heroes."

The Times quietly addressed this offense with a single story — on page B-1, the front page of the Metro section — eight days later, on the morning the Murphy family went to the White House to accept the honor from President George W. Bush. What had Murphy done? In a fierce firefight with the Taliban, vastly outnumbered, Murphy stood up in the line of fire to make a satellite call for help to save his men, knowing he would surely be killed by exposing himself this way. His mother said, "It didn't shock me what he did, it was just Mike. That was pure Mike."

Now — finally! — this story has been taken into theaters, with the movie "Lone Survivor," based on the memoir by Marcus Luttrell, the only SEAL to survive that day. The result: it "red-white-and-blew away the box office," reported TheWrap.com, scoring one of the biggest opening weekends ever in January, with $37.8 million, second only to a 2008 monster movie called "Cloverfield." It received a rare "A+ rating" from audiences surveyed by CinemaScore, meaning the word of mouth will push it to greater success, with an expected box office gross larger than $100 million.

TheWrap.com quoted Afghanistan veteran Chris Marvin: "If civilians don't accept their civic obligation to know some history from our nation's longest conflict, then why did we send our young men and women into harm's way in the first place?"

Actor Mark Wahlberg, who plays Luttrell in the film, told CNN that people need to see this film: "They need to know about it, and it's my job to get as many people into the theaters to see it as possible. I've never felt more strongly about something that I've been a part of. I've never been more proud to be a part of a project like this."

CNN anchor Jake Tapper — himself the author of a book on American valor in Afghanistan — walked into a rhetorical buzzsaw by telling Luttrell,

"One of the emotions I felt while watching the film is, first of all, just the hopelessness of the situation," and "I don't want any more senseless American death, and at the same time, I know that there are dead people there, and good people who need help."

Luttrell responded abruptly, reflecting the courage that combat brings: "Well, I don't know what part of the film you were watching, but hopelessness really never came into it. Where did you see that? We never felt like we were hopelessly lost or anything like that. We never gave up. We never felt like we were losing unless we were actually dead. That never came across in the battle and while we were fighting on the mountain, and it was just us against them."

Soldiers accept dangerous missions without questioning the wisdom of their commanders. The public can question their commanders, but no one should question the resolve of these warriors. That sacrifice they make for us — especially the ultimate sacrifice — deserves more national gratitude, and I'm sure that families like the Murphys are going to have their hearts warmed to see this story finally spread from sea to shining sea, embraced by a grateful nation.

Letter to the Editor Pampa needs boom box law enforcement

It is a shame that the Pampa Police Department cannot enforce the boom box law of the state and this city. I have complained numerous times to the chief of police, assistant city manager and even to my city councilmen. I was told that PPD would do something around the high school to help with the speeding and noise problem. That lasted about one day for 30 min. I have had no luck getting anything done as far as talking to the city management. I was told yesterday, by my city councilman, that there was nothing they could do. It was the parents' fault. I have to laugh. I know parenting can be difficult sometimes but when complaints are made from multiple people and the police, city and councilmen do nothing to eliminate the problem, maybe its time we as taxpayers employ someone that will.

The inevitable Bitcoin revolution

The big online retailer Overstock.com now accepts payment in Bitcoin. That's good news for lovers of liberty because Bitcoins give us an alternative to government-controlled money. Bitcoins are a currency created by anonymous, private tech nerds, not by government.

JOHN STOSSEL

Governments don't like competition, and our government sometimes bans competing currencies. But as more of us use Bitcoins, and more businesses accept payment in Bitcoin, it becomes harder for government to dismiss the currency as illegitimate, or ban it.

There are two advantages to Bitcoin. First, it's harder to trace transactions back to people who make trades. I don't particularly care about that, because at the moment, I don't hide anything from my government. But I do fear government destroying the value of my dollars by printing more of them, the way governments in Germany before World War II and in Zimbabwe in recent decades did, forcing people to make trades using wheelbarrows of nearly worthless bills. Given how my government spends money, and the way the Fed enables this by buying trillions in government bonds, I fear my dollars may someday be worth pennies. So I bought Bitcoins.

