A caravan of Highway 287 boosters is scheduled to pause here for lunch at noon Tuesday, according to Clifford Farmer of Memphis, president of the National 287 Highway Association. The visitors will be greeted by members of the highway committee of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and Hall County Board of Development.

The caravan is expected to leave Longmont on Monday morning and spend the night at Dumas. County judges and commissioners on Highway 287 northwest from Fort Worth have received invitations to be present at the meeting.

Luncheon on Wednesday will be eaten in Fort Worth and a stop for the night will be made at Palestine. Leaving there the following morning, the good will ambassadors will arrive at Beaumont around noon, and conclude their journey at Port Arthur, the southern terminus of the highway. The caravan will disband and return home at the pleasure of participants.

Brief stops are planned in each community along the route. Farmer stated hopes are that additional boosters will join the caravan as it progresses toward the Texas coast.

However, the weather bureau at Amarillo this morning was broadcasting cold wave warnings for tonight, with the mercury expected to dip to zero in the northern Panhandle and to 15 degrees in the southern part. The sub-freezing weather was supposed to be accompanied by strong northerly winds, 30 to 40 miles an hour, and moderate to heavy snow.

Why Can't Our Government Economize?

The late Arthur Brisbane periodically used to repeat a statement in his nationally syndicated newspaper column, the gist of which was that whatever man could imagine, he could do. We would scarcely dare to dispute this belief, for the world has witnessed some well-nigh unbelievable happenings in recent years, and there's no telling what the future will bring forth. But there is one field—that of government finances—in which we wish there were more down-to-earth thinking. By that, we mean we would like for government officials to stop letting their imaginations run wild where spending is concerned and begin giving taxpayers a break.

As it is now—and has been the past 20 years—whatever various officials have wanted, they have asked for, and apparently usually gotten. At least, the national debt has steadily zoomed until it is beyond the ability of the average citizen—who helps foot the bill—to comprehend. And there is constantly accumulating evidence that some things that were done could as well have been left undone, while those that were justified, could frequently have been done at less cost—with consequent savings to the taxpayer.

A recent analysis of the Hoover Commission report by Frank C. Hanighen, editor and publisher of the magazine Human Events, discloses some shocking facts on government wastefulness.

According to Hanighen's findings, adoption of the commission's recommendations could mean a saving of seven and a half billion dollars a year.

What this would mean to taxpayers is revealed more clearly when it is shown that citizens of this nation pay about 30 billion dollars per year in federal income taxes. In other words, if unnecessary expenditures were eliminated, it would cut the burdensome tax load about 25 per cent yearly.

In numerous instances, the waste and duplication revealed in the Hoover report is almost unbelievable. Some of the disclosures are as follows:

The Army has a 10-year supply of women's wool serge uniforms, while the Navy has a six-year supply of canned beef and gravy, and a 60-year supply of hamburger meat. Also, some military depots have on hand routine items, "in common demand and easily obtainable," sufficient to supply needs for 20 to 30 years. One case was found of a 128-year supply.

Apparently, this utterly useless waste and inefficiency will continue—unless one thing happens.

That one thing is a demand by aroused taxpayers that such foolishness cease. The question is—will this happen, or will public apathy continue to let irresponsible officials endanger the future of this nation?

Panhandle Weather Libeled

Long the butt of wisecracks, both local and foreign, the Panhandle weather is finally enlisting a few defenders. Their task, though tremendous in scope, is definitely well founded. Actually, we know of no situation more libeled in the Southwest.

Why? No one seems to know, but certain groups in Central and South Texas apparently take a delight in painting an untrue picture of weather conditions on the High Plains. This week, for instance, far less than an inch of snow fell in the Amarillo area while, at the same time, two to six inches fell in the Denton-Dallas-Ft. Worth area. Yet, the radio, TV and newspapers of the metropolitan center screamed to heaven about the terrible snow storm which was raging in the Panhandle.

