Exciting Climax Seen For L. L.

The Memphis Little League season is coming to an exciting climax, with final games scheduled for Friday night.

Going into Friday night's game will be the Indians vs. the Tigers and the Yankees vs. the Giants. The possible winning of the season's championship is riding on the Yankee-Giant game.

The Giants are the first half title holders and are in position of winning the entire championship without a play-off if they defeat the Yankees tomorrow night. However, the Yankees are one-half game ahead of the Giants going into the game tomorrow, so if the Giants lose the game, the Yankees will win the second half, and a play-off game will be scheduled probably next Tuesday night around 7:30 p. m.

Last Tuesday night, the Yankees received a forfeit from the Giants and the Tigers received a forfeit from the Indians. The Giants and Indians forfeited due to too few players.

County Farmers Are Asked To Submit Nominations For ASC Committee

Farmers who are eligible to vote in the community committee elections on September 7 also have the right to nominate candidates to be entered on the ballots, Roy L. Gresham, ASC Chairman, announced today.

Nominations are by filing a petition at the ASCS Office signed by six or more farmers who are qualified voters. Each petition must be limited to one nominee each and filed not later than August 12, 1966. Nominations are invited and desired.

The committee system is the backbone of farm program, the chairman declared. With over 3 million dollars being paid to Hall County farmers in 1965, based on decisions of the elected committees, we need the best possible cross-section of farmers as committeemen to insure effective administration and the best men available to serve.

The county committees will meet with the county committee on August 12, 1966, to complete the slate of nominees to go on the ballots which will be mailed to voters on August 26. In the event you do not care to petition, you should discuss the election with your community committeemen.

The 1966 community committeemen are as follows: Lesley Community: Aubrey L. Martin, Kent D. Byars and W. Merle Lemons; Lakeview Community: W. O. Clark, James M. Richburg and J. B. Byars; Plaska Community: Worth V. Howard, Arvin H. Orr, Alvin W. Molloy; Memphis Community: Milton A. Beasley, Sr., Mack D. Richards and Clyde C. Collins; Estelline Community: R. A. The other uncompleted match is between Shields and a T.C.U. varsity tennis regular from Plainview, Pat McDavitt. The schedule of these two players could not be worked out so it is doubtful this match will be played, Bevers said. Both lads played excellent tennis reaching the finals.

Local Governments Being Studied!

The Committee for Economic Development (CED) recently released the recommendations of its committee of research and policy which has been studying local governments in this nation. The report calls for the need of revolutionary readjustment of the nation's 80,000 units of local government, designed to serve local interests more effectively and to balance central power in the federal system.

The statement entitled "Modernizing Local Government" advocates a nine-point reform program aimed at strengthening local units of government in this democracy of ours.

The nine points made by the committee are: (1) Reduce the 80,000 local governments to no more than 16,000; (2) Curtail the overlapping layers of local government now found in most states; (3) Confine popular election to members of the policy making bodies of government, severely reducing the 500,000 locally elected paid or unpaid officials; (4) Put a single chief executive (either elective or appointive) in charge of all administrative agencies and halt the election of department heads; (5) Replace the "partisan spoils system" found in most counties and many other local units with personnel practices based on merit and professional competence; (6) Increase reliance on modernized county governments (except New England) to solve the problems of rural, urban, and most metropolitan communities; (7) Give local governments, when modernized, broad legal powers to plan, finance, and execute programs suited to the needs, interests, and desires of their citizens; (8) Revamp the 50 State constitutions to provide for boundary revisions, extensions of legal authority, and elimination of needless government units; (9) Revise the terms and conditions of federal and state grants-in-aid to encourage modernization of local governments.

The question arises, do we need to revamp our local governments? To answer this, one would only have to answer a similar question, covering a more specific area: do our local governments have the power to solve their own problems, or are local governments always turning to state or national governments to solve these problems? The CED statement says, "The nation's court houses and city halls have often seemed to lack the vision and dedication—as well as the financial resources—to diagnose conditions, devise solutions, and make vigorous response. New function needed to meet new situations are neglected by most local units, and old functions are conducted without benefits of new techniques. By default, initiatives have commonly been left to more resourceful federal forces. Cost in an archaic mold, unable to cope with new issues, many, if not most—local governments are centers of strenuous resistance to change of any kind."