Bitcoins are digitally created — or "mined" — at a slow, fairly predictable rate. An incomprehensible (incomprehensible to me, anyway) computer algorithm limits their number.

"Bitcoins are not controlled by anybody," explained Mercatus Center senior research fellow Jerry Brito on my TV show. "It's a new Internet protocol, like email or the Web ... a digital, decentralized currency that allows you to exchange money with anybody in the world fast and cheaply without the use of a third party like PayPal or Visa or MasterCard."

I bought Bitcoins even though I don't understand how Bitcoin mining works. I also worry that someone will hack into my Bitcoin account and steal my money, or maybe hack into the whole system and devalue Bitcoins by creating millions of new ones. But risky as this new currency may be, I still trust it more than I trust politicians. When my fellow baby boomers demand our promised Medicare payments and discover that government promised trillions more in benefits than it can ever pay for, I assume politicians will print dollars until they are nearly worthless.

So, I put my savings into Bitcoins when they sold for $140 each. I was late to buy — smarter people bought for much less. But today each Bitcoin is worth more than $800. So, yippee for me! I'm so glad I put all my savings into Bitcoins.

OK, I didn't really. It's just part of my savings — but it's good to hedge against political venality!

The biggest risk to private currencies may be that governments will become jealous of how well these upstart forms of money work. If people all over the world decide to trade in digital currencies, it will become more obvious than ever that government isn't what makes economic activity happen.

It will also be harder to trace — and tax — people's economic activity. Government doesn't like to get sidelined. To its credit, the German government announced that it recognizes Bitcoin as a legal alternate currency.

The U.S. government flexed its muscles by warning that it has the right to regulate Bitcoin transactions. The FBI already shut down a website called Silk Road that accepted Bitcoins as pay for services both legal and illegal (like drugs). Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., called Bitcoin "money laundering" and demanded a crackdown. That's not surprising, since Schumer wants to ban lots of useful things, like energy drinks, high-frequency stock trading, free-market wages and 3-D printers that can make guns.

So I'm glad Overstock.com and other businesses are out there, reminding people that law-abiding citizens use Bitcoins to buy legal things. Last month, I used them to buy Christmas gifts.

But Bitcoin's legitimacy shouldn't depend on whether people do things with it that politicians consider wholesome. When government restricts drugs, online gambling and other popular activities, it just makes anonymous, hard-to-trace currencies more popular.

John Stossel is host of "Stossel" on the Fox Business Network. He's the author of "No They Can't: Why Government Fails, but Individuals Succeed."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Sunday horoscope

Note: Bigar's Stars is based on the degree of your sun at birth. The sign name is simply a label astrologers put on a set of degrees for convenience. For best results, readers should refer to the dates following each sign.

A baby born today has a Sun in Capricorn if born before 7:56 p.m. (PST). Afterward, the Sun will be in Aquarius. The Moon is in Virgo all day.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Jan. 19, 2014:

This year you often go back and forth from being serious to whimsical. People act as if they don't know which facet of your personality they will encounter. Try to explain more of what you are thinking about. A partner and/or friends would appreciate the insight. If you are single, you will need a full year to determine whether the person you have met is the right one for you. If you are attached, the two of you have a more dynamic interaction than you have had in a while. Enjoy the excitement! AQUARIUS has interesting ideas about money and how to use it.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ You could have an errand or two to complete before getting together with others for brunch. Note that you will have a tendency to go overboard, so a little self-discipline will go far. You might feel slightly off-kilter part of the afternoon. Tonight: Thoughts surround a close friend.

This Week: You can't control anyone but yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ Your creativity will come up with a solution to an issue that has been caused by sudden change. You might be gaining new insight about a loved one. Let this person be who he or she is. Tonight: Add more spice to your life.

This Week: You enter the week in a playful mood, and you end it on a similar note.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★ If you feel the need to stay close to home, do. Others might express their concern at your unusually low profile. You simply might need a break from the hectic pace. Indulge yourself. You will get a little time off before the pace picks back up. Tonight: Do not push.

