The overall supply of doves is said to be one of the best in several years.

A siamese cantaloupe, the first of its kind ever brought by the Democrat office, was submitted Saturday by Y. Z. Taylor.

The cantaloupes were grown by Freeman Butler at Lelia Lake and the two were joined for about three-fourths of the distance along one side.

They came from a field of several acres which Butler is growing this year.

The cantaloupes were normal in all respects other than being joined on one side. They were about average size. They were good eating, too, according to the Linotype operator, who devoured them before a picture could be made.

Memphis scored six times during the scrimmage while they held the Silverton team without letting them score a single time. "Our offense wasn't as good as it could have been," Howle said, "but we have been working hard this week on the mistakes which showed up in the scrimmage."

"Backs who turned in a good performance Monday night were Jerry Burnett, quarterback; Swayne McCasley, fullback and Tomie Tucker, halfback," the coach said.

All of the Memphis team participated at one time or the other during the scrimmage.

Work Continues Toward Better Television For Area Farm Families

Directors of the Caprock Translator Service, Inc. met Monday night to discuss future plans for the setting up of a system to provide better TV service to area farm families. Joyce Webster, acting secretary-treasurer of the organization, said this week.

The directors of the organization also laid plans for a drive to secure members.

Bids are being considered from two television engineering concerns and two more are expected to submit bids in the near future.

As soon as adequate funds are obtained there will be a meeting of the membership called to elect permanent officers for the organization.

"Each farm family will be contacted in the near future by one of several men who will be working with the membership drive," Webster explained.

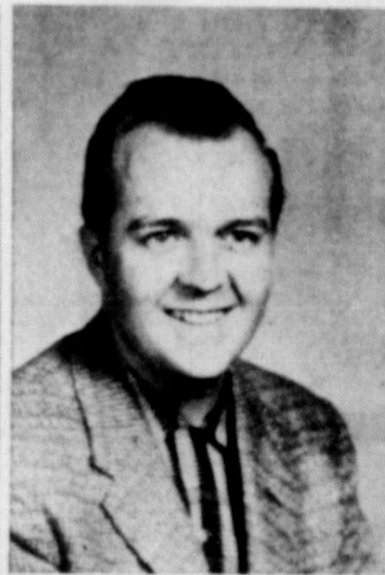

Joe Durham and Brown Smith will cover Lakeview, Lesley, Brice and Plaska area. Jerald Rapp is chairman of the drive at Estelline and Parnell while Orville Phillips has the area south of Memphis.

The proposed system will be owned by the members it serves and will operate on an actual cost basis, it was explained. Those who sign up for the program will not have to put up the money for the payment now, the secretary-treasurer explained. The checks of patrons will be held until enough have signed to begin construction.

If more than enough money is collected, then the surplus will be returned on a pro-rata basis.

A survey of the potential customers in the farming area has been made and it is definitely feasible to obtain this type of TV service for this area, he continued.

A television translator system in Wheeler County is almost complete and is expected to go into operation Sept. 1.

Letter To The Editor

Local Citizen Analyzes Problems Facing City; Asks for Progress

Editor's Note: The following letter, written by Bill Leslie, a business and civic leader of Memphis, pertains to the ever-present problems facing any growing community. Leslie, a member of the city council, has devoted much time thought to the future of Memphis since moving here several years ago. The publishers of the Democrat invite other citizens to write similar letters concerning city, county, school and community affairs.)

