Conservation Reserve Sign-Up Begins Aug. 24

The 1960 sign-up to increase the acreage in the Soil Bank Conservation Reserve Program will begin Monday, Aug. 24 and continue through Sept. 10, Lynn McKown, manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office here, said this week.

Funds for new contracts will be limited with each community having a limit on the number of acres that can be accepted, he said. The committee and their acreage limit are as follows: Lesley, 1197 acres; Lakeview, 1517 acres; Plaska, 1306 acres; Memphis, 2445 acres; Estelline, 1629 acres; and Turkey, 1914 acres making a county total of 10,008 acres.

The 1960 Conservation Reserve has many changes which should be considered before an application is made, he stated. They include the following:

1. Land which has changed ownership since Dec. 31, 1958 is not eligible.
2. Land which has been rented to another during 1958 or 1959 is not eligible to be signed up by the owner.
3. Land owned by State, County, City or clubs, etc. is not eligible.
4. You must submit the production record of the land being offered for the last five years, 1955 through 1959, to enable the county committee to determine the rental value of the land being offered, as your annual payment rate cannot exceed the average rental value of the land being offered.
5. All 1960 contracts are non-transferable for 3 years except by will or succession by death. This will also apply to old contracts modified in 1960 by the addition of new land.
6. Cost-share assistance for 1960 will be limited to 50% of the average cost.
7. Annual payment rates for the county will average $12.00 per acre. Farm rates will be established by the county committee, based on the productive index of the individual farm, but no contract can be accepted unless the offered rate is below the basic rate established by the county committee. This rate will be increased 10% of all the land on the farm is going in for 10 years.

All applications for a basic annual payment rate must be filed with the county committee not later than Sept. 10, 1959. Basic rates will be established by the county committee for all applications received. After notification of basic annual payment rates producers will have from Sept. 14 through Sept. 25, 1959 to make their bid for a contract. All contracts will be accepted on a priority basis with low bidders having the highest priority.

Church of Christ At Estelline To Hold Meeting

A gospel meeting will begin Friday at the Estelline Church of Christ, according to an announcement this week. The meeting will continue through Sunday, Aug. 30.

The visiting evangelist for the series of lessons will be Fred L. Yates of Kiowa, Okla. Yates is returning to the church to carry out his third meeting for the group.

Song leader for the special effort will be Therman Ellerd of Memphis. Services will be at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m. daily.

The public is invited to attend.

The fall school term for some Memphis students will get underway next Thursday, Aug. 27, at 9 a. m. when a split session of registration begins, Supt. W. C. Davis announced this week.

At that time members of the senior class will appear at the high school for registration and a counseling program. Principal C. E. Voyles explained that the registration is being divided into four sessions this year in order that more time may be spent with each individual pupil to make sure that each student selects the proper course of study in view of his or her future plans.

Members of the junior class will enroll beginning at 1:30 p. m. Thursday afternoon.

Friday morning the sophomores and eighth graders will meet at 9 a. m. and Friday afternoon the Freshmen will enroll beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Registration in the grade schools will be held Monday, Aug. 31, at 9 a. m., Supt. Davis said. He reminded parents that Main Street is the dividing line between the two elementary schools and that the placement of children is based on the location of the child's home at the beginning of the school year. Those students living south of Main Street should attend Austin Elementary School while those north of the street should attend Travis Elementary School.

Monday, Aug. 31, will be a short day in all of the local schools with the time being devoted to the issuing of books and making of assignments. Buses will run in the morning to pick up students and will then leave Memphis about 1:30 p. m.

County Court Holds Busy Session Here

A total of nine cases were settled this week in County Court with two of them being dismissed. Court began Monday with Judge Tracy Davis presiding and continued through Wednesday.

Two alcohol violation charges against Otis Bohannon were dismissed due to technical errors, Judge Davis explained. In the first case Bohannon allegedly sold alcoholic beverage to a liquor control board agent. Testimony in court revealed that a third party was involved in the sale and the case was dismissed.

The second case, charging Bohannon with possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale, was dismissed after the search warrant was found to be void since the Justice of Peace did not swear the officers to the document, Judge Davis continued.

Other court action Tuesday saw George Wiggins plead guilty to two charges of the sale of alcoholic beverages. He was assessed a fine and costs of $128.80 in each case by the judge.

R. A. Scott also pled guilty to two charges of possession of beverages for the purpose of sale and was fined $250 and costs of $28.80 in each case.

Herbert White pled guilty to a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale and was assessed a fine of $100 plus costs.

