City Council Accepts Bids For Airport Paving Thurs.

The Memphis City Council Thursday afternoon, June 25, accepted the low bid of $32,588.66 from Carl Offield Construction Co. of Memphis for paving the north-south runway at Memphis Municipal Airport.

There were five bidders on the project, Mayor H. J. Howell said.

Friday, Mayor Howell carried all the paper work on the project to the Federal Aviation Agency in Fort Worth where he said it was all approved and forwarded to their regional office for final approval.

Residents will remember that last January the City of Memphis received approval from FAA on the application to pave the north-south runway instead of the north-west-southwest runway which had previously been approved.

Since that time, the city has hired an engineer, drew up a master plan and prepared plans and specifications from which contractors bid on the paving project.

Residents will also remember that in September the City of Memphis purchased 11.02 acres of land to extend the north-south runway so that this runway would meet the length required for paving.

Then later, the city purchased another small block of land on the south of its property to maintain overhead clearance and to make the runway 3,000 feet long.

Included in the paving project along with the 3,000-foot runway is a taxi-way 500 feet in the hangars to the runway and an apron around the hangar area. Then, also, the city will relocate a one-half mile road to the Airport.

The paving is being done on a 50-50 cost-share basis with Federal funds, Mayor Howell said.

Gable Shows 1st Cotton Blooms Of 1964 Season

First cotton blooms to be brought to The Democrat office were those presented Wednesday afternoon by Weldon Gable.

He said that he thought much of the cotton, which was planted last week in April and the first week in May was blooming.

Three stalks were approximately 16 inches high, and were grown on irrigated land. They were loaded with squares and blooms, but showed the effects of the hail and sandstorms, which struck the area west of Memphis a week and a half ago.

Gable stated that he had to replant 15 acres in a 40-acre field due to the damage.

Play Begins In LL Second Half

The winning pitcher was Gilliam and the losing pitcher was Ariola. The Indians had 13 hits and the Yankees one hit.

The Giants rolled up 16 runs against the Tigers Friday night to defeat them 16 to 1. The Giants' McNally hit two homers in the game to bring his season total to six home runs. The winning pitcher was Moss and the losing pitcher was Wansley.

Tuesday night, the strong pitching of Gilliam for the Indians and two home runs by Bland was too much for the Giants. The Indians won the game 13 to 2. Bland's two home runs Tuesday brought his season total to six. The Giants' losing pitcher was Moss who gave up 19 hits, while Gilliam gave up four hits.

Also Tuesday night, the Yanks defeated the Tigers 7 to 3. The winning pitcher was McElreath and the losing pitcher was Phillips.

Two Men Face Theft Charges

Two thefts of over $50 charges were filed this week against two men, apprehended in Lawton, Okla., by Hall County Sheriff Elmer Neel.

The two men face charges of stealing three saddles, two from Robert Proctor of Turkey and one from Briscoe County.

Being held in Hall County jail under a $1,500 bond is Lewis Rocco Keer, a white male, who signed a waiver of extradition.

The other man, Robert Lewis Stevenson, still being held by Lawton Law Enforcement officers, would not sign a waiver and Sheriff Neel stated that extradition proceedings have begun to return him to Hall County to stand trial.

Stevenson is a three time loser, Sheriff Neel said.

The story of "The Music Man" is centered in a small Iowan town of 2500 where the populace is inclined to be somewhat gullible. July 4, 1912 has more fireworks than Chinatown when Harold Hill, "The Music Man", comes to town.

All local residents are urged to be in attendance July 16 and 17 to see the dramatic outcome of a great musical.

Independence Day, 1964

On Saturday, July 4, this nation's citizens will be in a festive spirit, regardless of where they are on the face of this globe, for we all will pause to celebrate Independence Day.

This day is observed in every state of the Union as the distinctive national holiday; the event that we then celebrate is the most important one in American history. Independence Day is now observed wherever any considerable number of Americans are assembled, especially in foreign cities, like London, Paris and Tokyo.

History tells us that in 1918 it was celebrated to the diapason of war up and down the jagged front in France, wherever our American boys were gathered beneath the folds of the Stars and Stripes.

