EDITORIAL

Computer Reporting

The average reader of a daily or weekly newspaper does not see in print but a fraction of the available information supplied the editors of these publications by all kinds of organizations, associations, governmental agencies, advertising firms, etc.

If most readers are like those in the weekly field, they do not have time to open all their "bulk" mail much less read all the items listed. This is especially true of lengthy reports of business and retail trade for certain areas of the country.

However, the United States Department of Commerce in Washington, D. C., has added true local interest in their '63 retail trade report compiled by the Census Bureau. Why is the report of local interest? Because, to our knowledge, this is the first time the report has been broken down not only to the state level but to the county level, and even a comparison to 1958 report is all laid out for the busy editors.

How was this done? To our knowledge, this task, if done by clerks, would be prohibitive. But it was not done by clerks. It was done by a computer and typed at 10 lines per second especially for each county news media. The report which was received here Monday was 19 lines so it occupied about two seconds of the computers' time.

But what is so interesting about the 19-line report is that it contained a volume of research figures that are exclusive to Hall County, Texas, concerning retail establishments, sales increases, number of jobs, yearly payrolls, food stores sales, income of eating and drinking places sale, with comparisons.

Electronic computers at the U. S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Census are extracting retail trade data about each county in the United States from tabulations of the 1963 Census of Business, inserting the figures in news stories, typing out the stories at eye-blinking speed, and addressing a story to each one of 16,000 news outlets in the Nation's 3,000 counties.

The three elements used to produce these "Machine-made" news stories were: the statistics for 1958 and 1963 on number of establishments, their kind of business and location, their sales volume, employment, etc.; names and address of the newspapers and broadcasting stations, coded county-by-county; a set of instructions which cause the computer to select statistics concerning each county, print the statistics at the proper points in a news story, and address the story to each newspaper or broadcasting station in a county.

But the amazing thing about all this is that over 6,000 news stories were compiled and distributed about retail trade and it required no additional personnel.

Also, after this series is completed, another series about service trades in each county is being planned.

The '63 retail trade report for Hall County is published in its complete form elsewhere in this issue, but some of the interesting aspects are these: Hall County has 120 retail establishments and they had $9.2 million in sales during 1963. This is an increase of 24 per cent from 1958. Retail trade in the county meant jobs (exclusive of proprietors) for 265 men and women and a yearly payroll of $728,000. In volume of business the county's food stores had sales of $2.3 million an increase of five percent from 1958. Hall County's eating and drinking places had sales of $317,000, and gasoline service stations had sales of $976,000.

As the census report shows, Hall County has had a 24 percent increase in retail trade since 1958. For the state as a whole, the census bureau reported 96,406 retail establishments with sales of $12715.4 million, up 18 percent from 1958. Our county can be proud of the increase and should continue to work toward a better retail market.

By offering shoppers friendly service, good merchandise, reasonable rates and attractive stores, our retail sales will continue to grow.

A Wonderful Clock

By Howard A. Finch

(The following poem was written in 1930 by Howard A. Finch when he was superintendent of schools at Dalhart. This being Texas Public Schools Week we felt the poem is appropriate.)

I'm going to tell you of a wonderful clock,
A clock with millions of jewels;
The most wonderful clock in all the world:
This clock is our Public Schools.

The material from which this clock is made
Was mined from the depths of the sky;
And wrought and refined by the mothers of men,
Through ages and ages gone by.

The works are inlaid with purest gold,
But the baser metals are there
And reveal, if you please, the intrinsic worth
Of these jewels most precious and rare.

For every jewel there is a face,
As bright as the morning sun;
For every jewel there are two hands,
Yes, two for every one.

This clock, much like all other clocks,
Doles out the eons of time,
And strikes each hour with added power
In tones that are sublime.

And thus this clock of which I sing:
This clock with millions of jewels,
Is a throbbing, pulsing, human thing:
This clock is our Public Schools.

