Representative Joe Kilgore of McAllen is author of the bill. Kilgore said the money involved in the bill is within the amount the state will receive if and when the gas tax is finally declared to be valid.

Under the compromise pay bill supervisors and counselors would be dropped from the state payroll after one year. It is estimated this part of the Gilmer-Aiken program has cost about $2,500,000 per year.

In support of this change, Representative Floyd Bradshaw of Weatherford said that these specialists often duplicate the work of superintendents and principals.

Representative Maurice Pipkin of Brownsville took the opposite view on the change. He thinks counselors are good for public school students.

"If I'd had a counselor in school I might not be here in the Legislature," Pipkin quipped.

Senators battled with a House-passed bill relaxing the car inspection law. An amendment was adopted which exempts from inspection trailers with a load capacity of 4,000 pounds or less. This was for the benefit of farm trailer operators.

Senator Carlos Ashley of Llano who sought outright repeal of the inspection law, argued bitterly against the House bill.

He claimed that speed, carelessness and drunk driving are the main causes of highway accidents.

"More people caught hell on this car inspection law than any other thing in the history of Texas politics," he exclaimed.

According to Senator Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo the state doesn't need an auto inspection law.

"They ought to inspect the heads of the drivers instead of the cars," he said.

Changes in the bill included one dropping the annual inspection rule before a license can be obtained. Another change reduces the number of items to be inspected.

Both Senate and House considered ways to help the old folks and the handicapped.

House members worked on a bill approved by the Senate, to increase the ceiling on welfare grants from $35 million to $42 million a year.

At the same time the Senate considered final legislative action on an aid bill for persons over 18 who cannot make a living because of mental or physical handicaps. It was proposed that state grants not exceed $20 monthly and be matched with federal funds two for one.

A proposed constitutional amendment aimed at making pension rolls public was passed by the Senate. The vote was 26-2. But the proposal must be approved by the voters before it becomes effective.

Proposals to place state mortgages on the homes of old age pensioners were defeated. Senator Gus Strauss, Hallettsville, and Grady Hazlewood, Amarillo, who supported the moves, said this was an effort to take the "chiselers" off the public pay roll.

The Legislature has authorized the fixing of open seasons on deer as well as bucks in Gillespie, Kerr and Mason Counties.

The governor has approved a bill allowing the Texas Game and Fish Commission to set seasons and bag limits on deer in this area. The bill will become effective 90 days after the Legislature adjourns.

Another bill signed into law permits life insurance benefits to be made payable to business associates of the insured.

Formerly, business associates were not considered to have "an insurable interest."

Efforts in the Senate to remove District Judge C. Woodrow Laughlin of Alice from office were killed. But plans to seek State Supreme Court action were announced by Senator William H. Shireman of Corpus Christi.

Opponents of the move argued that the proper way to oust a judge from office would be through the courts. The method requires 10 lawyers to petition the Supreme Court for a review of misconduct charges.

Judge Laughlin was elected last year with the aid of George B. Parr, political boss in the Duval County area.

Texas Democrats who backed Adlai Stevenson last year are already planning a comeback in 1954.

An informal strategy meeting was held this week at a Lake Buchanan lodge near Burnet. Invitations were sent to leaders who supported the Stevenson-Sparks man ticket in the presidential race.

Repair Shop For Electric Co-ops Opened At Austin

Transformer and meter repairs of the Hall County Electric Co-op will be made in the future in shops of the Transformer-Meter Repair Division of Texas Power Reserve Co-op in Austin. This information came this week from J. W. Coppedge, manager of the local electric co-op.

Texas Power Reserve, the statewide association of rural electric co-ops, built and is operating the facilities for the 77 electric co-ops throughout the state, including the one here.

The installation at Austin is reported to be one of the most modern, up-to-date plants of its kind in the nation.

Texas rural electric co-ops now operate some 125,000 miles of power lines, serving nearly 300,000 Texas farmers and ranchers.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

HOMEOWNERS MAY BE LIABLE FOR ACCIDENTS ON PREMISES

Can a homeowner be held responsible for accidents that happen to other people while they are on his property? Lawyers say it is difficult to state a hard and fast rule about liability for such accidents because the facts differ so much from case to case. However, some conclusions can be drawn by noting how the courts have decided in specific cases which have been brought before them.