Two years ago a Hereford man was in Austin, planning to drive home on Sunday. He picked up a newspaper Saturday to face a headline which read: "Northern Barrels Into Panhandle; Traffic Halted!" With some anxiety concerning the welfare of his family and fully expecting to delay his return home, he placed a call to Hereford. "The weather is fine," said his wife. "No roads are blocked in this area." Sunday morning he started back home and sure enough, the fog and mist made driving hazardous into Abilene. From Abilene on, however, conditions steadily improved.

Actually, the situation boils down to the fact that the areas which raise such a stink about Panhandle weather are the ones with the bad weather conditions. Whether they assume it is worse here, because their own weather is bad, or whether it is strictly a case of malicious libel, we do not know.

Most employees who migrate into Hereford from other areas of Texas seem surprised at the mildness of Panhandle weather, having been misled all of their lives. Many admit that they never had come to the Panhandle bearable winters. The situation, unfortunate, chiefly because of the ter questionably damages the interest of the Panhandle country.

Please don't be misled by our approach. We are not saying that Panhandle weather is ideal, or that it approaches that of the Rio Grande Valley. It is rough sometimes, this we admit. It is possibly even slightly more severe than some of the other areas of Texas. However, it is bad enough when they tell the truth — and we can definitely see no sense in magnifying the condition through sheer imagination and flagrant untruths.

Besides, such inaccurate and dishonest reporting leads us to question the veracity of other coverage which appears in the down-state press. — Hereford Brand

Legislator's Pay

Probably one of the best ways to begin cleaning up the state government would be to pay the legislature a decent wage, so that those men serving would not be tempted by retainer fees, free trips, hunting vacations and the like.

The idea behind the low pay for legislators, at least I was taught, is that the caliber of man needed for the job could probably afford to go away from his business and should only be paid expenses. The low pay would also keep shiftless, ne'er-do-wells out of the legislature, because the amount of money would not be enough to keep them in zow-belly, grits and cowpeas.

The way it has worked out, though, is that most of those serving the state legislature are young law students in the University of Texas Law School. They're down there anyway and it doesn't cost them anything extra to live, the pay is enough to help them along in their studies, and the legislative session fits in nicely with their schoolwork.

Of course, there are some public-spirited citizens who run for the legislature and go to the session (which amounts to leaving home for four solid months each two years, and suffer the loss to their business at home.

There are a lot of lawyers who are legislators. A lawyer's business is representing someone, or some company. As a representative, a lawyer should side with his client. On the other hand, as a legislator, the lawyer is a representative of the people of his district.

There's a good basic conflict that could cause a lot of sleeplessness to a conscientious person. To represent the client or the people? That's not as easy to answer as it might sound. — Canyon News

Divide the Work

The era of automation is predicted within the next ten years. It is believed that it will take such a few hours to make a living that the people will have much leisure time. There is much talk about how people are going to use those extra hours — reading, recreation or plain loafing.

The front cover of a magazine mentions about the over-worked young housewife with children. It states that she is on an 84-hour week and is in critical need of relief from long hours.

If a man works 40 hours a week and the housewife has an 84-hour week, all that needs to be done is for the husband to take

Official Explains Social Security For Farm People

"Many Panhandle farmers and ranchers have already filed tax returns for the 1955 calendar year," John R. Sanderson, of the Social Security Administration at Amarillo announced this week. "This year for the first time they have paid self-employment tax for social security protection." Sanderson emphasized that all farmers who netted $400 or more in 1955 from farming must file these returns by April 15. Proper tax returns and advice concerning taxes can be obtained from the District Director of Internal Revenue at Amarillo.

Sanderson explained, "This social security credit will mean much to farm families. Suppose we take the case of a young farmer with a wife and child. His earnings up to $4200 a year are taxable for social security. In the event he should die soon after the close of his second crop year under social security and had made the maximum of $4200 in both years, the widow and small child would receive a monthly benefit of $162.80.

