Pickup-Train Crash kills Man From Shallowater

James A. Ingle, 64, of Shallowater, was killed here Wednesday about 8 a.m. when his 1970 Chevrolet pickup with camper was hit in the passenger side by a southbound freight train on the Dover street crossing of the Ft. Worth and Denver railroad track.

Mr. Ingle, in the Memphis area to help his brother-in-law with some carpentry work, was dead on arrival at Hall County Hospital shortly after the 8 a.m. accident.

Ingle was crossing the track heading west. It was foggy at the time of the accident.

His pickup was knocked south about 75 feet from the point of impact by the fast-moving freight.

Ingle, a carpenter by trade, was in Memphis with his wife, visiting his brother-in-law, Hugh Lambert. Ingle, born in Purcell, Okla., had been a resident of Shallowater, since 1957.

He was a deacon in First Baptist Church in Shallowater. Survivors include his wife, Dorothy of Shallowater; one son, Johnny Robert of Dickerson; two daughters, Mrs. Jarvin Gato of Dumas and Mrs. Norman Mills of Springfield, Mo.; six brothers, three sisters and six grandchildren.

EDITORIAL

A Reoccurring Observation!

One of the remarkable things about the Hall County Picnic Celebration held each third weekend in September in Memphis is the large number of former residents and visitors from out-of-town who find their way to Memphis to attend the celebration.

To local residents from all over the county, who, each year handle the many, many details of the celebration, you can feel proud that the celebration attracts out-of-towners in large numbers, and this year's celebration was no exception.

Checking the registration list year after year we are always amazed at the large number of visitors registering from states all over the country. These people have scattered throughout and the annual picnic seems to draw them back for a few days. Many do not come each year, but maybe they come back after two, three or four years, to attend the picnic.

These visitors, some who have been away for decades, return to find many things different from what our county and community were when they left.

Our citizens should feel proud that the Hall County Picnic attracts people from California on the west and as far as north Carolina to the east, who travel many miles to attend.

This indicates that former residents want to return, have roots which extend into our citizenry, and want to renew old acquaintances with former classmates, etc.

Everyone who attends the picnic has moments of embarrassment when someone comes up to the and says, "Aren't you the one who sat next to me in Mrs. So-And-So's class . . .". Naturally, if many years have gone by, it is difficult to recall for most of us, but never the less there is a certain importance about reflections into the past, especially to those who have a past of many years into which to reflect.

This year's celebration started out with an attractive and and lively parade Saturday, a large crowd for the whisks contest judging, and ended with a large gathering at the City Park, and delicious barbecued beef prepared by Pete and Bill Land and members of the Memphis Volunteer Fire Department who labored, from 5:30 a. m. Saturday until into Saturday evening preparing the meal. All can feel proud of their part, and no doubt, our visitors from other states went home feeling well received and well fed.

That, in the final analysis, is the duty of being good hosts.

What Other Editors Say

Farm Lobbies Eye Legislation
 How did the farm lobbies fare by mid-1973 of the 93rd Congress? Since all were not lobbying for the same legislation, it might be said that some won some and some lost some.

The Farm Bureau spent much of its time lobbying on the Agricultural and Consumer Protection Act of 1973. But it was unsuccessful in its effort to get a bill reducing the scope of U. S. government intervention in agriculture. Largest of the major farm lobby groups, the Farm Bureau ultimately urged defeat of the Act because the bill included a "target price" concept guaranteeing that farmers would receive a fixed return for their products if the market prices fell too low. The Farm Bureau said that was a step away from the free market agriculture it advocates.

One amendment which had strong Farm Bureau support would have phased out all subsidy payments over a gradual period and used land-retirement incentives to influence agricultural production. The amendment did not make it.

The NFO strongly supported the farm bill and was pleased with its final version. The group's lobbying in behalf of the bill was done in coalition with several other farm organizations, including the National Farmers Union and the National Grange.

The NFO had hoped that the farm bill would contain higher target price levels and higher loan rates, but a spokesman for the group said he was glad to see the numbers as high as they were in a year of consumer resentment against high prices.

