Kingsmill, Kings mill and the story of a 'tent' town

BY JOHN LEE
 jlee@thepampanews.com

KINGSMILL — Take a drive down U.S. Highway 60 coming into Pampa and just inside White Deer you will see a sign that says "Pampa 14 miles; Kingsmill 7 miles."

Continue on Highway 60 and get to the towering grain elevator just inside Gray County lines and you have come to Kingsmill. Or is it Kings Mill? The debate stems from the creation of the town.

The first post office for the town was created on April 4, 1916. At that time the town was called Ecla. Several years later, it was changed to Kings Mill on May 18, 1922. This same office was discontinued on Jan. 4, 1963.

The town was named for M.K. Brown's mother and sister to Andrew Kingsmill, Margaret Kingsmill. Andrew was a London Banker representative of the British investors.

Despite the origin of the name, Kings Mill was established as the name of the City to hold 'Operation Community Pride'

SUBMITTED BY THE CITY OF PAMPA

The City of Pampa will be kicking off "Operation Community Pride" with a City Alley Clean-up event on Saturday, April 11. The event will begin at 8 a.m. at the MK Brown Civic Auditorium. Participants will be required to attend an orientation and brief instructional presentation.

Crew assignments and issuance of credentials associated with the event will also be given out to participants at that time.

Director of Public Works, Donny Hooper says that all citizens wishing to participate in the event must register in order to do so. Advanced registration is encouraged and can be completed at City Administration, City Utility Offices, City Finance Offices, Lovett Library, City Landfill, Code Enforcement, Chamber of Commerce, or Pampa Economic Development Corporation. Deadline for early registration is Thursday, April 9, at 4 p.m. Minors under the age of 18 will require a parent or guardian to register with them. Registration on the morning of the event will take place at 7 a.m. at MK Brown Auditorium.

Hooper encourages citizens who have items of value stored in their alley to remove them prior to the event.

All items left in the alleys will be picked up by crews and discarded. Exceptions are: Firewood stored neatly in racks, bricks that are neatly stacked, lumber that is neat and orderly and homemade compost bins. All other items are subject to removal by Community Pride Crews.

A tire amnesty event will also kick off that day allowing City of Pampa residents to dispose of unwanted tires for free at the Pampa Landfill.

A water bill or driver license will be required for proof of residency when delivering the tires. Commercial businesses will not be allowed to dispose of tires.

Tires from outside of the City limits will not be allowed. The event will run for one week through noon on April 18.

Following the clean-up event, Operation Community Pride will officially be underway and City crews will begin weekly sweeps of the alleys in order to keep them clean.

Community pride will also begin weekly front yard bulky waste collections.

This will begin on April 17, and there will be a rotation for each ward.

A schedule will be distributed in the coming weeks.

For more information, visit our website at www.cityofpampa.org and click on "Operation Community Pride" in the left column.

town to prevent confusion with "Kingsville," which is located in South Texas.

The rise and fall of Kingsmill

Around the 1920s, the town had an oil discovery that attracted settlers to the town. By 1931, the town had a school, 16 businesses and 400 residents.

Its proximity to Pampa caused Kingsmill to fall just as quickly as it rose. By 1947, the population had dropped to 150 residents. The post office was closed in 1966, and from 1968 to 1990, the population was listed at 65 people.

Nothing, other than foundational remnants, remains in Kingsmill.

According to the Gray County clerk, the population of Kingsmill sits at zero because of a water-pollution lawsuit in the early 1990s. Celanese bought the remaining houses in Kingsmill while facing said lawsuit.

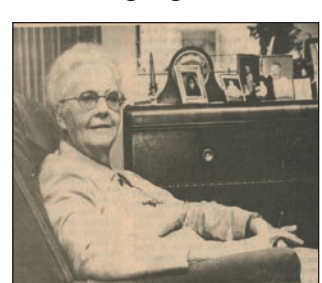

What's in a name?

As pointed out earlier in the article, there is some disagreement on the name of this little town six miles west of Pampa. Several articles printed in the Amarillo Globe-News over time have questioned the spelling of Kings Mill/Kingsmill. One article (Amarillo Sunday News-Globe, "Englishman gave Gray County town its name" Nov. 25, 1984) quotes Pampa postmaster Richard Wilson saying the postal spelling is "Kingsmill."

Testimony from a Kingsmill teacher

An article ran in The Pampa News on Feb. 13, 1976, called "She taught in Kingsmill in 1932." The article highlights teacher

Pauline Beard who came to Kingsmill from Commerce to teach in a two-teacher school. Beardspoke of students such as Virgil Frasier, who went on to work at Cabot; Ralph Bynum, a rancher, and Rufe Jordan, a Gray County Sheriff; and Dale Wears, who went on to work as a foreman for American Motors Manufacturing plants in Los Angeles.

Often seen as a post-2000 issue, Beard talked about the number of divorces versus marriages in Pampa in the mid-1970s.

"I always thought when you married, that was it," Beard said. "You were married."

Beard taught at Kingsmill, then taught in the old red school building. Beard's memories of Pampa date back to the 1920s when the town had three doctors and Cuyler was just a couple of blocks long.

What's left?

According to archived issues of The Pampa News, an old general store in Kingsmill burned down in November of 1985.

The population of zero indicates there are no residents who claim Kingsmill as home, at least not in their postal code.

A brief, informational search of "Kingsmill" on Wikipedia turns up an 18th Century James City County, Va., plantation.

Two grain elevators, owned by Wheeler-Evans, are indicators you are driving through the town.

In October of 2014, a week tornado touched down south of Kingsmill and caused some damage to utility poles and structures in the area.

In closing, there is very little recorded information on this small town whose prime lasted less than half a century. If you have any memories or even pictures of the town. Please email them to jlcee@thepampapnews.com. You can also share your story in a letter to the editor.

Information cited in this article, including articles from "The Amarillo Globe-News" "The Pampa News," came courtesy of the White Deer Land Museum. Primary time-line history came from the Texas State Historical Association.

Prosecution rests its case against Boston Marathon bomber

BOSTON (AP) — Prosecutors rested their case against Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev on Monday after jurors in his federal death penalty trial saw gruesome autopsy photos and heard a medical examiner describe the devastating injuries suffered by an 8-year-old boy killed in the 2013 terror attack.

At least three jurors cried and wiped their eyes with tissues as they looked at photos of Martin Richard, who went to watch the marathon with his parents and siblings April 15, 2013, and was killed when the second of two pressure-cooker bombs exploded near the finish line.

The boy's parents watched somberly from the second row of the courtroom. Bill Richard kept his arm around the shoulder of his wife, Denise, throughout the testimony.

Dr. Henry Niels, chief medical examiner for Massachusetts, said Martin received injuries to virtually every part of his body, including lacerations of his liver, left kidney and spleen, broken bones and third-degree burns. His stomach was also ruptured.

Niels said he removed small nails, metal pellets, fragments of wood and black plastic from the boy's wounds. He also displayed the blood-stained, shredded clothing that Martin was wearing when the bomb exploded.

Tsarnaev's lawyer told the jury during opening statements that he participated in the bombings but that his older brother, Tamerlan, was the driving force behind the attack. Prosecutors believe the brothers were seeking retaliation against the U.S. for wars in Muslim countries.

Three people were killed and more than 260 were injured in the bombings.

After the prosecution rested its case, Tsarnaev's lawyers began theirs. They have made it clear since testimony began March 4 that their strategy during the two-phase trial is not to win an acquittal for Tsarnaev but to save him from the death penalty.