A postman delivering mail slipped on a child's roller skate one morning. He sued the homeowner for damages. The court held that the delivery of mail is for the benefit of the homeowner and that he must take care to remove any conditions on his property which would make delivery of the mail dangerous.

Then there was the case of the motor-reader who slipped and fell on the basement steps and the courts held the owner responsible because the steps were defective.

On the other hand, a guest sued her host because she slipped and fell when she stepped on some beans strewn about the owner's living room. The host's children had been playing with bean-shooters on the day she chose to visit. The court held in this case that the host was not liable for her injury.

Similar cases where social calls resulted in disaster involved a guest slipping on a small scatter rug, and another overnight guest who slipped and fell in a shower. Both cases were decided in favor of the homeowners—not the visitors.

From these cases it may be seen that the law is usually more strict about accidents befalling tradesmen and others who enter your premises in the line of duty, so to speak—postmen, laundrymen, meter-readers, delivery boys and the like—than it is in the cases of those who enter your home for purely social reasons.

This does not mean that a homeowner is absolved of all responsibility for injury to his guests. If he knows a dangerous condition exists, he has a duty to correct it and can be held liable for accidents which might happen if he doesn't. For example, a rotted tree branch fell to the sidewalk, injuring a passerby. The general rule here is that the owner was responsible because he knew of the defective condition and should have remedied it.

The law especially zealous in protecting small children. In many situations where no liability would be imposed for injury to an adult, you may be held responsible to an injured child. If you have a piece of machinery, a pond, a well or some other apparatus or condition attractive and dangerous to a child on your property, it may be your duty to take special pains to keep children away from it.

Fortunately, not everyone who falls down the front steps gets up and rushes off to sue his host. However, a substantial body of law has grown out of this type of negligence case. This is not surprising when you realize that more fatal accidents occurred in and around the home last year than from traffic accidents on the highways.

(This column, based on state and federal law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts, because the facts may change the application of the law.)

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

There is a program under way in the Tuckahoe Marshes of southern New Jersey that has changed local ideas about mosquito control. This fact may seem out of place here, but it points the way to waterfowl rehabilitation possibilities of nationwide significance.

To begin with, ditching and oiling have been virtually the only methods of mosquito control on the Atlantic coastal marshes for the last 50 years; recently aerial spraying also has been used. This destroys habitat and, as outdoor writer Cleveland Van Dresser remarks: "It's a cinch ducks and geese aren't going to stay in a region where they or their young can't live."

In 1939 the New Jersey Division of Fish and Game decided to try an experiment. It would impound the waters of the Tuckahoe Marshes and apply biological methods to control mosquitoes. It was hoped and expected that the impoundments would result in two things: lessening of mosquitoes in the area, and establishment of good waterfowl habitat. They did both.

Quite a bit of research went into the habits of mosquitoes before actual construction of dikes was started. It was learned that the insects laid their eggs in mud flats not affected by normal tide fluctuations. Excessively high tides left stagnant pools in their wake and it was in these pools that the mosquitoes bred. It was reasoned that if water was impounded and kept at a constant level during mosquito breeding time, the insects would find no place to lay their eggs for the simple reason that there would be no mud flats and stagnant pools.

The first impoundment was only 60 acres (now there are 1300 acres controlled by nine dikes.) As these filled with fresh water from natural drainage to the north, fish came in—mostly pickerel, bass and catfish. These did a pretty fair job of eating the larvae of any mosquitoes that bred in the impoundment. So from the standpoint of mosquito control the experiment was a success. What about waterfowls?

Today between 12 and 15 thousand use the area annually, and these include geese and swans which haven't been seen in south Jersey for years. Furthermore some black ducks are nesting in the marshes, which never happened before.

Appraising the situation from a dollars and cents standpoint, it costs less in the long run to install impoundments in a given area than it does to maintain a constant ditching and spraying program. Ditches have to be cleaned regularly and it is usually a costly hand-labor job. And at best, the effect of insecticides is temporary. The dikes at Tuckahoe are permanent—automobiles and trucks can use them, and they have withstood two hurricanes. Sportsmen whose favorite marshes are about to be drained would do well to investigate the New Jersey program.

