Honors Given At Chamber Banquet

Rep. Lane Denton Brings Campaign For RR Com. Here

State Rep. Lane Denton of Waco, a Democratic candidate for Texas Railroad Commission, brought his campaign to Memphis last Wednesday, and had a breakfast here.

He is conducting a campaign he describes as "a campaign very close to the people", as he travels over the state. "I want to meet as many voters as I can in all parts of Texas and give them a chance to let me know their specific concerns about this race."

"One area of particular concern to me is the tremendously high cost of gas utility service," Denton said.

Denton, 35, was born and raised on a farm outside Waco in McLennan County. He now operates a farm-ranch there.

AMBASSADOR SERVICE —

Byron Baldwin, right, received a Memphis Ambassador Service Award from the Chamber of Commerce. Wendell Harrison made the presentation and the plaque was accepted by Ben Parks, pictured above. Baldwin is in a Dallas Hospital recovering from surgery. Chamber officials honored Mr. Baldwin for the years of dedicated civic work he has done. He has been the principal force behind the establishment of Hall County Heritage Hall in past years.

Salvation Army Work —

W. D. Young Gets 'Bell Ringer' Award

W. D. Young, chairman of the Salvation Army Service Unit in Memphis for the past 20 years, was recognized for his service by receiving a "Bell Ringer Award", one of the most unusual awards and a high award that the Service Unit Dept. of the Salvation Army gives.

Imogene Delay, Field Rep. of the Salvation Army, of Amarillo, was on hand this week when County Judge Lester Campbell and officials of the Courthouse assembled for the presentation ceremony.

Mr. Young has served the people of Memphis, Turkey, Estelline and Lakeview well for these 20 years.

When the area was without a Field Representative several times, he held a campaign to raise money to "help people." He did the typing, getting workers and all that goes with running a fund raising campaign. He has always worked with the fund drives as a worker and organizer.

He has been responsible for getting underprivileged boys to summer camp each year. He gets the boys from Memphis, along with some from other county towns. This includes appointing a selection committee, securing parents' consent, seeing after physical examinations, arranging bus transportation. He never fails to get the job done, even as last year he had to direct getting the boys to camp from his hospital bed while in Hall County Hospital.

He has directed the clothes gathering campaign and arranged for the Salvation Army Corps in Amarillo to send a truck to pick up the donated clothing.

A member of the First United Methodist Church here, Mr. Young feels very strongly about the good work done by the Salvation Army, and he has made the chairmanship into a all year job by helping with the welfare part.

Imogene Delay of Amarillo summed his service up by saying, "He is almost a 'One Man Army' in Memphis. The committee appreciates him. The State of Texas appreciates him and I am sure (Continued on Page 8)

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce Banquet last Thursday night was the instrument whereby local citizens paid highest tribute to worthwhile citizens and the circumstances proved to be the highlights of the spring season.

The banquet presentations had a double climax, if such a thing is possible, honoring the old and the young, each in part.

Byron Baldwin, fighting for his life in an intensive care ward in a Dallas Hospital, was presented with a Memphis Ambassador Service Award in a ceremony conducted by Wendell Harrison. Ben Parks received the award for Mr. Baldwin in an emotion-packed acceptance.

Baldwin, a 50-year Mason, retired businessman, who has done more civic work since he retired from active business than most men do in a life-time, church worker, and the motivation behind the establishment and operation of Hall County Heritage Hall, has held the highest offices in civic affairs and accomplished his civic duties with enthusiasm and dedication that few ever master.

This presentation came on the heels of the special recognition paid to Miss Cheri Rapp of Estelline, who was on hand for the affair. Miss Rapp was cited as Hall County's world-wide ambassador as she has traveled throughout the globe as a member of the U. S. Womens Basketball team.

Miss Rapp, protecting her amateur status as she plans to try out for the 1976 U. S. Womens Olympic team this year, as she was co-captain of the Pan-American Team last year, paid money for her own necklace she received from the Chamber, a charm local sponsors hope will help her secure a position on the Olympic team.

Miss Rapp has received the highest awards in womens basketball that are given in this country. Only an Olympic gold medal remains in her dreams. She received a standing ovation by those attending the banquet after Chamber Ex-Vice Pres. Jim Edd Wines made the presentation.

Community Awards were given by Mike Branigan and Coy Miller, out-going and in-coming presidents of the chamber.

