Cletus Lebows Make Plans To Attend
USS Indianapolis Survivor Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Lebow are making plans to attend the USS Indianapolis Survivor Memorial Reunion to be held in Indianapolis, Ind., July 30-31.

Stationed aboard the USS Indianapolis during World War II, Mr. Lebow was one of 316 crew members who survived when the ship was sunk by a Japanese torpedo. The ship carried a crew of 1,196 men, 880 of whom were lost.

The complete story of the Pacific war tragedy was revealed in 1958 when Richard F. Newcomb, world news editor of the Associated Press in New York, published the book, "Abandon Ship." The USS Indianapolis was sunk a mere 15 days before the end of the war as she set a course for the Philippines and gunnery practice. Only recently had they unloaded a secret cargo at tiny Tinian Island components for history's first atomic bomb to be exploded in anger.

Lebow, who is an employee of the General Telephone Company here, still wonders to this day that he remained among the survivors.

The explosion forward in the bow, tumbled sleeping Cletus A. Lebow into action. Working in the dark, spurred by instinct and by long naval training, he grabbed a Mae West life jacket. He and two of his close friends made their way topside. But topside was on its side, and it was comically simple for the trio to merely walk into the Pacific Ocean.

Moments later the ripping and boiling sea claimed Lebow's two friends. Five days later, the Navy rescued its own. In that time, Lebow was immersed up to his neck in salt water.

He gives most credit for his life to a "big strapping German boy from Elkhart, Ind., by the name of Clarence Herschberger. Numerous times I would let go of a small rope threaded through small wooden buoys which we had grabbed. I'd let go to start swimming for San Francisco, Lebow said.

"Each time, Herschberger would go patiently after me and force me back to that little thin rope. He saved my life," Lebow continued.

Herschberger will be among the shipmates Lebow plans to meet in Indianapolis for the reunion. He has not seen any of the crew members since the end of the war, but has kept in touch through correspondence.

Appearing on the reunion program will be Wilbur G. Gwinn, pilot of the plane that first spotted the survivors; R. Adrian Marks, pilot of the PBY who landed and picked up survivors; Rear Admiral Charles B. McKay, III, ex-captain of the USS Indianapolis; and Richard R. Newcomb, author of "Abandon Ship."

Socials will include luncheons, coffee break top of Severin and get-togethers; a tea at the Holcomb Gardens of the Butler University for the women followed by a dance that evening.

On Sunday morning a Memorial service will be held. Master of Ceremonies will be William A. Brennan, national vice commander of the American Legion.

Reunion headquarters is the Hotel Severin.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hickey and family of Amarillo visited this weekend in the homes of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hickey and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fowler.

Insecticides Can Solve Farmers' Mosquito Problem

Mosquitoes can be a severe problem as well as an annoyance on the farm. They often cause livestock to lose weight by driving them away from lush pastures and may cause poultry to lose weight and lay fewer eggs, says W. B. Hooser, county agent.

To get rid of mosquitoes, the county agent suggested that farmers should first look for standing water on or near their property. Mosquitoes breed in such places as temporary rain pools, flooded areas, irrigated fields, salt marshes, ponds, and even in water in tin cans, rain gutters, or discarded tires.

Whenever possible, eliminate these breeding places by removing the water. In the case of ponds and irrigated fields, the entire water surface should be sprayed or dusted with an insecticide, he said.

The following sprays are recommended for controlling mosquitoes larvae in standing water: (1) a one percent emulsion or oil solution of DDT, chlordane, toxaphene, TDE, or methoxychlor; or (2) a 0.5 (five tenths) percent emulsion or oil solution of lindane, dieldrin, or heptachlor. Each of these should be applied at a rate of one ounce of spray per 100 square feet, or about 10 quarts per acre of water surface, he continued.

If it is easier to dust the water surface, a ready-mixed 5 to 10 percent DDT dust may be applied at a rate of 2 to 5 pounds per acre. A very light mist of pyrethrum is recommended to kill mosquitoes larvae in fishponds and ornamental pools without poisoning fish or plants. This also is available ready for use from insecticide dealers. No more than one ounce of spray should be applied per 100 square feet of water surface, says Hooser.

It may be necessary to use a residual spray where adult mosquitoes rest or hide. For this purpose a 5 per cent DDT, 2 per cent chlordane, or 1 per cent lindane spray applied to foundations and underparts of buildings, tree trunks, logs and vegetation will be effective for a week or more.

Oil solutions and emulsions should not be used on vegetation because they may burn the leaves, he concluded.

Can Be Successful in Memphis Mrs. Maude Hill Proves Gardening

Mrs. Maude Hill, who resides 700 South Seventh, proves without a doubt that gardening can be profitable—that is if another's nature sends an abundance of nature as it has this spring and summer.

Mrs. Hill is pictured in the picture of fine corn she has grown in a small section of her garden. Nine rows of corn have produced more than a bushel of ears in the past two weeks. Mrs. Hill stated. The corn has yielded approximately two ears to the stalk, she continued.