The first defense witness was Michelle Gamble, an FBI field photographer who testified earlier Monday for prosecutors, describing various photos and a video showing the scene of the second blast both before and shortly after the explosions.

In one of the photos, Martin Richard, his sister and several other children stand on a metal barricade. Tsarnaev appears to be just a few feet behind Martin and his sister.

While cross-examining Gamble, Tsarnaev's lawyers showed other photographs with several people in between Tsarnaev and the children, an apparent attempt to show that Tsarnaev didn't purposefully target them with the bomb.

When the defense called Gamble as its first witness, Tsarnaev's lawyer, Miriam Conrad, asked her about a book titled "Wiring" that was found during a search of the Tsarnaev family's apartment in Cambridge. Gamble said the book was found under the living room couch.

Tsarnaev's lawyers have tried to show that he was not living in the apartment when the bombings occurred because he was attending the University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth. Tamerlan Tsarnaev was living in the apartment with his wife and their young daughter.

During their case, prosecutors presented heart-wrenching testimony from survivors who lost legs in the bombings. A string of first responders described a chaotic mix of smoke, blood and screams just after the bombs went off.

The defense will try to show that Tamerlan Tsarnaev was more culpable in the attack and in the killing three days later of Massachusetts Institute of Technology police Officer Sean Collier.

The defense case is expected to be relatively short. Once that is complete, jurors will deliberate on whether Tsarnaev is guilty of the 30 federal charges against him in the bombing, in Collier's killing and for his role in a violent confrontation with police in Watertown. Tamerlan Tsarnaev, 26, was killed during the confrontation, both by gunshots and from being run over by Dzhokhar as he escaped. Dzhokhar Tsarnaev was found more than 18 hours later hiding in a boat parked in a yard.

Prairie Plains Perspective Lost wages in Little Reno

DENNIS PALMIER

There ought to be a sign erected. It should be appropriately placed at the intersection of I-40 and Highway 70. In order to be visible on the interstate for both east and west travelers; the sign needs to be a big one! I'm talking Times Square gigantic! The sign's features must look similar to a huge hand with it's index finger pointing Pampa's direction and be lit by bright red dark piercing neon light!

There should be for those interstate sojourners an attention getting message inside the big neon lit hand with index finger pointing saying something like: "Why not traipse off the interstate and motor up to caravanserai Pampa, or 'Little Reno' as we locals like to call our home, where you can kick back at your bank account's worth and enjoy to your wallets content, totally unregulated gambling! All travelers welcome!" Yessiree Bob! That'll be some sign!

Within the past couple of years, 10 game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes, with number 11 currently under construction catty-corner from City Hall (the chutzpah!) have sprung up damned nigh all points of the compass here in once empty Pampa commercial real estate. For those of you not in the know, a game room is an operation where playing of electronic video type gambling devices is promoted. The player opts for his favorite game, inserts a dollar amount into the machine as his wager, then attempts however many times to win based on the machine's programmed odds.

Where game room gambling gives the player instant money on his winnings, Internet sweepstakes cafes force the player to purchase for Internet gambling time, a long distance phone card with a certain amount of supposed bonus of "entries" in the Internet sweepstakes. With those entries, a customer can participate in Internet-based games at the cafe's specially programmed personal computers. Based on a random allocation of winning and losing entries, the customer may or may not win cash prizes.

For those of you still not in the know with gambling in Texas there's that pesky little matter of state law.

Just a Thought The Easter Bunny versus conquering death

RICK KRAFT

Sunday is a holiday for most everyone. Some will be looking for Easter eggs and some will be celebrating the resurrection of a risen Savior. Others may not recognize either, but may use it as an opportunity to gather family together for fellowship and a meal.

Easter is typically an exciting time for young children. Easter is typically the highest attended service of the year for most churches.

Regardless, Easter is what you make it.

Hiding Easter eggs has always been an exercise that I chuckle at. To take "prizes" and hide them in such a manner that they can't be readily seen, but that are not hidden so well that they can't be found is a clever concept. If you leave them out in the open, finding the eggs is not much of a game, or, if you hide them in a remote location that a child would not think of looking, it defeats the joy of the hunt.

A heavy stone being moved from the entrance of a tomb, not so a resurrected Jesus can get out, but so others could look in, is a direct act with eternal consequences. Some would consider the events of that Sunday morning the greatest in the history of mankind. Nothing was hidden when Mary or Peter arrived at the tomb. According to Wikipedia "The Easter Bunny as an Easter symbol bringing Easter eggs seems to have its origins in Alsace and the Upper Rhineland, both then in the Holy Roman Empire of German Nation, and southwestern Germany, where it was first recorded in a German publication in the early 1600s. The first edible Easter Bunnies were made in Germany during the early 1800s and were made of pastry and sugar.

"The Easter Bunny was introduced to America by the German settlers who arrived in the Pennsylvania Dutch country during the 1700s."

The arrival of the bunny was considered one of childhood's greatest pleasures. According to the tradition, children would build brightly colored nests, often made out of caps and bonnets, in secluded areas of their homes. The bunny would, if the children had been good, lay brightly colored eggs in the nest. As the tradition spread, the nest has become the manufactured, modern Easter basket, and the placing of the nest in a secluded area has become the tradition of hiding baskets.

The Easter Bunny is very similar to its Christmas holiday counterpart Santa Claus, as they both bring gifts to good children on the night before their respective holiday.

The historical event of Jesus' resurrection goes back almost 2000 years and is recorded in the Bible. It was early Sunday morning, three days after Jesus' crucifixion on the cross on Friday (Good Friday). What an exciting morning it was when some women came to the tomb to anoint Jesus' body with spices and were met by an angel.

An account of this event is in the book of Matthew chapter 28, verses 1-7, "After the Sabbath, at dawn on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to look at the tomb. There was a violent earthquake, for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven and, going to the tomb, rolled back the stone and sat on it. His appearance was like lightning, and his clothes were white as snow. The guards were so afraid of him that they shook and became like dead men.

The angel said to the women, "Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay. Then go quickly and tell his disciples: 'He has risen from the dead and is going ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see him.' Now I have told you."

John 20, verses 1-10 elaborates on what happened after Mary Magdalene left the tomb,

Letter to the Editor Showing the respect earned

Since I'm now 65 years old and have a gray and white Santa beard, it isn't much of a surprise that I'm "old school" in almost all of my ways. Some old school ways are out of date and it is probably a good thing that they have been replaced by more contemporary ways. However, one particular "old school" behavior has taken a brutal beating over the past 50 years and something needs to be done about it. RESPECTFUL BEHAVIOR toward our nation has been the target that too many citizens have launched attacks against for over half a century.

It really got rolling in my adolescent years. The generations preceding mine were not self-oriented. They put others and our country and their faith ahead of themselves. My generation in the 1960s decided that life was all about ME-ME-ME. The slogan back then was "do your own thing". What that translated into was: "give me everything what I want, when I want it and I want it now." We hard-packed that snowball of narcissism and sent it rolling down the mountain, never realizing the horrific damage that it would cause our country and our faith as it tumbled downhill. Let me give you an example of what I'm talking about. Maybe it isn't the best example, but it will surely make my point.

Recently a young photographer, Matt Munson, took a picture of two young girls playing on the Vietnam Women's Memorial in Washington D.C. The original purpose of the magnificent piece is best described by the sculptor, Glenna Goodacre: "My desire to create a lasting tribute to the American women serving in Vietnam is founded upon my deep respect for each of them, and my heartfelt payer for their 'healing and hope.' The emphasis of this tribute is centered on their emotions: their compassion, their anxiety, their fatigue, and above all, their dedication."

