Weight Cotton Loans Open For Marketing Improvement

...ing a competitive margin is cotton's first order of business. Both export and use of United States cotton have been reduced sharply in years, with manmade foreign cotton competing for the markets. ... cotton's share of the U.S. fiber market has dropped 65 per cent to less than 10 per cent in the past 10 years. ... share of world cotton has dropped from 42 per cent to 16 per cent during the 10-year period. ... Texas farm professional Clarence A. Dankfels, commenting on the change in net weight in the U.S. Department of Agriculture 1971 cotton loan program. ... change from gross to net weight does not change the growers receive on cotton contracts. ... What it does do is open the door for development of lighter and cheaper cotton than the 21 pounds of cotton that are traditionally used around the American market. ... a lighter, cheaper bale would cut transportation and marketing costs. For instance, the weight of the pack material by 10 pounds would mean reducing freight on 1,000 pounds for each shipment of cotton. ... tionally, a net weight trade-in, coupled with improved packaging methods and standard density cotton bales could encourage the use of automatic cotton samplers. This package of marketing improvement could mean substantial savings in cotton handling and merchandising. Such improvements all along the line, from production through processing, can help put cotton back into a competitive position, Dankfels said, and thereby put the cotton producer in a better economic position. These considerations were what the U.S. Department of Agriculture had in mind when it announced almost a year ago—Mar. 17, 1970—the change to net weight for 1971 upland cotton loans, said Dankfels, who is the chairman of the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) Committee. Net weight loans make no difference—no change—in amount of a grower's price-support loan. The law says the loan shall be 90 per cent of the average world market price for middling one-inch cotton, micronaire 3.5-4.9, for the two-year period ending July 31 in the year in which the loan rate is announced. "The law spells it out very specifically, and the law was carefully observed when the loan rate was set," Dankfels said. If the 1971 upland cotton loan rate had been established on a gross weight basis, it would have been set at 18.68 cents per pound—or $93.40 per 500 pound bale. The net weight loan rate is 19.5 cents per pound for 479 pounds of cotton lint—or $93.40 per bale, exactly the same amount. Price-support loans on extra long staple cotton have long been on a net weight basis, the ASC Committee chairman said. All cotton is traded in international markets on net weight rather than gross weight basis. Only in the U.S. domestic markets has gross weight been a basis—and this is changing fast. For instance, last August the New York cotton exchange approved net weight trading effective with the first contract covering 1971-crop cotton. And in October the American Textile Manufacturers Institute and the American Cotton Shippers Association officially approved net weight trading to become effective Aug. 1, 1971. With marketing methods in the process of change, the ASC committee chairman said some producers may need to update their marketing efforts, methods and knowledge. He pointed out that the value of cotton lint in a bale remains the same, whether the bale is sold

A crowd of at least 300 persons were on hand Sunday as the Memphis Motorcycle Club sponsored scramble races at the Red River bridge near Estelline. There were 12 races with each three laps long on a line-long course, which had straightaways, tight turns, wide turns, slopes, and several jumps. Each class raced over the prescribed course three times, and points were awarded participants during each race. There were at least 15 wrecks, with John Binkley getting credit for the most spectacular, described as two or three flips in the air, which occurred during the last race, and was captured on film. There were many sore riders, but no serious injuries. "We are going to try and have the races once a month," Barry Ward, spokesman for the local club, said. "The members of our club want to thank these people for helping us. Sandy Smith, flagman; Bill Warren and Raymond Whitten, scorekeepers; Edd Hutcherson,

New Postal Rates Going Up . . . Up!

Users of the U. S. Postal Service can prepare themselves for a postal rate increase in all mail service except parcel post it appears now, and the increase will go into effect about May 15 unless something comes up to delay or change the proposals now pending.

This newspaper received a memorandum from James R. Holland, Special Assistant to the Postmaster General, Monday concerning rate proposals recently filed by the Post Office Department with the Postal Rate Commission.

The rate increases would provide additional revenues of $1.45 billion during fiscal 1972; and, according to Postal officials, it would put the postal system on a sound financial basis and shift more of the costs from the taxpayer generally to those who use the mails most.

