Hall Cotton Producers To Receive $3 Million

CORNER STONE—This corner stone, laid by the Memphis Masonic Lodge on Oct. 12, 1905 in the old Masonic Lodge Hall located on the north side of the square in Memphis, will be removed in ceremonies conducted by the Masonic Lodge next Thursday, April 14. The old building is being torn down now. The stone does have a vault and numerous items of historic value will be removed. The exact time of the ceremony Thursday has not been set as yet, it was reported.

Hall County cotton producers who signed up to participate on 822 farms in the 1966 cotton diversion program will receive $3,023,000 in price support and diversion payments during 1966, Lynn L. McKown, Office Manager of the Hall County ASCS, announced today.

All of Hall County's cotton allotment except 1.7 acres has been signed up to participate in diversion programs for 1966. The 822 farms signed up under the program will receive an average payment of $3,677.00 in income support on cotton for 1966.

The new four-year farm income support program will be operative for the first time in 1966. Under this program farmers of Hall County will receive over 4 and one-half million dollars ($4,500,000) in direct payments on cotton, wheat, feed grain, CR and CAP during 1966. As direct payments in most cases is net to the producers and a guaranteed, the effect on the county's economy will be stabilizing, McKown said.

A Salute To Texas Industry

This week, April 1-7, has been set aside as Texas Industrial Week, and Governor John Connally has asked the citizens of Texas to give due recognition to the industry of our State. We join with the local chamber of commerce to strive to demonstrate how a favorable business climate and the promise of increased profits can affect the growth and expansion of existing industry and encourage new industries to locate in Texas.

When industry makes profits, the employees benefit because of the direct influence of profits on jobs, for profits enable a company to expand, hence creating new and better jobs. Shareholders benefit for obvious reasons, customers benefit because they help to improve the general business climate that raises our living standards.

For this reason, we should heed the words of Governor Connally in his official proclamation of Texas Industrial Week. "Industrial Week gives us the opportunity to show appreciation to Texas industry through the promotion, display and purchase of products manufactured in this State. Therefore, I, as Governor of Texas, urge all citizens to give due recognition to this vital segment of our economy."

Last year was a big year for industrial expansion in Texas; 485 plants expanded and 326 new plants were announced. Manufacturing firms created 22,000 new jobs in Texas during 1965. Governor Connally reminded us recently that "Texas is one of the fastest growing states. It's now fifth, maybe fourth, in population. Employment is high, unemployment is low and development and expansion continue unabated."

Texas, located on the northern shores of the Gulf of Mexico, is immediately available to South and Central American markets, and, situated about midway east and west in the continental United States, is readily accessible to domestic markets. The State is blessed with an excellent quality of labor, good ports, excellent transportation, and an abundance of natural resources. These conditions suggest a bright industrial future for Texas.

What does all this have to do with Hall County, located in the southeastern part of the Texas Panhandle? We think the answer is obvious.

To start with, Memphis is fortunate to have located on big industry plant here to go with the agricultural industries already located, or recently located in our midst. Because of this and other factors, Hall County has shown a population increase from 7,322 in 1960 to 7,744 as of April 1, 1965, as estimated by the Population Research Center, Department of Sociology, The University of Texas.

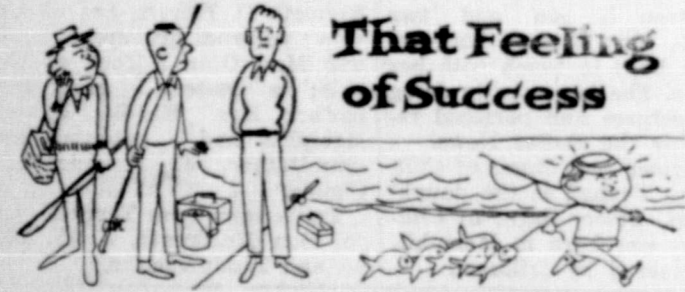

County citizens might be interested to know that our neighbors aren't doing so well, population-wise. During the same period, Childress County lost 884 residents; Collingsworth is estimated to have lost 393 persons; Cottle has lost 178 persons. Briscoe and Donley Counties are estimated to have gained a slight number during the five-year period.

