Kellan Stokes visits The Pampa News

BY KELLAN STOKES
 I, Kellan Stokes, a 13-year-old seventh grader at PJHS, am here at The Pampa News job shadowing for school. I am here to learn about how they writers and editors work. At first I wasn't sure I would like this job but, I so learned that it is very interesting. I learned how the writers make the layout of the paper and how they get the information to put on the pages. When I grow up I plan to be an author and write many books. I would like to write fictional and nonfiction books. I am one of five siblings and have two sisters and two brothers. I have learned that writing is about perseverance and observing your surroundings. When writing an article you must find something the readers want to hear about. My favorite part so far is learning to write and find information. This specific job has helped me learn to gather information like when you research information for a book. Overall I think this is a wonderful job and I might want to start my career here. I would suggest other kids like me to job shadow here if they want to write.

BY JOHN LEE
 jlee@thepampanews.com
 B&G Power Equipment has been in Pampa for eight years, but has only been at its current location at 120 S. Hobart for the last three months. To celebrate their move, B&G Power Equipment will be holding a grand opening on Saturday. "We are going to have everything in the store, except for our ATV buggies and riding mowers, at 10 percent off," Doug Youree, general manager at B&G Power Equipment, said. "We are going to have some free food going on. Kelly Wertz will be cooking." Wertz is with Louisiana Grills, which B&G Power Equipment carries, and is a 30-time BBQ Grand Champion. Wertz will also hold a class from 6 to 9 p.m. for $40 a person. Married couples can enroll for $70.

VFW prepares boxes for first responders

Submitted photo
 The VFW Pampa Post, Men's Auxiliary and Ladies' Auxiliary packed boxes to take to the First Responders in Pampa. The boxes included BBQ sandwiches, chips and homemade cookies. They packed 10 boxes and delivered them to the police department, sheriff's office, fire department, Hoover Volunteer Fire Department, Pampa EMS/LifeStar, Hospital emergency room department and Highway Patrol. In total they were able to feed 175 first responders. "This was just a small thing that we could do for the people that help protect and serve our community every day," Nelda Martin, Ladies Auxiliary president, said. "I don't think they get thanked enough."

LEARNING TO SPOT STORMS

 Krissy Scotten, meteorologist for the National Weather Service, was in town to teach a storm spotter's class to educate those in attendance on what to look for when watching severe weather. Many were in attendance including city personnel and members of the Pampa Fire Department. The skills they learned in the class will come in handy during severe weather season when trying to alert the public of potential danger. For more pictures from the event, turn to page 5.

Three workers killed in West Texas oil field rig explosion

RANKIN, Texas (AP) — An oil field rig has exploded in West Texas, killing three workers.

Investigator Dusty Kilgore of the Upton County Sheriff's Office said the accident happened Tuesday morning near Rankin, about 40 miles south of Midland.

Kilgore says a pulling unit crew was at the site when the explosion happened. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration website describes a pulling unit as a well-servicing outfit.

Kilgore says one other worker at the site was not hurt in the explosion. He didn't release the names of those killed.

The well is owned by Parsley Energy of Midland. Company spokeswoman Lisa Elliott says the workers who died were employed by Mason Well Service Ltd. of Odessa, an independent contractor.

A message left with Mason wasn't immediately returned Wednesday.

Protest planned at home of frat member

DALLAS (AP) — A protest is planned Wednesday night outside the Dallas home of a former University of Oklahoma fraternity member who was shown in a video chanting a racial slur.

A Dallas-area advocacy group, the Next Generation Action Network, said a peaceful protest was planned at the family home of Parker Rice. Rice has apologized for participating in the chant, which also referenced lynching and indicated black students would never be admitted to OU's chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The Rev. Dominique Alexander, who leads the group, said protesters want to send a message: "We're not going to stand for that."

Dallas police Maj. Jimmy Vaughan police will monitor the protest and make sure traffic isn't blocked along the residential street. Officers and media have been at the house, but the family doesn't appear to be there.