No Substitute For Rain

As tons of topsoil sailed through our atmosphere Tuesday, thoughts naturally turned to times of drought and dust storms, years which have been endured by most anyone out here with any age upon them.

And those who have lived here any period of time know that dust storms are followed by pretty weather, and that you can endure any sort of storm because you know it will eventually pass and the weather change.

But dry weather continues to plague the entire Plains country. It must be admitted that the local area has more submoisture than it has had for several years. Conditions are good going into spring growing season if moisture comes at the right time.

And irrigation wells are busily pumping millions of gallons of water from under the surface, putting moisture upon the soil as the growing crops need it.

We may be in the midst of an irrigation boom.

But there is no substitute for rain. The water situation, traditionally a worry for farmers, is fast becoming a problem for the city dwellers, too. Population is growing so fast, and the use of water rising so rapidly, that there are few cities in the nation without some nagging problems with water supply. Some cities have an acute problem which will get worse.

The government is spending $10 million a year on research into how to get fresh water from salty sea water. Millions are spent each year on dams along rivers and watersheds. Conservation measures are doing wonders to conserve our moisture.

But when you get right down to it, there is no substitute for rain. No man-made device was ever designed which can put as many tons of water over as wide an area as an ordinary rainstorm.

Right now we're ready. Lots of topsoil needs flushing out here.—Ochiltree County Herald.

Mustard Plaster!

When the President of the United States had his much publicized post inaugural chest cold, he is reported to have thrown the Walter Reed, or was it Bethesda, hospital staff en masse into a titanic tizzy by ordering right in the middle of the night the "Sovereign Cold Remedy of the Caliche Country, Pedernales River Territory," a MUSTARD PLASTER. The hospital staff was made jittery enough as it was by the unheralded and unceremonious arrival of LBJ in the shank of the evening.

Hardly anyone there knew what a mustard plaster was, much less responsibility... except a mustard plaster! This is a true story. Our feeling at the time we learned of the mustard plaster episode was... if our winsome and competent Mother had been on hand at the time, and slapped a Laurel Oakes mustard plaster, heavy on the mustard, even with two layers of flannel, on LBJ's chest, he probably would have been back to work by noon... and she'd have gotten a cabinet post in return for the service.

Man alive, could she stir up a mustard plaster. It would draw your toenails clear out of the top of your head. Besides, it sho'd provide her with a flawless barometer of whether our illness was real or feigned. If we were willing to undergo the torture of a Laurel Mustard plaster, then it was a lead-pipe chance we WERE SICK! — Porter Oakes in The Haskell Press.

The day, middle-of-the-night rather, was saved, and probably 200 jobs with it, when a patent mustard plaster was located about 2:30 a. m., in just about the last place 200 people looked in sleeping Washington, an all night drug-store-supermarket. It was slapped on the Presidential chest with the greatest of haste... and seemed to have satisfied the Man Who Had Everything. Including the World's Heaviest Burden of Re-

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Planning ahead for disaster is the aim of the civil defense program in Texas, explains County Agent W.B. Hooser.

There are many things a family can do, he adds, to minimize the inconvenience from a possible disaster. He offers these suggestions for meeting emergencies.

Food is the first consideration. Would you have enough food in your home to feed your family on short rations during an emergency hand. Keeping a well-stocked pantry is good insurance that your family will not go hungry during any emergency.

What about the water supply? Water is more vital than food. Keeping an emergency supply on hand in case of water failure is good preparedness.

Knowledge of first aid is especially important in times of emergency. Disasters often mean injuries and sickness without emergency help being available. An increased knowledge of first aid plans plus a first aid kit could mean the difference in the survival of a family member or friend in a disaster.

Shelter is another very important item in a disaster program. Living in the nuclear age requires shelter protection from radioactive fallout. And, too, shelters for use in case of natural disasters could save many lives, points out Hooser.

The county agent suggests that these essential facts be considered when plans are being made to protect your family in time of disaster.