But we, our lives so busy with work, entertainment, and other functions, many times do not pause to consider the magnitude of Independence Day. The meaning of July Fourth has stirred the thoughts of many noble poets. John Pierpont in his poem "The Fourth of July", payed tribute to those who for freedom died. In concluding his poem Pierpont wrote: "God of peace! Whose spirit fills all the echoes of our hills, Now the storm is o'er, Oh, let freedom be our sons, And let future Washingtons Rise to lead their valiant sons till there's war no more."

It is certainly fitting that we citizens of the United States of America should celebrate July 4 as the Nation's Birthday. And, we should teach our children of the great heritage of this land of ours. We can do this by reading to them the Declaration, Lanier's "The Battle of Lexington", Emerson's "Concord Hymn", McMaster's "The Old Continentals", Holmes' "Grandmother's Story of Bunker Hill", Longfellow's "Paul Revere's Ride" and many, many more great literary works.

Not only can and will these writings refresh memories for those who are familiar with them, but will serve as teaching guide to youngsters.

July 4, 1964 will be celebrated much the same way this year as it has been in the past. Business firms will be closed, many will leave their homes and travel long miles to see relatives and friends. Some will go to celebrations; some will spend the day at home with chores.

For those who travel, the warning has already been announced that "Operation Motorcade" is in effect and those violating traffic laws will be punished. The traffic toll in Texas this holiday period is estimated the highest in our history with an indication that the 3,000 mark will be surpassed.

States Rights Vs. Individual Gain

The United States Supreme Court is in hot water again with states' righters as a result of its ruling requiring that membership in both houses of state legislatures be apportioned according to population.

State Legislatures, which have historically been none-too-eager about re-districting their lower houses to conform to population shifts, have always justified the even greater inequities in the representation in their state senates by pointing to the precedent set in the Constitutional apportionment of United States Senate members... two to a state without regard to population.

The Supreme Court has held, however, that the theory that each state government is "a little federal system" won't hold water. With considerable logic, Chief Justice Earl Warren pointed out, in rendering the majority opinion, that the equal representation allotted to states in the U. S. Senate and the proportional representation provided in the House of Representatives was "based on the consideration that in establishing our type of federalism a group of formerly independent states bound themselves together under one national government." The result was a historic compromise which created a unique kind of federal government. But those some considerations do not exist in the internal organization of the states themselves.

The Supreme Court decision that representation in both houses of state legislatures should be allocated on the basis of population... with each voter's ballot carrying as nearly equal weight as possible... does indeed involve federal interference in state affairs... but the ruling shouldn't come as any surprise to the citizenship of this nation.

The trend of all Supreme Court action in the past two or three decades has been in the direction of guaranteeing equal rights to individuals... at the expense of state sovereignty when necessary. The current decision is merely a logical extension of that philosophy.

And we have a hunch that a considerable majority of the individual citizens of the fifty states are more concerned about having their own political equality established than about any federal clipping-of-wings of the powers-to-be which roost in the statehouse.

At any rates they should be... and will be if the fuzzy wool of states' rights isn't pulled too quickly over their eyes by the politicians in the state capitals. A reliable estimate is that the legislatures of at least 40 of the 50 states will have to be re-vamped if the Supreme Court ruling stands up... which is a pretty fair indication that an awful lot of citizens in these forty states are being inequally represented in their state governmental affairs.—The Candaian Record.

Spring and summer months always bring a rash of boating accidents.

Tragedy accompanies many of them. Others are just plain fun. Some are downright stupid!

Accidents happen to large and small boats alike. Size doesn't seem to matter. For instance on a Central Texas lake very recently a part of four were in a fast boat, having a wonderful time. The boat had lots of power in its outboard and the driver was "showing off" how he could take a short turn.

He made the turn, all right, but it was "over." As he whipped the boat around, the back end went down too far. He picked up so much water the boat was swamped before he knew what had happened. Fortunately another boat was nearby and rescued the four passengers. But they lost a lot of equipment.

One night I was loading my boat on the trailer. I had set the brakes on the car, but the ramp was wet and slick. When I started winching the boat onto the trailer the whole outfit—car, trailer and boat—started sliding back into the water. And it didn't stop-boat, automobile and everything went into the water. The boat floated away but was later recovered. The trailer hitch broke loose and the car settled down atop the trailer.