Another NFO lobbying project was the Economic Stabilization Act which opposed a roll-back of prices, fearing a return to the lower commodity prices that prevailed in 1972 and early in 1973. No roll-back was enacted.

National Farmers Union had a right to be pleased with the farm bill—the bill's basic concept stemmed from a proposal by Charles F. Brannan, NFU general counsel, Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture from 1949 to 1953, long advocated the switch in emphasis from price support to income support that emerged in the bill that became law Aug. 10.

The NFU had some misgivings about the bill, mainly because it did not consider it strong enough. The NFU opposed changes in conference that reduced the level of the target prices and delayed the effective date of a cost-of-production "escalator clause" agriculture census.

Along with other members of the National Farm Coalition, the Grange worked early in the year on efforts to circumvent presidential opposition to rural programs of environmental assistance, disaster loans, and electrification.

The National Cotton Council spent 90 percent of its time in 1973 on the farm bill. The group was pleased with the final bill and the target price concept, but was concerned about the new $20,000 ceiling on subsidy payments to individual farmers.

The Mid-Continent Farmers Association was one of the key members of the National Farm Coalition and was instrumental in lobbying for passage of the farm bill. The group was disappointed at the delay in operation of the escalator clause until 1976, but was pleased with most other features of the bill. The association was unsuccessful in its efforts to have a strategic grain reserve included.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

"The electronic dog-training collar is the most controversial device ever used in dog training," declares Gun Dogs Editor Jerome B. Robinson in the July issue of Sports Afield. He quotes the famous professional trainer John Rex Gates, handler of the 1972 National Champion, Texas Squire, who calls the electronic collar "the best training aid invented since birds," then adds that "the collar has ruined more dogs than it has helped."

The greatest danger of the electronic collar is that it is too easy to use. The "trains-dogs-instantly" type of advertising, which some electronic collar manufacturers continue to use is particularly misleading. "The collar doesn't train, it punishes," says John Rex Gates. "You've got to train the dog yourself."

Gates does not begin to use the collar until a dog is mature and has had its basic training. Then he uses the collar only to stop the dog from doing certain negative things which other methods fail to correct. He uses it only when a dog is disobeying a command, which it fully understands and is intentionally ignoring, or is misbehaving in a way it knows is wrong.

How to spot a Tornado with a TV set
In an electronics journal I read about to spot a Tornado with a TV set, and if it shows up this way, it's close. Turn the Channel Selector to Channel 2, where Cablecom is not attached to your house, and turn the contrast control all the way up. Turn the Brightness control down just to the point where the picture is completely dark. Lightning flashes will cause the screen to light momentarily. If a Tornado is prowling around the screen will stay lighted up. This seems unbelievable, but the tiny dust particles hitting each other in the 300 to 400 mile an hour tornado winds will generate enough static electricity to do it. On a small UHF antenna it will not work because it picks up from Channel 14 on to Channel 83. Sit the antenna will have to be the big one, picking up signals from channel 2 through channel 13.

The small antenna or any microwave system has too short antenna tines, so they are not correctly cut for the frequency of the tornado and lightning static. Nowadays a combination VHF and UHF antenna with FM times can be purchased. This might work through other channels like 3 or 4 but the article says nothing about that. So apparently the tuning coils in the Channel 2 are the only coils that are tuned to pick it up. Detuning other channels might cause it to pick up, but the detuning would have to be done during a lightning storm, and I wouldn't want the job.

Strengthening Of Cotton Marketing Methods Asked By USDA Top Official

Citing increased use of forward contracting in cotton marketing, a top Administration farm official today called on farmers and buyers "to preserve the marketing relationship they have been building in order to strengthen this marketing technique for the crop years ahead." This is according to Mr. Larry B. Rogers, County Executive Director, Hall County ASCS.

Forward contracting is the term used to describe the practice by farmers of selling their crop, or some portion of it, ahead of actual planting or production, for a specified price or with a price determining mechanism, usually for a specific delivery date. Terms of contracts vary, but may involve the outturn from a specified number of acres or a specific crop quantity.

Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said, "This marketing tool has become increasingly popular among farmers and buyers since the 1970-crop season when 11 percent of the upland cotton crop was sold ahead."

