About 100 Reply In Labor Survey

Approximately 100 persons had submitted information about themselves by Wednesday afternoon in a labor survey which is being conducted here by the Chamber of Commerce, according to Clifford Farmer, manager of the organization.

The survey has been instituted in order to learn how many persons might be interested in employment with possible location of a garment factory here.

Farmer said quite a few inquiries have been made about salaries. In answer to this, he said salaries would have to comply with the federal wage and hour law, which sets minimum pay at one dollar an hour, and specifies a five-day, forty-hour week.

About 50 persons, mostly women, will be employed by the factory. The Chamber of Commerce manager urged as many persons as possible to participate in the survey, and to send in or bring data on themselves to his office. If applications are needed, they may be obtained at the organization's office in the City Hall, he said.

A copy of the application also is being published below this story, for the convenience of readers.

Report From Washington

By Walter Rogers
Congressman, 18th District

Restful Holiday?

Memorial Day was observed throughout the Washington area. Holidays are usually excellent days for a Member of Congress to catch up on loose ends in the office. However, I decided that I would spend the entire day with the family. In order to plant myself firmly in their good graces, I went to the kitchen at seven o'clock to cook breakfast for them. Here I had my first hurdle of the day. I discovered that we had bacon and eggs, but no bread for toast. So, I quickly changed the menu to hot cakes. This settled the problem until I discovered that there was no syrup. I then found out that there is no way to concoct breakfast out of eggs, bacon and pancake flour, no matter what order you place them in. Not to be outdone I got into the car and went to find some small, enterprising merchant who was open on the holiday. I found one located on a main street lined with parking meters. Assuming that parking meters did not apply on holidays I went into the store and made my purchases. Just as I was settling with the cashier, I noticed two officers, who were obviously not observing Memorial Day, passing out parking tickets and headed in the direction of my car. I grabbed the groceries and made a dash for the parking meter only to find that my change consisted of everything but nickles. The officers had gotten into a squabble with one fellow who decided to stand up for his rights, and while this argument was going on, I got the car started and pulled away from the curb just in the nick of time. These operations consumed about two and one-half hours, so by the time we had finished breakfast, it was about 10:30. I checked with the office and found that no emergencies had arisen there, so decided to do a few chores that Mrs. Rogers has been calling to my attention for the past several months. One of these was to paint a kitchen screen. I prepared for this project several weeks ago by purchasing a spray can of paint. It is very simple. All you do is shake the can, press the lever on top and your paint worries are over (or so I thought). The lever didn't seem to be working right. I was examining it very closely trying to make an adjustment when the paint started spraying in every direction except on the screen. I got it all over my face and shirt before I could get the infernal contraption shut off. I sent one of the boys after the turpentine I had previously purchased for this operation. He advised me that one of the other boys had dropped the bottle several days ago and there was no turpentine. This, of course, left me a difficult job in removing the paint from me. While engaged in this endeavor, our 10 year old came into the house screaming with blood all over his leg. He had fallen on his bicycle and ripped a two-inch gash in his right shin. We called our doctor friend, threw the child into the car and made a beeline for the doctor's house where five stitches were required to close the wound. The doctor assured us that it was not serious and that the boy would soon be up and about. He told me that he had to make a trip out into the country to see a very sick patient. Being thankful for finding him at home, I offered to drive him as I thought the outing might be restful. He agreed and we started out, only to run out of gas before we got out of town. The trip was otherwise uneventful. But, just as we reached the doctor's home, the heavens opened up and all of the water available seemed to come down at once. I called home to see if everything was all right and was advised that water was pouring through the basement door. I jumped into the car and drove through the pouring rain to see what could be done with the basement. When I arrived, I was told not to go into the basement, because one of the neighbor children had received a shock while trying to help stop the water. Actually, it wasn't too bad. An outside drain had become stopped up. I unstopped this and got the water all taken care of, and the small portion of the basement that had been affected dried out. There wasn't much left of the holiday for resting purposes, so we all went to bed.

