Duwall County, USA

This is the 10th in a series of articles by New York newspaper reporters Frederick Hodgson and Francis Rosenwald, who recently spent several weeks in Duwall Co. and South Texas, gathering facts for this series.

By FREDERICK HODGSON
SAN DIEGO, Tex.—Things are different in Duwall County.

No matter how brightly the last few liberty items, it takes a little know-how to jump in and operate a government according to the Constitution. Before the "clean up," Duwall County leaders had had their government run for them since before World War I, and unashamedly admitted they were rusty as the nails in the ark. They obtained and circulated elementary textbooks on county government and read them like dime novels.

As a result, Duwall County became a textbook on democracy. It would have made any county in the United States ashamed of itself if we Duwall citizens religiously attending every meeting of the school boards and the commissioners court in such numbers that crowds had to stand out in the courthouse lawn.

This is the courthouse here in San Diego, Texas, where Parr's non-supporters say they were never allowed to enter unless they were summoned. They cover the inside of the district courtroom, they say, "unless we were being tried for something we did not do." The meetings of the commissioners court and school boards were always held in secret, if at all.

After "Operation Clean-up," an invisible line developed down the middle of the courtroom, dividing the Parr people from the non-Parrists. Many of the Parr people had relatives under indictment. Every day was a big day in court, with overflow crowds. One day the Duke himself appeared to answer an indictment. Another day a handful of school trustees arrived, with a motion to quash an indictment. The next day half a dozen lawyers tangled with District Attorney Sam Harris and the "State men." Now and then a stranger stood up or shuffled his feet to remind the participants that "It's peaceful here, and we are to keep it peaceful."

The courthouse is the San Antonio San Antonio from which all but Parr's "Old Party" members were excluded. There are other places besides the courthouse that need to be rightly off limits to Parr's opposition, but not any more. The San Diego Community Center, a public building, now is accessible to any group of citizens, no matter how they vote. And that's new in Duwall County.

No, no, you wouldn't know the old Duke with its new look. People stand around in the drug stores and talk about whatever they please without whispering, without looking over their shoulders to see who is near. This is maybe the biggest, the most striking change.

Business has picked up in the Duke's domain. Manuel Marinquin, whose tortilla bakery business was closed up by Parr, started over again before he began publishing his newspaper, the New Duwall. He had to set up his cafe across the line in Jim Wells County, just outside San Diego. But all the old customers who had quit trading with him on the Duke's orders came back. They bought his tortillas, and his coffee, and now they read his newspaper.

A lot of Duwall residents are coming back home to work from the surrounding counties where they say Parr drove them by forbidding their employment in Duwall. Some have been traveling 10 to 20 miles to their jobs in Clinton and Paduilla and Alice because nobody would hire them in George Parr's county. There are many in this category—retires from company pensions, six days a week. Now they're coming home.

Life, business, government, even love—they've all been laywired in this laywired county, and are getting back to normal. Boys and girls who couldn't date each other and fall in love because one family had Parr's blessing and another his curse, now can give cupid a free rein. The inevitable barriers of hatred are falling down. Romeo and Juliet have come into their own.

In the schoolrooms the distinction—the discrimination—between the kids of "Parr people" and others has pretty well vanished. You don't have to be the child of an "Old Party" family to go to the fair now and sell your 4-H Club calves and lambs. If you're poor, you don't have to be a Parr follower in order for your kids to get free milk at the school cafeteria. Giving milk to one child and withholding it from another for reasons of politics is just one of the many quaint practices condemned by Duwall County grand juries that have been looking into things since the State of Texas moved into the stronghold of the Duke.

The changes in Duwall County don't mean that Parr isn't still fighting. Those who know him best say he'll be fighting when the iron shoes clang behind him. The men who hang around the courthouse, the ones who couldn't hang around there before, will tell you that George Parr's ghost will walk those dim halls fifty years after he has fought his last fight.

You don't get rid of 40 years of Parrism quickly. A whole generation of men and women in one Texas county have been born and brought up in a climate of fear, hatred and distrust. There are those who have always eaten at the public trough, always had the protection of a Big Boss, and always helped him elect his candidates, egg on his enemies, destroy his opposition. In Duwall County there are still many of these, and they have children. Their Golden Age has passed away, and they will mourn for it because they, like the Duke of Duwall, have been born in the wrong century. They are a part of feudalism, part of a day when little kings dominated a few hundred square miles of earth, overtaxed their impoverished serfs, and amused themselves with senseless wars.