"Few farmers make $4200 a year," Sanderson continued. "Let us consider an instance where the farmer makes $1200 a year on an average. At that rate he can qualify for $55 per month when he is 65. His wife, after reaching 65, may qualify for $27.50 per month, or a total of $82.50 for the two. If a farmer who makes $1200 each year (two crop years is the minimum requirement, after 1954 should die, survived by a widow and two young children, $82.60 could be paid them every month, terminating when the youngest child reaches 18. Payments to the widow could be resumed when she reaches 65.

"Write our Social Security Of-ice in Amarillo, for a booklet showing the benefits payable to farm families under social security," Sanderson invited. "And don't overlook the filing of that tax return before April 15," he cautioned.

Survey To Benefit Texas Sportsmen

AUSTIN — Far reaching benefits for sportsmen are likely to result from the economic survey of hunting and fishing now underway in Texas and the remainder of the nation, says Howard D. Dodgen, executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

This study is being conducted by trained interviewers under financing by Pittman-Robertson funds which are derived mainly from federal tax on sportsmen's goods.

"The information gathered in this spot check of Texans will be used as part of the modern pattern governing scientific management of wildlife," said the executive secretary. "Everything has been slanted away from the old hit-and-miss method. Our game and fish resources now are handled by precise methods which naturally calls for accurate information."

Dodgen went on to say that even improved hunting and fishing might develop from the survey. For example, definite data will be catalogued on where hunting and fishing pressure is concentrated so that proper adjustments may be made to meet the specific area requirements. He said he could foresee many liberalizing results as affects bag and creel limits.

An equally important phase of the survey, according to the executive secretary, is destined to give businessmen the answers to some questions concerning hunting and fishing on the industry, in a day when purchase of such as outboard motors and boats has reached fabulous proportions.

The survey will cover such as: "In considering conservation legislation, how important are hunting and fishing to national economy? How big a demand for public hunting and fishing should we expect within the next few years? What kinds of hunting and fishing will the public want? How much land and water will be needed to meet hunting and fishing needs? Where should federal and state conservation agencies put most emphasis in management planning to meet public hunting and fishing needs? What are the economic and social effects of establishing public lands and waters for wildlife? How big a part can hunting and fishing play in national physical fitness programs for youth. What are the chances for new jobs or more jobs in hunting and fishing—for instance, private hunting and fishing areas, fees for hunting, or the like? What will be the demand for various kinds of hunting and fishing equipment—what kinds and how much? What is the impact of hunting and fishing on the American travel industry and its related activities — how much income does hunting and fishing bring to businesses like service stations, restaurants, hotels and motels, and retail stores?"

Farmers Reminded To Keep Adequate Financial Records

Farmers should keep adequate records in order to file complete tax returns, H. B. Hamill of the Amarillo Office of the Internal Revenue, has announced.

"By all means keep a complete record of all your income, and all your expenses from your farming operations," Hamill continued. "Keep your records up to date by recording daily each sale of a farm product and each expense for feed, fertilizer, and other farm expenses. Personal living expenses, such as your own food, clothing and the like, are not considered farm expenses. This record of your farm expenses and income will make the job of filing tax returns at the end of each year easy."

"Many more tax returns from farmers will be received this year," Hamill added. This is true because of the coverage of farm operators by social security will require a tax return from every farmer who nets as much as $400 from his farming, even if no income tax is payable. Tax return forms for farmers may be secured by writing the District Director of Internal Revenue.

"If you are a farm operator, whether you raise peanuts, popcorn, pigs, poultry, or other farm products, you are obligated to pay self-employment tax and thereby earn social security credit, provided, of course, that you net $400 from your farming in the taxable year," Hamill said.

The annual Texas Safety Conference, which includes a section on farm and ranch safety, will be held in Dallas at the Baker Hotel on March 26-27. The farm and ranch section meeting is set for 2 p. m. on the 26th. The safety record of agriculture needs a lot of improving and attendance at this meeting can help.