The costs of local governments also are rising steeply. Direct expenditures for all municipalities, counties, New England towns, townships, and special district rose from $20.1 billion in 1952 to $45.1 billion in 1962, or 124 per cent. According to the CED statement, they are likely to double again by 1972.

Federal leadership in dealing with national problems at local levels has been beneficial in many fields, the statement says. But it is time for the citizens of the 50 states "to take stock of their systems of local government in relation to urgent present and prospective needs. This involves more than an assessment of current performance. It also demands a judgment of future capabilities in planning and executing activities essential to healthy community development. As we approach the twenty-first century, weaknesses in eighteenth and nineteenth century forms must be corrected—or new systems created—if local government is to survive as a vital force."

The CED report language is especially strong in rural America where 30 per cent of the population occupy 90 per cent of the land, and support four-fifths of all local governments. The statement stresses that the 2,700 counties outside metropolitan areas should be consolidated into no more than 500 strong and effective units. The criteria used should be minimum population, accessibility to the county seat, trading and communication patterns, revenue base, and geography.

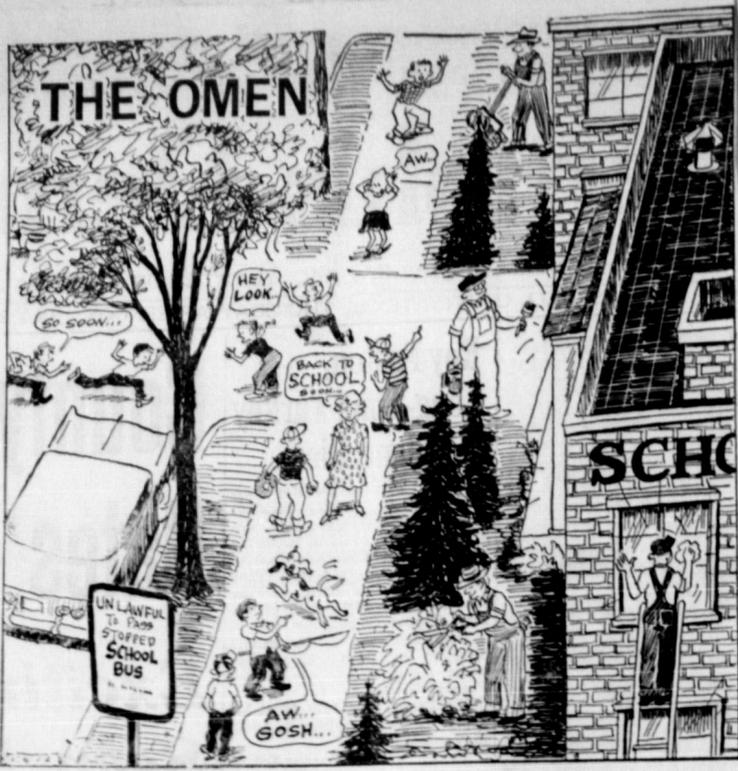

Rural townships with small population should be abolished and their function assumed by newly consolidated county governments. Most, if not all, of the 11,000 non-metropolitan villages, with fewer than 2,500 population, should disincorporate and permit a strong county government to carry on their functions. Self-governing special districts in rural areas should also be abolished and their functions should be assumed by counties.

Independent rural school districts are too small to meet the needs of the citizens, the statement says. They should be consolidated until every unified school district in the country has at least 1,500 students. The boundaries of the new consolidated districts should be coterminous with the boundaries of the restructured counties which the state calls for. These counties should then be empowered to manage the local school systems on the basis of local option.

The statement is critical of the methods generally used to finance local governments, which derive from 70 to 75 per cent of their revenues from local sources, chiefly from the property tax. Major complaints are lodged against unequal assessment and unre-assessment of personal and real property taxes, whether urban or rural.