But the rest of the people in Duwall County have just come into their Golden Age. They have a new dignity. They have a new hope. They have a County Auditor, an impartial grand jury, supervised elections, and police protection. As one Duwall rancher put it, the clouds have parted and the sun has broken through.

To be sure, the sharp crack of legal conflict is still heard. There is still insult and shouting in Judge Woodrow Laughlin's district courtroom. But the rear of the big legal artillery that has rattled the whole State of Texas Parr and his friends fought ship for three years, while George Parr and his friends fought ship by ship to hold their fortress intact, has fled out. The final score has yet to be called, but the trend is clear. The vintners in the grandstand are picking up their pennants and going home, and the boys in the news box already have written their copy for the morning edition.

What does the Duwall story mean to the State of Texas?

My colleague, Francis Rosenwald, has seen more than one dictatorship rise. Courts, fizzle and die. He says there are two things to remember about dictatorships.

First, they don't last simple by themselves. They have to be helped along by people who are fed up with them. Second, there's not much hope for people who get out of one dictator and fail to look the donor against the next one. And there is always a next one.

Under the Texas Constitution there's not likely to be a dictatorial governor, nor even a Legislature that gets too far out of line. The old state charter was written in 1875, when carpet-baggers were crawling all over the capital, and the men who wrote it made provisions against abuses of power on the state level. They made Texas counties relatively autonomous, letting them retain much authority which ordinarily belongs to a state. This is especially true of the criminal law.

This local autonomy is a good thing, provided you have safeguards against its misuse. But once a county boss learns enough to take advantage of the loopholes, you've got a dictator on your hands. This is the way former Attorney General John Ben Shepperd explains it:

"By controlling elections through threats, bribery or the miscounting of the ballots, you control the sheriff, the county and district judges, and the county and district attorneys. Your paper district judge appoints the grand jury commissions, and they appoint the grand and petit juries. Since you control the officers, you can look up or destroy the records, thus removing the evidence. You cannot be arrested, indicted, tried, convicted or sentenced. You are the law in your county."

If you steal or misappropriate the county funds, nobody will know it because you can just refuse to let them see the records. There are penalties for such secretiveness. Besides, whether you are accused of hiding records or stealing money or both, you have to be indicted in the county of the offense. And, remember, the grand jury is in your own pocket along with the judge and the prosecuting attorney.

In most cases you can't even be sued for the money you have scooped out of the till, because recovery suits can only be started with the permission of the governing body of the agency you have stolen from. When Shepperd's office and District Attorney Sam Harris filed a suit to recover money misappropriated by the Duwall County Commissioners Court, the Commissioners effectively stilled it by refusing to go along with it. It took a couple of dozen court battles in three different counties and several changes in county commissioners to straighten the mess out.

Back to those secret records. There is no adequate law under which you can be removed from office for refusing to show them. And you can always do as the county auditor of Duwall County did. He stood on the Fifth Amendment and refused to say where his records were kept on the grounds that it might tend to incriminate him. There's no law against that, either.

Texas needs many new laws to protect its citizens against another "Duwall County." Fifteen corrective measures have been introduced in the Legislature, by the Texas Press Association. Each of these "Better Government Bills" merits public support.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shadid visited in Oklahoma City over the weekend.

No Time Limit on Texas Veterans' Land Program

There is no deadline for application in the Veterans' Land Program, Land Commissioner Earl Rudder said Friday.

"As long as a man is a veteran and money is available to operate the program," Rudder added, "he may use the program at any time."

Commissioner Rudder said his statement was prompted by numerous inquiries that the state's Land Board had received about a time limit.

A. done for you; What have you done for the P. T. A.; What particular type of project would you like to see the national, state and local P. T. A. foster; What particular type of project would you like to see your local unit start; Do you think our children benefit from P. T. A.; What do you enjoy most about the P. T. Russell-Corley Nuptial Vows Are Solemnized In Dumas Rites March 9

The First Methodist Church in Dumas was the scene Saturday after-noon, March 9, for the marriage of Shirley Jean Russell, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Cross of Cactus, to Donald Gene Corley of Cactus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Corley of Memphis.

The Rev. Albert Cooper, pas-tor of the Cactus Methodist Church, read the double-ring ser-vice. An arch, covered with palms and centered with an arrange-ment of white gladioli, decorated the altar. Candelabra and a white kneeling bench completed the set-ting.