Memphis, Texas August 22, 1959
Bill Leslie
Weeks back, you left the Memphis Democrat with a plea for the well-being of our city so here I come in that spirit. It would be wonderful if we could adopt a slogan for our city like this: "Memphis - Community in Northwest Texas."
It could be done but it would take a lot of "do-in" and "do-out" that we could honestly use such as: I think you come pretty close to hitting the nail on the head in your recent columns when you asked questions about whether people really wanted progress for their community or not.
I have seen Memphis a little bit better and during that time I have made SOME progress in some areas but in many others I have stood still or slid backwards a little. We have made major improvements on our streets, BUT we are not in any better shape to make further improvements and not in much better shape to maintain them than we were eight years ago. The City built a swimming pool, the Lions Club a barbecue pit, the community, mostly by private contributions, re-built the baseball field for use by the Little League and a private individual built tennis courts BUT, the rest of our park and recreational facilities are in a more run-down and inadequate condition than they were eight years ago. We added a dozen or so small street lights in the residential area BUT the need for modern street lighting on our thru highways is greater now than it was eight years ago. In fact, the lighting on 287 thru Memphis puts us in the same category with New Berlin, Kirkland, Goodnight, Tolbert and metropolises like those; in the eyes of many people traveling 287. We have more dwelling units in Memphis BUT the need for additional housing is more acute than it was eight years ago. We have added a few retail trade establishments BUT there have been more failed and quit in the last eight years than there have been new ones established. We have expanded our sewer system BUT there has been no improvement in our disposal plant and no major improvements or maintenance to the system as a whole in the last 8 years and the need for these is growing. There have been NO major improvements or additions to our fire-fighting facilities in the past seven years. Eight years ago we had seven doctors in Memphis. Now we have four. Our hospital facilities were not adequate eight years ago and they are less adequate now and this situation may get worse before it gets better. We added a new grade school building about eight years ago BUT we are now using fewer classrooms and have fewer teachers in the school system than 8 years ago, and, in the opinion of many people, the condition of our physical plant and the quality of our educational program in the school system is going downhill instead of up. We have not had a qualified mathematics teacher in our high school nor has our high school offered any foreign language courses in several years. Our garbage and trash collection and disposal system is no better than it was eight years ago and is far below the accepted good standards of a modern and progressive community. The pay scale of our City employees is farther out of proportion to the cost of living now than it was eight years ago. We are apparently no closer to having adequate municipal and community buildings than we were eight years ago. On the brighter side, the location of the Division Office of the telephone company in Memphis, the continued operation and expansion (Continued on Page Ten)

The bride's mother, Mrs. Kennon, was dressed in a navy blue dress with black accessories and the groom's mother, Mrs. Youree, wore a black dress with black accessories and both wore white carnation corsages.

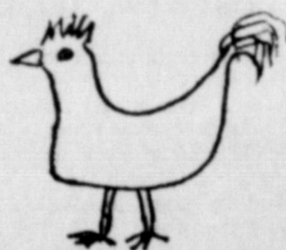

After the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents gave a reception in their home, with the entertaining rooms decorated with colorful garden flowers. A three-tiered wedding cake with a miniature bride and groom atop, and punch were served by Misses Johnnie McWhorter and Barbara Simpson from a table covered with a white linen cloth appointed with crystal and silver.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Democrat and staff:
Do want to thank you for your prompt and quick service in sending me my misplaced July 30 Democrat. I always turn to the page where the Memories turn back time, to Claude's Comments and This, That and every, to Helen Combs' gossip, then back to the front page, Reading through to the last page, then I take in the ads. You see I absorb everything you have printed. Do wish it were so that I might be present at the Annual Picnic of Hall Countians, September 20, at your city park, as time is running short for me and soon there won't be any left at my age to remember. You see I'm a little over a month older than the paper. I was born March 28, 1890 and very proud to be the first white child born in Memphis and to bear the name Lena Mem-

Equal Time

The House last week passed the Equal Time bill. Under the Communications Act, any TV or radio station permitting a candidate for public office to appear on their facilities is required to afford equal time to other contestants in that race.

This provision in the law had been under fire for a long time from the TV and radio industry. Many in these groups wanted to repeal the section outright. This would leave it to the discretion of TV and radio operators as to how they would handle political appearances. This could not be done without opening the door to possibilities of abuse and fraud and resulting scandals which could shake the industry more than the revelations of what had been going on behind the scenes in some of the Bureaus in Washington. The whole matter came to a head when a perennial candidate in Chicago who had been displayed on TV taking some part in some official and semi-official activities. The matter was appealed to the Federal Communications Commission which ruled that under the law as written, the perennial candidate was entitled to the same time, even though the activities of the mayor were in an official or semi-official capacity and on a regular scheduled newscast. The matter underwent long and exhaustive hearings before the Interstate Committee. The result was that the bill passed the House last week. This bill makes it possible for the people to receive the news regardless of what personalities might be involved, without subjecting the TV and radio stations to the inconvenience of having to afford equal time to others who might be seeking the same public office as some individual whose picture appeared on the TV station, on the news, or whose voice might have been heard on the radio.