Lenis and Grady Simpson were awarded the Businessman of the Year Award, and Hall County 4-H for their horse program, received the agriculture award.

The "Chamber Workhorse of the Year" was divided as Bill Ballew received the "runner-up" award and Hubert Dennis was awarded the top spot.

The banquet was termed a success by Chamber officials financially as well as program-wise.

Applications For Motor Vehicle Plates is Simple

AUSTIN — Application for new motor vehicle registration plates is more simple in Texas this year than at any time since World War II.

Instead of new metal plates the Department of Highways and Public Transportation (DHT) is issuing validation stickers to be applied to the upper left-hand corner of the rear plate issued last year. An adhesive on the back of the sticker foils removal of the sticker by would-be thieves — or motorists who foul up the instructions for application.

And, of course, there have been some almost unbelievable laments by otherwise intelligent motorists. For instance:

A motorist in Corpus Christi was very careful to put the validation sticker in the proper position on the rear plate — except that it was his neighbor's car. Both vehicles, parked side by side, were red.

In Amarillo a motorist paid for his sticker and immediately went to the parking lot of the county courthouse. He applied the sticker to the rear license plate of the vehicle owned by the as- (Continued on Page 8)

EDITORIAL

Financing Local Governments!

When General Revenue Sharing came into being as one of the major programs under President Richard Nixon's administration a few years ago, a warning was sounded that Cities and Counties would use the funds for regular budget items and come to rely on this "federal" money to provide services for their citizens.

Now there is a possibility, especially after a new administration takes over the reins in Washington, D. C., the nation's capital, that the old revenue sharing program will be discarded, not renewed by Congress especially without strong support by the Presidency.

Whether or not the program should be renewed is now the subject of this editorial, for the issue at point centers on returning federal tax monies to be spent at lower levels of government.

When revenue sharing began, it was an effort by the Federal Government to "bail out" the nation's largest cities from going under financially, but in order to aid these big cities, other cities and hamlets had to share equally or the program would never have been passed in the first place. A formula was set up dividing the federal funds on population.

Today, after several years under the program, big cities like New York, still are on the verge of bankruptcy, despite many federal programs.

But all other cities and counties in the country have grown dependent on these funds as well. Comptroller Bob Bullock this past week mailed out percentage totals on all counties and cities in Texas.

Based on 1975 figures, and on the assumption that revenue sharing is not renewed, tables provided by Comptroller Bullock illustrates the percentage increase in tax revenues that local governments would need to generate in order to replace revenue sharing funds in their current budgets.

According to the tables, Hall County would need 20.5 per cent increase in other taxes to replace revenue sharing funds. Memphis would need 20.4 per cent, Estelline 23.0 per cent, Lakeview 20.9 per cent and Turkey 16.3 per cent.

The data was calculated by dividing the current revenue sharing allocation for counties and cities by the total taxes for each county and municipality, but does not include all sources of funds available for counties and cities. Bullock explained that figures released would indicate how much more local taxes would need to be raised to replace revenue sharing funds if they were lost.

By examining the tables for all cities and counties in Texas, it is seen that Hall County and its communities are about in the center, needing about a one-fifth increase. Some places would have to double tax loads to replace these funds.

In some instances, cities have had to use the funds to meet government regulations under environmental programs, while others have used them for improvements of physical plants, etc. In many instances, local taxes have not been increased since the funds started arriving, despite inflation.

Considering that the major source of all local and county taxation is property taxation, and the major source of taxation by the federal government is income taxation, many arguments, pro and con, could be raised.

We fear that, with the nation's largest cities facing greater financial problems, and these same areas of the country having the majority of the representation in the Halls of Congress, rural Americans will come out on the short end again if the revenue sharing program is re-vamped.

CAPITALISM 1976

If the ghost of Karl Marx should return today, would it be so hard to persuade him that the proletariat fared better under western capitalism than under Eastern communism?

Well, to be frank, it might be. Saying as the patron saint for a world-wide movement involving millions of people is pretty heady stuff, and even a ghost would feel some loyalty to all the communists and socialists of the world who have accorded him that exalted status.