Local Scouts To Observe Girl Scout Week

The members of the Quivira Girl Scout Council will join with almost three and three-quarter million Girl Scouts throughout the country in celebrating Girl Scout Week from Sunday, March 7, through Saturday, March 13.

"A Promise in Action" is the theme of Girl Scout Week and of the Girl Scouts' 53rd Birthday which occurs on March 12. This date marks the anniversary of the first meeting of the first troop organized in Savannah, Ga., by Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the movement in the U. S. A.

Since that first troop of a few girls, more than 20 million members have made the Girl Scout Promise to do their duty to God and country, to help other people at all times, and to obey the Girl Scout Laws of loyalty, honesty, courtesy, cheerfulness, usefulness, kindness and thrift.

This year, Girl Scouts are paying special attention to the "bridges" which give continuity to their program. The program adapts activities related to the arts, the home, and the out-of-doors, to the changing interests and needs of girls ages seven through 17, thus "bridging" the four age level: Brownie Girl Scouts (ages 7 and 8) to Senior Girl Scouts (ages 15 through 17).

A highlight of Girl Scout Week will be the beginning of the annual sale of Girl Scout cookies. Proceeds from the sale go for troop activities and for the Girl Scout Camping Program, which includes day camp, troop encampment and established camp, as well as for the fund to purchase a permanent established camp site. The sale will continue until April 1.

In observance of Girl Scout Sunday, March 7, thousands of Girl Scouts are expected to attend religious services in uniform. The Girl Scout Promise starts with the words: "On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God." This spiritual foundation is recognized by Girl Scouting as basic to the development of good character and sound citizenship.

District III, which includes Shamrock, Turkey, and Memphis, has many people working and giving of their time to make Girl Scouting and the Quivira Girl Scout Council a success. Board members from this area include Mmes. John Porter and Donald Vearner of Shamrock and Mr. J. T. Clayton of Shamrock. Serving on committees are Mrs. Elmont Branigan of Memphis, Mrs. W. H. Coffman of Shamrock and Mr. George Setliff of Turkey. Mrs. Brode Hoover of Memphis, Mrs. Bill Sherman of Turkey, and Mrs. Charles Sanders of Shamrock are the Neighborhood Chairmen for District III.

Special days are earmarked throughout Girl Scout Week to illustrate the various aspects of the Girl Scout program. They are: Girl Scout Sunday; Monday, Homemaking; Tuesday, Citizenship; Wednesday, Health and Safety; Thursday, International Friendship; Friday, Arts; Saturday, Out-of-Doors.

Mrs. Brode Hoover, neighborhood chairman for Memphis, said the local Scouts are making plans to attend church services on Sunday and, weather permitting, a family picnic will be held some time during the week.

Carl Yancey's Father, A&M Professor, Honored By Engineers

and Mrs. Carl Yancey and Mrs. Carl Yancey were recently in College to attend a surprise dinner honoring Mrs. Yancey's father, Charles W. Crawford, who has spent a half century of service to Texas A&M University.

Twenty-eight years later, in 1957, Crawford was promoted to Associate Dean of Engineering. He kept that post until his love for teaching prompted him to return to the Mechanical Department as a Professor.

His interest in students was rewarded concretely last year when he received the $1,000 General Dynamics award for outstanding contributions to the teaching of engineering.

Honors have been many for "Chollie" Crawford. He is a past president of the South Section of the American Society of the Mechanical Engineers, the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, and the American Ordnance Association.

Crawford was honored by being made a Fellow in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in 1956, the first A&M faculty member ever to receive such recognition.

Civically, Crawford has been busy. A member of the Bryan Rotary Club for 23 years, he is immediate past president of the organization. He served as chairman of the board of deacons at Bryan's First Baptist Church for 20 years.

"Just Another Saturday" Presented By Little Theatre: Newcomers Club Guests

The Little Theatre met in the Methodist Church Annex on Wednesday with Annette Boswell, president, calling the meeting to order and introducing Mary Helen Sexauer, program chairman, in turn presenting Virginia Browder, director, for a one-act play, "Just Another Saturday," by John Wiley.