This Week: Tuesday and Wednesday you will feel appreciated, despite the uproar.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You will want to become more aware of a special person in your life. You might assume that you already know this person, but he or she seems to be changing right in front of you. You could be quite surprised by what you see. Tonight: Chat over dinner.

This Week: Speak your mind, but don't expect responses until Thursday.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ Choose relaxing plans, as you are entering a very busy few weeks. You will want to have the energy to be receptive to others. You already might be getting a sense of what is about to happen. Tonight: Accept a dinner invitation.

This Week: Gather information, and then share what you think.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Share more of what is happening with someone you care about. This person might not be sure of his or her role in this situation, and you might not know, either. A discussion will help both of you figure out what to do. Tonight: Start thinking about tomorrow.

This Week: You are on a roll Monday; use this day to the max.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You are likely to become even more serious than you have been as of late. A friend or new associate will be a breath of fresh air, as his or her presence will give you a break from your tasks. Use the morning to get some R and R. Tonight: Add mischief into the mix.

Tonight: By midweek, you finally will get the audience you deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★★ You have a lot on your mind, and you'll be determined to discuss what you are considering with several friends. They might not be as comfortable with your ideas as you are, so realize that their feedback could reflect that discomfort. Tonight: Happy to be home.

This Week: Use Monday and Thursday for important matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ Don't allow a parent or older friend to push you too hard to join him or her today. You might have some very special plans with a loved one. Refuse to take away from this scheduled time together. A child could surprise you. Tonight: Let the good times roll.

This Week: Take your responsibilities seriously; success will follow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Reach out to someone whom you care about but often don't visit. Arrange to Skype with each other, or make plans to visit soon. Even established friendships need nurturing. Be smart. Make time for this person. Tonight: Make it your treat.

This Week: Read between the lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★★ Enjoy going to brunch with a loved one. You might be startled by what someone around you does. Later, you will laugh about the incident. Communication needs to be spontaneous, no matter who you are speaking with. Tonight: You have a lot of energy.

This Week: Intensity marks your interactions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Call a friend you have not spoken with in some time. Your sense of humor will take the edge off if he or she makes a startling statement or judgment. You are more creative than you might believe. Listen to news that comes forward. Tonight: Let others wonder.

This Week: Others are more receptive than you think.

AAA Texas: Statewide average remains the same as last week

SUBMITTED

The current statewide average for a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline is $3.12, according to the AAA Texas Weekend Gas Watch. That price is the same as one week ago and five cents less than one year ago. The statewide average in Texas is 18 cents less than the national average of $3.30. Of the major metropolitan areas in the state, the survey finds drivers in Fort Worth are paying the most at $3.19, and drivers in Amarillo are paying the least at $2.98.

Prices in some areas have increased due to extremely cold weather causing refinery issues, yet sub-zero temperatures have also decreased demand for gasoline, which could put some downward pressure on prices. Prices in the majority of states and Washington, D.C. are less expensive than one week ago; however these declines have been minimal. In Texas, fuel pump prices remain among the top ten least expensive in the nation.

“Texans are paying about $44 to fill up the typical 14-gallon size fuel tank,” said AAA Texas/New Mexico Representative Doug Shupe. “We’re still in the middle of winter and with the potential for more cold weather in the coming weeks, we remind drivers to keep up with their winter vehicle maintenance routine.”

Winter Car Care Checklist

Battery and charging system – Have the battery and charging system tested by a trained technician. A fully charged battery in good condition is required to start an engine in cold weather.

Battery Cables and Terminals – Make sure the battery terminals and cable ends are free from corrosion and the connections are tight.

Drive belts – Inspect the underside of accessory drive belts for cracks or fraying.

Engine hoses – Inspect cooling system hoses for leaks, cracks or loose clamps. Also, squeeze the hoses and replace any that are brittle or excessively spongy feeling.