We hope to agree with the Senate on a final measure which will protect the people in being able to receive all of the news and at the same time prevent possible abuses in the use of the spectrum which belongs to the people.

Division of Estates Explained
The death of an interstate person (one who has made no will) may give rise to many problems regarding distribution of his separate estate. In the preceding column we investigated the manner of dividing the community estate upon the death of a husband or wife. Now we shall see that, where separate property is involved, a completely different set of rules applies in determining heirship and apportioning the estate among the rightful claimants.

It may be well to recall that the separate estate of a husband or wife includes property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired after marriage by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is clearly proved.

Now, here is a general idea as to how your separate property will be divided if you do not make a will with contrary provisions prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and if, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of previously deceased children, the children and their descendants immediately obtain a full title in two-thirds of the real estate involved. The surviving spouse receives a life interest in the remaining one-third of the real property, which passes on to the children and their descendants upon the death of the spouse.

The rule for distributing personal property—cash, stocks, bonds, furniture, or any other items not constituting real estate—is different. Here the surviving spouse gets full ownership of one-third, and the children and their descendants inherit the balance.

Now suppose your husband or wife survives, but there are no surviving children or their descendants. In this case the surviving spouse inherits all of the personal property involved.

With regard to real estate, the survivor obtains full title to one-half, and the other half is divided between your mother and father, if both survive you. If only one of them survives, he or she receives only one-half of this portion, and the other half (or one-fourth of the entire real estate) will be divided among your brothers and sisters (and their descendants) who survive. If there are no surviving brothers and sisters and their descendants, then the one surviving parent inherits the full one-half.

Where no parent survives, but there are brothers and sisters and their descendants, the full one-half is divided among these survivors.

And, if there are no parents or brothers and sisters (and their descendants) surviving, then the surviving husband or wife inherits all of the real estate.

Declaration of Independence Reflects Basic American Principle

What do we mean when we say that in the United States we have a "government of law" and not a "government of men"? Basically we mean that we have certain individual rights, guaranteed by our federal and state constitutions and laws, which may not be denied by any governing body.

The early American colonists had their fill of government by men, and the Declaration of Independence, signed 183 years ago, set out their complaints against that type of government and revealed their belief in a principle which we now accept as basic to our American way of life.

The indictments set out in the document against King George III of Great Britain charged him with numerous violations of that principle. Among the complaints enumerated are the following:

"He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people."

"He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent for laws for establishing judiciary powers."

"He has made judges dependent upon his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries."

"He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good."

"He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation; . . . For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury; For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses; . . . For taking away our characters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments; . . . For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever."

Our forefathers who subscribed to the principles of the Declaration of Independence were willing to fight for their beliefs. The Revolutionary War followed, dragging through weary years of suffering and suspense. Each of us takes pride in their eventual triumph over gigantic obstacles.

In 1787, when the framers of our Constitution met at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, where the Declaration had been signed 11 years previously, they set to work to create a system of checks and balances in government which was to perpetuate the fundamental theory mentioned in the preamble of the earlier document:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

"That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; . . ."

Some 5 years later, the first ten amendments to our Constitution were adopted at one time, specifically detailing various basic civil rights stemming from the underlying theory of the Declaration of Independence.

Our courts day by day guard these rights for us.

Historic landmark a short distance from Green Bay, Wisconsin, is Jean Nicolet statue, which overlooks territory where this French explorer made his famous landing and discovery of Wisconsin. The first recorded history of Green Bay began in 1634, when Nicolet stepped ashore from a birch-bark canoe on the east side of Green Bay about 12 miles north of the city. The French explorer was searching for a westward water route to the Orient. Instead, he reported to the Governor of Quebec stimulated the interest of traders and missionaries to whom the early development and expansion of the vicinity must be attributed.

School Days
Bring Lessons for Everybody

SCHOOL DAYS have taken over the easy realm of vacations. Parents are filled with dreams and desires for their children, and they know and realize that school is one of the important factors in shaping the training and thinking of youth for the future.

