The chairman explained that at least 77 per cent of the money collected remains in the county for assisting crippled children and adults.

Lakeview Senior Class Will Present Annual Play Friday in Auditorium

The Lakeview High School senior class will present its annual play Friday, April 15, at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The play, "The Able Miss Cain," is a three-act comedy written by Jay Tobias, and promises to furnish an enjoyable evening of entertainment to those attending.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Admission will be 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students.

The cast includes Judy Pate who plays the part of Elinor Prescott, Mama, an imposing very well preserved woman of forty. She has an indomitable will, and rules her family, especially her husband, with a rod of iron.

Don Neighbors plays the part of Leaper Prescott, papa, a medium-sized man of forty-two, slightly bald, wiry in build and with an indeterminate set of features. He is the average American plodder. He is good humored and wholesome and almost completely dominated by his wife.

Cheryl Prescott is portrayed by Retha Kennard. She is Mama's pet, the spoiled daughter. A beautiful blonde of nineteen, she is spoiled and selfish, flippant in speech and manner.

Don Hill plays the part of Petty Prescott, the kid brother who is crazy over hypnotism. An all-American boy of fifteen, with fair skin and light hair, his main interest in life at the moment is hypnotism.

Patsy Nabers plays the part of Mary Joe Jennings, Leaper's niece, the household drudge. She is a very sweet appealing girl of 18 with a low attractive voice and dark gray black-lashed eyes.

Lois Pierce plays the part of Maimie Magoon, the dumb maid of all work. A short red-faced buxom girl of round face, she is extremely slow-witted. She often stands pigeon-toed and at an awkward angle.

Gussie Smott, a very nosy neighbor, is portrayed by Josie Metast. She is a thin, shrill voiced, talkative spinster of 35 with a sharp nose in a narrow face and eyes and ears alert for gossip.

Tony Molloy plays the part of Jid Lawford, a young man in love with Cheryl. A sturdy, handsome youth of 22, he is rather shy and awkward, but with a likeable personality. His manner is direct and sincere and he is friendly as a puppy.

Orpha Van Ostade, the town's tristrocacy, is played by Joyce Ponder. A tall statuesque woman of 40, she has a smart artificial manner. She is rather handsome in a cold patrician way and is disagreeably aristocratic.

Dwight Floyd plays the part of Van Ostade. He is a short, slight, fairly good-looking fellow of 22. He is snobbish and affected and cannot pronounce his R's.

Linda Campbell plays the part of Mrs. Livemore. She is really Aunt Molly Cain in disguise. She appears to be a middle-aged widow with a gloomy, pessimistic personality whose whiny voice usually sounds sad and forlorn. But at other times she is down and decidedly arid, fussy and tart-tongued.

Aunt Molly Cain is played by Nila Holt. An elderly white-haired woman of 60 with a beaming, cheerful face and a loud booming voice, she is in reality Susan Rogers, the real Aunt Molly's paid companion. Although she appears to be a buxom hearty soul, she is an aggressive as a battleship and is often brusque and outspoken.

Fire Hazard Inspection To Be Held Here May 11

City-wide Fire Hazard Inspection was scheduled Monday at a meeting of the Civic Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and members of the Volunteer Fire Department.

The Fire Hazard Inspection will be Wednesday, May 11, according to Bill Leslie, chairman of the Civic Affairs Committee. Leslie will be chief of the fire department and the C. Committee are co-sponsors of the inspection.

The Fire Hazard Inspection Day, of approximately 30 men in the city to conduct the inspection, the two co-chairmen, the men will be representing the Texas Insurance Association, which has been cooperating with cities over the state in similar projects.

A commercial or industrial inspection within the city will be conducted by two of the men from the city, who will be accompanied by a Boy Scout. After the inspection has been completed the men will make their report to the city fire marshal, and a copy will be mailed to the state office of the organization.

The program, as planned at the Monday meeting, also will include an inspection of all residences of the city. This will be handled by students of local schools, who will be issued special forms. Each student will inspect his or her home and premise, and will fill out the report.

"We plan to give a prize to the room which turns in the best overall report," according to Leslie and Ward.

It was explained that members of the visiting inspection team will appear in assemblies at the two elementary schools, where special costumes depicting such characters as "Fire Bug," etc. During the remainder of the day, they will circulate around town in an effort to carry out the inspection and safety theme.

"There is nothing mandatory or compulsory about the program," the men emphasized. "It is a volunteer inspection program which has been adopted by the chamber of commerce and the fire department. We want the people to accept it for its benefits to our community as a whole.

"As is well known, the final authority on fire hazards rests with the fire marshal. The team will report on fire hazards as they find them, and these reports will be turned over to the local group.

"Our objective is this: To continue to decrease our city's fire losses, thereby saving our citizens substantial sums of money on their insurance premiums. This movement certainly can't be harmful in any respect."

According to Chief Ward, his department is interested in preventing fires as well as combating them when they happen.

On May 3 and 4, a special film will be shown at the regular meetings of the Rotary and Lions Clubs. The film will portray the inspection of a similar team, which inspected the city of Magnolia, Arkansas.

State Capital NEWS

By Vern Sanford

A 30-member committee appointed by Gov. Price Daniel will meet May 16 to begin work on a tall task.

Assignment of the State Finance Advisory Committee will be to suggest every possible economy in state government and recommend tax program to put the state on a sound financial basis.

For the immediate future the tax program is to wipe out the general revenue fund deficit, which the governor estimates will be $40,000,000 at the end of this fiscal year, and provide $35,000,000 for teacher pay raises.

Committee is to be made up of leading citizens in both public and private life. Six already have been named. They are Secretary of State Zollie Steakley who will be chairman; Jess Irwin, the governor's budget director; Jon Ford, administrative assistant to the governor; Dr. John R. Stockton, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research; John R. McKee, Ford Motor Company executive; and Hugo Lowenstein, Amarillo real estate man.