Tire type and tread – All-season tires work well in light-to-moderate snow conditions provided they have adequate tread depth. Replace any tire that has less than 3/32-inches of tread. Uneven tire wear can indicate alignment, wheel balance or suspension problems that must be addressed to prevent further tire damage.

Tire pressure – Check tire inflation pressure on all four tires and the spare more frequently in fall and winter. As the average temperature drops, so will tire pressures – typically by one PSI for every 10 degrees Fahrenheit. The proper tire pressure levels can be found in the owner’s manual or on a sticker typically located on the driver’s side door jamb.

Coolant levels – Check the coolant level in the overflow tank when the engine is cold. If the level is low, add a 50/50 solution of coolant and water to maintain the necessary antifreeze capability. Test the antifreeze protection level annually with an inexpensive tester available at any auto parts store.

Lights – Check the operation of all headlights, taillights, brake lights, turn signals, emergency flashers and back-up lights. Replace any burnt out bulbs.

Wiper blades – The blades should completely clear the glass with each swipe. Replace any blades that leaves streaks or misses spots.

AAA Texas warns ‘selfies’ while driving are dangerous distractions

SUBMITTED

There’s a dangerous distracted driving behavior that’s becoming more prevalent on the roads. People are striking a pose while driving. The activity is trending as thousands of young drivers share photos and videos of themselves in the act of driving.

On social media platforms such as Twitter and Instagram there are millions of driving photos and videos, but looking closely at hashtags such as #drivingselfie, #drivingfast, #drivingtowork, and #drivingintherain reveal particularly dangerous distracted driving behaviors, warns AAA Texas. In some photos the speedometer is plainly visible and shows the vehicle is moving.

With many new mobile devices and tablet computers in the hands of people, especially young drivers, after the holiday season, AAA Texas urges people not to take selfies while behind the wheel.

“The only thing you should be doing while driving is focusing on the road ahead. Taking pictures or video takes your focus off the road,” said AAA Texas/New Mexico Representative Doug Shupe. “Hundreds of thousands of people are injured and killed each year as a result of distracted driving and these injuries and deaths are entirely preventable. Put the camera down and wait until you arrive at a safe destinuation. Don’t let a driving selfie or video be the last photo you ever take.”

Approximately 660,000 drivers are using cell phones or manipulating electronic devices while driving during daylight hours, according to the latest National Occupant Protection Use Survey (NOPUS) for the year 2011. Further, in 2011, of those people killed in distraction-affected crashes, 385 died in crashes in which at least one of the drivers was using a cell phone (12% of fatalities in distraction-affected crashes) at the time of the crash.

Twitter allows a maximum of six seconds of video while Instagram allows a maximum of 15 seconds. Traveling at a speed of 60 miles per hour, a driver taking a photo for approximately two seconds takes their eyes off of the road for 176 feet which is the length of nearly two basketball courts, over half a soccer field, or nearly half a football field. A driver taking a six second video is not paying full attention to driving for a total of 528 feet which is equivalent to more than five and a half basketball court lengths, nearly two soccer fields, and one and a half football fields. Finally, a driver taking a video that’s 15 seconds long is not paying full attention to the road for a total of 1,320 feet which equals the length of 14 basketball courts, almost four and a half soccer fields, or nearly four football fields.

Feed grains marketing workshop to be offered Feb. 3-4 in Amarillo

SUBMITTED BY TEXAS A&M AGRILIFE EXTENSION

AMARILLO — Agriculture producers preparing for tough markets in 2014 should plan to attend Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service's "Developing This Year's Marketing Plan for Feed Grains" workshop Feb. 3-4 in Amarillo, according to an AgriLife Extension economist.

A record corn crop along with adequate-to-surplus supplies of all crops in the U.S. and world markets, stagnant ethanol demand and the lowest cattle inventory in 60 years are just some of the factors that could make marketing the 2014 feed grains crop for a profit difficult, said Dr. Steve Amosson, AgriLife Extension economist in Amarillo.

"Feed grains producers are going to have to have a sharp pencil to get the most production for the least amount of cost and then do a good job of marketing their crop in order to have a successful year," he said.