A FACTOR parents must never overlook is the ever-present necessity for teaching the powerful lessons of thrift; of providing for their children's future education through thrift practices of their own.

It is important to teach your child that the bank is—and will be through life—a valuable friend . . . one which is necessary to future success.

About Your HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health. HENRY A. HOLLE, D. D. Commissioner of Health.

Summertime is barefoot time! Think back Mom and Dad to the summers when you dragged your feet through the dust, let mud ooze up between your toes, or if you were a city dweller, maybe you slipped in the gutters after a light rain.

But along with this great childhood pleasure of going barefoot goes a danger of possibly contracting tetanus — but not necessarily.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, cases jump in summertime because exposure in the form of cuts, or puncture wounds are more frequent in warm weather when people are out-of-doors.

The germs of lockjaw are commonly found in soil — especially manured soil. They enter through a break in the skin and emit a deadly toxin which cause jaw and neck muscles to contract so severely that jaws involuntarily close, vice-like.

Slowly the muscle constriction spreads to other body muscles, until the victim is bent like a bow.

Lockjaw germs are spore-formers, which means they can live for years outside an animal body. Its life processes lie dormant in a tiny seed-like pod, sifting about on the ground until finally, perhaps through a nail puncture, it gets back into live tissue.

The wound may heal over, but inside, protected as it is from the air, the spore may begin "revegetating" and emitting deadly toxin.

The primary source of germs is the intestinal tract of all animals. They're passed onto the ground in animal dejects, easily available for re-entry into a human body when that body is cut or scratched or otherwise wounded.

Exposures to lockjaw are so common that it is mere common sense for everyone to maintain a high level of protection via immunization. Such shots should be given children early in life, at the discretion of your family physician, and then maintain immunity with periodic boosters, especially following exposure.

Charles Coley and family are moving to Springfield, Mo. to make their home. He is to be employed by Cynamid Corporation.

There were 24,830 pedestrians injured crossing intersections with the signal in their favor during 1958 in the U. S.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesing

It is not always the size of the fish or the quantity we may catch that gives us the most fun from fishing. The weight of tackle that we use for a particular size fish and the fighting ability of certain species of fish should often be the primary considerations, says Robert D. Hall, Salt-Water Fishing Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

An angler does not derive the utmost enjoyment from fishing until he has reached the stage where he is matching his skill as an angler against that of the fish. The increasing popularity of using fresh-water fishing equipment for saltwater fishing has taught us a great deal about light tackle fishing. Not so many years ago the 3-6 outfit was considered ultralight even for bonefish on the Florida flats. Today when weather conditions are favorable the fly rod is used extensively by some expert anglers for bonefish and tarpon.

An increasing number of anglers are discovering that fresh-water fishing equipment can be used for many species of marine fishes. In using fresh water equipment in brackish or salt water it is very important to wash your tackle in fresh water after it has been used.

Of course, there are certain limitations that control the practicability of using fresh water gear for salt water fishing. However, if you keep the terminal tackle within the weight limit that a particular rod was designed to cast, you should not have any trouble.

George Bonbright was one of the first to introduce fly rod fishing in salt water by using one for tarpon. The rod was designed along the weight and action of an Atlantic salmon rod. To overcome the usual weakness that exists around the ferrules of a 3-section fly rod he had Edward vom Hofe, an old-time rodmaker, build a 2-piece 9 1/2-foot 13 1/2 ounce split-bamboo rod with a fixed metal reel seat situated between two long cork grips. The metal parts were of nickel silver and the guides were of stainless steel. He knew full well the corrosive action of salt water and took every precaution to prevent any deterioration that might take place.

It is very important to remember that the rod tip acts as a spring or cushion between the angler and the fish. The moment the rod cannot absorb the pull that is exerted by the fish, the arms and body of the angler are overtaxed to such a degree that he is having a tug-of-war in direct line with the fish. A flexible rod will respond with every leap and turn the fish may make.

To get the utmost enjoyment from fishing, remember that once the fish is in the boat the fun has ceased.