Leon Brown was found guilty by a jury of a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was sentenced to three days in jail and assessed a fine of $50. The charge grew out of a wreck on a dirt road east of Memphis some time ago.

California Letter Reveals Early History of Plow Point

Two weeks ago The Democrat published an article concerning a cast iron plow point, called a shear in the local community. It was found by C. B. Craig in the Plaska community.

A letter was received from Fred Boon of Exeter, Calif., which shed considerable light on the early history of the plow point.

The letter is as follows:

I read an article in the Democrat concerning the finding of an old plow point by Mr. Craig in the old Boon farm in the community. I might be able to help you somewhat.

After moving on the place in 1897, he first homesteaded the Vallance section and then sections south of Red River and the Shoe Bar for $500 and bought the Harrison section for $500 because it had a better house on it.

At that time there was only about 80 acres that had been farmed and he wanted more farm land so he borrowed a plow from J. E. Hamm. (Mr. Hamm was Hall Co. Surveyor from 1894 to 1896.) The plow had a cast iron point. I can remember my father sharpening this plow by chipping the point like you would chip an arrowhead.

I was 12 years old and my brother and myself broke out 60 acres with that plow. I cannot remember the point being cracked but I am sure that it was left there from that old plow. The beam was made of heavy wood and all the metal on the plow was where it was bolted onto the beam.

This plow was probably bought at a hardware store in Estelline

Examination Announced For Lakeview Post Office

An examination for postmaster at Lakeview, with a salary of $4620 a year, will be open for acceptance of applications until Sept. 8, 1959, the Civil Service Commission announced last week.

Competitors for the postmaster vacancy in that city must show that they can deal with the public agreeably and effectively and that they are reliable citizens who would command the respect and confidence of patrons of the post office. They must also show that their background will enable them to maintain simple records of accounts or that it has given them a knowledge of postal procedure, the announcement said.

Applicants must take a written test. Those who pass will be assigned final ratings on the basis of this test and on their experience and fitness for the position. They must have resided within the delivery of the office for one year immediately preceding the closing date of the examination. In addition, they must have reached their 18th birthday on the closing date for acceptance of applications.

$90,000 Allocated for Study of Red River Area

Final step in obtaining $90,000 for feasibility study of Prairie Dog Town Fork of Red River and Salt Fork of Red River was taken in Washington Tuesday, according to a telegram received here. On that date President Eisenhower signed the conference report on the Public Works Appropriation. The bill provides the money to start the feasibility study on the two streams.

Both the House of Representatives and the U. S. Senate approved the conference report on Monday.

Congressman Walter Rogers, Senators Lyndon Johnson and Ralph Yarborough sent telegrams to The Democrat explaining the steps as they developed in Washington. Also informed were area leaders who have been working to get dams on each of the rivers.

In a telephone conversation Wednesday, Congressman Rogers explained features of the bill pertaining to the study. He said the work will be done by the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior.

Congressman Rogers stated that he would be in the district next month, and would be meeting with interested persons and committees in the area.

On Aug. 11 Congressman Rogers appeared before the joint House-Senate Committee and explained the proposition. The committee approved his recommendation of $90,000 as a feature of the Public Works Appropriation Bill. Then the recommendation went to both the House and the Senate, which passed it as an authorization to an expenditure of money. Then it was sent to the president for his signature.

No details pertaining to the feasibility study have been received here to date. It is expected that it will cover such things as engineering surveys, water analysis, core drillings, availability of water for use, siltation and pollution, and other problems which will be faced.

It is understood that the study will be made within the next 12 months, and will bring up to date all facts about the two rivers. In past years two proposed dam sites were located on Red River in the western part of Hall County. A third proposed site has been mentioned in recent months to be downstream a few miles below Estelline. Also, two proposed dam sites are recorded on the Salt Fork, one north of Hedley and the other northeast of Wellington.