I have decided in the future it will be necessary for me to catch up on loose ends at the office on all holidays. This reminds me that last December I asked Mrs. Rogers what she wanted for Proper care of your boat is not just a question of upkeep. With most models, particularly of small boats, it's not a matter of how much scraping, calking and painting—if any—you do. It is a matter of taking the trouble to find out just what care and treatment the craft needs and, then giving it that consistently.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kestrog

Different size boats require

Christmas. She replied, "An office."

Whiskey on Airplanes

The Transportation Subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of which I am a member, recently favorably reported a bill to prohibit the serving of alcoholic beverages on commercial airplanes in the United States. This was a rather controversial issue, but was eloquently supported by the hostesses and stewards, as well as the Airline Pilots Association. We heard some rather frightening stories as to past experiences of some of the witnesses with both men and women who had become intoxicated while in flight. I know many people in the District will be glad to know that this bill has been reported favorably. I have received quite a bit of mail on the subject.

different treatment, just because of their size. So do the various constructions — metal, plastic, wood covered and uncovered, aluminum, and others by the dozen.

The most important item in preserving the life of your boat is not to hit any solid objects hard enough to spring the hull or crack any part of it. Or, as Willard Crandall, boats and motors editor of Sports Afield magazine says, "drive sensibly."

No boat can be used without being scratched, marred or dented. A boatman soon learns the latest touch-up products and techniques and to take such precautions as hanging rubber fenders over the gunwales before each landing. Resale values are poor on excessively scratched boats, partly because dealers and other buyers suspect a slam-banged boat is one that is loosened up or cracked. To be appearance-conscious is one of the best ways to avoid real damage to your hull. If it's on your mind not to scratch and scrape your boat, you're not likely to wham it hard enough to hurt the hull.

Most damage that shortens a boat's life—both the sudden kind and the slow, continuous sort—occurs when the craft is out of use, when there is no one in it. There's hazard even for a boat tied to a pier. Safety in mooring involves such matters as choosing a good spot and using the right length line, so the moored boat won't hit against anything.

Then, a boatman must contend with land damage. Smaller craft that can be lifted can also be dropped. A trailer can rub on a vulnerable spot. Dampness, dryness and heat can take years from the life of your boat. But if you can add years to its life—five you treat your boat right, you to ten or even more.

Read Your Bible

By HARRY GRAHAM

SIGN OF NOBILITY

The book of Acts, chapter 17 and verse 11 states these (at Berea) were more noble than those at Thessalonica in that they received the word with all readiness and searched the scriptures daily to see whether these were so." The apostle Paul was glad that those at Berea were "checked up" on what he told them. How many preachers who are deceiving a gullible public today welcome a comparison of what they teach with the scriptures? How many of you gentle readers have concern about your soul that you will search the scriptures daily to see whether that taught in the guise or religion is true? A doctrine is either true or it is false. It is either from God or from Satan, and the ONLY way we can tell is by a teaching is from the Lord is for it to be set forth in the Word, the Bible.

Many say, "I pay my preacher to study the Bible." Friends, you just can't do this and be pleasing to God. You are taught that it "is appointed unto man once to be judged after this judgement" (Heb. 9:27). Paul said in a church at Corinth that we would all be judged according to the deeds done in the body (flesh) whether they be good or bad (II Cor. 5:10). This judgement will be by the words of Christ (Jno. 12:48) (Not by the words of some preacher). There is a detailed account of the judgement in Matt. 25. EVERY MAN WILL STAND OR FALL AT THE JUDGEMENT DAY BY WHAT HE HAS DONE, NOT BY WHAT HE HAS THOUGHT NOR WHAT HE HAS SAID. NO PREACHER WILL MAKE INTERCESSION FOR YOU AT THE JUDGEMENT DAY. THE PREACHING WILL THEN BE FINISHED.