Using good insect repellent will make picnics, hiking and other outdoor activities more comfortable and safer for you.

High Buying Power Means Meat Demand Likely To Remain Strong

COLLEGE STATION—If business remains good and the buying power of U. S. consumers continues high—both seem likely—then the demand for meat and livestock products is likely to remain strong. This means, says C. H. Bates, farm management specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, that feed crops and pastures must be provided to maintain a high output of meat, milk, eggs and other livestock products.

Since feed reserves in Texas have been depleted as a result of the drought, livestock producers should make every effort to build up adequate reserves of hay and silage this summer. These, with good pastures, are the cheapest feeds, and, explains the specialist, profits from the beef or dairy herd can be maintained only when ample supply of good quality forage is provided.

Too, he adds, plenty of feed on the farm or ranch—grass, hay or silage—means cheaper livestock gains. Livestock producers have found that high feed costs, even with favorable prices for meat and milk, reduce their chance for profits.

If a limited acreage is devoted to feed crops this year, Bates says, aim for maximum production.

If fertilizers can be used, heavier than usual applications will boost production and the use of good cultural methods will also increase yields whether or not fertilizers are adapted. The time of harvest and the method of storage for the crop are two mighty important items that have a bearing on the quality of the feed when it finally is needed by the livestock, says Bates.

And finally the specialist points out that the need for cutting back livestock production seems less urgent than for reducing cotton and wheat and that means more feed will be needed.

The distaff side of a family is the female side.

Variety Program At Travis School Saturday Evening

A varied program of entertainment will be presented Saturday night in the William B. Travis cafeteria here. Curtain time is 8 o'clock.

Included will be several numbers by Clarendon pupils of the Thelma Davies School of Dancing aided by several dancing students from Amarillo.

Also on the program will be a group of entertainers from Amarillo Air Force Base and a magician.

Sixteen youngsters, including four from Memphis, will comprise the group from the Clarendon class.

Local students, appearing on the program, are Barbara Smith, Carol Ann Dryden, Eva Ann Glosson and Louise Shawhart.

Pupils of the Clarendon class presented a program for the 3320th Retaining Group at the Amarillo base, Sunday night, and gave a recital in Clarendon, Monday night.

In the repertoire of the Memphis students were the Moonbeam and Gay Butterfly ballets and a tap dance.

To be seen Saturday night will be acrobatic, tap, ballet and toe dancing. All of the dancers will be in costume.

No admission will be charged and the public is cordially invited to be present.

A representative from the Thelma Davies School of Dancing will be present and can be contacted regarding lessons in Memphis next school year.

The expected continuing strong demand for livestock and their products means that feed crops and pastures must be provided if the high output is maintained.

LONE STAR Agriculture

ARGUMENT FOR PARITY The farmer would be helpless in our modern economy if he did not have all the services which enable him to produce and sell in a profitable manner. One service which has been offered is a guarantee of a fair price for farm products. This "guarantee" is the parity program—and it has had many ups and downs on the popularity scale of public opinion. Most of those who understand the workings of the program realize its value in maintaining a sound farm price structure. The majority of its opponents have a distorted picture as to its operation and costs. When a farmer plants his crop, he starts production on goods which will not be ready for market for months or even years. In the meantime, economic or military events can send the sales price of crops soaring or crashing. The price of cotton, for example, will be more affected this fall by talks now going on in Korea than by any other single factor. Parity price, then, is merely the farmer's equivalent of the laborer's minimum wage law. It helps assure him of a fair price for his time and labor, materials and money, utilized in making a crop. If market conditions are favorable, he can sell for a profit. But if the market is temporarily gutted and the going price is below his profit margin, he can "sell" to the government at the parity price. As conditions improve and demand increases, the government places these products on the market and redeems the money paid to the farmer. Opponents often say the program is too expensive. Actually, the cost of the parity program during the last 11 years was $14 million. This may seem high, but it includes the absorption of the $80 million loss on the potato program some years ago. Profits on sale of cotton and wheat and other parity products would have shown a net profit of more than $50 million if it were not for that one disastrous crop. The $14 million is not a tremendous price to pay for stabilizing this nation's largest industry. In time, it will pay its own way. A realistic and practical parity program should and must be continued to prevent a recurrence of the economic collapse of the 1930's.