Munson commented on his photo on Facebook: "two little brats climbing over war memorial right in front of a veteran. The parents were laughing. It actually drew a crowd of spectators and the parents realized how evil they were being and quickly took off before I could take a picture of them all. The more I look at this photo the angrier I get." Me too, Matt.

But the two girls aren't the problem. For 50 years in our country we have allowed DISRESPECTFUL BEHAVIOR to be defined as part of American freedom: burning American flags and allowing high school students to refuse to recite the pledge of allegiance are just two examples. I love this country and I believe strongly in freedom of speech. However, there are anti-American actions and words that should not be allowed, in fact should be severely punished.

If a person burns an American flag, I believe they should immediately be expelled from our country and their citizenship cancelled FOR LIFE. "As a person sows, that shall they reap." (and I'm not talking about those old, tattered flags that are burned according to proper flag etiquette)

If a high school student refuses to recite the pledge of allegiance, then their parents should be immediately contacted and given an opportunity to correct the travesty by the following day. If the high school student still persists, then that student should immediately be expelled from our country and their citizenship canceled FOR LIFE.

If I had ever caught any of my kids climbing on any national memorial like those two girls did, they would not have wanted to sit down for a very long while. Oh, I guess that biblical practice of corporal punishment is another example of my "old school-ness."

Oh well, old man, over and out. God bless.

If I could be anything else...

I love being a newspaper editor and a writer. But if there was anything else I could be, I'd be an auto mechanic.

That probably sounds surprising coming from someone with a desk job who has a college degree, but I love working on cars.

TIMOTHY HOWSARE

I consider myself a shade-tree mechanic. I have never done anything on the level of a professional mechanic, like front-end work, valve jobs or engine or transmission rebuilds.

But I've done more than just routine maintenance like changing the oil and replacing filters and hoses. Among other things, I've done brake jobs (disc and drums), replaced shocks and struts, replaced exhaust systems, replaced starters, alternators and water pumps.

I even replaced a carburetor once, a somewhat sophisticated job, by setting aside enough time to do the entire job without interruption. As I disassembled the old carb with its maze of vacuum hoses, I laid everything on the ground next to the car and when I installed the new carb, did everything in reverse. I completely replaced all the vacuum hoses and connectors. Those parts are cheap and it didn't make sense to put all the old hoses back on.

So why do I like working on cars so much? First and foremost, it's the problem-solving aspect. That feeling of satisfaction when you turn the ignition and the damn thing finally starts.

Secondly, cars don't talk back or get snooty. But people do.

In my job at the paper, I interact with people all day. While most of those interactions are positive, I do have

Texas Penal Code. Title 10, Offenses Against Public Health, Safety and Morals. I like that last word, ‘morals’... Try finding any morals with the owners of game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes. With politicians, too. I had to digress a tad... Chapter 47, Gambling. (Pay attention) A person cannot win more than 10 times the amount charged to play the game or device once or $5, whichever is less. On one play, if you walk out with more than $5 in winnings, tis against the law. Texas offers legalized gambling via the state lottery, two multi-state lotteries, a gazillion scratch off lotteries, horse racing and dog (greyhound) racing. Our state fathers in the know complain game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes siphon revenue from the lottery, thereby reducing funds that go to public education, health and social programs. Don’t hold your breath on our state lottery helping to fund education. Texas currently ranks 45th (2014) in public education funding. The fact is Texas lottery profits go into the General Revenue Fund which can be used for any expense of state government. After administrative expenses, big lottery winnings windup nowhere near a classroom. When law enforcement raids game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes; machines and computers are seized and the businesses are forced to close. An owner faces only a misdemeanor offense which is but a mere slap so to speak, atop his hand. By the time the hammer has come down, these two types of gambling businesses and others like them have reaped untold hundreds of thousands of dollars from hapless gamblers, so losing their seized property ($500 per machine) is but a mere slap atop the other hand. An owner simply pays his fine(s), then moves on and sets up shop in another city. Reiterating, Pampa now houses 10 storefront gambling venues, soon to be 11, some of which are free of legal restraints that most Americans have traditionally demanded for gambling businesses. With high powered lobbyists and lawyers working at the state legislature these two gambling enterprises have gone unchecked and proven worthy adversaries for law enforcement. Example: Owners and managers are neither licensed nor subject to criminal background checks. No one regulates the fairness and integrity of game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes. Who do you call for help? When you walk into a licensed casino east of us in Oklahoma or east of Texas in Louisiana or west of us in New Mexico or north of us in Kansas or south of us on a cruise ship in the Gulf of Mexico.... intent on gambling, one of the first signs you see that are requirements for legalized gambling operations are those pertaining to gambling addiction and how to seek treatment.

Legalized casino gambling by law must post addiction awareness and assistance numbers. If you get that brick betwixt your eyes gambling in the states I mentioned above, you at least will know who to call for help. The speed by which game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes are cropping up here in Pampa is remarkable. Is this the type of boom we want to see for our city? I see this nonsense as a two way street created by our state legislature. If there are to be no laws by which game rooms and Internet sweepstakes cafes are regulated, no wonder this boom and lookout, more will come. Perhaps our state legislature should get in gear and legalize casino gambling here in Texas? Why? There’s a lot of Texas money exiting our borders, and not returning. Ashamed Texas cannot reap more gambling income for... ahem, the General Revenue Fund. There’s many an unregulated storefront gambling operation taking Texans monies. What part of unregulated does our legislature not understand? Legalized casino gambling in Texas will kill unregulated storefront gambling in Pampa. Call your legislator.

to contend with some very unhappy people from time to time. Once last fall, I had a lady screaming obscenities at me — I thought I might have had to call the cops. Though out of frustration I’ve probably kicked a few cars in my lifetime, I’ve never had a call the cops on a single one. Shade-tree mechanics like myself are probably a dying breed because new cars are so sophisticated with all their computerized systems. It’s almost impossible nowadays for an average guy with a set of Craftsman wrenches to do anything on a car. I own a 2013 Hyundai Accent, and I’m embarrassed to say I don’t know where either the oil filter or the starter is on that thing. On cars earlier than, let’s say, 1990, I can pop the hood open, look around and say, “Oh, this one’s a six-banger,” “That’s the alternator,” “That’s the starter right there under the right side of the engine,” “That’s the coil over there. Gee, those plug wires look pretty bad,” and so on. It was a manly feeling to be able to point to and name all the parts on a car engine. Does my Accent even have plug wires? I’m assuming it does or how else would the spark plugs work, but I’ve never seen them. I know it doesn’t have mechanical linkages or a vacuum system. That question was answered on Friday when I happened to have lunch at an awards presentation at Roswell Honda. The shop manager was sitting at my table and I asked him if modern cars still have mechanical linkages (e.g. gas pedal to carburetor or fuel injectors; transmission shifter to automatic transmission) and he said no. It’s all electronic now. He did say, however, there is a cable that goes from the gear shifter to the transmission. Frankly, I don’t miss either mechanical linkages or vacuum systems. I’m sure I’m not the only one who remembers the days when you’d press on the gas and hear a hissing sound — tell-tale sign of a vacuum leak — coming from under the dash, but had no idea where it was coming from. And mechanical linkages? I had experiences with both throttle and transmission linkages on my 1974 Plymouth Valiant, and neither were pleasant. I’d be driving the Valiant, and for no apparent reason, the throttle would stick at 50 mph. I’d have to ride the brakes, pull over, whip out my great big screwdriver, open the hood, remove the air filter housing and unstick the throttle. Not fun, especially when it happened in heavy traffic or winter when the roads were slippery. Remember when the shifter for automatics was on the steering column? Remember how over time it would get loose and wobbly? And how it was hard to tell just by looking whether you were in neutral or drive? That was caused by the deterioration and wear and tear on the rubber grommets that held together the metal pieces in the linkage that went from the shifter on the column to the transmission housing. The shifter on my Valiant reached a point where I couldn’t get it out of “Park.”

