Let Us Resolve!

At midnight tonight, as men count time, our world will pass from the old year to the new year, and it should prove to be a historic occasion for the residents of Hall County, because the traditional blowing of the siren in Memphis will herald the coming of the Diamond Anniversary year for Hall County.

This 75th year of the existence of our county can pass into history as nothing more than just a faded recollection when we reminisce, or it can shine in our memories as one of the best years of our lives because we put forth the necessary effort to make it so.

It is appropriate that citizens pause and think seriously about New Year's resolutions. This is the solemn promises we make ourselves in the special place we reserve for ourselves—our hearts. It would be well for us to resolve that we will take every opportunity, exploit every idea, examine every possibility, and pledge ourselves to full cooperation in making the 75th Anniversary of our county a success.

But in considering the coming year, we need to make many resolutions. We must continually renew our knowledge and faith in God's teachings and resolve to live by the teachings of our faith. We must resolve to be better citizens, to take more interest in the administration of our government and see that justice is done in our courts. We must continue our resolutions for working toward better educational opportunities for our young people, mentally, morally, and physically. Also we must resolve to do whatever we can to improve our economic outlook and build for the future.

With the 75th Anniversary year beginning, the books about past years have been closed, as will be the 1964 book at midnight tonight. The future books are nothing yet but blank pages, waiting for the writer's pen, from which the ink flows continuously recording the deeds of man.

What will the anniversary year be? It is our for the making and we will accomplish what we resolve to accomplish, for few things good in this life are done without someone's attention to them.

Drive Carefully In 1965!

One of the blackest marks which always spoils the Christmas-New Year's holiday season for citizens is listening or reading to the news concerning the traffic and violent death fatalities in our land, mount. Each year the figures grow larger and larger despite the gruelling tasks performed by our public servants to try and reverse the trend.

"Peace on Earth, Goodwill Toward Men" is the theme of the season, a time of family reunions, and the focusing of our thoughts and feelings on our loved ones and our friends. But the festive season is tinged increasingly each year with the sadness of death and injury on our streets and highways. Modern progress has brought with it not only comfort and luxury hitherto undreamed of, but a regrettable disregard for our fellowmen.

The commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," seems to have little moral influence on drivers of automobiles, whether the warning comes from God or traffic authorities. The privilege to operate a car is bestowed by the state. The manner in which a car is driven is prescribed by law.

The tragedy of the hundreds of men, women and children who die and the thousands that will end up in hospitals this holiday season, casts a black shadow over the otherwise joyous occasions.

Now is the time to make a resolution to practice the safety habits during 1965. By assuming our legal and moral responsibilities to drive with care and by being constantly alert when behind the wheel, we can do something about the sadness and pain. Drive carefully during 1965, the lives you save will be ours as well as yours.

Cotton Referendum

B. M. NELSON (Dimmitt): There must be a reason, but I don't know what it could be, for the difference in voting opinions of wheat and cotton farmers in regards to production quotas. Wheat farmers rejected wheat quotas in the last referendum which cotton farmers always give a preponderant majority in favor for cotton quotas. The history of farming, so far as the so-called basic commodities are concerned, is identical economically. When cotton was selling for five cents a pound, wheat was going at twenty-five cents a bushel, certainly this is not a situation that is easy to forget. For the first time in history a government program was evolved to give the agricultural industry some semblance of economic stability, and from the beginning it has been left up to the farmers to accept or reject production quotas.

It may be argued that wheat farmers are more independent, sometimes referred to as rugged individualism, than cotton farmers but it is doubtful that cotton farmers would be any more bankrupt than would wheat farmers if the price of commodities were allowed to drop to depression day levels. Cotton farmers passed the recent quota referendum by an overwhelming majority and by so doing protected their independence and enhanced their status in the nation's economic structure. —The Castro County News.

A Knowledge Explosion

We are aware of the population explosion which threatens to have all of us crowded to bare standing room at some point in the future, and it is a problem that worries a lot of people.

Another explosion is taking place that may be just as important to us. This is the "knowledge explosion" that the professors talk about.

We read an article the other day quoting a Solomon Diamond, in a new book "The World of Probability," in which he estimates that the scientific era started in the middle of the 17th century. From that date to now, the fund of human knowledge has doubled about once every 15 years.