Other than the corn, Mrs. Hill has been eating carrots, green beans, green beans, squash and other from her garden. She had her mess of green beans on May and the vines have been bearing continually since that time. Beans were planted March 15. Shortly, Mrs. Hill will add water melons and tomatoes to her producing vegetable list.

All this food has been grown in a garden plot which takes in portion of Mrs. Hill's back yard including a footage of 75 feet. "Gardening is a hobby of mine," Mrs. Hill said. "I like to watch things grow and I find it relaxing to work outside." It is also a pleasure to share my fresh vegetables with neighbors and friends.

How "Law-Abiding" Are We?

We Americans have always prided ourselves on being a law-abiding people. It's the height of the obvious to observe that the "rule of law" is given almost universal respect. We know, of course, that there are lawbreakers among us — the crowded court dockets and the jammed jails and penitentiaries attest to that. However, we reason, malfactors are just the exception that prove the rule.

Some time ago Reader's Digest published an article by William Hard which took a much less sanguine view of the crime situation. It carried the intriguing title "How Law-Abiding Are We — Really?" In it, Mr. Hard gave a factual account of just how serious the law-breaking problem is in this country, and drew examples of the evil from some of the widely varied forms of crime and dishonesty that have been growing alarmingly more prevalent.

To begin with, he pointed out that J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has reported that in a late year the number of criminal offenses listed by the police forces totaled 2,796,400. Of great significance, Mr. Hoover says that in the last 10 years the crime rate has increased four times as fast as the population — and that for every dollar spent on our churches, crime costs $12.

Most of us, Mr. Hard wrote, tend to shrug off statistics. To quote him, "Oh, we say, 'just professional criminals. Just the criminal classes. 'Really?'"

As one example of the fallacy of this, Mr. Hard cited the obvious example of motorcar drivers. The driver who obeys all the highway laws is a rare bird indeed. Another good example, where supposedly good citizens are frequent lawbreakers, is found in the game laws. In a single month, in the single state of New York, 350 alleged sportsmen were arrested and fined for violations.

These infringements may seem of relatively minor consequence to some of us. But, certainly, no one can say that the form of crime that has been increasing most rapidly — fraud. Mr. Hard dealt with this in some detail. In one late year, the bad checks brought to FBI notice amounted to $8 million. The releases of the Federal Trade Commission are filled with accounts of misrepresentations. In communities across the country, people have fraudulently obtained relief funds.

So it goes. And out of it arises what Mr. Hard termed "a woeful paradox." The paradox lies in the fact that this huge increase in crimes of all kinds has been accompanied by a massive increase in church membership. As he sees it, "Clearly we have achieved a split personality. We are having both a religious revival and a moral decline."

So much for the problem. What of the solution? It may be found, in Mr. Hard's view, in certain words of Lincoln's. Here they are: "Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be preached in schools and colleges. Let it be proclaimed from the pulpit. Let it be proclaimed in legislative halls. Let it be enforced in courts of justice. Let it become the political religion of the nation. And let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, of both sexes, and of all tongues and colors, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars."

What Other Editors Say

School Taxpayers

Texas School Taxpayers have had so many snotty things said about them (for not supporting their schools properly) in the past 30 years that another dig about the state giving the least increase in the pay of teachers of any state in the union in the past ten years doesn't register either. But when competition comes that makes another story. Many districts in the state have come to the realization of a sudden that New Mexico and California are taking their teachers away, making much better situations for their skilled instructors. That is the kind of news that will impress school taxpayers. Competition always makes the people 'lay their legs down'. That is an axiom that will work in favor of the teaching profession under the present circumstances.

What's A Liberal?

There is a sharp distinction between liberalism and the fraudulent substitute that passes for it today. Throughout history two basic philosophies of life have been in deadly conflict. One concept, the liberty concept, is based upon belief in the importance of the individual soul and personality. It is based upon the theory that the state was made to serve man, not man to serve the state. The other concept, the authoritarian concept, assumes that man, the individual, is of no importance. It assumes that man, collectively, as represented by the state, the church, the labor union or some other collective aggregate, alone is important. One concept exalts man, the other debases him.

America's Strength

A survey of some nine hundred communities recently revealed that youngsters stand a better chance of living a crime-free life if they come from rural areas, or from small cities, than if they are reared in metropolitan areas . . . all of which goes to prove, once again, that the strength of America lies in rural areas and in small towns, where close family ties, an orderly and supervised life, and the basic, traditional values of society, are still more keenly appreciated.

Too Much Leisure?

"Market analysts said the apparent collapse of the Paris talks caused traders to buy space and plane stocks based on the idea defense spending will increase. At the same time 'leisure time' stocks such as the bowling equipment issues and boating stocks tended to lose ground."

