The City of Pampa Goes Mobile with official Community Pride App

SUBMITTED BY THE CITY OF PAMPA
The City of Pampa is pleased to launch Pampa Community Pride, the official platform for residents to access their government in a single location. With this new tool, residents can submit, track, and view nearby service requests through their smartphones and online. Residents can also use the app to find information about events, public facilities, events, front yard bulky waste collection times, and much more. The mobile app is part of an overall program for the City of Pampa to improve resident communications and service delivery. On the backend, the relevant staff redirects and responds to submitted requests through their customized workflow management system. The City of Pampa also uses the backend system to provide residents real-time status updates and comments on the submitted requests. The City launched the application in partnership with PublicStuff, an innovative civic software company that helps residents and local governments connect to improve the quality of life in their communities. City Manager Shane Stokes says that the app will allow the citizens to better communicate issues in our community, "I am very excited about the immediate change that this app and software will create for our citizens and our staff. What I am most excited about is that we are utilizing available technol-

Schlieve is new Athletic Director in Lefors

■ He was hired April 6 of this year and is also the head football coach.

BY ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

Derek Schlieve came to Lefors ISD as the new head football coach and athletic director on April 6. Schlieve resides in Lefors with his wife Sarah and sons, Camdyn and Xavier. Before coming to Lefors, Schlieve was the assistant head coach and defensive coordinator at Spring Hill ISD, a class 4A school in Longview. Schlieve coached at Mayville State University in Mayville, N.D. He was the head football coach there from 2011 to 2013. The program was 13-87 in their previous 100 games before he took over. In the three years he was there, he led them to a seven-win season and a trip to the conference championship game. It was Mayville State's first winning season in more than 23 years. He left the school with the second-highest winning percentage in the program's 109 year history. He earned his bachelor's degree from Mayville State University. He graduated magna cum laude in 2002 with a major in elementary education and a minor in coaching. He earned his masters' degree in sports management from St. Cloud State University in 2007, also graduating with magna cum laude honors. He was a four-year letter winner in college and twice named Academic All-Conference and once named Academic All-American. He also played in the National All Star Bowl at the linebacker position in Minneapolis, Minn., after his senior season. So why did he leave the college ranks to become a high school coach? And why did he

Special Olympics finishes season with a bang at Boy's Ranch

BY ZACHARY GREEN

The Pampa Special Olympics team traveled to Boy's Ranch last Saturday for their final track meet of the season. It was also the final athletic event for them until golf and bowling starts in the fall school year. Many of these events you will see multiple athletes receiving first place. That is because the athletes are in separate heats and they won their individual heat. Bill Formby placed first in the 50 meter dash. He also placed first in the softball throw. Elijah Palma placed first in the 100 meter dash. Patrick Tworck came in fourth. Liberty Bloxum came in first place. Justin Mitch-

Local veterans join forces to improve safety of medical treatments

■ Improvements to reduce risks for healthcare professionals and patients.

SUBMITTED

Pampa residents and military veterans, Antonio (Tony) Zavala and Andy Epps, have joined with a group of physicians to manufacture and market an innovative new product designed to eliminate the spread of infectious disease through exposure to blood in hospital, emergency room and military triage situations. The spread of infectious disease to healthcare workers was highlighted in 2014 in the United States and worldwide with the outbreak of the Ebola virus disease. While exposure in a medical setting includes vulnerability to a variety of bodily fluids, contact with a patient's blood products presents the greatest risk, primarily in an emergent situation. Of these situations, it is proposed that the highest risk of exposure to biological agents is due to unnecessary blood spill during IV manipulation while retrieving the needle from a peripheral intravenous catheter. In technical testing, the device provided consistent ease in inserting a peripheral line without the risk of blood backflow. Additionally, subsequent confidential sharing of the results with medical professionals in both a hospital and a military medical setting has been overwhelmingly positive. Zavala currently serves as president of Alpha Medical Industry

Facebook, part II

I've written here in the past about my liking for Facebook. I've heard many negative things about this social website, and while it is true that there is a lot of "junk" and "spam" posted, I have found it a very useful and gratifying outlet for my love of people. I can keep up with my two brothers—one in California and the other in South Carolina—and their families.

I can have a high school reunion at just about any time with a number of special friends without traveling outside of Texas. The last reunion I physically attended was twelve years ago, and it seemed that many of the "kids" never grew up. A few of my former classmates still live in California, and I often get to see pictures of the old school and the city I grew up in.