Governor Daniel said he would ask the committee to search for revenue sources other than a general sales tax or state income tax.

He hopes, said the governor, that the committee will work out some recommendations soon so that a special session can be called this year to pass teacher pay raises. Under Texas' requirement for pay-as-you-go financing, the Legislature would have to pass taxes to wipe out the deficit before it could vote funds for the school improvement program.

TEACHER RAISE ENDORSED—Nearly three-fourths of the candidates for the Legislature this year have told the Texas State Teachers Association they favor a pay raise for teachers.

Some qualified their statements to indicate that getting the pay raise might be an easier-said-than-done proposition.

Of 401 candidates for the Senate and House, 336 answered the TSTA's questionnaire, and 293 said they approved the Hale-Aiken school program.

Asked if they would vote the necessary taxes for it, 252 promised support outright. Others added conditions on the kinds of taxes they would approve.

LOAN PLAN DISAPPROVED—Third Court of Civil Appeals has held the certificate plan used by some loan companies is unconstitutional.

Loan companies involved in the test case are expected to appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Under the certificate plan, the borrower of $100 would agree to repay his loan through monthly payments on an investment certificate for $110. This, according to the Attorney General's Department, forces the borrower to pay more than the permitted 18 per cent interest because the interest does not drop as he pays off the principal.

Loan companies, which won the first round in district court, contend that the same procedure is used by banks, saving and loan associations and other lending institutions.

Attorney General's Department replied that there is no specific provision prohibiting other institutions from computing interest in this manner.

SCHOOL BUYING CRITICIZED—Clothing purchases at the Texas Blind, Deaf and Orphan School for Colored in Austin were far in excess of use during the past 18 months, State Auditor C. H. Cavness reported.

Cavness said his audit turned up excessive clothing purchases totaling $3,824. In all, he said, 3,042 articles of clothing were bought, but only 75 articles were issued to the children.

He said he had received no "reasonable explanation" for the discrepancy. Cavness suggested that the Texas Youth Council, which oversees state schools for needy and handicapped children, make an inventory and transfer surplus items to other schools.

CITIZEN INTEREST URGED—Texas Law Enforcement Foundation has called on individual citizens to feel responsible for the way the law is observed in their communities.

Citing no specific instances, the TLEF executive committee said that "a breakdown in citizen responsibility must precede any breakdown in law enforcement."

Three new members have been elected to the TLEF executive committee. They are Neill Masterson Jr. of Houston, Weldon Jones of San Angelo and Radcliffe Killam of Laredo. Dolph Briscoe Jr. of Uvalde is new secretary of the committee.

Plans are under way to expand the foundation's board to include representation from every part of the state and to set up a program to assist families of law enforcement officers killed on duty.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT IT—State Supreme Court has again refused to get involved in a dispute as to whether a Dallas district judge can hold a railway president in contempt of court because trains blocked a Dallas street.

However, the court repeated, with emphasis, its belief that the district court order is void and "no trial judge will attempt to enforce it."

Dallas District Judge Jack Thornton sentenced M-K-T President W. N. Deramus to 240 days in jail and levied a $4,000 fine because Katy trains blocked a street for more than five minutes at a time, against the judge's order.

Since the gun. Deramus, president, has to Texas court despite reinsurance cleared he executive

Easter
Spring in all its glory is burst forth in the Nation's Capital. The annual Cherry Blossom Festival is in full swing, although the cherry blossoms have not yet bloomed. However, nature will take care of this little matter before Easter. It seems each year that man and nature have difficulty in their timing. If the Festival is set late, the blossoms bloom early; and if the Festival is set early, the blossoms bloom late. In any event, it is always a festive season and one which is enjoyed by all.

The churches will be crowded to overflowing on Easter Sunday. It is too bad that the same cannot be said of every other Sunday in the year. One pastor here is reputed to have preached his sermon on Easter Sunday by wishing all of those present a Merry Christmas. He explained as his reason for doing this that he would probably not get to see some of them again before that time. This is a thought which could well be pondered in the minds of many in this country, and there is no more appropriate time for such meditation than the Easter season.

FIRST PLACE WINNERS — A dairy cattle judging team from the Lakeview FFA won first place in the Greenbelt Dairy Cattle Judging Contest held in Wellington Friday, April 8. Members of the team are, left to right, Brady Durrett, Larry Skinner, Jerry Clements and David Payne. Competing in the contest other than Lakeview were teams from Samnorwood, and Wellington, who won second and third places respectively, and Quail, Memphis, Clarendon and Hedley.

When public property is misused to the profit of a few unscrupulous individuals, something is wrong. When obscenity becomes an everyday occurrence, something is wrong. When people obtain government jobs through examinations taken by others, something is wrong.

Legislation can go a long way in setting up guide lines to help cure the ills reflected by the practices which have been revealed. However, legislation alone cannot cure these ills. They can only be cured by the searching re-appraisal of the individual moral code. It has been said many times that you cannot legislate morals. This is as true today as it was when it was first uttered. It is being proven at the present time by the difficulty which is being experienced in trying to write into law a "code of ethics" for the Independent Agencies of the Federal government. It is another case of the trouble man will always have in trying to improve upon the Ten Commandments. A scoundrel, a mountebank, and a crook will always be just that, regardless of the law, until he changes his own moral code and decides to live by the teachings of Christ. Many good people who are morally and basically sound have had occasion in the last few years to wink at practices which they knew in their own hearts were not in keeping with the teachings of Christianity. Yet, if a profit was involved, they were able to conjure up some good explanation or excuse for engaging in the practice or permitting it. Now is the time, during this Easter season, for the people in this country to take an inventory of their Christian principles and to restock their shelves with those which they find short.

Big Brother, Big Debt
Many people complain about the Federal government getting into everything, except their own pet project. Here is part of a communication I received the other day: "I am against Uncle Sam playing big brother. But, no Texan, rural or urban, can fail to approve Federal appropriations for the eradication of the screw-worm."