And, as I recall, the car wouldn’t start either because there was something called a “neutral-start switch” and with the linkage bugged up — Ignition System Disengaged. I had my then-fiancée drive me to an auto parts store so I could buy new ones, taking one of the old grommets to show the auto parts guy what they looked like. Turns out one of the stores were closed because it was a Monday federal holiday — either Memorial Day or Labor Day — I can’t remember which. But what I do remember is I absolutely had to drive my car on a trip Tuesday morning, so it was imperative to fix the car that day. Then an idea popped into my head. Hardware stores sell grommets in all shapes and sizes and are open on most holidays. So we went to a hardware store and I picked out a little bag of grommets that closely matched the ones on my Valiant. Knowing they wouldn’t be a perfect fit, I also bought a bag of heavy-duty rubber bands that I could wrap around the grommets and the metal parts they were intended to connect. Guess what? With a little patience and fussing around, my “generic-grommets-with-rubber-bands-trick” worked. The car started and shifted through all gears. I figured this would work as a temporary fix. But after I found out how much the “real” grommets from the auto parts store cost, I decided to leave the hardware store grommets on the car and replace the rubber bands, which were not meant to be exposed to the elements, every couple of months. That worked just fine and I didn’t have to spend any more money on that problem. The Grommet Caper was probably my most clever car fix. The second most clever fix, or more accurately, work around, was figuring out how to hot-wire my 1974 Chrysler New Yorker. I did get some help over the phone from my late father, who knew 10 times more about cars in his sleep than I did while awake. The ignition switch on the steering column went out, an expensive problem, but I couldn’t afford to take it to a shop until pay day. I remember opening the hood and using a copper wire with alligator clips at each end to bypass some of the circuitry in the ignition. The tricky part — because if not careful I could have gotten electrocuted — came next. Wearing gloves, I would take a great big screwdriver with a rubber handle and hold it to an electrical contact on the starter while simultaneously touching the screwdriver blade to some sort of electrical module on the firewall. If I did it right, sparks would fly and the starter would crank. Quickly, I’d pull away the screwdriver and jump behind the wheel to give it more gas. While I certainly don’t miss how often cars would break down in the old days (in the 14 years I owned my 2000 Chevy S10 the only expensive part I had to replace was the alternator), I do miss getting under the hood with my tools and fiddling around. I’d love to find something like a 1978 Aspen station wagon with a slant-225 to own as a beater car along with my Hyundai. I can replace an alternator on an old Mopar in 15 minutes or less. It would take me longer than that to find the alternator on my Hyundai.

“Early on the first day of the week, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene went to the tomb and saw that the stone had been removed from the entrance. So she came running to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one Jesus loved, and said, ‘They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, and we don’t know where they have put him!’ “So Peter and the other disciple started for the tomb. Both were running, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. He bent over and looked in at the strips of linen lying there but did not go in. Then Simon Peter came along behind him and went straight into the tomb. He saw the strips of linen lying there, as well as the cloth that had been wrapped around Jesus’ head. The cloth was still lying in its place, separate from the linen. Finally the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, also went inside. He saw and believed (They still did not understand from Scripture that Jesus had to rise from the dead.). Then the disciples went back to where they were staying.” Later that day, two of Jesus’ followers were walking to the town of Emmaus and Jesus appeared to them. Jesus interacted with them and many others over the next 40 days even showing his the wounds on his hands and his feet to a doubting disciple. Jesus explained to his followers why he had to suffer, die, and rise again. He instructed them to proclaim the gospel Jesus then led his followers to Bethany, blessed them, and ascended into heaven. The Easter bunny’s story is one of search and find. It is one of “if you can find an egg, you get something sweet to eat.” Jesus’ story is one of “ask and you shall receive.” It is the story of giving the gift of eternal life to all who ask. The Easter bunny story is one of immediate gratification. Jesus’ story is one with everlasting consequences. My challenge to you today is not about a tradition that came to us from Germany. What you do with your family and the Easter bunny is up to you.

But don’t let the Easter bunny get in the way of the true meaning of Easter and that is the story of a man who died and then conquered death so that others may have the gift of eternal life. More than just a thought... Rick Kraft wishes you a blessed and meaningful Easter holiday. To submit comments, contributions, or ideas, e-mail torkraft@kraftandhunter.com or write to P.O. McDonald's to test all-day breakfast beginning in April

NEW YORK (AP) — A McMuffin for dinner? It might happen, as McDonald's plans to test an all-day breakfast at some locations in the San Diego area starting next month.

The company said in a statement that the test is in response to customers who have said they'd like to eat breakfast foods outside the typical morning hours that they are served.

The world's largest restaurant chain said the test will include a partial menu and feature some of McDonald's breakfast sandwiches and hash browns. The company didn't say which sandwiches would make the cut.

Fans of McDonald's breakfast menu have long wanted the option to get breakfast at McDonald's after 10:30 a.m. But offering both the breakfast and lunch menu had been considered logistically impossible, given the tight kitchen spaces of the restaurants.

McDonald's had even tweeted about the topic in February, saying it doesn't serve breakfast all day because its grills "just aren't big enough for breakfast and lunch."

Still, Jeff Stratton, head of McDonald's USA, said in an interview with The Associated Press that same month that the company was taking a look at how it could make breakfast available later in the day.

The push to make breakfast outside normal hours partly reflects how McDonald's is working to keep pace with shifting habits. In particular, executives have noted that customers increasingly want foods personalized to their tastes and schedules.

McDonald's said Monday that it was too early to speculate on any outcomes from the test.

Janney Capital Markets had released an analyst note earlier Monday saying that their industry sources had told them that McDonald's planned to test all-day breakfast in the U.S. The analyst note was released before McDonald's confirmed the report.

"Having those breakfast items available to sell all day would also serve as a reminder to customers (and the media, and Wall Street.) that McDonald's does indeed have craveable food to sell," Janney analyst Mark Kalinowski wrote.

Shares of McDonald's Corp., based in Oak Brook, Illinois, added 90 cents to $97.86 in afternoon trading.

New life commits to reaching out to Pampa in all areas of the township with special emphasis to our Latino brothers and sisters.

Our worship will be a reflection of our multi-ethnic mixture of disciples including Christian Latino music, contemporary music as well as the traditional hymns and songs of the church.

Outreach will have as its goal to produce new believers who in turn are able to witness effectively and make disciples who will in turn continue this cycle.

This will be effected through small group bible studies, both Bi-lingual services, and bibles."

Why getting patients on their feet may speed recovery in ICU

WASHINGTON (AP) — The intensive care unit is a last frontier for physical therapy: It's hard to exercise patients hooked to ventilators so they can breathe.

Some hospitals do manage to help critically ill patients stand or walk despite being tethered to life support. Now research that put sick mice on tiny treadmills shows why even a little activity may help speed recovery. It's work that supports more mobility in the ICU.

"I think we can do a better job of implementing early mobility therapies," said Dr. D. Clark Files of Wake Forest Baptist Medical Center in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, who led the research and whose hospital is trying to get more critically ill patients up, ventilator and all.