Rice issued an apology Tuesday, saying the incident was "a horrible mistake" and "a devastating lesson" for which he is "seeking guidance on how I can learn from this and make sure it never happens again."

"I am deeply sorry for what I did Saturday night," Rice said in the statement emailed to The Associated Press by his father. "It was wrong and reckless."

Meanwhile, the parents of another student seen in the video, Levi Pettit, released a statement saying, "he made a horrible mistake, and will live with the consequences forever."

Pettit also is from the Dallas area. The apologies came after OU President David Boren expelled the two students who appeared to be leading the chant.

He did not release their names. Boren said others involved would face discipline.

Rice said in his statement that he withdrew from the university Monday. The statement from Pettit's parents did not address his status with the university.

Rice said threatening calls to his family have prompted them to leave their North Dallas home. He said Saturday's incident "likely was fueled by alcohol," but "that's not an excuse."

"Yes, the song was taught to us. But that, too, doesn't work as an explanation. It's more important to acknowledge what I did and what I didn't do. I didn't say 'no,'" his statement said.

OBITUARIES

Cora Lee Heckman

Cora Lee Heckman, 87, of Pampa passed away on Thursday, March 5, 2015.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 14, 2015, at First United Methodist Church, with Rev. Dr. Ran Loy, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Cora Lee was born on July 10, 1927, in Lelia Lake, Texas, to Lee Alonzo and Lela Muse. The family moved soon after and made Clarendon their home, where they owned and operated several family-style restaurants and cabins for travelers passing through town. She and her parents often dined with Texas Ranger Charles Goodnight and the owners of the historical JA Ranch of Palo Duro Canyon.

During the time Cora Lee attended Clarendon Jr. College, she injured her ankle and could not go up the stairs while carrying her books. Along came Lowell Heckman, a handsome young soldier who had just returned home from the war, who offered to carry her books. This chance encounter led to their friendship and eventual courtship. They were truly a "match made in heaven" and Cora Lee married the love of her life in 1947. There began an incredibly loving and committed partnership of 64 years that created a wonderful home filled with love, laughter and respect; a warm and happy place that her family cherished and where everyone was welcomed.

Cora Lee was blessed with a beautiful voice and studied music at Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth prior to their marriage. She shared her love of music throughout the years and could often be heard singing as she worked and played with family. She was a gifted artist who enjoyed painting. She taught lessons for many years and her students loved her. She also loved crafts, gardening, cooking and was involved in the First United Methodist Church in Pampa. Her greatest legacy is that of a loving and devoted wife, mother, grandmother, great-grandmother and friend; a woman of strength, beauty, grace and faith.

Cora Lee was preceded in death by her husband, Lowell Heckman; a son Richard "Rick" Heckman; and her brother, Sid Muse.

Survivors include her daughters, Cheri Rutledge and husband Bob of Grapevine, and Teresa Heckman of Pampa; her son, Rodney Heckman and wife Cathy of Sachse; four grandsons, Josh Shelton and wife Alexis, Kylar Rutledge and wife April, Hal Rutledge and wife Kelli and Riley Heckman; and five great-grandchildren, Ty, Whitney, Kaisten, Logan and Jackson.

The family will receive friends from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Friday, March 13, 2015, at Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Home.

Memorials may be made to First United Methodist Church, P. O. Box 1981, Pampa, TX 79066-1981 or Alzheimer's Association, 415 W. 8th Ave., Suite 300, Amarillo, TX 79101.

He served in the U.S. Air Force from 1947 to 1950 as a meteorologist. He retired from the National Weather Service in 1985 with 32 years of service. He was a pretty neat man who trusted the Lord and was saved in 1950. He was a man of God who loved his family, friends, church family, RV friends, and enjoyed fishing, playing board games and tending to his garden. Tales from the Final Frontier Spring into some nerd gear.

Back in the winter, just before Christmas, I decided to give you a rundown of some items you could potentially get your loved ones, or yourself, as present.

Now the snow seems to have melted and this entire week we have been looking at temperatures in the 60s and 70s. While Spring may not officially start until March 20, the change of seasons means a change of style, which means new items on the market.