Adjournment
Now that the controversial labor legislation has passed the House, we can begin to look forward to adjournment; or perhaps it would be better to say that we can now get a dim view of adjournment. Many of us have been looking toward adjournment for some time but it was impossible to see it. It was anticipated the labor reform measure would require several more days than were actually used. The shortness of time utilized was perhaps due to the parliamentary situation which developed. The big test on this controversial issue was to come on a vote to determine which of the pending measures the House of Representatives wanted. Most everyone was anxious to get to that vote, therefore fewer amendments were offered than would otherwise have been the case. When the vote finally came and resulted in the adoption of the substitute measure, there was only one thing left to do — to vote the adopted measure up or down on final passage. This situation, in my opinion, cut at least one week off the remaining time that Congress would have been in session. The other important matters pending before the Congress were referred to in a recent news conference by President Eisenhower. They included a housing measure, lifting of the interest rate on government bonds, civil rights legislation, and a pay-as-you-go financing program for the federal highways. Before the end of the week in which he had made these observations, three of his suggestions had been met for all practical purposes. The labor reform bill had passed the House, the House Ways and Means committee had authorized a limited authority to increase the interest rate on government bonds, and the same committee had authorized a 1c gasoline tax increase to meet the President's request for pay-as-you-go financing the highway program. It might be said that another situation had developed to answer his suggestion on housing. I refer to the failure of the Senate to override his veto of the pending housing bill. This means that Congress must get together on housing legislation suitable to both the Congress and the President before adjournment. Housing as an integral part of our economy affects more segments of the economy than any other single item, the reason being that the modern house or apartment includes so many different things which are accepted as daily necessities of life. It is my prediction that an acceptable housing bill will be forthcoming promptly. I do hope that proper provision is made in the bill to meet the growing need of proper housing facilities for the aging. It would be highly profitable if this need could be met by private enterprise and I hope this can be done. However, if such is not the case, then something else must be done to meet the challenge. Few people realize how serious this problem is becoming throughout the United States.

The approval of authorization to permit the President to increase the interest rate on government bonds does not mean that the members of Congress do not realize this could be a very highly inflationary move. It was done primarily, in my opinion, to help pull the President off the spot which he has gotten himself into in relation to the finances of this country. That is one reason why certain strings were attached to the authority.

The call for civil rights legislation is a continuation of the same old drum beating which is being prompted by those who believe in centralized government. Some sponsor this falsely labeled legislation conscious of what they are doing, while others are misled by the title and do not appreciate what the final result will be.

The highway program was anticipated to be troublesome and it is proving that way. In my opinion the increase in the gasoline tax is not in keeping with what the people were led to believe to be the method of financing the highway program. I regret to see the federal government move further into encroachment upon a tax source that has been about the only thing left to the states. We are, of course, told that this will be repealed. With few exceptions there has been no such thing as a temporary tax in this nation.

Growing Bass in Farm Ponds

Bass grow fast only during the summer and early fall — a five or six month supply of abundant food. The major food supply is food. The major food supply is newly hatched fingerling bluegills in a bass and bluegill pond. A pond owner in the Hall County Soil Conservation District, therefore, must fertilize his fishpond in the summertime to grow the most pounds and the biggest bass. Fertilizer water grows green microscopic algae which feeds a heavy poundage of worms. The worms grow more bluegills. The bluegills would grow in summer too if they didn't spawn, however, and the thousands of little bluegills eat so much food that their parents cannot grow during the June-Oct. period. (Bluegills grow larger at another season of the year—Feb. to June.)

Some pondowners stop their fertilization program to keep the bluegills from spawning so much. This is a bad mistake. Bass can not grow unless they are well fed. A heavier poundage of bass will help prevent an overpopulation of bluegills — by eating more during the following fall, winter and spring. This important thinning of the bluegill population begins in October, following the spawning season. It ends in early summer when the bluegills spawn again. Failure to maintain pond fertility throughout the spring, summer and fall results in low production of bass. "The best ponds — the best fishing — require good summer fertility. Next years' bass crop depends on it," say SCS technicians.

SENATOR ★ ★ ★ Yarborough's Report

Interest in Texas' efforts to establish a National Seashore Area on Padre Island continues to mount.

Recently a Coastal Development Committee, composed of officials from five Gulf Coast counties, was appointed to study the proposed Padre Island Park project and other improvements of state coastal areas.

The need to preserve the biggest part of Padre Island for public use was driven home last week in a Houston Chronicle report on the situation in Florida. The story told how unhappy Florida residents have awakened too late to the fact that only an inadequate part of the Miami Beach has been saved for public use. It reported: "Along the 7 and one-half miles of Miami Beach oceanfront, all but two miles is taken up by hotels and other private cabana clubs, swimming pools and overhanging additions."

One of the big questions about our Padre Island Seashore project is not whether we should protect this area — the longest stretch of natural beach left in the nation today — but whether certain private developers are going to be able to keep the park limited to a small slice out of the middle of the 118-mile-long island.

Statistics show that people will use the beaches if they have enough elbow room to be comfortable. An all-time high of 348,335 visitors last year enjoyed the only National Seashore Area we have in the nation at this time, Cape Hatteras, the 80 mile long Seashore on the outer banks of North Carolina.