The CED report stated that outmoded forms of local government should be abolished, realignment of boundary lines should be mandated, the state legislatures should have constitutional authority to grant home rule powers to reconstituted units.

Whether or not the CED report will have effect upon local government units or bring about changes is yet to be seen. However, if local government is to remain a vital force in our nation, changes will have to come about in one way or another.

What Other Editors Say

"And There Was Silence . . .
If you were LBJ, what would you do about Viet Nam?"

The above question was asked on the front of last week's Parade supplement to many U. S. dailies.

On several occasions in recent years we have talked to some of our top men in government, men who had decisions to make such as the one suggested in the opening sentence of this editorial. These men invariably seemed frustrated because in their own hearts they knew that there was only one answer . . . It was unthinkable to pursue but one course. Any thinking person could see it . . . certainly they could see it. Yet, somehow many sectors of public opinion, many sectors of the press, many adherents of opposing political philosophies and parties tried to make debatable an issue which was not debatable.

Almost in a frenzy, these men would ask, "WHY can't the people see the situation as it is?"

Take Viet Nam, for example. A decade or more ago the problem was in the debate stage. It was not illogical to say that "America cannot police the world, she's got to decide in which trouble spots she can afford to become involved, she's got to decide if Viet Nam is such a spot." It was not illogical in that era to suggest that we must not become involved militarily on the continent of Asia. Neither would it have been illogical to have said that we must attempt to stop Communism whenever and wherever it strikes. A decade ago it made sense to sound off one's private views on Viet Nam.

Today the scene is different. Right or wrong, we are involved militarily in Viet Nam. We have one . . . not two . . . honorable choices. That one and only choice is to achieve our announced goal . . . to persuade the Communists to retire to the North, leaving the South to decide her own fate in an honest election. Sufficient pressure can bring this about without attacking Red China directly, without nuclear bombing. While we rain punishment on the aggressor, we must at all times keep the door open for negotiation, making it as easy as possible for North Viet Nam to save face.

Once peace is restored and South Viet Nam has had a free election, we must step out, regardless of the outcome of the election, considering that the mission has been accomplished.

There have always been people who insisted on imagining the worst. If a couple announced their engagement or marriage, curious eyes watched closely for signs of pregnancy. The bride's visits to the doctor were scrutinized. Any sudden change in weight was noted. Or if the bride made a visit to her relatives out of town, unaccompanied, these same people sought signs of a separation.

During the life of President Kennedy, evil minds, no doubt jealous of his beautiful wife, were determined to promote a separation.

These people are not unlike the opposition party that ever seeks to find corruption in the ruling party. The wrongdoing of a minor clerk in a sea of offites far removed from the President is laid at the door of the White House with the implication that the President not only knew what was going on but promoted it.

Each casualty in Vietnam is considered the personal responsibility of the President . . . the direct result of his sin of commission or omission.

If business is good, it is no doubt due to an unnatural situation which the President has created to win votes in the next election. If business is bad, of course it is due to his mishandling of affairs of government.

It's a fair question which these people should be forced to answer or shut up! That question is, "If you were LBJ, what would you do about Viet Nam?"

"And there was silence in heaven for about the space of a half hour."—Tulia Herald.

WTU NOTEBOOK—PATTERNS FOR PROGRESS

INDUSTRIAL SITES AND BUILDINGS ...basic for new and expanding industry

Industries' requirements for land and buildings are one of their most important interests when selecting a town in which to operate. Each industry has its own peculiar needs. Therefore, a wide variety of different type industrial sites gives a community increased chances of obtaining new industry as well as helping its existing industry to expand. Planning and zoning by a community is important to the community as well as to industry. Land is now available in West Texas. Wise planning for the future can easily be accomplished.

INDUSTRIAL SITES — range from industrial parks, planned industrial districts, individual sites (with all utilities) to raw land to be developed. Communities desiring new industry should have the following information on firmly committed industrial sites . . .