Full utilization of the capacity of the home freezer will increase its returns.

Easy-to-use canned foods are the key to this easy and economical dish. 1/2 cup evaporated milk	1 1/2-pound can green beans
1/2 cup rolled oats	1/4 cup liquid from beans

Conoco Advertising Program Features Automobile Safety

Safer automobiles for safer driving is the main objective of Continental Oil Company's summer advertising program, which begins Thursday, May 21, in the Memphis Democrat.

Conoco's advertising will contain a list of safe-driving tips compiled by the National Safety Council, Paul Jones, National Safety Council director of public information, recently stated:

"The need for spreading the gospel of safety is becoming more urgent year after year, considering that more people were killed in automobile accidents last year than were killed in the Korean War. We feel that Continental Oil Company is to be congratulated for undertaking a program of this sort."

Continental's advertisements which will appear in 1,029 newspapers, will urge car owners to take their cars to Conoco service stations for safety check-ups, in which tires, lights, batteries, cooling systems, and other parts commonly causing unsafe driving conditions will be checked without cost to car owners.

Newspapers will again serve as the main force in Continental's advertising at service stations operated by more than 30,000 dealers, it was said.

MEMORY OF MRS. SAM WEST

(Presented at the Meeting of the Winnie Davis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy May 12, 1953.)

Mary Jane Gillenwater was born July 19, 1894, at St. Jo, Texas, and passed away April 6, 1953 at the Odom-Clinic Hospital in Memphis, Texas.

She was born among pioneering people who in the turbulent days of the reconstruction period had left their homes in Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and other war-saddened states to come to another former Confederate state where the land was new, the horizons endless and sunny and where pleasant memories of antebellum days might be cherished and the malice and sorrows of the war years forgotten.

At the age of eighteen she became the bride of Sam West of Miami. Two children were born to the Wests—a son and a daughter. Both her husband and children survive her and mourn her passing.

Mrs. West was keenly aware of the intangible riches of the history of the heroes of the South and of the Nation and was an enthusiastic member of the U. D. C. until the time of her passing. Although of late she had been unable to attend the meetings of our Chapter, her interest in the activities never lagged. She was devoted to her home, her family, her church and a loved and respected citizen of her community.

Although she is gone from us in body, we feel she is still with us in Spirit.
"She has taken her long Journey
On the beautiful ship of Rest;
Away from a world of sorrow
To a world of eternal rest."
Death, Be Not Proud
By John Donne (1573-1631)
Death, be not proud, though some have called thee
Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so;

ALERT AT 107 Peering through spinning wheel she brought here from Sweden in 1868, Mrs. Christina Nelson of Norwalk, Calif., celebrates her 107th birthday.

For those whom thou think'st thou dost overthrow
Die not, poor Death; nor yet canst thou kill me.
From rest and sleep, which but thy picture be,
Much pleasure; then from thee much more must flow;
And soonest our best men with thee do go—
Rest of their bones and souls delivery!

Thou'st slave to fate, chance, kings, and desperate men,
And dost with poison, war, and sickness dwell;
And poppy or charms can make us sleep as well
And better than thy stroke. Why swell'st thou then?
One short sleep past, we wake eternally,
And Death shall be no more
Death, thou shalt die.

Mrs. Bray Cook, member Winnie Davis Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy

Pearls of Wisdom

(Strung by J.H.R.)

Pomp & Pageantry
 Practical-minded Americans think the elaborate pomp and pageantry now going on in London is needless expenditure, a waste of wealth. And yet, many Americans have had to make hotel reservations for months in order to get seats from which to watch the Royal Procession when it winds its way along the route to Westminster for the official Coronation of Elizabeth II of England.

It may appear wanton extravagance, all this magnificent display of royal splendor but to the British Common people, in general, and England in particular, this traditional parade is as necessary as the air they breathe. She is to be seen and they hear people. She is to be seen and they hear people. She is to be seen and they hear people. She is to be seen and they hear people.