The feed grains workshop, co-sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Risk Management Agency, will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day at the Texas A&M AgriLife Research and Extension Center, 6500 W. Amarillo Blvd.

The registration fee is $125, which covers the cost associated with instruction, breaks, meals and materials, Amosson said.

To register and pay for this course, go to: <http://> agriliferegister.tamu.edu. While this is the preferred method of registration and payment, Amosson said payments will be accepted at the door.

However, all registrations must be completed by Jan. 31, either online or by contacting Leon Guerrero at 806-677-5626 or lguerrero@ag.tamu.edu.

"In this workshop, we will dissect the feed grains market and analyze each of its components, including cost of production, break-evens, crop insurance decisions, seasonal price patterns, anticipated weather, in addition to covering the supply, demand and technical factors that will be influencing the feed grains market for the upcoming year," Amosson said.

"Our objective is simple — to arm participants with the knowledge to make informed marketing decisions," he said.

"The ultimate goal of this workshop is for the producer to be able to develop a successful marketing plan for the 2014 crop."

Amosson and Dr. Mark Welch, AgriLife Extension grain marketing specialist in College Station, will be the primary instructors for the course.

Guest speakers for the feed grains workshop will include a panel of area lenders, brokers and grain merchandisers who will address key issues facing local producers in the upcoming marketing year.

In addition, the National Weather Service in Amarillo will provide the weather forecast for the upcoming growing season.

CLARENDON COLLEGE'S NEW LVN STUDENT

Trinette Jones, 29-year-old stay at home mother of two girls ages seven and nine and wife of 11 years decided to go to school because both of her kids are in school now and she wants to provide extra income for her family. "I've always enjoyed caring for people and my children, so I wanted a career that would let me help others." Jones is excited about learning IVs & calculating medications because she is a numbers person. She chose the Clarendon College program over others because the Spring Semester program will allow her to graduate in December, rather than waiting until August to even start classes in Borger or Amarillo. Jones plans on working in a hospital following graduation. Kory Dunn, LVN Director said that with a brand new group of 32 students starting, it's exciting to see new faces, and as a nurse and an instructor, she is also excited to help them fulfill their dreams.

SOCCER VS. LUBBOCK HIGH

Bennet Cambern battles for the ball. The Lady Harvesters' soccer team fell in a tough 3-0 loss on Tuesday night to Lubbock High. Lubbock High scored on a corner kick late in a first half largely dominated by the Lady Harvesters. In a windy second half the Lady Harvesters played defense most of the time. Lady Harvesters' head coach Hugo Aguilon said, "Freshman Nique Johnson had a great defensive game in her back of the field and Junior Olga Garcia did great controlling the middle with Junior Karoley Villareal... Overall we played much better and we keep improving every game we play. Our passes and movement to space has gotten much better since the first day of practice in December." The Lady Harvesters play four more games in Wichita Falls this weekend and District play starts Monday against Canyon at home.

Thunder rally for 104-92 win over Rockets

HOUSTON (AP)—Oklahoma City coach Scott Brooks showed his team each of the 12 3-pointers Houston made in its 73-point first half Thursday night.

The halftime video session worked. The Rockets didn't make another 3, and were held to a franchise-low in points in the second half of the Thunder's 104-92 win.

Kevin Durant scored 36 points and Reggie Jackson added 23 to lift Oklahoma City to the victory.

James Harden and Terrence Jones scored 16 points apiece for Houston, which had just 19 second-half points after its season-best performance in the first half — setting an NBA record for the largest scoring differential between two halves.

Houston's 19-point second half is tied for the second-fewest points in a second half in NBA history.

"I've never seen anything like that," Brooks said. "That's inspiring."

Houston coach Kevin McHale was troubled by his team's inability to build on its great first half.

"We had a terrible time shooting the ball, laying it in, making simple plays," McHale said. "We couldn't sustain anything offensively in the second half. Give them credit. They got out and got after us."