Friends, will you be noble in the sight of the Lord? Bring your pencil and paper to worship and search the scriptures daily to see whether those things are true that you are taught at the Church of Christ?

Swindlers Sell Fabrics Marked "All Wool"

SALT LAKE CITY—A smoothly operating band of door-to-door salesmen who sell cheap substitute fabrics as "all-wool" are cheating the nation's housewives out of hundreds of thousands of dollars each year, the American Wool Council has warned here.

The swiftly spreading racket, which foils local authorities in most communities, has reached as far West as Southern California and as far East as Hartford, Conn., according to the Better Business Bureau in New York. In most cases, victims are persons who can ill afford to be swindled.

Fast-talking and fast-moving members of the organization hit with greatest frequency in rural America. Here, in smaller towns with few stores, these slickly polished gyps can reach the heart of the nation's budget-conscious, home-sewing market.

Telling a story of personal hard luck, the itinerant salesman offers what are described as luxury wool fabrics at sacrifice prices. Victims of the racket report authentic-looking labels identifying the fabrics as "all-wool" play a big part in clinching most sales, they add.

Only after the salesman has sped away in his high powered car do both the salesman's story and fabric prove to be synthetic.

"These operations, which constitute a nationwide swindle of gigantic proportions, are cleverly devised to escape geographically and are geographically widely scattered segments of the population," says W. H. Steiwer, the American Wool Council's president.

"For every one of the hundreds of local incidents reported each year," he adds, "thousands of sales unquestionably go unreported."

How to Be a Sucker in 3 Easy Lessons

LESSON ONE - Things to Avoid

1. Don't read stories like this clipping from the newspaper. To do so may undermine your confidence in hit-and-run salesmen to such an extent that you will never be able to achieve Grade A Suckership.
2. Keep away from your local, taxpaying, community-supporting stores. To shop them carefully may interfere with your free acceptance of the salesman's pitch about offering values that the stores can't beat.

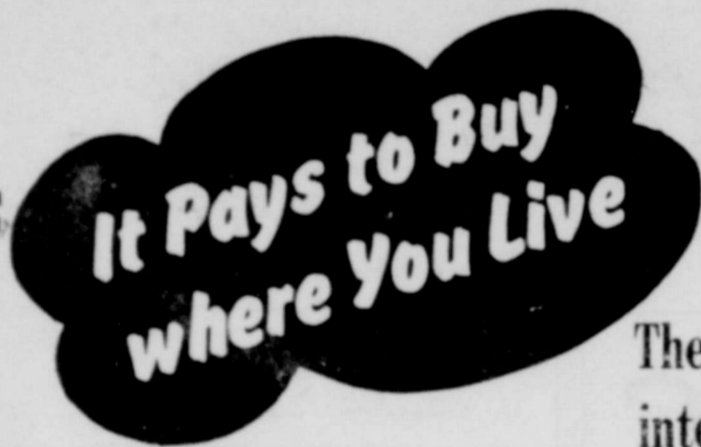

LESSON TWO - Have Faith

1. Swallow whatever line the nice man hands you, because he and his company (which you probably never heard of) guarantees what he says.
2. Don't display your rudeness by asking him to further jeopardize his immortal soul by inquiring where he could be found by tomorrow if you had to try to collect on his guarantee.

LESSON THREE - Forget

1. Forget that you may want the people you do business with to help out with local money-raising projects. And where will the peddler be then?
2. Forget that about one-third of the money you spend with local business establishments finds its way into community upkeep and progress, while the peddler puts this part down in his sock.

Good Range Care Proves Profitable

COLLEGE STATION — "Proper management of range land and stocking of range land can be profitable from livestock produced as well as from the conservation of soil and water," says Extension Range Specialist, A. M. Hoffman, Texas A&M College.

Hoffman, in discussing the practices of range management, referred to them as the "art of range management." Each range manager should choose the range management tool that will best maintain a long lastable ranching business.

Range land practices are: proper stocking, deferred grazing, brush control, cross-fencing, water distribution and control of brush.

