Cattle Industry Profits Low

spokesman for the American cattle industry says that profits in the cattle business are among the lowest of any business in the country.

Bill Webster, Greeley, Colorado, of the Industry In-formation Council of the American National Cattlemen's and CowBelles associations, told the Pittsburgh Public Affairs

1. Cattle producers-"The men who own the cows that produce the calves that ultimately get to your dinner table"--average about 11/2 percent profit on their investment; while

2. Cattle feeders-"The men who fatten calves and thus produce the prime and choice animals that go to meat packers"-average less than 3 per cent profit on their sales before taxes.

He also said that cattlemen have "virtually no influence over the price their products will bring." In other businesses, he said, "The factory establishes the price the consumer is supthe price is determined by the law of supply and demand and by the whims of the consumer."

Cattlemen have missed out on the new American affluence, Webster said, and "with 100,000 separate cattle businesses in America, they obviously are highly competitive; but most cattlemen are proud of their business and like it too much to emphasized. quit even if they could."

Water Boom At Gail !!!

Well, now it seems that Buster Taylor is the proud owner of a good water well on his property Southeast of the courthouse, and that's something to be bragged about. Herman Ledbetter "Witched" the well a short time ago and he and his brother. Norman drilled fifty feet to the red bed and got good soft water, which is really something around Gail! That's something for Buster to be proud of alright. Maybe Herman should "Witch"

Unchanged

According to Secretary of Agriculture Butz' decision the 1972 cotton program will not be changed. This decision was based on the Jan. 27 grower intentions report which indicated plantings of 131 million

"This much acreage at average yields," said the Secretary, "will provide sufficient cotton. "Meanwhile," he added, "the demand--price situation for upland growers looks favorable.

Another intentions report is due for release on March 16.

Briscoe Visits Snyder

Dolph Briscoe brought his campaign for governor to Snyder Tuesday, with a public barbeque in Towle Park attended by more than 500 people.

Briscoe said he favors public hearings on all legislation and sound budgetary procedures, He said if he were elected governor, he would establish a state

He claimed his campaign is gaining momentum and said that Texas will not continue to accept low standards of leadership in office. He states that the kind of Texas we have depends on us. Predicting victory, he called on voters to help him break the hold of special interests.

Among those on hand to greet I enjoy very much the articles the candidate were Harrie Winston and John Boren, local Mr. Joe York. campaign chairman.

Profile Youth

The week of March 19-25 is National FHA Week. The National Executive Council chose the theme, "Profile of Youth" in the hope all chapters' activities and observances during this week would revolve around this theme. It is also hoped to show that the profile of the Future Homemakers of America organization is one of individual growth, family unity, and community service.

The purposes of FHA are: To promote the joys and satisfactions of homemaking; To strengthen the function of the family as a basic unit of

To encourage democracy through cooperative action in the home and community;

To become aware of the multiple roles of men and women in today's society;

To improve national and international relations; To provide opportunities for decision-making and assuming responsibility;

To involve youth with adults in individual and group activities;

To develop interest in home economics, home economics careers, and related occupations.

The Future Homemakers of America work for the future, to build a better tomorrw. The members of FHA strive to learn how they can build their home with truth, love, security, and faith. The FHA wants to influence their homes and the community around them.

Don't be surprised if a FHA girl does something special for you the week of March 19!

Mrs. Ben Jarrett, business teacher at Borden High School, has been selected as "Teacher of the Month" for March, 1972.

Mrs. Jarrett was born and raised in Williams, Texas and is the youngest in a family of eleven children. Her mother, Mrs. R.C. Hubbard, now resides in Rising Star which is approximately ten miles from where Mrs. Jarrett grew up.

After graduating Williams High School, she attended Brownwood Business College and Howard Payne College. She later transferred to Mary Hardin-Baylor in Belton. Texas where she received her B.S. Degree in business education in 1956. She has since attended Howard Payne College and taken correspondence courses from North Texas State University and Southern Methodist University during various summers.

Mrs. Jarrett moved to Imperial, Texas in the fall of 1956 assuming duties as a Home Economics and business teacher. She remained there for four years before moving to Borden County in 1960. In either typing or shorthand, Mrs. Jarrett has had at least one student progress to Regional in University Interscholastic League competition in each of her twelve years at Borden High School.