Miss Brenda Boyer, organist, played "Wedding Prayer," "Ser-enade," and "Calm as the Sea" as a prelude. Miss Johnnie Bruce sang "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional marches were used for the processional and recessional.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Leroy W. Cross, the bride wore a white gown with a sweet-heart neckline and cap sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of bridal illusion was attached to a coronet of irides-cent sequins, seed pearls and rhinestone. She carried a cascade of white roses and stephanotis centered with gardenias.

As maid-of-honor, Miss Jay Lene Phillips of Dumas wore a dress of frosted white and pink lace over net and taffeta, styled with a deep boat neckline, fitted bodice and waltz length skirt. Her bandeau was of pink taffeta and net ruffles and white flowers. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and roses.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Jimmy Moss of Amarillo, Miss Lew Hud-son of Amarillo and Mrs. Marion Durr of Austin, cousin of the bride, wore identical dresses of mother-of-pearl pink net over taf-feta, fashioned with fitted bodi-ces, cap sleeves and waltz length skirts. Their bouquets were of sweetheart roses.

David Corley of Memphis was his brother's best man. Serving as ushers were Leroy Green of Amarillo, Billy Howard West of Amarillo and Leon Hudson of Amarillo.

Claudia Mae Corley of Mem-phs, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl and wore a white net frock trimmed with pink rose-buds. Ring bearer was Kelly Gene Robertson of Dumas.

Mrs. Cross, aunt of the bride, wore a champagne silk sheath dress and Mrs. Corley, bride-groom's mother, wore a powder blue silk suit. Both had corsages of pink camellias.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party was honored at a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Laid with a white satin cloth, the serving table was centered with an arrangement of pink roses, flanked by candelabra. Mrs. Marie Cross and Mrs. Vera Ward, aunts of the bride, served the cake and punch. Musical se-lections were played by Miss Boy-er.

Assisting in the house party were Mrs. Fred Holdcroft, Mrs. Paul Burton and Mrs. Charles Ver-non. Guests were registered by Mrs. Jim Harris.

Mr. Corley was graduated from Amarillo High School and attend-ed Amarillo College. She is em-ployed by Phillips Chemical Co., Cactus. The bridegroom was grad-uated from Memphis High School, attended Wayland College, Plain-view and Texas Technological College, Lubbock. He served two years in the U. S. Army. He is now employed with the Phillips Chemical Co., in Cactus.

After a wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Cactus. For traveling, the bride chose a cham-paigne sheath dress with a toast colored coat. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Corley, parents of the bridegroom, entertained with the rehearsal dinner at the Sheed Hotel in Dumas.

Report From Washington

By Walter Rogers

Congressman, 18th District

Committee Work

The controversy has grown out of an attempt to have the FCC change the allocation of certain good TV channels from assignment to educational institutions, where they now rest, to commercial enterprises. This attempt has brought a deluge of violent protests from people all over this nation who are vitally interested in the development of educational TV. There are only so many TV channels available, and if all are used for commercial purposes, none would be available for educational programs so badly needed.

Also of interest in the television field is the case pending before the FCC concerning pay or subscription television. Although this is not in operation currently, I have seen it demonstrated. The company presenting the program attaches a gadget to your television set which has several numbered punch buttons. You are also furnished with a card each month listing the shows that will be performed during the month. Beside each name is a number covered with a tab of paper. By tearing off this tab, you uncover a code number. You then punch the buttons on the gadget in the sequence in which they appear on the code number. This enables you to tune in the show you want to see. At the end of the month a collector comes around and you are charged for the shows you watched. These can be determined by the number of tabs removed from your card. Incidentally, there is quite a controversy about authorizing this type of television.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has to do with securities and was originally set up to prevent people being bilked by fraudulent stock schemes. The Chairman of this Commission, in relating the enforcement activities, told the story that proves how necessary it is to get the whole truth. He said one of their enforcement officers was questioning a high-powered salesman who was operating with a suspicious brokerage firm. He asked the salesman if he encountered any trouble with the law during the last 10 years. The salesman told him that he had not. Whereupon the enforcement officer asked where the salesman had been for the past 10 years. The salesman advised him that he had been in Leavenworth Penitentiary and had just been released. His answer to the first question had certainly been true but was not as informative as the enforcement officer had wanted.

Irene Brewer Kennedy, Inez Holt and Virginia McNomana, all nurses from Dumas Hospital, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Weatherby at their Lake Kemp cabin. Dinner guests on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Davenport and Otha Gardenhire of Lakeview.