But a good case could be made that Marxian objectives have been better met in the U. S. than in the U. S. S. R. To a greater degree than even many Americans themselves are aware, workers in the U. S. have more significantly, to exercise some measures of control over what they own. Russia has fulfilled the Marxian objective in form through state ownership but Russian workers don't exercise much control over the state, nor do they receive many tangible benefits from the production they supposedly master. That other Marxian objective, the one about the state withering away is in no danger of being fulfilled in either country but the power of Washington still is relatively benign compared to that of Moscow.

The extent to which American workers have come to have a beneficial ownership in American business corporations is one of the great under-reported facts of the American experience. If that were not true, we would surely hear fewer attacks on corporate profits from politicians and labor unions.

To get a better understanding of this subject we recently asked economists at the New York Stock Exchange to estimate the number of people who own shares in public corporations or investment companies directly by virtue of their state in large institutional funds. After adjustment for duplications, the number came to a startling 11' million, or about 72% of the population over the age of 13. When you add direct shareholders, it is found that 88% of the post-13 population has some link to the earnings and stock market performance of American corporations.

The largest group of indirect owners are holders of participating life insurance policies, which yield dividends related to the success or failure of the insurance company's investments. A similar category consists of depositors in mutual savings banks, which also invest in common stocks. But perhaps the most crucial holding is that of the 51 million Americans who are covered by private or government administered pension plans and who depend heavily for their future security on the successful investment of these funds.

Americans, of course are affected in other ways by the performance of large funds, such as college and hospital endowments and church investments. These institutions often depend heavily upon their investments to support services they provide to all classes of people. These more indirect relationships, however, are not included in the Stock Exchange calculation.

Nor does it include the 12 million American who are themselves entrepreneurs and who are directly affected by the prosperity of business. Entrepreneurs, incidentally, have remained a fairly constant percentage of the population for many years.

The 17 million net addition to the indirect shareowner population over the last five years has more than offset the decline of some 18% in direct ownership, which is heavily attributable to the weak performance in that period of the stock markets. Thus Americans are becoming steadily more involved with the fortunes of American corporations.

Moreover, they exercise more influence than they sometimes imagine on the performance level of corporate managers. Even the lowest paid worker, if he complains loudly enough to his union or pension fund committee about investment results, is likely to be heard. And certainly the professional managers of large pension funds can make themselves heard to corporate managers the ground up for managerial purposes. There is a pressure for performance in generating profits and economic growth, which is exactly as it should be.

However, there is less pressure than there should be on politicians to create an environment for corporations that will enable them to operate profitably and grow.

One of the things that Karl Marx's spiritual heirs never learned, to their own sorrow, is that there is very little point in getting control over the means of production if you fail to understand what it is that makes production grow.

C., ent Roosevelt and his Secretary

tary of State, John Hay, agree that the rescue of Mrs. Pedecaris would help the President's chance of re-election. So a squadron of U. S. Marines is dispatched to Morocco. In the meantime, Mrs. Pedecaris is treated most kindly by Raisuli, who admits he will set her free eventually, ransom or no ransom. She finds she is beginning to like this man, who can kill one minute and pray the next, and the other - world existence of his palace. The obstinate Bashew, the power behind the Sultan, is forced finally to accept most of Raisuli's terms when the Marines storm the palace and seize control. Booklet Is Available on Lawn Pests

COLLEGE STATION — The spring season will soon be here and homeowners and gardeners will again be waging war on a host of insect pests. A publication by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service can help in this battle.

Titled "Insects and Related Pests Attacking Lawns and Ornamental Plants," the publication offers a full description of the different pests that feed on lawns, shrubs, trees and lawns in Texas.

Each insect is described in detail along with the type of damage it does, points out Dr. John Thomas, entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "The insects are also categorized as either chewing or sucking types so as to identify the damage they inflict to plants."

The publication features color pictures of many of the insect pests that attack lawns and ornamental plants along with pictures showing some of the damage they do.

"Successful control of these insects depends on recognizing them and the type of damage they do and then taking the proper control measures," notes the Texas A&M University System entomologist.

In addition to chemical controls certain cultural and management practices are also important in avoiding or reducing insect damage to plants, points out Thomas. These include fertilizing and watering, properly selecting adapted plant varieties that are healthy, vigorous and insect resistant, if available, and avoiding mechanical injury to plants.

The entomologist encourages homeowners and gardeners to obtain a copy of B-1078, "Insects and Related Pests Attacking Lawns and Ornamental Plants," to get prepared for the spring season ahead. The publication is available for 50 cents a copy from the Department of Agricultural Communications, Texas A & M University, College Station, Texas 77843. Payment should be made with the order.

