River License School To Be Held Here Soon

Sheriff Elmer Neel announced that the Texas Department of Public Safety will conduct a five-day Driver License School August 17 through August 20.

Classes will meet from 8 to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday in the Councilroom at Community Center in Memphis.

Sheriff Neel said the school obtained for Memphis as a part of the County's effort to reduce the number of unlicensed drivers operating vehicles and to improve the employment prospects of many unlicensed drivers.

The School is intended as an opportunity for persons who do not presently have drivers licenses to obtain them or to assist in same. Classes will be conducted in such a manner as to allow persons who can read or write to qualify for a license upon successfully passing the test administered by the Department of Public Safety. Persons holding a valid drivers license are also invited to attend school to increase and better their knowledge of the rules of the road, according to Sheriff Neel. The School is free with the expense involved being that of obtaining the license. Operators of motor vehicles attending this school should be in a better position to pass their license test and should not have any trouble in passing this as all questions will be covered in the school, according to Department of Public Safety personnel.

W. B. Hooser Returns From State Meeting

An estimated 600 persons including Hall County Agricultural Agent, W. B. Hooser, County Agents from other Texas counties, associates and assistants attended the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association Meeting at Longview, Texas on August 3 and 4.

According to Hopkins County Agricultural Agent Paul D. Herschler, chairman of the annual meeting committee, the event ranks high among the professional improvement activities of the association. "Not only," he said, "do we get an opportunity to visit and compare notes with one another but we also have with us our state administrators from Texas A&M University as well as leaders from business, industry and state government as speakers. This enables us to better know what is taking place over the state and nation and aids materially in planning our county programs."

Dr. H. O. Kunkel, A&M's dean of agriculture and acting director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Dr. John E. Hutchison, director of the state's Agricultural Extension Service, addressed the conference. Gregg County Judge Henry Atkinson welcomed the group to Longview at the first general assembly on Monday morning.

The highlight of the meeting came Tuesday evening when the Association named "Men of the Year in Texas Agriculture" and the Distinguished Service Award winners from among the county agents are honored. Speaker at the banquet was State Representative John Allen of Longview. He was introduced by Hon. A. M. (Continued on Page 10)

Surveying To Begin Soon On Lakeview Watershed

"I Wonder" Baptist Youth Choir Gives Musical Sat.

The Youth Choir of the First Baptist Church, by popular request, will present the musical, "I Wonder" a Christian musical by Ronald K. Wells, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday, Aug. 8, at the Memphis High School Auditorium.

The Choir, under direction of Ed Shubert, has just finished a seven-day tour of a four-state area presenting the musical as an evangelistic crusade to spread the peace with Jesus Christ.

The first performance of the musical was given by the choir Sunday morning, July 26, at the church here. Additional chairs had to be moved into the Baptist Church to accommodate the audience that morning.

Since a large number of local and area citizens have requested another performance by the choir, the date of Saturday night was selected.

The public is cordially invited to attend the musical which is described as a Christian musical. An instrumental ensemble accompanies the choir and soloists.

The final document certifying that two of the five construction units of the Lakeview Watershed projects is being signed today to be turned over to representatives of the Soil Conservation Service so detailed survey work can begin by September, 1970.

At a meeting Tuesday night of the sponsors of the Lakeview Watershed it was announced that all easements on the Bitter Creek and Brushy Creek construction units have been secured and the securing of all necessary signatures was begun on the necessary document to certify this fact for Soil Conservation Service.

With the filing of this document, the sponsors of the Lakeview Watershed have finished the last step before detailed survey work can begin in September. After this will come the stages of construction.

When detailed survey is completed on a construction unit, then structures can be designed and contracts can be let for building the flood control system on that creek.

The overall plan calls for flooding control of five creeks in the Lakeview, Leslie, Brice and Plaska areas of Hall County and the southern portion of Donley County.

