Howard Payne Athletes To Conduct Weekend Youth Revival At Estelline

Two Howard Payne College athletes will conduct a weekend youth revival at the Baptist Church in Estelline, Friday through Sunday at 8 p. m. Services will be held Sunday at the regular times.

Doug was president of the student body at Dumas in his senior year and was a member of the National Honor Society. He lettered in basketball and participated in the state track meet. At Howard Payne, he was elected president of his freshman class and is a member of the Student Senate. Doug was able to earn a football letter starting as safety in the Yellow Jacket defensive unit. He is also a member of "Jackets for Jesus."

While in high school, both boys played on state championship football teams. Gary was also president of his senior class and sang in the choir for three years. Since going to Howard Payne last fall, he has earned a letter in football as a freshman. He is a member of the college choir and of the "Jackets for Jesus," an organization of Christian athletes.

A full day's activities have been planned for the Giles Picnic which will be held Saturday on the banks of Old Buck Creek. This year marks the tenth anniversary of the celebration.

"Colonel" Bob Ayers will act as master of ceremonies to keep the fun and fellowship moving. Flip Breedlove and Pete Land will again be in charge of the beef barbecue, and Walter Johnson will furnish the lively fiddle music for listening and dancing. A concrete slab provides a dance floor for the "squares" which are planned Saturday night. The Hall County Singers will be on hand for "hymn singing."

After last year's exciting campaign in which Blackie Johnson defeated Lowell Houston for Mayor of Giles, some of the politicians have decided the Sheriff of Giles should also be a younger man. Dave Browder has come out against Walter Johnson, with Lowell Houston as campaign manager. Bob Ayers is Walter's manager, and the Sheriff's race promises to be another exciting event.

Sheriff Johnson and Deputy Gerald Knight will endeavor to maintain law and order on both sides of the creek, but will not interfere with the fun and foolishness, fellowship and feasting for which the Giles Picnic has become noted. Everyone is invited to come for the tenth anniversary to make it the best year in the celebration's history.

Voters Approve School Bond Issue At Election Sat.

Voters in the Memphis Independent School District Saturday approved the $950,000 school bond issue to provide funds for additional facilities, improvements, land and equipment.

After canvassing the tabulations of election judges, the school board reported that 399 voters favored the proposal, and 256 voted against it.

The modernization program call for the construction of a new high school building on a new site, remodeling the present high school building, and construction and remodeling at both Travis and Austin Elementary Schools.

Voters of the City of Memphis will go to the polls Tuesday, June 1, where they will vote for or against a proposal to construct a new sewage disposal plant and make necessary extensions and improvements to the present system. The proposal calls for the issuance of $70,000 in general obligation bonds which are to mature serially over a period not to exceed 20 years.

Members of the Memphis City Council called for the bond election at their regular meeting Tuesday, May 4. The order followed several months of investigation and fact-finding by Council members, who had retained a firm of engineers to draw up plans. At the time the order was issued, spokesmen for the city explained that the $70,000 called for is 70 per cent of the total cost; that the remaining 30 per cent would come from the federal government, through the State Health Department.

It was explained that the bonds will be paid off by an increase in the sewer service charge by one-third. For residents paying $1.50 monthly, the increase would amount to a $2.00 charge. Other charges would be increased proportionately.

For several years, inspectors of the State Health Department, after inspection tour of the city's sewage disposal plant, have repeatedly informed the City Council that the plant is obsolete, unsanitary and completely inadequate.

The election will be held in the Municipal Building. Officers of the election will be: Mrs. Fern Boone, presiding judge; and Mrs. Robert Moss, alternate presiding judge.

Upon the ballot two propositions will be printed: "For the Issuance of Sewer System Bonds," and "Against the Issuance of Sewer System Bonds."

Those persons who are eligible to vote in Tuesday's bond election are owners of taxable property within the city and who have rendered it for taxation; and have paid the current poll tax or are exempt due to age. The polls will open at 8 a. m. and will close at 7 p. m.

Damage From Hail Is Extensive In City And Area

Heavy hail damage was the result of a storm which struck Memphis late Tuesday afternoon, which gave the city .68 of an inch of rain. Driven by high winds, hail stones the size of lemons pelted the southern part of the city where most of the damage occurred.

Not only buildings suffered, but also automobiles. Window glasses in homes and buildings were broken, and roof tops showed the pounding of the hail. It was reported that the Methodist Church lost two windows. At the First Baptist Church, there are 56 holes in the stained glass windows, while 25 were counted at the Presbyterian Church. Sixteen windows on the south side of the court house were broken.

Also damage was reported in the Parnell community, and Estelline residents stated that town received damage; also the area southeast of Memphis. Some crops of wheat and early cotton were reported to have suffered from the hail.