There are a number of sites whose names usually begin with "Born and raised in..." (You fill in the city) and my husband's home town of Waukegan, Ill. has a Facebook page. We get to see how the town is changing, what's still the same, exchange memories, and say hi to people we haven't seen in years. You wouldn't think that having a rare medical condition could provide blessings, but I have met some very special people who share this condition with me.

My friend Denise from Tasmania is one of those people whom I've met in person, and she and her husband, Barry, have become our very good friends. I've met a few others from the group personally as well, and those whom I have not met have become very important and special friends. We've made friends in other cities where we've lived, and kept in contact even though we've moved away.

Of course, we have made friends here in our new home. Nurses, therapists, beauticians, manicurists, various business people, pastors, church friends—even though we see each other regularly, we stay in touch on Facebook and it's like a big extended family.

Our Russian Blue cat, Boris, has brought us another circle of Facebook friends through the Russian Blue Cat group. We exchange ideas on these unique felines, share funny pictures and anecdotes, and challenges, and offer condolences when someone's cat dies. Through that group, I met a woman who was a chocolatier in New York City. Vivian made the most artistic and delicious gourmet chocolates, though she has since moved on to explore other avenues of interest.

My husband's Aunt Rose had given us an old lamp years ago, which had apparently been made out of a brass candlestick. On disassembling this lamp, we found that it was a very old candlestick made in Poland and used in Jewish religious services. I offered the candlestick to my chocolate-making buddy, who is Jewish, and she accepted and sent us a beautiful box of her gourmet chocolates in return. She recently told me she'll never get rid of that candlestick. My most recent friend is a young man in Uganda, Africa.

Frank Senyonjo, who was once a street kid, now runs an orphanage (Zion Children's Home) where he cares for 50 children, all orphans who were once on the streets. When Frank became ill recently with typhoid and malaria, I worried and prayed for him as though we had been friends for years.

I'm grateful that my years as an administrative assistant and secretary taught me computer skills, so that now at the ancient age of 69 I can enjoy a world-wide circle of friends and family. I've learned, laughed, cried, and generally enlarged the borders of my world more than I ever could have without Facebook. Just don't ask me to play games!

Watch Hillary run

I remember years ago asking then House Majority Leader Dick

SUSAN ESTRICH

Gephardt why we Democrats persisted in the losing game of trying to raise as much "soft money" as the Republicans. Gephardt, the son of a milkman, the spokesman for working people (and for unions, who for a brief time thought they could beat business at the money game), shook his head sadly. Unilateral disarmament, he asked. When the public doesn't even vote on the issue?

And we don't. Every four years, our government goes up for sale, and a few wealthy individuals and interests spend hundreds of millions of dollars courting the person who will become the most powerful person in the world, and we call it democracy. And as much as I hate the system, the cynicism it produces and the appearance of corruption it creates, I understand Hillary Clinton's announcement that she will not only exploit the Supreme Court's ill-thought decisions destroying the Water-gate reforms, but will personally solicit the "funny" money the Supreme Court now allows.

Barack Obama accepted the funds, but he didn't personally solicit them. Hillary will take the next step. Progress — if you think the sale of government to the highest bidder should command a higher price, because there's no doubt that Hillary will raise more by asking herself. Not to mention that her husband is capable of collecting some spare millions.

Disgusting? Sure. The Republicans will be out there calling Hillary a hypocrite for criticizing a system she is about to be in up to her eyeballs. But compared to what? Unilateral disarmament?

Money is the mother's milk of politics. Having more doesn't guarantee you a win, but having less is always worse than having more. And the people surrounding you have an insatiable appetite for more — for more polls and focus groups and sophisticated targeting and outreach, not to mention the old standbys of television, radio and mail.

I remember the days when the big costs were phones. No more. Technological superiority doesn't come cheap, and now that both parties — and not just the Republicans — are capable of raising hundreds of millions of dollars, the opportunities are endless. And the payoff? Where else does a mere $10,000 or $20,000 get you a personal conversation with the person whose decision could mean billions for your business or industry? Will that decision be influenced, even slightly, by something you say? Or might the mere fact that you were there, providing support, perhaps hosting a million-dollar event, be remembered by someone when a decision is to be made?