More Alfalfa Is Urged By Local Banker

Noting that the present and future demands of the Panhandle cattle feeding industry is for protein roughage, Don Cockrell, President of the First State Bank, Memphis, urged growers in Hall and Donley Counties to consider alfalfa as a five or six-payday crop which will thrive in the area.

"The time has come for farmers of our area to consider the advantages of diversification. We have been primarily a one-crop area in the past. However, it is obvious that cotton alone is no longer the means of livelihood that it has been in the past," Cockrell said.

Western Alfalfa Corporation's ground alfalfa operation centered here, is seeking contracts with growers in the two counties who will fall-plant alfalfa on irrigated fields of 30 acres or larger for its 1971 program.

A Bit Of Humor About Water!

The drouth is continuing in Hall County. Only scattered showers have blessed a very small area in recent weeks. Due to the seriousness of the situation, many are turning to a kind of humor which is almost always associated with bad times and adverse conditions.

A farmer came into town and said, "Did you hear about the fire on my place? I lost everything." With genuine concern all wanted to know the details. "Yes, the sun was so hot yesterday my cotton and maize caught fire and my corn popped."

The drouth has affected the pasture land in this area so much that ranchers are feeding their herds just like the dead of winter. This situation is so serious that no one is even joking about it.

Community residents are naturally complaining about their water bills as they do each summer. We overheard a conversation between a representative of the local water company and a customer. The customer said, "Is it true that your meter readers have a form to check which has laws; a, dead, b, light green, c, dark green?" and you use this to determine the rate?"

You might not know this, but an average $\frac{3}{8}$ -in. garden hose will deliver 3 to 5 gal. per minute of 180 to 300 gal. per hour. For 8 hours of watering you will use from 1460 to 2400 gal. per day. In 30 days that will run 53,000 to 72,000 gal. and that's a lot of water.

Many residents use two hoses to water their front and back yards. Also, you might not have figured how much lawn you have around your house. We figured ours and we have about 3,000 sq. ft. in the front and over 6,000 sq. ft. in the back.

Hall Countians are still looking to the heavens for signs of moisture, and, knowing our citizens, many are saying a few prayers concerning the situation.

Habit Driving Most Dangerous!

This editor has been interested in noting the response of local drivers to the erection of a stop sign on the corner of Main and 6th Street, for east bound traffic on Main Street, before entering the northwest corner of the square.

The new stop sign was erected recently by crews of the City of Memphis, after it was determined that traffic needed to stop at this corner to avoid accidents with vehicles leaving the square.

What is most interesting is that city crews not only erected the standard stop sign, but also painted the street with bright yellow paint and a big sign that says "look" and the word "stop". Yes, it is clearly marked.

It was noted that out of the first fifty cars that hit the intersection which this editor observed, only one of them came to a legal stop. During the next few days, spot checks revealed that as many as 50 per cent of the cars were stopping. Now, after a couple of weeks, local drivers are familiar with the stop sign and the habit of stopping at it is growing to the point that almost all of the cars are stopping.

It has long been noted that drivers tend to have more wrecks near their homes than on "unfamiliar" streets and highways. When local drivers were used to not stopping at this corner, it took several days before the old habit could be broken and a new one begun.

When a driver is on strange streets, he tends to observe traffic signs and pays conscientious attention to his driving. But, let the same driver get on a familiar street, and he may become complacent and pay little attention to his driving.

Driving is a basic skill necessary to 20th century mankind. Almost all who get behind a wheel of a vehicle feels that they are competent drivers, good drivers even. Sure, they drive their cars year after year without mishap, so they must be good drivers.

But too many of them drive with one hand on the steering wheel, fail to signal at street corners when they contemplate a turn, carry on conversation with passengers, look in store windows and at friends on the street while driving, fail to yield right of way at unmarked intersections, run stop signs, and do many more things which "poor" drivers do.

The Texas Safety Association predicts that Texas is heading for "slaughter" on its streets and highways by 1980 if driving trends are not changed in this state. Maybe this prediction will come true.