In addition to the long standing Postal Service proposal for a 2-cent boost for letters from 6 to 8 cents, advertising mail (regular bulk rate third-class) would be increased to a minimum of 5 cents per piece, plus additional increases for heavier weights.

But the major portion of the increase will be born by magazines and newspapers and other categories of second-class mail. Postal officials say, "These rather steep increases will be phased in over five years to soften the impact on the mailers of second class."

The regulation on second-class publications calls for—those mailed for delivery outside the publisher's county, excluding certain categories—will be raised 1.9 cents per piece plus higher advertising rates ranging from 9.1 to 20.9 cents per pound. Non-advertising will be at a new rate of 7.2 cents per pound.

The U. S. News and World Report worked out a dollar prediction under the U. S. Postal Service recommended rate increase schedule. This chart shows that publishers of second-class material, primarily newspapers and magazines, will pay more than double their present 2nd class postal fee by 1975. Today, publishers pay $134 million. This will increase 30 per cent by mid-1971 to $174 million, and will climb to $213 million by mid-1972. By mid-1975 postal costs for publishers will jump to $328 million based on today's volume of mail. This is a five-year increase of $194 million.

Letters will rise from 6 cents to 8 cents on first-class mail, from 10 cents to 11 cents on airmail.

Postcards—A rise from 5 cents to 7 cents on first-class, from 8 cents to 9 cents on airmail cards.

Special delivery—An increase from 45 cents to 60 cents a letter.

Magazines, newspapers—Up nearly 30 per cent this year, with four additional annual boosts for a total jump of 145 per cent in five years.

Bulk mail, advertising circulars—An increase of about five per cent in 1971, with a total rise of 27 per cent over five years. Minimum rates over this period would climb from 3.8 cents to 5 cents per piece.

Books, records, films—up 17 per cent this year—from 12 cents to 14 cents for the first pound, with four more annual boosts of 2 cents to a total of 22 cents in 1975.

Subscribers of newspapers and magazines can expect to see a major change in their publications, or especially in the subscription rates. Raises of this magnitude can have nothing but a staggering effect on the publishing industry of this nation.

Another fact to come out of the postal rate increase is that out of the 1.45 billion dollars in added revenue to be collected next year from mail users, about 80 per cent will come from business firms. Merchants will pay more for direct-mail advertising and bill collections. It will cost more to ship books, films and records.

It is easy to see that this rate increase will add more than a billion dollars to the cost of doing business in the U. S. next year.

What Other Editors Say

Power To The People
But the idea that the federal government generally is cleaner and more efficient than local governments deserves careful examination. It is a sweeping generalization and doesn't hold up well under close scrutiny.

There are some 80,000 local governmental units in the United States and they employ over twice as many people as the federal government. Their biggest job, running public schools, ranks only behind national defense as the nation's most costly public enterprise.

In local government—running schools, police forces, fire departments, garbage crews and the like—failures usually are highly visible. Incompetency in managing the national debt by the U. S. Treasury might go unnoticed for years, but no mayor is likely to be complacent for long if the garbage isn't being picked up.

Where there is intense public interest and participation, local government often is very good. Some of the nation's public schools, for example, are models of intelligent and enlightened management.

It also can be shown that some of the problems of local governments have been visited upon them by a federal bureaucracy not as much in touch with realities as they are. A good part of the pernicious crime problem of New York and other large cities is heavily attributable to heroin addicts, who rob to get the vast sums they need to buy the illegal drug. Most narcotics laws have for years been largely a federal responsibility, so the blame for this sorry mess must rest heavily with the federal government.

It would be hard to argue that some other federal programs, such as the redevelopment of Appalachia, have served local needs well. Even the federal government's conduct of foreign policy, which has always been within its purview, has not attracted many admirers in recent years.

President Nixon's proposals for bringing government "closer to the people" have been challenged by some Congressmen on grounds that local government, by and large, is not to be trusted. The objection is given a certain plausible ring by examples of boondoggling and incompetency that have surfaced in city halls and other local power centers over the years.

The point of all this is not so much to try to prove that local government is better than national government, but that it is no more deserving of distrust. As the authors of the United States Constitution so wisely envisioned, some of the most important of government functions can be, and should be, under the control of local communities. There is less reason to fear even fairly numerous local failures than a single one perpetuated on a national scale.

