1960 Census Starts Tomorrow Morning

The 1960 Census of Population and Housing, the Nation's 18th general census, gets underway tomorrow morning, April 1, with census takers starting their rounds in Hall County.

Wilma Martin, Hall County Census Supervisor, said that county census takers will complete their rounds today, and will be ready to begin their rounds which will take place every dwelling unit in the county by 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Census takers in the county will include: Bertha Smith, Claudia Lee, Edna Mothershead, Christine Mothershead, Elma Hughes, Memphis; Susie Wright in Memphis; Estelle District; Ozella Lakeview; Peggy Moore in the Brice area; and Alice and Vera Guest at Turkey.

Census takers in Motley County include: Martin said, will be Ina Pauline Hand, Opal Cranen and Spray.

There will be 160,000 census takers working in the 50 states of the union and are expected to cover the three and a half million square miles of land area, traveling an estimated combined distance of more than 1,000 times around the world, or approximately 25 million miles.

Martin pointed out that the speed of the census is being counted by having their Report Forms filled out and ready for the census takers. This will save time for both the census taker and the census official said.

Householders will not have any difficulty identifying the takers of the 1960 census. Each census taker will be provided with a red and blue identification card which will be worn on the lapel, Mrs. Martin said.

The card bears the seal of the Department of Commerce and the "Census Enumerator, Official Credential." Census takers are further identified by the blue folder containing their supplies. The folder is brown and bears the word "1960 Census of the United States," printed in green ink.

There will be a special squad of census takers who will fan out over the county on the night of April 8 in a drive to identify the persons who do not have a fixed address. District Supervisor Cook said.

These census takers will visit homes, all-night theaters, and public places in this special effort to locate persons who do not have a fixed address.

make sure that all residents of the area are counted. Persons who do not have a fixed address are included in the population of the place in which they are located by the census takers.

In order that county citizens may know the laws governing the taking of Census, the more important ones will be given below.

Under the Census law, all persons 18 years old and over are required to answer official Census questions. The same law specifies that personal information collected by Census takers must be kept confidential.

The person who willfully refuses to answer the official Census questions is subject to a maximum fine of $100 or 60 days in jail, or both.

The Census taker who reveals information about individuals to anyone other than a sworn employee of the Census Bureau is subject to a fine of $1,000 or two years in jail, or both.

Mrs. O. E. Bevers Wins Cotton Guessing Contest

Winner in the 1959 Memphis Democrat Cotton Guessing Contest is Mrs. O. E. Bevers of who guessed within 19 pounds of the official report figure of the Census Department of Commerce, released this week.

Mrs. Bevers' guess was 46,200 bales as the official report recorded 46,200 bales as Hall County's production for 1959.

Second place goes to Debs E. Cofer who guessed 46,117 bales. Within 84 bales of the actual number of bales produced in the county.

Godfrey's guess of 46,117 bales is close enough to give him second place in the contest. This is 84 bales off the official number.

Others in this year's contest were considerably closer to the number guessed than last year's contest winners. Five guesses were within the 166 margin which was good enough to take third place last year.

For coming closest to the number of bales produced in the county, Mrs. Bevers has been awarded a three-year subscription to The Democrat.

Debs Cofer was awarded the second prize, a two-year subscription, and Godfrey received a year's subscription, which is the third prize of the contest.

Webster, 46,600.

A total of 255 persons entered the 1959 Cotton Guessing Contest. This figure is slightly under the number who entered the 1958 and 1957 contests. Guesses covered a field range from 29,330 to 63,843. There were 10 persons guessing between 29,000 and 35,000 bales; 41 guessing between 35,001 and 40,000 bales; 109 guessing between 40,001 and 45,000 bales; 70 guessing between 45,001 and 50,000; 21 guessing between 50,001 and 55,000; and 4 guessing above 55,001 bales.