A recent USDA shows that 45 percent of the 1973-crop acreage was contracted ahead, up from 32 percent for the previous crop. Forward contracting can be very important in marketing the 1974 cotton crop, and future crops, before they are planted.

"In order for this relationship to continue to grow in scope and value," Mr. Frick said, "buyers and farmers should recognize that this arrangement imposes strict adherence to contract obligations. This means farmers should make every effort to produce and deliver to the purchaser strictly in accordance with the contract terms. Forward contracting also imposes a clear obligation on the purchaser to accept delivery and to settle promptly for all commodities delivered in accordance with contract provisions."

"I firmly believe farmers will make all reasonable efforts to produce and deliver the quality and quantity contemplated or specified in the contracts," Mr. Frick said. "I believe, too, that trade interests will live up to their end of the bargain. Both parties must be vigilant in seeing that all contract terms are fully met," he added. "If this is our experience this year, real progress will have been made in developing forward contracting as a stabilizing effect in merchandising cotton—and, by example, other commodities. Forward selling offers mutual benefits, if used wisely, but it also imposes mutual obligations."

"Forward contracting can be an essential tool in turning the corner away from Commodity Credit Corporation ownership of commodities and Treasury payments," Mr. Frick said. "I hope farmers and processors can build a new demand-chain concept in agricultural marketing to replace the 40-year-old production curtailment philosophy, and the entrenched dependence by processors on the U. S. government to carry reserve backstop inventories of farm products.

"With the Aug. 10 signing by President Nixon of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, and Secretary Butz's subsequent early announcements of the basic provisions of all the major commodity programs for the spring of 1974, U. S. farmers already have the crop production rules for the year ahead," Mr. Frick said. "Farmers are now in a position to plan ahead, and they are ready to produce for the marketplace. But the farmer must receive his signals from the market—from the domestic processor, from the trader, and the foreign buyer—in order to complete his plans."

"Lines between the producer and buyer should be taut and smooth enough that a demand pull will result in a production increase to meet consumer needs," Mr. Frick said. "Domestic processors should assume the responsibility to go out and buy farm commodities—in advance—so farmers can gauge demand with knowledge and confidence before planting."

"During the last 40 years of restrictive agriculture, stocks of wheat, feed grain and cotton have been acquired and held year after year at taxpayers' expense in Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) storage bins. The government has been performing an inventory function for the trade and has been serving as a market for farmers for more than a generation. Today's generation of processors and farmers is accustomed to utilizing CCC, and I expect that some of them will have real difficulty in adjusting to the new environment," Mr. Frick said.

"These are days not to be caught in our habits," Mr. Frick concluded. "These are days to look forward to marketing systems that suit the needs of the farmer. This is the time for farmers to work harder than ever before to move into the markets of the world and then hold on to the gains they have made."

Large Percentage Of Local People Work In County

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 — Of Hall County's working population, how many have jobs near where they live? How many travel out of the area to their places of employment? How do they get there?

According to the latest figures from the Department of Commerce, Hall County provides a means of livelihood within its own borders for the major portion of its working force. The number who travel out of the county is relatively small.

A total of 83.7 percent of the local area's employed people have in-county jobs, it is shown.

This is a larger proportion than is found in many sections of the country. In the United States as a whole, 74.8 percent work within their own county and, in the West South Central States, 81.5 percent.

The number of job opportunities in home areas varies greatly from community to community. It depends to a considerable extent on geography, on population density, on residential or commercial character and on the amount of industrialization.

With families leaving the busy urban centers in droves in recent years to seek a different kind of life in the less crowded outer areas, there has been an increase in traveling time between home and place of employment.

In Hall County, as in most localities, the private car is the chief reliance for this daily trek to work. No less than 73 percent of the local men and women who are employed travel to their jobs by car or by pool, it is estimated.

On the other hand, some 14 percent work at home or near enough to their places of employment to walk to work.

Nationally, the figures show, 77.7 percent of the working population travel by automobile, 5.5 percent go by bus or streetcar, 3.6 percent by railroad, subway or elevated train and 6.4 percent by taxicab.