Hoffman says the rancher should only stock the number of head that he has grass for, and that he should figure on leaving half of the year's growth. Another practice is deferred grazing. Deferred pastures can be important as a feed reserve for winter. Or, by rotation of pastures, one pasture can be deferred while grazing others, says Hoffman.

Bluestone Advised For Clearing Scum Off of Water

COLLEGE STATION — Bluestone offers a remedy to green scum forming on troughs, reservoirs or ponds. Bluestone in the right mixture, with correct precautions will remove scum with no harmful effects on fish or livestock.

The best way to avoid scum is to put a cover or roof over water to keep out sunlight. Water protected from sunlight will not support scum, says M. K. Thornton, extension agricultural chemist, and W. L. Ulrich, extension agricultural engineer. But, they add, it is not always possible to cover all water.

In such cases, it is advisable to use bluestone. Safe dosage is 8 pounds of bluestone per million gallons; 1 ounce per 8,000 gallons; or 1 level teaspoonful per 1,500 gallons of water. These proportions should be carefully followed, cautions the specialists.

Bluestone will lose its effectiveness in a short time and scum may grow again from new seed falling in fresh water. If this occurs, treatment must be repeated. Too much bluestone is injurious to livestock, humans or fish and care should be taken to add only proper amounts.

Bluestone should be dissolved in a container and poured into the trough while stirring. In treating ponds, bluestone may be put in a sack and dragged through the water from a boat until all of it is dissolved.

In small tanks, scum may be prevented from re-forming by placing pieces of copper sheets or shavings in the water, say the specialists. This is done best by nailing copper sheets on wooden posts set in the tank. This will be effective for a long time unless the copper becomes covered with dirt and slime, they add.

Ponds should be treated one end at a time if it contains skiffish such as catfish. This allows the fish to escape concentrated areas near the boat. Scale fish are less sensitive.

Complete information may be obtained for the use of bluestone by asking local county agents for L-55, or by writing the Agricultural Information Office, Texas A&M College, College Station.

Be sure of a stand of small grain . . .
KILL ALL SPECIES OF WIREWORM WITH A SINGLE

seed treatment

NEWLY SEEDING FIELDS make good feeding grounds for true and false wireworms and other soil insects. If there is not enough moisture in the soil to permit quick sprouting, seeds are vulnerable to insect attack for several days. But the threat of wireworm damage should be recognized at all times.

A dieldrin preventive seed treatment is a sure way to protect small grain seeds until they sprout.

LOW-COST PROTECTION

It costs just pennies per acre to treat seed with dieldrin, but dollars per acre to feed the wireworms untreated seed! A dieldrin seed treatment prevents "spotty" stands . . . eliminates the expense of time and money for re-planting or sowing extra seed for the wireworms to feed on . . . assures you of a longer grazing period. And dieldrin does not harm plant development.

COMPATIBLE WITH FUNGICIDES

Dieldrin is compatible with fungicides . . . can be applied at the same time to save the expense and work of a double treatment. You can buy dieldrin-treated seed from your seed dealer, or treat the seed yourself. Dieldrin can be applied as a slurry, dry, or in a grain drill. A convenient method is to apply dieldrin to the seed in the grain drill as you plant. Follow directions on the label for the particular formulation you buy.

LESS WORK AT PLANTING TIME

Seed can be treated now and stored until planting time. Dieldrin eliminates the rush of treating seed and planting within a few days. Dieldrin formulations are available throughout the small grain growing area. See your local supplier.

Candidate for Governor Visits Memphis Monday

J. Evetts Haley of Canyon, candidate for governor, stopped briefly in Memphis Monday afternoon. In an interview at The Democrat, he claimed that professional politicians are not telling the people how state authority can stop the federal government's destruction of their freedom and their race.

Haley said he is the only candidate who is on record without compromise for continued segregation of the white and Negro races in public schools and public places.