Elizabeth II, the Royal whip hand has been relaxed and raised in benediction over a free and happy people.

Today the Royal Monarch is not so much a figurehead as bystanders are wont to believe but rather a god's head, a motivating power among the British peoples, a masthead on the British Ship of State.

Since she was a little girl, Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary has been groomed for the time when she would ascend to the British throne. And now the time is near when the Mantle of Empire will be laid about her shoulders and the Imperial Crown placed upon the head of this twenty-seven year old maid of England.

Nor is Elizabeth, at this late hour, relaxing her self-discipline by which she has fitted herself for her task. She is on a strict starch-free wine-free diet so that her coronation weight may be 110 pounds. Furthermore, to accustom herself to the weight of the Imperial Crown which she will be compelled to endure for long tedious hours, she wears it as she sits at work at her desk in Buckingham Palace. A stickler for preparedness, is she.

Disabled Persons Assistance Bill Is Passed By House

Austin—H. J. R. No. 14, designed to provide assistance for totally and permanently mentally or physically disabled persons, has passed the House, according to Rep. Elbert Reeves. It is in the form of a constitutional amendment resolution.

The federal government will match two dollars for one by the law of 1950. The state will pay just as much federal taxes whether or not we derive any benefit from it. The proposal states that a maximum of one and a half million a year is to be contributed by the state.

The present statute excludes handicapped persons, between the ages of 18 and 65, from public assistance provided for aged persons and needy children. This does not include the blind.

Citizens will not have an opportunity to vote on the proposal for 18 months. If approved, it will be another 6 months before it becomes effective.

Report From Washington

By Walter Rogers

Congressman, 18th District

FOOD, FIBER, FUEL AND FIREPOWER: You will hear and read much in the next few months about economies, proposed economies, budget balancing, tax reduction, the elimination of waste and graft, and other incidental items. It presently appears from the recent announcements of congressional leaders that the proposals to balance the budget and reduce taxes will be confined to talk for about two years. These announcements are confirmed by the action that is being taken by Congress on the appropriations bills. These bills are coming to the House Floor and sailing through after relatively short debate and with too little time for the entire House membership to study them. Most of them still provide for a substantial portion of the services that the federal government has been called upon to perform in the last two decades, the big cuts being in the construction and not the administrative field.

A good example is the appropriations bill for the Department of Interior which includes the Bureau of Reclamation. The Department of Interior is the caretaker of the real property of the Government and has the responsibility of developing the natural resources. The Appropriations Committee slashed 202 million dollars off the budget estimate of 607 million dollars; 98 million dollars out of the 200 million dollar cut came out of the Bureau of Reclamation funds. And 90 million dollars of the 98 million dollar cut represented a reduction in construction, rehabilitation, and matters incidental thereto. General administrative expenses were reduced one million dollars. The nature of this cut simply means that there will be a sharp curtailment in maintenance, operation and rehabilitation of existing facilities in this country and a sharp curtailment in the development of our natural resources.

At the same time, the taxpayers of this country are being asked to contribute approximately six billion dollars in foreign aid. Much of this money will be used for the development of natural resources in the countries to which it is sent. Some may take issue with me on this point and say that the dollars are not used directly for that purpose. Such statements would be true, but it is only theoretical. What happens is this: The recipients of foreign aid in many instances use their own funds called counterpart funds, to develop their natural resources. They use the funds furnished by this country for the purposes for which they would have had to use their own funds had this country not sent the foreign aid. It is sort of a merry-go-round. No one objects to helping other countries who are our allies. However, cannot reconcile the development of the natural resources in other countries at the expense of permitting ours to go unattended. Many of these foreign countries are under a continuing communist threat. Should any of them capitulate, we know that the assets we have provided for those countries would not only be lost to us but would be used against us.

The cold hard facts that we must face are simply these: The survival of this country from a material standpoint is going to depend upon food, fiber, fuel and firepower. This means that agriculture, the development of our natural resources, and the strengthening of our defenses should be among our top level considerations. The fat should be cut from all of these, but the muscles should not be damaged.