Savings Bonds Sales Reach 29% Of County Goal

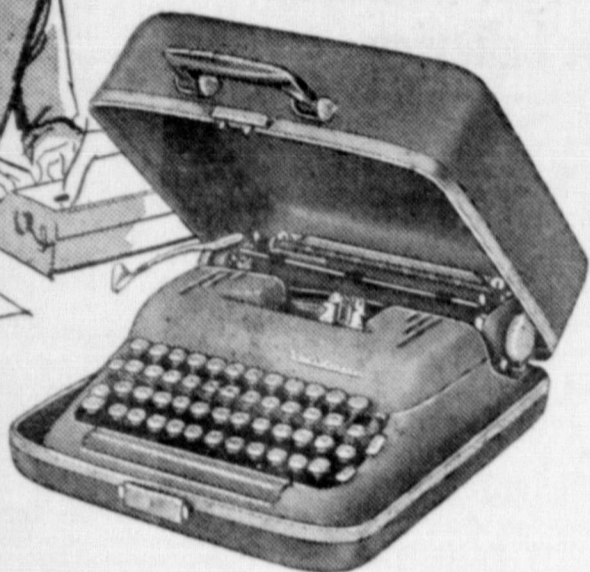

An increase of 4% in February marked the second time this year that Savings Bonds sales in Texas have been greater than sales in the same month in 1959 according to O. L. Helm, Chairman of the Hall County Savings Bonds Committee.

February sales in Texas totaled to $15,506,998. Sales for the first two months of this year amounted to $32,044,765 or 19.4% of the 1960 goal. Total bond purchases in Hall County for January and February were $55,110 which represents 29% of the 1960 County goal. February sales totaled to $20,825.

"We are most encouraged by 1960 Savings Bonds sales," Helm said. "More and more people are purchasing Series E and H Bonds because they realize that in so doing they are making a direct contribution to the economic stability of this nation and to the future security of their own families. The Savings Bonds being purchased now earn an attractive 3.75% interest compounded semi-annually when held to maturity," Helm concluded.

Will Wilson explains that the "Bridge War" between Texas and Oklahoma concerned the opening of three free bridges across the Red River. "Crossing the Gainesville bridge a large truck found the Texas side impassable."

"Battle Border"

Little known facts about Texas boundaries.

(Editor's Note: This is the last in a series of 12 articles, outlining the numerous boundary conflicts dating back to 1716, pointing up little known facts which shaped the Texas of today.)

One stormy chapter in the history of our Texas boundaries was written with the unsolicited help of Oklahoma's blustery, colorful Governor William J. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray.

Murray, governor of the Sooner state from 1931-35, figured prominently in the "Bridge War" of 1931 between Texas and Oklahoma.

"The Bridge War grew out of the differences of opinion between Alfalfa Bill and Texas officials concerning the opening of three 'free bridges' spanning the Red River," Attorney General Will Wilson explains.

Built as a joint effort of Texas and Oklahoma they were intended to provide highway travelers with toll-free passage over the river.

In the spring of 1931 three of the new bridges were nearing completion — the Ringgold-Terrel bridge near Wichita Falls; another crossing the river north of Gainesville; and a third span between Denison and Durant, Oklahoma.

By mid-summer the bridges were still not in use and Alfalfa Bill, long a champion of free bridges, grew impatient with the continued delay.

In spite of the fact that half of each bridge lay within the Texas borders, the Oklahoma governor ordered the bridges open. He was also conspicuously unimpressed with the fact that the Gainesville bridge was still under construction on the Texas side while the Denison free bridge had been ordered by the Federal Court in Houston not to open until settlement of certain legal disputes between the owners of the nearby toll bridge and the Texas Highway Commission.

Traffic, swelled by thousands of curious sightseers, began to flow across the bridges.

Crossing the Gainesville bridge a large truck found the Texas side impassable, couldn't back off the bridge and so remained suspended over the Red River until morning.

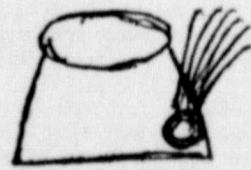

The Ringgold-Terrel free bridge operated without incident.

At Denison, however, Alfalfa Bill's action defied both the State of Texas and the federal judiciary. Governor Ross S. Sterling promptly ordered the bridge closed. Texas Rangers rushed to the scene, ordered barriers rebuilt of heavy logs and beams to be guarded indefinitely.

Alfalfa Bill responded by throwing up a barrier across the Oklahoma side and ordered highway workers to plow up 200 feet of the road approaching the toll bridge. He then declared the bridge under martial law.

The Texas legislature passed an urgent resolution exhorting representative Sam Rayburn to press for passage of Federal legislation aimed at breaking the deadlock.