When a man takes on an employee, he investigates character as well as his ability to do the job for which he has applied. How much more important, possibly his entire possessions are at stake, when a man thoroughly investigates the company in which he is going to place his trust and the agent upon whom he is going to depend for the correct insurance coverage, so that he will be satisfactorily indemnified in case of loss.

Our agency and the insurance companies we represent can meet the closest scrutiny.

Rep. Will Ehrle Co-Author of Bill To Reorganize Insurance Commission

Representative Will Ehrle of Childress has co-authored a bill introduced in the Texas House to reorganize the Insurance Commission.

In a special release Ehrle said, "I do not think our present set-up on administration of the insurance is adequate; and during my campaign last summer, one of the points in my platform was on strengthening our insurance laws."

"This reorganization of the insurance commission could be an effective move to prevent other possible frauds in the insurance field. The present failure of ICT will, I hope, prove to the membership of the legislature that our insurance situation in Texas is still far from satisfactory."

The bill which Ehrle is co-authoring will set up a State Board of Insurance with a chairman who will be titled the Commissioner of Insurance. This board would take over the duty of regulating and enforcing the insurance laws and

FHA Check-Ups Help Farmers Analyze Progress

Prospects of increased efficiency in farming operations during the coming season and evidence of progress last year are showing up on several Hall County farms as the result of systemic check-ups on the past year's operations. Claude Moore, Farmers Home Administration county supervisor, reports:

At the end of each farm business year, those families using FHA credit to buy, improve, or operate their farms, analyze their last year's business. After noting the strong and weak points in their operations, they make plans or better farming during the coming year. Assistance in this analysis and planning is supplied by the FHA county office personnel.

Arrangements to use this service in connection with loan funds advanced by the agency are part of each family's agreement with the FHA. The service is known as the year-end analysis.

To enable the farm families to make full and efficient use of their labor and increase their income, careful consideration is given to the adequacy and full utilization of their land, livestock, and equipment. When necessary, loan funds are provided to attain or develop the needed resources.

Among the improvements planned as a result of farm records recently analyzed in the Hall County Farmers Home Administration office, are improved systems of farming, soil and water conservation measures, better cropping practices, improved herd management, farm drainage, weed control, and other improved farm and home management practices. A better balance between cash crops and livestock operations is needed in many instances.

Moore said he and all other county supervisors keep in close touch with the local county agricultural agents, the State College of Agriculture, experiment forms,

Russia's Dilemma

"We are now seeing the first of a long series of upheavals generated by the internal contradictions of the Soviet economy.
For Soviet Communism has turned out to be a kind of capitalism—a kind that won't work." That is the substance, developed in great detail, of an article by Gilbert Burk and Sanford S.
Parker in the February issue of Fortune.

The writers begin with a striking analogy—"The Kremlin today is like a reckless corporate board of directors that has become obsessed with the ambition of making its company the biggest in the world; having expanded plant and equipment too fast, it must now adjust its ambitions to reality."
Every Soviet effort has been dedicated to overtaking and surpassing the United States in military and economic fields. The process has been one of forced, not normal or logical growth.
Russia's very real achievements, in other words, have been obtained by such iron-handed stratagems as collectivizing the farms, forcing peasants into the factories, and holding production of consumer goods to minimum levels.

However, Messrs. Burk and Parker state, the nation can no longer grow by the same devices. Little if any more manpower can be taken from agriculture to serve industry. Population growth has been retarded by famines, war losses and deaths in slave-labor camps. So increased industrial production can come, for the most part, only by increasing productivity per man-hour —a fact which the latest Five Year Plan recognizes. But, as the writers put it, there is a big dilemma here: "Because popular resentment is actually beginning to affect production, the Kremlin must now make real concessions to consumers. But if the Kremlin makes such concessions, it cannot keep pace with, much less surpass, the military and economic progress of the U. S."

The Fortune article is illustrated with some revealing charts and tables. The Soviet labor force is half again as large as ours —yet produces only a third as much. The way the labor forces are divided is also highly significant. Both nations employ about the same number of people in government. But Soviet agriculture employs about seven times as many workers as we do, and Soviet industry 10 per cent more. On the other hand, Soviet workers in the trades and services number less than a third of the U. S. total — which in itself clearly shows why Soviet living standards are so low.

In no field of consequence does Soviet production rival ours, even though she has managed to greatly increase her industrial output over the years. Russia produces less than half as much steel; about a third as much energy, and only a tiny number of automobiles, comparatively speaking. Her farm output as a whole is but half of ours, and meat production but a quarter. As for Russian consumers, this observation is made:
"Never in modern history has a big economy vouchsafed so few crumbs to so many customers."