It is my hope that public hearings can be held on the Padre Island Seashore Area proposal in Texas later this year. The findings and decisions of this Coastal Development Committee and similar "vic-minded and public spirited groups and individuals would be invaluable in such hearings. I want to work with this Committee and any group or anyone else who is interested in improving Texas. One of the ways to make the Gulf Coast a better place in which to live, I believe, would be the establishment of a Padre Island National Seashore Area — in the size and scope and tradition of Texas.

Cattle Marking Still the Law

The practice of branding livestock was brought to America by the Spaniards over 400 years ago.

The Spanish government granted and recorded brands which guaranteed the exclusive ownership of such marks to certain individuals.

The purpose for branding livestock is to establish proof of ownership. Tattoos and ear marks have been used alone and with brands.

As early as 1848, Texas cattlemen realized that a brand inspector or trader to legally take possession of the livestock he has bought, he must have a written transfer or bill of sale.

In 1943 (a statute was enacted to bring about a current record of all legally used brands and marks.

The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association provides field inspections for livestock before departure from farms, ranches or shipping points.

In order for the country dealer or trader to legally take possession of the livestock he has bought, he must have a written transfer or bill of sale.

Although some of the brand laws in Texas are obsolete and the enforcement machinery in most cases is inadequate, the wise stock raiser would do well to brand or mark his stock to prevent any future question of doubt as to ownership.

Safety Urged When Swimming In Farm Ponds

If you are trying to beat the summer heat by swimming in your farm pond, make sure safety precautions are observed.

Swimming in farm ponds can be hazardous because there is often no supervision and swimmers are often not well trained.

You should keep simple rescue equipment close at hand, as it may prevent a tragic drowning. A long, light-weight pole, either cane or bamboo, can be extended to a swimmer in distress.

Many of the drownings could be avoided, the Council adds, if parents would teach their children to respect water as soon as they are old enough to understand, and also by teaching them to swim.

Mrs. Foster Watkins and sons, Joe and Seth Paul spent the weekend here with her mother, Mrs. Seth Palmeyer.

Less Workers Now Required In FHA Offices

Farmers Home Administration will operate its program in Texas this year with 117 fewer employees than it had a year ago at this time, according to Walter T. McKay, the agencies state director.

Since the break of the drought, the agency, statewide, has reduced its force by more than 27 per cent and has discontinued seven of its field offices on a full-time basis.

As far as the Memphis office of the organization is concerned, there was a loss of two persons, Claude Moore, local supervisor, said. The office will be staffed here in the future by Moore and Mrs. Pauline Knight.

Insofar as the employees who lost their jobs, McKay said that in practically every case the training and experience they gained during their employment with the FHA enabled them to step into jobs with banks, production credit associations, many of them at better salaries than they had with the government.

In connection with the services available to farm families, there will be no change according to McKay. He said that during the past three years more than 12,000 farmers and ranchers paid their loans in full to FHA, and for the most part had reached or regained a position where private and cooperative sources can now handle their credit needs.

FHA will continue to make loans to eligible applicants for farm and home operating expenses; for the purchase of livestock and equipment needed to put their farm programs on a sound basis and to finance farm real estate purchases and improvements.

Time To Claim Refund On Farm-used Gasoline

Farm operators have until September 30 to claim a refund of the gasoline tax on all gasoline used on the farm, according to E. Prater, extension farm agreement specialist.

The refund applies to the three per gallon federal tax on gasoline which was purchased from January 1, 1958 through June 30, 1958. Those who filed a claim for a refund in 1958 will receive form 700 through the mail. Others who wish to make a claim should ask the Internal Revenue Service to send them one.

The claim should be sent to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Dallas, Texas. Claims made after September 30 will not be paid and no more than one claim can be filed for the 12-month period, states Prater.

Operators who file claims for a refund should keep sufficient records to certify the accuracy of the claim. The records should include the purchase dates, the gallons used and the gallons used during the 12-month period. Also the gasoline used by operators doing custom work for a farmer should be recorded and can be included in the refund, Prater notes.

Excise taxes paid on diesel fuel for special motor fuels for farm use can also be recovered. Farmers should ask the dealer for a signed statement, showing the name and address of the dealer, the date of the purchase and the gallons purchased, adds Prater.

Slick Curve Upsets Three

One car was almost totally demolished and two others slid off the highway last Saturday evening about dusk on a curve south of Memphis, highway patrolmen said this week.