Still, can it realistically be expected after decades of expanding federal power, that the Nixon "power to the people" revolution is not likely that this sort of thing will begin to happen soon. It is not even likely that the tokenism represented by revenue sharing will happen very soon, given the opposition it has aroused in Congress.

But if the President suspects that a public distrust of giantism is developing in this country, he is probably right. The instinct to try to break large organizations down into smaller, more controllable units, in fact to be growing throughout the Western world.

President Nixon obviously perceives this better than his opponents in Congress. However, he cannot will decentralization into being; it will only come as it is increasingly demanded by the electorate. The fact that some of

SPORTS CORNER

Basketball season is fast drawing to a close. Track season is just getting started. Also, the tennis players and the golfers are beginning to sharpen their skills during the springtime competition.

The past weekend, basketball saw the Quittaque Panthers capture the District 4-B title by defeating the Hedley Owls in the final game of the tournament, played in the local gymnasium.

The Panthers took the early lead in the game, then fought off determined Hedley effort in the latter quarter to win the contest by a rather low-scoring affair as may be compared with other seasons of these two teams.

One of the reasons the score was as low as it was, 49 to 39, is attributed to the fine defensive effort of both ball clubs. The tall boys on both squads checked more shots in this game than I have seen in a number of contests this season.

There were several fans in the stands around me who were not necessarily rooting for one team or the other, and several commented about the defensive play. The loss of Shane Reiken, the big man under the basket, to the foul route, early in the latter period of play, may have been a determining factor. Hedley apparently hoped to get hot from outside, but just could not manage to pop the hoop. Quittaque, a team that's scored in the point figures in some games this season, appeared to be having troubles getting Hedley out of a good zone defense.

Quittaque goes on to meet Quail Bi-District played Tuesday at Childress. I've seen both teams play and would give the edge to Quittaque, due to the Panthers' superior height. However, has a bunch of who hit well from the outside. Both these teams should put a lot of points on the board.

In talking with Coach Harold of the local cage team, handed me the season individual statistics for the Memphis High School boys team.

Since the local squad is composed of juniors and sophomores this year, the statistics are interesting as indications of what can be expected next season.

Leading scorer for the season is T. J. Johnson with 17.2 average, 462 points in 27 games. Another Larry had 364 points in 17 games averaging 13.5, and Louis Davis had 290 points in 25 games averaging 11.6.

Leading rebounder with 407 was Larry Johnson averaging 15.1 per game, followed by Tommy with 311 averaging 11.9, and Otho Rogers 201 averaging 8.1.

From the free throw line, Mike Browning hit 27 of 36 attempts averaging 77 per cent. Larry Jeffers hit three of three for 100 per cent. Lenis Simpson hit 11 of 16 for 70 per cent.

Louis Davis committed most fouls, with 99, followed by T. J. with 76, Otho with 73 and Larry with 70. It is also interesting to note that Louis Davis went to the free throw line 135 times, Larry Johnson 111 and T. J. a total of 129.

The Memphis team had an average of 61.2 points per game while their opponents averaged 63.1 points per game. Memphis won 11 and lost 16, but in district 2-A play, the local team won 5 and lost 5.

Out of the two local basketball units, only three members are seniors. These are Pam Watson, Fernina Martin and Diane Devorce. Local basketball prospects for next season are doing good at this point.

Talked with Coach Clyde McMurray about the upcoming track season Tuesday. He feels that the local lads have the making of a competitive squad at this point.

"I feel we are as good now as any track squad in our district," he said. "It will depend on how much improvement we see as the season progresses."

The thinclads are off to Vernon this Friday and Saturday for the opening track meet of the season. They haven't had much of a chance to work out with the weather being like it had been, but we certainly hope the boys give a good effort.

Track is a sport that takes a lot of conditioning; wind, stamina, and hard work. It's not a game to be played, but a test of speed, skill, endurance, strength, and personal commitment and desire.

In the past decade, Memphis has sent more track athletes to state, has won more track trophies, and been recognized in athletic circles for its track athletes' accomplishments than in any other sport.

It possibly all got started in the early 1950's, and I bet Cyclone thinclads of today realize what a tradition the local school has in this sport.