Head over to www.thinkgeek.com and check out what they have in stock. Here is a sample of what you will find:

• Tactical Chef Apron ($29.99) — When you are sneaking your way through your backyard and need to deploy your cooking tools to get dinner finished on the grill, this Tactical Chef Apron is perfect. Loaded with three pouches perfect for holding spices, and two larger pouches for other items, this apron is also equipped with rings and slots perfect for holding all of your grilling accessories. There is also a Tactical BBQ Apron in Urban Camo color for $29.99.

• Star Wars Golf Club covers ($19.99) — When you're hitting the greens it may be appropriate to take everyone's favorite green Star Wars character. These covers come as Chewbacca, Yoda, R2-D2, Stormtrooper or Darth Vader. Good thing there isn't a Jar-Jar Binks one, otherwise you may be leaving the golf course with serious injuries. There are also Star Trek Golf Club covers for $29.99.

• Nerd polos ($29.99-$39.99) — When you're on the golf course, polos always seem to be the appropriate style of shirt to wear. Thinkgeek has a wide variety of nerd-themed polos. They have the "Star Trek: The Original Series" polos, Doctor Who polos, Star Wars polos and several other superhero shirts.

• Kill You With My Brain T-Shirt ($19.99) — For the ladies. Sure, you may have looks that kill, but it may be worth warning the public about how smart you are too. This t-shirt reads "Also, I can kill you with my brain." Thinkgeek suggests that you can wear this shirt anywhere, except for the airport, where TSA may wonder about you.

• Legend of Zelda Lenticular 3D link ($19.99) — I will close with this awesome Legend of Zelda lenticular shadow box. It's 3D and ships in a black wooden shadowbox frame, already prepped for hanging on the wall. It would go perfect in any gamer's room.

There you have it, ladies and gents. When doing your Spring cleaning, be sure to leave some space for things you may find on Thinkgeek.com to purchase.

JOHN LEE

What's fair?

Donald Trump's kids and Paris Hilton's siblings were born rich. That gave them a big advantage in life. Unfair! Inequality in wealth has grown. Today the richest 1 percent of Americans own a third of the assets. That's not fair!

But wherever people are free, that's what happens.

Some people are luckier, smarter or just better at making money. Often they marry other wealthy, well-connected people. Over time, these advantages compound. Globalization increases the effect. This month's issue of Forbes says the world now has 1,826 billionaires, and some struggle to find enough parking places for their jets.

President Obama calls inequality "the defining issue of our time." Really? Not our unsustainable debt? Not ISIS? The president also said, "No challenge? poses a greater threat to future generations than climate change!"

Politicians constantly find crises they will solve by increasing government power. But why is inequality a crisis?

Alexis Goldstein, of a group called The Other 98 percent, complains that corporations got richer but workers' wages "are lower than they've been in 65 years."

That's a common refrain, but it's wrong. Over the past 30 years, CBO data shows that the average income of the poorest fifth of Americans is up by 49 percent. That doesn't include all the innovations that have dramatically improved everyone's life. Today even the poorest Americans have comforts and lifespans that kings didn't have a century ago.

George Mason University economist Garrett Jones says, "If I was going to be in the bottom fifth in the America of today versus the bottom fifth of America in 1970 or 1960, it's hard to imagine that anybody would take that time machine into the past."

And despite America's lousy government schools and regulations that make it tough to start a business, there is still economic mobility. Poor people don't have to stay poor. Sixty-four percent of those born in the poorest fifth of the U.S. population move out of that quintile. Eleven percent of them rise all the way to the top, according to economists at Harvard and Berkeley.

Most of the billionaires atop the Forbes richest list weren't born rich. They got rich by innovating.

Rich people aren't guaranteed their place at the top, either. Sixty-six percent fell from the top quintile, and eight percent fell all the way to the bottom.

That mobility is a reason most of us are better off than we would have been in a more rigid society, controlled by central economic planners.