How can the Kremlin relieve its tremendous economic pressures? It can continue its emphasis on heavy industry—but that, as the authors say, "... would require a new crackdown on the people and might end in violent revolution." Or it could place the emphasis on consumer goods—"Yet a real shift toward consumer goods, because it would end the myth of the necessity of obsolescence, would pave the way for the gradual downgrading and disintegration of the Communist party dictatorship."

In other words, the Kremlin hasn't much choice. Matters might reach a state of desperation which would result in World War III. However, these writers believe, the crisis is more likely "... to spawn along period of stopgap measures, ad hoc policy changes, and Kremlin reshufflings. These might, over a period of years, effect a substantial and primarily peaceful change in the Soviet system; or they might whet the people's appetite for faster and greater change and so lead to coups d'etat and popular uprisings."

Your Enemy

Suppose someone took you aside and said: "You have an enemy who may waylay you and cripple you for life. But I know how you can stop this enemy. You'll have to act fast. It won't cost much money, and it will take only 180 seconds of your time."

If you knew the facts were true, you'd take him up on it, wouldn't you?

Well, the facts are true. The enemy is paralytic polio. If you're under 40 years old, you're a possible victim. If polio strikes, you may face a life shattered by disease and disability.

There is no cure for paralytic polio, but there is a way to prevent it. The preventive is the Salk vaccine. It is safe and it works. Three properly spaced shots—at 50 seconds a shot—gives you protection.

Over 45,000,000 Americans have been smart enough to get this protection. But 60,000,000 in the susceptible age group have been foolhardy enough to neglect it.

Don't be one of the foolhardy ones. The polio season starts soon. You still have time to safeguard yourself and your family if you act at once. Go to your doctor or your clinic now. Vaccinate—before it's too late!

Soil Conservation Pays

Recently an implement dealer in Texas conducted a survey over a two and a half year period among farmers who practiced soil conservation and those who did not.

It was found that farmers who practiced conservation spent about $1200 more a year with the equipment dealers than those who did not follow good conservation practices. The reason for this is two fold. First, it takes modern farm equipment to make soil conservation possible, and second, the farmer who conserves and makes the most of his land earns more money in the long run and is able to afford more machinery.

This matter of soil conservation is an all-important one today. Each year we are adding to our population a figure equivalent to the population of Los Angeles while our productive farm land is declining by about 4,000 acres a day. Our problem of surpluses will not be with us always, for it is possible that this great country could one day be like India where thousands starve each year.

Civilization begins and ends with the plow. If you have a conservation problem see the technicians at the Hall County Soil Conservation District office.

QUOTING OUR NEIGHBORS

Press Paragraphs—

Agriculture and Morals

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, the noted Dutch Reformed clergyman of New York City and the author of many best sellers on the art and joy of living, told the Pennsylvania Farm Show audience in Harrisburg recently that farmers have "the best morals of any people, because they live close to Life itself and are in closer tune with the forces of God." Dr. Peale added that he regards the farmer as a "substantial character" with greater moral values than other segments of the population.

Maybe the popular clergyman was laying it on a bit thick—since he was addressing hundreds of farmers—but most of us will admit there was a lot of truth in what he said. Farmer folk are closer to the miracles of the creation than any other class; they know the Source of the harvest. We like to feel that in this respect the potato grower in Maine, the wheat and corn grower of the Middle and Central West, the fruit grower of New York and Pennsylvania and the Pacific Coast, the cotton grower and farmer of Dixie and the citrus and vegetable growers are truly "brothers under the skin" and therefore men of integrity and common sense. We do not claim for a moment that they are perfect or that they do not have their moments of petty rivalry and jealousy—but we do believe with Dr. Peale that for their freedom from the much-too-common maladies of tension and irritability, they are to be envied and respected. It certainly would not be amiss if the rest of us could get sufficiently close to the soil to emulate their example and to learn that their sterling attributes and attitudes would be most helpful to all of us.—Winter Haven (Fla.) Herald

Senate Race

Encountered a reader last week who was opposed to my editorial on Yarborough in the Senate Race. This, thank goodness, is his privilege and at least he was doing some thinking about the race.

I am not a zealot for Yarborough but my reasoning runs thusly:

Examine the record of the top three possible winners and find the record and the man you favor and then vote accordingly.

Among the three top contenders will be Ralph Yarborough, Martin Dies and Thad Hutchison.