Meanwhile Governor Murray moved troops to the Denison bridge and appeared in person from time to time to review his men, wearing a campaign hat and packing an old pistol. After a few tense days, an uneasy truce was effected.

By fall a flurry of legal actions were under way. The toll bridge company obtained an injunction against further interference with the operation of their bridge.

The Bridge War was brought to a final end when the toll bridge company's suit against the State of Texas was won by the state, represented by the late James V. Alfred, then Attorney General.

So Texas had fought over practically all of her boundaries — with Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Old Mexico. But the most persistent and aggressive of the land biters had been the federal government.

Attorney General Will Wilson's present case with the Federal government is one more battle in a century-old war to maintain Texas territory.

"Will there be more? Probably so. Of one thing you can be certain, Texas will fight. By now, she knows how," Wilson emphasized.

SENATOR ☆☆☆ Yarborough's Report

International issues have the interest of Texans as the recent recommendation of President Eisenhower and President Nixon that the Reservation be repealed. Any of you recall, in 1946, the International Court of the so-called World Court — the court was not except that the court was not in domestic jurisdiction in the United States. Great beloved Senator Tom Connally amended the Court resolution to provide that the United States retain full authority to decide itself which cases were its own domestic jurisdiction which ones should go to the World Court.

The President and Vice President have urged the Senate to pass a resolution which would repeal Senator Connally's amendment. In other words, they give the World Court, instead of our nation, the power to decide what matters were our domestic matters and what matters were international and therefore the jurisdiction of the World Court.

The American Bar Association and the Eisenhower-Nixon administration in their efforts to repeal a World Court and a law for force or for diplomatic immunity, a method of settling disputes between nations.

With their objectives but the method of doing it now thousands of Americans and have written me expressing interest in this question. Thousands of you Texans have written me your views, many recommending that Senator Connally's reservation be repealed and that the new Eisenhower resolution not be approved. Most Texans and Americans who have written this matter strongly believe that extending this additional power to the World Court would be giving away a part of our American sovereignty — our right to run our own affairs, our right to decide what we will do here at home on local domestic American issues. Most of you who have written are concerned that granting this additional jurisdictional power to the World Court might abridge the constitutional guarantees written out in our Bill of Rights for American citizens.

On the other hand, those who favor the repeal of the Connally amendment, say that the greatest hope for world peace lies in a World Court where issues of law can be settled with reason and justice.

In studying this matter, I have availed myself of Senator Connally's views. He was Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when we joined the World Court. Senator Connally believes that it is just as important today as it was the day we joined the Court that his amendment be retained.

Under present world conditions, I agree with Senator Connally, and I will vote to retain the Connally amendment. As a lawyer and a former judge, I too, believe in the rule of the law in this world, but I favor without equivocation the United States' retaining power over all its domestic affairs, and I will never vote to give up to another country the running of our own local or domestic affairs. With this in mind, I am going to support the Connally amendment as it now stands and the position of Senator Connally in this matter. We must retain America's authority to decide for itself what cases are its own domestic cases.

And under present world conditions, and as long as there is danger that the World Court would attempt to inject itself in America's domestic affairs, I

State Capital NEWS

By Vern Sanford

It's nine months until the 57th Legislature comes to Austin to pass laws, appropriate money and, probably, enact new taxes. But the major decisions are being made now.

Whether it's the warmer weather or the dwindling time — (first primary is only a little more than a month off) — the deciding process is now going full tilt.

Candidates have their literature off the presses and their campaign organizations in action. Challenges and promises are being made, mostly centered on one issue — meeting the state's in-the-red financial predicament.

In most areas legislators are being forced, if their announcement platforms aren't clear, to say pretty specifically what sort of new tax they would favor.

On the statewide level, it's the same. Jack Cox, with the backing of former Gov. Allan Shivers, has come out for a 2 per cent sales-tax-for-education. Gov. Daniel has consistently maintained that the state's financial problems are not so great they cannot be solved by other means.

Jake Pickle is leaving his post as director of organization for the State Democratic Executive Committee and will work in Governor Daniel's campaign. Jake Jacobsen, former Daniel aide, will head the Daniel headquarters.

RANCHERS EXPECT GOOD YEAR — Reflecting the age-old Texas philosophy that everything depends on rain, most Texas ranchers are wearing a smile this spring.

Members of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association meeting in Austin said wet weather had put a "season" in the ground. Prolonged cold meant a lot of expensive feeding, but, in general, the cattlemen look to this year as one of the best ever.

