First 1954 Season Cotton Is Ginned Here Wednesday

First cotton of the 1954 season to arrive in Memphis was ginned Wednesday morning at the J. M. Tindall Gin. The fleece was gathered on about 20 acres of land, farmed by Homer Bell and his son, J. L., and located 15 miles south of Estelline. The land belongs to John Tippett.

From 1960 pounds of Delta seed cotton, a 423-pound bale and 800 pounds of seed were obtained, according to S. J. King, manager of the gin. Homer Bell said workers began pulling the bale Monday morning and finished it up Tuesday afternoon. He said the cotton patch from which it was gathered was pretty badly burned as a result of extended dry weather in that section.

The bale graded out middling 29/32, according to King, who said the support price on that type of cotton is 32.30 cents a pound. However, Bell said he expected to sell it outright for approximately 35 cents per pound. Another bale was ginned Wednesday morning at the Paymaster Gin at Lesley. The cotton was owned by W. M. Hughes, who farms near Lesley. The bale weighed 420 pounds, according to J. W. Hatley, Jr., gin manager.

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce will split a cash premium between Bell and Hughes, Clifford Farmer, manager, said.

More Showers Dampen County First Of Week

More rain fell Monday and Tuesday on Memphis and the surrounding territory increasing prospects for good crops in the area. Some thunder and lightning accompanied the downpours but generally the showers were of the ground-soaking kind and no damage was reported. Precipitation occurred Monday afternoon and again Tuesday morning and produced cooler, more delightful temperatures. At Memphis, .23 of an inch of moisture fell Monday afternoon and .88 of an inch Tuesday morning for a total of 1.11, according to Weatherman John McMickin. This raised the rainfall in August to 4.19 inches. Total for the year so far is 14.26 inches. Estelline had good rain and reports from the Hulver-Parnell section told of water standing in the fields and bar ditches. Crops are said to be excellent in that part of the county. South and east of Brice, precipitation of around an inch was reported. At Brice and south of there, the amount was set at about half an inch. The fall three miles southeast of Memphis totaled .90 of an inch. Lakeview had only light precipitation and the Turkey section remained in the clutches of prolonged drought. Mercury readings the past week, according to McMickin, were as follows: last Thursday 67-95 degrees; Friday 68-96; Saturday 68-101; Sunday 70-100; Monday 71-100; Tuesday 71-87; and Wednesday 77-98. Softball Proceeds Will Go To Local Polio Fund Drive

All proceeds from a softball game to be played here Saturday night between the Memphis Jaycees and La Casa, Okla., will go to the Emergency Polio Fund, Larry Jones, Jaycee member said Wednesday. No admission will be charged. Fans, themselves, will determine the amount they wish to give to this worthy cause. The contest is scheduled to get underway at 8 p. m., at Estes Field. Everyone is invited to attend. Jones said the local polio fund drive had lagged and Saturday night's game was being played because the local Jaycees want to give the campaign a boost. In previous meetings between Memphis and La Casa, contests have been decided by one run, Jones said, declaring that if fans want to see a good game and at the same time put their money where it will do an immeasurable amount of good, to be certain to come out.

Cyclone Tickets On Sale Tuesday

Advance sales of tickets for home games of the Memphis Cyclone football team will be opened to the public Tuesday morning, according to an announcement Wednesday. Ginning Figures For Past Years Listed

Hall County's cotton crops have followed an uncertain course, as everyone familiar with the vagaries of Panhandle weather is too well aware. Some bumper crops have been made when conditions were favorable but production has ranged on down to near failures, the degree of yield depending on the sweetness or sourness of Old Man Weather. Controls also have resulted in decreased production in some years. The biggest crop ever recorded in the county was 88,214 bales in 1949, according to data from the office of County Agent W. B. Hooser. Cotton in large quantities was piled on the ground and stacked up on gin yards that year when gins could not keep up with harvesting. The smallest crop ever produced in the county, according to the records, was 113 bales in 1899, the first year the fleece was grown. County ginning totals for other years include:

County Interest In Second Primary High

Interest in the second Democratic primary Saturday in Hall County was high although voting was slightly below that in the first primary in July. The interest unquestionably stemmed from the torrid gubernatorial campaign waged by Incumbent Allan Shivers and Aspirant Ralph Yarborough, since the only county race was in Precinct No. 3. A total of 2,238 ballots were cast Saturday, compared to 2,508 in the July primary, or a decrease of 270 votes. This still was a better turnout than is shown in many runoff elections. Returns from the 12 county boxes were canvassed here Tuesday by the county Democratic Executive Committee. In the lone county race, Clinton Richburg won his second term as Commissioner in Precinct No. 3 by defeating his opponent, Fred B. Berry, 228 to 165. Yarborough carried Hall County in Saturday's election, as he also did in the first primary. The second primary vote was 1,272 for Yarborough to 966 for Shivers. In the July election, Yarborough received 1,316 votes and Shivers rolled up 1,035 votes. In the race for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court (Place 1) in Texas, Few Brewster carried the county nearly two to one by amassing 1,108 votes to 643 for Alfred M. Scott, who opposed him. The only other office, listed on the runoff ballot, had but one candidate. The position was that of Judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals and the sole candidate was Lloyd W. Davidson, who received (Continued on Page 12)