Mrs. Browder named the players as JoAnn Crawford as Grace a maid, Betty Smith, a hat check girl, Verna DeBerry, Mrs. Appleby, a wealthy member of the Country Club, Katherine Jones, Jean O'Malley, a waitress and later married to Mrs. Appleby's son, Charlene Greene as Helen Gaillard, Helen Boswell as Mrs. Randall, Annette Boswell as Mrs. Neilson and Helen Combs as Mrs. Warren.

The scene is the ladies dressing room at the Idlewild Country Club on a Saturday evening, with Ethel trying to find some pins and Grace so busy looking at a movie magazine and chewing gum. Ethel becomes very exasperated. She asks, "Where are the pins?"

Grace says, "Pin? What pins? There's some pins over there. Why don't you look for them?" Ethel finds the pins and makes a catty remark to Grace, "Don't overwork."

Mrs. Appleby enters and finds Grace in a weird pose, says, "Good heavens, what are you doing?" "I'm so sorry . . . I-I didn't hear you come in."

Mrs. Appleby asks her to inform a Miss O'Malley, not a member of the club, that she is not welcome at the club, that she has dared her to step on the dance floor and if she does she must take the consequences.

As Mrs. Appleby is leaving, Jean O'Malley enters the lounge, and Grace promptly asks her if she is a member of the club. Jean says, "No, I came with Tom Appleby. You see, I fainted once, he was so kind to me. It was from overwork — carrying too heavy trays. Mrs. Appleby hates me so."

Grace tells her that some of the leading Hollywood stars got their starts from being waitresses. As she leaves, Helen comes with a suitcase to leave for safe keeping. Grace argues with her to take it to the cloak room to be checked. Mrs. Neilson and Mrs. Randall enter, discussing the dance and Helen's engagement to Tom Appleby; that they are not getting on so well as Helen has been dating Mrs. Randall's chauffeur, and the bridge game, also that Tom does not seem to be worried, his attention being turned in another direction.

They leave and shortly Mrs. Randall returns and asks if Grace has seen her necklace, Helen demands if there has been anyone looking for her. There is quite a disturbance over the necklace, with Mrs. Randall making accusations; Helen had to admit that she is eloping with Murphy, the chauffeur, and Mrs. Neilson had stolen the jewelry because she had lost heavily at bridge, only to learn that the necklace was fake and that the Randall's had been embezzling bank funds.

Jean comes rushing in, sobbing in humiliation. Mrs. Randall says, "My dear, what is the matter? Can't you tell me what happened?" Jean says, "No. There isn't anything that anybody can do. She saw that."

"She? Whom do you mean? She?" said Mrs. Randall. Jean, gasping, said, "Mrs. Appleby. She's mean! She's horrible! She's cruel! She humiliated me in the worst possible way. She made me look cheap and ridiculous and small. She couldn't tell me quietly herself. Oh, no, that wouldn't do! She had to wait until everyone had seen me . . . until everyone knew whom I was with—then she had me put off the floor."

Mrs. Appleby enter the lounge and seeing Jean still there, says, "I see Miss O'Malley is still here." Jean jumps up and says, "Yes, I'm still here . . . and I'm going to stay here! I have as much right here as anyone. My husband is a member of this club!"

A gunshot is heard and Mrs. Warren calls for everyone to come quickly, something dreadful has happened. Mrs. Neilson has shot herself. Grace and Ethel exchange a few heated words as Grace has been on an errand knew not what had happened, Grace exclaims, "Why, these movie magazines have everything. Why, that's all the thrill I get, right here is everything. Love, romance, excitement. I get a thrill just reading it. Nothing ever happens here."