PLATS — Showing size, shape, location of utilities, access to transportation and topography.

LOCATION — Inside or outside of the city and any zoning restrictions.

PICTURES — Aerial photos tell an excellent story on an industrial site.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDINGS — existing buildings are very important as they are usually available at a lower cost than building new ones. In addition to the above information on sites, a community should have the following information on buildings. . . .

FLOOR PLAN — Showing the size and dimensions of building, wall and ceiling heights, floor bearing capacity, office space, whether it has sprinkler system for fire protection and what type heating and air conditioning would be available.

PICTURES — Show the type construction of the building as well as many other items of information that industry would be interested in.

VIP (Very Important Part) — Have firm commitments in writing on all industrial sites and buildings as to sale price and/or lease price, cost of extending utilities or roads and basic construction costs in the area for new facilities.

Ask your WTU local manager for additional information and services available.

MHS Friends Hold 31st Annual Reunion Near Red River, N. M.

A group of Memphis High School friends enjoyed their 31st annual reunion last week near Red River, N. M., as guests of Mrs. Foster Watkins of Wichita Falls.

The group left Memphis Thursday and motored to the summer home of Mrs. J. T. Brown of Dumas, who is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Foster Watkins. The summer home is located 6 miles up in the mountains from Red River.

A most enjoyable weekend was enjoyed by the group, Mrs. Billy Thompson stated Tuesday.

"We visited Santa Fe and Taos while there and made numerous drives through the mountains on the Jeep that was at the home for mountain travel," Mrs. Thompson stated.

"Several mornings we saw deer at our door and one morning we sighted an elk. Also on the back porch was a humming bird feeder and we enjoyed watching the birds feed," she added.

They returned home Sunday night.

Enjoying the trip were Mrs. Billy Thompson and Mrs. Lester Campbell of Memphis, Mrs. Don Leary of Estelline, Mrs. Jerry Beavers of Lorenzo, Mrs. Horace Tabor, Jr., of Chillicothe, Mrs. George Short of Amarillo and Mrs. Foster Watkins of Wichita Falls.

High-frequency sounds may be used to drive bollworms from cotton fields.

Land Can Have Sunstrokes Too, Farming Can Give Protection

of the importance of the land it is wise for farmers and ranchers to "Be clean and practice litter control," states Cyril Keith of the Conservation Service.

Keith is shown in a conservation picture by Gresham inspecting a small grain residue on his farm with Cyril Keith. At this time there is about 2000 pounds of residue per acre. This will improve the soil and offer good protection from heat and water erosion.

When the temperatures are approaching the century mark as they are now, it is a good time to consider what heat can do to the soil and make plans to improve the soil through crop residue management, Keith concluded.

nitrogen producing bacteria. When the bacteria die, the crop that follows will suffer.

Crop residue management leaves part of the crop residue on the surface of the soil to keep the temperature down and aid in the control of erosion. Under average conditions it takes about 2000 pounds of crop residue per acre to maintain soil condition. It takes upward of 2500 pounds per acre to improve soil condition.

When the temperatures are approaching the century mark as they are now, it is a good time to consider what heat can do to the soil and make plans to improve the soil through crop residue management, Keith concluded.

Cotton Insect Report In Hall County Released

Early season insect populations are decreasing throughout Hall County, even though boll weevils and bollworms are building up. Early cotton in Hall County is blooming and many beneficial insects are reported.

No infestation of thrips were reported. Thrips do little damage to cotton after it reaches the six leaf stage.

Fleahopper infestations continue to be light in Hall County. Cotton producers should continue to check their fields for fleahoppers. In young cotton, 15 to 20 fleahoppers per 100 terminals is considered to be an economically important infestation. As plants increase in size and fruit load, larger populations may be tolerated without serious damage. A few fleahoppers were reported on H. A. Hodges farm two miles west of Plaska.