People Can Lengthen Own Life Span

Some medical experts say people in the U. S. could prevent half of their personal health problems by taking good care of themselves. Other research shows people can add between 7 and 11 years to their lives by following seven simple guidelines.

This year untold numbers of people will abuse drugs ranging from caffeine to heroin, the Texas Medical Association says. More than $10 billion will be spent on alcohol alone. About 70 million people will be overweight. Approximately 60,000 people in the U. S. will die of lung cancer—much of it caused by smoking.

Many people seem to get along fine consuming moderate amounts of food, alcohol and some other drugs (such as the caffeine in coffee). Trouble looms when people start over-indulging.

One study shows a definite link between daily habits and life span. The research, which began in 1965, shows men can add 11 years to their lives and women seven years by following these seven suggestions.

Get the right amount of sleep. Men need about eight hours a day; women need about seven hours. Individual requirements vary.

Eat a good breakfast daily. Eat three meals a day at regular times and avoid snacks.

Exercise regularly. Keep your weight within recommended levels.

Drink alcoholic beverages moderately (a maximum of two drinks a day).

Don't smoke cigarettes.

The study, reported in the Newsletter of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, shows that a man who observes three or fewer rules will be fortunate to reach age 67. But "a man at age 55 who follows all seven guidelines has the same physical health status as a person 25 to 30 years younger who follows less than two," the study said.

The project, done by the California Health Department's Human Population Library, also reports that those in the study who frequently engaged in active sport had half the death rate of people who exercised only occasionally.

Gil Blakney Gives Report on Farmers Union's Fly-In to Washington

Gil Blakney, president of the Key Farmers Union Chaptered Hall County last week when 80 members from Indiana and South Dakota flew into Washington to meet with different congressmen, and committees representing the Farmers Union.

The purpose of the fly-in was to urge the people in Washington to aid farmers, with special emphasis placed on estate taxes and loans to young farmers.

Blakney gives the following report on the trip: "On Feb. 24, the members met in a convention room for an all-day meeting with the Washington Fly-In. This meeting was chaired by Ruben Johnson, National Executive Director, Mr. Johnson has 20 years experience. Senator Johnson from South Dakota addressed the members and had them with a concurrent session sheet already endorsed by several senators relating to various on several commodities and asking for 90 percent parity on these commodities. Members were to hand out sheets the next day to the members to get their endorsement.

The next speaker has served on the Agriculture Committee for 10 years under Presidents Ford, Truman and Eisenhower. He is now one of six Secretaries of Agriculture. He opened the floor for discussion.

The main concern being estate taxes. He stated that the estate tax was outdated and needed to be revised, since 1942 was the last time the laws were dated. In one case he purchased a new mobile for $800.00 which is possible today," Mr. Blakney said.

From this meeting we learned that all our farmers need to our Congressmen personal asking that the estate tax be raised to $250,000 and all for 90 percent parity and young farmers loans to be increased. Let's cover their desks better, because there is power numbers," Blakney said.

At this meeting, the group split into groups of three to different Congressmen, with group having eight visits to Capitol Hill. Mr. Blakney said among the senators he met was Hubert Humphrey, which was a great pleasure. After completing the visits, the group convened at Dirksen Building for a report from each group. All the reports were excellent on estate taxes and I believe this will be passed, Mr. Blakney said.

The next meeting was with Power Commissioner on Natural Gas Prices. Bob Mullins, Jay Namman's assistant, will fly back to Washington on March 10 to testify on this committee as to the deregulations on natural gas prices. It is hoped this will be of help to farmers.

On Thursday, the group met with the Cotton Board, including J. H. McLanahan, Gerald Hauba and Jerry Boyad. The group asked the board to do away with the Mike test due to some new methods of spinning the test is not needed any longer and it only causes the farmers to get less money for cotton. The group also discussed barked cotton and new sampling methods.

Following this meeting, the group met with the Department of Agriculture. They were very congenial and told us they were very acquainted with our Farmers Union Organization and had heard our views many times before. Mr. Blakney said.

The floor was open for discussion. The assistant to Mr. Butz told us he had a 1000 acre farm in Tennessee and one of our members asked him if he made any money in 1975. He replied, "He didn't know because he had not fixed his income taxes yet." He was then asked if he made any money in 1974 from his farming and interests.