People have time to talk about the weather and good rains since last Saturday. Before that, politics held the center of the stage in every conversation. Now, possible good harvest faces this county, instead of half crops as has been the case for some years. Saturday night, the Ben Parks family listened to the election returns. When the announcement came that Governor Shivers' lead indicated he would be the winner, Little 5-year-old Larry Parks jumped down from his chair, ran into another room shouting, "Mother, Mother, Shivers has won the tournament." Larry had heard an older brother talk about golfing. A few weeks ago, The Democrat received a letter and check for subscription renewal from Mrs. Q. E. Posey of Grand Junction, Colo. We quote some of her letter: "It (Continued on Page 12)

The Bureau of the Census of the U. S. Department of the Interior. This information usually is released the latter part of March. Total Hall County ginnings, as shown in Census tabulations, will be the basis upon which winners will be decided. The contest is open to everyone and is not restricted to Hall County or the State of Texas. Dutch Vallance of Memphis won the contest for the 1953 season, with a near-miss guess of 22,000 bales. Actual number of bales ginned was 22,017, according to the Census bureau. Taking runner-up honors was Mrs. Claudie McBe of Memphis, who estimated ginnings at 21,989 bales. Third place was captured by J. I. Capps of Lakeview, who guessed that 22,055 bales would be ginned in the county during the 1953 season. In all, 380 persons submitted entries to the 1953 cotton-guessing contest. Most lived in the Memphis area but some lived in other parts of the state, as well as Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kentucky and California. Estimates ran from a low of 9,899 bales to a high of 48,525 bales. So come on in, the guessing's fine, to paraphrase a well-known expression. But remember, the 1954 contest closes at 5 p. m., Saturday, Sept. 25.

Long-range Farm Policy Is Goal Of Ag Economists

AUSTIN—A consistent, long-range farm policy for this country is the goal of agricultural economists such as Dr. Clarence A. Wiley, a Blanco County farm boy who grew up to be a University of Texas professor.

Dr. Wiley's graduate students in Agricultural Problems and Policies analyze and criticize past U. S. agricultural programs, both Democratic and Republican, and propose possible improvements suggested by their studies. Many of the class members are college economics teachers, and one directs Cuba's national economic research institute.

Dr. Wiley also teaches an undergraduate Survey of Modern Agriculture, which deals with agriculture's place in the total national economy. The course includes consideration of ways technological innovations influence agricultural groups and areas.

The University of Texas is one of several leading U. S. universities devoting increasing attention to agriculture's important role in the nation's over-all economy. Dr. Wiley says the problem of adjusting agricultural production to market exchange "is as acute today as ever in the history of the country."

Dr. Wiley says a consistent farm policy can emerge through "the slow, democratic process" of broadening people's understanding so they see the problems clearly.

Dr. Wiley has a Doctor of Philosophy degree from the Uni-

Professor Discusses Coming Student Rise

AUSTIN—A University of Texas professor has contributed to an urgent "Call for Action" to meet the impending increase in college and university enrollment.

Dr. James W. Reynolds, junior college education professor, wrote on "The Junior College and Community Needs" in a bulletin published by the American Council on Education. He was of five authorities contributing background discussion for the leading article, "A Time for Decisions in Higher Education."

"The youth who will attend colleges through 1970 are already born," the special publication points out. "We can count them now."

Dr. Arthur S. Adams, American Council on Education president, expresses concern as to whether necessary planning will be done in time.

"Classrooms, laboratories and dormitories are not built overnight, particularly when construction must be preceded by fundraising," he points out; "nor can teachers be secured by a short-term campaign."

State planning conferences are being set up throughout the U. S. to consider problems posed by the enrollment tidal wave.

They visited relatives in Alabama and Mississippi and saw many interesting and historical places. Some of the highlights of the trip included going through the Hermitage, Parthenon and other historical buildings in Nashville and attending the "Grand ole Opry." They visited the coal mines and Iron Smelters around Birmingham, Ala., and the Capitol building in Atlanta, Ga., where they drove through the city on Peach Tree Street.

Mr. Gurley said that one could drive for days in the Great Smokey Mountains and never tire of seeing the beautiful trees, lakes, rivers and dams. At Cherokee they viewed the Pageant of "The Trail of Tears" given by the Cherokee Indians of that Reservation. In Frankfort, Ky., they saw both the old and the new Capitol buildings. The Kentucky Historical Society uses the old building for a museum. The display is mostly articles of Civil War days.

From Frankfort, Ky., the group went to Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas. They said in the great corn belt of Illinois, Missouri and Kansas the crops were parched from the hot dry weather, which they encountered on the entire trip.

Smaller Cities Have Water For Industry

AUSTIN—Many smaller cities in Texas have enough water to support sizable industrial development, University of Texas research shows.