Hospitals have long nudged less critical patients out of bed, to prevent their muscles from wasting away. But over the past several years, studies in ICUs have shown that some of the sickest of the sick also could benefit — getting out of intensive care sooner, with fewer complications — once it's medically feasible for them to try.

This isn't just passively changing a patient's position. It could involve helping them sit on the side of the bed, do some arm exercises with an elastic band or in-bed cycling, or even walk a bit with nurses holding all the tubes and wires out of the way. It takes extra staff, and especially for patients breathing through tubes down their throats, it isn't clear how often it's attempted outside specialized centers.

At Wake Forest Baptist, a physical therapist helped Terry Culler, 54, do arm and leg exercises without dislodging his ventilator tubing, working up to the day he stood from the bedside for the first time since developing respiratory failure about three weeks earlier. "I cheered, I was clapping," his wife, Ruanne Culler of Lexington, North Carolina, said after two therapists and a nurse finally helped him to his feet.

Biologically, why could such mild activity help? Files focused on one especially deadly reason for people to wind up on a ventilator: acute respiratory distress syndrome, or ARDS, the problem Terry Culler battled. It strikes about 200,000 Americans a year, usually after someone suffers serious injuries or another illness such as pneumonia, and it can rapidly trigger respiratory failure. Survivors suffer profound muscle weakness.

Files' team injured the lungs of laboratory mice in a way that triggered ARDS. The animals were sick but still breathing on their own, and walked or ran on a treadmill for a few minutes at a time over two days.

The surprise: That short amount of exercise did more than counter wasting of the animals' limbs. It also slowed weakening of the diaphragm, used to breathe. And it tamped down a dangerous inflammatory process in the lungs that Files suspects fuels muscle damage on top of the wasting of enforced bed-rest.

"It's not only putting a load on the legs," Files explained. "It's something systemic."

When certain white blood cells stick inside ARDS-affected lungs too long, they slow healing. The lungs of the exercised mice contained fewer of those cells — and their blood contained less of the protein that activates them, Files reported in the journal Science Translational Medicine this month.

Then Files examined blood frozen from ARDS patients who had participated in an earlier Wake Forest Baptist study comparing early mobility to standard ICU care. Sure enough, patients who had gotten a little exercise harbored less of that protein.

The new research adds to the biologic rationale, but there's already enough evidence supporting early mobility that families should ask whether their loved one is a candidate, said ICU specialist Dr. Catherine Hough of the University of Washington, who wasn't involved with Files' study.

She's surveying a sample of U.S. hospitals and finding variability in how often ICUs try, from those that help a majority of critically ill patients stand to others where no ventilated patients do.

Obviously key is whether the patient can tolerate movement. But so is whether hospitals keep ventilated patients sedated despite research showing many don't need to be, Hough said.

Back at Wake Forest Baptist, Ruanne Culler remembered her father being kept sedated while on a ventilator at another hospital, so she was surprised that physical therapy was an option for her husband. It began once Terry Culler was medically stable, and he scribbled notes saying he wanted the exercise.

"It's given him something to look forward to," she said a few weeks before he was released from the hospital.

"Ask about it every day," University of Washington's Hough advises families. "One of the key messages to ICU families is that critical illness changes frequently. On Monday, the patient might have a good reason not to be moving forward with mobilization, but there's a very good chance it's different on Tuesday."

Selena's dad: Mixed feelings about fans marking star's death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Twenty years after Selena's murder, the Latin world will remember "The Queen of Tejano" with concerts, lookalike contests, dances and a massive festival. But her father has mixed feelings about the celebrations.

"Of course I'm happy that, today, people remember Selena more than ever," Abraham Quintanilla III said via phone from his office in Corpus Christi. "But, as Jehovah's Witnesses, we don't celebrate deaths or birthdays, and we don't want people to think we're behind all the festivities.

"It's crazy. It grows every day with events everywhere, but we're not organizing them. Our family never got together every year on the day of her murder, because there's nothing to celebrate, and this year won't be the exception," he added. "We remember our daughter every single day. We don't need a special day to remember her."

Selena began performing as a child, singing in Los Dinos, a band formed by her father that featured her brother A.B. on bass and sister Suzette on drums. She won a Best Mexican-American Album Grammy for "Live," had several hits in the U.S. and was about to cross over to the English-language pop market when, on March 31, 1995, she was murdered by Yolanda Saldívar, the president of her fan club.

Her posthumous album, "Dreaming of You," which was mostly recorded in English, topped the Billboard 200 chart and stayed atop the Latin charts for nine months.

Saldívar is serving a life sentence in her death.

Despite his reservations, Quintanilla has given his blessing to one event — the Festival de la Flor, featuring A.B. Quintanilla and the Kumbia King All Starz; Selena's widower and former Los Dinos guitarist Chris Pérez; Little Joe & La Familia; Los Lobos and others. Corpus Christi's Conventions and Visitors Bureau will host the festival April 17-18. Selena was born on April 16, 1971.

Tickets will cost no more than $5 and the city expects attendance to hit 50,000.

"It will be the first edition of an annual festival that will grow every year," Quintanilla said.

In addition, Corpus Christi will host a Selena Tribute at Molina Veterans Park on March 31.

But Selena's celebrations don't stop there. The Historical Museum of Lake Jackson — the city where Selena lived until age 9 — is showing an exhibition of Frank Herring photographs of the star, through April 18.

In San Antonio, where Selena won nine consecutive Tejano Music

Awards, Selena's face graces the cover of the Current — a weekly English-language magazine. On Saturday, a public relations firm will shoot a tribute video featuring Selena lookalikes. And in April, the city will host a 5K "Bidi Bidi Fun Run" with all proceeds going to the Selena Foundation, which aims to help children in crisis. One of her hits was called, "Bidi Bidi Bom Bom."

California, Arizona, New York, Illinois, Colorado, Nevada and other states will play host to a variety of Selena commemorations, including concerts, lookalike contests, an exhibition, karaoke nights and a drag tribute show. The two main Spanish-language TV networks in the U.S. will air special Selena programming this weekend.

A.B. Quintanilla insists Selena's music has not dated, citing the hit "Teconocumbia."

"If you play a Selena cumbia and compare it with any other record from today, it sounds as if it had been recorded yesterday," he said.

Northeast, despite highest gas costs, resists more pipelines

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — There is near universal agreement that the Northeast has to expand its energy supply to rein in the nation's highest costs and that cheap, abundant, relatively clean natural gas could be at least a short-term answer. But heels dig deep when it comes to those thorniest of questions: how and where?

Proposals to build or expand natural gas pipelines are met with an upswell of citizen discontent. At the end of last year, a Massachusetts route selected by Texas-based Kinder Morgan generated so much venom that the company nudged it north into New Hampshire — where the venom is also flowing freely. During this winter's town meetings, a centuries-old staple of local governance in New England, people in the nine towns touched by the route voted to oppose the project.

That Northeast Direct line is one of about 20 pipeline projects being proposed throughout the Northeast, where savvy environmental and political forces combine with population density to provide a formidable bulwark. There's another reason the loudest protests are all coming from the region: They're where the gas is, waiting just east of the gas-rich Marcellus

Shale region. "Everyone seems to know the Northeast has a pipeline capacity problem, but not many seem to be willing to make many concessions to fix that problem," said Andrew Pusateri, senior utilities analyst for Edward Jones.

And these are folks who pay a lot to stay warm in the winter and keep the lights on in summer. According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration, New Englanders paid $14.52 per thousand cubic feet of gas in 2014, compared to $10.94 for the rest of the nation. ISO-New England, which operates the region's power grid, said in its 2015 Regional Electricity Outlook that natural gas availability is "one of the most serious challenges" the region faces as more coal and oil units go offline.