Of the remainder, 7.4 percent walk, 3.5 percent work at home and 2.3 percent are unreported.

In some localities, where traffic congestion is most severe, the expanded use of mass transportation, especially buses, is being urged to cut down on gas consumption, air pollution and road tieups.

Mrs. Bill Hadley returned to her home in Ft. Worth Tuesday after visiting here for the past 10 days with her sister, Mrs. Henry Scott.

after the rains on Saturday night.

This is an estimate on the crowds we had in Hall County Heritage Hall Saturday and Sunday afternoons. At times, it looked like double stamp day. Counting the ones that registered and the ones who did not register, it would estimate 5 to 6 hundred people. So many of them were visiting Heritage Hall for the first time. In checking the registration book, we found that there were 60 towns represented that were out of Hall County. States represented were Colorado, Oklahoma, California, New Mexico, Iowa, North Carolina, Ohio, Florida and Texas. Texas was leader of the states in attendance with California in second place. From Heritage Hall records, the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McBrayer traveled the greatest distance to attend Hall County Picnic. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McBrayer were early day residents here. Their three children were born here and all three are now living and came to the picnic. They are John, Elizabeth (McBrayer) Washington and Bessie (McBrayer) Henry of Watsonville, California, where they moved in 1932. They lived on and owned one of the farms south of Memphis which they sold to W. B. McQueen when they left Hall County.

Bessie and Elizabeth both attended school at Salisbury and their teachers were Delilah Parker, Mr. Jones, Velma Read and Viola Hartman. They also attended school in Memphis where Bessie graduated in the 1930 class. She reported to me that she found on this trip two of her early day boy friends, one from the Salisbury grade school and one from MHS. She and Elizabeth remembered the one and only time they ever played hooky from school in the ladies rest room at the courthouse. Their brother, John, graduated from Watsonville High School in Calif. Bessie said she got her first speeding ticket last week 28 miles from Memphis. The Highway Patrol asked her if it was an emergency drive, and she told them it was that they had traveled 1700 miles to try to reach the place where all three of them were born. So this must have been the longest distance any of our picnic guests traveled. Elizabeth's husband is in Civil Service. They have one son and two grandchildren. Bessie's husband is in the apple orchard business, raising and selling delicious apples. The teachers they remembered in High School were Neville Wrenn and Ira Hammond.

Their mother was a sister of Seth and Ike Thomason, both now deceased. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McBrayer are both deceased and buried in the cemetery at Newlin.

I almost overlooked giving the offspring of Bessie and her husband. They have one daughter and three grandchildren.

We talk about the fine cotton and freed crops of Hall County being in the lead, but there is another crop that is most important to all of the world and that is the crop of People that have been raised here and furnished good citizens all over the United States and other countries. This crop of people who go out from this part of the Golden Spread, we think, is way above average.

It was good to see so many people at the picnic who are newcomers here and are taking their part in carrying on for the better things of Hall County.

I have left out a lot in this week's column that I wanted to get in but space and scattered scraps of notes that I wrote myself and cannot read have messed me up some. I will copy some of these scrap notes next week.

There was a lot of shaving going on the past weekend after the whisker contest was over. There was a question with some of the tourists as to why of all this outgrowth. Some of them from the eastern part of the United States seemed to know the answers. One made the remark that this was the wildest part of Texas. Another said, "You are now in the wild and woolly West" and still another asked what kind of mining was going on in this part of Texas.

Anyway, the younger men found out they could really grow whiskers. I think many of their wives had stood this wild look on their husbands' faces about as long as they could.

Mrs. Paul Montgomery brought her camera to the picnic Sunday to get a picture of her two whiskered sons, Mike and Jerry, but when she arrived, they were almost clean shaven.

I think it was Jerry Montgomery that used 16 razor blades with a lot of soap and water to pass the inspection of his wife. From the information I received from Jim Edd Wines, there were over 500 entered in the whisker growing contest.