For all my cynicism, I don't think most people in politics are, consciously, for sale. There certainly are easier and more pleasant ways to make money. But it's insidious: If someone has reached out to you, supported you, written you a check for more than your parents ever made in their lifetimes, do you remember their name? Do you take their call? Are you grateful?

And of course we tell ourselves — we all do, everyone does — that we are not that bad, that perhaps they are giving because they already and independently agree with our views, that it isn't buying a vote, but supporting someone you agree with. But why are those people all of a sudden the candidate's best "friends"? Friends?

But more than friendship is at stake. And if Hillary wants to be president, she has decided she must not only play this game, but play it better than Democrats have in the past. She's probably right, which is the saddest part.

The Silence of the Lambs

Here's how it stands with Western civilization — what's left of it, I mean — insofar as various Westerners are concerned.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

You keep your lip buttoned whenever foes, internal as well as external, jump up and down on you, kick you around, make known their fondest wish is to do you in, ideals and all. You hope for the best while doing nothing.

You follow, that is to say, the counsel of "Jacques," who posted Monday on the New York Times' website, disburdening himself as follows concerning the Sunday shootings at the Mohammed poster contest in Garland, Texas:

"The Far Right is using 'freedom' as a stick to beat and provoke Muslims. Cartoons depicting the Prophet Mohammed do not advance the cause of freedom one iota. It is provocation pure and simple."

Maybe not so "pure," maybe not so "simple," Jacques. The Jacques line of thought is heavily represented in commentary on the shootings of the two men whose apparent goal was to disrupt, with hot lead, a lightly attended event of which I had been previously unaware: just 19 miles from my home.

The American Freedom Defense Initiative, New York-based organizer of the event, is under verbal assault for stirring up the animals (H. L. Mencken's delicious phrase). Why, if the AFDI folk hadn't invited ridicule of the Prophet, all would have been peachy!

I would venture that depends on your definition of peachy. If you mean quiet — well, yeah. Why quiet, nevertheless? Out of general agreement on first principles? Or out of intimidation: the self-suppression of viewpoints, honestly arrived at but depicted as rotten and shameful by "opinion-makers."

A shameful viewpoint, in these times of religious flux, is the unassailability of Islam, the religion that millions of migrants are bringing to the capitals of the nominally Christian West and insisting on practicing their own way, without reference to local norms. For instance, the opinion-makers consider it rude and boorish today to insist on the preponderant truth of Christianity, as narrated in the Creeds. Say all that stuff in church, if you must, but don't press your case outside, lest the sensibilities of "others" be offended.

When radical Muslim preachers, nevertheless, stir up jihad against the decadent, febrile West, we're counseled not to take with any great alarm the growing presence of such preachers — and the growing fervor of their followers. We're progressive Westerners; we believe in outreach and understanding.

For genuine progressives, such sentiments come naturally. Supernatural religion, contrasted with the religions of this world (e.g., private jets and sex-any-way-you-want-it) doesn't much interest today's elites. They can take it or, better yet, leave it. Can't we all just knock off this truth-claims stuff? Not really, inasmuch as "Truth," by definition, rises superior to competing claims. You see anyway why our progressive elites see no point in disputing or "insulting" Islamic truth claims. Who cares, you know?

Certainly, the elite assure us, no one should "insult" the Prophet (though insulting Jesus, the Second Person of the Trinity, and therefore superior to all prophets, seems no big deal to our taste-makers). Insult the Prophet and, hey, followers of his, the likes of the Garland Two, got guns! You wouldn't want to see them use those guns, would you? So — keep it down.

That the Garland Two wound up unnecessarily dead — victims of their own mental torments — is unfortunate, as I trust anyone would acknowledge. That the American Freedom Defense Initiative pulled the triggers in question is nonsense.

Who got to this new land first, Christians or radical jihadists? Who built the churches and democratic institutions and sunk deep the foundations of Western civilization — of all civilizations the freest and most generous? Who established here the freest, most democratic government in history, for all its latterday mishaps and misjudgments?