Wild Ducks Creating Annual Curiosity

As demure as the ducks are, their migration patterns are creating more curiosity than any other natural phenomenon in Texas. And the unusual amount of current winter ducks in Texas has been reported by Howland, executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

Dodgen summed up the situation. "The unusually large concentration of ducks along the Gulf Coast in Texas is not to be located in any other part of the country. In December and January, ducks are reported in Texas which did not show up in any other part of the country along the coast in any other part of the country."

Waterfowl winter population estimates are indispensable to the waterfowl industry. Technicians have been using airplanes to locate the game birds in the past. On the ground, Texas game wardens have been beating the back country in search of possible concentrations.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

alone had upwards of 150,000 ducks.

Whitenton said he based his calculations on an estimated 3,000 stock tanks in the county. He said some figures placed the total Webb County tanks as high as 7,500.

The executive secretary emphasized the lack of general concern over "the missing waterfowl link." "Despite modern facilities, we have not yet penetrated many major wildlife secrets, as to movement and habitat. The present conjecture certainly magnifies an intriguing aspect and perhaps helps the duck hunter to survive the dull off-season period. As for the ducks themselves, they should be entitled to some well-earned privacy after running the gauntlet of gunfire from the Arctic to the Tropics."

Factors other than farm income have been keeping farm land values high during the past two years. Despite the declining farm income, farm land values, since 1953, have climbed steadily to a new record-high peak.

If the farm shop is cluttered and crowded, it is probably a hazardous place to work. Now is the time to give the shop a spring housecleaning.

Dear Editor:

I wish you could read some of the letters I am receiving from Texas farmers and from businessmen in farming areas.

They are deeply disturbing. They tell of economic loss—of hardships—of forced sales of livestock and farm equipment. They tell an alarming story of small farmers having to leave the land.

Much of Texas is still suffering from the effects of drought. But there is more to the farmer's plight than drought.

No small part of the farmer's present troubles is due to policies deliberately set and deliberately carried out by the Department of Agriculture of the present Administration.

Look at these facts: Since 1953, when Secretary Benson took over the Department of Agriculture, farm prices have fallen from 94 per cent to 82 per cent of parity.

During this three-year period, prices received by farmers for their crops fell 12 per cent. Prices they received for their livestock and produce fell 16 per cent.

Has there been any such corresponding decrease in the prices of the things the farmers must buy? You know there has not.

The Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas recently issued a "Scoreboard for Texas Business." It showed gains and losses from 1954 to 1955 for 17 different categories of business.

Seventeen categories—and only two categories showed a loss for 1955 as compared with 1954.

Those two categories: (1) Prices received by farmers; (2) Farm cash income.

Retail sales were up, life insurance sales were up, bank debits were up, cement production was up, electric power use was up. Everything was up except farm prices and farm cash income. The farmer is not getting his fair share of the national income. That is bad not only for the farmer; it is bad for the country as well. To correct this situation we need to pass legislation that will at least slow down—and I hope will stop—this process of "Bensonizing" the farmer. That is what I am working on now, as hard as I know how.

Sincerely,

Farm Surplus Bugaboo - Exposed

What has caused the present and plight of the American farmer? The generally accepted answer in this country to this question is "farm products surplus." This is not true. If it were true, the answer to the farm problem would be very simple. Simply destroy the surplus. Many would say that it would be criminal to destroy food products. I would agree. But if I was confined to a choice between destroying some food products or destroying farm families all over this country, the choice would be an easy one for me and for you. The truth is that the destruction of such surplus would not solve the farm problem. If it would, you can rest assured that the surplus would have been destroyed long ago and the farm problem settled.

The farmer is simply going through another post war era as he has in the past history of this country and is being victimized by the same identical methods and by the same group of tricksters as in the past. The "farm products surplus" song and dance is nothing more than a smoke screen behind which the same kind of sharpies that followed World War I are hiding. It is simple to see that if the surplus was causing the trouble, you could kill two birds with one stone by destroying it. First, it would do away with the trouble and thereby solve the farm problem. Secondly, by destroying the surplus products, you would save the amount of money that it costs to pay storage and rental thereon.