Be Nice To The Tourists

Tourists and mere travelers are now increasing upon our highways with the beginning of the vacation season. As is being recognized by tourist development agencies and bureaus, chambers of commerce and state government, the "Tourist season" means dollars to the citizens along the routes.

For this reason, it might be repeated that the time is here for Memphis to cater to these people in a special manner. Ideas have been proposed on how this should be done, but there is one fact which stands out above all others. It is: The first impression the stranger receives when he or she is in our town is most important. Among first impressions could be the attitude of the service attendant when an automobile rolls into the driveway. Much depends on this. The casual remark may lead to the passing of interesting information about what Memphis offers. The conversation might result in a rest stop or overnight stay.

The list of things in our community is numerous, and most of us take them for granted. But the stranger might be interested in everything from swimming pools to hair dressers; from fine motels and restaurants to a game of golf.

But the key is to arouse interest in our city. And those who are in brief contact with the traveler are the ones upon whom the most responsibility rests.

According to figures compiled by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, traveling upon 287 and 265 has been increasing steadily for many years. On U. S. Highway 287 alone, there are approximately 3500 vehicles per day moving to or from Memphis.

Anyway you look at it, we have another potential "industry" which is worth developing.

Give Credit To Those Who Serve

The beginning of vacation time which occurs as the schools of this county close, marks the end of certain group activities. Among these are the clubs and associations, whose members plan a regular nine-month program.

But from the broad standpoint, most group efforts continue on a year-around basis. The functions of these groups are carried on by busy people—both men and women. They give of their time to some effort which is worthwhile. The combined result means progress in different areas of our community life, and the goals, whatever they may be, are attained in some manner.

We hold to the belief that everybody should set aside part of his or her time to do those things which are outside of the regular routine of "making a living." It is said that there are those who work too much, and those who work too little. Be it as it may, there should be considered some kind of balance in our lives. We have been advised by those who know to establish a routine of work, play and rest.

From this there is need for more clubs which will offer the opportunity for more people to get together and establish goals; then try to attain them. To some it will prove to be relaxing, and this is something which is needed by too many of our citizens. The coming together of persons—from six to 60—will result in the exchange of information and ideas. From this there can be only progress in all facets of our life. Stagnation is the result of the "sitters."

It may be mentioned that the annual vacation should be planned—and carried out. The change of scenery alone is "tonic for the soul" as one writer put it. Then there is the pleasure of coming home and the unconscious desire to become more active and aggressive in all undertakings—everything from housekeeping, business, church and other group efforts.

In the complexity of the three months ahead, there are those busy persons who will be carrying on in our organizations. Some one must do it; so let's give them credit for their efforts.

It is often said there is much "luck" involved in a successful fishing expedition. You can get an argument on this from some anglers, who maintain that knowing where to fish, what kind of bait to use, plus a few other "secrets" spell the difference between a limit catch and a wasted afternoon. Fishermen will tell you the next best thing to being an expert yourself is to know someone who is an expert. Fish where he fishes — and how he fishes — and you might become an expert yourself.

There is merit, too, in knowing an "expert" when there is some need on the home scene. If an appliance stops working, if the roof starts leaking, if the car won't start, you want to be certain that the job of setting things right is turned over to an expert. By the same token, if you set out to buy something "new" — don't you want to know that the folks you buy from are reliable and dependable?

Right here, in the local community, there are many experts . . . folks who have demonstrated over a period of many years a real ability to meet the local needs. Take your needs to the established local merchant and you'll see what we mean.

What Other Editors Say

Complex Answers!

One of the biggest obstacles to a return to "good, solid thinking" in this country is that things are no longer simple.

People who view things as either all black or all white and ignore the gray may be honest and upright, but on the other hand they may be seeing only part of the picture.

There is hardly a real question before us any more that does not entail more than one principle. Almost anybody can decide a question if only a single principle is in controversy.

Everyone believes in "brotherhood" if he can pick the brothers; but the answer might be different if some else picks the brothers for you.

And people believe what they want to believe, and all the logic, all the piling statistics and data usually does not move a mind that is already made up.

We have noticed that down through history, all revolutionaries have this in common—they are unalterably opposed to revolution once they are in power. There is nobody as rigidly conservative as the successful ex-radical.

Orators who offer a simple solution to all of the nation's problems are to be suspected. Very few things revert to a simple solution these days, and if the solution is simple, the application of it is apt to be rejected.

Like a simple solution to the farm problem: Move out 3 million farmers and let the land lay idle until the food surplus is eaten up. This is simple, yet exceedingly complex.

Or the simple solution to poverty in Appalachia: Move these people out of their homes into someplace where there are jobs. Here again a simple solution is a complex answer.

It's too bad, but we no longer live in a simple world. It's complex.—Ochiltree County Herald.