Amid the optimism, U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson warned against too-rapid expansion of herds. It will almost certainly result in a sharp drop in prices, said Benson.

Benson noted that in the past two years cattle in the U. S. had increased by almost 4,000,000 head a year, double the rate he felt the consumer market can easily absorb.

He estimated there were a record-breaking 101,000,000 head of cattle in the country at the start of the year. This is "not yet excessive," said Benson, but he urged that future increases be "moderate."

Governor Daniel warned the cattlemen to watch the import situation. Governor's Exhibit A was the Texas oil industry which has suffered crippling setbacks from the competition of lower-priced imports.

Secretary Benson opposed raising import barriers. He suggested that losses would offset gains in that a $4,000,000,000 export business in hides and tallow would be choked off.

Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde, former legislator, was elected president of the Cattle Raisers Association. CATTLE MEASURES URGED — Cattlemen voted to seek governmental action in these areas:

1. State and federal agency help to enable railroads to operate more efficiently and economically.

2. Legislative enactment of a stronger trespass law to protect landowners.

3. Full authority for the Texas Animal Health Commission to direct the brucellosis eradication program begun under a law passed by the Legislature in 1959.

4. Confirmation by the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture of the Association's right to carry out its brand registration and inspection program.

5. Launching by the USDA, as quickly as possible, of a screw-worm eradication program in the Southwest similar to the dramatically successful Florida program.

HIGHER COLLEGE COSTS — Next legislature probably will be asked to appropriate about 23 per cent more for support of Texas' state colleges and universities.

Ralph Green, director of the Commission on Higher Education, said an estimated $31,400,000 more than present allocations would be needed for the 1961-63 biennium.

This is some $15,000,000 a year more than the $65,000,000 being spent this year. Green told a Legislative Economy Committee the extra funds would be needed to meet increased enrollments and improve faculty salaries.

Green reminded the lawmakers that part of increased cost results from the legislature's having made a junior college into a senior college — against the Commission's recommendation.

MORE YOUTH AID ASKED — Texas Youth Council has announce-

ed it will try again to get a paid parole supervision system for juveniles released from state training schools.

Legislature failed to enact this last session.

Council also outlined need for establishing a home for dependent and neglected Negro children and expanding other state schools for young people.

Other two members of the Council refused to add their support to a wide-scale delinquency prevention program proposed by Chairman W. C. Windsor Jr. of Dallas. It included such recommendations as making 12 years of schooling compulsory, keeping the schools open to 5 p. m. for students with special needs, working with the Texas Employment Commission to provide more job opportunities for youngsters, more emphasis on child and family guidance centers, etc.

Louis Henna of Round Rock and Robert Kneebone of Houston said Windsor's program invaded the fields of other state agencies.

SAFETY LAWS OUTLINED — Brad Smith, director of the Texas Traffic Safety Commission, has proposed a four-plank platform for cutting Texas' traffic toll. Planks are:

1. Provide driver education for every public high school that wants it.

2. Revise the 20-year-old drivers license requirements.

3. Set up a statewide chemical test for suspected drunken drivers.

4. Set up a system of traffic courts.

BRIDGE WORK SET — Texas Highway Commission has announced plans to spend $5,216,500 in strengthening or rebuilding more than 100 bridges.

They are bridges regarded as not strong enough to take the increased 72,000 pound load limit authorized by the last Legislature. At present these bridges are "zoned" to prevent use by trucks loaded to the limit.

Census To Count Transients On Night of March 31

Special steps are being taken in the 1960 Census of Population and Housing, which starts April 1, to make sure that all transients are counted, District Supervisor Clyde Cook said today.

Places such as large hotels, motels, and other accommodations for transient guests will be canvassed under a different procedure than the one used for regular household dwelling units. Prior to March 31, census takers will visit each of them and make a complete record of the rental units in these special dwelling places. At the same time, they will determine which of these units are occupied by permanent residents are: Mildred Jones, as Plaintiff, and E. H. (Doc) Jones, as defendant.

The nature of said suit being substantially as follows, to wit: A suit for divorce filed by the plaintiff against the defendant, and the restoration of the name Henson to the plaintiff.

If this Citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued this the 25th day of March, A. D. 1960.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Memphis, Texas, this the 25th day of March, A. D. 1960.