For any area to grow and prosper, during these times, business and agriculture is being asked to diversify its efforts. Our area must do whatever is possible to find new products and markets, to encourage industrial growth, and to make our communities better places in which to live.

During this special week, we want to salute our industries, large or small, and say we appreciate their efforts in expansion which creates more jobs for our citizens.

Memphis and Hall County has made some kind of a name for itself as a community and area interested in progress. The improvements seen in the face of our area during the past five years is almost unbelievable, especially compared with any other five-year period in our history.

This year, 1966, will be another growing year for this area. Plans are on the board for many, many improvements, and in some instances, contracts have already been let and work has been begun.

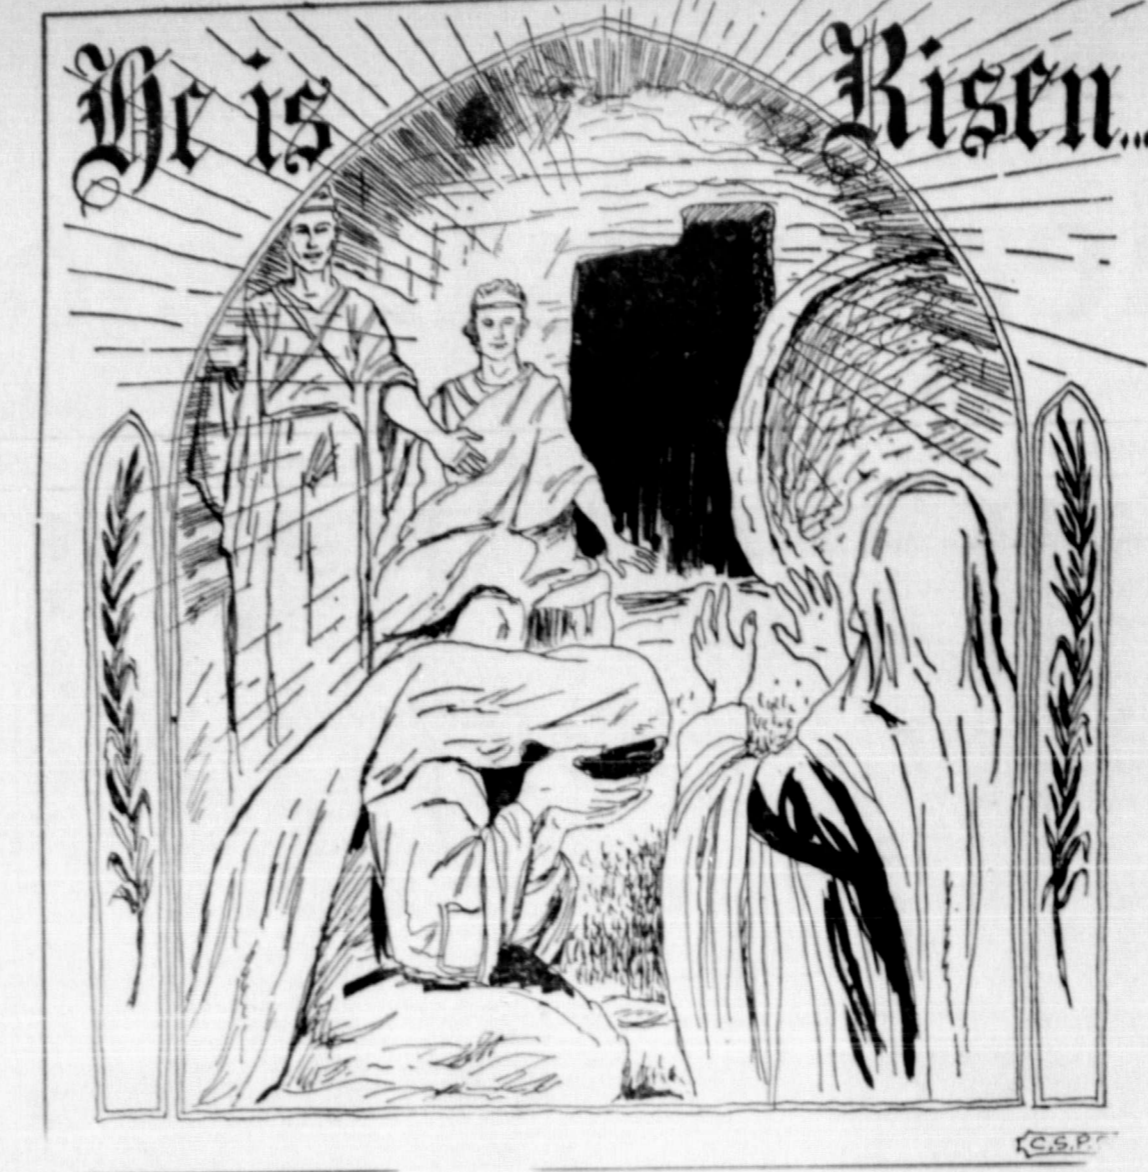

Success can be rewarding. In some cases, luck may be a factor but, as a general rule, initiative, knowledge, hard work and stick-to-it determination are pretty important.

The successful local merchant, for example, has built his business through a constant effort to meet a particular need within the community on a continuing basis. He knows he must be alert to the changing needs of his customers, to technical changes relative to the products or services that he sells. He knows that he must provide full service and full satisfaction today in order to merit more business tomorrow.

Whatever your needs, be knowledgeable. Consult the tradesman, the professional repair or fix-it expert, or the salesman who has, through proven ability, established a place for himself in the business community.

ACROSS the DESK

What Other Editors Say

The Price Of Pessimism

Perennial pessimism sprouts in the cotton country as surely as January follows December . . . and it comes at about the same time each year. Cochran County, unfortunately, is not exempt from the aches and pains that accompany this malady.

The aches are the belly-aches that are heard as the cry for the land. "The new cotton program is gonna ruin us," or "This country's gonna blow away this year if we don't get some rain." The pains are felt by everyone, for nothing destroys confidence so quickly as pessimism. It is reflected in the tone of the community and even in the trade that is conducted.

This country does not need moisture . . . all the time. And it is suffering from a detrimental cotton program. But this country was settled by tough people and those who remain mentally tough can survive and prosper.