All of us can become good drivers. This editor is encouraged because local drivers are stopping at the sign now.

Working Together For A Change

If the federal government has its way, the internal combustion engine one day may be as obsolete as the horse and buggy. And that day could be just over the horizon.

Both the Republican administration and the Democratic Congress are looking to alternatives to pollution-producing autos. The administration is spending about $9 million this year to aid research on unconventional, low emission engines.

A new industry is budding in Littlefield, where an Amarillo man heads a company called Electric-Car that plans to put electric cars onto the market. They are being promoted as a second car, primarily because the maximum speed in the initial stages probably will be no more than 45 or 50 miles per hour.

Because the batteries have to be recharged periodically, they would not be able to take you on a long, uninterrupted trip.

Officials of the Environmental Health Service, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, have told the President and Congress that essentially pollution-free automobiles must be available in the 1970s. The primary reason for all the concern is the fact that cars are blamed for 50 per cent or more of the nation's air pollution.

A switch to cars run by steam, batteries, turbines, natural gas or some other exotic source will not happen over night. But the increasing number of cars rolling off the assembly lines makes such a change necessary—and the sooner the better.

The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a bill under which the government would provide a test market for new low emission vehicles with new power sources. The measure would give a big boost to research in the field.

Legislation is now being considered that would impose much stricter limits on the amount of pollutants cars, as well as commercial vehicles, could legally discharge. The proposals have the support of the country's automobile manufacturers and Mr. Nixon.

Solving the air pollution problem, especially as it relates to cars, appears to be one issue that has the support of just about everybody. And while much of the enthusiasm can doubtless be interpreted as making political hay, it is still encouraging to see the president, Congress and private industry cooperating and working together to solve a major national problem. The country would benefit if such unity of purpose could be displayed more often.

Newspaper Economics

Sometimes an unexpected figure shocks people and apparently the figure we included in our own ad last week on the cost of publishing each copy of that issue of the Moberge Tribune shocked several people.

Apparently most people aren't aware that the price of a subscription does not meet the expenses of a newspaper or even a major portion of the expenses.

Normally, on weekly newspapers the size of the Tribune subscriptions provide about one-sixth of the cost of publishing the community's newspaper. The balance of the income comes primarily from advertising.

Advertising is what makes it possible for a community to have a newspaper. Without local advertising support there would be no local newspaper in the country today.

tising support there would be no local newspaper in the country today.

That advertising makes it possible for a community newspaper to present the news of the community and area in words and pictures to everyone, keeping the community informed and interested in the things that make it a good place to live.

In return advertisers reap a benefit from newspaper advertising that can't be found anywhere else. They have a place to present their sales message where it will be well read by a majority of the citizens of the community.

Only a newspaper can deliver the high number of interested readers that really make advertising pay. Newspapers are the only local advertising medium so important to readers that they pay a subscription fee to read them.

The average issue arrives, and is read by the average member of each family three times during that period.

In the newspaper the reader turns to the advertiser's message when he is interested in reading it. It never intrudes, but is always there when the reader is interested.

Newspaper advertising is an important part of the newspaper and an important part of the local economy. It keeps merchandise moving as nothing else can.

CAPS Opposes Public Tax Money For Non-Public School Support In Texas

A statewide organization called the Citizens Association for Public Schools (CAPS) was informed in Austin last month by a group of educational, religious, and other organizations. The announcement was made by the Texas State Teachers Association.

Spokesmen for the new group said it was organized for a single purpose: "To work for keeping public tax money for schools confined to the support of the public schools, from kindergarten through grade 12."

Among the organizations represented at the meeting were the Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Association of School Administrators, Texas Association of School Boards, Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, the Anti-Defamation League, the Baptist General Convention of Texas, and Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

ed opposition to the use of public funds for the support of non-public elementary and secondary schools came as no surprise to public school administrators and teachers throughout the state.