SENATOR ★ ★ ★ Yarborough's Report

Sound flood prevention practices are like buying insurance. We've got to invest today to have protection for the future, and if we fail to act now the costs in property damage in the long run will run much higher than protection costs.

Continued or new watershed protection and flood prevention construction work is needed in 41 Texas counties. The earliest day we can get this work done is none too soon, for tomorrow may be the day it becomes a matter of life or death, financial security or bankruptcy. Homes, farms, ranches, bridges, roads, livestock, and even the lives of human beings, are swept away in these floods.

That is why I am backing the recommendation of the Association of Texas Soil Conservation Districts and urging that 35 million dollars be appropriated in the 1961 budget for this important national program.

Such an appropriation would permit completion of flood prevention and other watershed improvement work now under way in 14 Texas watersheds and the beginning of construction in 12 other watersheds where there is acute need for protection.

The Budget Bureau and the Administration, following their policy of no new starts or few new starts, has embarked only $21,900,000 for the whole nation for this program. Gambling with flood control measures is simply being penny wise and pound foolish.

For that reason, I believe we should complete work in 1961 on the 14 projects already started, and begin work on the additional 12 watersheds where planning has been completed.

INVISIBLE RAYS

X-rays are invisible rays of radiant energy capable of penetrating the human body and tracing a shadowy image of body structures on film. This enables the radiologist, or physician specializing in their use, to detect disease.

CANCER ADVANCES

Modern medicine now has the means to cure half of all cancer cases through radiation (x-ray) and surgery, according to the New York Cancer Committee.

UDC Chapter Meets in Home of Mrs. J. H. Norman

On Tuesday, April 12, the Winnie Davis Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met in the home of Mrs. J. H. Norman for a regular meeting.

The president, Mrs. T. J. Hampton, presided at a brief business session. The U. D. C. Ritual and pledge to the flags were given. The program for the afternoon was on "Heroes and Heroines of the War Between the States." Mrs. Herlie Moreman read a paper on Alexander H. Stephens. "The Bishop Who Wore a Sword" was given by Drubette Cook. "Mary Gay, Confederate Heroine," was given by Mrs. Bray Cook.

The hostess served a delicious salad plate to the following members: Mrs. T. J. Hampton, L. G. DeBerry, Emma Baskerville, Glynn Thompson, O. R. Goodall, Bray Cook, Herlie Moreman and the hostess, J. H. Norman and one guest, Miss Drubette Cook.

The next meeting is slated for Tuesday, May 10, at the ranch home of Mrs. Herlie Moreman for a 10 o'clock brunch.

Record Sought On White Bass Over Four Pounds

How many four pound white bass are caught in Texas every year? And how much larger do they get?

This is information sought by the Game and Fish Commission, according to the director of inland fisheries.

Ed Bonn, aquatic biologist on Lake Texoma, thinks the white bass (sandies) should be included in the "Field and Stream" annual fishing contest. He thinks if any appreciable number of four pounders turn up, this outdoors magazine might recognize them along with blacks, small mouth and spotted bass.

Information on large whites can be sent to the director of inland fisheries of the Game and Fish Commission in Austin. Included should be the weight and size of the fish; how caught and on what kind of equipment and lure, line test, etc. To be eligible to enter in the magazine contest it should also have the make of the rod and reel. It will be necessary to measure and weigh the fish in the presence of witnesses. In such case, a game warden or biologist would be a good authority.

Bonn for a number of years has been making a study of the white bass population of Lake Texoma and other North Texas lakes.

Seed Mixture Now Available To Landowners

A seed mixture of early and late maturing sesame has been prepared by the Texas Research Foundation for landowners and sportsmen to plant for feed and cover for dove and quail this fall and winter. Announcement of the new mixture is made in the Texas Game and Fish magazine, according to the director of information and education.

The mixture coming from the research farms at Renner, Texas, contains three varieties of semi and non-shattering sesame, which will begin releasing seed in September, according to Dr. C. L. Lundell, director of the Foundation.

"All three varieties are heavy producers, and a continuous supply of seed they provide will carry game birds through the dormant season in excellent condition for the spring mating season," he said.

The mixture now is being put up in 5 to 100 pound bags for distribution to landowners. The best planting date in North Texas is during May, according to Dr. Lundell.

He urges proper preparation of soil beforehand, with conventional farm equipment. Small areas should be prepared with a rake.

The seed bed should be rolled or firm after the seeds have been planted.

Coreing of Dam Site on Salt Fork To Be Made Soon

Low bidder for the coreing of the site for the proposed Greenbelt dam on Salt Fork of Red River north of Hedley was announced this week by C. L. Johnson, secretary of the Greenbelt Municipal and Industrial Water Authority.

Johnson stated that he had received word from John Thompson, acting regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation, Amarillo office of the U. S. Department of the Interior, in regard to the coreing of the site of the Greenbelt dam. He quoted Thompson as stating that eight bids were received for the coreing contract, and that the low bidder was the Engineers Testing Laboratory, Inc., of Houston. Thompson also stated that his office expected to sign the contract in the near future.

The contract calls for the drilling of five holes, two in the river bed and three on the river banks, varying from depths from 80 to 170 feet.

"In case the old river bed is not located by this drilling, one or two shallow holes may be drilled to locate it," Johnson added.

Permission has been granted by the landholders near the site and it is hoped that the work can be started soon, Johnson added. The permission states that 120 days will be granted to finish the coreing.

STOMACH CANCER

A recent study at the University of Chicago Clinics disclosed that x-ray examination is the best way to detect stomach cancer, it was reported by Dr. N. M. Strandjord at a recent meeting of the Radiological Society of North America.

The Bloomin' News

My pecan trees are budding out so maybe that means spring is here. If it is, then it's high time you went to work in that yard and garden. We have many things you will need. We can also tell you one thing you don't need and how to get rid of it. DANDELIONS—You have heard and read about the new "WEEDEZ" miracle bar for killing dandelions and other broad leaf weeds. We have them and it is the most efficient, easy-to-use, method yet devised to combat dandelions. We also have the weed-killer spray as well as a number of other lawn items such as PAX, Green Acres Turf Magic lawn food, Ortho grub, worm and bug killer, etc., etc.