It was a wierd looking sight, with twin beams from the burning headlights shining from the water. It was costly and it taught me a lesson. Now when I am loading a boat I always scotch the wheels of the automobile.

Up on Lake-o'-Pines in East Texas recently three fishermen loaded their gear into a brand new 14-foot cartop boat which they had hauled 300 miles. The boat weighed 90 pounds. But 500 pounds of manpower got into the boat. When the motor started up, the front end scooped up water so fast it almost swamped the boat.

The man up front got in the middle seat and that helped some. But the boat generally was so unsteady they didn't enjoy their fishing too much. They learned this lesson: a cartop boat is fine, but don't sacrifice safety for convenience and weight. Two men can handle a 125 or 150-pound cartop boat almost as easily as a 90 pound boat. And the larger boat offers more comfort and more safety.

It is also a good idea to "keep your head" in a boat.

Another fellow I know was standing up while fishing out of a boat that was absolutely safe. The wind blew it against a tree with a resulting bump.

For some reason he jumped straight up . . . and into water well over his head. He held onto his rod and reel and climbed back into the boat without ever stopping movement, giving his two fishing buddies the biggest laugh of the day. But it taught all three a good lesson. Another real danger in boating is going too fast in water where there might be some obstruction beneath the surface.

In some of the larger lakes, like Buchanan, there are huge rocks, some of them just under the water line. If you hit one of these rocks or an old log going too fast, you are certain to have trouble.

Despite all warnings, however, most of us still will be careless. Before the summer season is over there will be too many names in the obituary columns as the result of boating accidents.

So let me repeat: Be sure of your boat before you go onto the water; take strange waters easily and be sure you have approved life preservers. Preferably they should be worn, but at least they should be handy enough for every person to grab one in the event of an accident. Don't stand up in a boat unless you absolutely have to.

And above all—don't ride in any boat that is overpowered or overloaded. Both are dangerous!

Follow Simple Rules In Automobile Accident
 Vacation time is here. Soon millions of people will be driving about the country, and automobile accidents will occur with increasing frequency. What should a person do when involved in an accident?
 At such times it is hard to keep your wits about you and know just what to do. It is therefore a good idea to plan in advance just what you would do in event of a smash-up. Here are a few simple rules that every driver should commit to memory:
 1. Stop! Failure to stop can result in serious criminal consequences.
 2. Render Aid. If anyone is injured: (1) Render first aid. (2) Stop bleeding. (3) Call a doctor or an ambulance or both. (4) Do not move an injured person in any way that could possibly add to his injury.
 3. Protect the Scene from Further Damage. You may be liable for damages to approaching drivers, unless they are properly warned. If the highway is obstructed at night, have someone turn his

 4. Call an Officer. Policemen, Highway Patrolmen, Sheriffs and their deputies are trained accident investigators whose testimony may be invaluable in establishing your civil claim for damages.
 5. Gather Information... Write it Down. Don't trust your memory. Don't guess—be specific. Measure skid marks. Step off distances. Be sure to obtain names and addresses of witnesses. You are required by law to exhibit your driver's license to the other driver—and he must do the same.
 6. Be Careful What You Say. Even if you feel you probably are to blame, it is best to make no admission. You may learn later that the other driver was equally at fault, or more so. Emotional comments can be misconstrued by others, or may be misquoted. Whatever you say, make it factual.
 7. See Your Doctor if there is the slightest chance you may be injured. Serious injuries always result in immediate or bloodshed.
 8. Consult Your Lawyer immediately. The sooner your lawyer is brought into the matter the better he can advise and protect your rights. He can get statements from the witnesses which their memories are fresh and do many other things to ensure that the true facts are served. Get your lawyer's statements or adjuster's statements before giving any interview on either side.
 9. Inform Your Insurance Company of any accident. An accident may void your policy.
 10. Report the Accident to the Department of Public Safety. This is required by law if there is any injury or death, or if damages exceed $25.00.

Farm To Market

You can't go whizzing around the country side with a shopping cart to buy the food you need for your family. With few exceptions, you must depend on that food being funneled from farms throughout the country to retail outlets in your area.

That funneling process, which includes every stop that farm products go through after they are produced until you buy them in your neighborhood store, is known as our marketing system.

The Texas Department of Agriculture works constantly to develop and promote efficient marketing methods which will not only help reduce retail costs, but also increase the habitually narrow profit margin of the farmer.