The Thunder used a big third quarter to erase a 12-point deficit and tie the score entering the fourth. The teams stayed within a basket after that until Jackson scored five points in a 7-0 run which gave the Thunder a 97-89 lead with about 4 minutes left.

Oklahoma City stretched its advantage to 103-92 on a fast-break dunk by Jackson with 1:18 to go.

Durant shook his head when asked about the vast difference in Oklahoma City's defense after halftime. Along with shutting down Houston's 3-point shooting, the Thunder also held Harden scoreless after the break.

"We were able to come down and stifle them a little bit and get them out of their rhythm," Durant said. "They're a great offensive team. They score the ball so quickly. I think we did a great job of just putting pressure on them."

From the Press Box

■ Regardless of who wins, Super Bowl Sunday will showcase a match-up of polar opposites. The case for Denver and Seattle.

We have finally reached it. Championship Sunday. As my good friend Zac Green alluded to this week in his column, this Sunday's final four teams are exactly who most of the country thought would be competing for a chance to compete in the Big Game. But even more fascinating will be the match-up that comes to fruition in New Jersey on Feb. 2. Here is why:

AFC Championship: New England Patriots at Denver Broncos

The early match-up will be one not unfamiliar to fans of football. New England quarterback Tom Brady versus Denver quarterback Peyton Manning. They each try to down-play the magnitude of their own legacies clashing head-to-head for a chance to expand on their hall-of-fame careers by winning the coveted Lombardi Trophy. But it is no secret that there is a friendly rivalry between these two star quarterbacks of the 2000s, and probably the greatest of the modern-era quarterbacks.

Both are drop-back and throw passers. Both are great at dissecting a defense and changing plays in pre-snap reads. And neither one is so selfish that they won't hand-off to their running back instead of throwing the ball. Look at what Patriots running back LaGarrette Blount did last week against Indianapolis, four touchdowns, and Brady is still playing. Yes, we showcase these quarterbacks, but it may not be the signal-callers who make the difference in the game.

I do believe the Broncos will opt to throw on this banged up Patriots defense, but Tom Brady has even admitted that the Patriots are better built to run, with the passing game to compliment. Both defenses are banged up and this could be a high-scoring affair. Brady has beaten Manning 10 of the 14 times their teams have met. So it is pretty simple to say, "Brady will win again."

Not so fast. Manning has had the No. 1 seed in the conference game only twice in his career. 2006 when the Colts beat the Patriots and Manning won his first Super Bowl, and again in 2009 when they beat the Jets, but fell in the Super Bowl to the New Orleans Saints.

Yes, the Patriots did win last week, but that still puts their record at 4-4 since that unbelievable 2007 season where they lost one game, the one that mattered.

When the Broncos and Patriots squared off earlier this season, the weather was bad in Foxboro and the Patriots had many more of their starters, such as the Gronk.

Now, it is in Denver, with the weather forecast to be sunny with a high of 55. The Broncos are missing star pass-rusher Von Miller, but they have made it work without him off and on all season.

I predict a Broncos win, with a tight game, 38-35.

So that's the AFC game out of the way, with the battle of the two drop-back and throw quarterbacks. Now let's look at the NFC championship game.

NFC Championship: San Francisco 49ers at Seattle Seahawks

I will let my journalistic integrity slip long enough to say I do not like mobile quarterbacks. They are fun to watch and add a twist to the game, but they get hurt way too much. Or if they don't they aren't big enough to take a lot of hits. (See Robert Griffin III) But with that being said, it is the future of the game of football whether I like it or not. I really like Seahawks quarterback Russell Wilson. He seems down to Earth and is not a "me" quarterback. He doesn't need to throw for 4,000 yards in a season, and doesn't turn the ball over often.

Something about the way 49ers quarterback Colin Kaepernick carries himself bothers me. He seems kind of cocky and doesn't accept criticism well. But there is no denying his talent. The guy is 6'4", 230 pounds and can get in and out of cuts like a running back. He has a pretty strong arm, and since wide receiver Michael Crabtree has returned, has become a more efficient quarterback. That's where I stand on those quarterbacks.