Our tomato and pepper plants are ready as well as quite a few small flower plants. Glad bulbs, a few dahlia bulbs, caladium bulbs and some extra nice tuberose bulbs. We have florabunda roses in pots and will have Hybrid Tea and Climber roses in pots next week.

It's late but not too late to come by and see our beautiful assortment of Easter flowers. Also, in case you don't believe that tale about home grown orchids, come by and see them. Our "other" plant has 5 buds on it that will be in bloom by the end of the week (we cut 4 blooms from one plant last month).

An important event is coming up in Memphis next month. It is a City-wide fire hazard inspection of all the commercial buildings in town. It will be sponsored by the Memphis Volunteer Fire Department and the Chamber of Commerce. Read about this in the Democrat and if you have any questions about it, ask a member of the Fire Department or some official of the Chamber of Commerce.

If you have any suggestions about cleaning up and beautifying our community (or any suggestions for any type improvement in our community, for that matter) give them to the Chamber of Commerce.

May Draft Quota Will Be 350 Men

The state quota for Texas draft boards in May calls for 350 men, Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, announced last week.

The state's May call of 350 compares with a quota of 270 for April and 265 for March.

Colonel Schwartz also announced that local boards would send around 600 men for pre-induction physical and mental examinations. These men return home after being examined at examining stations.

Local board quotas for May call already have been figured and sent to the state's 137 local boards.

The May quota will be filled with men who are at least 22 years old on May 1, with the exception of volunteers or delinquents, who may be younger.

Hall County Soil Conservation District News

This is a black and white reproduction of the 4-cent water conservation stamp that goes on sale April 19 in post offices over the United States. The stamp, printed in three colors, will be officially issued for sale on April 18 in Washington, D. C., at the Seventh National Watershed Congress.

The fact that water is a vital and limiting natural resource is dramatized by this, the latest in a series of conservation commemorative postage stamps.

No other resource so directly affects the welfare, comfort, and happiness of all the people.

Our national and personal need for water for domestic use, for sanitation, for manufacture, and for agriculture is multiplied each year by our expanding population.

Without water, soil cannot produce the food and fiber needed to nourish and clothe our rapidly increasing population.

More and more people each year are turning to water and water sports for leisure time enjoyment.

But there is just so much water. The earth's water supply remains constant. We can meet these vital and rising demands for water only by better use of what we have—by reducing needless waste and pollution—by protecting the watershed upon which our water falls as rain and snow—by finding more efficient ways for its use.

Most problems of water shortage, poor water, or floods trace back directly to the land.

Whether or not the land in each watershed is eroded or is mantled by protective cover of grass and trees—whether there are small dams and other flood-preventing structures along the channels—whether steps have been taken to reduce pollution—these determine in large measure whether water supplies are ample and reliable.

It is because of the dependence of water supply on watersheds that the commemorative stamp will be formally issued at the 7th National Watershed Congress in the Nation's Capital on April 18th.

The unique two-panel stamp portrays a closeup view of a drop of water falling from a leaf, which symbolizes watershed influences upon water supply. This design leads the eye to a right-hand panel depicting the actual watershed panorama. A town and farm in the foreground are dependent on the upstream watershed with its well-managed farm and forest land and small dams for flood prevention and water storage.

The Supervisors of the Hall County Soil Conservation District have stated they appreciate the local and national attention that this stamp will give to the conservation of our water and natural resources.

Women Spend More Than $1.5 Billion Annually In Their Search For Beauty

Even had no need of a powder puff or a pot of rouge to catch the eye... but she had no competition, either.

It's a far different story for her daughters, who spent more than $1.5 billion a year, according to World Book Encyclopedia, in their search for beauty, youth and men.

This leap year they can even trim themselves with false eyebrows to match the deceptive eyes they've been fluttering.

It's just a slight improvement over Cleopatra, who probably would have gone down in history without any help from Anthony because of her proficiency with the paint.

The Egyptians were so concerned with their good looks that they wrote into the marriage contract the amount of beauty oils to be given a wife.

The Greeks were among the first people to dye their hair. And they gave us the name for the art of improving on nature—cosmetics, from the word "kosmetikos," meaning "skilled in decorating."

The English tried some "interior decorating" during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I. They tried to replicate the queen's pale, bleak color by swallowing gravel, tallow and ashes.

The French, with their more discriminating palates, bled themselves to achieve the same effect during the period of the Revolution.

Fortunately the Food and Drug Administration and the medical profession have helped to stamp out some of the more ghastly recipes for beauty.

But the best beauty treatment is still soap and that unromantic liquid used by a French courtesan, to the horror of other women, in the 1500's—water.