The Texas State Teachers Association last October adopted a platform which included this statement:

"TSTA opposes efforts to use public funds for either direct or indirect support of non-public schools. The Association respects the right of private groups, including religious denominations, to operate schools as long as these schools meet the educational, health, and safety standards required of public schools."

L. P. Sturgeon, executive secretary of TSTA, said there is a movement nationwide and in Texas to divert public tax money for use by private schools.

"We expect that the Legislature next January will be faced with a well-organized demand for financial aid to private elementary and secondary schools," Sturgeon said. "We want them to know there is a lot of opposition to it, among many groups and individuals throughout the state."

"We also believe," Sturgeon said, "that one of the Legislature's hardest tasks will be to find enough money to pay the increasing costs of state government. Any diversion of public funds to private schools would further compound the problem."

It has been estimated that the proposed request for state government aid to private schools would cost upward of $50 million for the next biennium.

The National Education Association, at its annual meeting earlier this month in San Francisco, resolved to oppose the use of federal aid to non-public elementary and secondary schools, Sturgeon said.

Naman Says Bill Will Depress Farm Economy

The Nixon Farm Bill which was approved by the House Agriculture Committee last week does not measure up to the objective of the Farmers Union program. It will remove the traditional concept of parity price protection to farmers, undermine the loan program as a price support, and deny farmers the opportunity to keep supply in line with demand. It will reduce net farm income and further depress the already weak agricultural economy. This statement was issued early this week by Jay Naman, president of the Texas Farmers Union.

"Although Secretary of Agriculture Hardin's recommendations are being publicized as a consensus of viewpoints and a program that is generally consistent with existing programs, it is neither," he said. "It does not have the support of a single general farm organization. It radically departs from the basic principals in present programs by eliminating marketing quotas on cotton and permitting open-ended production of all the basic commodities. It gives the secretary of agriculture unprecedented authority to set price supports on wheat and feed grains. It removes all price floors and imposes price ceilings."

The enactment of the Nixon Farm proposal would result in lower prices and reduced income for all farm commodities. The amount of the cut would depend on how Secretary Hardin administered the program. Market prices would slump to world levels and an immediate build-up of surplus would be inevitable. Lower livestock prices would doubtlessly result from cheap grain and feed wheat, according to Naman.

"Cotton producers would be particularly hard hit if the House Agriculture Committee approved program passes Congress. A decline in income of from $10 to $15 per bale in 1971 would be the minimum. Texas cotton producers would lose from $40 to $50 million!" he added.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Barnett of Berger were guests recently in the home of Mrs. B. F. Davis.

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Concrete Is Weakened By Addition of Water

The strength of concrete depends primarily on the ratio of water to cement and the use of good quality aggregate in the mixture, points out County Agent W. B. Hooser.

For example, he says, a ratio of seven gallons of water per sack of cement will result in a concrete that is weaker than one with a ratio of five gallons of water per sack of cement because the floors are washed often and wear is heavy.

Floors, such as those in milking parlors, should be made with a ratio of five gallons of water per sack of cement because the floors are washed often and wear is heavy.

Paved barnyards are driveways should have a ratio of six gallons of water per sack of cement. For massive footings under buildings, a seven to one ratio is satisfactory because the surfaces are not subject to wear and generally are protected from the elements.

When concrete is delivered to the farm in a ready-mix truck, do not let the driver add water to the mix to make it flow easier, advises Hooser. The best materials and the best mix can mean nothing, the agent adds, if the water content of the concrete mix is altered on the job.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

AUSTIN—Campaigns are shaping up on some of the seven proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on by Texans at the General Election on November 3.

While public interest centers on the liquor-by-the-drink amendment, there are other major alterations in the state's laws to be considered by the voters.