Examples of towns with more than a million acre-feet of water nearby include Belton (1,097,600 acre-feet), Lewisville (1,016,200), Whitney (2,017,500), Jasper (4,040,800), and Rockland (3,287,300).

An acre-foot contains about 325,848 gallons of water or a prism of water one foot high and an acre in area.

Seymour has 444,168 acre-feet of water near it; Burnet, 847,420; Bronte, 720,000; Wylie, 423,400; Palo Pinto, 750,000; Pecos, 300,000; Snyder 204,000; Sabinal, 200,000; Bridgeport, 290,000; Brundage, 138,000; Addicks, 323,000; Huffman, 150,000; McAllen, 150,113; and Grapevine, 434,200.

Other examples dispelling the fallacy that all of Texas is water-short include Dundee, with 45,000 acre-feet of water nearby; Angleton, 18,000; Brazoria, 21,873; Freeport, 50,000; Marble Falls, 23,640; Kingsland, 28,750; Anahuac, 35,300; Coleman, 35,310; Eastland, 28,000; Cisco, 036; Haskell, 50,000; Ham-burg, 22,430; Kerrville, 18,365; Rado City, 30,200; Daininger, 26,000; Marfa, 18,770; Callisburg, 18,121; Town Bluff, 94,500; Stow, 74,400 and Fort Stockton, 17,000.

In some instances, other towns are near the water as mentioned. The data also include figures for reservoirs in larger cities.

The University's cotton economics research division posted the data as part of a project ining out Texas' industrial aptages to cotton textile man-urers.

Correct Posture Important Asset In Promoting Spirit Of Well-Being

AUSTIN—The question, "How do you stand?" is a frequent question heard by voters. When Dr. Henry A. Holle, State Health Officer asks, it has nothing to do with politics but with your own personal health. An honest answer may start you on the road to better health.

Bad posture should be corrected because it may contribute to many physical ailments. When posture is poor, internal organs are shoved out of position, forcing them to operate under stress and strain. Nerves are restricted and remain tense. One part of the body that is out of position forces another part out of line, to compensate for the off-balance. This crowds and shoves the body organs out of place so that none of them can function effectively. For example, drooped shoulders flatten the chest and crowd the lungs and heart. This forces the diaphragm down, and pushes the stomach and other organs out of place.

When the lungs are crowded, the blood stream cannot receive a sufficient supply of oxygen. Without enough oxygen, you may tire easily, have indigestion and little energy. In fact, poor posture may interfere with many body functions. It may cause some of the complaints that distress otherwise healthy men, women, and children. So you can see that your general state of health and your capacity for happy and effective living are closely tied up with body balance.

It is important for children as well as adults to maintain good posture. Good body balance is a part of good health, just as are good nutrition, cleanliness, exercise, and sufficient rest. As a part of their general education in good health habits, children should be taught good posture. And of course, because children are such imitators, parents and teachers should set them a good example.

In work and play, be aware of your posture. Walk with a springy step. When you sit, sit straight—letting the back of the chair support your lower back. In sitting, standing, and walking, make yourself as straight as you can. Hold your head up, chest up, abdomen in and spine in a straight line. This may require effort and concentration at the beginning, but if you become posture conscious, you can make good posture a habit. And, remember, an attractive, alert appearance depends upon it.

B Team To Open With Hollis, Sept. 9

Twenty-three boys are trying out for the Memphis B team, Nolan Poteet, who is coaching the squad, said Wednesday.

Poteet, who is assistant coach in the local school system, said the boys have had little or no football training and experience. As a consequence, the coach said he is devoting his major efforts to acquainting the youths with the fundamentals of the game.

The squad will open their season next Thursday night when they meet Hollis, Okla., here. The game will be played at Cyclone Stadium.

Busy Machinery Results In Lower Production Costs

COLLEGE STATION—Labor is a high-cost item in farm production. Farm wage rates, according to C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist, are about four times higher now than in the period before 1941.

This fact, points out the specialist, is responsible for much of the shifting to power machinery as a substitute for high-priced labor. Such machinery is now only about double its pre-war cost, but, adds Bates, there's a catch to the deal.

Just to get a cotton harvester, field forage-harvester or a pick-up baler doesn't mean it will be a money maker. These machines, like the hired man, must be kept busy if they are to return a profit. The less a machine is used the greater will be the per hour or acre cost.

Bates suggests that farmers study their machinery needs and invest only in those which can be kept busy. Acreage allotments should be considered. Depreciation of machinery too is a part of the cost of production. A tractor used 1,000 hours a year will depreciate very little more than one used half as much, and the depreciation charge for the less used tractor will about double the busy one.

If operations aren't large enough to keep machinery reasonably busy, Bates suggests custom hiring might be the answer. He backs up this suggestion with information from a recent Texas Agricultural Experiment Station study made in the Blackland area. A study of 63 farms showed $21.35 as the per bale cost of stripping cotton in 1952 with the farmers' own machine. This compares with the custom stripping rate of $20.67 per bale in the same area. Doing custom work in the community will cut the overhead cost of machinery, says Bates.