Only Permanent Disabilities To Get SS Benefits

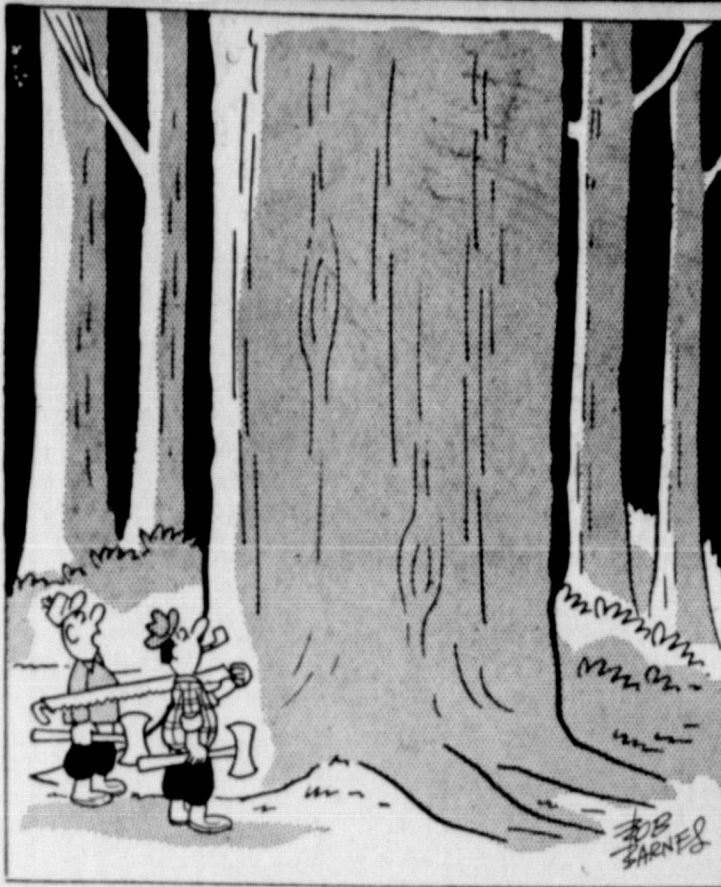

In order to receive social security benefits, only those are eligible who have a permanent disability—that is a disability which is so severe that it prevents doing any substantial gainful work.

Hal Geldon, District Manager of the Amarillo Social Security Office emphasized, "The disability which the claimant has must be a condition which is expected to last indefinitely and one which will not likely improve with time or medical treatment."

Many people believe that the social security disability payment is a "stop-gap" income on which they can depend until they are well enough to return to work. Geldon stressed that such a provision is not a part of the social security law.

"Rather, social security benefits are intended to provide some relief from loss of income due to a permanent disability," he said. If the disabling condition will improve with time; or with medical treatment; or if the claimant can work at a job that is less demanding than his usual work, he will not be considered to be disabled under the social security law, and should not count on receiving disability benefits.

About Your HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health. HENRY A. HOLLE, M.D., Commissioner of Health.

The Texas State Department of Health several years ago, started a program of services for medically indigent children who are severely impaired in hearing.

Those who are eligible are examined medically, and the degree and type of their hearing loss is determined. Many still retain some hearing ability, provided sounds are made loud enough through use of hearing aids.

Under this program, administered by the Division of Maternal and Child Health, the use of such equipment is arranged.

For those who have been impaired from birth, or through accident or disease during early childhood, the new sounds which they hear must be identified. Training in listening must be provided.

One of the first steps in this training is the identification of sounds made by objects around them. These include passing cars, barking dogs, closing doors, running water and the voices of people.

Other sounds must be learned through attentive observation and association such as hearing the telephone ring and someone answering it, or pressing a ring on the steering wheel to sound a horn.

Preschool clinics to test hearing and sight and uncover dental defects are in operation in various parts of Texas.

A team of maternal and child health specialists from the State Health Department are available to aid local health departments and communities to set up programs which they can operate independently.

The clinics take place in the spring with the help of parent-teacher associations in registering the preschool children for testing. When hearing, sight or dental defects are found, the parent is encouraged to have the child examined further and corrections made. Often simple corrective procedures remedy the difficulty.

The uncovering and correction of such defects before a child enters school, permits both child and teacher to devote time and energy to learning and teaching alone.

In 1942 the USS Peto was launched at Manitowac, Wis., the first submarine to be built on the Great Lakes.

FTC To Scrutinize Newspaper Advertising

Federal Trade Commission Chairman Earl W. Kintner announced last week that his agency has expanded its staff of monitors to begin continuing scrutiny of advertising in newspapers and magazines.

The above was the lead paragraph in a newspaper story, carrying a Washington date-line, which was published last week. The search for deceptive advertising in print media, the report added, will include spot-checks of advertising of particular products, regional ads and those placed at various seasons of the year.

It was pointed out that television has been under special study during the past five months, a direct result of the quiz show fixes and other improprieties uncovered in broadcasting practices.

Chairman Kintner explained that the new monitoring program will include surveys of some industries to determine whether some are more prone to deceptive advertising than others.

The chairman of FTC will find that publishers of newspapers will welcome the efforts of his monitors in this matter and full cooperation will be extended. Every newspaper, large or small, has turned down advertising which it deemed to be deceptive. This will continue, because the printed message of the advertiser is on record from now on, and can be referred to at any time from the files of any newspaper. That which is carried by television and radio are another matter, since the permanency of the spoken word or the picture on the viewing screen is hard to document.

Much good will come out of the recent investigation into quiz programs and the "payola" procedure. It is natural that newspapers be examined as far as their advertising content is concerned since they are the greatest medium for carrying the advertiser's message in this nation.

Future Wants Will Bring Changes

The American people, on the whole, have bigger incomes than ever, and are spending more money than ever. But this does not mean that all the businesses which provide goods and services are sharing with anything resembling equality in this largesse. For the public's spending habits undergo continual change — and, according to an article in the March 28 issue of U. S. News & World Report, "A definite shift appears to be going on at this time in the way people spend their money. This shift in patterns of spending accounts for some of the feeling of uncertainty in business."

The magazine cites the two main factors that account for that. First, family debt is also at record levels, due both to the size of the debt itself and to higher interest rates. Second, the big families of the postwar years are growing up, and the burden on family budgets reflects that pressure.

This last is an important matter. According to U. S. News, the annual cost of a child's support is $436 at age one, and twice that, $876, at age 15. And when the young person goes to college, the tab really becomes big. Current college costs run $1,200 — $2,000 a year for each student. Five years from now, if the recent cost trend continues, the bill will be $1,600 — $2,700.

The impact of this is felt in all kinds of spending. To begin with, obviously, the market for everyday necessities broadens as the families grow and increase. Home, education, utility service, and personal care costs naturally rise. At the same time, the appetite for luxuries grows, too. An example are the boating and traveling booms. So the strain on the domestic budget grows steadily heavier.