In their order on the ballot, these are:

1. Enlarge the powers of the Judicial Qualifications Commission to censure or remove lower court judges of the peace as well as district and appellate judges.
2. Authorize the legislature to enact a law on the sale of mixed drinks.
3. Provide for legislative establishment of a uniform method of tax assessment on ranch, farm and forest lands based on the capability of the lands to support the raising of livestock or production of farm and forest crops.
4. Make the State Building Commission a three-member appointive agency.
5. Permit counties to issue road bonds up to one-fourth of their assessed real property valuation on a majority vote.
6. Make town or city homesteads of $10,000 and less exempt from forced sale (presently set at $5,000).
7. Allow the legislature to provide for consolidating offices and functions of government and for performance of governmental functions by contact between the political subdivisions in any county.

Texas voters have adopted amendments to the 1876 constitution, over the years, and rejected 125.

Desegregation Suits Threaten

Federal negotiators report that only a few of the 38 Texas school districts, called on the carpet concerning segregation, had satisfactory plans for complying with U. S. guidelines. They conducted a two-day conference with school officials here and gave most of them another week to try and work out something or face a lawsuit by the U. S. Justice Department.

Negotiators suggested "pairing" of adjoining neighborhood school districts to get better racial balance.

Lufkin, Marshall, Midland and Katy found no ground for agreement with the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Justice Department negotiators. Some complained that federal officials raised a new issue... that of integrating Mexican-Americans, as well as blacks. Most want to continue their efforts to find a way to comply with suggested plans.

Palestine reached a tentative agreement on pairing plans involving two grades in each school and requiring limited busing.

Courts Speak

Alcoholic Beverage Commission's rules governing private clubs are headed for a U. S. Supreme Court test after the highest court finally upheld the agency's regulation. Club operators claim "king's-x" against the rules while their appeal is "diligently pursued."

Texas will be among the first states to challenge constitutionality of the new federal act extending voting rights to 18-year-olds.

Mrs. Travis Jones, Mrs. H. E. Perkins and Cheria Welch of Diana are visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Welcher and Larry Jay and Lynn. Cheria is a sister of Larry Jay and Lynn.

Mrs. Ralph Williams, who had spent several days visiting in Tulsa, Okla., with her daughter, Mrs. Jim Smith and family, returned home Monday.

Specialist Gives Advice On Care Range Grass

Stock producers operating in the ranges should keep in mind the possibility of short forage supplies this fall and winter. The dry weather of the recent past has reduced the growth of range grasses. If these conditions continue, a shortage of range grass will be inevitable. Now is the time to make plans to meet an emergency! This advice was given recently by Roy V. Miller, specialist with the Extension Service.

George Stanley—

people on the street, and those who were weren't smiling.

The third time I visited East Berlin, I was in transit. I wanted to see a particularly infamous section of The Wall, Bernauerstrasse, and the shortest way was to cross East Berlin. I believe this was the most frightening experience of my trip to East Germany. From where I was living in West Berlin, on Nurnbergerstrasse, I took the U-Bahn, the underground, to Kottbuser Tor Station, where I changed trains. My destination was Voltairestrasse Station, seven stations away. Six of these stations were in East Berlin. I knew that the train wouldn't stop in these stations, but I didn't know what else was in store. We arrived at the last station in West Berlin. Then, the train started, and I knew that the next station would be in East Berlin. I thought that the train would simply speed through East Berlin until it reached West Berlin. Instead, when it reached all six stations in East Berlin, it would slow down until it was barely moving, and we would move through the deserted, dimly-lit stations, past East German Police armed with machine guns and rifles. They would only stare at the train as it passed. Before The Wall was erected, many East Germans escaped by using the subways.

My fourth visit to East Berlin was my longest. I went through Checkpoint Charlie and walked to Friedrichstrasse Station where I took the S-Bahn (East Berlin's commuter train which runs above ground) to the Ostbahnhof (East Station) and then walked to Karl-Marx-Allee, one of East Berlin's main streets. My destination was a famous outdoor cafe, Cafe Warschau, which appeared in the novel "Funeral in Berlin". Service at the cafe, however, was nonexistent, so I walked across the street to Haus Budapest, only to find all the tables reserved. I then bought one of the worst boxes of chocolates, for the money, I have ever tasted in my life. I retraced my steps and left East Berlin.