Weekly Newspapers

What interests the readers of weekly newspapers?

The Suburban Press Foundation conducted a survey to find the answer to that question, and Editor & Publisher has printed the results. They cast a revealing light on the wants of the millions of people who live in the small towns and the countryside.

As one would expect, local news led the field in readership, with 92.9 per cent of those polled saying they always read; 6.5 per cent saying they read it sometimes; and only 0.6 per cent confessing they never read it.

Next—and close behind—came editorials and local columns. A mere 0.7 per cent said they never read these.

It is difficult to establish a starting point for mankind's practice of medicine and surgery to cure his ills, but we do know that prehistoric man was acquainted with trephining, a formidable piece of surgery. Many skulls bearing trephine holes have been unearthed in several areas of Europe.

Trephining, as practiced by the ancients many thousands of years ago, wasn't done for the raising of depressed skull fractures. The absence of injury near the holes suggests that the early operations were performed to provide escape for the demons which prehistoric man very likely held responsible for ailments such as epilepsy and migraine.

But everyone should oppose the waste of taxpayers' money under the guise of a program that is ineffective against communism."

The agricultural appropriations bill includes appropriations of $5,692,537,000, a reduction of approximately $122 million in the Department's budget request and $1.1 billion less than was appropriated by Congress for the current fiscal year.

The agency requires that at least one person on a school faculty must hold six semester hours of college preparation in library science from an approved institution.

Due to a late resignation in August of 1964, the Flomot board was unable to hire another teacher with library training.

Supt. Barron will attend either North Texas State University or East Texas State University, the nearest colleges offering approved library science courses. No definite choice has been made at this time.

FORGIVENESS

"Thou didst forgive the iniquity of thy people; thou didst pardon all their sins."

—Psalms 85:2

If you have a weakness, you must work to conquer it, else it will defeat you in many things. If you sin, you must repent and believe in forgiveness. It is wrong to carry guilt as a never-ending burden. It is best to seek forgiveness.

As Christians, we can understand the meaning of forgiveness, because we know the example of a forgiving God. We can understand that love makes it easy to forgive, for love closes out hate and envy and brings strength to heart and mind and soul.

So let us be aware of forgiveness, for ourselves and for others. And build strength for tomorrow through love of God and fellow man.

Mr. 41

I am happy to announce that I have purchased Baldwin's Store and will take over management of the firm on June 3. Associated with me in the operation of the store will be my wife, Alene, who will be in charge of the Children's Department, and Mary Lee Mabry, who has been with the firm for 32 years.

We will continue to operate the store under the Baldwin name and in the same location. It is our hope that we can continue to give this community the same efficient services as has been rendered by the Baldwin family for the past 58 years, stocking only fine quality merchandise.

I have had 25 years of experience in retail merchandising and have spent 8 years of that time in Memphis as manager of the J. C. Penney Company store here. During these years, our family has come to feel that we are a part of this community and Memphis is home to us.

It is our hope that you will continue to make Baldwin's your headquarters for family shopping, for gift items, children's clothing and miscellaneous household items.

We invite you to come by and visit with us.

Les Sims

The New Boss and the Old Boss

Mr. 70

Thanks—
 To the good Lord for sparing me these 3 score and 10 years, and for the privilege of letting me live in Hall County. I started going to my father's store and sweeping out when I was 12 years old and have been working in a Baldwin Store in Memphis for the past 58 years and have not missed many days. In reminiscence I can count several families to whom I have sold merchandise for 5 generations and have enjoyed it all. My heartfelt appreciation to everyone who has been a help to me through these years, especially all of you girls who have ever worked for me and helped me from the thirties on up until now.

I will be 70 years old June 3rd and on that day we are turning the keys to Mr. and Mrs. Les Sims and they will continue the name of BALDWIN'S STORE and will appreciate it very much if you give them continued support. I have said many times: the best people in the world live in Hall County.

During this time we have had many lean years and some prosperous ones but through co-operation of loved ones and our fellow men we all made it together.

"MAY THE GOOD LORD BLESS AND KEEP YOU"