I am not guessing about this because I know that in economics if surplus depressed the market in one phase of the economy, to wit, farm products, it should have the same identical effect in another segment of the economy, to wit, automotive equipment. To find the answer that farm surplus is not causing the problem all we have to do is to look at the figures that have been compiled as to both types of products. Using the year 1947 as the beginning year we find that automotive equipment enjoyed an increase of 37.8 per cent by November, 1955. Yet there has been a continual increase in the production of automotive equipment and great surpluses have accumulated. The retail automobile dealers recently had a meeting in Washington and one of the great complaints was the fact that the surplus cars that were being produced were being forced on them by the manufacturers. I think it could be taken as a fact granted that there is a tremendous surplus of new cars and used cars. Yet according to the index a car that could have been bought in 1947 for $1,800.00 would have cost you $2,600.00 in 1955. Now let us look at the farm products. Using the same years 1947 to 1955 we find that cotton also in surplus decreased 3 per cent which made an overall differential in value between a bale of cotton and an automobile of over 40 per cent. In wheat we find a greater differential. A bushel of wheat during that same period decreased 8.1 percentage points making a differential between the value of wheat and the value of the automobile of over 45 per cent. Looking at cattle, we find a like picture except greater. A cow decreased in value during that period of time 21.5 per cent. This created a differential between the cow and the automobile in so far as value was concerned of almost 60 per cent. And then let us look at hogs, which have suffered a tremendous drop recently. Here we find a greater differential during the same period of time. We find that hogs dropped 67.7 percentage points or a differential between a hog and an automobile on the value scales of 85 plus per cent.

The next question is as follows: "If surplus is the cause of the depressed market on cotton, wheat, cattle, hogs and other farm products, how can the 37 per cent increase in the value of the automotive equipment which is also in surplus be accounted for?" The answer is simple. The truth is that the farmer has not been subsidized. In fact, he has been subsidizing the automobile manufacturers. That is, the farmer has again been victimized by the market manipulations that have been the bugs under the chip in all past farm depressions. The farmer is charged with every conceivable charge being tacked on to any manufactured product that he buys. While, at the same time he is also being charged with every price, fee, tax, freight charge and everything else that is tacked on to the product that he sells before they reach the consumer.

In addition to this, he is criticized by consumers in every instance for being the cause of high prices whereas in truth and in fact he is getting less out of the final price of a bushel of wheat than any other segment in the assembly line between the planting of the wheat and the completed loaf of bread.

I have been taken to task several times by letters and by word of mouth because of my stand on the farm situation. And because I want to see the family farms in this country protected and perpetuated. Let us all remember one thing, and that is when the time comes that farmers and their families are driven off of the family-sized farms they must move to the city where they are going to be hunting for jobs in competition with the people who are presently employed there. This movement from the farms into the cities will also create the congestion of human beings from which has always flowed the social problems that in turn create the demands for social legislation.

It is my feeling that these people want to stay on the farm and will do so if they are given the opportunity to live the kind of life and have the standard of living and enjoy the dignity to which they are rightfully entitled. It is my belief that this type of family life is one of the basic pillars of the greatness of our country. I could be wrong but that is the way it looks to me.

Selective Service Director Outlines New Army Reserve Regulations

AUSTIN — The State Selective Service Director, Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, has announced receipt of official regulations which authorize draft boards to select certain men for ready reserve units of the Army.

Men selected must be limited to those who have occupations or activities in critical defense-supporting industry, or research affecting national defense. Draft boards have a detailed list of these occupations and activities. Men selected must also be in Class 1-A.

Draft boards cannot select men for this reserve activity, which includes up to six months of active duty for training, unless they make application for it. Men selected must spend eight years in the reserves. They are then exempt, under present law, from further military activity.

Men and their employers who have attempted to get deferments because of civilian activity, and have failed to convince local boards of their essentiality to national interest, normally would be interested in this new program, the state Selective Service Director said.