Transients will be counted on the night of March 31. This census operation is known as "T-night." A supply of individual Census Report forms will be placed at hotels, motels, and other transient places to be distributed to transient guests staying at these places during the night of March 31. Census Bureau employees will assist transients in filling out the forms. The purpose of the special canvass is to account for every person staying in such places on the Census date.

After the individual forms have been collected, the names should be included in the local census counts. Persons enumerated as part of the local population only if they have no usual place of residence elsewhere. Names of transients will be allocated back to their usual place of residence.

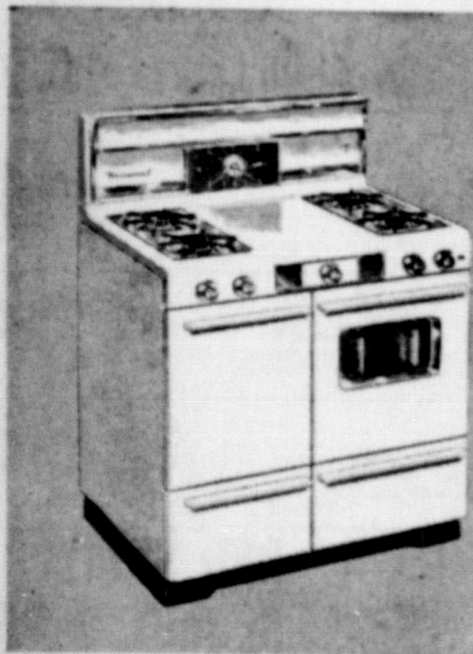

Information on permanent residents of these special dwelling units will be obtained by means of individual census report forms and the information about housing accommodations will be furnished by the resident managers of these places.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Jack Murry and children of Austin visited with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gip McMurry and Mrs. Mrs. Clyde Morris over the weekend.

Hall County Soil Conservation District News

TERRACE END CLOSURES

Many farmers and ranchers in the Hall County Soil Conservation District consider level closed-end terraces a very important part of their farm. The primary purpose of terraces is to hold the water on the land until it has been absorbed by the soil. This makes terraces a valuable aid in the control of water erosion, says Calvin Jackson, Soil Conservation Service Engineer.

Standard terraces are designed to control the run off from 10 year rain or the largest rain that can be expected in a period of 10 years. To protect the terrace system from a larger or more intense rainstorm end closures are staked two-thirds of the height of the standard terrace. This end closure amounts to an emergency spillway and permits drainage in the case of a large rain. Such areas as turn rows, rangeland, and farm road ditches are usually considered adequate for this area. The end closure should be constructed properly before the terrace system can be considered complete.

A terrace system will not function properly without the right type of end closure. The end closure does not require as much dirt as a standard type terrace but it should have a base width of about 10 to 12 feet and a 4 foot crown width. The height of the end closure should be over one-half but not more than two-thirds of the height of the terrace.

Farmers and ranchers currently building new terraces, restoring or enlarging old terraces should build their terrace end closures to the above figure. Government cost sharing can be certified when the end closures meet the above specifications. If more information is needed concerning terrace end closures contact the men in your local Soil Conservation Office.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

In the winter of 1908-09, I lived in Douglas, Arizona, and was in the seventh grade. I can remember a sandstorm with a wind so strong that, thin as I was, I had to walk across the street at an angle and with my eyes almost closed.

My father rented a store building and installed two boxball alleys — a pastime similar to bowling but not as strenuous. Most of the time (except during school hours) I ran the place as my father was ill.

He subleased part of the space to a big Swede named Johnson who put in a shooting gallery. While the owner was out at lunch, I ran the shooting gallery, too. If I was going to stretch the truth, it would be set down here that I became a dead-shot but actually I didn't (although I did acquire skill at boxball). At cleaning the guns, reloading them and whitewashing the targets, I became quite adept — and there was one (seemingly) difficult feat that I could perform and that was hitting a swinging target.

The pendulum, upon completing a swing, would pause before starting to swing back and the secret was to aim at the spot at the end of the swing and be ready to fire the single instant the pendulum halted.

Quite a few Latin Americans attended school and my chum was one of these. His name was Joe Aguirre. He had sparkling eyes and flashing white teeth and he was always smiling. He was very quick in all his movements in our contests on the campus. I recall that one day I playfully tapped him and then ran. Fleet as a deer, he raced in pursuit and, just as he overhauled me, out went a foot, tripping me and the ground rose up and I saw a shower of stars.