The incidents all occurred at the curve on Highway 287 south of Memphis near the Shawhart Service Station. Rain began falling about dusk and one automobile, going northwest, came around the curve, began sliding, and ended up on the south side of the road.

This was followed almost immediately by another car which reacted in exactly the same manner. A third automobile then followed in the same pattern but it turned over when it went off the road, and ended up in a cotton field. Marion A. Lindsey, the driver, was uninjured but the vehicle was an almost complete loss, investigating highway patrolmen said.

"Previously Owned by a Little Old Lady..."

Surprisingly, that gentle little old lady who never drove over 30 miles an hour was really tough on her car's motor. The fact is that start-and-stop driving at low speeds means the motor doesn't warm up enough for its own good. Sludge forms in the motor oil. Damage to the engine will result.

Most of us do a lot of start-and-stop driving these days, and that's why it's wise to protect with Phillips 66 Trop-Artic Motor Oil. It flows quickly in a cold engine... resists sludge formation... then keeps on protecting your motor on long, hot drives.

Trop-Artic is an all-season oil. Get it from your Phillips 66 Dealer.

A Critical Need

During the past week there has been several developments which pointed to us the need for more family-type housing in Memphis. These incidents were unconnected and we purely stumbled on all of them by accident. The first concerns a family that is going to move here. The husband has been here for about three weeks and, so far as we know, he has still not found a house to live in. Of course he has had opportunity to rent several shacks, but not a single family-type home.

The second incident concerns a traveling man, a salesman by trade. We overheard him tell a man in a grocery store that he had intended to live in one of the small towns of this area but that he had been unable to find a home and had decided to live in Amarillo, covering his sales area from there. The third occurrence concerned a woman whose husband is working in Memphis and she plans to move in the near future. She stated that she dreaded to move here because of what she had heard concerning the housing problem.

It is true that there is more housing being built in Memphis now than at any time in the last 10 or 15 years, but this building will have to continue for some time if the need is to be filled. Home builders in small communities are at a disadvantage in a lot of ways. In the larger cities financial interests develop an entire area of homes at one time, taking advantage of all mass purchasing. They put these two and three bedroom homes on the market with down payments as low as $250 to $500. Of course the payments take the rest of the family's lifetime, so to speak, but most of them are willing to pay the balance.

This low down payment in the cities has been one thing which has hurt building in the small communities. It has contributed a lot toward moving of young families from the small towns to large cities. If Memphis is to keep young people and to provide a generation of energetic businessmen to replace the present ones when they retire, then something must be done to provide homes here—family type homes.

Secrecy Continues

President Eisenhower recently tacitly vetoed three amendments to the omnibus foreign aid bill that were intended to require revelation of information of expenditures asked for by the General Accounting Office and committees of Congress. This is another of the presidential steps toward keeping a closed door on those phases of activity and spending which might not suit the voters, especially along about election time.

One of the three amendments specified that national security instead of executive privilege be the test for withholding information about mutual aid programs. These aid programs have seen billions of dollars spent overseas and, in a lot of cases, there has been very little said about what the money was actually spent for. Several times Congress has sought the answers to questions about the foreign aid spending, and in many instances, have been surprised by the amount of money spent and the little good accomplished.

Under the amendment, rejected as unconstitutional by the President, only that information harmful to the nation's security could be withheld. "I have signed the bill on the express premise that the three amendments relating to disclosure are not intended to alter and cannot alter the recognized constitutional duty and power of the Executive with respect to the disclosure of information, documents and other materials," the President's message said.

To break it down in simple language the President actually said that the administration would give out only the information it desired, in the foreign aid field. We believe that this is wrong for several reasons. First it strikes at the very base of our freedoms in this nation. Second—if those in charge of spending the foreign aid money know that the general public will know how they are spending it, they they will be a little more careful to see that the full value is received for each dollar. Third—if a public accounting is made then there will be less graft. Fourth—the money belongs to us, the taxpayers, and if they are spending it to buy electric generators for a dam in India or for food to feed starving natives in Africa, we have the right to know how it is being spent.

This maneuver is a continuing one on the part of federal officials to keep their official actions hidden from the light of day. The trend has been continuing throughout the past several years in spite of Congressional desires that more information be made public. It is a dangerous one because suppression of information has always been followed by suppression of the people.