This report suggests questions which seem more timely now than before the Paris blowup: Are Americans tending to overestimate the amount of leisure time on their hands in a world where foes of freedom are work-well know. Peace squandered in Roman baths has always had to be rebuilt again from the ground up: from the characters of men and women that make the characters of a nation.

Retirement Age

While a great political effort is being made to establish federal aid for the elderly, an army of senior citizens would deem it a great boon if the compulsory retirement age were raised from 65 to, say, 70. That's all the federal aid they would want.

—Washington, Iowa, Journal

Unrealistic Rule

Under present law a person must forfeit his social security money if he makes more than $1200 a year. This is unrealistic. It would be different if social security were some kind of largess from the government. But it isn't. It's something the senior citizen has coming to him or her. Each contributed to the fund, and so did the employer. It's their money. No one should have to agree to live a life of poverty in order to get it.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kahelin of Plant City, Florida, couldn't be happier with the way their new Corvaire worked out as a combination family and business car. On their newspaper distribution route alone they travel more than 400 miles a week over all kinds of roads. Little wonder they're so pleased with the gas mileage they've been getting — "at least twenty-three miles to the gallon with an automatic transmission . . . and we've had no trouble with our Corvaire." The Kahelins have equally good things to say about Corvaire's easy-going comfort and unique convenience features. They especially like the way the fold-down seat doubles as a built-in baby sitter.

If you haven't driven it yet, you don't know what a delight driving can be. Martin-Sexton Nuptial Vows Read In Pretty Home Service Saturday Evening

Nuptial vows were solemnized at 7 p. m. Saturday, July 16, for the wedding of Wilma Marie Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Martin, and Jimmy L. Sexton, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Ziegler.

The Rev. John L. Davis, minister of the First Baptist Church of Christ, read the nuptial service in the home of the bride's parents, 921 E. 10th St., before a gathering of about 200 guests. The ceremony was decorated with greenery, floor-to-ceiling gladioli and branched chandeliers holding lighted tapers. Traditional wedding selections were provided by Dr. David Aronoff, organist, who also accompanied Mrs. Robert Sexauer, vocalist, as she sang, "Because," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of Chantilly lace fashioned with full skirt. The fitted bodice was styled with scalloped neckline and bracelet length sleeves. Her shoulder-tip veil of imported illusion fell from a bandeau of seed pearls and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley showered with white satin ribbons tied in love knots.

Mrs. Malcolm Martin, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor. She was attired in a

The last day of the Jamboree will be Friday, July 29, with the closing ceremony set for Thursday evening, July 28.

Scoutmaster Stotts stated before he left Saturday that the commissary will have a big chore.

At the Jamboree there will be 54,600 participants. Some of the stupendous statistics of the commissary are as follows: The fresh milk used at the Jamboree for one day will be 87,360 quarts. If this came from one herd, it would require 8,736 cows in full production. The frankfurters used at the Jamboree, if laid end-to-end, would extend more than 22 miles. Total weight of food and supplies transported to the site and issued by the commissary is estimated at 2,800 tons. This is approximately 97 freight car loads. In preparation of certain meals, there will be 16,380 charcoal cooking fires going at one time. It is estimated that 300 tons of charcoal briquets, 20 freight car loads, will be used. Also the accumulation of 1,100,000 cans, jars and packages of nonperishable food require 18,000 square feet of warehouse space. The 54,680 cases weigh 652 tons. If in one pile, the stack would be 10 miles high.

Oil or gas has been found in commercial quantities in 195 of the 254 counties in Texas.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

It was a drizzling, gloomy day and a windshield, smudged with mud whenever another car passed, made driving a task. As I pulled into a service station, the thought arose: Here is a man who is sheltered from the weather and safe from the hazards of the highway. The proprietor, as he filled the gas tank, asked, "Do you drive around the State a good deal in your work?"

"Yes," I replied. He continued, "I just stay here by the road and watch others go by. You have a job that is real living."

People who don't make speeches think that it is a simple matter for an experienced speaker to make one.

How mistaken this idea is! In the space of 11 months, this chronicler has made eight addresses in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. On an average, I use 20 jokes in a speech — that's about one per minute. For fear that someone at one of the meetings will be present at a later one, eight completely different speeches were made. This required about 160 stories and that is about equal, in words, to one-third of the book, "I Give You Texas."

And it's not as simple even as that. You can't use just any stories; they have to have a purpose, an idea to emphasize and they must be fitted into a pattern; so, with the planning, the selection of material, going through it to get it in hand and the physical and mental effort of actual delivery — besides the worry as to whether the remarks will flop — this all adds up to a serious undertaking, even if it is a humorous speech.

Waco has a "midget market." Snappy Sam says, "I didn't think Waco would have enough midgets to support a market."

Houston's tallest building, the Humble Oil & Refining Company's skyscraper now under construction, will have the city's largest single commercial air conditioning installation, and it will be powered by natural gas.

One out of every eight persons in Texas works directly in the oil and gas industry.