Cotton isn't the only crop that can be grown here. There are many others and their potential should be fully explored by those who want to stay in agri-business. This country offers much for those who would like to feed cattle commercially. The climate is mild and there is plenty of feed available. Fruit, vegetables and nuts would flourish in Cochran County. There are several forage crops that would cover and protect the land and yield cash returns.

Other parts of the South Plains are learning to survive without cotton as the only crop. Cochran County has an abundance of land, water and good farmers. They, too, can divorce themselves from a complete dependence upon King Cotton. Help is available from such sources as the Hi Plains Research Foundation and the Texas A&M Experiment Station, not to mention the local County Agent.

But, as much as anything else, Cochran County needs to return to optimism and reality.

Cochran County is a good place to live. It is blessed in so many ways and it offers a potential beyond the dreams of any of us. But its full potential can be realized only if all its citizens, farmers and ginners and businessmen and housewives, will take an optimistic outlook and encourage the diversification that is necessary for survival. Cotton no longer is king, but there are so many other market demands that its abdication need not be fatal.—Morton Tribune.

Weather Control
The day may be coming—and coming soon—when man will have greater control over weather. He already has achieved some control, although he doesn't use it very often.

The National Academy of Sciences and the National Science Foundation recently urged a far greater expenditure of federal seeds may be released from the ground and carried into the cloud by wind.

If the conditions are favorable, tiny droplets of water from the cloud collect around each "seed" and fall to the earth as rain or snow.

Cloud seeding methods have also been used to get rid of fog and to prevent fruit trees and other crops from being damaged by wind and hail. By seeding the clouds before they reach an area with valuable crops, experts can sometimes reduce the strength of a storm and save crops from harm.

Although the seeding process has been known for more than a decade, it is not often used. For instance, no seeding was attempted during New York's critical water shortage last summer.

Scientists hope to see greater use of the weather-control techniques we already have. They also hope that more money spent on research will lead to other and more effective ways of controlling weather.

Mark Twain said, "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

Modern science already is doing something about it — and hopes to do more.—Briscoe County News.