I visited Zurich, Switzerland, which is both beautiful and extremely clean. I found the Swiss pleasant, but very businesslike. Zurich is a rich, easy-going city, where it isn't difficult at all to relax.

I also visited Amsterdam, mainly because of my study of Dutch and to visit Anne Frank's house. I found the Dutch to be the friendliest people I met. Amsterdam certainly has charm, but the canals are dirty. I was so impressed with Anne Frank's house that I visited it three times.

My biggest disappointment in Europe was other Americans. Not only were so many of them rude to the people whose country they were visiting, but some were (for reasons I still haven't figured out) rude to me. They were noisy in hotels, and refused to utter even one word in the language of the country, something which, when done, as I said, can solidify friendships and reap unbelievable rewards. Bill Cosby and I discussed this. We both agreed that it was a sad situation. It isn't hard to see now why Americans aren't the most well-liked people in the world.

The most popular American I met in Europe was Bill Cosby. He speaks beautiful German which he admits is the dialect of the area. He has taken an interest in Austrian affairs, and the people he meets are just that, other human beings, to live with and to enjoy life with. If every American who went to Europe were like Bill, then we would certainly be the most loved people in the world. Bill's landlady, the delightful Maria Morndl, thinks he's just great, but I still can't figure out why she calls him "Cos Bill".

FRANK PHILLIPS COLLEGE

Evaluation Committee Reports— Frank Phillips College At Borger Operates Sound Education Program

Frank Phillips College stands today, a two year college, recognized in the field of higher education as a superior junior college. Recently it was lauded by an evaluation committee of educators who were making 10-year check for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In their first report the following statement is taken from the introduction, "The entire college reflected a freshness and cleanliness that made members of the visiting committee quite envious. In addition to this, there was evidence of a sound collegiate educational program in operation."

In a community and area where a population decline has been experienced, and located in a city which had a drop in population, Frank Phillips College can show a very evident and healthy 10-year increase in students.

Over the years, as the junior college movement has grown and expanded, Frank Phillips College in Borger, has grown and changed. It provides terminal technical, vocational, and semi-professional education, of two year's duration or less adapted to the needs of the students and those of this region.

Frank Phillips provides arts-and-sciences and pre-professional education equivalent to the first two years of a four-year college and preparatory to advanced undergraduate education in such a college, thereby eliminating much of the enrollment pressures on the four-year institutions, according to the report.

Also offered is a wide choice of general education and special courses for adults to help them train and retrain to meet present and future employment requirements, to keep active, and to make wise use of leisure time.

Frank Phillips College opened for the reception of students on September 6, 1948. During the opening months, the Texas State Department of Education recognized Frank Phillips College as a standard two year institution of higher education. In April of 1949, the Association of Texas Colleges accredited Frank Phillips College with full membership in the Association. After changing to a new campus, Frank Phillips College applied and was fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in 1958. In 1968 the regular ten year study was made of Frank Phillips College, and she was again approved as a first class institution of higher education. Frank Phillips offers the first two years of standard college instruction. It is neither a glorified high school nor a decapitated college, but rather a unique American institution.

In the Frank Phillips student body you will find:

Young high school graduates who want two rather than four years of higher education, in the arts and sciences or for technical, vocational, or semi-professional training.

Students bound for a four year college who want to spend their freshman and sophomore years in their own community, living at home.

Housewives interested in child care, general education, or preparation for employment or re-employment.

Workers who want to improve their present skills, prepare for advancement, or for change of employment, gain vocational experience, or expand their general education.

Young adults who have graduated from high school, or who through part-time study, have eventually to earn a college diploma.

Senior citizens seeking through education to develop new interests and new companions for their last active years.