In future columns I will discuss some of the trackmen from Memphis who have built the tradition and put wings on the "M" of the local squad. The list is rather long, but the accomplishments are well worth our recollections.

Capt. and Mrs. Jack Staples are visiting here this week with Mrs. Staples' mother, Mrs. Sue Hutcherson and other relatives. Capt. Staples recently completed helicopter school at Fort Rucker, Ala., and will now be stationed at Fort Sill, Okla.

Specialist Gives Tips To Aid In Home Laundries

COLLEGE STATION—Little mistakes can cause big problems, especially when it comes to the family laundry, reminds Bonnie Lyerly, Extension specialist in home management at Texas A&M University recently.

One re-occurring mistake in laundering, reported by the National Automatic Laundry and Cleaning Council, is incorrect use of bleach. Pouring bleach on garments without proper dilution causes almost one-half of laundry problems, Miss Lyerly reports.

She stated that another common error in laundering is leaving crayons in children's clothing. The crayons melt in hot water or in dryers and may spread to the other fabrics.

Other laundry problems may be traced to overloading of washers, shrinkage of wool when laundered in too-hot water, and weakening of fabrics due to sunlight and oxidation from heating fumes.

Some laundry problems result from low-quality merchandise, Miss Lyerly said. When garments are poorly manufactured or are made from inferior materials, disaster in the laundry is inevitable. Bonded garments fall apart, the threads pucker, and dyes run and spread to other garments.

Graveside Rites Held At Newlin For Henry Mitchell

Graveside rites were conducted at 2 p. m. Tuesday, March 2, at the Newlin Cemetery for Henry W. Mitchell, 86, of Fort Worth, former Hall County resident. Fort Worth services were conducted at 4 p. m. Monday at Central United Methodist Church.

Services at Newlin were under the direction of Spicer Funeral Home.

Mr. Mitchell, president of the Mitchell-Goodwin Lumber Co. of Fort Worth, died Sunday in a Fort Worth hospital.

He was a native of Kentucky, moved to Texas when he was six years old and went to Fort Worth in 1922 from Memphis. He worked for the John E. Quarles Lumber Company for 13 years before forming his own firm.

Mitchell had served as president of the Line Yards Association, was the original president of the 50-Year Club of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas, was a former director of the Panther Boys Club, a Rotarian and was a member of Mosiah Temple Shrine and Colonial Country Club.

He had been a member of Central United Methodist Church for 48 years, and was chairman of the administrative board for a total of five times.

Surviving are his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Annie Cooper and Mrs. Ida Smith of Childress.

New Tax Guide Now Available For Taxpayers

WASHINGTON—The government has just released its 1971 tax guides for individuals and small businesses containing up-to-date information on federal income taxes.

Both booklets, "Your Federal Income Tax and Tax Guide for Small Business," are available from the Superintendent of Documents for 75 cents each.

Officials describe the booklets as "supplementing" pamphlets each taxpayer receives from the Internal Revenue Service, usually in January, along with his machine-readable tax form. The guides contain more detailed information and aid taxpayers, in most cases, to complete their own returns accurately and quickly.

The guides can be obtained by writing the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Remittance by check or money order should be included with the orders, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shadid and Terri visited in Altus, Okla., Sunday with relatives.

Mrs. James Lott and Judy and Mark of Levelland visited here over the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jude Gable.

Disaster Course To Be Taught In Childress

A course in disaster preparedness will be held in Childress

Tuesday, March 9, in the County Courthouse between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., it was announced this week.

John Guckian, disaster representative, West Texas Division, American Red Cross, will instruct. He is a veteran of disaster experience, and his most recent assignment was after Hurricane Celia.

"A town without a disaster plan ready to go into immediate operation is in serious trouble, said Ralph Briscoe, Texas Department of Public Safety, regional safety officer, on the scene early in the Lubbock tornado. "Thankfully, Lubbock had such a plan."

"Should disaster strike any of our Panhandle counties, preparedness could mean the difference between life and death. I would certainly mean the difference between comfort and discomfort, going hungry or being fed; having shelter or suffering from exposure. Without an effective plan assuring immediate mass care, the result could be mass chaos," Betty C. Moody, executive secretary of the Childress Chapter, said.