It means that today we know about two million times as much about the universe we live in and the creatures which inhabit it as was known shortly after the death of Galileo.

Moreover, in the next 15 years, scientists will learn as much more as in all previous history, if you can conceive of such a thing.

In any special field, scientific workers agree that twice as much is known now as was known in 1950 and four times as much as in 1935. The present pace of development is more rapid than ever.

With all this knowledge explosion, a bigger problem has been caused. The social, political and economic vehicles at our command are too slow and antiquated to convey this knowledge to the proper places at the proper times. People outside a few fields are not participating in the knowledge explosion and most of us don't even know it is going on. But we are beginning to understand why it is that kids seem smarter than their parents were at that age. They have absorbed more knowledge. — Ochiltree County Herald.

OCTANE WITH NICKEL

Gasoline with a nickel compound additive, being marketed for the first time by a major oil company, is claimed to reduce engine wear, inhibit carburetor icing, prevent rusting and to reduce octane requirements of automobiles.

TINGLING GOLD

The natural yellow color of gold can be changed, for use in jewelry, by additions of other metals. Alloying with silver gives gold a greenish tone, copper gives it a reddish color, while nickel and palladium have a whitening effect.

First bicycles were called "dandy-horses" in England.

FOR BETTER HEALTH

Are you in need of a New Year's resolution?

Most of us have plenty resolutions for the making, but any resolution regarding your health is a resolution well made.

Plan ahead this year. Maintaining good health requires a little time and forethought, but it's much cheaper and simpler than trying to get well again.

Resolve to lead a balanced life with plenty rest and exercise. Weight lifting or running the mile daily may not be your dish, but almost anyone can take a leisurely walk each day. Simply walking from the supper table to the bed is scarcely enough exercise for any well person.

Resolve to eat a balanced diet. Nutritionists recommend regular mealtimes with some of the basic four each day. Specifically, this includes a meat or meat substitute, bread or cereal, milk or dairy product, and fruit and vegetables—especially one rich in vitamin C. Foods come in many colors, textures and flavors, and can be easy on the eyes and tempting to the palate, as well as fuel for your body.

Resolve to see your doctor and your dentist for yearly check-ups, unless you need them more often. They can detect many danger signs, and in many cases prevent serious problems. Many types of cancer, for example, can often be cured if detected early.

Resolve to see that you and your family are protected against today's preventable diseases—smallpox, lockjaw, whooping cough, polio, measles, etc. . . . Keep your immunizations up to date.

Resolve to use your head where your health is concerned. Nothing cures everything. Beware the peddler who tells you it does, or who comes bearing fancy gadgets, radiation cones or super juicing machines. If you're not sure, check with your local medical society or a local health authority.

Resolve to take of your health during 1965.

Mary Sue Scott Becomes Bride Of George Miller On Dec. 10

Miss Mary Sue Scott became the bride of George Truman Miller at 6 p. m., December 10, in a double ring ceremony in the Travis Baptist Church. The Rev. Fern A. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scott, and the parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miller, all of Memphis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white satin overlaid with hand clipped French lace. The bodice featured a Sabrina neckline and petal point sleeves. The three-tiered bouffant skirt extended into a chapel train. A pearl tiara held a finger-tip veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses on top of a white Rainbow Bible.

Miss Stephanie Patton of Spearman was maid of honor. Miss Jo Ann Scott, sister of the bride, and LuLu Miller, sister of the groom, lighted the candles. Miss Judy Scott, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl.

The bride's attendants wore original gowns of red velvet with empire waistlines and floor-length skirts. The head pieces were self bows. They carried bouquets of red and white feathered carnations.

Dee Miller, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Bobby Scott, brother of the bride, and Cubby Miller, brother of the groom.

Traditional wedding music was furnished by Mrs. Gloria Wilson, organist, and Miss Sarabelle Houston, soloist.

Faith Is Strength

"Put on the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."—Ephesians 6:11

If we believe in God, and are faithful to our beliefs then we can find the strength and courage to meet adversity and to accept the challenges of modern day living.