"For instance, suppose an employer has attempted to get a deferment for a die setter who is working for him, asking for Class 2-A," Colonel Schwartz said, "and the local board has not seen fit to approve it. The die setter is faced with an impending two years in the service.

"Under this newly authorized program, when all appeals or approval have failed, the man is required to report to his local board any change in his mailing address, occupation, or employment within 10 days after any such change may occur.

Back in the 1900's buck deer that would rough-dress at 175 to 200 pounds were common and they wore heavy racks. Now the average buck dresses out at a little over 100 pounds and few have more than eight points.

Intergovernmental Relations Explored In TU Publication

AUSTIN — Commission on Intergovernmental Relations recommendations to states are examined in the current issue of Public Affairs Comment, published by the University of Texas Institute of Public Affairs.

Dr. Wilfred D. Webb, associate professor of government, gives the recommendations a "Texas interpretation." He points out that the Commission "visualizes the national and state governments not as antagonists but as partners in the common task of government."

Congress created the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations in 1953, after President Eisenhower cited a need for "a commission to study the means of achieving a sounder relationship between federal, state and local governments." Texas members were governor Allan S. Wright, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby. Single copies of Public Affairs Comment are free on request from the Institute of Public Affairs, University of Texas, Austin.

NINE REASONS THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IS WORTH CAREFUL INVESTIGATION:

1. She pleads for the unity of all believers in Christ (Jno. 17:20-21).
2. You may read of the church of Christ in the Bible Matt. 16:18; Rom. 16:16).
3. The church of Christ has no creed but the Bible, binds no name upon its members but Christ's (Acts 11:26; 1 Pet. 4:15-16).
4. She teaches that scriptural unity can be attained on all disputed questions (1 Cor. 1:10-12).
5. The church of Christ exalts Christ as the ONLY head of the church (Col. 1:18).
6. The acts of worship engaged in by the church of Christ are patterned after the New Testament. (Jno. 4:24).
7. She speaks where the Bible speaks and is silent where the Bible is silent (1 Pet. 4:11).
8. The church of Christ is not a denomination, nor is she a group of denominations, but the body of Christ (Col. 1:18; Eph. 2:21-22).
9. She has as her aim . . . to save souls by the preaching of the gospel, to teach godly living and to help those who are in need (1 Cor. 15:1-4; 16:1-2; Gal. 6:10).

An unbiased investigation of the church of Christ will benefit one in this life and in the world to come (1 Tim. 4:6-8).

Rev. Fern Miller, pastor, read the single ring ceremony before a background of greenery flanked by tall floor baskets of white gladioli and branched candelabra bearing lighted tapers.

Music for the wedding was furnished by Miss Betty Lemons, organist, and Geo. Archer, vocalist, who sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." Miss Lemons also played the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional.

Candlelighters were Miss Carol Ann Monzingo, cousin of the groom, and Bettye Claude Hickey. They wore frocks of pink and orchid.

She wore a fingertip veil of French illusion attached to a cloche of tulle and lace embroidered with seed pearls, and carried a single orchid showered with ribbons atop a white Bible.

Farm Prices Still Fall Faster Than Consumer Costs

COLLEGE STATION — Farmers are now getting only 39 cents of every dollar spent for food in the retail store. This is the smallest share since 1940, and compares with a peak of 53 cents in 1945 and 42 cents in 1954.

Retail food prices in November were less than 2 per cent below 1954, while farmers had taken a 10 per cent reduction in their prices for the same interval. Marketing and handling charges increased 5 per cent during the same time.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said, "The failure of retail food prices as a whole to reflect the decline in farm food products during the past year is recognized by the Department as a real obstacle to a solution of the farm surplus problem."

Pork and beef stand out in commodities for which marketing charges have continued to rise while too-abundant production drove down the farmer's price. Consumer costs for pork and beef have declined less than the drop in farm prices. For potatoes, on the other hand, the price spread has been substantially narrowed.