Life will always be unfair. I want to play pro basketball. It's unfair that LeBron James is bigger and more talented! It's also unfair that George Clooney is better looking! It's unfair that my brother is smarter than me.

Jones points out, "I was born with an advantage, too. Being born in the United States ... totally unfair." He also has two married parents — another huge advantage.

The question is not whether people start out life in homogeneous circumstances, he adds. "The question is whether government policies that try to fix this actually make things better or worse."

Worse, in most cases. Government "help" encourages poor people to be dependent and passive. Dependent, people stay poor. Also, most government handouts don't even go to the poor. They go to the middle class (college loans, big mortgage tax deductions, Medicare) and the rich (corporate welfare, bailouts to banks "too big to fail").

Instead of making government more powerful, let's get rid of those handouts. Left and right ought to agree on that.

America has prosperity and innovation because we have relatively free markets.

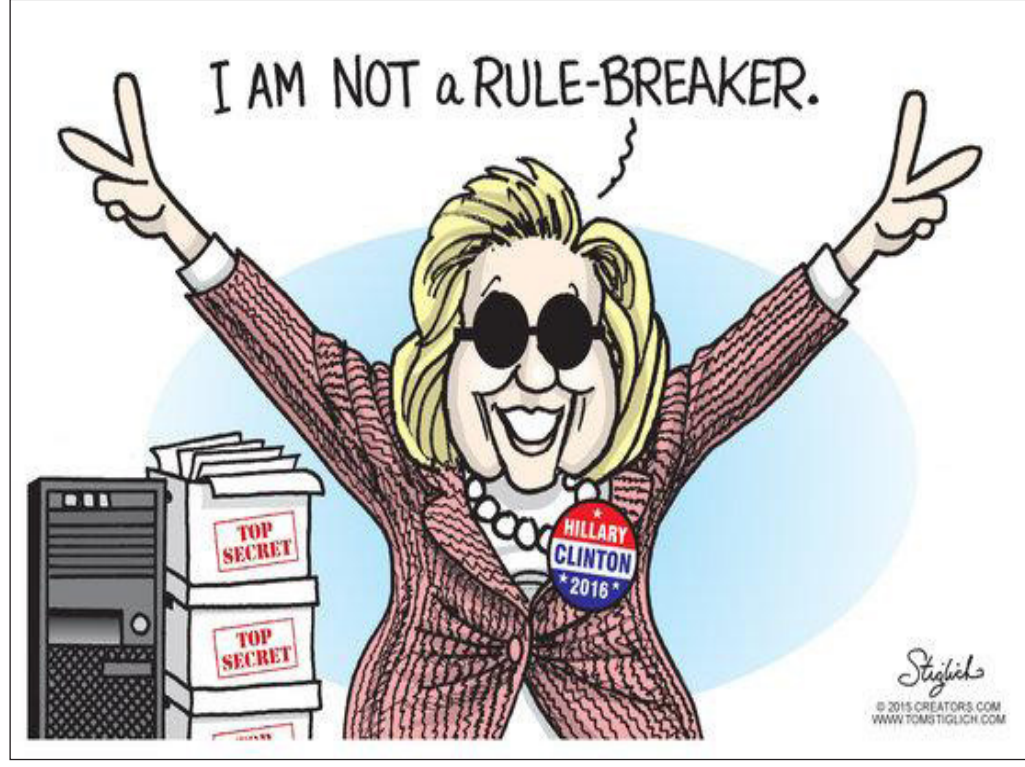

Progressives say, "Keep the innovation but have government make us more equal." But that doesn't work. It's been tried. Government-enforced equality — socialism — leaves everybody poor.

Equality is less important than opportunity. Opportunity requires allowing people to spend their own money and take their own risks.

Instead of talking about "fairness," it would be better to talk about justice: respecting other people, respecting their freedom and their property rights.

Real fairness requires limiting government power.

How Democrats plan to win elections

The Obama Democrats have an audacious scheme for winning future elections. They just plan to import 5,000,000 non-citizens and credential them as voters who will, in gratitude, vote Democratic.

PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY

The way this devious formula works is stunningly simple. Just get the new Republican Congress (under Speaker John Boehner and Sen. Mitch McConnell) to pass a full-funding bill for Homeland Security without any exception for the funding of Obama's illegal executive amnesty, which will allow Obama to give work permits, Social Security numbers and driver's licenses to five million illegal aliens.

Once the 5 million so-called undocumented persons are given those valuable documents, there is no way to stop them from voting. That conclusion is drawn from the testimony of voting experts such as Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach, who told the U.S. House Oversight Committee on Feb. 12, "It's a guarantee it will happen."

Kobach's warning was reinforced by testimony before the same committee by Ohio Secretary of State Jon Husted, who noted that the 5 million non-citizens would receive the "same documents that federal law requires the states to recognize as valid forms of identification for voter registration." And once an alien registers to vote, Secretary Kobach said, it is "virtually impossible" to remove him from the voter rolls.

A third witness, Hans von Spakovsky, suggested that Social Security numbers issued to the 5 million illegal aliens should contain a code (such as "N" for non-citizen) that would instantly reveal their ineligibility to vote. But that simple fix would happen only if the Obama administration sincerely wants to keep them from voting, which I doubt.

In case the illegal aliens need spending money, they can collect a special handout from the U.S. taxpayers called Earned Income Tax Credit, which was designed to help parents who are working to support their families.

IRS Commissioner, John Koskinen, told the Senate Finance Committee on Feb. 3 that as soon as the illegal aliens receive their Social Security numbers, they will be allowed to go back and claim the EITC for up to three previous years in which they worked illegally.

What about the employers who illegally hired these people? They will get off scot-free, even though documentation clearly exists to prosecute and punish them.

Opponents of amnesty were cheered by the news that a federal judge issued an injunction against Barack Obama's unconstitutional and illegal executive amnesty. The judge ruled in favor of the lawsuit filed by the new Texas governor, Greg Abbott, along with 25 other states.

Obama's outgoing attorney general, Eric Holder, has promised to appeal, and don't expect any help from Holder's replacement. His designated successor, Loretta Lynch, has already testified that she thinks Obama's executive actions are perfectly legal.

Meanwhile, Obama's 5,000,000 amnestied illegals allowed to remain in our country can cash in on free health care plus schooling for their kids, including free lunch, breakfast and even dinner. I heard one public school superintendent complaining on television that he now has 40 languages spoken in his school, and nobody has yet added up the costs that this burden imposes on the taxpayers.

Of course, these illegals will become eligible for all sorts of America's generous welfare benefits. This includes food stamps, Obamaphones, Medicaid, WIC, Social Security disability and dozens of other handouts. Most important is that the illegals take jobs from American citizens. The Obama administration brags that the official unemployment rate is only 5.6 percent, but that number is misleading because it doesn't include anyone who stopped looking for work four weeks ago.

As many as 30 million Americans are either out of work or extremely underemployed. If you work just one hour per week for a payment of at least $20, you can't be counted as unemployed in the official government statistics.

The 5 million beneficiaries of Obama's executive action would be added to the already high number of foreigners who enter our labor force each year. They include 1.1 million legal immigrants, 700,000 guest workers on temporary visas, plus roughly a half-million work permits, which the Obama administration has been handing out each year to various categories of non-citizens who are not eligible for employment under the law.

It's no wonder that the Center for Immigration Studies could report last year that literally 100 percent of all net new jobs in the past decade have gone to immigrants and foreign workers. Fewer working-age Americans are employed today than in 2000.

This week, there have been a number of weather awareness seminars at City Hall. On Tuesday, many city employees and others interested in attending learned about storms and the damage they are capable of causing. These slides were about tornadoes in particular and the chaos that comes with them. Emergency personnel were present to increase their knowledge on helping those affected by these types of storms.

Operation Strong Safety Report highlights criminal activity, vulnerabilities along border

■ Provides recommendations to Texas leaders.