Our Basic Heritage, Is Vital Future Of County's Livestock

By BILL COMBS
is our basic heritage. Of plant families in the grass is the most essential Texas' greatest resource the most neglected and situation as it was before the rancher invested a lot of money, time and energy.

Several county farmers and ranchers are in the process of planting grasses Howard Carleton, range conservationist, reported. These are: J. A. Burk of Parnell, Roland Salmon of Lakeview, U. F. Coker, Jr. of Turkey, Lyman Davenport of Lakeview, Stacey Waites, west of Memphis, Guy Smith, south of Memphis, and Clyde Johnson of Turkey.

One of the keys to successful range management is knowing your range grasses. All grasses are not the same. Some are heavy forage producers, some are light; some grow in the winter, others in the summer; some are shallow rooted, some deep rooted; some are liked by livestock, others are not. Knowing range grasses is the foundation of the ranching business as a rancher is in the grass business and uses livestock to harvest what he produces. The measuring stick in the ranching enterprise is in terms of beef produced and not in the number of head grazed.

The rancher must know the kinds of plants growing on his rangeland and the kinds of plants that are adapted to his rangeland. If reseeding is necessary he should know the forage value of different plants so he may select the plants that will furnish the most grazing. The rancher must know how to properly distribute livestock for uniform use of each pasture and how to develop a grazing system that will keep livestock numbers and forage in balance.

Practices such as those Montgomery has carried out are eligible for cost-share assistance under the Great Plains Program according to Howard Carleton, Range Conservationist, assisting the Hall County Soil Conservation District in Memphis. Technical assistance is also available from the Soil Conservation Service in Memphis to help livestock men develop a plan that will be the most efficient and give the greatest economic returns.

A little authority affects some men more than strong drink.

NATIVE GRASSES—Joe Montgomery and Henry D. Gregory, work unit conservationist of the Hall County Soil Conservation District, examine a pasture of native grass described as excellent condition rangeland that has been converted from cropland. This rangeland is located about four miles south of Memphis, contains 220 acres and the grass planted included Indian grass, Sandlove grass and Sideoats Grama.

SEN. JACK HIGHTOWER Announces For State Senator

State Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon today formally announced his candidacy in the Democratic Primary for re-election to a second term in the Texas Senate. He seeks election in the new 30th Senatorial District which includes Hall County.

Senator Hightower, 39, was the choice of a wide margin of voters in 1964 to succeed the well-known Sen. George "Cotton" Moffett of Chillicothe, longtime agricultural leader. During his first term in the Senate, Sen. Hightower became well-known as an effective and dedicated legislator. He has achieved the enviable record of appointment as chairman of an important committee and a member of twelve of the Senate's committees, some of the most important of which are: Water and Conservation; Finance; State Affairs; Counties, Cities and Towns; and Agriculture and Livestock. He has been named by the Lieutenant Governor to two interim committees to make studies of the Texas Election Laws and the needs of the Nursing Profession in Texas. The findings and recommendations of these committees will be made to the next legislature.

Senator Hightower's distinguished service earned his appointment by Governor Connally as a delegate to the Southern Regional Education Board Conference on Higher Education. His effectiveness has been fully demonstrated in his support of important legislative measures concerning water and soil conservation, education, law enforcement, water and air pollution, health, etc.

Senator Hightower has an impressive record of public service. He served two years in the Texas House of Representatives and seven years as District Attorney. In 1957 he was appointed by the Governor to the Texas Law Enforcement Study Commission, and at the time of his election to the Texas Senate, was vice-chairman of the Board of Regents of Midwestern University.

A native of Memphis, Texas, where his mother, Mrs. Walter Hightower, still resides, Sen. Hightower moved to Vernon in 1951 to begin the practice of law upon his graduation from Baylor University. He served in the U. S. Navy during World War II.

He is a leader in civic, religious and fraternal affairs on the local and state level. His wife, the former Colleen Ward, is a native of Tullia, Texas, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward of that city. They have three daughters, Ann, 13, Amy, 9, and Allison, 6.

The recent Supreme Court decision concerning redistricting caused a major rearrangement of Senatorial Districts in West Texas. The new 30th district now contains 90 thousand voters, approximately 60 per cent of whom live in that part of the new district heretofore represented by Senator Hightower and approximately 40 per cent live in that part of the district heretofore represented by another Senator.