Mrs. W. L. Morrison and son, Kenneth, and Jeannette and Frank Morrison, Jr. of Springer N. M., were visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Buster Morrison last week; also in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Morrison, grandparents. Friday Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Morrison carried them back to their home, then enjoyed fishing near Springer.

Editorial

A Step Forward for the Air Force

Not long ago there was a U. S. Air Force base commander in Japan who turned a "Yankee Go Home" campaign into a "Yankee Stay Here" movement. The September issue of the Reader's Digest brought these facts to light in a feature article. The entire problem revolved around the Itazuke Air Force Base where the Communists were pulling all the tricks in the book to arouse the local Japanese citizens against the foreign troops stationed there. They were having considerable success until the Air Force appointed Col. Frederick O'Neill as commander of the base.

O'Neill took over and immediately began a policy of full news dissemination to all of the local newspapers, radio and TV stations. This policy went into effect the day an aircraft crashed in Fukuoka City, destroying about ten homes. As usual the Communist agitators began work immediately. However, due to the efficient work of the base information office, in providing all the facts, both good and bad, the newspapers next day played up the assistance the Air Force gave the injured people rather than the crash itself. The information office even provided interviews with the injured and Air Force personnel and furnished picture coverage to the local news agencies. The work was so good that a delegation of Communist agitators was chased away from the damage area by local Japanese whose homes had been rebuilt by the Air Force in quick order.

This type cooperation with local citizens continued, and before long there was complete harmony, with the Japanese talking about how the Americans were there to protect their homeland rather than there as an intruder. Once both sides understood the problems of the other, then there was ground for understanding.

This is true here at home as well as in other countries. Many times officials of the military, and civil bodies as well, work hard to keep the people from finding out anything bad. As a result they keep clamping down until there is hardly anything at all said about plans and future events because there is always someone who objects to any proposal. This same theory holds true no matter what position an official holds.

In the first place when a person takes a job which deals with the general public in any manner, he should immediately recognize that there will always be someone who will object to whatever he does. This is one of the hard facts of life. It would be nice if everyone would agree, at least part of the time, but people are just not made that way. It takes an official with courage to go ahead and do what he knows is right, realizing that his telephone will ring about ten times that night with people complaining. There is always a small minority which makes the most noise and the persons who agree with a public official never think to tell him their thoughts.

This is the reason that many good men become confused when they become public servants. All they hear is the "again-ers". Before long they decide that they should just sit and do as little as possible. We were happy to hear that at least one Air Force official was smart enough to realize that to beat Communists you have to out-talk them. This holds true in a lot of other cases. When the people know all the facts they usually make the right decision. If this isn't true, then we in this nation had better adopt another form of government quick.

QUOTING OUR NEIGHBORS

Clarendon Taxes

I would like to say in the first place that your City Commission does not like to pay more taxes any more than you do. In the second place we were aware of the fact that it was very unpopular to raise anybody's taxes. The auditors, who made the audit that was in the paper last week, have been telling us for the last four years that the City Commission must have more money if they continue services that the people expect. We talked to the auditors as to the best method of raising more money. We thought of a 10% raise across the board, but they told us that was not what we needed, that some property was too high and some too low and that was not fair to those whose property was already in far more than it should be. That is exactly what we found. They suggested that the only way this could be done would be to hire a company that makes a study of this because they are the only ones who actually know present day values. So we hired the McMorris Tax Valuation Company of Amarillo. We have been criticized severely for not getting a local board to do this. No local board could do this for two reasons. First, there is no one in Clarendon who has made a study of present day values and is capable of doing this job. In the second place no local board would dare do this. I have asked every one who suggested this if they would work on a board of this type and their answer has been an emphatic "No".

Change Needed

Speaking of change, perhaps the railroads offer one of the most dramatic studies.

It was old Commodore Vanderbilt, a tycoon of an earlier era, who is credited with the comment that the "public be damned" if it did not like the service it was getting from his enterprises, including his railroad. A crusading journalist by the name of Frank Norris wrote in 1901, "The men who own the railroads are wicked, bad-hearted men who don't care how much the poor people suffer, so long as the road makes its 18 million dollars a year." The influence of the railroads on the legislative and executive branches of our state and federal governments is a black page in American history.