Bollworm populations are increasing in several fields throughout Hall County. On Troy Phillips' farm two miles southwest of Memphis, one bollworm was reported and one bollworm was reported on Jack Montgomery's farm three miles southwest of Lesley. One bollworm was reported on T. H. Gattis' farm one mile east of Brice, two percent bollworm damage was found on the J. B. Byars farm and many eggs were reported. This farm is three miles northwest of Lakeview. One percent bollworm damage was reported on Vivian Cooper's farm which is being farmed by Milton Cotton six miles southeast of Turkey.

Producers should examine the terminals (upper three to four inches of cotton plants) and squares for bollworm eggs and young bollworms. Control measures should be applied when bollworm eggs and four or five young bollworms are found per 100 terminals, or when 5 percent of the squares and bolls have been injured by small bollworms.

Overwintering bollweevils continue to be reported from several fields in Hall County. The actual numbers of weevils found in the fields being checked by the Rolling Plains Survey Teams decreased with a few exceptions during the past week. This is due to the dying off of overwintering weevils and the lapse of time before emergence of the first generation this year.

One percent punctured squares from boll weevils were reported on Troy Phillips' farm two miles southwest of Memphis. He also has a lot of beneficial insects. Two percent punctured squares from boll weevils were reported on T. H. Gattis' farm one mile east of Brice. Boll weevils were reported on Wayne Hutcherson's farm five miles south of Memphis. Three percent punctured squares from boll weevils were reported on M. A. Beasley's farm one mile east of Memphis.

Light infestation of square borers, cabbage loopers, plant bugs (Lygus, Stink bugs, rapid plant bugs) have been observed in several fields.

Grasshoppers continue to cause light damage to cotton fields, and they are destroying the native pastures in Hall County.

For control recommendations, please refer to L-508, Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects in the Rolling Plains of Texas. Copies of this guide may be picked up at your county agricultural agent office.

The information used in this cotton insect report was compiled from reports received from Rolling Plains Survey Teams, Extension Entomologist and County Agricultural Agent W. B. Hooser.

LITTERBUG—Pictured above is Roy Gresham, who farms south of Memphis, and Cyril Keith (right) a Soil Conservation Service technician, examining residue cover on Gresham's wheat field. Gresham harvested 20 bushels per acre from the field after allowing winter grazing by cattle. Keith states that leaving residue on top of the soil has many advantages even though it appears to be litterbugging.

Whatever your plans for the summer, may I suggest you include tickets to the historical musical drama now showing in the Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon. I know it is a two hour drive from Memphis but you will agree with me on your return that it was worth the effort.

The excellence of the story, the choreography, and music make it a well rounded production depicting the history of the settling of Texas in an early day. It is a family show, delightful entertainment for old and young alike.

The drama will be showing every night in the week except Tuesday through Labor Day in September. Plan to be at the park gate by 7:30. You will then have

In Palo Duro Canyon Spectacular Experience

Virginia Browder has various and sundry 'summer fun'. Andy of the old time comic strip of a six day bicycle vacation is about to be shown. Some one else opined that a vacation was when a fellow drove a thousand miles to see a picture made alongside there was the Sunday wrote:

"I dreamed of a trip to Bermuda But I could never scrape up the fare.

So, I appeased my longing by munching

An onion that came from there."

Whatever your plans for the summer, may I suggest you include tickets to the historical musical drama now showing in the Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon. I know it is a two hour drive from Memphis but you will agree with me on your return that it was worth the effort.

The excellence of the story, the choreography, and music make it a well rounded production depicting the history of the settling of Texas in an early day. It is a family show, delightful entertainment for old and young alike.

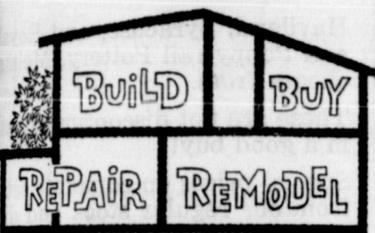

The drama will be showing every night in the week except Tuesday through Labor Day in September. Plan to be at the park gate by 7:30. You will then have

WORSHIP

"O come, let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord, our Maker!"—Psalms 95:6

The longer we live, the more we come to the belief that our stay upon earth is all too short. It is usually that our stay upon earth is all too short. It is usually in the Golden Years, when time has for the most part been spent, that more and more we turn our footsteps to the chosen place of worship.