SUBMITTED
AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) today released an unclassified version of the Operation Strong Safety (OSS) report that was submitted to the 84th Texas Legislature and Office of the Governor as required by the Texas Leadership. In June 2014, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Speaker of the House of Representatives directed DPS to launch Operation Strong Safety to combat the criminal elements exploiting the Texas-Mexico border. The operation — which integrates local, state, and federal ground, marine, air, and tactical border security assets around-the-clock in the area of operation — remains ongoing today at the direction of state leaders. “DPS is responsible for protecting and serving the people of Texas, and we are grateful for the Texas Leadership and Legislature’s continued support for our officers who put their lives on the line every day to carry out that mission,” said DPS Director Steven McCraw. “We are proud of the efforts of our law enforcement partners at every level who are working to combat the criminal elements at our border, and DPS will continue to follow the direction of our state leaders in that effort.” The OSS report was developed in response to a directive by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Speaker of the House of Representatives to detail how the operation was executed and its impact. The report also includes recommendations for continued efforts to secure the Texas-Mexico border. The Texas Legislature and Leadership will ultimately determine the next steps the state will take with respect to border security efforts. Findings of the report include: In FY 2014, the number of apprehensions in the Rio Grande Valley reached its highest level since records are available beginning in 1960. Since the launch of OSS in June 2014, the number of illegal alien apprehensions in the OSS area of operation has fallen sharply. This trend marks a sharp contrast to the increase that had been trending before OSS. After the first week of the operation, there were 6,606 illegal alien apprehensions in the area of operation. By week 11, the numbers had decreased below 2,000 and have consistently remained low through week 28. OSS-related drug seizures have totaled more than 180 tons of illegal drugs that had been smuggled across the border and were destined to be distributed throughout the state and nation. The OSS report also outlines — and includes recommendations related to — multiple issues, including the importance of moving to a border security strategy that will enable law enforcement to detect and interdict all smuggling events along the border. “When drugs and people are being smuggled across the border undetected or without being interdicted, it is clear that the border is not secure,” said Director McCraw. “Therefore, any time law enforcement interdicts a smuggling attempt, we consider it a significant gain in the fight against ruthless criminal organizations and their pursuit to make money.” “That said, in order to accurately and completely assess the true level of security between the ports of entry, law enforcement must be able to detect ALL smuggling events and determine whether each smuggling event was interdicted,” Director McCraw continued. “In other words, the true interdiction rate along the border can only be determined once law enforcement can detect 100 percent of all smuggling attempts.” To view the entire unclassified version of the Operation Strong Safety report, visit: <http://dps.texas.gov/PublicInformation/documents/operation-StrongSafetyRpt.pdf>.

A baby born today has a Sun in Pisces and a Moon in Sagittarius if born before 11:40 p.m. (PST). Afterward, the Moon will be in Capricorn.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, March 13, 2015:

This year you open up to change, as you often are forced into the limelight and have to assume a position of responsibility. Your self-confidence builds, and others recognize your abilities. As a result, you could manifest a long-term desire. Friendship plays a significant role in your life as well. If you are single, you are likely to meet someone through work. You won't need to look for this person -- he or she will find you sometime after August. If you are attached, the two of you might be committed to a common cause, which will draw you closer together. SAGITTARIUS is an extrovert who often makes you feel uncomfortable.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You might be doing some last-minute thinking about getting out of town for a day or so. You are likely to give in to this impulse. An appointment or meeting might keep you somewhat grounded. Make plans to start the weekend as early as possible. Tonight: Let the party begin!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Deal with others directly. You'll express your sensitivity by taking time for each person. Someone you meet today could become a very inspirational friend. You might resist expressing your feelings. Tonight: Don't be surprised if you feel a need to take off suddenly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Defer to others. You might be enjoying the lack of pressure and the emotional freedom you recently have gained. Take a stand on a heartfelt matter, and others will listen. A friend could follow you down the path you have chosen. Tonight: Schedule some one-on-one time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You could be out of sorts and might want to toss everything in the air. Verbalize your frustration, but avoid a revolution at all costs. Given some time, you will feel better, and will notice that your efforts are not futile. Let someone else call the shots for now. Tonight: Out and about.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Reach out to someone who tends to be combative instead of becoming uptight about what he or she could do. You'll make peace where there might have been a problem. Allow your fun personality to emerge. Drop your serious mood -- it is Friday, after all. Tonight: TGIF!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Tension builds to an unprecedented level, as you feel you must handle a matter involving your security and domestic life. Relax more, and simply handle the issue. Sometimes you make mountains out of molehills. Tonight: Accept a partner's caring gesture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You seem to choose the right words to bring someone over to your way of thinking. You'll make quite an impression on this person. Be explicit when making plans. A loved one or a new friend could be expressing his or her innate gentleness. Tonight: Be a bit impulsive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Weigh the pros and cons of making a purchase. Some of you could be considering finding a way to augment your income. If you feel tense or unusually high-strung, take a walk and try to relax. You don't need to fuss so much. Tonight: Out on the town.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You seem to beam as the day progresses. A child or loved one might push you beyond the limits of your patience. Try not to lash out at the person in question. Keep your cool. Make yourself aware of the finances involved with a fun idea. Tonight: Let down your hair.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Lie low during the day, but know that it won't prevent you from taking action where you feel it is needed. A one-on-one conversation will help ground you. Be sensitive when dealing with a brash loved one. Tonight: As soon as the evening begins, you perk up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ A friend might tease you into taking action. Even if you feel a bit raw, make an effort to be kind to others. Use caution with funds, as money could nearly dissolve in your hands. A lot of activity surrounds a friend; you might want to join right in. Tonight: All smiles.

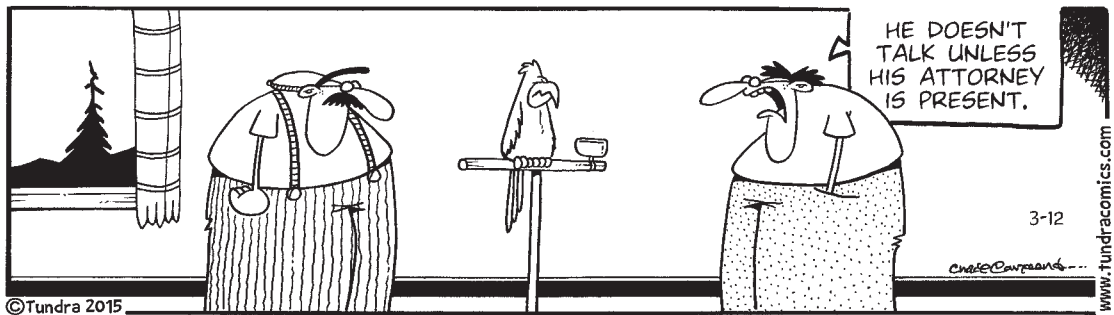

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Be careful when dealing with others. You might be confused about what they are communicating, or perhaps you are missing some facts. Be aware of your objectives. Indulge a loved one, and buy this person a token of affection. Tonight: Celebrate the weekend.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my father has begun to watch films with graphic sexual scenes when he gets home from work. When I ask him to please watch them on his own time, when my three younger siblings aren't in the house, he tells me that because he pays the bills he has the right to do what he wants.

Abby, not only do these graphic movies make me uncomfortable, I'm worried my siblings will begin asking questions. — UNCOMFORTABLE IN OREGON

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: If there are adult relatives who can convince your dad that what he's doing is unwise — an aunt, uncle, grandparent — talk to them about what's going on right away. If there aren't, then a trusted teacher or counselor at school should be informed because what your father is doing is extremely inappropriate. Exposing children to graphic images can give them unrealistic expectations about what sex is really all about.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend and I have talked about becoming engaged. The subject of the wedding dress came up. She broke off a past engagement last year, and she has asked me whether it would be OK for her to use the dress she chose for the wedding that didn't happen. She says only her mother and the seamstress have seen it. She doesn't want to be out $1,000 and says she does not associate the gown with her ex-fiance.