He replied, "No, I didn't do so well in 1974." However he and his department defended Mr. Butz on his farm policies and the President on the embargoes placed on us, Blakney said. One of the department members said it is easy for farmers to see a mistake made in Washington. "I told him we agree with him, but it is very hard for us not to see mistakes when Secretary Butz asked us to plant fence to fence, when the cost of production is higher than what our commodities bring on the market and then have an embargo placed on our grain that cost us $1.00 a hundred, Blakney stated. I then asked him, "Why doesn't Mr. Butz raise the price of commodities to a level where we could at least see a way of survival. He has the authority to raise these support prices to 90 percent parity so why doesn't he use this

Rep. Phil Cates Named to House Crime Force

AUSTIN — Rep. Phil Cates of Pampa, has been named a member of a nine-member House Task Force on Crime and its Control by House Speaker Bill Clayton.

The task force will have as its specific goal, presentation to the 65th Legislature of major legislation aimed at the control and eradication of crime.

"Rep. Cates' experience on the House Business and Industry Committee will be helpful to the task force because crime cuts across all boundaries of our society. We need broad representation in helping convey ideas to the Legislature and to touch on every inroad of crime," Clayton said.

The task force will consider means by which to deter and prevent crime; ways in which to deal with persons charged with crime; and ways to punish and influence those who have been convicted of a crime so that they, or others like them, will not again commit criminal acts.

"Texans clearly are asking for tough crime control bills and this task force is charged with finding strong solutions to this growing plague," Clayton added.

QUALITY VALUE

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Bill Boykin TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Local tax bills may go up steeply for the same level of services if Congress refuses to extend the federal revenue sharing program, Comptroller Bob Bullock warns.

"The cold truth is that in most cities and counties, (the taxpayer) will have to pay at least 20 per cent more in local taxes if the program ends," Bullock said. "Death of the program would also cost the state $100 million a year," the comptroller noted.

Bullock emphasized these points: Real impact would be on cities and counties which have received nearly $1 billion from revenue sharing during the five-year life of the program.

Inflation has forced local officials gradually to rely on revenue sharing as part of their operating budgets.

"A vote against revenue sharing at this point is most surely a vote to decrease local services or increase local taxes," Bullock stated.

A study by the comptroller's staff concluded:

General federal revenue sharing accounts for 30 per cent or more of tax revenue in 68 counties, 20 to 30 per cent in 102 counties and up to 19.99 per cent in 84.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he opposes continued revenue sharing for states but considers the program necessary for cities and counties.

Water Fight Rages
In the face of a threatened lawsuit by the attorney general, Texas Water Rights Commission approved a controversial sale of water by Lower Colorado River Authority to cool generators of the South Texas Nuclear Project power plant.

TWRC ratified a contract between LCRA and STNP for up to 102,000 acre feet of Colorado River water a year at $10 an acre foot (as much as $56 million) over a 55-year period.

Atty. Gen. John Hill said the water does not belong to LCRA but to the state, and he will seek to enjoin the TWRC action in court. A state permit for sale of the same water would cost only $500.

San Antonio, Houston, Austin and Corpus Christi electric utilities are partners in the STNP which plans a nuclear-powered generating plant near Bay City. Project heads fear failure to go along with the water sale would bring on a prolonged legal battle with LCRA which would cost more in lost electricity purchases, alternate fuels and contribution inflation than the $56 million contract.

Pay Row Continuing
Texas school teachers served notice they will be pushing for legislation next year giving them salaries above $12,524 national average.

A recent survey by the National Educational Association calculated the average Texas classroom teacher's pay at $11,373 — $1,151 behind the national average and 24th among the states. The legislature last year raised starting pay from $6,600 to $8,000 for bachelor degree teachers and from $7,200 to $8,600 for master degree teachers.

Courts Speak
The State Supreme Court agreed to review a test case on whether a church camp in Hood County can be taxed.

In another new ruling, the high court declined to consider a Harris County man's challenge of the doctrine that, in most circumstances, governments are not responsible for paying damages on injuries caused by employee negligence.

A former Kerrville school teacher who lost his job because he wouldn't shave his beard six years ago won a $6,000 back pay award in an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The high court held Amarillo could not tax the residence of a church music minister.