There is time, in the days of youth, to give more to God . . . a moment or two, here and there . . . a prayerful pause in the midst of a working day.

Try it, now and then. You may be sure that God will hear.

An Erstwhile Giles Native Visits Canada

By VIRGINIA BROWDER

Three years ago, Mrs. Cordia Levi, and her mother, Mrs. J. O. Stotts, moved to Memphis from Giles where they had spent many years. During those years, they had seen the Giles community, grow, thrive, and dwindle until only a few houses, their among them, remained. Since moving to Memphis, Mrs. Stotts has passed away, leaving her daughter alone. Having been no farther from home than Amarillo in several years, Mrs. Levi was a bit reluctant to accept the treat offered by her brother, Dick Stotts of that city, to make a trip to Calgary, Canada, with himself and wife, Christine. Finally, she did consent to join them and had a wonderful trip.

Dick Stotts has for several years sold horses to Jerry D'Arcy, who is known around Calgary as "the Canadian with the Texas drawl". He and his wife, both natives of Denison, Texas, have spent the past 12 years on a ranch near Calgary in Alberta Province. Besides horses, Mr. D'Arcy has oil, cattle, and wheat interests in that area of North America.

Leaving Amarillo July 5, with a trailer and horse in tow, our three travelers had journeyed more than five thousand miles before their return to that city three weeks later. En route north through Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana, they stopped at the site of Custer's Last Stand near Billings, Montana, and visited two coal mines in that state. So vast are the rolling grassland and so sparsely settled that Montana is known as "the big sky country". The second night out, our travelers were crossing into Canada and stopped over at the port of entry, Sweetgrass, Canada.

The people of the Province of Alberta are concerned mostly with wheat farming and ranching interests but the majesty and beauty of the Rockies and lakes form a complex of national parks second to none other on the continent of North America, with deer, antelope, and bears roaming at will.

The Dick Stotts threesome marveled at the magnificence of Lake Louise and the plush tourist haven of Baniff but the highpoint of their trip, of course, was the Calgary "Stampede", a once-in-a-lifetime thrill. Opening on Monday, July 10, and running for a week this top-flight rodeo show is a "wild and woolly" spectacular on the open range with bleachers to seat 124,000 spectators. The enclosure fence is so far away as to be hardly visible from the grandstands and it is impossible to keep up with all that goes on inside and outside of the huge arena.

Horse races are spiced in between the rodeo events and the chuck wagon derby raises the spectators out of their seats. With two men in the driver's seat of the wagon, two or three outriders with each wagon and all running at top speed, overturned wagons, pile-ups of men, horses and riders are an everyday occurrence in this western "chariot race".

Two other rather rugged events are the wild cow milking and the "wild steer decorating contest". Of course, for all events, the purses run in thousands of dollars. The wild milk cows are turned into the arena and the riders all roping at once must rope a cow, milk two inches of milk into a bottle and return to the judge to win. The steer-decorating is similar to our bulldogging in Texas as rodeos only the rider falls off on the steer from his horse and ties a ribbon on his horn.

Hundreds of people from the United States and many foreign countries attend this gala celebration each year. This year, Burl Ives and James Drury (The Virginian) were among the notables in the audience. Literally thousands thrill to the phenomenal feats of horsemanship and are delighted by the beauty and precision of the colorful musical drill of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, which is a feature of the show. The Indians, too, in their ceremonial regalia add glamour and dignity to the parade and remind the onlookers of another day and time when they roamed the prairies and hunted the buffalo while they were plentiful before the white man discovered America.

Though the trip was wonderful and the country magnificent, Mrs. Levi and the Stotts were happy to be back in Texas where the days were not so long and there was more night time for sleeping. In July in Alberta Province, the sun rises at 3:30 a. m. and sets at 9:30 p. m. Of course, during a celebration such as the Calgary Stampede, no one wants to sleep anyway, but when the smoke of festivity clears away, only a genius like Thomas A. Edison could do with five hours of sleep. So, maybe the joy of the trip after all is the homecoming.

