MEMPHIS, HALL COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY AFTERNOON, SEPTEMBER 2, 1976 20c (Inc. 1c Sales Tax) NUMBER 18

Dove Season Opens Wed.

Dove season in Hall County and other counties of Texas opened Wednesday, Sept. 1, at noon, and runs through October 14. Shooting hours are from noon until official sunset each day.

A split season is planned this year in the north zone, and the season will reopen Jan. 1 and run until Jan. 16, which will meet with part of the area's quail season.

Also, as grain supplies become more scarce in fields harvested and wheat stubble fields plowed, birds must seek other sources of food.

According to reports from Tate Pittman, regional information officer for Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Wichita Falls, the rains in this part of Texas will shuffle the birds around. He said reports he has received indicate that there is a large number of dove in this region, more than in the past four or five years.

Although dove is not as popular a food as quail, hunters report the best way to prepare it is to wrap the breast in bacon, and barbecue the meat over charcoal.

Auxiliary Dues Should Be Paid By Members

Membership dues for Auxiliary members are now due and are $10.00 a year, it was announced this week.

Hall County Has Largest Cotton Acres

Hall County's hopes for one of its largest cotton crops has hung with the clouds the past few weeks, and this week a portion of the county received some rainfall, while other portions are dry as a bone.

In 1975, 97,458.5 were planted and 86,044.9 acres were harvested averaging 315 lbs. per acre yield. In 1974, 101,480.8 acres were planted and 100,018.7 harvested averaging 214 lbs. per acre yield.

Two miles south of Brice, .61 of an inch was reported, and .70 to .90 was reported from southeast of Plaska.

It has not rained other than a shower in Memphis or in the area east of Memphis.

The bird, which is a native of Canada, spends the winters in the southern part of the state. The bird, described to be four-feet tall when it was weak from hunger, and unable to fly. Martin rustled up some fish for the Heron and several days of feeding the bird was in good luck. He took the Heron out to the J. F. Neel farm. Another larger Heron was also found on the same where there is a pond with fish, on which the bird feeds.

Cyclone Has Open Date This Friday

The Memphis Cyclone is this Friday night as the 1976 Football season for Memphis High will start Friday, Sept. 10, at 8 p.m. in Cyclone Stadium against the Childress Bobcats.

The coaches would like to command Cofer on his passing and Anthony Johnson on his catching. The offensive line did a good job of pass blocking all night as Cofer was only downed one time attempting to get off a pass.

The Cyclone went through a lighter workout schedule this week as the open date has allowed for those with injuries to rest up before the big game with Childress next week.

In speaking before the Memphis Lions Club Wednesday, Coach McMurray said, "We must remember that our team this year is small, averaging 157 lbs. per man, and we don't have any super players, but we do have a bunch of spirited athletes with a lot of quickness and desire."

"We can all just hope that we don't have to play that big strong team on a night its raining, for we will be at a definite disadvantage on a wet field," he said.

"Fiesta Mexicana" Promises Entertainment Sept. 18

Besides the tamale and taco concession stand of Fidel Lopez there will be a coke and orange juice dispenser operated by the Boy Scout Troop 35 under the supervision of William Neal McQueen, their Scout Master.

Tickets, as before stated, will go on sale Sept. 10 at The Golden Cobweb Antique Shop and The Memphis Democrat office. Please get your tickets in advance to avoid confusion and waiting in line at the theatre.

Ring your calendar now and be there to enjoy the food, fun, and fellowship September 18 at 8:15. Tickets $1 for adults and 50c for students over 12 years of age.

"What This Country Needs . . ."

It has been a trying two weeks for many of the area cotton farmers as dry weather just when their cotton fields need to be wet has cut deeply into prospects for good yields. This has been the chief topic of conversation this week wherever a group of farmers gather.

"What this country needs is a good two-inch rain," has been said over and over again. Cotton is a fickle crop sometimes, growing into large beautiful plants but if moisture is insufficient during the fruiting season, the plant will shed its fruit and yields come down drastically.

What has made the situation so nerve wracking for farmers is the abundance of rain opportunities the past week. Clouds have built up all over the area but all that the immediate area has been receiving (through Tuesday afternoon) has been sprinkles. One rain Monday afternoon gave the Newlin vicinity a good rain, about an inch and a half in the best spots.

Some cotton is too far gone to be helped by moisture at this stage. One farmer said that a good rain on some of his cotton would mean the difference between harvesting a bale from five acres if it rained, or from six acres if it did not rain.