"If Washington can fix the price of gas at the wellhead, in keeping with the Supreme Court decision," Haley stated, "it can fix the price of cows, corn, cotton and human labor. If the government can fore mix the races, it can control every other phase of human life."

Haley ranches on the Pecos and Canadian rivers, and is the author of ten books of history and biography. He was on the University of Texas faculty for several years.

Laws Needed To Curb Court

Former Justice of the Supreme Court James F. Byrnes is absolutely right in his assertion that "the Supreme Court must be curbed."

The distinguished former senator, representative, governor, secretary of state, director of war mobilization and of economic stabilization has joined a great number of leaders of American public opinion in taking this stand.

Byrnes in an interview in U. S. News & World Report pointed to several recent decisions of the court which threaten the power of the states. Among them are the Pennsylvania sedition case, in which the court declared invalid the laws of 42 states prohibiting advocacy of the overthrow of the government by violence, as long as there is a federal statute against sedition. This destruction of states' rights was done despite the protest by the Department of Justice that state laws did not interfere with the enforcement of the federal statute.

Byrnes also pointed to the court's reversal of its historic stand on compulsory racial integration by states, and the decision declaring unconstitutional the New York City charter provision under which an employee was dismissed for taking the Fifth Amendment.

The record of the past several years is filled with reversals of historic policy which destroy states' rights, and of decisions which many attorneys consider capricious.

Numerous bills regarding the Supreme Court are now before Congress, more than at any previous time in the nation's history. At least two of these should be enacted.

One of them is a bill to strengthen the court by providing that its members must be qualified as judges. One member of the nine present justices had had 8 1/2 years previous experience on a high court, one had had very brief experience and one had served only as a police judge. Six possessed no previous judicial experience whatever.

The bill of Sen. Stennis of Mississippi would require at least 10 years previous experience on the bench for every other associate justice seated. It should be strengthened to 10 years experience for every Supreme Court judge, and enacted.

The "states' rights" bill to stop preemption of powers by the federal government also should be passed. In the words of Sen. Byrd of Virginia, it "would tell the federal Supreme Court that when Congress intends a federal law to invalidate all state laws in the same field it will say so, and otherwise the court is not to presume such intention."

More Opportunity For Gifted

Better opportunity in the education of gifted youths was advocated at the recent conference of the New England School Development Council in Cambridge, Mass. There likewise was allusion to places where opportunity to the exceptional is being afforded.

Educational specialists cited with misgivings failures of the conventional school plan, which is geared to the average student. They pointed out that highly gifted youths become bored and ill adjusted to "a lockstep educational pattern adjusted to the average." Mass education in such instances misses the mark, and better trained persons for the future are lost to society.

An exception is the school system of Darien, Conn., which has a high proportion of talented children. For such pupils, special classes, special counseling, additional library facilities and other means to stimulate the zest for knowledge are afforded. These talented youths and their parents are reminded in junior high school of the opportunity and benefits of college so that the pupils may plan for higher education.

Similar attention is given exceptional youths of Brockton, Mass. All such instances are signs of maturity in the universal education system of this country. It was designed to lift up the average, not pull down the gifted, but the mass process has had that tendency, as evidenced by counter-efforts in New England on behalf of talented pupils.

There is in this country the great freedom of opportunity to realize to the fullest one's capabilities and thereby to make maximum contribution to the common wealth. In the zeal for mass training, that major freedom should not be neglected in education or elsewhere.

Industrial Payrolls

Many towns in the Texas Panhandle are becoming "industry conscious." Few, however, have been able to turn out any definite results.

The question is certainly nothing new to the Hereford territory, which sponsored a complete industrial survey last year with an eye toward future development along this line. Despite the spasmodic enthusiasm, however, Hereford finds itself in the same boat as many other aspiring towns.

Hereford, in fact, might even be a lap or two behind in the race for industrial development — despite the fact that it had a good five-year head start. We make this statement chiefly in view of the fact that waning enthusiasm can, in part at least, be attributed to an attitude of partial indifference. Some people declare that they like the community "as it is"; others say, "If I had wanted to live in a bigger town I would have moved to Lubbock or to Amarillo in the first place."