SUBSIDIES: I expect to introduce a resolution within the next few days requesting a full investigation and a definite earmarking of the subsidies enjoyed at the expense of the American taxpayer. One of the most difficult problems at present is to find out the exact amount of subsidies being paid, who gets them, and why. It is high time that the American taxpayer had this information boiled down to a dollar and cent standpoint. It can then be determined which are justified and which should be reduced or abolished. I feel that if definite and concrete information can be gathered together on this subject tremendous savings can be effected.

Tips On Tornadoes Are Furnished By Press Association

Since this is the tornado season in the Central and South-Central states, it might be of interest to residents of this area to have the following information, furnished by the Texas Press Association.

Tornadoes have occurred in every state in the Union, although they are more common in the central portion.

Usually seen as spinning funnel-shaped clouds, they frequently are obscured by rain, dust, low clouds or darkness. Thunderclouds are present, often greenish-black in color and accompanied by rain and hail.

Tornadoes usually cover a limited area, most of them being less than a block wide, although a few have been more than 2 miles wide. Paths in most cases are less than five miles long. Most Texans will never see or experience one of the giant-size blows, the report continues.

Damage varies greatly with the storm and where it strikes. Most cause few or no casualties or damage.

Most tornadoes occur between April 8 and June 9, although they have occurred in every month in the year. They are most likely to appear in the late afternoon or early evening. The majority move from southwest to northeast, with some taking a west-east direction, plus errant ones which have moved from nearly every direction or have traveled almost in a circle.

Speeds generally run from 15 to 40 miles an hour, but may be faster or slower.

Warnings are seldom possible longer than an hour in advance and perhaps for only a few minutes.

School officials and instructors have a special responsibility in remaining calm when a tornado appears, to prevent panic among students. Have a prearranged plan which can be put into action if necessary. Children should be taught to recognize tornadoes by placing several tornado pictures in each school building.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald and son have returned following a two week's stay in Arkansas. While there they were accompanied by H. G. Landers and other and in Little Rock with H. G. Landers who is at the H. G. Landers Hospital.

Warned On Indiscriminate Use Of Insect-Killing 'Vaporizers'

Don't put too much emphasis on the advertised claims for the properties of so-called "vaporizers," State Health Officer W. Cox cautioned Tex-

Dr. Cox called these claims "completely misleading," and pointed to a March 27 statement released by the federal interdepartmental committee on Pest Control to back him up. The statement said:

"Because of the health hazards inherent in the misuse of insecticide vaporizers used as fumigators, (the committee) recommends against their use in living quarters."

The committee is composed of representatives of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; Departments of Agriculture and Interior; and the army navy and air force.

The health officer conceded the gadgets might have some beneficial application in commercial or industrial establishments where human exposure would not be continuous and food contamination will not occur.

But he emphasized that it is "dangerous and foolhardy to install them in homes, and advertising them for such use is indefensible."

Public Cooperation Is Necessary In Comeback Of Quail

AUSTIN—Officials of the Texas Game and Fish Commission, noting exceptional interest in Texas' depressed quail population at the annual game warden schools, assured the field men that public cooperation definitely can expedite rallying the bobwhites.

Warden concern over the quail problem, which became acute during the prolonged drought, which apparently reached its peak last year, highlighted the annual classroom routine held in two periods at Bastrop State Park.

Commission authorities, particularly Assistant Director of Wildlife Restoration Ernest G. Marsh emphasized that while there are mysterious cycle angles involved, quail propagation is controlled to a great extent by man-made conditions.

"The answer rests squarely upon proper conditions, which means food, cover and water," said Marsh. "These may be provided by nature or they may be provided by the very civilization which has created so many hardships for quail as well as all species of wildlife."

It was concluded that the wardens, many of whom have distinguished themselves for conservation and restoration efforts, can do a good job working directly with the populace. They may help encourage joint movements by hunters and landowners to provide a favorable habitat for the fleet little birds which have long been a favorite in the annual fall shooting sport.

With this food, cover and water effort extended to the once prolific quail areas, the Assistant Director said the quail very likely will come back in good time. "It is surprising," he said, "how the necessary brood stock will be found available and adequate when conditions become favorable again for reproduction."