If we believe in the goodness of God, it becomes easier for us to recognize goodness in our fellow man. If we have faith, and strength through faith, we are often presented with the opportunity to be of service to God and to our fellow man and each time we extend a helping hand our faith—and our strength—is multiplied.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

THE NEW CONGRESS CONVENES

The 86th Congress convened on January 4, 1965. The session could provide fire-works and more spectacular events than those that greeted the Congress after the commencement of the new Congress. A caucus is held by the Democratic Party and the Republican Party. These are held in secret. Some are held several days before the Congress convenes, or on the day that Congress convenes. It is at this meeting that the Democrats and Republicans within the party are to be discussed and the Democratic caucus is held. The discussions usually are held in the House, but not always there. It presently appears there is a good chance for a head-knocking, knuckle-biting and bitter words in both caucuses. The Democratic caucus has been receiving quite a bit of publicity as the conflicts between the two parties have been apparent for some time. The move by one party to the Democratic Party to change the parliamentary regulations under which the Congress operates. It appears that major attempts will be made to change the rules by which the Congress is known as the 21st Century. When a bill is reported to the committee such as the Foreign Currency and Banking and the Rules Committee again. It appears that the measure and must be passed to permit the full Congress to act on the bills. Controversy on these basic issues cannot be avoided in order to maintain a healthy understanding of the way truly representative government works. Controversy should not be avoided.

20 from the minority party. The make-up of the other committees in the House (with the exception of the Rules Committee) is determined by the ratio of party representation in the full House of Representatives. In other words, if the Democrats have two-thirds of the membership of the House, they are entitled to two-thirds of the membership of each of the legislative committees. The reverse would be true if the Republicans were in the majority. The proposal in the coming Congress may be to change the make-up of both the Ways and Means Committee and the Appropriations Committee. The Republicans would have less members on each committee.

The heated controversies will not be confined to the Democratic caucus. The chances are that the all-out fight in the Republican caucus will be much hotter and more bitter. The announced intention of a number of the Republican members to oust their present leadership is already creating much discussion and controversy both inside and outside the House of Representatives. It would appear at present that this matter cannot be settled or reconciled without some political blood-letting, some deep wounds, and some hard-to-heal scars.

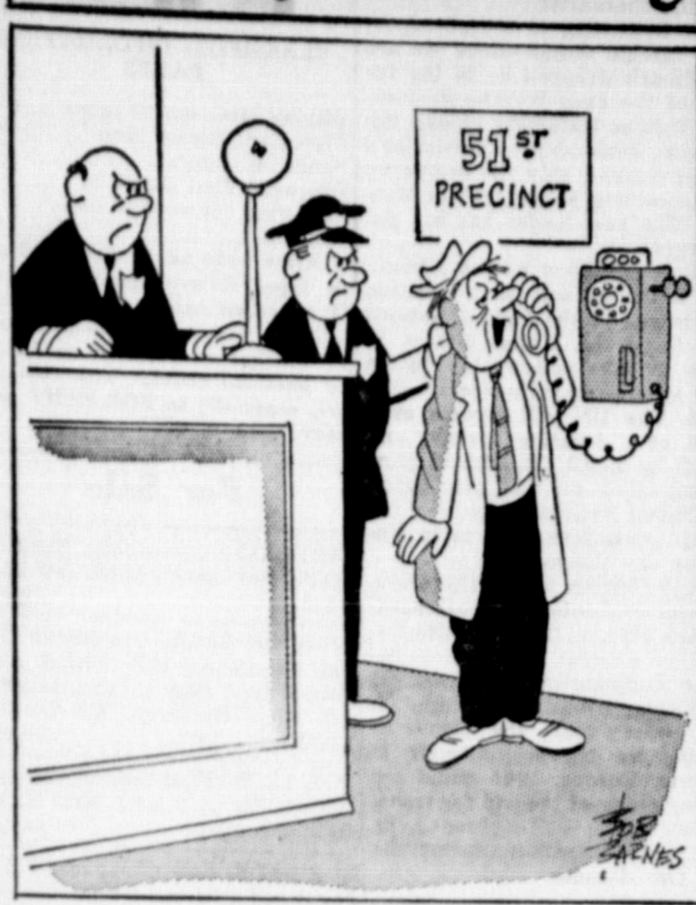

Of course, the seniority system and questions about party allegiance will be present in both caucuses. The seniority rule has long been controversial, but has never been successfully challenged. It definitely has some defects but no one has ever devised a better system.