Secretary Benson said his department is preparing a special report dealing with food marketing trends over the last ten years.

The continuing program of research will also include more detailed studies of present costs and ways to increase efficiency of different marketing stages. Reports on these studies will be published as they are completed.

The statements were a follow-up on Secretary Benson's December 11 expression of concern over rising food marketing costs.

Texas University Plans Science And Math Center

AUSTIN — As a step toward developing a broad program of science education in Texas, the University of Texas has planned a science and mathematics teaching center for secondary school teachers this summer.

"We hope the University's program to improve instruction in those fields will continue through the years," Dr. Robbin C. Anderson, chairman of the University committee which organized the center, said. "Additional offerings are planned for future years," he noted.

The center, which will be a feature of the 1956 summer session's first term, will offer courses for teachers who wish to do advanced work in particular fields and for less-experienced instructors who want a fundamental background in science or mathematics.

Specific courses to be offered include a seminar designed for experienced teachers.

Outstanding speakers from research and industry will discuss recent developments on the frontiers of science. Wayne Taylor, assistant professor of curriculum and instruction, will be co-ordinator.

For less-experienced teachers, courses on fundamentals of biological sciences, chemistry and mathematics will be taught by Dr. Addison Lee, Associate professor of botany; Dr. Anderson, chemistry professor; and Dr. H. J. Eitlinger, mathematics professor. Dr. T. W. Munch will teach two courses, one on science curriculum and instruction, and the other on new methods and materials for science teaching in secondary schools.

Report Attempts To Give Answers On Mineral Rights

COLLEGE STATION — A research report now available attempts to answer some of the problems Texas landowners encounter in managing their mineral rights.

"Mineral Rights Management by Private Landowners" is the title of a publication issued jointly by the agricultural experiment stations in 13 states where mineral rights usually are a consideration in land ownership.

Information and guiding principles are so outlined that a landowner may answer for himself such questions as: How may I lease my land to best advantage? Should I sell some of my subsurface rights and at what price? Should I reserve mineral rights when I sell my land? Under what conditions should I buy land with no mineral rights or with only part of them?

Management of mineral rights is a growing problem, with 33 per cent of all land in the 13 states under oil and gas lease in 1954. Texas alone had 72 million acres under lease. Income from subsurface rights in the 13 states since 1950 amounted to about 3 per cent of the annual gross cash income from agricultural production.

The authors, all agricultural economists, are L. A. Patcher, Oklahoma A&M College, and S. W. Voelker and John H. Southern, USDA, cooperating with the North Dakota and Texas Agricultural Experiment Stations.

The researchers point out that in many lease situations the landowner should obtain legal advice.

A copy of the report, Publication 13 of the Great Plains Agricultural Council, may be obtained from county agricultural agents, or from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

School Lunch And Milk Program Continues Growth

COLLEGE STATION — Both the School Lunch and School Milk Programs continued to expand during the first half of the current school year. The number of children eating complete lunches under the National School Lunch Program is up 10 per cent over last year, and the number of schools approved for the special School Milk Program is up 48 per cent.

Texas now has 2,061 schools approved for the program. The National School Lunch Program provides children with well-balanced lunches furnishing one-third of their daily nutritional requirements. There were 9,400,000 children eating lunches with milk under this program in October. This is a gain of 10 per cent over the 8,500,000 children in October of last year.

Over 2,000 more participated in the milk-only feature of the National School Lunch program last year, making a total participation of nearly 11,000,000. This year, however, this feature has been consolidated under the re-

Traffic Law Violators Cause Most Accidents

"Traffic law violators do have accidents." That statement was made by E. C. McFadden of Dallas, president of the Texas Safety Association, Inc. in an address outlining the Know and Obey Traffic Laws program which is being sponsored in Texas this month by the Texas Safety Association, the Department of Public Safety and the National Safety Council.