Mrs. Jarrett's spare time is spent sewing and antiquing, and especially enjoying her Pomeranian dog, "Blitz". The Jarrett's also enjoy camping in Colorado. Mrs. Jarrett has an enormous collection of rocks she gathers during their camping ventures.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jarrett were married in 1962 and will be celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary in May. Both are most avid supporters of Borden County students and their activities. Congratulations go to Mrs. Ben Jarrett as "Teacher of the Month."

Visit In California

Mr. and Mrs. E.S. Kingston of the Plains Community recently spent several days in California.

They visited their son, Seaman First Class Bobby Kingston and his wife, Rose, who reside at Imperial Beach. Bobby will have completed twenty years in the Navy in October. The family visited and took in a tew of the many points of interest, including Sea World in San Diego. They also went through Mountain Air, New Mexico and spent some time with Mrs. Kingston's only aunt. à very nice trip was reported.

To love that which is lovablethe attractive, the responsive, the winsome, the flattering, the deserving-this is our natural inclination. Human love lives on the hope of gratification, on the hope that one will be accepted and not repulsed.

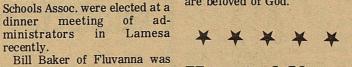

At its root, human love can be coercive and demanding. It may seek to compel the beloved to conform to the lover's own standards or plans or hopes. The standards may be high, the plans may be worthy, the hopes may be pious. Yet the coercion remains, and human love still seeks gratification.

Christian love is something else. It is not an ideal toward which we strive. It is not the result of a gradual process of purifying and intensifying our natural affections. It is not a matter of raising our sights. It is not dependent on the attractiveness of responsiveness or the person who receives it.

Christian love is nothing less than God's love. It is a gift God gives us, a gift that reorients our natural affections and our lives. To understand this love, even a little, we must look to the Bible, the record of God's love in action. There we see that God's love is creative. We see that He does not seek to compel men to obey Him, but rather that He seeks to set them free in order that they truly may be them-

We see the patience which is part of love: The willingness to woo and to wait and to fail. We see the out-going nature of love, the self-giving that brings God the Son into the world which He had created. We see the forgiveness, the willingness to take the consequences of the beloved's sin.

We cannot develop this king of love on our own. We can only accept thhe gift of love in Christ. Through Him we are enabled to participate in God's love, not just as recipients but as persons through whom His creative, redeeming, sanctifying love may reach our brethren. Only Christ can enable us to love those who, like us, are unattractive, unresponsive, and undeserving but who, like us, are beloved of God.

'Scribbles'

by Sibyl Gilmore

To those of you with woodburning fireplaces, did you know the ashes from your fireplace will do wonders for your garden?

When a tree grows it takes up from the earth by means of its roots certain minerals called salts. These salts, which all plants need as much as they need air, become a part of the wood of a tree. When a stick of wood is burned, most of it is turned into gas and goes off into the air. (Sometimes called air pollution, but to us old country folk it is just another good woodsy smell) all that is left is the ashes, which cannot burn. They are the salts that the tree took up from the earth while growing. If these ashes are spread over the ground the salts goes back into the earth again, and this is the reason why wood ashes make good fertilizer for land. The salts that have been taken from it by growing plants are given back to it in the ashes and help other trees and plants to grow. Some kinds of woods give more ashes when burned than others, willow gives more than twice as much as oak, and about one-fourth more than elm. I'll bet the trusty old mesquite will make the BEST. The bark on all trees make more ashes than the solid part of the tree. So save all your ashes and spread them around. On second thought, you might ought to have a soil test as this old country and all its people are pretty salty already.

Fashion Show

The '48 Delphian Club benefit style show, "Under the Big Top" was held Tuesday in the Lamesa High School Auditorium.

Co-chairmen for the show, which is considered one of the major social events of the spring, are Mrs. Donnell Echols, Mrs. Bob Brown and Mrs. Ed Fulbright.

This year's annual benefit fashion show developed a circuscarnival atmosphere complete with clowns and surprises.

Proceeds were to be used for the club's annual ollege scholarships and for other community projects.

The word is that today's 16 year olds are more mature than other generations - that seems to be a mute question. I know I was pretty silly at 16. But be that as it may - I came across a set of "rules of civility and decent behavior in company and conversation" written by written by George Washington at the age of 16. Surely you will agree with me that that young man must have been extremely mature, sensitive and introspictive for a 16 year old. I'm just going to copy a few of the over 100 rules which George set down.

-"Honor and obey your parents, though they be poor." -"Let your recreations be manful not sinful.'

-"Run not in the streets, neither go too slowly forth with mouth open. Go not shaking your arms, kick not the earth with your feet, go not upon the toes nor in a dancing fashion."