In addition, potential industry in any community inevitably brings up the subject of subsidization through furnishing of land or erection of factory buildings. Many times we have heard the familiar phrase, "No one gave me anything when I moved into town."

Certainly, the matter deserves careful consideration, and we feel that the angle of self-sufficiency, a large enough town and lack of interest from several directions definitely indicates that such consideration has been given. The interests and wishes of all people who make up the town certainly merit equal consideration.

Today, in the mad rush for industry in the Southwest, the situation has become highly competitive. Towns are building against each other — and some are disappointed. Others are jubilant over the industrial additions to their communities. Subsidization is necessary, especially to non-allied industries which, in our case, would be any form not tied closely to agricultural products. No question, the decision is a tough one. And without community-wide cooperation, it would be impossible to swing a big industrial deal into the Hereford area.

On the other hand, a town never stands still. It either grows, or decreases in population, wealth and importance. Hereford has been coasting for some time in the parade of progress. It has the basic facilities to forge ahead, including a modern hotel, an industrial survey, good schools, good churches and a progressive group of people. All it needs is some enthusiasm, push and a lot of determination.

The whole thing, as we see it, depends upon the people. In this case, like most others, they usually get what they want — if they want it bad enough. — Hereford Brand

Reading Between Lines

The layman who is unable to read between the lines of his daily newspaper will have a hard time knowing much about what is going on in his own country, and over the world.

A good example is the wide publicity being given to business and economic "experts" who predict greater prosperity for 1957, with "continued high employment" and general well-being. But the highest since March 1941. Bankruptcy is up 13 per cent over one year ago. But these business failures do not include the many small businesses that quit without even showing on official records as "business failures"—the ones that quietly give up and sell out to competitors.

It would appear from such reports that the Republican policy of creating a vast pool of unemployed labor, along with depressed farm prices, has been achieved in a relatively short period.

The information, however, lies "between the lines" in most newspapers, and more fully in independent publications.—Ralls Banner

Two-Thirds Rule

In former days a Democratic voter who wanted to go into a precinct convention could feel reasonably secure that a representative candidate would be chosen to run for president in the national convention. There was a two-thirds vote rule in effect. But now it is different. A simple majority gets the nomination. The Democratic party is traditionally a stormy

While the blaze was being extinguished and the gin cleaned, Monzingo brought in his bale, grown east of town, and had it ginned at another gin. The result was that the first bale honors were said to have ended in a dead heat.

UT Department Surveys 1955 City Tax Rates in Texas

AUSTIN — Round Top (Fayette County) had the lowest municipal tax rate in Texas in 1955 — 15 cents per $1000 of assessed valuation, a University of Texas Institute of Public Affairs survey shows.

Lynn F. Anderson, the Institute's assistant director, conducted the biennial survey for the League of Texas Municipalities. His report is published in the latest issue of the League's monthly journal, Texas Municipalities.

Seven towns have a 25cent tax rate, Anderson found. They are Avery (Red River County), Beverly Hills (McLennan County), Blum (Hill County), Byers (Clay County), Point Comfort (Caldwell County) and Woodboro (Refugio County).

Nine small cities levied no property tax whatsoever in 1955: Olmos Park and Terrell Hills (both in Bexar County), Richland Hills (Tarrant County), Fairfield (Freestone County), Roma (Starr County), Iranan (Pecos County), Newton (Newton County), Camp Wood (Real County) and Roanoke (Denton County).

The average tax rate of 189 cities included in the survey was $1.45.

In 1955, 37,800 Americans were killed in traffic accidents. Speeding on U. S. street highways last year killed 18,000 men, women and children.

Traffic Picture U.S. Darkening

NEW YORK — Americans are heading toward the highest traffic injury and fatality rates in the nation's history, according to a report by the National Transportation Safety Board, manager of the National Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, declared today. Greatly stepped-up law enforcement measures, it is imperative for the safety of motorists and pedestrians.