Now to the teams' match-up. The 49ers average 25.4 points a game to the Seahawks 26.1. The 49ers allow 17 points per game to the Seahawks 14.4. Each team likes to run the ball, San Francisco 137.6, Seattle 136.8. But each team likes to stop the run, San Francisco 95.1, Seattle 101.6.

Both teams have mobile quarterbacks, and both teams play outstanding defense.

The teams involved in this budding rivalry, and what could turn into the next Manning versus Brady, have each been caught saying that they don't like the other because of how similar they are to one another. This game will be, like WWE's Good Ol' J.R. used to say, "A good old-fashioned slobber-knocker!"

I think it's a close one with San Francisco pulling it out 21-17.

Regardless of who wins, it will be a top-ranked defense versus a very potent offense in the Big Game. It will be a drop-back quarterback versus a mobile read-option quarterback in a clash of old-school versus new-school.

In closing, it is time to start thinking about your Super Bowls traditions. What do you like to make? Where do you always go? Is your team playing for a shot in it? Do you watch it for the commercials, and which over the past have been your favorites? Let me know.

MLB approves expanded replay starting this season

PARADISE VALLEY, Ariz. (AP) — Ever since the game was invented, before television or even radio existed, baseball counted on the eyes and ears of umpires on the field. Starting this season, many key decisions will be made in a studio far away.

Major League Baseball vaulted into the 21st century of technology on Thursday, approving a huge expansion of instant replay in hopes of eliminating blown calls that riled up players, managers and fans.

"I think it's great," San Francisco Giants manager Bruce Bochy said. "It's about getting it right."

Acknowledging the human element had been overtaken in an era when everyone except the umpires could see several views over and over in slow-motion, owners and players and umpires OKed the new system.

Now each manager will be allowed to challenge at least one call per game. If he's right, he gets another challenge. After the seventh inning, a crew chief can request a review on his own if the manager has used his challenges.

HIS DREAM LIVES ON

Through his pioneering efforts in the civil rights movement, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. inspired millions with his dream of racial equality. As we celebrate Dr. King's birthday, we reflect on how far we've come, and how much work remains to be done. Let's stand together in honoring his memory and his legacy through a collective commitment to equality, justice and opportunity for all.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Jan. 20, 2014:
This year you emphasize the importance of seeing the big picture. Sometimes, if you are not careful or over-think, you will lose your strong will to act. Watch out for this trait. If you are single, you are unusually attractive. You will have many dating possibilities, but you might attract emotionally unavailable individuals. Be careful. If you are attached, the two of you can work through nearly anything because of your commitment to each other. Be aware of your differences, and respect them. VIRGO sometimes annoys you with his or her penchant for detail.
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Listen to what is being shared while you go through your day. You will note that seriousness seems to mark your interactions. A discussion is a must in order for you to understand where others are coming from. Tonight: Be where you can relax.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Your creativity will help provide a solution; it might not be considered perfect by all parties, but it will work. A partner could try to resist your attempts to bring him or her out of his or her shell. Your caring will be evident, but it still might not work. Tonight: Ask questions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Work from home, or handle a domestic matter before you go to work. A partner will come through for you in a big way. Let this person know how much you appreciate his or her efforts. You can balance different concerns with ease. Tonight: Do something special, but be at home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Ask more questions, and expect to receive clear responses. Everyone needs to be on the same page in order to be most effective. Your depth and interest in handling a personal matter efficiently and with sensitivity will impress a loved one. Tonight: Just be yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Be aware of the cost of handling a matter as you are. Play it easy and relaxed in the company of a loved one who can give you feedback that you will accept. A personal or domestic matter lingers in your mind. Tonight: Straighten out the problem if possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Keep conversations moving, especially if they turn the focus to others. You might notice that someone seems closed down. Trust that this person has a good reason, and refuse to personalize the matter. That attitude will mean the world to him or her. Tonight: As you like it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Listen to news and consider what is really being said. Much is going on behind the scenes that you might not understand. Be aware of your options before you launch into action. Someone might not care how a certain idea will affect you. Tonight: Do some hard thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You could be making an error if you choose not to absorb what is said in a meeting with others. Approach a situation with care, yet also be aware of your limits. Be more open, and express your gentle side. Someone can't help but respond. Tonight: Find your friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ You like to perform and achieve the highest level of excellence possible. At the moment, you might feel challenged, but you have the assets to make an impression and to excel. Holding back a certain feeling will take a toll on you. Tonight: Out till the wee hours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Make a point of seeing the whole picture, and refuse to sell yourself short. Your way of dealing with a problem could change once you do. With that alteration will come a different outcome that might be more beneficial to everyone involved. Tonight: Hop on the Internet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Don't allow someone else to do your dirty work. Reach out and communicate with others directly. Follow this suggestion, and keep all interpersonal matters on a one-on-one level. The results will please you, and others will be more open as well. Tonight: Togetherness works.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You have a strong mind, but a partner will need to think a situation through and come up with his or her own conclusion. Develop the ability to let go, and give others the space to get to where you are. Be patient. Tonight: Out and about.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Our neighbors of 14 years watch our dog while we are away, which is quite often. They have free access to our home with the key we have given them. Two months ago, the husband hit on me, really pushing the issue for me to have sex with him. Then he apologized like it was nothing. I was upset, scared, shocked and told my husband because I was concerned. My husband was not happy about it. We have not been able to look at him or his wife (my friend) since then. We are all middle-aged. Should I tell her why we have been absent, or can you help me figure out what to do? — BADLY IN NEED OF ADVICE