Finally, he says, unemployed equipment increases equipment expenses and does not cut costs. Count the cost before you buy and consult your equipment dealer on the size machine for your operations.

Mrs. T. T. Harrison of Spade is a house guest in the home of Mrs. W. C. Dickey.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Thompson and sons of Breckenridge spent a few days here and at Clarendon this week with relatives.

People of the world speak more than 1,000 separate languages or dialects.

Cotton farmers are urged to consider their harvest income until all stalks have been cut or shredded and plowed. Early destruction of stalks is effective and cheap control of vesting cotton insects.

Deferred-rotation grazing is best means of rangeland improvement. In a properly balanced program, pounds of manure per acre not the number of head to the acre are the objective.

The war on cattle is common cattle insects are deadly to the state's beef and dairy operators. Insect sprays, dusts and dips give tactical control.

The squad has one more week to work out before they open the season in a non-conference contest against the Tula Hornets, Friday night, Sept. 10. The game will be played in Cyclone Stadium.

The local team will play Canyon and Crowell in non-district tilts, before opening the conference race in a game with Lefors at Lefors, Friday night, Oct. 8. Tilts with Canadian, White Deer, Clarendon, Gruver, Panhandle and McLean will complete the Cyclone district schedule. The White Deer match will be the first conference home game.

Auto Inspection Period Is Set

AUSTIN—Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today that the Public Safety Commission has officially set the dates for the new inspection period for autos under the provision of the State's Motor Vehicle Inspection Act. Texas motorists must secure the annual inspection of their cars between September 15th, 1954, and April 15th, 1955, according to the Commission Order.

At the same time George Busby, Chief of the DPS Motor Vehicle Inspection Division, said that the inspectors from his office have filed 106 cases against car owners who failed to have their cars checked during the current inspection period. These, he said, are in addition to those cases filed by members of the Texas Highway Patrol and by various local police departments throughout the State. Unable to give an estimate of the actual number of violations for which arrests have been made during the 1953-54 period, Busby said that he "believed the figure to be comparatively low" due to the fact that frequent spot checks indicate that Texans have conformed with the law "almost 100 per cent."

Housewives Potential Teachers

The Department of Labor and the U. S. Office of Education have come forward with a suggestion for easing the current shortage of teachers, according to Newsweek. The government agencies feel that housewives could be used to help the situation. The suggestion came out of a several-months conference of 25 top educators and local-community leaders who were called together to discuss the lack of teachers by the two departments.

Already critical in the elementary schools of some states, the situation is expected to grow even darker by the time the bumper postwar baby crop reaches high school. The committee of 25 estimated that there are around 70,000 college-educated U. S. housewives in their 30's and 40's who could take teaching positions in elementary and high schools, after receiving a minimum amount of training.

Housewives, with Bachelor of Arts degrees, would take intensive training courses in schools in their own areas. In the committee's opinion, the women's maturity, experience with their own children, and educational backgrounds would quickly qualify them to teach.

The idea is already underway in Michigan and California, with housewives scheduled to begin teaching when schools open for the new year. In addition, Ohio and Connecticut are planning similar programs.

The committee hopes to interest more schools and colleges in formulating plans to cover their own needs. However, there is one pressing problem to be surmounted in accomplishing such an objective and that is finding housewives who can find time for teaching.

Apparently, the committee has come up with a possible solution for one problem, which has, in turn, posed another one. Only the housewives seemingly can provide the answers—or answers.

Depression Declared Old-Fashioned

Doubts that this nation will ever again have an "old-fashioned depression" were expressed recently by Clem D. Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a speech before the American Chamber of Commerce in London, England.

Johnson told his partially British, partially American audience that "there is no reason to think that we can, or should even attempt to avoid cyclical fluctuations in business from time to time, but with our many new powerful anti-depression weapons built into our American legislative system and into our economy, it is difficult to see why America should ever again experience anything like an old-fashioned depression. The long-range outlook for America is very bright indeed.

"We have 10,000 new products which Grandpa never knew, all of them providing new frontiers for our youth which are finer than the western frontier our grandpa knew. Perhaps a brighter thing is the three billion dollars a year that industry is putting into research, and that is providing new products, new methods, new wants, new opportunities and new challenging frontiers for our youth unparalleled by any frontier known to our pioneering ancestors."

There likely are some who hold to the belief that as land frontiers disappear, so does opportunity. But one has only to look around to see that this is not true. Land frontiers may have diminished but, as the national Chamber of Commerce president says, new and finer frontiers have materialized, all of which should be very heartening to this and future generations. In our opinion, merchants of gloom and doom have not a leg to stand on. The way we see it, the World "hasn't seen anything yet."

PUBLIC DUMP HEAP

This past week, on a hot afternoon along highway 83 north of Perryton, a couple of employees of the Texas Highway Department trudged along through the dust, picking up beer cans, cardboard boxes, assorted papers and other junk, filling the back of a truck with this debris.

With every step, we are certain, these two men had unkind thoughts about the carelessness of motorists who throw things out of car windows.