Supreme Court judges agreed with the Houston Court of Civil Appeals that a stockholders suit against Robert L. Moody alleging fraud in an insurance companies merger must be tried.

The Court of Criminal Appeals reversed a Wichita County murder conviction because the defendant was not given 15 peremptory jury challenges.

A Wilbarger County man sentenced for delivering amphetamines won release in an appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals on finding the trial judge dismissed a jury which had been "deadlocked" only two hours.

An El Paso man won reversal of a life imprisonment sentence because the trial court refused to sever a multi-court indictment.

Third Court of Civil Appeals upheld a provision that Texas state Education Association members must affiliate with the National Education Association.

AG Opinions
Breakfast meetings of commissioners courts must be open to the public when public business is discussed there, Atty. Gen. Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded: The federal privacy act does not apply in general to the Texas National Guard while in state status.

An institution of higher education is not required to adopt terms of the College Coordinating Board's policy statement on academic freedom.

Death of a limited partner does not necessarily prohibit renewal of a mixed beverage permit issued to the partnership.

Workmen's compensation coverage is fully applicable to persons in the state military forces, not withstanding any overlapping coverage.

WIND EROSION—Approximately 66,000 acres of land was damaged in Hall County by severe wind storms in February. Land like the place pictured above, which was not protected by cover crops or emergency tillage, suffered the most damage. The Soil Conservation Service working through the Hall-Childress Soil and Water Conservation District is encouraging farmers to use emergency tillage to prevent wind erosion on land not protected by cover crops.

HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON HIGHLIGHTS

from Congressman Jack Hightower

(WASHINGTON, D. C.) — Congressman Jack Hightower said today that misleading and inaccurate information concerning the proposed Child and Family Services Act has generated a tremendous amount of concern among his constituents.

"I have responded to more than 400 constituents who have communicated their deep concern to me," Hightower said, "and the volume of mail I am receiving on the bill continues to be heavy."

The Congressman said most of the concern has been created by false information and information taken out of context in a leaflet that has received wide distribution throughout the 13th Congressional District and other parts of the nation. He noted that the leaflet contains no attribution to any source.

"I have read the leaflet," Hightower said, "and I can fully understand why anyone who reads it would be upset. It implies that the federal government would take over the God-given right of parents to raise their children as they see fit."

Hightower said such charges are totally inaccurate.

"There is nothing in the bill that relates to religious preferences or religious instruction," he said. "There is nothing that relates to or alters the existing relationship between parents and their children, nothing that provides for compulsory preschool education or compulsory service of any kind."

The Congressman said the bill actually states that certain programs such as day care centers or food and nutritional programs would be made available, strictly on a voluntary basis, to children whose parents request such specific services.

He noted that some of the same sources have referred to a Charter of Children's Rights, which would remove the right of parents to provide for their children's religious or political indoctrination. It implies that such language is a part of the bill.

"Such implications simply are not so," Hightower said. "A group organized in England, the National Council of Civil Liberties, is the alleged author of the charter. The charter's provisions were printed in the Congressional Record in 1971 by an opponent of a similar bill. It was intended to show an extreme example of what has happened in other countries."

He said the leaflets also cite a message President Nixon sent to the Congress in vetoing a more costly but similar bill.

"I believe he was correct in vetoing the measure, but it should be emphasized that participation in programs authorized in that bill also would have been entirely voluntary."

Hightower said that even though the bill has been badly misrepresented, he would not support it. "I do not feel that any money spent to implement the bill's proposals would represent a wise investment of the taxpayers' dollars," he said.

Brother Of Local Resident Buried At Vernon Feb. 27

Funeral services for Sam Cannon of Vernon, 87, brother of Hulda Wilson of Memphis, were held at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 27, at the First Baptist Church there. Officiating was the pastor, Dr. Rufus Sprabery.

Burial was in East View Cemetery at Vernon.

Survivors include: his wife, Opal; two sons, Roy and Leo of Vernon; one daughter Faye Jackson; a number of grandchildren; three brothers, Milton Cannon of Cleburne, Jim of Crowell and Joe of Vernon; and two sisters, Mrs. Wilson and Josie Peabody of Imperial.

Mr. and Mrs. David McKay of Lubbock visited here over the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Argie Lee McKay and Mrs. McKay's grandmother, Mrs. Hershel Combs. David is a senior student at Texas Tech University.