The long-term influence of all this is of very great concern to industries and businesses — including those which stand to gain and those which stand to lose. U. S. News quotes a motor company economist as pointing out that "the family that is going into debt this year for a trip to Europe is unlikely to go into debt for a new car also." This is one of the reasons why new car sales, though good, haven't measured up to the more optimistic industry estimates. People seem to be keeping their cars longer. And the same thing is true of various other expensive items, such as household appliances.

U. S. News points out that technological changes achieved by industry are having their influence on buying trends. New production methods, for instance, are making substantial cuts in the cost of such items as cabin cruisers and swimming pools. And the steady lengthening of vacation periods has an obvious effect in the stimulation of travel — as does the sale of tickets on the installment plan.

Another important factor is the expanding role of the teen-agers in the economy. In the next 10 years, youngsters in the 13-19 age bracket are expected to increase in number by some 38 per cent, as against 20 per cent for the population as a whole. And the wants and demands of young people vary markedly from those of their elders.

In summary, U. S. News finds that economists look for still sharper gains in home buying, sports, travel and recreation, as the wave of youngsters moves toward maturity and then produces its inevitable wave of marriages.

The basic shifts showing up in people's wants will help to determine the course of many businesses in the future. The increasing population must be considered in the light of these changing desires, and the wise businessman will recognize the trends and adjust his merchandising program to them.

Can Tornadoes Really Talk?

Springtime is with us and this means the tornado season for a vast southern and central section of the United States. With the season here, this interesting question has been brought up — do tornadoes speak a strange and ominous language that can give weather stations warnings of their approach?

Some weathermen believe tornadoes "talk" in a way that can be detected and used as an advance warning.

Close up, a full-blown tornado's sounds are overwhelming, the National Geographic Society says. The violent winds shriek like hundreds of jet airplanes or thunder like thousands of railroad cars all roaring overhead at once. The din is developed by winds racing at 400, perhaps even 600, miles per hour.

Current speculation has it that tornadoes probably are also accompanied by low-frequency sound inaudible to human ears. These sounds might conceivably be detected by sensitive instruments as an advance warning.

To test the "tornado-talk", the United States Weather Bureau plans to send instrument-laden research planes over the tornado alleys of Kansas and Oklahoma this spring. At the same time, Navy rockets will be used to try to photograph the tops of storm fronts containing tornadic activity.

Meteorologists watching radar screens can now identify the type of storm from which tornadoes are born. Soon actual tornadoes may be spotted from a distance by means of radar.

Little by little, scientists are unraveling the mysteries surrounding the tornado. They know that certain conditions appear to be indispensable for a tornado's formation: moist, warm air at low levels and cool, dry air at higher levels; a southerly wind at the surface and a strong wind blowing over it from a different direction. The final ingredient is some lifting mechanism, such as a cold front on a storm line, to push up the warm air.

Suddenly, from the midst of a thundercloud, a funnel-shaped cloud lashes out with a twisting elephant's trunk of whirling air that winds across the ground, sucking up matter in its path. As it picks up material, the twister may turn black, brown, or even white, if there is snow.

The tornado meanders across the country, usually at 25 to 40 miles per hour. Generally, it spends its force quickly. The average tornado travels only 16 miles. But within its area, it wreaks fantastic destruction.

Buildings literally explode. Chickens are stripped of their feathers. Straws are driven into fence posts. Water is sucked from wells.

Not the least of the terror is the tornado's electrical display. Forked lightning — vividly outlined with yellow, green, blue and purple — often dances against the dull glow of continuous sheet lightning.

The vortex remains a mystery, because instruments cannot survive the devastating wind. Few people have looked up into the terrifying funnel and live to tell what they saw.

More basic knowledge and cloud

physics is needed, however. Learning the "language" of tornadoes may be a big step in that direction. —The Stanton Reporter

JOEL R. COMBS in the Slaton Slatonite

It was a chilly day. In a crowded railroad coach, two women in one section got to quarreling about whether the window should be opened. One said she wanted it opened and if it were not opened soon she would surely suffocate. The other declared that if the window was open she would certainly get the flu and die as she could not stand the cold, damp air.

They called the porter and made their opposite demands about the window and the porter just didn't know what to do. Down the aisle was a red-nosed old gent who looked as though he had been around.

He noticed the porter's dilemma, and asked him why he did not do as he was told. The porter said he couldn't since one of them wanted the window open, the other wanted it shut. The red-nosed old gent said loudly:

"Do what both of them tell you to, porter, and you'll be all right. First, open the window. That will kill one of those ladies, according to her own statement. Then close it. That will kill the other one. Then, maybe we can continue this ride in peace."

Exchange Students

An exchange of students should have a marked effect upon nations to understand one another's problems, ideals and governments. Students here and abroad on the whole should be among the best and clearest interpreters of life. FTC To Scrutinize Newspaper Advertising

Federal Trade Commission Chairman Earl W. Kintner announced last week that his agency has expanded its staff of monitors to begin continuing scrutiny of advertising in newspapers and magazines.

The above was the lead paragraph in a newspaper story, carrying a Washington date-line, which was published last week. The search for deceptive advertising in print media, the report added, will include spot-checks of advertising of particular products, regional ads and those placed at various seasons of the year.

It was pointed out that television has been under special study during the past five months, a direct result of the quiz show fixes and other improprieties uncovered in broadcasting practices.

Chairman Kintner explained that the new monitoring program will include surveys of some industries to determine whether some are more prone to deceptive advertising than others.

The chairman of FTC will find that publishers of newspapers will welcome the efforts of his monitors in this matter and full cooperation will be extended. Every newspaper, large or small, has turned down advertising which it deemed to be deceptive. This will continue, because the printed message of the advertiser is on record from now on, and can be referred to at any time from the files of any newspaper. That which is carried by television and radio are another matter, since the permanency of the spoken word or the picture on the viewing screen is hard to document.

Much good will come out of the recent investigation into quiz programs and the "payola" procedure. It is natural that newspapers be examined as far as their advertising content is concerned since they are the greatest medium for carrying the advertiser's message in this nation.