Crusades are being conducted in many states to educate travelers not to litter up the roadsides. Laws have been enacted, but enforcement obviously is difficult.

We note with interest that the industries that contribute to the littering up of the countryside have decided to help in a campaign to prevent further dumping along the roadsides.

Among the packaging industries combining to keep the country beautiful are food, steel, tobacco, forest products, rubber and petroleum. Also, automobiles, chewing gum, soap, soft drinks, candy and dairy products.

How to change the habits of many millions of persons is a problem of psychology, in law enforcement and in education of individuals through organized effort.

People who wouldn't dare spit on their floors at home will dump trash in a public park without a second thought. The same people think nothing of dumping trash along a highway. It is these people that this campaign is designed to reach.

We wish the campaign much success.
—Ochiltree County Herald (Perryton)

DEPENDABILITY

One of the finest tributes that we can pay any man is to say that he is dependable. You know where to find him, what you may expect of him. Day after day and year after year he is carrying his share—and a little more—of the burden, doing all the things, big and little, which go with his job.

Too often it is the spectacular man, the one always setting off the fire-works, doing the unpredictable, who attracts public attention and makes the front page. The steady, dependable man is overlooked.

The prodigal son was the spectacular type. He grabbed his inheritance and set out to spend it, painting the towns red, making people notice him, getting all the attention. Even when he had spent his last shekelle and was eating corn-husks with the pigs, he was in the public eye. And when he went home, the fattened calf was killed, and he was feted and honored.

But his brother, who had stayed at home and done the work and helped his father and mother and contributed to charities—he was the dependable man. If it had not been for him, the prodigal would have had no home to return to, no fattened calf to kill.

Denver Colo., officers have been notified to hold Mallory for local authorities.

COMMISSIONERS AND CITY COUNCIL DISCONTINUE CEMETERY ROAD—County commissioners and city councilmen jointly this week decided not to rebuild the bridge on the north road by Fairview Cemetery. The action was taken after banks at the crossing on Parker Creek were examined and it was decided a bridge there would be too expensive to build and maintain.

The city and county will cooperate in making a better road to the cemetery by way of the iron bridge on East Main Street.

Years of Colonial Rule Set Stage for Loss of Indochina

By WALTER SHEAD
Washington Correspondent
National Weekly Newspaper Service

At the real crux of what is happening in Indochina, or in the whole of Asia for that matter, one finds a backdrop of centuries of colonial rule and exploitation of the peoples and resources by the powers.

A revolution against the French started in Vietnam in 1946, a manifestation of the general unrest among the peoples of Asia which has resulted; the independence of India, which has been given dominion by the British; (2) the independence of Indonesia, which freed itself from the Dutch, and Burma, though still a British dependency, complete independence from the British. This sweep of nationalism also a measure of self-determination of the Malay states, which Indochina is made up of several independent kingdoms of Cambodia, which date back to the 13th century, and Vietnam which was a French colony in the center and south, all within the French Union.

These three states, Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, with a population of some 23 million, are being ruled by a French government which has a population of 40 million. A million Chinese live in Vietnam, and a million in Laos and Cambodia. A large number of people live in the mountains of the central regions. So the total population is around 29 million, and the area is 286,000 square miles, an area one-third larger than France, and twice the size of the United States.

Vietnamese have their own language, structure of government, religion, and customs. Centuries of influence have left the population, however, a tangle of influences. In Laos and Cambodia, the Chinese and traditions of their culture and traditions are symbolized in magnificent temples and the ruins of Angkor.

dating back to Indian inspiration. The truth of the matter is, that as a result of so many centuries of colonial rule these peoples in south Asia, who seek to revive and reassert their own cultural and historic traditions have been easy prey to the propaganda, the promises of agrarian reform and the help of Russian Communism, and more recently of Red Chinese Communism.

Despite the fact that in 1949 France, which has held complete sway over Indochina since 1886, and parts of it since 1858, promised independence to Vietnam, it was comparatively easy for the Moscow trained Red Chinese leader Ho Chi Minh to sway the nationalist leaders of the rebellious Vietnamese into accepting aid from Red China in their fight for freedom. A year ago, in July, 1953, the French signed a pact with Bao Dai, former emperor of Annam and now chief of state of Vietnam, for complete independence of his country, once a stable government was assured. However, the communists were able to prevent any stable government and the French and Vietnamese troops were routed and forced to move out of Hanoi, the capital, leaving the Reds in full control of the northern section of the country.

What happened at Geneva merely made the French defeat official, and more, gained a partition of the country about midway down the narrow neck near the town of Hue. Insofar as the French were concerned, it was a peace at any price for the new French premier, Mr. Mendes France. It was a disastrous defeat for the western powers and another communist victory in the Far East in the continuing battle to keep Communistic imperialism from winning by erosion more territory in that part of the world. It means that approximately 13 million more people in north and central Vietnam are today behind the iron curtain, as a result of the ratification at the Geneva conference in which our country, together with Britain, France, Russia and Red China participated.