Members of the New Comers Club were guests. Those in attendance were: Suzbeth Howard, Shirley Johnson, Kathy Morgan, Betty Hassell, Ethel Jones Johnson of Garland, Tomacile Greene, Emma Deaver, H. Boswell, A. Boswell, Mr. Sexauer, Nell Beeson, Jim Roark, Peaches Harrison, Lottie Kinard, V. Browder, Ida Anisman, Mary Lee Fields, Gail Yancey, Mildred Stephens, V. DeBerry, C. Greene, B. Smith, H. Combs, Shirley Miller, Robbye Doss and Crawford.

as Draft wards To 155 Men

State draft boards met Monday around 5,730 males for mental-physical examinations in March, 1,150 of whom are 18-year-olds, Colonel Mordecai Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said, Tuesday.

Tests for 18-year-olds are being conducted at the direction of President Johnson's order in 1964 which ordered the Secretary of Defense to expand the number of Selective Service registrants to include all newly registered men out of school and available for service. Males married at that age will not be examined.

Colonel Schwartz stressed that the draft will not be considered for the armed forces at this time, but that those who are formally drafted for service at age 22.

The state draft quota for March is 155 men, compared to 137 for February. The March quota is the Texas share of a national total for 3,900 men, all for the month of March.

March quotas have already been figured and sent to the 137 local boards.

Mmes. Lee Brown and Ed Hutcherson presented an effective drama "Holding Institution — a Story Without End." It was the oldest mission school for Spanish Americans now sponsored by the Woman's Division of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. F. W. Foxhall led five of the groups in reading informative facts about schools, settlement houses and hospitals for Spanish Americans, primarily in six jurisdictions of the Methodist Church in the United States. She brought the program to a close by reading a Sonnet by Santayana who was Spanish-born, and a prayer by a humble mountain woman of Mexico.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

communities in rural America to make a decent living there. Farm programs enacted by Congress have been designed to this end, in recognition of the fact that before a hungry world America's agriculture is our greatest success story, and in recognition also of the fact that our free enterprise system is best exemplified by the family farm. Congress has not enacted farm programs as a hand-out, as welfare programs. The purpose has been to assist that segment of our economy most vulnerable to the abuses of industrialized segments to attain and maintain fair levels of income. And yet, each passing election returns to the House and Senate fewer and fewer members with any real comprehension of the meaning, worth, and problems faced by our farmers. The shift of population has shifted representation to the cities and suburbs and away from rural America. In this 89th Congress, fewer than one third of my colleagues in the House of Representatives speak for districts in which more than half the population is classed as "rural."

The farmers, and the folks who supply their goods in nearby cities and towns, are suffering a loss of voice in Congress and in their State legislatures. Recent Supreme Court rulings on legislative apportionment hasten this trend. As I have in the past, I urge all of my friends in agriculture to be well aware of these shifts and to recognize that fights on behalf of the farmer are becoming more and more difficult to win in Congress. The days of the famous Congressional "farm bloc" of the 1930's are dead and gone—and Congress is now dominated by the "big city bloc" with little sympathy or understanding for our rural people.

Thomas Jefferson called farmers "the chosen people of God." I wish that more of our fellow Americans could see farmers in that light, could appreciate the wonderful bounty in food they provide, could help preserve strength, stability, and opportunity in rural America.

and trade centers for the Nation's farming areas.

The exodus from the farms of America has been going on for a generation. In 1940, there were 6,350,000 farms in our country. Now there are 3,500,000 farms. In ten years, the number of agricultural workers employed and the number of farms in the U. S. have declined by almost a third and the decline in farm numbers has been mostly in small farms. In the past decade, well over half of all rural counties experienced a net loss of population. We all have seen this trend in our own Panhandle.

Should it continue at this pace, encouraged and accelerated by a combination of economic punishment and unwise government policy, the depopulation of rural America would be completed, as would the corporate takeover of American agriculture, in the lifetimes of boys now busy in 4-H and FFA activities. Now, today, only one of every ten boys growing up on American farms can expect to earn his living as a farm operator.

The challenge is to preserve and develop economic opportunity in rural America. The challenge is to enable people who want to stay on the farm and in their home