But today things have changed. Today we are inclined to be sympathetic towards the railroads and their problems even though we do feel that they have not made a serious effort to compete for passenger service. Instead of fighting for passenger business, apparently they preferred to abandon it. Apparently they preferred to limit their activities to heavy, cross country freight.

In the face of greater competition and a more fastidious public, they have made more inconvenient their passenger schedules, reservation service, and those little things which can be irritating to the public if not handled promptly and efficiently.

Any business must perform a certain amount of "think you" services which it would prefer to eliminate. Drug store fountains would probably like to eliminate the practice and tradition of serving those customers who want only a glass of ice water. Certain stores would like to dispense with the service of free gift wrapping of gifts bought elsewhere. Newspapers perform many unprofitable services which they charge off to public relations and goodwill.

In other words, it would be utopia if we could have nothing but the gravy.

There are many ways the railroads could be helped. Perhaps they need less government regulation, now that they must compete with other modes of transportation and are no longer in a monopolistic position. Perhaps there could be many savings made through the elimination of duplication, feather bedding, and numerous other traditions that cost the roads many millions each year.

proposal to help build more classrooms is a vital one. America, are learning a lesson in the school of hard knocks about education. The rise in 1957 gave warning of the educational and knowledge which put this satellite into orbit. We are realizing that to help stay healthy, stay able to advance of the time stay alive, we must provide better education for our people.

of our young people are that what they don't know hurt them. And the entrance into colleges is growing many schools. Next year, 10 million students will be in America's colleges and universities. By 1965, that figure is expected to reach 14,000,000 and the enrollment will be 15 million. And, in many stages we need to do more. In some states, only 18 per cent of the college age young people are actually in school. In other states, such as California, the percentage is as high as 60. The percentage in Texas is 31 1/2.

We have been giving our young people some encouragement along this line but we need to do more.

We know that the experts who six years ago estimated the number of college students who would be in short next year fell short by more than a million.

Vice Admiral Hyman G. Rickover just returned from a visit to Russia. He said that what frightened him most about the Communists was not their arms system, but their educational system. And Dr. Edwin Teller, the father of the H-bomb, has said recently that unless we step up our educational activities, Russia will be ahead of us in science by 1969.

Our schools, particularly our colleges and universities, are like the old woman in the shoe we sang about in nursery rhymes. They have so many students they don't know what to do. And many more are on the way.

This situation is no nursery rhyme — it is a stern, real fact. We must meet this challenge in education so our young people will be able to meet the challenge of the modern world.

Keep Hogs Cool For Best Gains Specialists Advise

Are you keeping your hogs cool? If not, says T. D. Tanksley, extension animal husbandman, you are losing money. Hogs do not sweat and their efficiency is seriously hampered by high temperatures if provisions are not made to keep them cool.

Fattening hogs will do their fastest and cheapest gaining when the temperature is around 60-75 degrees. The closer to market a hog gets, the cooler he needs to be to make the best gains, he adds. When the temperature rises to 90-100 degrees, the average porker will need about twice as much feed to put on the same gains as he needs at the lower temperature.

Recent work at Purdue and other universities has indicated that the use of water foggers on fattening hogs during hot weather will increase gains on average of 10% over those animals with shade alone. Adequate shade coupled with "shower-bath" provisions are doing an efficient job even on the hottest days, says Tanksley. The shower bath is provided by installing a nozzle that will produce a fine mist with normal water pressure, and have an hourly output of about two gallons of water.

Foggers work best on concrete, he says, but they can also be adapted to pigs on pasture. A portable sprinkler moved from one part of a field to another on successive days will eliminate the possibility of mud holes on the heavier soils or those with poor drainage.

Two nozzles will handle 50 head in a concrete finishing parlor. Experience has shown that locating the nozzles 6 to 8 feet above the floor level increases coverage and enables a greater number of ani-

An important provision in the 1958 amendments to the social security law will affect many beneficiaries whose annual earnings are more than $1200.00.

Effective with months beginning January, 1959, benefits are payable for any month in which a beneficiary does not earn over $100.00 in wages or render substantial services in self employment, regardless of his total yearly earnings. This means that even those who earn more than $2080 males to benefit from the spray— frequently without moving. On these units, he adds, the nozzles work best when mounted on the south eave. This permits the "fog" to blow under the shed, yet not get the area wet. Feeders should not be in line with the spray if carried by prevailing winds.