"Statistics prove that traffic law violations figure largely in traffic fatalities," McFadden said. "In 1954, according to the National Safety Council, 83 per cent of the fatal accidents involved violations of traffic laws by one or more drivers."

Pointing out that traffic accidents don't just happen but are caused — often by wilful disobedience of traffic laws — McFadden said law enforcement agencies need the support of the whole community in building a greater respect for traffic laws.

"The time to stop an accident is before it happens," he said. "A driver who doesn't know the traffic laws, even though he might mean well, can play havoc with his own life and that of others. And that goes for pedestrians, too."

Pointing out that not only were motorists aggravating the traffic problem by their recklessness and disregard for the traffic laws, but that pedestrians were also guilty, McFadden urged each citizen to accept his responsibility to walk and drive carefully.

"It is only through the individual sense of responsibility for safety of oneself and others that we can hope to cut down on traffic accidents."

It is believed that because of the importance of excellent oak timber in the building of early American ships, oak leaves were selected as insignia by various corps and ranks of the Navy.

At the peak of their strength in World War II the Seabees were only 142 Construction Battalions strong. Yet in the Pacific alone they built 111 major airstrips, 441 boat and ship piers, over 2,500 ammunition magazines, 700 acres of warehouses, hospitals for 70,000 patients, storage tanks for 100,000 gallons of gasoline, and housing for a million and a half men.

Highway Patrol Reports Seven January Fatalities

Seven persons were killed in accidents investigated by Texas Highway Patrolmen of the Amarillo district during January, compared with 10 deaths the previous month and six last January, according to Capt. J. W. Blackwell of Amarillo, who is commanding officer of the district.

A total of 38 persons were injured in January in the district, the report further discloses, and the estimated property damage amounted to $62,264.00.

Sixty-three of the accidents occurred on state and federal highways, 6 on farm to market roads, 8 on county roads, and 8 in small towns under 2,500 population.

Leading the list of violations which were contributing causes of the mishaps were speeding, driving while drinking, failure to grant the right of way, and following too closely.

In December, the principal causes were the same, except that improper passing was listed instead of following too closely, plus driving on the wrong side of the road, not in passing.

During January, 83 accidents were investigated. Traffic arrests totaled 653, with 406 of these being for speeding, and 16 for driving while intoxicated. In addition, patrolmen gave 1,161 warnings for hazardous driving, served 22 safety responsibility police demand orders, and made five investigations for restoration of driver's licenses.

Mrs. C. Jester Enrolls at Wayland

Mrs. Clifford Jester of Memphis, is among the new students for the spring semester, who helped increase enrollment at Wayland College in Plainview by eight per cent over the same period a year ago. Her husband also is enrolled at the college.

Mrs. Jester is the former Patsy Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richards of Memphis. She is a graduate of Memphis High School.

SCHOOL MENUS

For the week of Feb. 20-24 at the Austin, Travis and High School cafeterias, will be as follows, according to Mrs. Mary Sue Beasley, head of the home economics department:

Monday
Meat balls, buttered corn, lettuce wedges with French dressing, brown and white bread, butter, cherry cobbler, and milk.

Tuesday
Deviled eggs, buttered spinach, creamed potatoes, hot rolls, butter, peach halves, and milk.

Wednesday
Chili beans, cabbage, macaroni and cheese, fruit salad, cornbread, butter, and chocolate milk.

Thursday
Ham salad sandwich, green beans, carrot sticks, bread, butter, apple cobbler, and milk.

Friday
Italian spaghetti, pea salad, hot rolls, celery sticks, butter, stewed apricots, and milk.

In weekly bean-guessing contests which began last week, winner at Stephen F. Austin School was Allyn Harrison, whose guess of 960 beans tallied exactly with the correct number, according to Mrs. Beasley. At William B. Travis School, Arnold Cawfield was declared the winner, after his guess of 851 beans was found to be closest to the correct figure of 840. Purpose of the guessing game is to increase the number of students eating in the cafeterias, and the first week proved very successful, Mrs. Beasley said.