Other farmers, however, could reap a good harvest if rains come this week. A good, general rain would certainly help this area more than anything else at this stage.

Fuel Conversion Due In Few Short Years!

The Ft. Worth and Denver Railroad is already Planning for increased traffic on its line, hauling coal from the northern central and northwestern states to the south to fuel power plants and other industries forced to using coal instead of natural gas and oil.

This is an economic fact of life. Meanwhile, spiraling prices for natural gas and oil inevitably will lead to their replacement by coal, the idea now is to administratively control use of precious natural gas and oil. Household use, of course, will continue to take priority, but ultimately manufactured gas can be expected to replace natural gas and coal likely will supersede oil for even those purposes.

When this time comes petroleum probably will be reserved by law for use only in petrochemicals. According to Bureau of National Affairs, publisher of information services, an industry "prohibition list" will be issued in September by the Federal Energy Office.

The list will be included in "notices of intent", which will be followed by public hearings and review aimed at enforcing the prohibitions. Site-specific studies are underway on about 425 firms at 160 sites using petroleum fuel. Projected annual savings achievable in converting these units to coal totals 50 million barrels of oil and 240 billion cubic feet of natural gas by 1985, studies have shown.

This is the opening wedge in conservation time. It is also the storm that consumers can see growing in fights over inflation for conversion will eventually be paid for by consumers as company after company, industry after industry is forced to use alternate fuel.

The United States is rich in coal. Citizens in rural America can still remember coal burning stoves used to heat homes, even as late as the 1940s.

Another battle is shaping up over the movement of coal from mines to these plants. A method has been developed whereby coal is mixed with water and moved through pipelines. Pipeline companies want to use railroad right-of-ways, or other right-of-ways, to build pipelines to move this mixture. Naturally, railroads see coal as a chief commodity for freight cars and hope to see a boom in business.

Agriculture is a big user of petroleum products. How much change will be coming in this industry is yet to be determined. Already, deep wells powered by natural gas are too expensive to run. Will agriculture receive enough priority to receive the fuel it needs at a price it can afford? This is certainly a concern for all of us.

What Other Editors Say

MORE VOTERS NEEDED
Texas has more than 2.3 million unregistered potential voters, according to estimates Democratic party officials said most of Texas' unregistered voters are Democrats, and a plan is being mounted to qualify these persons to vote in November.

This, of course, leaves a challenge to the Republican party in the state to see that as many potential Republican voters as possible are qualified.

Of course when a Texan registers he need not give his party preference until he votes, and that is necessary only for the primary, so there's a chance the Democratic voter registration drive will benefit both parties.

Since Democrats are banking on their belief that more Texans are Democrats, they feel no need to aim their solicitations at a particular segment of the population. The principal point, then, is that the more potential voters the more likely a large, and more representative, turnout in the general election the Tuesday following the first Monday in November. This benefits all of us.

Calvin Guest, state Democratic chairman, said Rep. Anthony Hall of the state Democratic party's task force on voter registration, will coordinate the statewide campaign.

This year's presidential campaign, supplemented in interest by at least one statewide controversy that has resulted in a write-in campaign and a race for the Senate seat of Lloyd Bentsen Jr., could turn up some issues that will catch every citizen's interest.

It would be a shame for thousands of voters in the closing days of the campaign, to find a burning issue on which they would like to vote but discover too late that they possessed the will to vote but no legal franchise.

HIGHER COSTS
While the attention of the nation is focussed on the presidential campaign and both candidates say they want to see inflation slowed, much greater factors are at work to insure that costs will do nothing but go up.

The rubber workers union have won a big victory over industry and the contract being worked out with Good-year will give union members a 38 per cent pay raise spread out over three years. This is double the present rate of inflation and anyone who thinks that the cost of tires won't go up right away just isn't in tune with the facts.

The cost of automobiles, already sky high, will no doubt go much higher when the automobile workers union gets through. The union has announced that the first strike target is the Ford Motor Co. and UAW president Leonard Woodstock has said publicly that he won't take anything less than what the rubber workers got, and wants even more.

When the automobile industry is forced to capitulate, then the cost of automobiles will go up, too.

Already the postal unions have forced a rise in postage, the Teamsters Union has forced a big raise in freight rates, the cannery unions have wiped out a great portion of this year's production in California and union labor is at work everywhere, seeking and getting higher wages.

This leaves the great unorganized body of Americans faced with higher costs and little prospect of higher income to meet this.

Inflationary pressures have been cooled off in recent months but the burners are roaring full blast again.