COUSINS HOME

Each Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock during the month of February, the First Christian Church has brought services of song and preaching to the home. The Church of Christ each Tuesday evening and the Assembly of God from Estelline each Wednesday evening have also had services.

Mrs. Speed and a group of singers came February 7 and sang some beautiful hymns.

Mr. Charlie Williams brought his knife sharpener to the home and sharpened all the scissors and knives. The ladies of the home really appreciated this service because our scissors were getting quite dull due to so many quilt blocks being cut with them.

Mrs. Brenda Wolf and her group of G. A. from the First Baptist Church made each lady a pot plant of jew and brought them to the home and presented them to each one for Valentines.

On Feb. 13, a Valentine party was given for all residents of the home. Mrs. W. D. Young furnished music for the occasion. She played such selections as "Let Me Call You Sweetheart", "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" and many others. The group joined in singing when they knew the words. The serving table was laid with a pretty Valentine table cloth. The centerpiece was a Valentine tree made by the residents. It consisted of paper Valentines punch and cookies were served all present.

On Feb. 27, a birthday party was given for four residents of the home. The honorees were Mrs. Hattie Mabry, who was 88 Feb. 5, Mr. Roy Sneed, who was 80 Feb. 19, Mrs. Ida Hollis, who was 88 Feb. 24 and Mrs. Myrtle McCollum, who was 84 Feb. 27.

There was one special thing about this birthday party that we don't usually have. Mrs. Myrtle McCollum has a twin sister, Maud Hill, and she was able to be there and she and Myrtle celebrated their birthday together. "Happy Birthday" was sung to each honoree and their picture made with their beautiful cakes furnished by a member of their family. Mrs. Bernice McIntush furnished music for the occasion. Cake and ice cream were served to all present. We wish to thank the wonderful ladies who worked so hard, the cook, nurses and everyone gave a helping hand to make this party a success for our residents.

Calvin Todd continues to cut the man's hair and we appreciate this very much. We also wish to express our sincere thanks to the new 4 county Tractor and Equipment Inc. for sending chili and doughnuts to residents of Cousins Home the day they had open house. The food was enjoyed very much.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lockhart were in Dallas over the past weekend attending a gift market.

FIRST STATE BANK

Some people are predicting that someday this country will become a "checkless, cashless society." It could be, but the day it becomes a fact of American life is probably far in the future.

However, some developments that will lead to such a checkless, cashless society already are here — in one form or another. The most carefully watched development is what money managers are calling Electronic Funds Transfer Systems or — simply EFTS. What EFTS means is that funds are transferred from one place to another — from bank to bank, for example — electronically, without any actual cash, checks or other paper instruments involved. For the most part, EFTS are computers "talking" to computers.

EFTS is rapidly reaching the point where it touches the lives of millions of Americans. The Social Security Administration, for example, has begun a program to transfer Social Security checks electronically. Under the program, a Social Security recipient can designate in what bank he or she wants the monthly check deposited and it will be done automatically at the appropriate time. No more going to the mailbox at the first of the month. What the Social Security Administration is seeking to do, of course, is eliminate wherever possible the costly process of mailing out millions of checks each month.

While the Social Security Administration's efforts are a long way from a true "checkless, cashless society," it is a harbinger of things to come.

Rick Grayson Saves Life of Spectator

The Beloit Invitational in Wisconsin is a wrestling meet, but for Sopomore grappler Rick Grayson of Grinnell College in Iowa it was also a successful effort at life-saving.

The Beloit event was in full swing, with Rick getting ready for his match, when a spectator collapsed in the stands.

Seeing the man lying on the bleachers, Rick rushed over with another wrestler and began resuscitation procedures.

After about 15 minutes, the man revived, and by that time a respirator and other medical city rescue unit had arrived with aids. According to Maurice Hunt, Grinnell wrestling coach, without Rick's knowledge and assistance, the stricken man, a heart attack victim, would have died.

Rick learned the "C. P. R." techniques at Grinnell General Hospital where he works on a spare-time basis. He learned the techniques in a course offered under the sponsorship of the American Heart Association and in training for the Hospital's Emergency Medical Technicians' program.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Grayson, Jr., of Grinnell, he is the grandson of Mrs. V. S. Reynolds of Memphis and the late Mr. Reynolds.