Mrs. Wiley Whitley visited in Carlsbad last week with her son E. L. Pritchard and family.

M. C. Allen returned home Sunday from Terrell where he had been with his mother, who is ill. She is reported to be much improved.

BOOSTERS AND KNOCKERS

We have been thinking about the future of Memphis and the area around it, wondering in part what they will be like 10, 20 or 50 years from now.

Will their populations continue to decrease, as they have in the past two decades, or will this trend reverse itself and the city and county again start growing?

Will this remain primarily an agricultural area or will there be more industry and business in the years to come? If our economy does continue to be founded principally on agriculture, will cotton still be our main money crop, or will new sources of rural income be established, so that our livelihoods will not depend on "one throw of the dice"?

We have lived here quite a while. In that time, we have seen good times and bad. We saw things flourish in the 1920's, turn sour during the following decade, and pick up again in the 1940's. This section has been dry the past two years but this is the Panhandle and a return of rains and better times any day would not surprise anyone.

Whatever happens, we know folks will take it and come back for more, because they've done it before.

But whether times are good or bad, we can make them better if we all pitch in and work together.

There doesn't seem much we can do about the weather but there are other things we can do. The most important of these, as we see it, is to boost and support our communities and our area in every way possible.

Perhaps, others seeing or hearing of this loyalty, will say, "That must be a good country. The people certainly believe in it. I think I'd like to live there."

Other communities and areas, similar to ours, have strengthened their positions by cooperating to find new and better ways of doing things and by encouraging new business.

There is no reason why we can't do the same. But if we are to succeed, we must be boosters and not knockers.

If criticism is necessary, let's have it but let it be the kind that builds, not hampers or destroys.

Support every organization or group that is working for the good of their community and area and encourage and help them in every way you can.

Give young people every opportunity possible, for they will be tomorrow's leaders. In them lies our future strength. Make places for them. Every time one moves away, we lose a fine citizen.

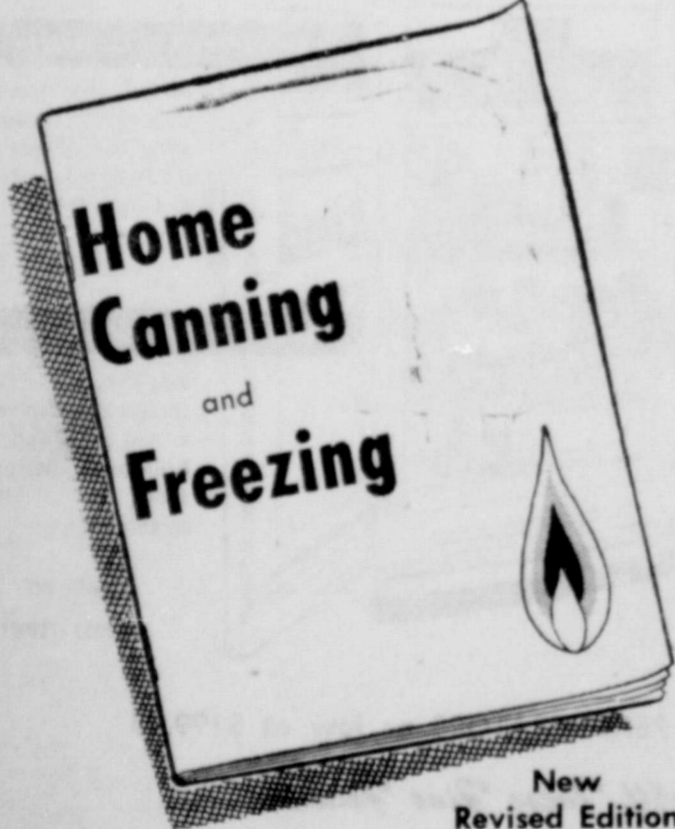

Keep your money at home. Local businessmen help support our schools, churches and community and area projects. Outsiders don't. Money spent elsewhere means that much less to build Memphis and the surrounding area, more to build other towns and areas.

Increased trade will enable our merchants to carry larger and more varied stocks. Shopping will be made easier and more convenient.

Full-hearted support of your community and this area will pay off in a better life for all of us.