"The year 1955 saw 38,300 traffic deaths, 2,138,000 injuries and 1,000,000 accidents. During the first quarter of this year, we are 10 per cent ahead of figures for the same period last year. If the rate continues, we will have 1956 with 42,180 deaths, 2,500,000 injuries and 1,000,000 accidents on our highways.

idents that invariably occur over the Memorial Day and Independence Day holidays. But if the present rate of increase continues, such efforts may be purely academic. The rate for any one day will be so high that these two holidays, which fall on Wednesday this year, may well be lost in the shuffle.

"We are being told that in terms of miles driven and exposure to accidents, we are killing fewer people than ever before. At the most, all this proves is that people can drive a few more miles before they have an accident. It doesn't alter the fact that 26,000 accidents occur each day, and that each year almost one out of every 4,000 Americans dies on the highway.

"Last year 2,000,000 pleasure trips ended in highway disaster, and to me it is no consolation to know that although I'm marked for death, I have the dubious privilege of driving a few more miles before I am brought to an unnecessary and terrible end of life's journey.

"We know that 80 per cent of all accidents result from driver errors. Last year, for instance, the leading causes of highway death were exceeding the speed limit, driving on the wrong side of the road, failing to yield the right-of-way, driving off the roadway and just plain reckless driving.

"Obviously, the ideal way to stop traffic accidents is for every driver to recognize his obligation to drive cautiously and alertly and to obey our traffic laws. Experience proves, however, that this is not likely to happen yet. So, to protect motorists from themselves, as well as from chronic violators, government needs to heed the request of the National Conference of State Safety Coordinators, administrator of the summer-long "Slow Down and Live" program, the nation's major accident reduction program. This group has called on all state governors to step up law enforcement activities and to urge mayors to do the same on local levels.

"State and city governments should make every effort to enforce the laws that are designed to prevent motorists from driving dangerously fast, from hogging the highway, from driving while intoxicated and from driving recklessly and arrogantly. Every driver who, through reckless disregard of safety regulations, demonstrates himself to be incompetent, should be removed from the highway. Unfortunately, no other method offers the slightest hope that a great many of us will survive to see that happy time when the motorists, themselves will understand that lawful driving is just common-sense application of the natural law of survival.

"A few states have recognized the gravity of our highway epidemic and have taken effective enforcement measures. In one or two states, during especially bad periods — usually holidays, the governor has supplemented his available enforcement personnel with members of the National Guard.

"The results of these, and other enforcement measures, have proved that increased enforcement does decrease violations and accidents. Our present highway tragedy gives vivid testimony that we need increased enforcement every day, not merely on holidays. We need it on a day-in-and-day-out basis until we can be sure that safety on our highways is a natural instinct of those who use the highways."

Cancer Claims Lives of 9,379 Texans in 1955

AUSTIN — Cancer, the second leading cause of death, took the lives of 9,379 Texans last year. This means that a little over one person out of every 1000 of our population died from this disease during that period.

According to Dr. Henry A. Holle, Commissioner of Health, one-third of these deaths could have been prevented by earlier detection and prompt treatment. On this basis 3,126 Texans needlessly died of cancer in 1955, because proper treatment was begun too late.

There are some encouraging aspects in the fight against cancer. Deaths from that disease among women in the United States have declined more than ten per cent in the past ten years.

Many thousands could be saved if men and women would have a complete physical examination once a year. Women over 35 should have a mid-year check-up for signs of uterine and breast cancer and men should secure an X-ray for signs of lung cancer. Dr. Holle says that at least 50 per cent of all cancers are accessible to examination by a physician through sight or touch. Of all Americans today the deaths of one-third could be avoided if proper treatment were begun before the cancers spread. The profession of surgery is proof of this, as the latest figures show that cancer deaths among surgeons are only 60 per cent of the general rate. Evidently surgeons not only have the proper knowledge of the facts about cancer, but act promptly on the basis of that knowledge.