My father died the next spring; we moved away and I have never been back to Douglas. I used often to think of my former playmate and wonder what ever happened to him.

Years went by — as years do — and one day I read a brief news item from Mexico saying that a revolutionary leader had been killed in battle. He was Colonel Jose Aguirre. I never have known whether he was my former playmate.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th

The Gas Bill

A recent letter from a Member of Congress to President Eisenhower and the President's reply have caused much discussion in the oil and gas industry. The letter from the Congressman, in effect, asked the President what he intended to do about recommending legislation to free the gas producers in this country from utility-type regulation. The President answered that he strongly favored the elimination of public utility-type regulation of producers of natural gas. This all sounded very good and built up some high hopes among oil and gas people. However, the President went on further to say that if those in control of Congress gave some indication that they would join in his effort, he would support the legislation. This meant, in effect, that he did not intend to send to the leaders of Congress a recommendation as to the type of gas legislation he would sign. The usual procedure has been for the President to send to the Congress a draft of a bill that he would like to have enacted into law. The Congress in turn considers the legislation. Such a recommendation by the President has a tremendous weight on all Members of Congress, especially those of the same political party as the President. It is the consensus of many here that the only way a gas bill can be passed this session would be for the President to send up to the Congress the type of bill that he would approve and recommend its passage.

We passed an excellent gas bill in 1956 which the President had said met with his approval. It did everything the President had said he was for and wanted. Many of the Members of Congress were following the lead of the President in voting for that gas bill. But, even with that help, the bill passed by a narrow margin of less than 10 votes in the House of Representatives. Without the help of the President at that time, it is very doubtful the bill would have passed. The reason is that many of the Members in the Congress do not come from oil and gas districts and do not fully understand the problem involved. Their districts are made up primarily of consumers of gas and, consequently their vote for a gas bill can cause them much criticism, because their constituents have been misled as to the purpose of such a bill. The gas bill which passed in 1956 required a tremendous amount of work on the part of those of us Members who are familiar with the problem, and we felt sure that we had answered one bureaucratic problem. However, the President, to our utter dismay, vetoed the bill. By so doing, he completely pulled the rug out from under those Members of his own party who had followed his suggestions and recommendations. When he vetoed the bill he stated that it was a good bill, but that he was vetoing it because of some reported irregularities in outside activities while the bill was being considered by the Congress. In other words, he permitted an act of alleged corruption by some individual in the Nation's Capitol to influence him into vetoing a bill which he had recommended and thereby punished every honest gas producer in this country, including a good number of small independent operators who have helped to build the economy of the Panhandle of Texas and our general area.

Because the rug was pulled out from under them as outlined above, many members here feel that those Members who found themselves landing on their head after following the President's recommendations, will be somewhat suspicious unless the President sends the bill to the Congress setting forth his view on the subject and indicating that he does not intend to veto it.

I write this information because I want the people to know the truth and actual facts concerning these transactions. There is a lot more to this story, but I have written it as concisely as I could in order to keep within the confines of the space available.

A gas bill can pass the Congress this year if the President of the United States will send the bill to the Congress and request that it be enacted.