The course, "Immediate Assistance," will cover training in mass care of disaster victims, the work of disaster section teams, and immediate assistance that should be given. It will define the responsibility to be assumed by the individual, and the responsibilities of the community. The roles assumed by Civil Defense and the American Red Cross will be explained.

The Childress County Chapter of the American Red Cross urges every interested resident of Hall County to join in this important training, Miss Moody said.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am 14 years old and I need your help. I have a problem about getting a boyfriend. I dress nice and I don't say bad words. What should I do to get a boyfriend?"

OUR REPLY: We suggest that you forget about getting a boyfriend. At least, don't consider it the most important thing in your world. Concern yourself first with preparing for the future. This must be done by paying attention to your school work. Do your assignments, make the best possible grades. Develop your personality. In your search for knowledge, search also for a way to improve your relationships with your schoolmates, with your teachers, with your parents, with the elder generation. If you do these things, you become a well-rounded individual. You make a place for yourself, in school, in your community. When you begin to achieve in this manner you won't have to go looking for boyfriends—they'll come looking for you.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

lung disorders such as cystic fibrosis, and even some psychiatric disorders.

Although many medical scientists have been well aware of the potential significance and usefulness of saliva as a health indicator, little practical use could be made of it because the technological tools were not available. It took innovation in technique to open up this new field of salivary analysis.

Doctors could not make clear connections between the salivary analysis and a disease until they had the tools for collecting samples from different glands. Scientists at Columbia University Dental School in New York developed a collective device that could be easily modified for each patient by using dental-impression material.

Whole saliva had only limited value. With the new device, scientists could get separate samples of saliva from the parotid glands—the ones that swell up into mumps, and the submaxillary glands—the ones under the tongue. It was also essential to get samples from minor glands that secrete smaller amounts of saliva: those inside the lips, on the tongue and palate, and the membrane inside the mouth.

Salivary analysis could give a physician and the State Health Department another tool in the prevention and treatment of many common diseases.

Burlington and Texas

Burlington Industries became a part of the Texas industrial economy in 1956. Today, Burlington and its Burlington Domestic operations at Post, Memphis and Sherman employ more than 1,100 Texans in modern textile manufacturing facilities producing quality sheets and pillowcases for the nation's home furnishings market.

"Vera" and "Burlington" lines manufactured by Texans at these Texas locations are sold by leading stores in many Texas communities.

These quality textile products being purchased by Texans are the handiwork of Texas people. Employees at the Post Plant, for instance, go the entire route of converting fiber to fabric—fiber opening, spinning, weaving, finishing, fabrication and packaging. The Memphis plant compliments the Post operation in fabrication and packaging.

Burlington Domestic is one of 30 divisions of Burlington Industries, a company involved in virtually every phase of textile and textile-related production . . . a record that has made it the world's largest and most diversified textile firm.

The names "Vera" and "Burlington" on sheets and pillowcases reflect a unique concern in Burlington for quality manufacturing and merchandising. These names also denote the efforts of a group of employees dedicated to quality and loyalty.

These names also reflect a high measure of dedication, concern for quality and company loyalty of more than 1100 Texas employees.

That's a winning combination!

BOARD OF THANKS

In every man's life, there is a happening that is truly overwhelming. Such is in my life which I experienced last Wednesday morning. Before, my mother had away in Vancouver, Canada that night that God provide the way for me to my mother's funeral, if it His will for me to go. I to you today that God acted His will on my behalf. In the overflowing love, and the generosity of my fellow reviewites. I say "Fellow reviewites" for I have such a feeling of love for them here words cannot express. So you say to these people in the short span of two provided the money for me round trip plane ticket to ever to say "good-bye" and my last respects to my dear . . . Even now as I write this to my destination, my overflows with gratitude, eyes with tears. You see, only been a part of Lake for a short two and a half yet never have I experienced much love from so many in such a short time and such self-giving concentration. I wish to thank each who had a part in this united act of kindness and generosity to a fellow in need.

Other rich gift is the gift of prayers of all of you prayed. These prayers, I can say, I experienced in the of strength and peace about the whole time. I'll never forget your kindness and my family. Virgil Wells, Former Residents, Have Calif. Anniversary Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wells, former Memphis residents, of Lindsay, Calif., were the recipients of honors on their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, Feb. 14, when their children and grandchildren hosted an open house in the couple's home in Lindsay.