-"In your apparel, be modest and endeavor to accomodate nature, rather than procure admiration. Play not the peacock."

-"In the presence of others, sing not to yourself with a humming noise, nor drum with your fingers or feet.

-"Strive not with your superiors in argument, but always submit your judgment to others with modesty.

-"Speak not injurious words neither in jest nor in earnest."

-"If anyone come to speak to you while you are sitting, stand up though he be your inferior."

-"Undertake not what you cannot perform, but be careful to keep your promises.'

-"Every action done in company ought to be with some sign of respect to those that are

-"Sleep not when others speak. Sit not when others stand. Speak not when you should hold your peace. Walk not when others stop.

-"When you sit down, keep your feet firm and even, without putting one on the other or crossing them."

-"Let your discourse with men of business be short and comprehensive.

-"Wherein you reprove another, be blameless yourself .-

-"If others talk at table, be tentive, but talk not with meat in your mouth."

-"When you speak of God, let be seriously and with reverence."

-"Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience.'

How about some of you 16 year old readers of the Borden Star taking a Bic pen in hand and jottingoff a few rules for modern day living. It will be interesting to note the changes, if any.

"The Little Red Hen"

Once upon a time, there was a little red hen who scratched about and uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her barnyard neighbors and said; 'If we work together and plant this wheat, we will have some fine bread to eat. Who will help

"Not I," refused the goose. "Nor I," protested the duck. "I demand guaranteed annual bread," snorted the pig.

So the little red hen, alone and unaided, planted the wheat and in time harvested three quarts of fine, firm grains. She then asked her neighbors to help her grind them into flour.

"I'd lose my welfare benefits," complained the pig.
"I never learned how," quacked the duck. "If I'm the only one to help, it is discrimination,' protested the goose.

So the little red hen ground the flour, kneaded it into dough and baked four big loaves of bread. Proudly, she held them up for her neighbors to see.

"I demand my share," grunted the pig. "Equal rights," tlapped the goose. "Ducks are more important than property, and I am hungry. I have a right to that bread," chanted the

"No," said the little red hen. "I worked hard to plant the wheat, grind the flour, knead the dough, and bake the bread. No, I am going to rest a while and eat the bread myself."

The others made up picket signs, demonstrated noisily, and threatened to burn down the barn. The commotion attracted the attention of a government agent, who was regulating the farmer who owned the barn.

You must share," declared the government man. "Look at the underprivileged pig. Pity the uneducated duck. You must help the less fortunate goose."

"But I earned this bread," protested the little red hen.

'Nevertheless, you must give one loaf each to the duck and the goose and the pig.'

And she did.

Now her neighbors wonder why the little red hen never bakes any more bread.

Farmers. It may seem unnecessary for me to say that, but not everybody is for farmers. I am, and I want everybody to know it.

Farmers getting a fair economic return, both on their labor (and no one works harder) and on their investments. A fair return on farm labor or on investments means higher farm prices and net returns, and I'm for that.

Farm products being able to move to market at harvesttime when the crop is ready. And I'm against farmers losing millions of dollars as they have during the dock strike and the work stoppage at the elevators at Small farmers and young farmers having a chance to grow and dream and have those dreams come ture. I'm not in favor of perpetual poverty. That means that small farmers and young farmers must have a chance to live like other people.

Farm women having conveniences—at least the things in their homes that they can be proud of and enjoy. That takes more farm income and more opportunities for off-farm work (for those who want it).

Farmers having bargaining power so that they can have more say so over their prices in terms of sale so that they remain in control of far-

Farmers having strong volunteer farm organizations thhat develop their policies in a democratic process after study and discussion from the local communities on up.

Farm cooperatives that enable farmers to work together State Representative to market their products, to have electricity and telephones John R. Anderson-R and credit, and I'm for farmers State Representative running and owning these organizations.

Rural development and District Attorney economic growth in the coun- (132 Judical District) tryside so that farmers and Leland W. Greene-D rural townspeople can enjoy District Judge schools, health care, housing, (132nd District) and community services on a Wayland G. Holt-D par with larger cities.

Reasonable farm legislation.