The question now arises, will the Chinese, Reds and their Moscow allies be content and permit the rest of Indochina to work out their independence from the French? The answer of course, is a well known "No", for the pattern of Communist aggression does not work in that fashion.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles early this year pointed out the danger of any successful communist coup in Indochina. He said:

"The tragedy would not stop there. If the communist forces won uncontested control over Indochina or any substantial part thereof, they would surely resume the same pattern of aggression against other free peoples in the area. The propagandists of Red China and Russia make it apparent that the purpose is to dominate all of southeast Asia." President Eisenhower himself expressed his concern over possible loss of Indochina to the Reds as one of "transcendent importance."

So the process of erosion will continue. And at this writing it appears it may continue unchecked in the Far East, lest we become involved in a shooting war either unilaterally or with our western allies, against Red China.

In the meantime the fate of the rest of Indochina, of Thailand, of Burma, of Malaya and the rest of the underbelly of the Asian continent hangs in the balance.

Out-Season Deer Hunters Rapped

AUSTIN—Out-of-season deer hunters have paid some heavy fines according to the latest arrest report announced by E. M. Spott, director of law enforcement for the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

Three San Angelo men prosecuted for taking two deer, one a doe, paid $600 in fines plus costs. Several $100 fines plus costs were meted out in similar cases elsewhere.

Illegal fishing cost several men substantial fines, including levies of as much as $100 fines plus costs.

Proper Care Of Eggs Outlined By Poultry Specialist

COLLEGE STATION—The egg is a perishable product. It cannot stand rough treatment nor maintain the high quality and grade it possessed when laid, if given improper care. Frequent gathering and rapid cooling are two practices which will pay off, says F. Z. Beamblossom, extension poultry marketing specialist.

Gather eggs at least three and preferably five times each day. If they are left in the poultry house all day, their quality is affected. The temperature of an egg when laid is above 100 degrees Fahrenheit and if the quality is to be maintained, rapid and thorough cooling is a must, says the specialist. Eggs only three days old held at a temperature of 99 plus degrees will drop to B grade; held at 77 F. they will hold up for about eight days; at 45 F. they will hold their quality for 65 days while at 37 they are still A quality eggs after 100 days.

Humidity in the egg holding room is of equal importance with temperature. Quality drops with the humidity and Beamblossom points out that the ideal situation for holding is a temperature of around 55 F and humidity at about 80 per cent. Eggs, after they have been cooled, should not be placed in warm cases. Pre-cool the cases and always case the eggs with the little end down. Then take them to market at least twice each week.

Dirty eggs are penalized. It's up to the flock owner, says the specialist, to provide surroundings which make clean egg production possible. A nest for each four to five hens or community nests containing plenty of clean absorbent material such as straw, peanut hulls or shavings is a must. The floor of the laying house should be kept dry and the house well ventilated. If the eggs must be cleaned, an abrasive such as emery cloth or a buffer should be used and only the soiled spot removed. Giving the egg proper environment, says Beamblossom, is good management and will pay-off at the market.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Reed of Drumright, Okla., spent last week visiting in the home of Mrs. Reed's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gurley.

Report From Washington

By Walter Rogers

Congressman, 18th District

Attention Cattlemen
Not long ago, a gentleman came into my office and wanted to discuss Alaska beef producing potentialities with me. He knew I was from Texas, and he saw the Hereford hide on the wall so, no doubt, he concluded that he would have a willing ear. About the time the conversation got started good, the bells rang and I had to leave him in order to get to the House in time for that day's session. He promised to write me a letter about it, and sure enough he did. It is very interesting, and I wish I could put the entire letter in this letter, as I know you cattle people would enjoy it.

This man, his wife and four children, have been growing and marketing farm products since 1942. The father went up in 1941 to Alaska, and the family followed the next year. He tells me that they are meeting with great success and want to expand.

He tells me that there are several islands involved that are warmed by the Japanese current and sheltered by the Alaskan peninsula. That only occasional snowfalls occur and quickly disappear so that the cattle range out and thrive unsheltered in the wild state all the year round. The average winter temperatures are 20 degrees to 42 degrees Fahrenheit, and the average summer temperatures are 35 degrees to 54 degrees F., with three degrees F. the coldest recorded and 80 degrees F. the highest recorded. He also says that from July through December, the natural range grasses furnish beef carcasses able to compete with beef shipped in from the states, and that with a minimum of expense, grass silage can be provided to enable furnishing beef fit for market all the year. There is an ample constant flow of fresh water, seaweed on the beaches for salt and mineral, and very little fencing is needed. There are no predators or poisonous weeds on the islands.

The main market centers are Fairbanks, which serves about 37,000 people, and Anchorage, serving about 90,000 people.

He wants to interest some other fellows in this project so that the operations can be measurably expanded and will be glad to go into detail with anyone who might be interested. He will be glad to send full data concerning the weather, soil and grass analysis, market volume and prices, references, etc., or will make a personal visit to discuss the matter in full.

If anyone wants to go into the cattle business in Alaska, I will be glad to give you this man's name and address. I never saw him before he came into my office, but was impressed by his love for cattle and his apparent knowledge of Alaska.