At present, twice as much money is spent on marketing food and other farm products after they leave the farm than is spent in producing that food—and twice as many people are employed as "marketers" than as farmers.

Take the carrots you buy today in polyethylene bags. Not too many years ago, you bought carrots in bunches with the tops on and when you got home you usually wrenched off the tops and threw them away. But the consumer paid for transporting those tops from wherever the carrots were grown to your store.

With the carrots bagged, not only are transportation and handling costs reduced, but the bags reduce loss of moisture and the carrots remain in better condition during transit, in the store, and in your home refrigerator.

The most effective and least costly system for each different packaged product you use is constantly under study. And this study results in a better product for you at a better price. A new insect-proof, multiwall paper bag is being developed which fights off insect infestation long before the consumer ever sees the product.

Instruments and machines are also used to protect you from internal defects in food products. Some of these instruments "see" through the food and sort it automatically without damage to the food.

You are probably not overly concerned with the way food products are loaded on a truck or freight car, so long as they get loading patterns can be important to you. When more efficient loading methods are used, a truck or freight car can carry more in the same space and transportation costs are held down.

It has been estimated that the produce from one out of every five acres growing fruits and vegetables is lost through waste and spoilage after harvest. To reduce this tremendous waste and to insure better quality in the food products which do reach you, the Texas Department of Agriculture will continue to seek new and more successful means of food handling and preservation.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

Smoking and Health
Again we are confronted with the question: Should not the Congress, composed of the elected representatives, make the decisions when sweeping Federal Government regulation is called for in the public interest?

During the week, the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of which I am a member, has been busy with the relation between smoking and health. Hearings were called to determine whether any action by Congress was needed in the area of safeguarding public health and if such action was needed, what approach would be desirable.

On the third day of the hearing, the Federal Trade Commission announced that it would issue regulations on cigarette labeling. As of January 1, 1965, the FTC ruling, packaging the cigarette will have to bear a warning label that cigarettes are hazardous to health and may cause health and may cause a similar warning must be placed, under the FTC order, cigarette advertising beginning January 1, 1965. If the warning on cigarette packages seems to be the purpose of alerting the public to smoking hazards, the FTC will consider requests to change the rule as it applies to cigarette advertising.

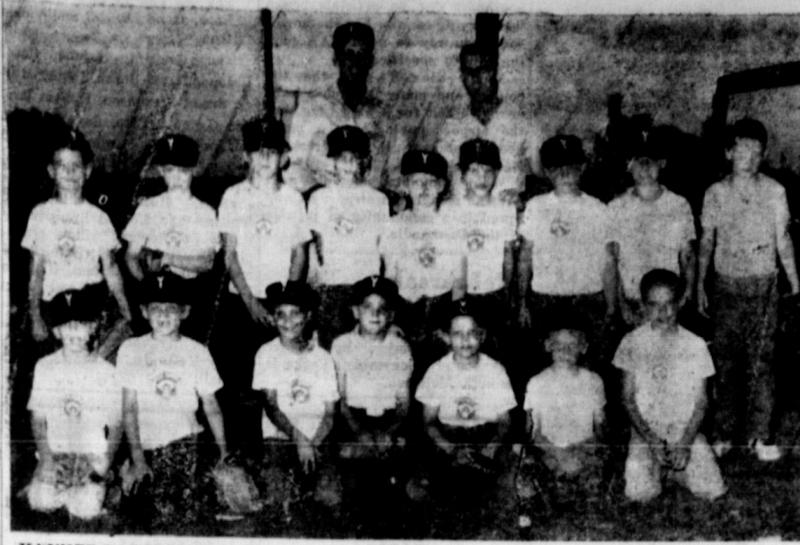

While the wheels of legislation were beginning to turn, the FTC took it upon itself to settle the matter by exercising its rulemaking authority, by administrative fiat. The FTC issued the rules under authority granted to it by the Congress to safeguard consumers by preventing dissemination of false or deceptive advertisements of food, drugs, cosmetics and therapeutic devices. Not that the FTC ruling came as a complete surprise; in January, after the Surgeon General's Advisory Committee had issued its now-famous report on "Smoking and Health," the FTC served notice that it would study possible regulations.