Future Wants Will Bring Changes

The American people, on the whole, have bigger incomes than ever, and are spending more money than ever. But this does not mean that all the businesses which provide goods and services are sharing with anything resembling equality in this largesse. For the public's spending habits undergo continual change — and, according to an article in the March 28 issue of U. S. News & World Report, "A definite shift appears to be going on at this time in the way people spend their money. This shift in patterns of spending accounts for some of the feeling of uncertainty in business."

The magazine cites the two main factors that account for that. First, family debt is also at record levels, due both to the size of the debt itself and to higher interest rates. Second, the big families of the postwar years are growing up, and the burden on family budgets reflects that pressure.

This last is an important matter. According to U. S. News, the annual cost of a child's support is $436 at age one, and twice that, $876, at age 15. And when the young person goes to college, the tab really becomes big. Current college costs run $1,200 — $2,000 a year for each student. Five years from now, if the recent cost trend continues, the bill will be $1,600 — $2,700.

The impact of this is felt in all kinds of spending. To begin with, obviously, the market for everyday necessities broadens as the families grow and increase. Home, education, utility service, and personal care costs naturally rise. At the same time, the appetite for luxuries grows, too. An example are the boating and traveling booms. So the strain on the domestic budget grows steadily heavier.

The long-term influence of all this is of very great concern to industries and businesses — including those which stand to gain and those which stand to lose. U. S. News quotes a motor company economist as pointing out that "the family that is going into debt this year for a trip to Europe is unlikely to go into debt for a new car also." This is one of the reasons why new car sales, though good, haven't measured up to the more optimistic industry estimates. People seem to be keeping their cars longer. And the same thing is true of various other expensive items, such as household appliances.

U. S. News points out that technological changes achieved by industry are having their influence on buying trends. New production methods, for instance, are making substantial cuts in the cost of such items as cabin cruisers and swimming pools. And the steady lengthening of vacation periods has an obvious effect in the stimulation of travel — as does the sale of tickets on the installment plan.

Another important factor is the expanding role of the teen-agers in the economy. In the next 10 years, youngsters in the 13-19 age bracket are expected to increase in number by some 38 per cent, as against 20 per cent for the population as a whole. And the wants and demands of young people vary markedly from those of their elders.

In summary, U. S. News finds that economists " . . . look for still sharper gains in home buying, sports, travel and recreation, as the wave of youngsters moves toward maturity and then produces its inevitable wave of marriages."

The basic shifts showing up in people's wants will help to determine the course of many businesses in the future. The increasing population must be considered in the light of these changing desires, and the wise businessman will recognize the trends and adjust his merchandising program to them.

Can Tornadoes Really Talk?

Springtime is with us and this means the tornado season for a vast southern and central section of the United States. With the season here, this interesting question has been brought up — do tornadoes speak a strange and ominous language that can give weather stations warnings of their approach?

Some weathermen believe tornadoes "talk" in a way that can be detected and used as an advance warning.

Close up, a full-blown tornado's sounds are overwhelming, the National Geographic Society says. The violent winds shriek like hundreds of jet airplanes or thunder like thousands of railroad cars all roaring overhead at once. The din is developed by winds racing at 400, perhaps even 600, miles per hour.

Current speculation has it that tornadoes probably are also accompanied by low-frequency sound inaudible to human ears. These sounds might conceivably be detected by sensitive instruments as an advance warning.

To test the "tornado-talk," the United States Weather Bureau plans to send instrument-laden research planes over the tornado alays of Kansas and Oklahoma this spring. At the same time, Navy rockets will be used to try to photograph the tops of storm fronts containing tornado activity.

Meteorologists watching radar screens can now identify the type of storm from which tornadoes are born. Soon actual tornadoes may be spotted from a distance by means of radar.

Little by little, scientists are unraveling the mysteries surrounding the tornado. They know that certain conditions appear to be indispensable for a tornado's formation: moist, warm air at low levels and cool, dry air at higher levels; a southerly wind at the surface and a strong wind blowing over it from a different direction. The final ingredient is some lifting mechanism, such as a cold front on a storm line, to push up the warm air.

Suddenly, from the midst of a thundercloud, a funnel-shaped cloud lashes out with a twisting elephant's trunk of whirling air that winds across the ground, sucking up matter in its path. As it picks up material, the twister may turn black, brown, or even white, if there is snow.

The tornado meanders across the country, usually at 25 to 40 miles per hour. Generally, it spends its force quickly. The average tornado travels only 16 miles. But within its area, it wreaks fantastic destruction.

Buildings literally explode. Chickens are stripped of their feathers. Straws are driven into fence posts. Water is sucked from wells.

Not the least of the terror is the tornado's electrical display. Forked lightning — vividly outlined with yellow, green, blue and purple — often dances against the dull glow of continuous sheet lightning.

The vortex remains a mystery, because instruments cannot survive the devastating wind. Few people have looked up into the terrifying funnel and live to tell what they saw.

More basic knowledge and cloud

physics is needed, however. Learning the "language" of tornadoes may be a big step in that direction.
 —The Stanton Reporter

JOEL R. COMBS In the Slaton Slatonite: It was a chilly day. In a crowded railroad coach, two women in one section got to quarreling about whether the window should be opened. One said she wanted it opened and if it were not opened soon she would surely suffocate. The other declared that if the window was open she would certainly get the flu and die as she could not stand the cold, damp air.

They called the porter and made their opposite demands about the window and the porter just didn't know what to do. Down the aisle was a red-nosed old gent who looked as though he had been around.

He noticed the porter's dilemma, and asked him why he did not do as he was told. The porter said he couldn't since one of them wanted the window open, the other wanted it shut. The red-nosed old gent said loudly:

"Do what both of them tell you, to porter, and you'll be all right. First, open the window. That will kill one of those ladies, according to her own statement. Then close it. That will kill the other one. Then, maybe we can continue this ride in peace."