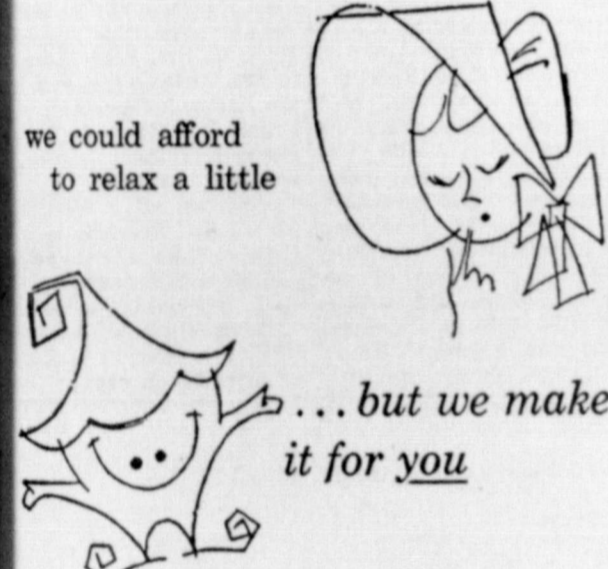

Small World

The State of South Carolina has sent some illustrious sons to the National Congress, and they have written splendid records. But there is one in particular who has a special tie to the 18th Congressional District of Texas. One of the counties in the Panhandle bears the name of the great uncle of this fine Representative. I have hopes of being able to bring him home with me sometime so that he can have a look at this fine county and have further reason to be proud of his great uncle. The Representative of whom I speak is Robert W. Hemphill of Chester, South Carolina. His great uncle was a Justice of the Supreme court of the Republic of Texas and the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Texas, and subsequently served as U. S. Senator from Texas. The county bearing the name is, of course, Hemphill County, the county seat of which is Canadian.

A Positive Approach

It is a rather tragic paradox that the productive genius of the American farmer is regarded abroad as perhaps the greatest asset this nation has; while, here at home, it is coming to be regarded as a handicap and a sin against the national economy.

There is probably not a nation among the world's major powers, Russia included, that would not be willing to exchange all its military weapons, its technological discoveries, its missiles and space-probing paraphernalia for the productive capacity of the American farmer. No other nation has the ability to produce food and fiber in the generous abundance of this country's agriculture. What a powerful weapon this capacity would be in the hands of Russian and Chinese leaders!

Perhaps it's just another example of a prophet not being without honor save in his own country; but right now the American farmer has reached a new low in public regard and has become a victim of some of the most unfavorable propaganda ever directed against a segment of this nation's economy. The metropolitan press, urban politicians, and business leaders have waged campaigns which, it seems to us, were designed to discredit the American farmer and the whole agricultural program.

Carlton Power of the National Cotton Council recently told members of the Nueces County Farm Bureau that "the greatest single problem facing agriculture today is the extremely low state of its public relations."

We certainly think he has a point; and we think that unless farmers do something to alter this situation, agriculture will more and more become a whipping boy of a great many more groups; and before they realize it, American agriculture will lose all the gains it has made during the last three decades.

The unhappy state cannot be improved by further pursuit of what might be termed a negative approach. It will be of little benefit for agriculture to point out that it has a plethora of bedfellows in the subsidy field; that the pittance agriculture receives in assistance is negligible compared to that received by other segments of the economy.

It is time for a positive approach; time for U. S. farmers to let the nation know what agriculture has contributed not only to the United States but to the whole world as well. It is time to remind the public that American Agricultural efficiency has made America the best fed nation in the world and that food is the cheapest item in the American budget. It is time to tell the public that U. S. agriculture has become so efficient that one American farmer can provide food and fiber for himself and 22 other people, while, by way of contrast, the Russian farmer is able to feed and clothe only one other person than himself. It is time to apprise critics of the fact that farmers get only one out of every four dollars spent on food and fiber in this country and that the farmer, as some would have people believe, is not getting "filthy rich."

It is time to let the public know that agriculture is the biggest customer of both the petroleum and the steel industry and that farmers spend 25 billion dollars a year on production items alone. And it would not be amiss to remind the American public that this country's ability to produce food and fiber in great abundance has probably been a greater deterrent to war than all our guns and planes and other items of military might. And it might not be inappropriate to point out that food and fiber drawn from American surpluses have kept many a nation out of the Red camp.

What Other Editors Say

The Increase in Crime

With the arrest of three college students on charges of burglary and theft for a series of break-ins in Canyon, the marked increase in major crime in Texas comes into better focus.

It appears that burglaries throughout the state are on the increase, along with other crimes. For instance, in 1958 the Texas Department of Public Safety figures showed 44,822 burglaries, while DPS figures for 1958 show 45,827 — an increase of 2.2 per cent.

The percentage of 2.2 is not large, but burglary is only one major crime — and the others also showed an increase.

As a matter of fact, of the seven major crimes — murder, rape, robbery, burglary, theft, auto theft, and aggravated assault — only robbery showed a decline.

Crime in all categories increased 3.9 per cent in 1959 over the previous year.

What does all this add up to? It means that over a 10 year period, crime in Texas percentage-wise has by far outstripped population in increases. During the 1950's, population of our state increased 24.4 per cent, while crime jumped a whopping 73.2 per cent.