There is one thing for sure: Controversy on these basic issues cannot be avoided in order to maintain a healthy understanding of the way truly representative government works. Controversy should not be avoided.

Warning Issued Against Mixing Cleaner Fluids

A 36-year-old Boston housewife cleaned her kitchen floor one evening just before dinner time with a mixture of household cleansers, commercial bleach and vinegar. Shortly after dinner the entire family became ill, with nausea, headaches, dizziness and coughing. Fortunately, everyone recovered.

What happened? According to the American Medical Association, in mixing the bleaches and the vinegar, this lady inadvertently released some chlorine gas in her small, tightly closed kitchen.

The moral is simple. Be very cautious about mixing two or more powerful cleansers, such as are used for ovens and toilet bowls; mixing them with each other or with household ammonia or vinegar. Just because each cleanser is relatively safe when used alone doesn't necessarily mean it's also safe in mixtures.

The strong cleansers often are tricky to use. The package labels on can, bottle or carton include explicit directions for proper and safe use. The labels point out the potential dangers. The problem is that many householders have become so familiar with the common cleansers that they no longer bother to read the labels.

The danger of mixing household cleansers is not a major health problem, but is serious enough to warrant attention. A recent report in a medical journal showed that during a period of sixty days in the winter of 1963, 45 calls were received at the Boston Poison Information Center regarding adult poisonings. Four of these were for inhalation of gases produced by homemade cleaning mixtures.

The most common homemade mixtures, said the Boston report, are those using sodium hypochlorite and ammonia or vinegar. Sodium hypochlorite and vinegar react and produce chlorine gas. Mixed with ammonia, sodium hypochlorite gives off irritating gases.

Such incidents occur more frequently in winter, when houses are closed and ventilation is at a minimum, but they can and do occur any time. Cleaning any poorly vented space, such as an oven, carries a certain risk.

Of course, millions of householders can testify that there's no harm in adding a chlorine bleach to laundry detergents and soap in doing the family wash. However, like any other household chemical, chlorine bleach should be used strictly according to the directions on the label.

The problem of the dangers of mixing various cleaning agents has only recently come to the attention of the health authorities, and the package labels sometimes do not include specific warnings. To be completely sure, don't mix, unless you're absolutely certain that you understand enough elementary chemistry to know what you're doing.

for world currencies generally.

44. As far as gold stocks are concerned, they are already high and should only be held in 1965 as insurance against the long-range trend toward higher world prices for gold.

45. The silver coinage situation will become more acute as the year progresses. The 89th Congress will be forced to consider a new silver coinage act. If it is not passed in 1965, it will be shortly thereafter.

46. Returning to the all-important foreign scene—since we are very much wrapped up in the future of the Free World—we forecast further instability among the Russian leadership. Khrushchev's ouster marked only the beginning of the coming power grab in Moscow. The real leader has not yet emerged.

47. Ascendancy of the African and Asian nations to a position of control in the United Nations will force the United States in 1965 to take action alone when vital spheres of influence are violated. The UN will become even more of a debating society; and month by month the chances grow dimmer that we will ever again see United Nations troops used for rescue operations such as in Korea or the Congo.

48. Following the British crisis, General de Gaulle will work harder than ever in 1965 to unite Europe as a great third force between Communism and the United States. President Johnson is well aware that the winds of change are blowing strongly in Western Europe. 1965 could see the beginning of the end for transatlantic union as envisioned by U. S. Administrations during the past two decades.

49. World-wide credit problems and restriction on trade cast dark shadows on investment prospects abroad. Many nations which have shown great growth during the past 20 years will be poor risks for new commitments during the year 1965.

50. In conclusion, we recall the statement of a former President of a South American nation: That the U. S. A. prospered so greatly because its founders came to worship God . . . as opposed to countries whose settlers went to worship gold. Surely we can hope to prosper in the future only as recognize that righteousness and morality must be as important as analysis and statistics as springboards for the new business ventures during 1965 and in all the years ahead.