The Kinder Morgan plan would take gas from the plentiful Marcellus Shale region of Pennsylvania and pump it through a 36-inch line from Wright, New York, to Dracut, Massachusetts. Along the way, it would cut across a 70-mile stretch of southern New Hampshire, tickling the Massachusetts line. About 90 percent of the project would be along an existing power line corridor.

Homer Shannon and his wife raised three children on their suburban plot in Windham, New Hampshire, where the pipeline would pass a few hundred feet from their house. The retired high-tech salesman is part of a 10-family group of neighbors opposed to the pipeline's route.

"This whole Northeast Direct thing is just fraught with question marks," Shannon said. "Why in the hell is it in New Hampshire anyway? They want to get it from New York to Massachusetts and if you draw that line on a map, it sure doesn't go through New Hampshire."

Opponents — on the route and far from it — worry about environmental and scenic harm, lower property values, the potential for accidents and the idea that relying on natural gas only forestalls a switch to more renewable sources like wind or solar.

"It would be really nice if, as a region, we had a coherent energy policy that stated, 'These are the things we need to do to improve our energy situation,'" Shannon said. "And if one of those things is I have to sacrifice part of my backyard for the greater good, I'd be willing to have that discussion. But I don't see it that way. I see it as them enriching themselves on my back and I don't like that."

In New York and Pennsylvania, the 124-mile Constitution Pipeline has also fanned flames of opposition, some of it pegged to the price the gas company is paying to take land. Of 651 landowners in New York and Pennsylvania affected by the $700 million pipeline project, 125 refused to sign right of way agreements. Condemnation proceedings undertaken by Constitution have largely resolved the remaining disputes, either through settlements or access granted by a judge.

Donald Santa, president and CEO of the Interstate Natural Gas Association of America, said it follows that the most complaints would come from the Northeast because that's where most of the pipeline activity is happening, largely because of the boom enabled by the Marcellus Shale.

"Having so much of this gas literally on the doorstep of the market has really increased the need to get the gas to consumers," Santa said.

Richard Wheatley, a spokesman for Kinder Morgan, said the company's pipeline is not the only one getting pushback. He declined to address the opposition specifically but said the company continues to reach out to landowners and others as the siting process moves along. The company expects to file a certificate with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission this year.

Pusateri, the Edward Jones analyst, said part of the resistance may also be inflamed because of how the gas gets out of the ground. The Marcellus Shale gas is extracted using hydraulic fracturing, or fracking. The process, which blasts chemical-laden water into wells to crack open rock, has drawn heavy criticism. In

New York, much of the antipathy toward pipelines was driven by the anti-fracking sentiment that resulted in Gov. Andrew Cuomo's ban on shale gas development in New York.

"All major projects have some opposition, but I would say this pipe has garnered more attention and protests and gained more steam than average," he said.

"I think Kinder has done what they can to move the right of way of the pipe as much off of people's property as possible. They can do this by utilizing utility easements at times. I don't know that opposition really softens."

Game show is lottery, Monopoly combo; Billy Gardell hosts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It sounds like a Swiss Army knife version of a TV game show: a combination of a venerable board game, state lotteries, Las Vegas and seasoned comedian Billy Gardell as host.

The result is "Monopoly Millionaires' Club," a syndicated series that its creators say draws on the board game's "iconography" — Get Out of Jail and Pass Go cards and such — while morphing it into something new and telegenic.

"Watching people play Monopoly for an hour probably wouldn't be that exciting," said executive producer Kevin Belinkoff. Instead, he said, the prime-time show that debuts this weekend (check local listings for day and station) looks for adrenaline in its structure, including giving players in participating state lotteries a shot at getting into the game and every studio audience member a stake in the outcome.

There's serious cash to be won. The show has taped 12 episodes so far and produced a pair of $1 million winners and other contestants who have claimed prizes in the $200,000 neighborhood.

"There's such a rush when somebody wins life-changing money," said Gardell, the "Mike & Molly" CBS sitcom star who was looking to emcee a game show writ large.

"I didn't want a middle-of-the-road show or a so-so show. I wanted a big game show," he said, and found it in "Monopoly Millionaires' Club."

Future contestants will be drawn from those who purchase Monopoly Millionaires' Club scratcher tickets, said Steve Saferin, president of Scientific Games Properties, a division of instant-win lottery games seller Scientific Games. The company has a licensing deal with Monopoly maker Hasbro Games.

The scratchers include codes that, entered online, can help a player get into a drawing to win a trip to Las Vegas and an appearance on the game show. The show will be available in most TV markets, but only 14 state lotteries are involved at this point, a spokeswoman said.

Players for the first dozen episodes were drawn from a Monopoly-themed, multi-state lottery based on picking winning numbers. That game was dropped by states that said it failed to meet sales projections.

The show's action takes place in a studio built on a Vegas casino parking lot, with the audience of contestants divided into five sections. A person from each section is chosen at random to play one of various Monopoly-inspired games devised for the show, with the winnings split by those in the section.

The climax comes when a player decides whether to risk his or her winnings for a chance at up to $1 million, also to be shared.

"Everybody has a stake in the game," not just one contestant, Belinkoff said. The show also differs from others on TV because of how lady luck counts in the selection of players, he said.

"Our contestants are not cast. They are totally chosen at random," he said. "Which, as a producer, totally terrified me because you never know who you are going to get. But what it's given us is a very refreshing look at real people winning real money."

Does the added scratcher incentive of making it on to a TV game show increase the inducement for people to gamble?

"There's so much gambling in the U.S. that another lottery game isn't going to move the needle," said Saferin.

Lady Harvesters storm out to early lead, run-rule Perryton 12-0

BY ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvesters (2-0, 8-11) hosted the Perryton Rangerettes on Saturday afternoon for their home district opener.

Freshman Gracee Gill started the game in the circle for the Lady Harvesters. Perryton had a ground out, a single and then their threat ended with a double play as the batter popped up to the catcher, junior Kassie Jerome. Jerome then threw to junior Jacie Stuebaker at first for the third out.

Junior Cameron Schaub walked to start the bottom of the first for Pampa, but that was all the threat Pampa would bring in the first.

"I think they've done a lot of growing up and I'm proud of where they're at. I think those early bumps and bruises tend to make you grow as a team. We're hitting our stride when we need to," head coach Bobbi Gill said.

After one, the score was tied 0-0.

Perryton went quietly in 1-2-3 order in the top of the second. Gill struck out one batter in the inning. Junior Ally Roberson made a nice catch on a fly ball in left field and junior Shiann Regalado tossed over to Stuebaker for another one of the outs in the inning.

Sophomore Kaylee Arnzen smashed a homer over the left field wall to start the scoring for Pampa in the second. Stuebaker then doubled to left. Roberson reached on a fielder's choice.

Senior Tori Robles reached on a fielder's choice. Gill reached on an error and Stuebaker, Roberson and Robles all scored on the play.

Schaub then walked in her at-bat and junior Brittney Gonzalez hit a triple to center to score Gill and Schaub. The Pampa threat ended there but not before they put seven runs on the board. Gonzalez also came home to score in the inning.

After two, Pampa led 7-0.

Perryton went down in 1-2-3 order again with three straight fly outs. One to Schaub, one to Regalado and one to Arnzen in foul territory.

Regalado singled to short in the bottom of third. Robles then singled to center and Regalado came home during her at-bat on a passed ball. Gill singled to left. Robles scored on an error.

After three, Pampa led 9-0.