"In order to properly represent the people a Senator should know them, their problems and their needs. I have been privileged to know many people all over the wide area that is now the 30th District. I hope to become better acquainted with many hundreds more during this campaign. My promise is to serve you sincerely," Senator Hightower said.

Senator YARBOROUGH'S REPORT

Dear Fellow Texan:

During the last two Congresses, your National government has taken great steps in improving education in the United States. Through these programs, we in Texas have been one of the main states whose educational opportunities have been improved by these numerous federal programs. That is because Texas was one of the main states that had been lagging behind in education and with this federal aid we have been moving forward.

But, now, many of the educational programs are being threatened by the Bureau of the Budget which has recommended to the Congress that the money be cut back sharply. As your United States Senator I pledge to you that I will oppose any such crippling cuts of our educational programs at the very time when education is the most important factor in the progress and growth of our Nation.

The Bureau of the Budget has recommended across the board cuts in almost every educational program, and if these cuts were carried out, they would badly cripple our educational program and our educational progress.

The Bureau of the Budget has recommended that the National Defense Education Act loans for college students, under which more than 800,000 students have received a college education in this country (over 40,000 of them in Texas), be cut from $180 million to only $30 million a year. I strongly protested such a move on the floor of the Senate earlier this month, because the private financing of student loan funds simply cannot take the place of the great NDEA loans. The Bureau of the Budget has school milk program and I will fight any attempt to destroy the effectiveness of these programs by these drastic cuts by the bureaucrats. The elected Congress has set up these good educational programs but the bureaucrats who don't get elected and don't go see the people are trying to cut them out.

These Federal programs of the past few years have been tremendous steps forward in the development of this great Nation, and we in the Congress must not let the Bureau of the Budget cripple them now.

I will fight these destructive efforts and I will support legislation to maintain our aid to land-grant colleges, our impacted areas, our school lunch and our school milk programs, and our student loan programs under the National Defense Educational Act.

It might be a good idea for somebody to get up a poll to see how much attention people pay to polls.

falo . . . and More." She told how cash for supplies to our mission fields is being used to buy equipment that is so badly needed.

One missionary wrote from Pakistan: "I have used all of the life-saving equipment with which your gifts supplies me. Many children are able to study now with their new glasses of which they are so proud and which they could not have bought. In the cold months many are warm in your sweaters and there are more to be distributed. Some have learned more about their religion through the beautiful slides shown on the new projector, possible because of your gifts.

"I must confess that the money for goats was misappropriated. We bought a water buffalo, for it seemed the wiser thing at the moment. Now every day there is milk for more than 30 children who would not otherwise have had any. If you could see their round fatness now and had seen them before, you would rejoice."

Through the courtesy of Mrs. W. F. McElreath, a film was shown entitled, "What Happened to Hannah." Mrs. McElreath's niece, Margaret Gowan Whitney, bought this film and wanted to share it with other societies. It was very entertaining and portrayed a challenge to all concerned church members. Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association
AUSTIN, Tex. — Texas has 615,000 new voters as a result of the March 3-17 free registration period. Turnout was six times larger than state officials had predicted and could be an indicator of a coming new era in Texas politics. More than half the total came from four big counties—Harris with an estimated 100,000; Dallas with 96,017; Bexar with 88,000 and Tarrant with 50,662. gubernatorial candidate Stan C. action resulting from the poll tax suit and force reopening of the registration period. The are urging the court to allow registration up until 30 days before each election.

Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr is strongly opposing the motion—arguing that all Texans interested in voting this year had ample opportunity to sign up during the 15-day period provided by the Legislature.

Federal judges have promised a decision—after they review evidence—on whether the period should be lengthened.

Carr has submitted a 7,500-page report (including 3,500 newspaper articles from 500 Texas newspapers) to support his claim that everybody who wants to vote got a chance to qualify.

APRIL ALLOWABLE RAISED—Texas Railroad Commission, at a time when oil demand usually lightens, has raised statewide oil allowance for April to 33.7 per cent of potential.

Increase was the seventh straight monthly boost. Only once before in the last 20 years has April allowable been higher than March.