DEAR BADLY IN NEED: Make other plans for your dog when you travel, change the locks on your doors, and if your friend asks why you have been "absent," tell her why. She may not like to hear it, but she should know that if your friendship with her is going to continue, it will have to be without her husband being included. (She should have herself checked for STDs in case her husband has managed to get lucky with a neighbor who WAS willing.)

DEAR ABBY: I'm 31 and have been married to my husband for 2 1/2 years. He wants a baby in the worst way. I don't, and I have been clear about it. Abby, my husband helps with nothing. I'm constantly cleaning, doing the laundry and cooking meals. That's OK, but I'd like some help. I have asked him many times to do things before football comes on or to take a break from Netflix and get something done. It never happens. I have been nice about it, and I have been angry.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and I have a major boy problem. My ex (Bob) broke up with me, and I felt funny around him and a little mad. So I kind of moved on. I went to my crush

DEAR ABBY: I'm 31 who had previously asked me out, and I said yes. Now I'm stuck and I don't know what to do. I asked my mom and didn't like the answer, so now I'm asking you. — CONFUSED GIRL IN ARKANSAS

DEAR CONFUSED GIRL: I don't know what your mother told you, but here's my advice: At 10, you're too young to be in an exclusive relationship with anyone. Because you regret saying yes to your crush, tell him your mother disapproves and you cannot go against her wishes.

DEAR MAMA ALREADY: No, I don't think so. You married a man who is lazy, or passive aggressive and angry at your refusal to have a baby, or has been so spoiled by his mother that he thinks this is a normal way to live. Counseling might help you get through to him, but I wouldn't bet on it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and I have a major boy problem. My ex (Bob) broke up with me, and I felt funny around him and a little mad. So I kind of moved on. I went to my crush

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and I have a major boy problem. My ex (Bob) broke up with me, and I felt funny around him and a little mad. So I kind of moved on. I went to my crush

DEAR ABBY: Can you please tell me the proper way to eat a taco salad? Do you crunch up the taco bowl, eat everything out of it and then eat the taco bowl? I asked my husband, and he said to ask you. — TRACI IN AMSTERDAM, N.Y.

TRACI: There are no rules of etiquette governing how to eat a taco salad. However, when I order one, I usually eat the contents of the bowl, then chip off pieces of the tortilla if I still have enough room to nibble. I have also seen diners order the salad and ask that it be served on a salad plate ("Hold the taco!") in order to save a few calories.