Perryton was able to get a couple runs on base with a walk and a single in the top of the fourth, but that was all she wrote for the Rangerettes that inning.

Gonzalez reached on an error to begin the fourth. Jerome walked. Junior Cherub Whittington courtesy ran for Jerome. Arnzen walked. Junior Raeli Walker singled to short to score Whittington.

Regalado singled to right to score Arnzen. Roberson singled to short. Robles walked and Walker came home on the play.

Pampa added three more runs.

After four, Pampa led 12-0.

Perryton was now down to their final three outs of the game as they faced a possible run-rule.

The first batter singled to second to start the inning. The next batter flied out to Roberson. The next batter reached on a fielder's choice as Gill threw to Jerome to get the batter out trying to score a run.

The final out came on another fielder's choice as Arnzen threw to Schaub for the force at second.

Final/5: Pampa 12, Perryton 0.

"It took us a little while to find our stride and to figure out the combination that we need to have. And to figure out each other. When you graduate a battery like we had and some starting positions we had in place for a couple of years, it takes a while to get comfortable with what you got coming in," Gill said. "I think the girls have adapted. I think they have found that comfort and that chemistry that needed to be there."

Gracee Gill pitched the entire game, struck out two, walked one, allowed three hits, no runs and got the win. She was 1-3 with three RBIs and a run scored from the plate.

Cameron Schaub was 0-1 with two walks, a stolen base and a run scored. Brittney Gonzalez was 1-3 with two RBIs and a triple. Kassie Jerome was 0-2 with a walk and stolen base. Kaylee Arnzen was 1-2 with a walk, an RBI, a home run and two runs scored. Jacie Stuebaker was 1-2 with a run scored and a double. Raeli Walker was 1-1 with an RBI and a run scored. Shiann Regalado was 2-3 with a run scored, an RBI and two stolen bases. Ally Roberson was 1-3 with a run scored. Tori Robles was 1-2 with a walk, an RBI and two runs scored. Cherub Whittington was 0-0 with a run scored and a stolen base.

"Most of our field has come back from last year and is pretty experienced. Their comfortable with each other. It's just a matter of making sure they are comfortable with what we got in place," Gill said. "Our pitchers have come on and thrown well for us. They are throwing us outs and we just gotta make them."

Gill said she is pleased with the total team effort she has been seeing.

"I think every game we play seems to be a total team effort. We have the lineup set the way it is so that it is top to bottom set up. Where you are deadly from the top to the bottom. It's set up where you got speed in the right places and power in the right places. You're a threat no matter where you come up in the lineup. We have it set up that way for that reason," Gill said. "That was the key today (Saturday). Our big RBI places came up and were effective in our five, six and nine positions. That's where we came out in our key RBI places. Six and nine cleared the bases twice. That's not usually where you see that happen. That's all you can ask for."

Gill continued to praise the team effort.

"Good quality at-bats and putting the ball in play when you need to. Round the bases smart and effectively. And playing defense. I think we only had two or three strikeouts. Defense doesn't have a chance to go to sleep," Gill said. "I think we walked one batter, everything else was put in play and our defense made plays. Can't ask for anything more than that."

The Pampa Lady Harvesters will be back in action at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday in Borger for their third district game.

Harvesters bats never come alive in 3-1 loss

By ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Harvesters (0-1, 6-6-1) hosted the Perryton Rangers on Saturday afternoon for their district opener game.

Senior Brody Gaines started the game on the bump for the Harvesters. Perryton hit a single to start the game and the next batter hit a sacrifice to move the runner over. Gaines struck out one batter in the inning and the final out was recorded on a grounder to junior Cade Engle who tossed over to fellow junior Ryan Lee for the out at first.

Pampa's first two batters struck out in the bottom of the first. Engle hit a single to second base but that was the end of the threat for Pampa.

After one, Pampa and Perryton were tied at 0. The Rangers went down in 1-2-3 order in the second with a fly out to junior Colton Thompson. A ground out to Gaines who tossed to Lee for the out. The final out was a ground out to Engle who tossed to Lee.

Lee walked to lead off for Pampa in the second. Junior Rhett Harden singled to the pitcher.

Thompson reached on an error and the bases were loaded. Lee was thrown out at home to end the threat for Pampa.

After two, the game remained tied at 0. "We had a bunch of balls right at people. Rhett Harden had two balls right at the second baseman. Adam Zuniga had the hard line drive to third to end the game," head coach Kaleb Snelgrooves said.

Perryton was able to get one run across in the top of the third but it could have been worse. Gaines walked the first two batters and the next one singled to center. Gaines was able to buckle down and struck out two batters.

The final out was recorded by Ryan Lee snagging a ball in foul territory.

"He (Brody) worked himself out of jams. They took the lead on us on two infield singles. You can't do anything about that. You just gotta tip your hat. They got it done there. He worked out of some jams and got it done," Snelgrooves said.

Engle singled to second to start the bottom of the third for Pampa. He advanced to third on an error. Junior Adam Zuniga then hit a single to short to knock in Engle. The threat ended there for Pampa.

After three, we were still tied but this time at 1. Perryton had two singles right off the bat in the fourth and Gaines found himself in another jam. The first out came on a sacrifice bunt that failed as Gaines tossed to Zuniga for the force at third. A double play was recorded by sophomore Brendon Woelfle to Lee. Woelfle caught an out then tossed to first for the double play.

Pampa went down 1-2-3 in the bottom of the fourth.

After four, the game stood tied at 1. Perryton had nothing going for them in the fifth as the first batter grounded out in front of the plate and senior Ty Hooper picked it up and threw to Lee for the out. The next out came on a line drive caught by a diving Engle. The final out was a fly ball to Harden.

Engle singled to right to try and start a scoring threat for Pampa. Zuniga also singled to short, but that was all she wrote for the Harvesters.

After five, it was still tied at 1-1. Gaines stayed in the game for one out of the sixth. That out was on a sacrifice, Hooper threw to Woelfle for the out at first. Woelfle then came in to pitch for Gaines after two runs came in to score. Woelfle struck out the first batter he faced, walked one and struck out the final batter of the inning.

Pampa went down in 1-2-3 order again in the bottom of the sixth.

After six, Pampa trailed 3-1. Woelfle recorded a third strikeout in a row to start the seventh. Then two runners got on base. The second out was recorded on a fielder's choice to throw the runners out at second and third.

Pampa came up to bat in the bottom of the seventh needing two runs to keep the game going.

Hooper was hit by a pitch to start the inning. Engle singled to short with two outs. Zuniga hit a hard liner to third that was caught for the final out of the game.

Final: Perryton 3, Pampa 1. "We did some good things and got some guys on the bases to score, we just couldn't get the big hit. We've kinda flirted with that all year," Snelgrooves said. "Last couple of games we kinda waited until the last minute and we tried to make it interesting there."

Brody Gaines pitched five and one-third innings. He struck out three, walked three, allowed three runs on eight hits. He was charged with the loss. Brendon Woelfle pitched the final one and two-thirds innings. He struck out three, walked one and allowed just two hits.

Cade Engle was 4-4 with a run scored. Adam Zuniga was 2-4 with an RBI. Rhett Harden was 1-3. Ryan Lee was 0-2 with a walk. Not one Harvester got an extra base hit in the game. Pampa left nine runners on base. "Our kids played very, very well. I am very proud of their effort. 3-1 ballgame. You can't ask for anything better than that on a Saturday afternoon like this," Snelgrooves said.

The Pampa Harvesters will be back in action at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Borger.