New allowable permits maximum production of 3,199,550 barrels a day. March operation is under 33.2 per cent of potential factor, permitting production of 3,170,316 barrels daily.

FEDERAL FUNDS—Texans have to have eight new programs approved by the federal government by April 1 to launch a venture to promote technical services for business and industry.

Under the State Technical Services Act of 1965, programs approved by the U. S. Department of Commerce would make available new scientific and technological discoveries to inquiring businesses, industries and commercial enterprises.

Texas now is seeking $144,000 for the last quarter of this year to get the requested programs started at Texas Woman's University, University of Texas, Texas A&M University and Southern Methodist University.

Federal funds fully support these eight fields have been suggested in proposals submitted to the Commerce Department:

Texas A&M—Training formation specialists, chemical engineer workshop; electronic corporation managers, primary metal industry and petroleum industry workshops.

University of Texas—Continuing education for engineers.

Southern Methodist—Technical information services, North Texas.

Texas Woman's University — Activation analysis workshop.

DRAFT QUOTA DOWN—Col. Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective director, says 979 men will be called to fill the April draft quota. This is the lowest call since August, 1965.

Monthly calls in the period from September through March ranged from a low of 1,068 to a high of 1,523.

Pre-induction physical and mental examinations will be given to 3,005 men during April. This also is a reduction from March, when 5,515 were tested.

During the same period, he said, men classified as students rose from 85,000 to 104,000. At the end of January, there were 106,000 men classified in 2-S as students.

EDUCATION COMMISSIONER NAMED—Dr. Jack Kenny Williams, Clemson University dean and academic vice president, is Texas' new Commissioner of Higher Education, at a $40,000-a-year salary.

Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System unanimously selected Dr. Williams, offering him $15,000 more than the governor makes. Some $17,500 of the total salary will come from private foundations or from members of the coordinating board itself. On August 1 Dr. Williams will assume his far-ranging duties—coordinating activities and planning of 22 state-supported senior colleges and universities and 32 public junior colleges.

Board set hearings for April 4 on staff recommendations for new role and scope of state educational institutions to overhaul and strengthen the system. Final decision is due April 18. East Texas State University is protesting proposed loss of its doctoral programs and reduction to college classification. Texas Southern University wants to hand onto its law school, which the Board staff feels should be eliminated.

After requesting an attorney general's opinion on its responsibilities to pass on college buildings financed by general revenue, Board approved $1,800,000

Effective April 1, I have sold the Lakeview Insurance Agency to Lester H. Campbell.

After spending approximately 42 years in the insurance business, I find it difficult to express my appreciation to the many loyal friends and customers who have favored me with their business over these many years. - Assist in the planning of community development and improvement programs and in making community audits, surveys and analyses.
- Assist in forming industrial foundations and districts, in selecting plant sites, and advising on planning
- Assist in preparing statistical data, advertising material, and in organizing and training industrial teams.
- In industrial development, we prepare market analyses for prospects, make detailed studies on factors affecting plant site location, and make personal calls on prospects for the communities.
- Conduct an active program of direct mail and personal calls on industries that might locate in our service area.

THE LOCAL WTU MANAGER — HIS VALUE TO YOU

- As a local businessman, along with others in the community, he is interested in its growth and development.
- He devotes his time and services on community programs and projects.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By VERN SANFORD

By VERN SANFORD
 In Texas is shrouded with so many myths and half-truths as the rattlesnake. The deadly reptile really has a reputation of an overblown reputation of a true case history.

gathered by the Texas Department of Public Health reveal that more Texans die from snakebites than from snakebite. This doesn't discourage those who preach the rattlesnake. Even though they have no real proof they continue to preach. Yet many people believe their statements as fact. There are a few of the common myths credited to the rattlesnake:

1. A mama rattlesnake will be her young upon impregnation.
 2. A rattlesnake will stretch a Manila rope around your camp at night, you're safe since no rattlesnake will over a hair rope.
 3. A large rattlesnake can ingest more than a teacup of venom.

4. Extract the fangs of a rattlesnake and it is harmless forever.
 5. Rattlesnake broth is a sure cure for pneumonia.
 6. There are many other such myths. But this sampling gives you an idea as to what many people have come to accept as fact about the rattlesnake.