Everyone seems to be getting water conscious. I was in company with several other members of Congress and a United States Senator recently surveying project, the purpose of which is to create a means of reducing the salt content of water so that it can be used for human consumption or industrial or irrigation purposes. If such a process is perfected, it will not only be a boon to mankind, in so far as the use of sea water is concerned, but would be a tremendous benefit in the inland sections of all countries where you might have underground salt water. Certainly we have that in the Panhandle. The problem to solve is to develop the processes that are now known so that the cost of the sweet water produced will not be

Workers' Families Need Information

Workers' families should inform themselves about social security and be prepared to consult a social security office in event of the death of breadwinners, regardless of their ages, according to John R. Sanderson, district manager of the social security office at Amarillo.

Monthly checks are often lost to individuals and families because they do not file claims within the required time and these losses usually cannot be recovered, Sanderson said.

Sanderson urges workers who are 65 years old and still working to inquire at a social security office for full information before they take the final step of retirement.

A representative from the Amarillo social security office will be in the commissioner's courtroom in Memphis on Tuesday morning, Sept. 14, starting at 10 o'clock.

Bill Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Davis, arrived in Memphis Friday after attending a Coaching School in Dallas for a week and completing a two week stay at Ft. Bliss in El Paso with the National Guard. Davis left for Sweetwater Sunday where he will be a member of the High School faculty this school year.

Mrs. Estelle Barber spent the weekend in Abilene with her daughter, Katherine Hawthorn. Joining her there were Mr. and Mrs. John T. Barber of Oklahoma City and Lt. and Mrs. Douglas Barber of Wichita Falls.

to stop at every other filling station, it takes about five to five and one-half days to make the trip each way. That doesn't leave much time to say hello to your friends when you only have about 15 days for the entire trip.

I was looking at the August 20th daily statement of the U. S. Treasury and thought of the old story about the fellow who asked the other one what he would do if he had all of the money in the world. The reply was that he would pay it on his debts, as far as it would go. What made me think of this was, that the balance on that particular day was $5,954,371,980.02. I had just finished reading about the national debt being $274,000,000,000.00 and the debt ceiling being raised six additional billion. The fellow in the old story wasn't being funny, he just lived before his time.

prohibitive. Of course, it is anticipated that other means of reducing the salt content may be discovered or accidentally stumbled upon. In any event, the project itself is in its infancy, and it may be some time before the fruits of this research will be realized. However, it is well to note that this program is closely kin to another program that was started and developed during World War II that provided fresh water from sea water for many of our boats.

The U. S. Navy is presently engaged in a Save Water Campaign that, I understand, is getting remarkable results. The August issue of the "Navy Conservationist" treats this problem at length and does a splendid work on it.

However, they did leave out one item that I think gives a clear picture of what a great resource water is. I have reference to an experience the Navy had in the the Virgin Islands. These islands have no water supply other than rain water. In order to catch and conserve this, they concrete the sides of huge hills, and in many instances, mountains, and put a catch basin at the base of this concrete slab. Their underground water is all brackish and therefore, when it fails to rain, they just do not have any source from which they can obtain their needed water.

Not many months ago, they were stricken by a drought, and the Navy put one of its war ships in the harbor at Charlotte Amalie, St. Thomas Island, and proceeded to produce fresh water to supplement the reserve of the island. Without this supplemental supply, the then Governor of the Virgin Islands advised me, the situation would have become very dangerous.

Capitol Hill has gotten very quiet for the moment. The few of us who are left here are trying to catch up with our mail and other chores, but most of the members have departed. The newspaper people seem to be having quite a bit of trouble finding news. When Congress shuts down, the news correspondents up here have to dig about twice as hard for stories.

I hope to get loose here sometime around the first of September or shortly thereafter. The family was a little upset at me because we did not get to spend the summer in Texas, but they all understand that the late adjournment of Congress makes it almost impossible to get them down there and back before school starts. When the Rogers tribe starts across the country, what with having

Safety Experience Costly Teacher, Agriculturist Says

COLLEGE STATION—Experience, as it relates to farm and home accidents, is an expensive teacher. The cost of an arm, leg or life itself is a high price to pay for a lesson in safety and can never be justified by the returns.

Don't forget, cautions W. L. Ulich, extension agricultural engineer, that accidents can happen to you. Faulty equipment or hidden obstructions can and do cause accidents but carelessness, not thinking and fatigue take the heaviest toll. These causes are all man made and under the direct control of the individual concerned.

Ulich believes if farmers and their families would answer a simple question before beginning each job many accidents just never would happen. The question is: "Can I possibly get hurt doing the job this way?" If the answer is yes, better change the method doing the job or be more careful, says the specialist.

He points to the high casualty rate among children under 15 years of age resulting from farm accidents as an example. Fatality among this group are almost as high as for the group between ages of 15 and 21. "Sure," he says, "a ride on the tractor is fun but children don't always do as they are told and a fatal fall can be the sad end to a tractor ride."