Controlling inflation in this Norman Sneed-D country. Inflation takes its toll County Commissioner on many fronts but nowhere (Precinct No. 1) more strikingly than in the area Harlin D. Williams-D of farm costs. The market rise in Hubert Walker-D farm costs over the last Herman Ledbetter-D decade—more than the rise in (Precinct No. 3) farm prices received-has kept Vernon Wolf-D parity ratio low. Farm Numbers Decline

Both the number of farms and the land in farms has been decreasing throughout the nation. Farms are gettingg bigger, and more land is being taken for highways or urbanization. The number of farms in Texas dropped from 188,000 in 1970 to 185,000 last year. Total land in farms remained the same. In New Mexico the number of farms dropped from 13,600 to 13,200. Acreage in farmland dropped 200,000 acres. In Arizona the number of farms dropped 100 (5,900 to 5,800). Land in farms dropped 100,000 acres. The trend is expected to continue much the same in 1972.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwain Williams report that their daughter, Sheryl Monger has achieved a 3.2 average in Elementary Education at Texas Tech. Sheryl was a 1968 graduate from Borden County Schools.

Progressive Work Week

Lamesa Police Department will take a progressive step forward introducing a 90 day trial of the four-day, 40 hour work week for the police patrolmen, beginning April 3.
The trial period will change the police schedule from a 48 hour, eighth-hour, six-day-aweek system to a 10-hour-day schedule, consequently allowing patrolmen a full three days of free time.

It was emphasized that this scheduling will result in more men being on duty in the community during the peak burglary and crime hour. Stressing that the additional police coverage during the prime crime times, 10 p.m. until 4 a.m. is in itself a distinct advantage, Bobo stated that he did not anticipate any problems in attempting this 90day trial.

City Manager Carroll Taylor stated that the new scheduling concept appears to be feasible, but added that it would be carefully studied before it is permanently adopted.

The City Council had given approval to the program several months ago, but the trial was postponed because of the wagework-week would represent an hourly increase in wages.

Fascinating History

by Glenn Toombs

People of Borden county have come fact to face with some realization concerning taxes this past year but if you think taxation is something new, then let us look at a few facts I have done some research on.

The history of taxes is biblical times where we see the Pharoah of Joseph's time taxing the people heavily in order to build up supplies for the forth coming famine years—as good a reason as any for taxation I guess. But the rub comes when one realizes that later the supplies were sold back to the people for all of the remaining property. Wonder if they dared complain!

Now let's go back to the days of the Roman Empire when taxes were collected on an ascending scale according to the elegance of the taxpayer. Even in death you were not exempt from taxation, for funerals were highly taxed. Boy! we couldn't stand much of that, could we?

In England there was once a tax on windows after some wise "tax expert" noticed that wealthy persons had more windows than poor persons did. What do you think happened? Sure, smart people took the tax evasion route, and buildings throughout England, for a time were windowless. Looks like tax evation isn't new either!

Newspapers were once taxed according to the number of pages. Huge one-page newspapers became popular. Look out Borden Star!

But the one tax which just might help our government come up with some real revenue, comes from - of all places - Russia.

It seems that at one time Russia put a tax on beards. Now, how many bearded people do we have running around in the United States today? Maybe long hair too!

Do you suppose we should write our congressman and push for that kind of legislation? It might just help solve a hairy or fuzzy problem.

Well, at any rate taxation is nothing new-but take heart, relief might be just a hair or a beard away.

Fertility of the soil is the fascinating. We can go back to wealth of our Nation.

Equalizing School Finances

By Glenn Toombs

In essence, the San Antonio District Court declared that the resources available for educating each child in Texas' public schools must be equal.

The Court DID NOT SAY that spending on each child must be equal, or that local property taxes must be abolished as a source of school support.

The Court Said that a wide variety of financing plans would be acceptable, including systems which incorporate local property taxes," so long as the variations in wealth among the governmentally chosen units do not affect spending for the education of any child."

The above was taken from an article prepared by the Texas Research League on Texas State

Wage Bill —

A minimum farm wage bill expected to be the first major legislation considered in 1972 by the U.S. House-would increase farm costs.

The bill being considered in the House is H.R. 7130 by Representative John Dent (d., Pa.). It would raise the farm minimum wage to $1.70 per hour and the generally applicable minimum wage to $2.00. Present rates are $1.30 for farm and $1.60 for other workers.

Exemptions from overtime provisions now provided for agricultural processing and handling operations would be repealed under the Dent bill.

Other provisions of the Dent bill which would affect farmers are restrictions on competitive imports by government or costs.