It is sad that two who enjoyed the undoubted blessings of a civilization not their own recoiled violently against that civilization. It is sadder yet to see this tale of malice and moral confusion play out 19 miles from the place I call home.

moved to tiny Lefors?
 “I was looking for a mutual agreement in a long-term contract. I don’t wanna leave when things are bad or go to a higher job when things are good,” Schlieve said. “It is a tight-knit fraternity in coaching and Texas could really be split up into five states.”
 Schlieve expressed to The Pampa News that he was looking for a place to get into sports administration, while remaining a coach.
 “In the upper midwest, they separate those jobs and usually only two a year come open like that,” Schlieve said. “In Texas, because there are so many schools you could have up to 400 or so a year open up. The jobs open up as soon as football season ends.”

 He talked with the previous athletic director and the superintendent at Lefors and everything came together for him to be hired April 6.
 “Coming in in the middle of the school year you don’t want to change a whole lot, but at the same time you don’t want the kids to think things will stay the same,” Schlieve said. “What I tried to do is keep it status quo for the golfers, tennis and track athletes until their season ended before making a lot of changes.”
 When asked what his goals were for Lefors he wanted to praise them for the success they have had so far.

 “I want to change the organization and efficiency of the program. I want to catch the girls program up and improve on that,” Schlieve said. “We already have a new weight room and we want to create a female coaching office to help the girls program.”
 He said that the majority of NFL players drafted in the recent draft were multisport athletes either in high school or college.
 “I want to stress our athletes to be versatile and be well-rounded. At this level you learn how to compete and develop as an athlete. At the college level they hone in on your skills for your specific position,” Schlieve said. “We are raising the bar of expectations for our players. Next April, we will look at where we are compared to this April and that will be the first benchmark to see the progress we’ve made. I’ve only been here a month and we have made a lot of headway.”

 Schlieve hopes to add coaches to his coaching staff. He said the previous AD spent the last season of his tenure as the only male coach, with only one female coach for the entire district.
 “I want the coaches and players to find their fit. I hope to get two female and two male coaches this season and eventually go to three for each that will give our athletes more individualized attention and make it more fair for them,” Schlieve said.

“There are good fits and bad fits. When you get a good fit in place, it is good for everyone involved. So far there has been a lot of excitement about the changes and there has been a positive response overall.”
 Another goal he has is to teach the kids how to compete because that teaches them how to compete in life and you will always be competing in life.
 “I want to teach them in a healthy manner and know that will pay off later in life,” Schlieve said. “It is always tough to come in in the middle of the year. You don’t want to disrupt the flow but you also don’t want to show the kids that you will allow what’s happening to continue to happen.”

Schlieve said the new weight room helps because the girls can go do weights while the guys do something else and vice versa. That is helpful since they share the same athletic period.
 “The biggest part of the move was to be able to be around the family more,” Schlieve said. “I want to be able to include them in activities. It is easier to go to a game knowing that the boys can go with me on the bus. The support from my family is the reason for taking a position like this.”
 Schlieve can be reached at Lefors at 806-835-2533. The Pampa News would like to welcome him and his family to Gray County and wish them the best of luck at Lefors.

SUNDAY Horoscope

A baby born today has a Sun in Taurus and a Moon in Aquarius.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, May 10, 2015:

This year you seem to be pushed by a need to achieve a lot in the outside world. For some of you, this goes beyond your professional life and will involve a community commitment. Your image transforms as a result. If you are single, a special person appears to be on the horizon. Be discreet, and don't reveal yourself too quickly. Part of the fun of this bond is the pleasure of getting to know each other better. If you are attached, be careful, as you could upset your family life if you don't give your sweetie enough attention. Schedule plenty of one-on-one time for each other. AQUARIUS seems more flexible than in the recent past.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Emphasize your friends, and get into the pleasant mood of the day. You might be dragging by the end of the day, as the mood for celebration and upbeat communication could be overwhelming. Tonight: Celebrate a mother.

This Week: Use Monday and Thursday to the max.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Invite others over to celebrate the day. You will add a special touch to this Mother's Day, which will be memorable and quite special. You have a tendency to treat others well. People flock toward you. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

This Week: You can't help but focus on a long-term desire.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Deal with a personal matter directly; you might feel out of sync until you do. You will share some news and strong feelings, and others will respond accordingly. A loved one could challenge your friendship with another person. Tonight: Read between the lines.

This Week: You become more direct.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Pace yourself, and know full well what is happening within your immediate circle. If you are not in the middle of the celebrations, it is only because you have something else even more important on your mind or calendar. Tonight: All smiles.