About 12 to 12:30 Saturday, the town almost looked deserted and I was thinking pretty low and wondered if the parade at 2 o'clock would be a flop, but not so, as by 1:30 there was not much standing room on the sidewalks. It seemed impossible that so many people could arrive at the same time. There had not been much talk about the parade that I heard, and I did not know what to expect. It was a surprise to me that John McCauley had one of the best parades that we ever had here with the High School band, horseback riders, bicycles, motorcycles, modern farming equipment, old and new model cars and buggies, along with many beautiful floats. This parade would compare with much larger towns. It is still that good cooperation. Each one played his part in putting over the picnic. Thomas Clayton with his group at the tea table, Lena Mae Adcock with her group at the dessert table and Arthur Eddleman with his group serving chuck wagon coffee which was near Tops Gilreath's registration group, who needed anti-freeze in that cool weather after the rains. Wish we could call all of the names that were working together in a cooperative spirit but that is impossible. Holmes Posey was keeping up the bread line and Wendell Harrison filling the bean pots.

I had a short visit a few days ago with Bess Browder, who will be remembered as the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Browder who were pioneers in the Panhandle ranching business. Mr. Browder bought the Diamond Tail Ranch in 1896. The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Browder, Jimmie D. and Craver, are now deceased. The other daughter, Frances, has made her home in Phoenix for several years. Bess has made her home in Amarillo. She owns the Diamond Tail Ranch. She and Frances together own the Salt Creek Ranch. Craver Browder's wife is now deceased. Jimmie D's wife, Josephine, is now living in Houston. She will be remembered as Josephine Chamberlain, sister of Fred Chamberlain of Clarendon. Josephine has four daughters, all now living. In the course of conversation, I found out that where John Fowler's home is located was where the original Browder ranch headquarters were located. There is a hand-dug well on this property that John has pumped water from for the past 25 years. This well was dug in 1896 65 feet deep and cost $15 at dig at that time.

We want to thank the following people for their contributions to Hall County Heritage Hall-Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Read of Lubbock, Nolan Baker of Fort Worth, Mrs. W. E. (Attice) Gammage of Plainview, John A. Rowell of Childress, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Jones, Mrs. A. W. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Jones of Memphis and Mrs. V. V. (Anna Margaret) Clark of Lubbock.

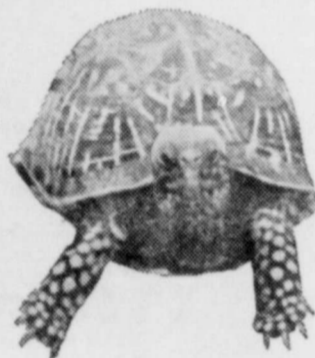

We also want to thank everyone who had a part in acting as host and hostess in Heritage Hall Saturday and Sunday.

Our thanks to Hubert Dennis for getting Heritage Hall clean and shining.

We are very thankful there was no ambulance call to the picnic (Continued on Page 9)

Booklet Mailed To Explain Lay Witness Mission

The First Baptist Church of Memphis has scheduled a Lay Witness Mission on the weekend of September 28. The meetings are scheduled to start on Friday afternoon at 4:00 p. m.

This week a letter from the church was mailed to its members which included a small booklet entitled, "The Great Discovery". It is hoped that each member will use this booklet to prepare himself to receive and retain the most from the Lay Witness Mission, it was stated.

The question was asked, "What are some of the advantages you can expect from these meetings?"

First, you can expect a new depth of Christian love and fellowship to develop among a core group in the congregation, it was pointed out.

Second, you can expect the Lay Witness Mission to focus on personal commitment; third, you can also expect the Lay Witness Mission to stimulate a deeper desire for involvement in the life of the church; fourth, benefit of the Lay Witness is a total membership visitation; fifth, it is believed that every person who participates in this weekend of renewal will get a new picture of the church; finally, members in the congregation will discover joy, it was stated.

"The Lay Witness Mission can bring a new depth of personal renewal, a new focus on personal commitment, the release of motivation for work and ministry, the beginning of a new vision for the church in the 20th century, a personal joy," the reported concluded.

All members are urged to attend and all visitors will be welcome. Make your plans now to attend all possible meetings the last weekend in September at the First Baptist Church.