Exchange Students
 An exchange of students should have a marked effect upon nations to understand one another's problems, ideals and governments. Students here and abroad on the whole should be among the best and clearest interpreters of life. Educated men and women abroad should help us to clear up some of the misunderstandings that oftentimes prevail in motives and purposes of nations.

COACH JOHN HOWLE

John H. Howle Resigns as Head Football Coach

The resignation of John H. Howle as head football coach and athletic director of Memphis High School, was accepted by the local school board in a meeting Wednesday morning.

Don H. Lambert was elected to fill the position vacated by Howle as head football coach and athletic director for the 1960-61 school year. Mr. Lambert has been history teacher and assistant football coach the past year.

Mr. Howle has accepted a position as head football coach in the Anson High School, which is a 2-A school. This is a promotion for him.

The board expressed their regret to lose Coach Howle. "However, we are proud of his promotion in his profession. He has done a good job here with us and our athletic program has shown evidence of improvement. His well-rounded program is what Memphis has been needing for a long time," the statement added.

Work on the tower of the Caprock Translator System is nearing completion Joyce Webster, secretary of the system, announced Tuesday.

Housing has been built in which the equipment will be installed, which is expected to arrive here any day now. The special broadcasting equipment is being made up in Syracuse, N. Y., and could not be ordered until after the system received its application for broadcasting from the Federal Communications Commission.

Mr. Webster estimates the tower will be completed by the middle of next week and the system will be ready for broadcasting when the equipment arrives and is installed.

The television broadcast system is located on the Virginia Browder Ranch, seven miles northwest of Memphis. It is designed to pick up all telecasts of Amarillo Stations KGNC, KVII, and KFDA and televise these programs on UHF channels 71, 77 and 80 respectively, Webster added.

Construction is by Bob Skiks of Dallas, representatives of the manufacturer of the electronics equipment. His firm will be in charge of maintenance the first year the system is in operation.

Lloyd Hickman, who is currently living in Mobeetie, will move to Memphis the latter part of May to be in charge of the maintenance of the system, Webster said.

The area to be served in addition to the Memphis area includes Estelline, Lakeview and Hedley.

"After more than a year of concentrated work and efforts, co-operation television to all this trade territory is becoming a reality," Mr. Webster concluded.

eteorologists watching radar can now identify the type of storm from which tornadoes are born. Soon actual tornadoes may be detected from a distance by use of radar. By little, scientists are understanding the mysteries surrounding the tornado. They know that certain conditions appear to be indispensable for a tornado's formation: moist, warm air at low level; cool, dry air at higher level;

a southerly wind at the surface and a strong wind blowing from a different direction.

The final ingredient is some big mechanism, such as a cold front on a storm line, to push up warm air.

Suddenly, from the midst of a supercloud, a funnel-shaped cloud lashes out with a twisting whorl of whirling air winds across the ground, picking up matter in its path. As it picks up material, the twister turns black, brown, or even white, if there is snow.

The tornado meanders across the country, usually at 25 to 40 miles per hour. Generally, it fades its force quickly. The average tornado travels only 16 miles. But within its area, it wreaks fantastic destruction. Buildings literally explode. Trees are stripped of their leaves. Straws are driven into the ground. Water is sucked from the ground.

Not the least of the terror is the tornado's electrical display. Red lightning — vividly outlined with yellow, green, blue and purple — often dances against the glow of continuous sheet lightning.

physics is needed, however. Learning the "language" of tornadoes may be a big step in that direction.

JOEL R. COMBS In the Slaton Slatonite: It was a chilly day. In a crowded railroad coach, two women in one section got to quarreling about whether the window should be opened. One said she wanted it opened and if it were not opened soon she would surely suffocate. The other declared that if the window was open she would certainly get the flu and die as she could not stand the cold, damp air.

They called the porter and made their opposite demands about the window and the porter just didn't know what to do. Down the aisle was a red-nosed old gent who looked as though he had been around.

He noticed the porter's dilemma, and asked him why he did not do as he was told. The porter said he couldn't since one of them wanted the window open, the other wanted it shut. The red-nosed old gent said loudly:

"Do what both of them tell you to, porter, and you'll be all right. First, open the window. That will kill one of those ladies, according to her own statement. Then close it. That will kill the other one. Then, maybe we can continue this ride in peace."

Anyone who's looked around knows the majority of Chevrolet models—6's and V8's together—list for less than comparable models of other low-priced cars. But the price tag alone is only one of a whole raft of reasons a Chevy does better by your dollars.

Nothing near Chevy's size and price can match the Full Coil cushioning of its ride, or the fine, finished workmanship of its Body by Fisher. That even applies to some cars that cost a lot more. You're up in the higher price brackets before you find a car that moves as quietly as a Chevrolet or offers the inner space that Chevrolet does.

Or look at the extras Chevy gives you—at no extra cost—that others in its class can't offer at any price. Shock-cushioned steering. Safety Plate Glass in every window. Keyless locking of all doors. Jobs Safe Waples-Platter Company Monday

Burglars Monday night entered the Waples-Platter Grocer Company here, and broke open the safe, Sheriff W. P. Baten Jr. reported.

The burglars opened the safe by breaking off the knob on the front, the officer said. Missing from the safe was $53.10. Company officials stated that was the usual company policy to keep only a small amount of money in the safe.

Entry into the building was gained by prying off a hasp on the south door, according to Sheriff Baten.

He stated that the job was apparently done by persons experienced with safes, since the work was very neat. The money was apparently the only thing taken from the building.

Later in the morning local officers found the missing brief case in the truck. The man then admitted that he had gotten drunk and spent the money the trucking firm had given him for expenses, and was trying to cover up with the robbery story.

Charges were filed against him for a false alarm to cause an investigation, a misdemeanor. He pled guilty before Justice of the Peace J. S. Grimes, and was assessed a fine of $100 plus costs of $19.50.

Local officers said that this was the first case of this kind ever filed here to their knowledge.