Modern Mining
BREWERY GULCH, ARIZ.—This is where the sun shines 365 days a year, and there's moonshine every night. It is also the former stronghold of that knucklehead Cochise, and the present stomping ground of Bill Eples, editor of the Brewery Gulch Gazette. He, wife Betty and Nancy, their teenage temptress, stopped hunting type lice long enough to show me the sights, of which there are a few. Of interest to the Boozie Brigade, Ralls chapter, is the fact that no man has ever been lost in the hills around Bisbee or left to die of exposure. When one gets to falling down, he automatically rolls down a hill and right into somebody's parlor, where he receives first aid. The whole area is honeycombed with copper mines, and I saw one mountain so hollow it has caved in like a bride's first cake. The town of Bisbee is dominated by the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, and it appears to be a "do-gooding" outfit. It's company store looks more like Hemphill-Wells of Lubbock than it does the storied spot where miners get their souls garbished. Not long ago the union goons moved in and organized the workers. But under the new set-up they lost so many benefits the company formerly gave them that they're pretty mad about the whole thing. The Eplers are rock collectors, and have on display at the office a 19-pound hunk of jade found in Wyoming, valued at $900. What a setting for a ring! I enjoy the sign in front of the Gazette: "Editor Usually In."

Polish Job
In case you haven't guessed, the Republican party is shining up Richard Nixon with more ardor than a stable boy before a big race. And they're both doing it for the same reason.

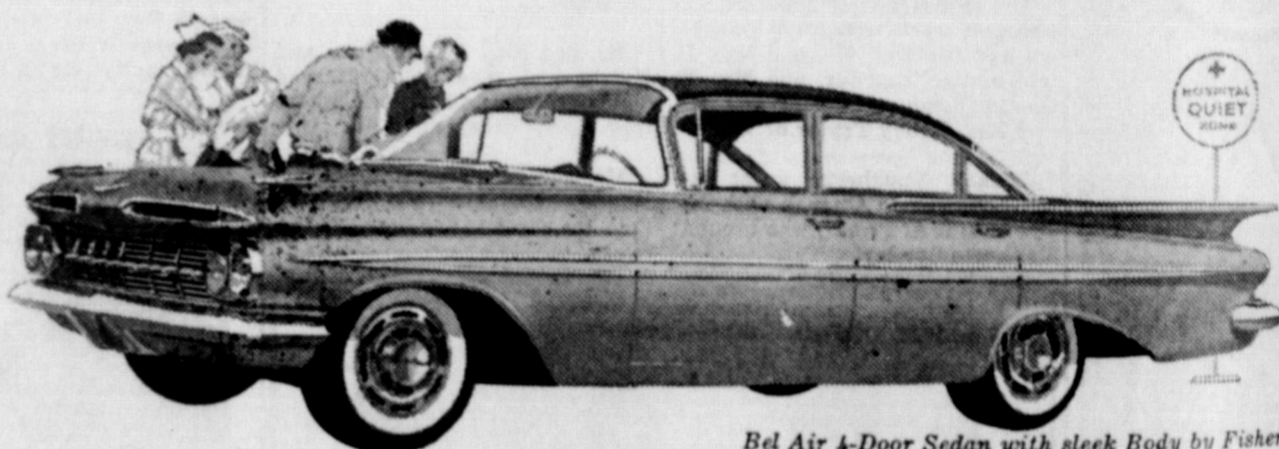

Somewhere in some smoke-filled room the Republicans came to the inescapable conclusion recently that Richard Nixon is the logical and only man for them to put into the Presidential race the next time that merry-go-round comes by. Since Nixon has a reputation about as savory as a fried egg sundae, we would inject here that he will need many, many trips to Russia and he must meet with tremendous and unqualified success if he ever hopes to occupy the White House. For his recent tete-tete with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, the American people have thrown many plaudits and Nixon and perhaps he deserves them. Maybe he even did some good in averting a third world war. But he would make a poor candidate for president of the United States—maybe even less imposing than the president we have now should he win.

Maybe we're wrong, but it sure looks like politics and if it is, the Republicans were sure playing with a lot of fire just to bring a little good publicity their way.

One of the 7 big bests Chevrolet gives you over any other car in its field

Anyone who's ever taken a Chevy over a choppy country road can tell you how lightly Chevrolet's Full Coil suspension handles rough going—and coil springs never squeak, never need grease! Try this velvet way of going for yourself. Once you do, you'll find your own way of saying what MOTOR TREND magazine puts this way: "... the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." But the happiest part of it all is that this Full Coil ride is just one of seven big bests—all documented by published opinions of experts and on-the-record facts and figures.