Using a Valentine motif in addition to the usual appointments in gold in observance of the special anniversary, the refreshment table was laid with a lace cloth and centered with an ornate anniversary cake, flanked by gold candles in crystal holders.

A wishing well, replacing the more traditional money tree, was placed on the television set near the guest book which registered the nearly 100 well wishers who called during the afternoon. Mrs. T. A. (Virginia) Luallen of Lindsay, the honoree's only daughter, and Charles M. Wells of Fullerton, were in charge of arrangements.

The couple's other son, Earl L. Wells of Palmdale, could not be present. There are eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, many of whom were present for the celebration.

The former Eula Lee Wiley and her future husband knew each other when they were children in East Texas. They met again when they were both living in Hall County and were married on Dec. 22, 1920, in Memphis.

They moved to Lindsay in 1939 and lived there for the next 10 years before moving to La Habra where they resided for 15 years. They made their home in Fullerton for three years before returning to Lindsay three years ago. Retired since then, Mr. Wells was employed by Douglas Aircraft as a mock-up man and tube bender for many years. Mrs. Wells worked in orange packing houses until the couple's retirement.

Mrs. Amos Weddel Attends Birthday Cel. For Her Mother

Schools Will Contribute $245,150,000 To Foundation Program During 1971-72

AUSTIN—Texas school districts will contribute $245,150,000 to the Foundation School Program during the 1971-72 school year, according to information released this week by the Texas Education Agency.

This local fund assessment for the coming year was approved Monday, March 1, by the State Board of Education at its meeting in Austin.

The statewide local fund assessment includes 20 per cent of the total Foundation School Program cost for 1970-71, or $215,849, plus another $30,023, in special credits earned by school districts during the past year.

Most of the total Foundation School Program, which includes state and local funds for the 1971 school year, is currently estimated at $1,075,634,347. As broken down into major categories, the Foundation School Program will pay for the following public school expenses this year: Professional and teacher aide salaries, $926,731,470; maintenance and operation of schools, $76,877,777; transportation, $26,850,000; Texas Education Agency administration, $2,000,000, and special programs, $2,000,000.

These funds pay for basic educational needs in Texas. However, many Texas school districts use local tax money to pay for additional services and support higher than minimum state scale salaries for teachers. The Board also approved the 1971-72 Economic Index on a county-by-county basis, with Harris (Houston) ranking highest on the scale at 13.816 per cent.

Each county's Economic Index, basis for its share of the total public school education cost, is based on a complex formula set by law. Elements in this formula include scholastic population, the county assessed property valuations, value added by manufacture, mineral production, and agriculture, plus retail, wholesale, and service industry payrolls. All are computed over an average of the past three years. Heaviest emphasis is put on income which is weighed at 72, assessed property valuations at 20, and scholastics at 8.

Although the average local share of the cost of the Foundation School Program is about 20 percent of the total on a statewide basis, the actual cost per county may be more or less, depending upon its wealth, property valuations, and number of students.

Other high paying counties on the Economic Index roll include Dallas at 13.816 per cent, Tarrant (Fort Worth) at 6.016 per cent, and Jefferson (Beaumont) at 4.084 per cent.

Rains County is assessed the lowest rate at .017 per cent, followed by Deaf Smith and Delta at .021 per cent.

State funds pay the largest share of the school bill in Texas at approximately 45.33 per cent of the total. Local taxes account for 43.15 per cent and federal funds 11.52 per cent.

NEWS for OUTDOORSMEN

By VERN SANFORD

To the outdoorsman, whether he hunts or fishes, the shade of a big tree is very important. The branches of these trees serve as a supply of food for game, fish and fowl, and as a source of comfort and shade to man, bird and beast.

Almost millions of acres of almost barren land are within the Lone Star State, not many persons realize that Texas also has its share of big trees.

During the past year Big Tree sleuths have recorded almost a hundred species of trees, a third of which are recognized in the national register as the largest in the nation.

American Forestry Association keeps the register.