In 1950 the DPS's Identification and Criminal Records Section received 72,434 sets of criminal fingerprints. Last year the department received 110,531 sets of criminal fingerprints — an increase of 52.59 per cent.

In the year 1950, identifications were made on 35,649 fingerprints, while 66,691 fingerprints were identified in 1959. This was an increase of 87.83 per cent.

As was true in all phases of law enforcement work, activities in the department's chemical laboratory showed tremendous gains. In 1950, 2,500 chemical examinations were completed, as compared with 10,179 such tests last year.

The crime report of the DPS showed that on each day of the year during 1959 there were 125 burglaries, 43 automobiles stolen, 266 thefts other than automobiles, 32 aggravated assaults, seven robberies, three rapes, and three murders.

Although at first glance it would seem that we are fast becoming a state of criminals, we do not think this is the case.

In the first place, population has increased by 25 per cent in the past decade. Therefore, we have an increase of at least 25 per cent in the crime rate, or more, because most of the increase in population has come in the large cities like Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, etc.

And crime rates increase way out of proportion as the density of population increases.

Secondly, although the Department of Public Safety makes no mention of it, the lines of communication between the different law enforcement agencies within the state are much better now than they were 10 years ago.

This means that more crimes will be reported to the DPS, and more information will be requested from the state's chief enforcement agency.

The crime rate is appalling, but if there were some way to consider the population density and improved communication channels now existing we bet the picture

Maybe "he went thataway"

How do I know my youth has been spent? ... Because my Get-up-and-Go has Got-up-and-Went. ... But in spite of it all, I am able to grin ... When I fondly remember where my Get-up-and-go has been.

Olden age is golden! I have heard it said ... But sometimes I wonder, as I go to bed ... My ears in a drawer, my teeth in a cup ... My eyes on the table until I wake up ... Ere sleep dims my eyes, I say to myself ... "Is there anything else I should lay on the shelf?"

And I'm happy to say as I close the door ... My friends are the same as in days of yore. ... When I was young, my slippers were red, ... I could kick my heels over my head ... When I grew older, my slippers were blue ... And I could dance the whole night through ... Now I am old and my slippers are black, ... I walk to the corner, and puff my way back.

The reason I know my youth has been spent; ... My Get-up-and-Go has just Got-up-and-went. ... But really, I don't mind when I think with a grin ... Of all the nice places my Get-up has been ... Since I have retired from life's competition ... I busy myself with endless repetition ... I get up each morning, dust off my wits ... Pick up the paper and read the "Obits." ... If my name is missing, I know I'm not dead ... So I eat a good breakfast and jump back in bed.

Note: We don't know who the author of this bit is because after he handed us the poem he Got-up-and-went.

A wonderfully useful folding seat makes every Corvair two cars in one. Just one quick flip and you increase the luggage and parcel space to 28.9 cubic feet. And just as simply, you're back to comfortable six-passenger capacity. It's standard equipment ... and extraordinarily practical.

Corvair does car-pool duty with the biggest and best of them. Going to work or school or out for the evening, you've got a genuine six-seater. As for carting around piles of stuff instead of people, just look at Corvair's station-sedan load space with the rear seat folded. And when that's full you can start on the trunk.

Corvair, you see, is no ordinary compact car. No others are so versatile, so ingeniously engineered—with independent suspension at all four wheels, an air-cooled rear engine that never needs water or antifreeze. How Well Do You Know Your America?

In the smaller towns and cities of our great nation, the hub of activity is generally the Court House Square. The Court House is usually located on a square, or may be an "island" surrounded by thriving businesses. But the square is also a popular gathering spot and meeting place in the larger cities. The areas to be served in addition to the Memphis area includes Estelline, Lakeview, Brice and Hedley.

Construction is expected to be completed within three or four weeks, according to estimates of the contractor, Bob Sinks, provided there is no delay in receiving equipment, or there is no extended adverse weather conditions.

"This television system has been made possible through voluntary solicitations and pledges of citizens of the areas to be served," Webster said, "and after almost one year of concentrated work and efforts, cooperation television to all this trade territory is becoming a reality."

A 20-day trial test period of this equipment will be offered by the electronics company before it is accepted by the approval committee of the Caprock Translator System.

"Members of the Board of Directors wish to thank Congressman Walter Rogers for his contracts with the Federal Communication Commission in seeing the application approved," Webster concluded.