After school was out the past year, Adelle Harrell came by and in conversation she said she had been with the Phillips Public School for the past 17 years, and she thought it was time for her to go to another school somewhere else and a few days ago I talked to her and she had made a deal with another school and it was with the New Deal she made with the consolidated school of New Deal. Wishing her the best of everything in this school year with New Deal.

Mrs. Seth Pallmeyer, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Offield, and sister of Mrs. Bill Kesterson, was a recent visitor here. Miss Della, as we all call her, first started teaching when 18 years old and taught in four or five schools in the county. I asked her about Greasy Neck School and she gave me this write-up:

"Greasy Neck", now known as Parnell 15 miles from Estelline almost due west. I boarded with the George Gore family for a six month school, beginning in January, 1907, at a salary of $50.00. I paid $10.00 for room and board.

"I left Estelline Gattis hotel at 4 o'clock each Monday morning, rode 15 miles on the mail hack. The mail line was owned by Hunter Parsons and his father.

The father lived at Silverton, the end of the mail line. George Lee and Austin Foard drove the mail hack, meeting halfway and swapping mail.

"We left Estelline at 4 a. m., drove 15 miles to the Gore Farm where horses were changed to drive the next step, ate breakfast there and got to school at 8 a. m. I had about 20 pupils. Names remembered were Adams, Crump, Warneke and the Gore children.

"I came over from Newlin Sunday night on the train and remember the fare was 15 cents. I came in to Estelline each Friday on this same mail hack, driven by Vernon Bagwell. We, the Offfield family, lived in Newlin, and I was 18 years old at the time I taught in the school."

I visited in the hospital last Saturday and found guests here in Memphis that did not intend to be but fate stopped them here. Kay Petty and Gloria Hamilton were on their way to Glorietta, N. M., to a religious meeting and about six miles out of town they had a car wreck and they wound up in the hospital. They were from Bayker, La. I asked them how their stay in Memphis had been under the circumstances and all as I was trying to find out what they thought of us by one of the show windows of our town and the people. So she gave me this answer:

"If I ever decide to move from Baker, La., I am going to move to Memphis, Texas." Said the people have been so kind to them and they appreciated it very much. We have a staff of nurses that are to be complimented, as I have not found a "grouch" among them. A pleasant nurse take care of medicine for the sick that doctors cannot give you a prescription for.

I saw Mr. and Mrs. Candler Hawkins here. They are now living in Houston, where their sons, Morton and Sam, and daughter, Kathleen, reside. I had been after Candler for the past 10 years to retire here, but after he saw the bright lights, we lost them. Make you think of that song "How You Gonna Keep the Down on the Farm."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wheeler and son Frank of Dallas visiting Heritage Hall past Saturday. Jack is the son of the late Frank Wheeler and grandson of Mrs. T. J. Brock. He attended school at Plaska. He had a trailer truck turn over with him a few days ago and was fortunate enough to get out with a broken ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Rosen and Mark and Vic and Mika Jean visiting in Heritage Hall. Mrs. Rosen, the former Pat Davenport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Davenport of Lakeview where she graduated in 1952. Said she had traveled all over the U. S. in the past 14 years, and they are now in the process of moving back to Amarillo. This is really a Pat and Mike team, but they did not have any P&M stories to tell, but I did ask Pat to write out what she thought of Heritage Hall.

"I thoroughly enjoyed going through Heritage Hall. It is amazing the articles that have been collected from the Hall County people. My children loved the historical animals the most. Pat Davenport Rosen.

Our friend Arthur Eddleman of Estelline had two horses bitten by rattle snakes, his old faithful Esaw died and Red is getting over the bite. Arthur really gave Esaw a good credit rating as he was the most honest horse he ever owned. Whenever the horse carried you off for the day you knew he would get you back. I wonder if the pots and pans are ready for the Hall County Picnic the third Sunday in September.

TONY POUNDS

Oklahoma State QB—

Tony Pounds To Report Soon To Cowboys Camp

By BILL COMBS

For Tony Pounds, a lanky six footer, a week from this Friday is a very special day because this is the day he leaves Memphis to report to football workouts with Oklahoma State Cowboys.

The youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Pounds, Tony takes with him a long history of participation in sports from Little League baseball in elementary school where he was a good pitcher, through his quarterbacking some of the best Memphis Cyclone football teams (20-7-3) in the past decade.

A Stillwater, Okla., sports writer asked Tony if he ever dreamed he would ever be playing in the Big 8 Conference last spring during spring training and Tony answered he'd never thought about it.

The reason Tony was being interviewed was that Okla. State Head Coach Floyd Gass who was recognized as the Big Eight Conference's "Coach of the Year" last season had selected Tony as one of the key players for the final spring game.

According to the Oklahoma State Press Book in "Meet the '70 Varsity" column, Tony is in the thick of the fight for the starting quarterback job.

The article says, "Memphis, Tex., and New Mexico Military Junior College . . . Arrived last spring and immediately put himself in the thick of the fight for the starting quarterback job . . . In final spring game he completed 14 of 22 passes for 219 yards and a touchdown . . . Guided white team to 29-7-3 win and added scoring rushes of two and four yards to his passing efforts . . . Throws the ball well at all ranges . . . Had two years experience quarterbacking pro type offense in junior college . . . In high school his team went 20-7-3 over three campaigns . . . Finds second, and even third, receivers well . . . Was outstanding juco baseball pitcher, too . . . Was the ranking signal caller when the smoke cleared last spring . . . Despite slender physique, he's a good ball carrier."

Coach Gass reported to the press at the end of the final spring game that if the season was beginning at that time he would go with Tony as his starting quarterback.

However, Oklahoma State has several boys all battling for this position. Last spring injuries developed which took some of the Cowboy quarterbacks out of action.

Pounds wears No. 11, is 6-0 and weighs 163. Other QBs listed are: No. 14 Andy Harvey, 6-0, 198; No. 15 Emory Bellard, 5-10, 187; No. 16 Mike Robichaux, 5-10, 184; and No. 18 John Ballard, 6-1, 185.

Tony had offers to go to several universities when he finished his career at New Mexico Military. He worked hard on improving his passing arm, speed of delivery and other skills required. Pounds' record was impressive at New Mexico so he chose to transfer in the spring to Oklahoma State.

If Tony is fortunate enough and skilled enough his junior year to see action in all the Cowboys games he will be competing in a good league.

Oklahoma State opponents for 1970 include: Mississippi State, Arkansas, Houston, Missouri, Texas Christian, Nebraska, Kansas, Kansas State, Colorado, Iowa State and Oklahoma. The Big Eight Conference plays an 11-game schedule beginning with this season.

additional crop, it is hard to overlook alfalfa which will thrive in our country and the present and future demand for this crop. We have very near us a multi-billion dollar industry in the feedlots. Our geographic location near these feedlots insures us a tremendous demand for this crop," the banker stated.

In noting that "change is the key to success, and that alfalfa could be the salvation of the area," Cockrell said that some of alfalfa's advantages over other crops are that it "gives a grower five or six paydays a year; hail or high winds do not mean complete crop failure and insects are easier to control than in other crops.

"Investigate the possibilities and advantages of alfalfa and what it can do for your operations," Cockrell urged growers. "Visit with the people who are currently growing this crop and those who are in the alfalfa business."

Hap Kensinger of Memphis, Western Alfalfa's Panhandle District General Manager, said that the company's program for next year calls for contracts of alfalfa from a minimum of 5,000 acres of irrigated land by September 15. The firm is offering $16. per ton, will cut, grind and haul the alfalfa to Panhandle feedlots which during the 1970 program have taken all the product which Western Alfalfa has been able to produce.

"We could sell more if we had it," Kensinger said in stressing that fall-seeded alfalfa on irrigated land will produce substantially more than spring planted seed. "Alfalfa needs water and will send its roots deep to get it."