Peoples, 21, was apprehended at his ranch south of Atoka, Okla., where a number of the stolen cattle were located. Also charged are his wife, his mother, and an associate, John Dillard Moore. Investigation is continuing, reports Don C. King, secretary-general manager of the TSCRA, who said he expects additional thefts involving large numbers of cattle to be cleared as a result of their apprehension.

Inspector Hulen was called January 27 when a theft of 47 head of cattle from the Paris Livestock Commission Co. was discovered. Plaster casts of tire prints gave some indication of the vehicles used. Hulen found a witness who was traveling north from Paris late that evening and was passed by two pickups pull

Then Hu-len, joined by TSCRA Inspector Paul Wade, Undersheriff Hembree, and a district attorney investigator, Bill Lilly, confronted Peoples and asked permission to investigate the cattle and the

With a signed waiver from Peoples, the officers soon identi-fied the cattle from back tag numbers which corresponded to those at the Paris sale barn. Other cattle on the property led officers to suspect further thefts.

A Charolais bull with a PC brand on the left hip linked Peoples to a Dec. 22 theft of 31 Okla. Reprint from Western Live head of mixed cattle from the stock Weekly TSCRA Inspector Marvin Turner, to whom the Snyder theft had been reported, investigated this case, getting much of his information from a former employee of Peoples, Larry Combs. Peoples had subsequently sold the bull to Oscar Ritter of Atoka on whose ranch the bull was positively identified by his rightful owners, Johnny Thorp and Glen Kirk of Snyder.

Discovery of an Angus bull with underbit in the left ear led Inspector Manford Elliott to the identification of 52 head of cattle stolen from the sale barn at Muenster, Texas. Charlie Hodges, TSCRA Inspector, helped with the investigation of the cattle from this area penned at the Peoples ranch. Seven head from a packing plant barn at Annona, Texas, were also linked to this theft ring.

King said, while the thieves stole cattle indiscriminately in both states, all of the cattle were traded or sold at markets in Oklahoma. Apparently, the fear of brand inspectors at Texas markets kept them from selling any of the stolen cattle in Texas.

The trailers used to transport these stolen cattle were also found to be illegally obtained. A small goose neck trailer was stolen more than a year ago from Hale Trailer Co. of Amarillo while the larger trailer was paid for by Peoples with a "hot" check to W-W Trailer Co. of Madill.

JUST SUPPOSI

BY S. OMAR BARKER

If I had to be an animal instead of what I am, I wouldn't be no lion, and I wouldn't be no lamb. I wouldn't be a panther with his weird and woeful wail, For I'd be sure to git a knot in such a lengthy tail. Although I've knowed some good ones, I would hate to be a dog, And though there's lots of critters in the critter catalogue, There ain't but one I know of that, in case he had to swap, A cowboy still could figger he was somewheres near the top.

Of course such talk is nonsense, but in case it come to pass, I'd choose to be a pony on a range with plenty grass; In other words, a cowhorse, saddle-backed and pridey-necked, For that is one dumb animal that's got my full respect. He's honest and he's able and he ain't afraid of sweat. He's friendly and he's loyal, but he ain't no teacher's pet. He knows which end his tail is on, and when the goin's tough, He gives the best that's in him—and it always is enough. He can't read print nor writin', and he can't shoot off a gun, But he sure knows how to turn her when an ol' cow starts to run. He can't quite swing a lariat, but when you rope a calf, You sure can count a cowhorse in to do his level half. He's tough, he's smart, he's useful, and his head is carried proud Because he knows he's worth his salt in any kind of crowd. Another thing about him that I'd sorter like to name Is that, although he don't run wild, he never gits too tame To set some store by freedom and to kick up frisky heels When springtime stirs his gizzard—just to show you how he feels.

()f course such talk is foolish, but in case I had to be Some animal besides a man, it sure does seem to me I'd join the ol' remuda, and one reason, I'll allow, Is that, as some ol' cowhorse, I would still be punchin' cow!

Most molds or fungi do not exert harmful effects and some are beneficial, such as those used in the manufacture of cheese, or antibiotics. However, others are toxic and cause poisoning of livestock producing anything from rapid death to stunting. Others grow in the body and produce enteritis, abortion, pneumonia, or en-cephalitis. The first mold intoxications reproduced experimentally were in connection with hogs grazing early varieties of soft corn. The molds identified as the cause of this trouble were Penicillium rubrum and Aspergrillus flavus. Later, large numbers of turkeys died in England after consuming peanuts contaminated with Aspergillus flavus. toxic principal was identified and named aflatoxin. There are several other toxic molds but most are less well understood than A. flavus.