7. It has gotten to the point it is difficult to distinguish from fact.
 8. For example, it is common belief that six-foot rattlesnakes are abundant, particularly in Texas—home of our big rattlers. Yet, from an advertisement in Texas Game and Fish Commission, official publication of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, a few years back, it was stated that six-foot rattlers, there is only one answer. And this is that a rattler over six feet is rare. Many people get their eyes when they see a rattler. Many a four-footer grown to six feet or more the story has been told a number of times.

9. One of the greatest fallacies of rattlers is that their true size can be determined by the number of rattles they carry. Yet a year old rattler may have 10 rattles as one four years old, the number of rattles is a very poor indication of the size of the rattler.

10. A rattler sheds his skin during the active warm-weather season. In winter it hibernates in its den and does not normally shed.
 11. It begins to shed by rubbing its mouth against some object, loosening the lip scale. Then it works the loose skin free from the head and crawls out, leaving the skin turned inside out.
 12. The rattler is a pit-viper, with the heat-detecting pit between eye and nostril.
 13. A rattler has no ears, therefore its strike is directed at a heat source and also at vibrations.
 14. Working to forget is much better than forgetting to work.

come a popular winter pastime throughout Texas. In some places, such as Sweetwater, rattlesnake round-ups are staged annually. They attract contestants from throughout the state as well as from other states.

Most hunters capture snakes by spraying gasoline into known rattler dens and catching the groggy reptiles after the fumes have driven them into the open. Favorite weapon is a snare. It is made from a long piece of aluminum tubing with a piece of wire double through it, leaving a loop at one end. This loop is dropped over a snake's head and the loose ends at the opposite end are pulled to draw the loop taut.

Some people even eat rattlesnake. Those who have tried it say it is fairly delectable. It tastes something like a cross between chicken and fish.

Most famous member of the Texas rattler family is the Western Diamondback. This snake has a large and heavy body and will average between three and four feet in length. A litter of young, born alive, will average about 12, but ones of 20 or more are not uncommon.

Most notable characteristics of this snake are the diamond-shaped markings along the back and the distinctive black and white rings on the tail, above the rattles.

Its head is broad, flat and triangular. Fangs are about one-half inch long and are re-curved, folding flat against the roof of the mouth. This snake can open its mouth until both lower and upper jaws are completely vertical.

Diamondbacks are responsible for more deaths than any other North American snake because they are capable of manufacturing and injecting more toxin.

A lethal dose of venom is about one drop for each 50 pounds of body weight.
 Their rattle comes from a jointed string of segments that are interlocked very loosely. Each click of the vibrations is almost heard individually when the tail vibrates slowly. But it becomes almost an incessant hum when the movement is frenzied.

Do not depend on the sound of the rattle to give warning. Some rattlers have been known to remain mute before striking; others might have lost their rattles through some mishap.

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Nematode Prevention Easier Than A Cure

Most plants grown around the home and vegetable gardens are subject to damage from plant parasitic nematodes. The most common type and perhaps the most damaging is the root knot nematode which causes knots or galls on the plant's roots. They can be controlled, says County Agent W. B. Hooser, by the use of certain chemicals and cultural practice.

Nematodes just don't happen. They are brought in on infested transplants, in contaminated soil or on equipment. They may also be carried in water washing down a hillside.

It is easier to keep nematodes away from the home grounds than to control them once they became established, explains the county agent. Their elimination is next to impossible, once they are present in damaging numbers.

Chemicals have been developed which will reduce nematode populations and permit the growing of a crop for a season. These chemicals are known as nematocides and come in gas, liquid or granular forms. The county agent says the granular form is usually more satisfactory for use around the home since they are safe to use and are not damaging to most plants.

Growers may find these materials under such trade names as Nematode Killer, Nema-X or Nema-Kill. A one-pound can will usually treat about 120 linear feet of row space or 120 square feet in a block, says Mr. Hooser.

In the vegetable garden, the material should be applied in a trench 6 to 8 inches deep and immediately covered with soil. Gardeners are reminded that these materials are toxic to plants of the onion family and should not be used on rows where these crops are to be planted. Label instructions should be carefully followed, says the county agent.