SPORTS CORNER

BILL COMBS
 The season is well under way, and it appears that the fans are going to have an exciting season again as the Cyclone under Clyde McMurray is determined to be re-introduced to all its opponents.

termination of this year's defensive unit.
 With few exceptions during the past 12 years, Memphis teams have been able to put points on the scoreboard, but a lot of times key games were lost because our opponents were able to score more points.
 The Cyclone defensive unit shut out White Deer in the opener, and the team gave up only six points against Childress. The Bobcats other TD came when Memphis was on offense when the football bounced out loose on an attempted field goal. Childress' longest drive of the night was 37 yards, their scoring drive.

NOTICE OF HEARING TO APPLICATE STATE WATER OF THE STATE OF TEXAS
 No. 3161
 Given that L. R. HAGY National Bank Building Texas 79101, seeks a permit from Water Rights Commission to construct a 1057 acre capacity dam and reservoir named tributary of Bitlock, tributary of Prairie Fork Red River, tributary of Red River, Red River County, Texas, designated SCS Site 5, Lakeview Project. The impoundment would be used for re-creational purposes, all being fully set out in the application.

Local fans should become familiar with defensive play on the gridiron and cheer as much for the tacklers in the game as they do for the runners and passers and receivers.
 Personally, I've always wanted to cover a local team which made for itself a reputation of playing good, sound steady defensive football. If I'm not mistaken, I believe the 1973 team may do just that.

13+00 on the center of the dam is S 64° 30' E, from the SW corner of the survey, Munson Survey No. 29, Block A, Abstract No. 3161 was accepted for filing by the Texas Water Rights Commission on September 4, 1973, and a hearing will be held by the Commission in the Sam Houston Office Building at Austin, Texas on October 17, 1973, at 10 a.m. Those opposing the application should file their reasons therefor with the Commission not later than September 11, 1973.

A defensive team must work together as a unit, just as the offensive team does. The Cyclone defensive line has several lads who appear in and out, including Ben Smith, Dick Richards, Candy Reyes, Jay Campbell, Lyndel Orett, Gary McKay, and sometimes Jarome Spearman or Bobby Hall. Also anchoring the corners are Don Davis and Jimmy Booth. Linebackers are Mark McQueen, Mark Bradshaw, Jim Dixon, Buddy Ballew and Andy Moore. Defensive secondary has Charles Bryley, James Beck, Earl Ray Wright and sometimes Wayne Davis. Also, Ronnie Browning is anxiously awaiting recovery so he can be back. Naturally only eleven of these are on the playing field at one time.

Coach McMurray has expressed pleasure many times with the defense. His most recent remark was that the team's defense is doing an "admirable" job and is giving really a good effort.

Examining the Childress game film Tuesday night at booster club, I couldn't help but notice the quick reaction of the local team's defense. It seemed on play after play tackles were being made by two or three defenders. Some of the tackles were crushing blows.

Newspaper men often get in the bad habit of reporting only the scoring plays. Most times, however, it's the blocking that opens the holes for the runners and allows the quarterback time to pass. The local team's offense is temporarily without the services of both starting tackles, recovering from injuries. Coach McMurray cited Candy Reyes for fine play as an offensive tackle and announced that sophomore Kenneth Fields has been brought up from Junior Varsity for the left tackle slot. This will allow End Bobby Hall to return to the right end position from right tackle.

Although the Memphis offense did not put any points on the board against Childress, sparks were ignited that shows the team is developing real offensive thrust. Something also should be said for the fine play of Childress defenders led by All State linebacker Tim Lewellen who played a big part in the shutout, stopping the local team deep in Childress territory on several occasions.

Ward Motor Co. To Display New 1974 Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles On Thursday

Ward Motor Company in Memphis will be showing the new 1974 model lines of Chevrolet and Oldsmobile Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and the firm will have free Cokes and coffee on Friday and Saturday, Dennis Ward, owner, announced this week.