National Farm Safety Week observed recently across the nation but year-long attention preventing farm and home accidents is the only sure way to their toll. "Agriculture is rated as the nation's most hazardous industry," says Ulich. "Rating will continue until residents, individually and collectively, really make it their business to see that life in the country is as safe as in any other industry. It can be done," says Ulich, "farm and ranch families must remain safety conscious every day in the year."

ing Shetlands to ride for points and prizes.

Every year, the little Ranchers have stolen the show with their fast, furious, but sometimes all-too-short rides. On Labor Day, the peanut cowpokes will compete with their older brothers for the title of Best All-Around Cowboy.

Last year, John Gannis, 7, of Nuremberg, Germany, took second place in his division and this year his little brother, Steve, 6, will be giving him plenty of stiff competition.

As special attractions, Hoyt Heffner, world-famous rodeo clown, and the Amarillo All-Girl Mounted Quadrille will take part in the rodeo.

This year, it will not be necessary to ford the Canadian River to get to Boys' Ranch because the bridge will be opened for traffic. Tickets will be sold at the entrance to the Ranch on the day of the rodeo. Adults will pay $1.25 and children, 75 cents.

2,174 votes, Davidson was left without an opponent when Alan Haley, the runnerup in the July primary withdrew, declaring that he could not continue his campaign for the office because of lack of funds.

Reports from all 12 voting boxes in the county had been turned into J. Claude Wells, chairman of the Hall County Democratic Executive Committee, by 7:40 p. m., Saturday, or just 40 minutes after the close of the polls. The short run-off ballot was a great help in expediting counting and the reporting of precinct results.

Chairman Wells said he wished to thank all precinct officials and workers who assisted in making the fast count and reporting possible.

wonderful sight—one never to be forgotten. And then, to look up at the mountains and realize that but for the snow that falls there and runs down as water, this great valley would only be a desert. We truly say from the depths of our hearts, 'I will lift up mine eye unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.' We always look forward to Saturday when we receive The Democrat and news from home."

Instead of grunts and groans, long faces and turned-down lips, one now sees on every hand Boy Scout smiles (corner of lips turned up) and hears pleasant greetings, since the rains of the past two weeks. Farmers are now talking about having the best prospects for crops they have had in years. One can now take trips over the county and enjoy beautiful sights, where the past few years he saw only short crops, burned pastures and desert-like scenery. When nature smiles on this country, one likes to be a citizen of such a country.

School kids, we hate to mention it, but your vacation days are fast drawing to a close. But that shouldn't set you back any, for most people past the school age would give anything to be in your school seats as pupils. You, too, will come to that stage in life, and that "time is shorter than you think." Enjoy every hour you are in school and enjoy every minute you are out of school, and life will be one long sweet song.

Farm Bureau

The Membership Campaign, Robert Kiker, Keeping Ourselves and the Public Informed, Bill Hoover and O. K. Hoyle; Planning a Board Meeting, Community Meeting and a County-wide Meeting, Sam Allen and Gene Leach.

The school grew out of a get-together of several Farm Bureau members from this area, at the recent Farm Bureau Institute in College Station. The group felt that if more people knew the Farm Bureau story and how the organization works that membership plans would be easier to accomplish.

The group included: Hodges and Earl Richards and Brown Smith, secretary-treasurer, and director and resolutions chairman, respectively, of the Hall County unit; Robert Kiker of Childress; and Varner McWilliams, president of the Motley County unit.

Those attending the school Tuesday will convene in the high school lunchroom to organize. After attending the classes, the group will reconvene in the lunchroom in the afternoon for a short discussion period.

Several counties have indicated they will have several in attendance. They are: Childress, Hall, Briscoe, Armstrong, Randall and Deaf Smith. Other counties to be conducted are: Donley, Collingsworth, Wheeler, Cottle and Motley.

Vera Gilreath Is Appointed To New Position In County School System

A visiting teacher whose principal efforts will be devoted to boosting attendance in the schools of Hall County has been employed by the county school board, Miss Mary Foreman said Monday. Miss Foreman is county superintendent of schools.

Elected to the position was Miss Vera "Tops" Gilreath, who is currently with the state welfare department office at Clarendon. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gilreath of Eli, she has been with the state agency for the past 12 years and is a former county school superintendent of this county. She is a graduate of Memphis High School and has a Bachelor's degree from West Texas State College.

Superintendents and principals of the four school districts in Hall County will keep Miss Gilreath informed of absences among their students and she in turn will get in touch with parents to ascertain the reasons the children are not attending school. Every effort will be made to see that the youngsters are able to attend classes, Miss Foreman said.

Miss Gilreath's weekly schedule calls for her to spend one day each at Estelline, Lakeview and Turkey, and two days at Memphis. Primary purpose of Miss Gilreath's appointment is to assist every boy and girl in the county in obtaining an education. A secondary purpose is increasing the average daily attendance in the schools, since under the Gilmer-

Aikin Law, the number of teachers that each school can employ is dependent on students present each day, Miss Foreman explained. Superintendents of the four school districts in the county are very enthusiastic about addition of the position, the county superintendent said, adding that the new service will cost the districts nothing.