If a fogger system or concrete wallow is impossible, every effort should be made for adequate shade, he states. Anyone can build a straw shelter for their hogs if natural shelter is not available. Research has proven that a frame five feet high, stretched with chicken wire from edge to edge and stacked one foot deep with straw on the wire, will provide as good a shade as any other tested material. The best job can be done with good shade and a fogger system. The main thing, he adds, is to keep the hogs out of the heat.

a year can receive benefits for some months if the new test applies to them.

All social security beneficiaries can be classed in three general earnings categories. These categories and how they affect entitlement to monthly social security checks are as follows:

1. Annual earnings of $1200 or less.

2. Annual earnings of more than $1200, but less than 2080.

Checks are forfeited for each $80 of the total earnings which exceed $1200. For example, if annual earnings are $1360 two checks would be forfeited. Checks are payable, however, for each month in which an employee's earnings do not exceed $100 or in which a self-employed person does not render substantial services in his business.

3. Annual earnings of more than $2080. No checks are payable if an employee's earnings exceed $100 for each month of the year, or if a self-employed person performs substantial services for each month. However, benefits are payable for any month in the year in which the beneficiary does not earn over $100 in wages or does not render substantial services in his business if he is self-employed.

Further information about the new earnings test may be obtained from any social security office.

U.S. OIL

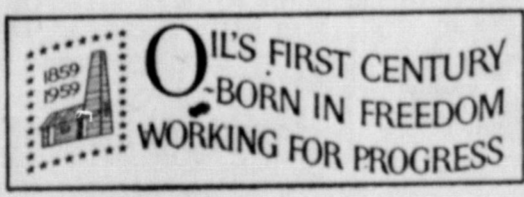

Indispensable in our way of life... vital to our national defense

In the 100 years since the drilling of the first oil well in the United States, the usefulness of petroleum has been often demonstrated in many ways . . . It is an economical and efficient source of energy and a raw resource convertible through petrochemistry into innumerable useful materials. . . It is indispensable in our way of life, and vital to the national defense.

It is comforting to know that today's reserves are ample for today's needs. And if incentives to undergo the heavy risks involved are continued, there is no doubt that more oil will be discovered and produced to replace the oil we use . . .

The United States has found, produced, refined, and used more oil than any other nation. This has made petroleum products a feature of the abundant American life. Americans use more petroleum products than any other people on the globe.

The past is prologue to the future. During its second century, oil can serve you and your grandchildren, and the nation, as well or better than ever before.

The Humble Company, incorporated in 1917, has participated in the development of new and better ways to find and produce oil, and in the research that has improved petroleum products and discovered countless new uses for oil and natural gas. Humble is a major producer of U. S. oil, with production extending all across the southern tier of states from Florida to California. Marketing operations are carried on in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. Humble's Baytown refinery, near Houston, is one of the great refineries of the world. (Humble Pipe Line Company, a major transporter of crude oil and finished products, operates more than 9000 miles of pipe lines in Texas.)

BOYS RANCH RODEO—Members of the colorful Boys Ranch Honor Patrol are shown in front of the chapel at Cal Farley's famous Boys Ranch. These youngsters, selected from the rodeo performers in the annual rodeo, will be seen September 6 and 7 in action at the 15th annual Boys Ranch rodeo at the Ranch. Performances of the famed all-boy rodeo begin at 2:30 p. m. on both days of Labor Day week-end.

Annual Boys Ranch Rodeo Will Be Presented Over Labor Day Weekend

Famous sports event of its kind in the country, Boys Ranch rodeo, in its fifteenth annual performance, will be presented at Cal Farley's famous Boys Ranch on the afternoons of September 6 and 7, Labor Day weekend. The rodeo, staged entirely by the boys of the ranch, features only the best of the boys from the ranch. Spectators will be presented with the fast, action-packed regatta, but these will be the "outsiders" in the show. From five through 17 will be bronc, steer, bull and calf events for points and as well as the title of Best Cowboy. Boys taking part become eligible to qualify for the crack riding group at the end of the colorful Boys Ranch Honor Patrol.