Harvester soccer team plays playoff warmup game

By EVAN GRICE
Special to The Pampa News

WICHITA FALLS — While most of the high school teams across the state of Texas were playing in the first round of the playoffs this past weekend, that wasn't the case for the Pampa Harvesters boys soccer team.

Having already been awarded with a bye in the first round of the playoffs, the Harvesters made the trip to Memorial Stadium in Wichita Falls to take on another team who was granted a bye, the district 9-4A Co-Champion Gainesville Leopards.

Unfortunately, the trip didn't reap the rewards many would have wanted, as GHS used a three-goal second half to overpower Pampa and eventually claim a 5-0 victory.

Pampa was very unlucky less than five minutes into the contest when Gainesville's Cristian Carranza sent in a shot that was deflected off a Harvester defender, eventually ending up in the back of the net.

Gainesville continued to pour the pressure on, but Pampa managed to dodge several bullets including a long-range effort from Miguel Sanez that rocked the crossbar.

Pampa though would eventually concede a second goal in the 26th minute when Daniel Chagolla managed to get just enough off a pass from Jamie Torres and put it in at the far post.

Pampa had a golden opportunity to get back into the game just before halftime when the Harvesters were awarded an indirect free kick inside the Leopards box.

However, costly miscommunication squandered the chance, and the Harvesters went into the half-time break down 2-0.

It was a much better showing from the Harvesters in the second half, as they almost caught the Leopards off guard less than two minutes after the break.

Justice Murray's solid run through the middle was nearly capped off with a goal, but his shot just missed the near post.

Moments later, Gainesville made Pampa pay for the missed opportunity.

Torres got the third goal of the match for the Leopards when his shot was slotted home less than six minutes into the second half.

Seconds later, Murray once again found space and this time forced a one-handed save out of the Leopards keeper.

Edgar Morales made it a 4-0 game for the Leopards, before Hector Sagrero capped off the scoring.

Following the contest, the teams had a practice penalty shootout, which the Leopards won 5-4.

Bryan Calderon, Moses Avila, Ismage Torres and Dario Barragan scored the goals for the Harvesters in the shootout.

Both of these teams will now move on to the Area round of the playoffs where Pampa will be taking on Wichita Falls Hirschi on Thursday April 2 from Lubbock Coronado High School.

Gainesville meanwhile will be taking on North Hills Prep on Friday night April 3 from Lake Dallas High School in Corinth.

DAILY Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, April 1, 2015:
This year you will be forced to deal with quite a few issues in your daily life. Perhaps you have focused on one specific area of your life and are slacking in other areas. You will see what this lack of attention has caused, though you will be able to change directions if need be. If you are single, you are likely to attract someone who is fun before September. This person could be of significance to your life. If you are attached, the two of you might need to reconstruct your life together. Learn to share more often and avoid being critical. Accept your partner as he or she is. VIRGO is drawn to you.
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ You easily could be irked by everything you have to do, including the challenges that are presented by others. Listen to where people are coming from, as their thinking might not be in line with yours. Know that this is likely the source of the problem. Tonight: Early to bed.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ (Where others lose their temper, your creativity finds a solution. Recognize that an off-the-wall comment is not directed at you. Detach and look at the big picture. Perhaps you will want to make some changes in order to avoid this type of nonsense. Tonight: Midweek break!)
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Tension seems to build in your immediate surroundings. You could be making a judgment about what your role is in a certain situation and what you "should" do. Take a break from this scenario before you make any decisions. Tonight: A friend surprises you.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Try not to let a judgment come out when dealing with several different people. The less judgmental you are, the more information you will gain. Perhaps your conclusion will be different as a result. Reach out for more information. Tonight: Hang out with friends.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Your awareness of some of the games that surround you could interfere with your interactions. Be more open to what is happening. Do not lose sight of what you want. You can't change people, but you can take good care of yourself. Tonight: Your treat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Your awareness of someone else's expectations could make you feel uncomfortable at times. You might want to share your discomfort, but can't find the right time. Your creativity will emerge as you seek answers. Avoid taking any risks. Tonight: You call the shots.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ You might decide to move forward with a key project or at least test the waters. You could be off on some of your judgments about how others are receiving this project. Take a step back and be more observant. You need to see the big picture. Tonight: Not to be found.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Zero in on what you want and expect from a situation that is near and dear to you. To your surprise, a meeting could prove to be very informative. Use others' criticism to strengthen your perceptions and actions. Tonight: Where your friends are.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You could be in a position where you must deal with a boss or an older relative. You probably won't be able to get away from the situation, and your choices might be limited. Why not just step up to the plate and clear up the issue now? Tonight: Out late.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Be willing to reach out to a loved one whose wisdom you value. You are able to listen to someone who is not involved in a discussion much better than someone who is actively involved. Curb a tendency to be overly controlling. Tonight: Follow the music.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ No one can deny the importance of a particular relationship in your life. In some way, the unconventional nature of the bond plays into its very existence. It would be wise not to follow a hunch with a purchase or an investment right now. Tonight: Relish a meal with a favorite person.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Someone whom you believed to be a friend might turn out to be otherwise. You could be taken aback and forced to review who your real friends are. Be sure to look at your relevance to them. Though you might be upset, this review will be beneficial. Tonight: Stretch your wings.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were chatting recently and the subject of sperm donation came up. He surprised me by saying he's vehemently against it, and then compared it to selling your body as in prostitution. He also mentioned he thinks it's disgusting because any kids we would potentially have might end up dating their half-siblings. We let the issue drop, but Abby, I have a secret.

In my early 20s, I participated in an egg donation program to support couples who were unable to get pregnant on their own. At the time, I didn't think much about it. I didn't want kids — and I doubt if I ever will — so I figured it was my contribution to the gene pool without having to raise little humans myself.

I never told my husband about it because it happened before we met. I do know that some of my eggs were successfully transplanted.

Should I tell my husband about my donations or keep quiet? We don't have kids, but are talking about trying in the near future. Would it be wrong for them to go out into the world not knowing about their half-siblings? — FERTILE MYRTLE

DEAR MYRTLE: The time to have spoken up was when your husband aired his feelings on the subject of sperm donation and infertility issues. You did a wonderful thing and with good reason. Your husband should be made aware of that, with no apologies.

If you do decide to start a family, considering that there are half-siblings out there, it would be wise to advise your children to have genetic testing done with their prospective spouses. (Because there are diseases caused by recessive genes, it's a good idea anyway.)

However, unless you are sure that you want to bring a child into this world, you shouldn't become a parent.

DEAR ABBY: I am 29 and on the fence about what to do. My 32-year-old boyfriend of a year and a half, "Aiden," proposed while we were in Europe last month. Aiden is a sweet guy who would do anything for me. I waffled and said I had to think about it. He bought a lovely engagement ring that he still has in his possession. We do not live together.

Aiden says he's certain he wants to spend his life with me. My problem is, I don't want to marry him. I am a professional, and Aiden is a tradesman with no money. Even though he kisses the ground I walk on, I don't think I'd be happy in the long term with him and would always wonder if I could have done better.

On the other hand, I am almost 30 and want children. It seems that nice guys who want to commit are in short supply. Should I settle for Aiden? Breaking up with him, as I did a few months ago for a couple of weeks, would crush him. But he has little social life and no hobbies — just me. — CONTEMPLATING IN ALBERTA, CANADA

DEAR CONTEMPLATING: Nice guys who want to commit may be in short supply, but please do THIS nice guy a favor and end the relationship before you hurt him any more than you already have. Tradesmen can be good providers, husbands and fathers, and Aiden has much to offer a woman who can appreciate him fully. Clearly, that's not you, so let him go.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.