The primary causes of inflation and high prices in this nation are government spending and labor union wage hikes. We are not likely to see any diminishing of either one.

in our schools. Texas does have a permissive attendance statute that allows some flexibility in attendance requirements. The exiting age does not have as much flexibility however; and students are generally "kept" in school until they are 17.

It could be that more flexible language would be beneficial in Texas' compulsory attendance laws.

Farm Bureau Points To Low Grain Prices

WACO — "This country's food factory is in serious trouble," the president of the Texas Farm Bureau says.

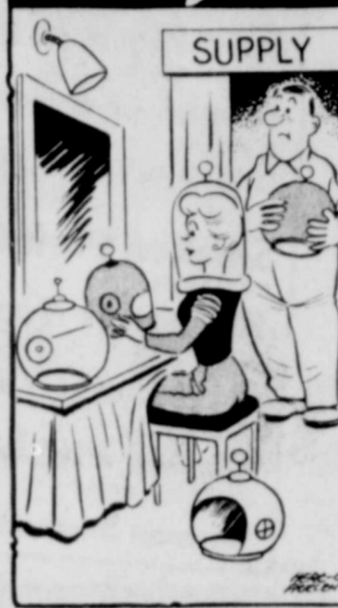

Carroll Chaioupka, Dalhart grain and cattle producer, said farmers and ranchers have responded to the call for more production, but have been penalized by lower prices.

"We have produced in such abundance that we have a big surplus, and this year's grain crops may set another record," he said. "Our production are rising with inflation just like everybody else's but prices paid to grain producers and cattlemen have dropped."

The Farm Bureau leader said that at the end of the third week in August wheat prices were down 27 percent from a year ago, sorghum was 18 percent lower, corn down 10 percent, and that cattle prices had dropped 25 percent below last August—"which was a bad time for cattlemen."

Chaioupka said farmers are going to demand that no restrictions be placed on their markets, especially export markets. "Another embargo would be disastrous," he said. "It would also be a disaster to establish federal grain reserves," the farm leader said. "That would depress prices even further."

That was the time that a lot of us lost our jobs drawing water out of wells 80 feet deep or more. And when you could go to a faucet and turn it and get water, you would almost feel guilty of getting something you did not deserve. We should be grateful for our bountiful water supply. I never see Virginia or Cy that I don't think of the foresight of their dad, Jim, and grand- father, Uncle D., when they piped all of that "Browders Best" water to us that Jim's grandson, Frank B., is now dispensing. We are thankful that water is plentiful enough here that you can take a bath, wash your car, water your shrubs and flowers and have enough left for some good cool drinking water and flush everything out. And al- so run your washer, dryer and your dishwasher. Water plays a great part in our everyday living with modern conveni- ences.

In conversation with Ed Foxhall a few days ago, he reported that his son, Eddie, about had his pre-med work behind him and was ready for medical school. In tracing family history, Ed did not think there had ever been a doctor Foxhall before Lewis Foxhall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Foxhall, who has finished medical school and is now resident doctor in Corpus Christi. He now has the surgi- cal instruments that belonged to his great-great-grandfather (Dr. Ansel) on his moth- er's side of the family. Eddie will be second Dr. Foxhall in the family.

The first indications of a doctor in my family from biog- raphy was that I had a great-great-uncle, who was stranded in Philadelphia, Penn., and wrote home for one hundred dollars as he wanted to study dentistry and I also had a great-uncle who was a doctor in Hill and Smith Counties.

I had as a visitor a few days ago, Mrs. Lee Thornton, and Mrs. Minnie Voyles. In their reminiscing I found out WINDMILLS FOR THE FUTURE—They may trigger memories of the past, but windmills are being considered as a source of power for the future, too. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White points out that harnessing wind power could supply the energy for such agricultural needs as pumping irrigation water and heating and cooling.