BEST ENGINE—Chevrolet engines have long won expert praise from virtually every automobile magazine, and, just recently, Chevrolet received the NASCAR® Outstanding Achievement award for "the creation and continuing development of America's most efficient V-type engines."

BEST ECONOMY—A pair of Chevrolet sixes with Powerglide won their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, topping every other full-sized car. And the winning mileage was a whopping 22.38 m.p.g.

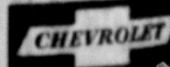

BEST BRAKES—Chevy's bonded-leaf brakes are the biggest in their field, built for up to 66% longer life. In a direct competition conducted by NASCAR, Chevy out-stopped both of the other leading low-priced cars in a test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

BEST STYLE—It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

BEST TRADE-IN—Any N.A.D.A.† Guide Book can give you the figures on Chevy's extra value. You'll find that Chevrolet used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two." Your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to tell you about a whole host of other advantages besides these seven. Why not drop by his showroom?

Delta Kappa Gamma Holds Southwest Regional Conference at Tulsa Aug. 9-12

Opening Doors on Tomorrow's Education was the theme of the Southwest Regional Conference of Delta Kappa Gamma held in Tulsa, August 9-12. More than 500 members from Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Utah were in attendance. Seven other states outside the Region were also represented.

Presenting Gamma Kappa Kappa was Donley Hall, Childress, Collingsworth Counties were the former president, Velma R. Weaver, president, and Miss Zada Belle, Memphis, who is Texas representative of the Committee on Education.

Miss Hiller said that "This is a great era in which to be engaged in the business of education—an era in which people are realizing at last that teachers are necessary to progress in every field and to the survival of humankind." She urged members to have the imagination and willingness to try new techniques of teaching.

She spoke of the development of education in the broadcasting field and suggested that members of Delta Kappa Gamma be part of the experimentation in every area, of change in educational method or organization.

Miss Hiller is now Princess E Ya Te Ko of the Akoma tribe of New Mexico. Dan Madrano, chief of the Caddo tribe, presented her with a leather scroll, prepared by Chief Wolf Robe Hunt of the Akoma tribe. Her new title means "Princess-Supreme-Counselor-of-Education-Leaders-in-Education."

Miss Maymie Mayes, a member of the Royal Family of the Cherokee tribe, presented Miss Hiller with a beaded head-band bearing an eagle feather, to Dr. B. June West of Portales, N. M., Southwest Regional director.

Mrs. Eunah Holden, international executive secretary, Austin, spoke on "Women of Vision," and she pointed out that vision must rest on the knowledge of the present, but that its accomplishment derives from seeing the needs of the future. She concluded her talk by urging members to make DKG a constructive force in the educational world.

Mrs. J. Maria Pierce of California, past national president, was another outstanding speaker of the conference program, as she spoke on "The Key in Your Pocket," emphasizing enthusiasm as a quality of heart and mind to "open doors on tomorrow's world."

Group discussions were conducted on "Elementary Schools Face the Future," "Intercultural Relations," "Selective Recruitment," "Strengthening the Educational Program," "High Schools Face the Future," "Developing Professional Competence," and "Colleges and Universities Face the Future," as well as on committee problems of the society.

In 1960, the society will grant 56 special scholarships of $2,500 each to qualified members to pursue graduate study.

The conference opened on Sunday afternoon with Tulsa members hostesses to a tour of the city, visits to Philbrook Art Center and Gilcrease Institute of American History and Art. On Wednesday a sight-seeing trip was made to Will Rogers Memorial at Claremore and to Woolaroc Museum at Bartlesville.

Football Practice Gets Underway Here

A total of 29 boys have been working out for football each morning and evening this week under the leadership of John Howle, new Memphis head coach.

The first week of practice is being devoted to a training camp. Workouts begin each morning at 8 a. m. and are held at 4 p. m. in the afternoons.

The noon meal is being served to the boys at school and then a rest period is held in the gymnasium.

Coach Howle stated that he was pleased with the progress of the team. "They are showing improvement every day," he said.

The Cyclone squad this year will run a wing-T formation similar to that of Iowa, the new coach stated. Fans can expect a more open type game with concentration of long gains rather than control of the ball, he continued. This will include a greater amount of passing than has been the case here in the past, he said.

Howle is being assisted by Bob Martin. The new assistant coach is a graduate of Texas Tech at Lubbock and completed high school at Slayton. His wife, Linda, is also from Slayton. He graduated from Tech in January and taught at a Lubbock junior high school for the early part of the year.