This Week: Worry less, and relax more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Ask for more from a loved one, if need be. You might want to celebrate the day in an unusual way, and it could surprise those around you. Listen to your inner voice regarding what would work best for you. Tonight: Be a friend first and foremost.

This Week: You are not in the position to be a critic right now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ You'll shoulder much of the responsibility that makes this a special Mother's Day for others. Pace yourself, as you will have much more to do than you might think. Someone could be upset, but you are more likely to realize it than he or she is. Tonight: Find a quiet spot.

This Week: Defer to others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You'll have a lot of fun with this holiday, especially if you aren't a mother. Indulge others, and let them know how valued they are. Good news surrounds a special friendship. Don't be surprised; this development has been a long time coming. Tonight: The more, the merrier.

This Week: Others will stand up to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ Curb a tendency to cocoon and be anti-social. It is quite possible that you won't succeed, but will have a great time at home, not answering your phone and playing the night away with just one dear friend. Don't forget to reach out to the mothers you know. Tonight: At home.

This Week: You could become a bit emotional from Tuesday on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Make calls in the morning. Use this Mother's Day as an excuse to touch base with many of the moms you know. A loved one or partner will share a lot of strong feelings that could surprise you. Discuss a potential vacation. Tonight: Listen to great music.

This Week: Make calls early Monday.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ A partner might go out of his or her way to indulge you. Make plans for the two of you, but be aware of the mothers in your life as well. You will want to express your feelings through a material gift. Others understand you well. Be yourself. Tonight: Be a duo.

This Week: Ask for what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You'll seize the moment, regardless of whether you are a mother. People gravitate toward you, as they like being around your upbeat attitude. Recognize what is happening between you and someone else. Tonight: All smiles.

This Week: Beam in what you want Monday.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Know what you need to do. You could be in quite a tizzy and not exactly sure about where you should turn. Have a discussion, if need be, but know that the answer lies within you. Calm down, and ask yourself what is most important to you. Tonight: Get some extra zzz's.

This Week: Read between the lines.

AAA: most holiday travelers in 10 years

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With more money in their pockets thanks to lower gas prices and an improved job market, AAA expects more than 37 million Americans to travel for Memorial Day, the most since 2005.

AAA said Friday that the number of Americans taking a trip of 50 miles or more will rise 4.7 percent to 37.2 million over the period May 21 to May 25. Nearly nine of 10 travelers, or 33 million, will drive to their destination, making for crowded highways.

Gasoline should be around $1 cheaper this Memorial Day. The average price for a gallon of gas Friday was $2.66. Last year on the holiday it was $3.66.

AAA says the number of people flying should rise 2.5 percent. A thriving stock market has boosted the net worth of wealthier Americans, who more easily can afford to fly for va-

The economy is strong enough to give consumers more confidence to travel. Employers added 223,000 jobs in April after a slow start to the year. Last year, job growth averaged 226,000 a month. Although wage growth is sluggish at 2.2 percent, combined with lower gas prices it does give consumers more disposable income.

AAA is suggesting cabin fever may play a role as well.

"Following a harsh winter, many Americans are trading in their snow boots for flip flops and making plans to start the season with a vacation getaway," said Marshall L. Doney, AAA's president, in a statement.

The total number of travelers and the number opting to drive should be the highest since 2005, when 44 million people traveled, 37.3 million of them by car.

4-H Fashion Show winners named in District 1 competition

16 from Gray County placed.

SUBMITTED BY TEXAS A&M AGRILIFE

AMARILLO - Panhandle 4-H members from 17 counties competed in the District 1 4-H Fashion Show recently at Bushland High School.

These 4-H youth advanced to this competition after placing first in their individual county competitions and the first place winners of the senior division will advance to Texas 4-H Roundup, which will be held June 8-12 at Texas A&M University in College Station, according to Shawnte Clawson, Texas A&M Agrilife Extension 4-H youth development specialist in Amarillo.

The clothing and textiles project consists of three divisions: constructing an outfit, buying an outfit, or designing, planning and illustrating an outfit. Public speaking is reinforced through individual contestant interviews, records are kept and judged and then the youth are able to participate in the public display, or style show, with their ensemble. Educational goals of the project include:

- Attain a broad knowledge of the 4-H project and related activities as to the way they improve family and community life.
  - Acquire life skills through project participation essential for becoming an active, skilled, productive and responsible citizen.
  - Adopt and apply the latest practices and research findings in the project area to everyday project experiences and work.
  - Develop an understanding from 4-H project training and experiences which can assist you in the future for choosing and preparing for a job.
  - Develop leadership skills that promote positive youth development.
- Youth also participated in Fashion Storyboard competition. The purpose of the Fashion Storyboard contest is to give 4-H members an opportunity to create a storyboard of their original design.