Mrs. Thornton was reared in the state of Georgia and Mrs. Voyles in the state of Virginia. One of Mrs. Voyles grand- daughters, Nancy, is now living in Norfolk, Va., oper- ating a ready-to-wear shop. The other granddaughter, Carol, is now living in Austin doing computer work. They are the daughters of Clinton Voyles. They both graduated from Memphis High School and now making their careers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Dennis has as a visitor, Mrs. Leo Hemenway of Tacoma, Wash. Some of you who were attend- ing school in Memphis in 1927 will remember this lady as Miss Gladys Medley of Mar- fa, who taught school here in 1927. She and Lucille Dennis attended T. W. C. where both of them graduated the same year, and with 30 others af- ter graduating from TWC traveled to Mexico City where they had special cours- es of Spanish in the Univers- ity of Mexico. Gladys was reared on the Medley Ranch near Marfa where she attend- ed the private ranch school with her four brothers. She taught in El Paso where she met and married Leo Hemen- way. They later moved to Tacoma, Wash., where Gladys taught until she retired. The last time she visited here with Lucille was in 1968. She must have a lot of pep, vim and vigor as she made the trip in her car alone from Tacoma to Marfa which was a distan- ce of 2,500 miles and she is going the long route back to Tacoma which will be a- bout 3,000 miles. She still has holding at Marfa. She evi- dently has one of the better made automobiles without an air conditioner and traveled 140 thousand miles on the speedometer. I will not call the make of the car as that would be advertising and the dealer would have a rush on this particular car. Hubert and Lucille gave Gladys a tour of Hall County Heritage Hall and after viewing the dis- plays, her remark was "This is fantastic". We hope that her car continues to give her good service.

Mrs. F. E. Leary and Mrs. T. J. Hampton, who have always been active Hall County residents since the pioneer days and have con- tributed a lot to the progress of Hall County, are now re- sidents of Leisure Lounge in Childress. Stella Garrett and Dink Dennis made a special visit to the Lounge on August 25th to help Mrs. Hampton observe her 92nd birthday. From reports, she had a great birthday with about 40 peo- ple in attendance to wish her happy birthday. Mrs. Hamp- ton's sister, Mrs. Pearl Mas- sey, is now in Dallas with her son, Alvin. She is taking therapy treatments after breaking a hip a few months ago.

As copied from an article by Wayne Gard in the Dal- las News which gives some facts about J. Paul Getty, the oil tycoon who was reported to be the richest man in the world. He admitted that he was probably one of the rich- est of 12 individuals in the Western World. He estimated his personal wealth as a- bove one billion dollars. The Getty family of Scotch-Irish descent came to the United States in Colonial times. The two of Gettysburg, Penn., was named for a member of the family. The father of J. Paul Getty was a wealthy Minneapolis lawyer. In 1903 when J. Paul was 11 years old, his father made a trip to the Indian territory on legal business in an oil town, he caught the fever, and bought an oil and gas lease.

Soon, wells were spouting on his land! Later the family moved to California. J. Paul Getty was not a spoiled boy by a rich father. Before he was 16 years old and nearly 6 feet tall, he began learning the oil business by going to work at the bottom as a roust- about. Eventually, he learned about every job in the indus- try, gaining knowledge that was invaluable to him in later life. This experience not only helped him in making deci- sions, but gained him the re- spect of his workers, who knew that he had done their jobs and could do them a- gain. At 21 years of age young Paul Getty started his own wild catting prospector. Although, at first luck seemed to elude him, but within a year he had made his first million. He traces his oil growth from his father in the expansion into foreign fields including Arabia and the North Sea. He also wrote briefly of his five marriages, all of which ended in divorce. He attributes his marital troubles mainly to his enforced frequent and long ab- sence on business. One of the big disappointments of Paul Getty was the fact: that not one of his five sons was pre- pared to succeed him in the job. Two died before him, two chose other occupations, and one after rising to a re- sponsible oil job quit to be- come a "hippie", knowing that the Getty trust fund would keep him wealthy the rest of his life. The last 16 years of Paul Getty's life he lived in a 400 year old 72- room English manor house, 30 miles from London. He lived most of his life alone (he lived to be 83 years old). He was no recluse as he was a constant entertainer. His friends over the years includ- ed Charlie Chaplin, Greto Garbo, William Randolph Hearst, Jack Dempsey, Mar- ion Anderson, the Duke of Windsor (whom he first knew when they were fellow stu- dents at Oxford) Aristotle Anassis, Lord Beaverbrook and the King of Saudi Arabia. He gave a quotation at the beginning and end of his bio- graphy on his thoughts of social and economic philoso- phy. The author of this quota- tion was not a tycoon, but a man of the common people. This name was Abraham Lin- coln, as follows: "You cannot bring about prosperity by dis- couraging thrift. You cannot help the wageearner, by pull- ing down the wage-payer.

You cannot further the bro- therhood of many by en- couraging class hatred. You cannot help the poor by de- stroying the rich. You can- not keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn. You cannot build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative. You can- help men permanently by do- ing for them what they could and should do for them- selves." Paul Getty was a Methodist, was a generous gi- ver to educational and other institutions. He spent 17 mil- lion to build the Getty Muse- um in California and gave it art work worth 200 million and provided for the upkeep and operation with free ad- mission and free parking. And he willed most of his for- tune to charity. The Getty story is not only fascinating, but inspiring. Although it is not quite a Haratio Algen tale since Getty did not start in poverty, it shows what still can be done through foresight, industry and persis- tence. We should all be hap- py that we live in a land of free enterprise and can choose our own work or kind of business that we want to operate.