TELL THE PANHANDLE STORY

Headlines about the news of America's largest cities show a picture of a city in a state of strife, rising crime rates, air and water pollution, inadequate transportation systems, overcrowded schools and hospitals, strained municipal treasuries. As I noted in this newsletter several weeks ago, money is a pressing problem for city governments and the Nation's cities have turned with increasing pressure to the Federal Government in an effort to obtain assistance in solving their problems. Meanwhile, the cities compete actively to attract new industries to provide new jobs for their growing populations and to increase new tax revenues. Cities such as New York are working with business leaders to hold the business-industrial base already developed, and to broaden it.

There are no easy answers to the problems cities face, but it is apparent that millions of residents of huge metropolitan areas, in the city cores and suburbs, desire improvements in the quality of their living. Many of these Americans were attracted to the cities in the first place because the economic opportunities were less attractive in the rural areas and small towns they had called home.

In my views, there is increasing opportunity for areas such as our Texas Panhandle to attract the new business and industry on which a regional economy can be strengthened. We have the people, the community leadership, the climate, the transportation structure, the recreational opportunity (so greatly augmented by Lake Meredith and other water projects being developed or in the planning stage), the pleasant life of friendly cities and towns where families can put down roots and feel at home. And we have the rich mineral and agricultural resources that provide the essential raw materials for numerous industrial enterprises.

With local chambers of commerce taking the lead, communities across the Panhandle are scouting for businessmen and industrialists who wish to relocate facilities or build new ones. The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, to cite an example, has prepared a very attractive brochure based on a recent "Texas Parade" magazine article, "Amarillo: Space to Space Age." With many color photographs and drawings, the brochure's last page notes that Amarillo is the fastest growing metropolitan market in the Southwest, with a growth rate increase of 22.9 percent from 1960 to 1965. The Panhandle area as a whole can speak in the same terms. Along with chambers of commerce, the utility companies, rural electric cooperatives, banks and other enterprises are working hard to bring industrial development. In my own conversations with business leaders, I have found growing interest for the possibilities of developing new facilities in our area. On the State level, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and the Texas Industrial Commission pursue the search for new business and industrial development.

It is possible that Congress may next year consider some form of incentive plan to assist new plant construction in areas primarily rural in character. Legislation may be proposed providing Federal income tax incentives for such development, although such a measure would be almost certain to draw opposition from huge cities and their Representatives. However, the precedent for tax write-off approaches was set some years ago by Congress in approving a bill advocated by the Defense Department to help disperse defense industries from areas regarded as prime targets in event of enemy nuclear attack.

A good, healthy trend toward non-urban plant locations is developing. All of us need to keep telling the wonderful Panhandle story, and the story of our own towns and cities.

Student Art Show Is Well Received Sunday

By VIRGINIA BROWDER
Those who failed to attend the student art show at The Community Center Sunday afternoon, July 24, missed a real treat. When eighteen students of a local artist, Aulis Ayers, presented a creditable display of their paintings for public approval.

It has been several years since the Memphis citizenry has been given the opportunity to view and appreciate the "budding" talents of amateur artists of the area. The word "budding" is advisedly used as most of the painters had not held an artist's brush until a few months ago.

While canvas board, burlap and other background materials were used, the pictures were all done in the medium of oil paints. Some used a flowing technique, while others used a dry brush or palette knife treatment. An interesting feature of the exhibit was the variety of subjects employed by the artists under the capable guidance of their instructor, of course. Seascapes, landscapes, still-life and caricatures were cleverly hung for display on an improvised semi-circular gallery of white picket fence . . . with chairs in the center for the viewer's comfort.

More than 100 visitors sipped punch and enjoyed an exhibit of 150 paintings and inscribed favorable comments besides their signatures as they departed.

An artist's palette of styrofoam with multi-colored carnations simulating brushes was the tea table's centerpiece.