AGRICULTURAL MESS IN NORTH VIETNAM
America's agricultural problems, in the main, are problems of the land. A magnificent ability—possessed by our farmers to produce food and fiber beyond the needs of our own people and the requirements of our markets. In much of the world, the "farm problem" is a problem of finding the means to produce and distribute a minimum level of food to stave off the mass starvation of the masses. In Communist countries the problem is compounded by multiple inefficiencies imposed on agriculture by a totalitarian regime. North Vietnam's drive for collectivization in the south is spurred by failure in stimulating agricultural development. For ten years, the rulers of North Vietnam failed repeatedly in attempts to produce above levels before World War II. Rice, meat, animal fat, and other supplies are rationed in North Vietnam. The caloric intake of the average North Vietnamese is well under 2,000 calories a day. Eighty percent of the labor force is engaged in this bare living from the soil. As in most other countries, agriculture is the leading sector of the economy; in North Vietnam, the value of agricultural production increased only 3 percent from 1959 to 1963. Latest information available indicates the North Vietnamese peasants, those who must carry the nation's economic burden, are not sympathetic to the regime, and the harsh methods of the police state are used to maintain discipline. This fact is testimony to the failure of the initial step taken to socialize North Vietnamese agriculture: land reform. By 1956, the Communists had virtually eliminated landlords as a class and had redistributed the land. The landlords who were not liquidated, particularly those who had assisted the regime in its long war against the French, were allowed to retain a portion of their land equal in size to the smallest area given the poorest peasant. As practiced by the Communists, the socialization of agriculture involves transferring the agricultural economy from a system of private ownership and individual enterprise to one of public ownership. This, by Communist lights, permits the operation of agricultural enterprises to be controlled and directed as are other nationalized industries. The formation of collective farms followed redistribution of land to the peasants. All of the peasant's belongings, except his personal effects and his house, became the property of the collective, either as part or full payment of the entrance fee. Compensation from the collective came only in return for a member's labor. A small plot of land was provided for the peasant's use and part of the collective's land was set aside for raising livestock. But collectivized farming has flopped in North Vietnam; the peasants have proven uncooperative, the farm administrators incompetent. Private enterprise persists despite all attempts to smash it. Official statistics of the North Vietnamese regime show that four years ago more than half of the income of households on collective farms came from supplementary activities—from using private land plots to produce food or to raise pigs, chickens, and ducks for consumption or sale, making and selling handicrafts outside the organization, planting and cultivating trees, and raising fish in small ponds. Even in long-subjugated, impoverished, and poorly educated peoples, the will for freedom dies hard. Collectivization of agriculture has failed, and the failures seem destined to mount as the North Vietnamese economy continues under the strain of increasing population and an increasing urban, industrial labor force which consumes but does not produce food. The tyranny of the regime in North Vietnam is aimed

Advertisement Of General Telephone Wins Adv. Award

A General Telephone Company advertisement prepared by the Kudner Agency in New York, which appeared in this newspaper just before elections in November 1964, has received one of the biggest awards in the advertising industry. Presented by the Manhattan College of Business in New York City, the Moral Tone in Advertising Award is given annually to the company and the advertising agency whose advertisements reflect high moral, ethical and human standards. The winning ad was entitled, "Two booths dedicated to letting Americans have their say", and was illustrated with a picture of a telephone booth and a voting booth. The ad stated, "The right is not only at neighboring South Vietnam but also at its own tormented citizenry. This is the pattern of Communist regimes everywhere, and nowhere is the tragedy of Communist rule and ruin better illustrated than in agriculture. Thank God for the blessing He has bestowed upon America and our people.

to choose and the right to speak one's mind are two of America's pillars of strength. And the freedom to exercise these rights is, in itself a guarantee against an invasion of our hard-won privileges as Americans. Now—again—is the time for all good men to stand up and be counted. Be informed—speak up for the principles you believe in, and vote."

The ad was originally prepared as a part of the General Telephone Company of California institutional campaign, but was adapted for use throughout the General System. "The ad truly states our feeling concerning the right to choose and the right to speak one's mind. We are proud that the Manhattan School of Business saw fit to honor our parent company, General Telephone & Electronics Corp., and the Kudner Agency, for an ad which the Southwest Company also chose to run," according to E. H. Danner, president of General Telephone of the Southwest.

Visiting here on Tuesday of last week with Mrs. Leonard Wilson were Mrs. J. G. Clifton of Dumas, Mrs. Lloyd Miller of Hartley, and Mrs. Hartsell Wright of Clayton, N. M.

Need For Youth Counselors Cited By State Director

Due to anticipated expansions in youth counseling services, the Texas Employment Commission will need many new employment counselors in several areas of the state. Russell E. Shrader, director of the Merit System Council in Austin, said these specialized, professional positions requiring college graduation with a major course of study in fields dealing with people.

Employment counselors are responsible for work involving the rendering of an effective counseling service by analyzing unusual applicant-employment problems and needs, assisting applicants in making a vocational choice, developing an employment plan, and assisting applicants in making job adjustments which will increase their opportunity for successful employment. The appointments will be made from registers which are established through open-competitive examinations. Shrader said that qualified persons, male and female, interested in this challenging counseling opportunity should visit the nearest local office of the Texas Employment Commission or write the Merit System Council, Post Office Box 1389 in Austin for additional information. He added that the entrance salary is $453 per month and that salary advancement and promotional opportunities are excellent.