Within the past year, the investigators have discovered a record-breaking Long Leaf Pine in Texas. It is in Sabine County in East Texas and measures 111 1/2 inches in circumference at 4 1/2 feet above ground. That's nine feet, three and one-half inches around! It is 134 feet high above the ground level and has a crown diameter of 34 feet. Until this tree was measured for national competition, an Alabama one held the championship. Surprisingly, this new record breaker can be seen at a popular roadside park on SH 184, five miles northwest of Hemphill.

The Texas Sophora (Coral Bean champion) is on the Kaolin Ranch, four and one-half miles west of Leakey, off Ranch Road 337.

Texas now has a Black Tupelo champion on the east bank of Eight Mile Creek, near the Harrison-Panola County line. Mississippi formerly held this champion.

A new Allegheny Chinquapin of monster size is found on FM 2022, 10 miles northeast of Crockett.

The champion Pyramid Magnolia is in Newton County, behind the office of the Newton Wildlife Kingdom, 10 miles southeast of Jasper.

Newton County has the largest Western Soapberry, two miles east of FM 1414, six and one-half miles southeast of Burkville.

Newton County also has the new Bluejack Oak champ on East Court St. in Newton.

Other champion big trees are the Water Tupelo, 12 1/2 miles northeast of Bon Wier; Bitterroot Hickory, 12 miles north of Bon Wier; Carolina Laurel Cherry, eight miles north of Burkville; Overcup Oak, seven miles north of Martinsville; White Fringetree, near Magnolia Springs and a Silk Tree and Black Locust located in the town of Jasper.

Among the other state champions are Southern Red Oak, Angelina County; Black Cherry, Jasper County; Hercules Club, Austin County; Osage Orange, Bowie County; Loblolly Pine, Rusk County.

Newton County also boasts of the remaining nine Texas champs. They are American Beach, Eastern Hophornbeam, Chinaberry, Mockernut Hickory, American Hornbeam, Swamp Chestnut, Post Oak, Yellow Poplar and Red Maple.

With more than 200 species of trees in Texas, the Texas Forest Service at College Station is looking for additional champs. They are working with owners to preserve the trees as landmarks and to stimulate greater interest in trees.

A list of these big trees is available from the Texas Forest Service. It should be of interest to all Texans who love the outdoors.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Felix Jarrell attended funeral services for Mrs. J. C. Scott in Childress on Wednesday of last week.

No-Till Systems Will Be Feature At Symposium

BUSHLAND—Due to the increased interest in no-till systems for crop production, a No-Tillage Symposium is being planned at the USDA Southwestern Great Plains Research Center here for March 10, 1971.

"Our center has been actively involved in a number of research activities regarding no-till practices under irrigated and dryland conditions over the past 10 years," Dr. B. A. Stewart, director of research said. "We have obtained much information that we believe will lead to increased water conservation and decreased crop production costs on the High Plains of Texas."

The symposium will get underway at 1:30 p. m. and will feature officials with the Soil Conservation Service and members of the research staff at the Bushland

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"I wish I had a Daddy who wasn't so handsome but was nicer to his little boy."

American Institute of Biological Sciences.

Studies conducted on preschoolers in India show that lysine, a relatively inexpensive chemical substance, when added to wheat grain or flour will aid the growth of youngsters in protein-starved areas.

A group of 52 children were given a diet in which wheat cereal was the main source of protein. This cereal has a low content of certain amino acids, which are the building blocks of protein essential for children in their early years of rapid growth.

Half of the children were given wheat supplemented with 0.68 grams of lysine plus an extra 0.37 grams of lysine daily. The remaining children were kept on their regular diet.

Six months later, the children receiving the lysine-supplemented diet had grown measurably taller than the unsupplemented "control" children.

This is an important development, particularly in areas of the world where animal protein foods such as eggs and meat are usually unavailable and always expensive. The researchers believe that it will be possible to nutritionally supplement rice in a similar fashion.

The work was supported by the National Institute of Health using U. S. owned rupees derived from the sale of wheat to India, and is one segment of long-term nutrition research at NTH.

Scientists Study Cell Colonies; Use Lysine To Aid Child's Growth

Scientists at the University of California, Los Angeles, are now growing miniature functioning systems of the brain, liver, heart, lung, and uterus. These isolated cell colonies gives scientists a more precise picture of organ function than has been possible in other ways.