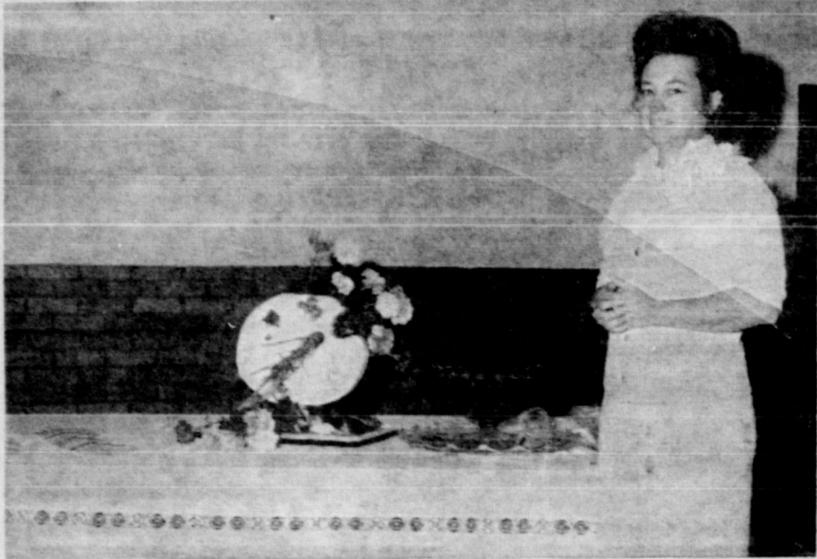

Not all of Aulis' art students exhibited their works, but both the teacher and her students are to be highly commended for their artistic achievements.

Students exhibiting their work were Inez Mason, Louise Howell, Bonnie Wilson, Opal Curry, Lola Jewel of Hedley, Lois Parks, Helen Combs, Angie Jennings, Eleanore Stuckey, Ethel Kinslow of Hedley, Gladys Longshore, Nelda Bray, Ellen Sams of Lakeview, Grace Ogden Fitzgerald, and Doris Hickey.

CARD OF THANKS
Our heartfelt thanks to all who extended comforting sympathy and help during our recent sorrow. We are deeply grateful for the floral offerings, good and other kindnesses. May God bless each of you.

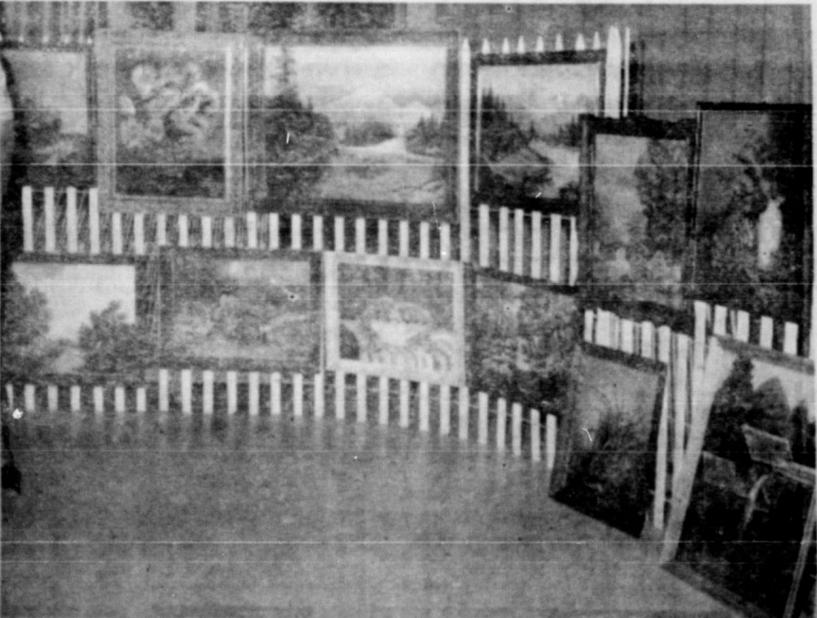

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Graham
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Driver
Mr. and Mrs. Lester Graham