A third coach, Don Lambert, will join the staff here Saturday. He is a graduate of North Texas State College at Denton where he played guard. Lambert is from Dallas.

Prior to going to NTSC he attended Navarro Junior College where he also played guard.

The Cyclone team this week lost the help of Jimmy Winters who received a neck injury. Winters, a first string center, is expected to be out about two weeks. It is hoped that he will be recovered in time for the Tulla game, Sept. 4.

Complete information about the examination requirements and instructions for filing applications may be obtained at the post office at Lakeview. Application forms must be filed with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C., and must be received or postmarked not later than Sept. 8.

Comments

(Continued from Page One) quitoes. Many of the citizens over town have been getting rid of the weeds and other rubbish, but these nice clean places many times are bordered by waist and head-high weeds on adjoining lots — usually vacant.

HALL COUNTY PICNIC SUNDAY, SEPT. 20

Hubert Dennis brought a weed to town the other day which measured 11 inches at the base. It grew near the swimming pool. C. B. Craighead (who recently found a cast iron plow point) brought two weeds to town. These were nearly as large as the one Dennis brought. The trunks of the three are at Wendell Harrison's store. Byron Martin, who works at the Harrison store, said he had plowed up some weeds on a farm north of town. His tractor had all it could do to pull the plow that uprooted the weeds. One weed in particular, he said, was so large that he could stand on a limb without breaking it off.

Since the streets of Memphis are being seal-coated, getting rid of eyesores along the streets would add much to the looks of the city.

Industry can be attracted if a town provides the proper facilities, all of which takes money, effort and co-operation. One writer states it this way: "The results of the thinking and attitude of townspeople are evident in many physical aspects of the community. Store fronts, condition of homes and yards, and the absence of unsightly spots in town are indications of personal pride. A modern library, adequate school plant, churches, recreational facilities, well-cared-for parks and good paving all point to civic pride and a co-operative spirit. While a man may work eight hours a day, his attitude toward his work is influenced by how he lives the other 16 hours of the day." Memphis has many of the things that will help attract industry, but others are sorely needed for the health, comfort, enjoyment and recreation of the workers. These needed things can be provided if the citizens are willing to cough up the funds.

HALL COUNTY PICNIC SUNDAY, SEPT. 20

Several Memphis and Hall County people spent their vacation last week in Red River, N. M. Three of them, Coy Beckham, Alvin Winters and Raymond Ballew have reported the community building in Red River is the scene of much

C. of C. Plans Events To Be Held In Sept.

The regular August meeting of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and Hall County Board of Development was held last week in the Cyclone Drive Inn with Dick Fowler, president, in charge.

Directors present included Homer Tucker, O. E. Bevers, Jim Beeson, Ace Gailey, V. C. Durrett, Dr. D. H. Aronofsky and Manager Clifford Farmer.

Fowler pointed out that activities during the past month had included two important events. An appreciation breakfast for the Waples-Platter Co. was held and the area Little League playoffs were conducted here.

The Special Events committee placed "Welcome Little Leaguers" signs in all local businesses and letters were sent to all of the towns sending teams to welcome them and urge that they make use of all local facilities.

A number of letters from officials of Waples-Platter Co. showed that they really appreciated the breakfast held for them here, Fowler said.

There was a discussion of plans for a celebration in connection with the opening of the new cotton classing office here. Bevers said that September would be a busy month as far as special events were concerned for the Oxbow Crossing highway would be completed sometime during the month and plans are underway for opening ceremonies as a joint venture of Turkey and Memphis.

Fowler appointed a special committee to work on a program for an Appreciation Barbecue for officials and personnel of the Cotton Classing Office, General Telephones Co. and the Memphis Compress Co. Those named to the committee were Homer Tucker, chairman; Ace Gailey and O. E. Bevers. Several standing committees will also work on the project once a date is set for the event.

New housing in Memphis was also discussed by the group. The need at present is serious for more housing, the group agreed. One contractor is getting ready to start three houses, it was reported, and another is considering a house building project. Tucker said that there was more building activity, as reported in this column last week by Uncle Zeb. So it goes, every time one hears of a community center in any town, they hear of much community activity, and less friction among the citizens.

R. J. Cooley

Monday at 721 Memphis Street about 4 p. m. He was born Nov. 12, 1877 in Gray Co., Mo. and was 81 years, 2 months and 3 days old at the time of his death.

R. J. Cooley was united in marriage to Miss Nannie Mildred Abbott on Nov. 7, 1900 in Scott Co. Ark. They moved here in 1927 and he has been in business since that time.