If you want a complete reshuffle of the Senate and a Republican Senator, then of course your vote will go for Thad Hutchison. The Republicans have done so much for the farmers the past four years that I'm sure there are some who would like to increase that strangle hold.

Hutchison has charged Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.) of Wyoming and his committee investigating the oil industry with "political tampering."

In the case of Martin Dies, we find him voting in favor of permitting producers of natural gas to increase gas prices without government approval; in favor of eliminating public housing; against increasing school construction in defense-affected areas; against increasing the $600 tax exemption by $100 for all taxpayers and dependents and a plan to "eliminate tax loopholes for stockholders," and on the record goes. He seems to have his hands full of crude oil.

Yarborough's strength seems to come mainly from the rural section of Texas. He did not carry the strongly controlled "labor counties" of the state as so many predicted and his campaign monies do not originate from big oil or big insurance. At least he seems to be the candidate that is less obligated to anyone except to the people who vote for him.

Yarborough, in a speech at San Antonio, referred to Saudi Arabia King Saud's purchase of "80 jeweled cadillacs" and said he noticed he (King Saud) "came over here and got $200 million ... his country has had a drouth since Abraham was a boy, but the American farmer and rancher is supposed to be happy with $76 million." He said this amount, spread over the 210-million drouth stricken, would amount to aid of 30¢ an acre. He suggested boosting drouth aid to American farmers by "... trimming fat from the $4.5 billion budgeted for foreign aid."

There's the line-up. Take your choice April 2nd.—Claude New

Around and About by Helen Combs

The short weekend with our granddaughter in Killeen came to an end all too soon...

Like all grandchildren, ours is especially nice. The first thing we asked our daughter Pat when we arrived was if Susan knew how to wave "bye-bye."

The wonderful rains down state have wrought a change in the countryside since we drove through that section in mid January.

In Killeen, we enjoyed a tour of Ft. Hood with our son-in-law as the guide. Then, on Saturday, we visited in Austin with Senator and Mrs. Andy Rogers and toured that city with Senator Rogers as our able director.

There are many points of interest in Austin. This was really our first conducted tour of the city as a whole even though we had been there a couple of times before.

All in all, Austin is a very nice city... but, however nice, there's no place like HOME!

Speaking of Memphis, we are proud of our churches, schools, clubs and the people as a whole.

Plans are now being made by two women's clubs for special

Then, members of the Business and Professional Women's club are making plans to bring Dr. Jack Walker, associate professor of speech at West Texas State College, to Memphis to teach a course on "Psychology of the Improvement of Personality."

Friday night is the date for the Lakeview Parent-Teacher play, "Grandma's Best Years."

TAX TIPS

from the office of James Z. Pearce Amarillo, Texas

Early filing of your 1956 income tax return will help Uncle Sam and yourself, says James Z. Pearce of Internal Revenue Service.

"The vast bulk of this area's taxpayers will find no difficulty in making out their own returns," Pearce said.

"To obtain aid and avoid the last minute crowds, call or come in now while our personnel are better able to assist you."

"It's true that the filing deadline is April 15, but little or nothing is gained by waiting until the last minute to pay up."

The IRS representative stressed that careful reading of the instructions, accompanying the tax forms recently mailed out, will enable most taxpayers to prepare their own returns, often in less than an hour.

Senator Rogers said that while the study would be a wise one to be undertaken for the entire state, it had been restricted to the Red River and its tributaries because of their economic significance and the peculiar incidence on these streams of sources of salt and gypsum pollution.

Senator Rogers said that under the bill the Board of Water Engineers would be directed to report findings of the study to the governor and the legislature.

Mesquite Trees Use Four Times More Water Than Native Grasses

By WILLIAM C. SWINDLE SCS Technician

Scientists tell us that mesquite trees use from 1700 to 1900 pounds of water to produce one pound of dry forage, Catclaw uses 2,400 pounds of water and it is believed that other pest plants fit into same category.

As comparative examples, blue grama grass uses 338 to 400 pounds of water to produce a pound of dry forage.

An inch of rainfall over one acre of land weighs approximately 216,000 pounds, or enough water to produce about 540 pounds of grama grass.

There is hardly a farm or ranch in the Hall County Soil Conservation District that does not have an infestation of mesquite or other undesirable brush.

Root-plowing, although the most expensive, of the methods used, as also the most effective both in reducing brush and improvement of grass.

The root plow is a flat blade that cuts a strip from 5 to 11 feet wide and about three inches thick. It is pulled by a crawler type tractor at a depth of 8 to 18 inches, depending on the type of brush and depth of soil.