This technique, known as tissue culture, is not new but it is being revived to attack many different problems.

In one study it has been possible for the first time to induce cultured brain cells known as glial cells to produce some of the components of myelin. Myelin is an insulating layer surrounding the "action" cells of the nervous system, known as neurons. Defects in this insulation may be responsible for such neurological diseases as multiple sclerosis.

Tiny clumps of beating heart cells have provided much information about the regulation and source of energy for the heart beat. And in a third project, normal liver cells are being cultured in order to study the prolific chemical factory of that organ. Problems of growth regulation also are being studied in these liver cells, in particular the difference in normal and cancer cells.

These and other investigations are not likely to lead to complete, integrated organs, grown and tailored to replace the worn-out hearts, livers, and the like. But the knowledge gained from the study of such microscopic models may eventually help the world to maintain or repair original organs so they will work longer, according to the report from the

"The U. S. Department of Agriculture officials feel strongly that everything which can be done should be done to improve cotton marketing so as to strengthen farm income. Anything that will make cotton more competitive will benefit Texas cotton growers," Danklefs said.

AUSTIN—Legislators moved toward their first major tax showdown this week. The House Revenue and Tax Committee was due to bring out its version of a revenue-sharing measure to balance a record budget.

Heart of the measure is to raise the sales tax rate from 3.25 per cent to 4 per cent (good for $300 million in additional biennial revenue) and an increase in motor vehicle sales tax from three to four per cent (for another $70 million).

Proposal to be advanced to the House floor for debate reportedly will include:

An increase of 50 cents (to $3.75) per $1,000 in the corporation franchise tax rate, $26 million.

Extension of the sales tax to repairs, laundry, dry cleaning, haircuts and beauty shop services, $100 million.

Sales tax on amusements, including professional sports and tourist attractions, $35 million.

An increase in hotel room tax from three to four per cent, $4 million.

Sales tax on telephone and telegraph bills, $40 million.

House already has passed a bill to raise out-of-state students' tuition at state-supported colleges and universities from $200 to $700 a semester and a $185 million bond bill to finance new college building. Neither measure has moved beyond sub-committee in the Senate.

Speaker Gus Mutscher has indicated he will allow representatives a full run with amendments to the tax bill on the House floor.

Revenue and Tax Committee Chairman Ben Atwell of Dallas said lawmakers have the choice of wringing major new revenue out of tried sales taxes or looking to a combination corporate-personal income tax.

Attorney General Opinions
A voter registration certificate should not be issued to one convicted of a felony and placed on probation until the court sets aside the complaint or indictment as specified in the election code, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

A justice of the peace is not entitled to any fee for conducting administrative hearings on the revocation or suspension of driver's licenses.

Jury panels selected by jury commissioners appointed by a county judge who has an interest in a pending case in county court are not disqualified to serve on county court juries.

Courts Speak
U. S. Supreme Court reinstated the Texas obscenity law in a Dallas case involving prosecution of an underground newspaper.

State Supreme Court granted a new hearing for a Cameron County man who blamed his insurance company for negligence in defending him in a 1958 suit arising from a traffic accident and in rejecting reasonable settlement offers.

High Court ruled a Harris County iron and metal firm waited too long to bring suit against an insurance company to recover for electrical transformers and wiring taken from its warehouse by burglars.

Court of Criminal Appeals upheld the life sentence of a Dallas man in the beating death of his wife and rejected the appeal of a Lubbock man from a life sentence for participating in the fatal attack on a jailer.

Revenue To State Offered
Texas would receive $243 million in federal revenue during the first year of the President's proposed $5 billion revenue-sharing plan, according to Senator John Tower.

Under Nixon's plan, the state would be required to pass on 47.9 per cent of its receipts from Washington to local governments via a complex formula. For example, the City of Austin would get $2.2 million, Travis County $604,000; the City of San Antonio would receive $4.68 million, and Bexar County $1.16 million.

Officials warned these figures may not be completely reliable, for federal-grants-in-aid may be reduced.

Reports from Washington indicate efforts by the administration to reach a workable compromise on revenue sharing.