Among other events featuring the boys will be the clowning, trick riding, the wild horse scramble and calf riding. Providing music for the two performances will be the widely known 40-piece Amarillo Air Force Base Golden Spread Band with Chief Warrant Officer Guy Stone directing. Performances will begin at 2:30 p. m. each day, and admission for adults will be $1.25; 75¢ for children, and 50 cents for service men in uniform. "With all roads to the Ranch now paved, we are hoping to have a record turnout for the rodeo, and we hope there is, as this is the only event of the year when the boys get to show what they can do," said Cal Farley, Ranch founder.

Soil Conservation News

Various aids are available to help landowners and operators in the Hall County Soil Conservation District with their soil and water problems on their farm or ranch. Among these are programs of research, extension, technical aid to show how a job can be done, and programs of cost sharing to ease the financial burden. Cost sharing can be part of the Agricultural Conservation Program or the Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank or the Great Plains Conservation Program.

One fact stands out clearly, today's successful farm or ranch operator has to take advantage of every possible development in soil and water conservation, as well as new varieties of crops, new fertilizers, pesticides, and new marketing techniques.

A good recipe for saving a farm is: apply to your soil conservation district for assistance, obtain the assistance of a trained conservationist to help you determine the best use of the land, use your farm according to its capabilities, seed native grass on areas that can no longer be safely kept in cultivation, add cover crops and legumes to cropping systems, stir soils with implements that allow crop residues to remain on the surface to prevent erosion and increase water intake of the soil, mold crust into terraces where necessary to control erosion, spread cover of grasses on all waterways for livestock convenience, and season with well painted farm buildings, good fences and fat livestock.

Farmers and ranchers in the Hall County Soil Conservation district who wish more information about their particular soil and water problems should see their local Soil Conservation Service Technicians.

Mrs. Henry Gunn and children, Carolyn and Rusty of Mesquite, visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. Grover Roden and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Hall. Mrs. Gunn will be remembered at the former Geraldine Sanders of Memphis.

The beginning of midshipmen in the Navy is traced to the early days when each warship carried a number of young lads who acted as messengers, rushing orders from the officers aft to the men up forward. Generally a midshipman was regarded as an officer candidate.

of some other industries and businesses and the starting of a few new activities has made a tremendous contribution to the business economy and to the civic well-being of the community and has offset the loss of some industry and business.

Now, what can be done about the lack of progress in the areas where we have been standing still or sliding backwards? My answer is that we can do whatever the majority of the people of the community want to do. Some of the areas I have mentioned above concern County and School District affairs but most of them concern the Municipal affairs and if we are going to make much more progress than we have been making in the past, the first thing we have to think about is a vastly increased City Budget. A modern and adequate garbage and trash collection and disposal program could be installed and maintained without any disturbance of the tax structure (or it could be handled thru taxes) if the majority of the people of the community wanted it. Sewer system operation, maintenance, improvements and expansion can be handled either thru direct revenues from the people served or thru taxes. Most other municipal services and functions are generally financed thru property taxes.

This brings us to the biggest question mark as far as the future progress of Memphis is concerned. What are we going to do about property values?? Most anyone who has very much knowledge of our present City tax roll will tell you there are many, many cases of gross inequities on the roll and that the values on some of the property are ridiculously low. Some people believe that if values were really equalized, and if sensible, modern valuations were placed on all the property in Memphis, we could increase our total taxable valuation by 50%.

100% or maybe even 200%. Then we could apply a tax rate of any amount up to the present legal limit of $1.50 per $100 valuation to yield enough money to operate our City as it should be operated and provide for the kind of progress to which the people of this community are entitled. To make this idea more attractive, it would not necessarily require spending a bunch of money for some high-powered engineers and tax experts to accomplish this. There are people right here in Memphis who are qualified—and I believe—willing and able to help the City bring this about.

I, for one, am ready to pay my part on a City budget that is twice the size of the present budget; PROVIDED the money is used for proper operation and progress in our municipal affairs. Incidentally, I feel the same way about our school system.

Yours for progress in Memphis and Hall County, Bill Leslie