The Oldsmobile's 1974 model lineup includes a new Cutlass Salon series, a Ninety-Eight Regency coupe, Toronado Brougham and two new intermediate station wagons. Extensive design changes in the Delta 88 and Delta 88 Royale hardtop coupes and a long list of engineering advancements are features for 1974. Chevrolet Motor Division takes new strides forward as the industry's manufacturing and sales leader with important advances in sturdiness and roadability in its seven different passenger car lines for 1974.

On the way to a third consecutive record "three million-plus sales" year, Chevrolet will introduce its new cars and trucks on Thursday. A total of 44 models are being offered by Chevrolet for 1974, four less than in the previous model year.

Greatest change is in the Chevelle line where a new sporty Laguna Type S-3 coupe is added while a luxurious new Malibu Classic series replaces the Laguna series at the top-of-the-line.

Chevrolet plans to introduce at mid-year the Cosworth Vega engine with dual overhead camshafts and 16 valves-four per cylinder, it was announced.

All 1974 models will be equipped with the sequential ignition interlock in the seat belt system that calls for the driver and front seat passenger to be seated with belts buckled before the car will start. Seat sensors and buckle switches operate sequentially to help prevent defeating the system.

There are three distinct bumper systems on Chevrolet cars in compliance with the more stringent government impact regulations.

Engine power ranges from the Vega's aluminum alloy block four-cylinder 140-cubic inch power plant and the standard 250-cubic inch six cylinder on up to an optional 454 cubic-inch V8.

Headlining the broad variety of other Chevrolet developments for 1974 are new front and rear styling for the Chevelle and Vega lines; new front and rear appearance for the Camaro; and styling refinements for the Monte Carlo.

The five coupes in the standard Chevrolet and Chevelle series have new roof designs.

Oldsmobile

The Cutlass Salon, introduced in 1973 as an option on the Cutlass Supreme sedan, has become a full-fledged series with the addition of a coupe for 1974.

All intermediate models for 74 feature new grilles, bumpers and rear end appearance including flush mounted taillights.

The intermediate station wagons are extended to the Cutlass Supreme series with two and three-seat models available.

The new Ninety-Eight Regency coupe features nylon velour fabrics formerly available only on the Regency sedan and a 60-40 divided front seat with dual controls. All Ninety-Eights have a new front appearance with large dual grilles mounted in the fiber-glass front end panel.

Exterior design changes for '74 are most extensive in the Delta 88 and Delta 88 Royale hardtop coupes. The new upper design features more glass area with improved visibility.

The compact Omega, introduced in 1973, receives new front end appearance changes including a bright plated die-cast grille.

With only seconds on the clock, QB Davis made 4 yards and Reserve FB Gary McKay came in and on the delayed hand-off gained 10 yards to the Childress 26 when the final gun sounded.

Assessed Value Of Property In Hall Co. Listed

NEW YORK, Sept. 17— What is the assessed value of property in Hall County? To what extent has this total, which serves as the base for local taxes, changed in the last few years?

With people all over the country concerned over their steadily mounting property taxes, a look at the local assessment situation is in order.

Such a look has just been taken by the Census Bureau as part of a nationwide survey of state and local government operations that it makes every five years. The findings, just released, are contained in its "1972 Census of Governments."

They show that in Hall County, where the property tax is the principal source of revenue for local government needs, the assessed value of property subject to such tax amounted to $13,215,000. This compares with the total reported five years ago, $12,986,000.

It was an increase of 2 percent. Elsewhere in the United States assessments went up 43 percent, on average, and in the State of Texas, 46 percent.

Assessed valuations are not to be taken as true market values, it is noted, since property is assessed in most communities for tax purposes at something less than actual value.

The tax rate that is applied to the assessed value is the other factor in determining how big the tax bills are.

In terms of population, the tax base in Hall County was equivalent last year to $2,360 in taxable property per local resident.

Throughout the State of Texas, the average was $2,023 per person.

Property assessments, as well as tax rates, have been increased in most parts of the country in the last few years as local communities, confronted with bigger operating costs, were forced to seek additional revenue.

Nationally, the assessed valuation of locally-taxable property has jumped from its 1967 figure of $442 billion to a total of $641 billion.

As a result, property taxes collected by local communities in the past year amounted to $36.7 billion, a 46 percent in-