Today cancer is being attacked by research within nearly every branch of science. Also, studies are being made of large numbers of people to discover if living conditions are in any way responsible for cancer.

The mole is thought to be unable to see or hear.

4-H Boys Going To State Meeting

Two Hall County 4-H Club members were chosen last week to attend the annual 4-H Club Roundup at College Station next week, County Agent W. B. Hooser said Wednesday.

The two, Tony Molloy of Lakeview and Ronnie George of Turkey, were selected by county 4-H adult leaders on the basis of past achievements as members of the organization.

The boys are scheduled to leave early Monday morning for the state meeting, which will open Tuesday and close Thursday.

Hooser also plans to attend the Roundup.

The three-day program will include short courses in agricultural engineering, agronomy, animal husbandry, dairy husbandry, entomology, farm and home development, homestead management, horticulture, poultry, range management, recreation, the role of 4-H leaders, training 4-H officers, and wildlife.

geant-at-arms; and Gene Lindsey, finance officer.

A renovation and remodeling program was completed at the Legion building Monday, the commander said, and a report on the work will be given at next week's meeting. Among improvements made at the hall were laying a new asphalt tile floor, remodeling of the recreation room, and installing a new roof. In addition, there were a number of minor jobs, such as repairing screens and replacing broken window panes.

Visiting here this week with Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Jackson are their grandsons, Steve and Tim Horrell, of Amarillo.

only, according to Dennis. Swimming instruction will be available for beginning swimmers who desire it, the pool manager said.

Swimming training will be furnished by Dennis and by Sharon Harrison, life guard at the pool.

No charge will be made for swimming instruction, the only cost to swimmers being the regular admission price. Single admissions are 40 cents for adults and 20 cents for children, while season tickets are $10 for adults and $7.50 for children. All may be obtained at the pool or at Ttrver-Stanford Pharmacy.

Dennis said some persons had gained the impression that these charges also applied to spectators. He explained that this was not true, and that visitors are welcome to watch activities at the pool at any time it is in operation.

The pool opens each week day, except Monday, at 1:30 p. m., and is open every Sunday afternoon from 1:30 o'clock until 6 o'clock.

of Memphis; and Jake Morrison of Estelline.

A school of instruction will start Monday, June 18, to familiarize workers with measuring procedures. Actual checking of cotton acreages is expected to start Monday, July 2, and be finished in about seven weeks, McKown stated.

Mrs. D. L. C. Kinard and Diane Gailley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ace Gailley, left last Friday for Abilene where they are to visit a week with Mr. and Mrs. Cearly Kinard.

Mrs. Paul Cooper and son, Dale, of Hobbs, N. M., are spending this week with Mrs. Cooper's mother, Mrs. Mac Graham.

Three 4-H Boys To Attend Camp

A trio of Hall County 4-H boys have won the right to attend the District 4-H Conservation Camp at Buffalo Gap near Abilene later this month, according to an announcement Wednesday by County Agent W. B. Hooser.

The three are Roy Alvin and Jimmy Don Molloy of Lakeview and Donald Wayne Widener of Memphis. Their achievements in 4-H work in past years earned the trips for them.

The camp will be held June 18-20, and activities will include instruction and discussion on various subjects pertaining to 4-H work, and demonstrations and recreation.

Hooser will attend the gathering, and some adult 4-H leaders also will likely go.

had voted to recommend to the council the public housing project.

Also speaking for the proposed Housing Authority were Bill Boren, Herschel Combs and Dick Fowler. Ralph Cole, architectural engineer of Dallas, explained how the city could obtain a housing unit, which would come under rules and regulations of the Fort Worth office of the Public Housing Authority.

"If you want a housing unit of this type, there are certain steps to take," Cole said. "Then a survey will be made of your city to determine how many sub-standard houses are located here, and whether a need exists.