I believe that cigarette packages should carry a clear warning of smoking's potential danger. I had introduced one of the eleven bills being considered by the Commerce Committee in its hearing. My bill would require that cigarette packages carry this plainly labeled warning: "Caution: Cigarette Smoking May Be Hazardous to Your Health." While advocating warning labels, I believe that the decision as to whether this approach is proper and in the public interest should be made by the Congress, not by appointed officials in the Federal Trade Commission. The eleven bills before the Committee proposed seven different approaches to the matter, of which mine was only one. The legislative process—full committee hearings followed by debate on the floor of the House and Senate—is designed to insure adoption of the best possible solution, in keeping with the desires of the American people as expressed through their elected representatives.

The point is this: Whether or not its decision is a sound one, each time a regulatory agency issues rules having massive impact on American citizens, one further step has been taken to diminish the authority of the people's direct voice in the conduct of government affairs, through their Congress.

Dr. Luther Terry, the Surgeon General, underwent extensive questioning by the Committee. I asked him whether forms of tobacco other than cigarettes also endanger the users' health. Said Dr. Terry, "There may or may not be a health hazard associated with cigars and pipe smoking. I don't think I know enough to say today." Cigarettes have caught the brunt of science's search for tobacco-based health hazards because two-thirds of American men and one-third of American women are regular smokers of cigarettes. Next up for the same kind of study may be pipe and cigar smoking, tobacco chewing and snuff dipping and sniffing. And if these prove to be or not to be public menaces, perhaps similar attention should be given to excessive consumption of alcoholic beverages, candy, and coffee. After that, I suppose, the public health people could turn their attention to the No. 1 public health menace in the United States—careless driving.

The flat bottom boat is nothing new. Under the name of skiff or pram it has been around for ages.

In Arkansas a good many years ago someone dubbed it the john boat and that name has stuck. No one knows exactly where the name originated. But it serves its purpose well.

In most of Texas about the only flat bottom boats are home-made affairs. Usually they are built for river use. Generally they are constructed of 1x12, caulked with a heavy application of tar on the inside and covered with green muck on the outside. They are the kind you find tied up under an overhanging willow on the river bank.

flat-bottom or square-end, as you might prefer to call it, is coming into its own in Texas.

You'll find most of them in East Texas. They are numerous on such lakes as Caddo, Texarkana and Lake o' the Pines.

The john boat is an easy boat to handle. It can be transported on top of the car without too much trouble.

Today john boats are being made in both aluminum and fiberglass. Weights are about the same, usually slightly more than 100 pounds. Two men can handle one on top of a car, with relative ease. Especially the 12-foot models, which are lighter.

Most practical and popular john boat is the 14-footer. However, in Arkansas they use a great many of the 16 to 20 foot length for float fishing.

In fact, the 16-footer is almost a standard item on Arkansas streams. They have plenty of beam and ample freeboard. Any they can be powered by comparatively light motors.

The john boat has ample space for carrying a duffle bag, an ice box and comfortable swivel seats for the fishermen. Three men can fish in comfort from one of these longer boats.

On East Texas lakes, however, the 12 and 14-foot boats are the most practical. In fact, they are ideal for the diversified fisherman—the man who doesn't care too much what kind of fish he catches.

One big advantage in these carp-toppers is that they can be hauled right to the bank of the lake or stream, thereby eliminating long rides across open water. If you know where there is a good tree-top expanse of water you can drive up to the shoreline, slide the boat in the water, and with a small motor be in your fishing spot in a matter of minutes.

After you reach your destination manipulation of the john boat is simple, although perfection takes considerable practice and experience.

I like to watch experts fish from these boats. They sit in the front end of the boat and with a short paddle and a stirring motion, move the boat along from tree to tree with the greatest of ease.

Most of these fishermen use a comparatively short cane pole. Riggered up with a line slightly shorter than the pole, they use two hooks. One may be baited with a minnow, another with a worm or a cricket.

They move up to a brush pile or a tree stump protruding from the water, drop the hook to the bottom and jiggle the bait a couple of times. If there is a fish around it usually hits pretty quick. If not, the fishermen quietly move on to another location.

These fishermen do not bother to string their catch. Most of them have wire baskets hanging over the sides of their boats. They drop the fish into these baskets.