SMALL RANCHERS NEED HELP

Cattlemen who raise cattle for their family income without aid of huge oil royalties or other income are talking different language today, to that shouted by oil laden politicians who pose as cattlemen but who could lose every cow on the spread and remain in the high income brackets.

Some, like the president of New Mexico cattlemen, have been able to buy and sell huge ranches and soil grass but haven't had a hundred head of cows of their own in years.

These oil laden politicians pretended to speak for the old cowhands when they rushed to Washington to agree with Apostle Repton that the cattle industry needed no support prices.

Some of them like Jay Taylor of Amarillo, own stock pens that are doing a thriving business at so much per head, running distress cattle through their sale pens.

Many of them like Taylor, have oil royalties and stock in packing houses.

Some, like the president of New Mexico cattlemen, have been able to buy and sell huge ranches and soil grass but haven't had a hundred head of cows of their own in years.

These are the boys who are doing all right and who can afford this free trade, and no quarter policy of administering agriculture.

But how about you boys on four section outfits who are actually raising cattle. How are you doing competing with New Zealand beef and feeding out 19-cent cattle for which you paid 34 cents?

Looks as though someone needs to be a spokesman for the cowman who is not simultaneously an oil baron. As long as the Seven X Beaver boys can fill the air with big talk, you can go on going broke.

These were the people who ran around at Amarillo, calling people Communists who did not go along with the Wall Street hard money plans. It's easy to be a smart cowman when oil pays the freight. Unfortunately a lot of people must live on the job of actually raising and selling cattle.

Memphis Steam Laundry Gives Customers Superior Service

Fine laundry service is obtainable here at the Memphis Steam Laundry, whose manager and co-owner is Homer "Soapy" Tribble, a native of Memphis. The other partner in the firm is Mrs. Ross Gentry, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stringer, founders of the company.

Services include finished work, wet wash, and other types of laundry, provided by modern laundries.

The laundry specializes in two-day service on family bundles, and one-day service on bachelor bundles, for a small additional charge.

Clothes bundles are picked up within the city limits without charge to customers.

The best laundry supplies obtainable, plus plenty of soft water assures clothing and linens that are clean and fresh when returned home.

New washing machines and shirt and garment presses recently have been installed, guaranteeing the best possible service, according to Tribble.

Tribble says, "It has been a pleasure to serve our customers. We solicit your patronage and promise to give you the best of laundry service."

The laundry was started in 1907, on South Fifth Street, by the late Mr. and Mrs. Stringer. It remained at that location until 1926, when the modern one-story building it now occupies, was constructed.

Tribble's connection with the laundry began May 27, 1928. For two years, he performed about every job that is to be done around a laundry.

After two years, he began driving a delivery truck and continued this work until 1941, when he volunteered in the U. S. Navy. He served on the USS Melville, a repair ship, in the European Theater of Operations. At various times, his ship docked on the coasts of North Africa, England, Ireland and France. For awhile before he got out of service, he was on a submarine.

After his discharge, he returned here and resumed his work with the laundry.

After Mr. Stringer died in 1941, Mrs. Stringer continued operation of the laundry. In 1946, Tribble became a partner in the firm. Mrs. Gentry became co-owner after her mother died in 1951.

Mr. Tribble was married to Miss Audrey Boggs in March, 1947. They have two children, Neil, 5 and Bob, 2.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church and Mrs. Tribble is a member of the Church of Christ.

Tribble was born here, Jan. 12, 1912, and attended Memphis public schools. He worked on a ranch at McKnight for two years before going to work at the laundry.

Mrs. Gentry is a graduate of the Memphis schools. After her graduation here, she attended Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene and Columbia University in New York City.

She and Mr. Gentry have three children, two daughters and a son.

Mrs. Gentry is a member of the First Baptist Church.

SUITED FOR TRAVEL—

Ready to take off on a flying vacation to Caribbean islands, this smart vacationer is well-suited to travel in a three-piece ensemble in Hope Skillman's chamberlay. The loose, straight-hanging coat is an incoming fashion that is due for a long life. The matching cotton blouse and jacket lining are typical of the costume look that will be seen frequently this summer.