When plants in the home landscape need treating, Hooser suggests punching holes or digging a trench around the plant's base and applying the recommended dosage. Follow with a generous watering. Use the chemicals at the start of the growing season. For more details, a visit with the county agent is suggested.

It's a sign of prosperity when men's pants sag at the pockets instead of the knees.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

As the Texas Panhandle is beset by the onslaught of threatening weather, as well as wild flowers in pastures, and warm winds, As every resident knows, spring is the year's most violent time to pay tribute to the weather. It is an honor and women who serve in the country weather observation stations of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

time in service to their communities. The Weather Bureau does not hesitate to say that the entire climatological program for Texas is dependent upon the cooperation of these volunteer weather observers for its success. Receiving no monetary compensation and using instruments furnished by the Weather Bureau, the cooperative observers maintain and report daily observations.

The Panhandle is honored to claim as a native son the cooperative observer who has served longer in his post than any individual in Texas, past or present. He is Mr. J. J. McMicken of Memphis who began as an observer in April, 1907, and has now served continuously for 58 years. The cooperative weather station at Memphis was established at the Fort Worth & Denver Railway station at Memphis in July, 1905, and Mr. Micken—then 16 years old—went to work at the station office in December, 1906. Four months later the station agent gave him the job of keeping the weather records—which he has done ever since. Mr. McMicken is the holder of a 50-year service pin from the Weather Bureau, a 50-year pin from the Masonic Lodge, and a 57-year pin as a Burlington Lines employee. He retired in 1963.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"While you're wrestling with your decision I think I'll call Elsie Whitmore and see if she's got a date."

Another well known Panhandle resident with a long record of service as a cooperative observer is Edwin (Goose) Ramey of Dimmitt. Mr. Ramey has been the official weather observer at Dimmitt since January 1923. However, as far back as 1911 he was keeping unofficial records of the rainfall on his ranch.

At Muleshoe is Judge R. J. Klump, who has served as the cooperative observer there since the station was established in 1921. Judge Klump served for four years as county judge of Bailey County and also served for a number of years as city clerk at Muleshoe. There are many others in the Panhandle; Mr. McMicken, Mr. Ramey and Judge Klump are the three with 30-year records. Its more than 12,000 cooperative observers devote more than one million hours a year to observing and recording the weather. Without their observations, our knowledge of our country's climate would indeed be incomplete. All of us in business and industry, agriculture and aviation—people in every walk of life—owe a debt of gratitude to them.

Insect Control Is Needed Now For Fruit Trees

A good set of peaches and plums from the trees which are beginning to bloom isn't assured. For, points out County Agent W. B. Hooser, insects can damage the fruit or even "wipe-out" the crops if they are not controlled. Insect control on fruit trees, he adds, is largely a preventive program. Once the insects begin to cause damage, little can be done to rid the fruit of the pests and prevent further damage. Most of the common fruit damaging insects begin their activity and reproduction during the first 30-45 days after the trees begin to bloom, points out Hooser. Therefore, insecticides applied during this early period will control the insects which damage fruit later in the season.

Homeowners with a few trees are advised to follow a preventive spray program. Malathion or methoxychlor, either in the wettable powder or emulsifiable concentrate forms, are effective for controlling insects. They are not hazardous when used as directed and will not leave residue in the fruit. Both are available in numerous commercial formulations and directions for mixing and applying are given on the container label.

The county agent recommends four spray applications, timed to coincide with bloom and fruit formation. The first or petal fall spray should be applied when about three-fourths of the blossom petals have shed. The second or shuck split spray should be made about 10 days after most of the petals have shed. The third or first cover spray should follow the second spray in 10 to 14 days and fourth or second cover spray should follow the third application in 14 to 21 days.

If later infestations begin to damage the fruit, a spray containing carbaryl (Sevin) will give good control. It can be safely used on peaches and plums up to within one day before harvest. On peaches, allow 21 days between the last application of methoxychlor and harvest and 7 days for malathion. On plums allow 7 days between last application and harvest with methoxychlor and 3 days for malathion.

There are a number of bulletins and Agricultural Research studies available at the county agent's office on controlling insects and diseases on fruits and nuts. "We also have a supply of new bulletins on home gardening," says County Agent Hooser.