I feel we should try to sell the dress, although it was tailored for her, and pick a new one. What do you think is appropriate? I don't like the idea of looking back at the wedding photos and thinking the dress was meant for another man. — FUTURE HUSBAND IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

DEAR HUSBAND: Actually, the dress was meant for your fiancee and not another man. There are specialists who can redesign an existing wedding dress. However, because you have negative associations with this gown, offer to sweeten the pot by chipping in if she can't get $1,000 for the one she has. I think the most "appropriate" thing on your wedding day should be that you are both comfortable, happy and, above all, in sync.

DEAR ABBY: I don't sympathize or empathize with others. When people are sad or upset over deaths, failed relationships, etc., my reaction is annoyance at the person because I feel I'm being forced to offer an emotion I don't genuinely feel. I have experienced all of these things in my own life, but I have never shed tears about them or let them cripple me. I view these things as part of life and move on.

As I get older, it is getting harder and harder for me to fake these emotions. My wife was in tears for a couple of days because someone she knew died. I tried to pretend to empathize with her, but I found myself getting annoyed by what I thought was her over-reaction. Someone she knew died; it happens to all of us. Let's move on. Is something wrong with me? — MOVING ON IN TENNESSEE

DEAR MOVING ON: Some people live the veneer of life; others live the hardwood. It appears you are among the former and insulated against painful emotions. However, I'm cautioning you to be patient and show respect for the feelings of others who have more emotional depth, or you may be spending a lot of time alone in the future. *****

Directly from the Dugout

Darvish hurt yet again.

Here we are in the middle of Spring Training and Texas Ranger ace pitcher Yu Darvish is hurt again.

According to reports Darvish has a torn ligament in his right elbow. That likely means he will have to undergo season-ending Tommy John surgery.

The Rangers have also lost Jurickson Profar for the season as he will undergo right labrum surgery for a torn ligament in his shoulder.

Wait a minute folks am I sounding like the broken record that was the 2014 Rangers season?

Yes indeed it seems as though the Rangers injury bug will continue into 2015, at least at the beginning here.

Thankfully Rounned Odor, Profar's backup, got a lot of experience last year due to Profar's injury that season. He looks to start at second base for a while.

Derek Holland should be coming back soon for the Rangers, he was their ace before they acquired Darvish.

Martin Perez will come back, but likely not until mid-season as he had Tommy John surgery May of 2014.

The Rangers did acquire some arms to help the depleted rotation this year.

Yovanni Gallardo came over in a trade as well as Ross Detwiler.

Texas is still using an eight man rotation right now for spring training until they iron out just who will be the starters.

The Rangers have gone 4-4 so far in their spring training games.

Gallardo, Colby Lewis and Nick Tepesch have really high ERAs, but those are inflated because teams do not use their pitchers like they do in the regular season.

Odor has been tearing the ball up. He is hitting for a .462 average and that is from 13 at-bats. He has two doubles and three runs scored.

Prince Fielder is another guy who is returning this year from an injury. He is hitting a solid .300 in 10 at-bats. He has one homerun and four RBIs.

Beltre is not doing the greatest at .200 in 10 at-bats.

Those are just some of the names to give you a heads up of their performance.

We will know more as spring training continues and the players get more at-bats to get a better average.

Mitch Moreland and Elvis Andrus should be returning to action hopefully before the season starts.

If things hold up as they are going now, which is unlikely, here is what the Rangers 2015 lineup would look like:

Robinson Chirinos at catcher. Prince Fielder at first. Rounned Odor at second. Elvis Andrus at short. Adrian Beltre at third. Ryan Rua in left. Leonys Martin in center and Shin Soo-Choo in right. Mitch Moreland is set to DH.

How would the rotation be if the season started now?

Yovanni Gallardo in the first position. Derek Holland next. Colby Lewis third. Ross Detwiler fourth and Nick Tepesch fifth.

I will keep you updated with my weekly Rangers article.

I may do every other week while spring training is ongoing, but expect it to go back to a weekly report in April.