It also provides the members an opportunity to gain knowledge of the career responsibilities of a fashion designer and illustrator, enhance creativity and originality, and develop visual communications skills.

Poynor's Pointers

The last game.

It was 30 years ago but I still remember it like it was yesterday. I walked off the football practice field for the last time as a high school senior.

GREG POYNOR

We had a great year and were about to play in the State Championship game.

I still remember the feeling of sadness knowing that I wouldn't be competing on that field again.

It was only worse after playing the championship game.

It is hard for people to understand the feeling of finality when you know your high school career is over. All the hard work, the time in the weight room, summer workouts, two-a-days all over suddenly.

I saw that first hand after watching our softball team last weekend. I heard one of the girls crying saying "I'm a senior." I know how she felt.

That is why I try to tell all of my players, especially the seniors, to enjoy every minute. I tell them it will be over in the blink of an eye. We also tell them to play so hard that they have no regrets.

Don't look back and wish you would have worked harder or done more. When you step off that field for the last time, do it knowing you did everything you could to become the player you wanted to be. There is a famous saying that "all good things must come to an end."

That is definitely true for high school athletics. But the values, life lessons and memories will last a life time.

Greg Poynor is the head football coach and athletic director at Pampa High School. He can be reached at 806-669-4800.

One true champion, and this time the Big 12 means it

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Big 12 will only need one championship trophy this season.

Conference officials have agreed to break a tie for first-place in the standings with head-to-head results.

Last season, Baylor and TCU both finished 8-1 in the Big 12 and were deemed co-champions, even though the Bears beat the Horned Frogs.

After the conference had touted its full round-robin schedule and "One True Champion" slogan, the co-championship put the league and Commissioner Bob Bowlsby in an awkward spot.

Both teams were also left out of the College Football Playoff.

That won't be a problem anymore.

In the case of a tie between three or more teams, record among those teams will be used to determine a champion.

The next step would be the record against the next highest ranked team and then scoring differential in games between the tied teams.

If none of those break the tie, a draw will be held at the league office to determine the champion.

Ohio St.'s Jones tweets: Yay Cavs, boo to Noah, c'mon Tribe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Cardale Jones, who came from nowhere to lead Ohio State to the national championship in January, has had a busy 24 hours on Twitter.

First he cheered on the Cleveland Cavaliers in the NBA playoffs, then sparred verbally with Chicago Bulls forward Joachim Noah. Finally, he jokingly chided his hometown Indians for not letting him throw out a first pitch. That'll change, apparently — the baseball team says it's willing to set it up.

Jones got in trouble 2 1/2 years ago when he was just a substitute quarterback with tweet saying he came to Ohio State to play football, not go to class.

Then came the burst of tweets on Wednesday night and Thursday.

The bombastic, playful Jones — who has started just three college games — has more than 170,000 followers on Twitter.

And that number is growing despite no guarantee he'll start for the Buckeyes this coming season.

DAILY Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, May 11, 2015:

This year you often will be dealing with strong feelings. Some of you will manifest defensive behavior. You will be spending a lot of money on achieving a long-term goal. You also will have to tame a tendency to go overboard. You will be in a position of power within your community and/or workplace. Others will observe how you are able to navigate through difficult situations. If you are single, you are likely to meet someone of significance. If you are attached, a move or remodeling your home will be a mutual focus this year. GEMINI is charming but hard to get close to.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Don't lose your focus. You can accomplish a tremendous amount if you just keep your attention on the matter at hand. Use care with a neighbor or sibling, as misunderstandings could start up from out of the blue. Tonight: Take some much needed personal time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Others seem to be asking a lot of you. For some reason, you'll feel obligated to meet each request or challenge. Slow down and look at what you really want to do. You could be overwhelmed by others. A late afternoon meeting will be significant. Tonight: Hang with a pal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ You have the ability to see the big picture. How you handle a situation could change after some detachment. You'll gain new information through new insights. Observe a tendency to get frustrated when others don't seem to get your message. Tonight: In the limelight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Relate to one person directly, and make sure that your message is properly conveyed. Not everyone attaches the same symbolism to a word. Reiterating a statement several different ways likely will add power to your words. Tonight: Respond to an odd but interesting idea.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You might be concerned about an associate or a special loved one. Much information suddenly could come forward. A friend will want things to go his or her way, which is likely to put your friendship at risk. Exhaustion surrounds you. Tonight: Nap first; decide later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Try another approach or do something very differently from how you have done it in the recent past. A boss could start becoming more argumentative and difficult. You might want to distance yourself, as this person needs to work through a personal issue. Tonight: Out late.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You could be more in touch with a problem than you are aware. You can make light of it, but ultimately you will need to deal with the issue at hand. A conversation with a dear friend will give you another perspective to work with. Tonight: Make sure to get enough exercise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Stay close to home. In fact, if you can work from home, you could be much more content and happier. An associate might be challenging you a little too much for your taste. Work with the person's ideas rather than negate them. The results will be better. Tonight: All smiles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You are likely to notice someone get quite hostile or angry in a situation, whether it happens now or in the next few weeks. A person who reacts that strongly probably feels insecure or judged. It would be wise to give him or her some space for now. Tonight: Head home early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You could be taken aback by a situation that surrounds your finances. Communication will be necessary once you decide which way to go. Others seem to be somewhat combative in your daily life. Find out why. Tonight: You don't need to go far to have a deep conversation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You will be ready to head in a new direction. An issue could arise that you and your associates don't agree on. You probably will have to stall some in order to maintain a cohesive bond. Be gracious. It is better to move ahead with support. Tonight: Clear out some shopping.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Play it low-key throughout the day. You will note an intense, busy pace in the morning that could become frantic by midday. A problem with a family member is likely to flare up. Someone close to you could decide to put on war paint. Tonight: You feel better and better.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating "Brandon" for three years. I'm 19, going to a four-year college and I'm planning to move in with him. I enjoy his company and can see myself with him in the future, but I wish I hadn't met him so young. I wish I could have experienced more — other people and situations. I'm afraid I'm falling into a trap where it is more convenient to stay with Brandon.

I don't want to feel confined, but I also don't want to break up with him and find it was the worst decision of my life. We have discussed it. He said he will understand if I want to leave, but I'm afraid it might destroy him.

I enjoy being around Brandon, but I don't want to stay if it means missing half my life. He isn't the most attractive guy compared to others, so maybe that's where all this is coming from. More attractive guys talk to me, and I assume they would treat me as well as Brandon does. Maybe that's what has got me thinking. Some advice, please? — NOT SURE IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NOT SURE: Feeling as ambivalent as you do, do not move in with Brandon. To do so would be cheating both of you. Because someone seems more physically attractive than your boyfriend does not guarantee the person would treat you as well — or better — than Brandon does. However, this is a lesson you may need to experience firsthand.

It could also be a growth experience for Brandon to date others. He has already told you he will understand if you leave, so he may be emotionally stronger than you give him credit for. This does not mean you won't eventually wind up together, but it may make you both more appreciative of the special relationship you share because you will have something to compare it to.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl who would like to fix my relationship with my mom. I love her dearly, but sometimes it is difficult to spend time with her. We have different tastes in music, clothes and what is fun. I know she notices the distance between us and would like to spend more time together, but the things she suggests we do don't appeal to me.

Dad and I are close, which is probably because he's more like a kid. We have similar likes, and he isn't as over-protective as Mom is. We're more like friends than father and daughter.

I really want to be closer to Mom, but I don't know how to do it so we'll both be satisfied. Is this a normal teen thing? — MAKING AN EFFORT

DEAR MAKING AN EFFORT: Yes, I think so. However, I'm pleased that you want to build a closer relationship with your mother because, at your age, it's important. Being a mother these days isn't easy, especially if being the disciplinarian and drawing the line is a role that was "assigned" to her by an overly permissive father who prefers to be more of a pal than a parent.

You and your mother need to compromise regarding the things you do when you're spending time together. Part of the time, try the things she wants to do. If you do, you might surprise yourself and discover you enjoy them — and vice versa. Talk to her about your desire to be closer to her and give it a chance. I'm sure the result will be rewarding for both of you.