32nd Annual Boys Ranch Rodeo To Be Held On Labor Day Weekend

Two performances of the 32nd annual Boys Ranch Rodeo are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. the Labor Day weekend, Sunday and Monday, September 5 and 6 with approximately 10,000 people expected to drive to Cal Farley's Boys Ranch for the event.

All of the 370 boys of the Ranch will have some part in the Rodeo, with about 150 competing with each other on the Braham bulls, bareback broncs, steers and calves. The Rodeo is the only one in the nation that has boys as the only contestants riding professional rodeo stock under R. C. A. rules. Top honors of the Rodeo are the titles of Senior and Junior All-Around Cowboys.

The Rodeo is also a traditional homecoming for graduate of the Ranch who are members of the Boys Ranch Alumni Association. Some will travel long distances with their families to attend. More than 3,000 boys have lived at the Ranch since its founding by Cal Farley in 1939.

Senator Farabee Keeps Expense in Lower Bracket

Senator Ray Farabee is in the lower 25 percent of the 31 members of the State Senate as to total expenditures for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1975. This was disclosed with the release of the State Audit published last week covering expenses for members of the 64th Legislature.

Senator Farabee stated, "I was pleased to learn of my ranking in regard to expenditures. It is important for those of us in public office to practice what we preach and to set an example with our own budgets by conserving the taxpayers' money."

"At the same time, there is work to be done to serve my constituents in the 30th District which covers 29 counties and is the second largest Senatorial District in the State. I have been able to see that this work is done in an economical manner with the help of an efficient staff, by avoiding unnecessary travel, and by cutting back on my staff when the Legislature is not in session," Senator Farabee concluded.

During his first term in the Texas Senate, nineteen bills authored by Senator Farabee were passed into law. He served on the Finance Committee, the Natural Resources Committee and the Jurisprudence Committee.

During the interim between sessions, Senator Farabee is serving on the Texas Legislative Council, the Texas Coordinating Commission for State Health and Welfare Services, the Property Tax Study Committee and the Texas Coastal and Marine Council.

Senator Farabee was cited as "the top Senate newcomer" by Texas Monthly magazine and was presented the Senate Member Outstanding Legislative Service Award by the Texas Farmers Union.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — House Speaker Bill Clayton is crusading to check the constant upward spiral of state spending but getting little encouragement.

Clayton's motion to order the Legislative Budget Board staff to cut agency budgets 10 per cent was toned down to recommend the reduction where there would be "no significant loss of services."

Few agencies so far have indicated they could operate without "significant loss of services" with a reduced budget.

LBB Assistant Director Jim Oliver said selected agency requests would boost spending above the projected surplus (not including increases for prisons, youth correctional facilities and welfare).

Meanwhile, LBB approved for inclusion in the proposed budget draft a pay raise of about six per cent for state employees.

Clayton argues that if spending continues to increase at the rates of recent years, the state will be bankrupted or major new taxes must be enacted.

The speaker is aiming at House reorganization to save a quarter of a million dollars. Some jobs will be eliminated.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has recommended creation of a $1 billion capital reserve fund for investment in the era of surplus and Clayton has come up with a similar idea. The speaker concedes, however, passing a temporary one per cent reduction in the sales tax might be easier. Demands for increased budget demonstrate neither will be very easy.

Capitol "Historic"
Texas State Capitol at last is "historic."
A marker proclaiming it as such was dedicated in the rotunda last week.

Only one former governor, Preston Smith, was on hand for the ceremony. There were conflicting reports as to whether or not Gov. Briscoe was invited.
The Constitutional Convention of 1876 set aside three million acres of public land to help finance the now-historic building, which was completed in 1888.

Aid Plan Developing
Public meetings by the State Bar this fall will attempt to determine needs and develop a plan to meet needs of the developmentally disabled.
Plans will attempt to aid those suffering from autism, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and mental retardation. Hearings will be held September 13 in El Paso, September 14 in Midland and September 16 in Amarillo.

Loan Hearing Held
A key state loan program for Texas college and university students may be in danger of a $6 million a year cutback.

A Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System committee held a hearing this week to discuss a proposed U. S. Office of Education restriction on the Hinson-Hazlewood program.

The program could face a substantial cutback in its line of credit for federal insurance in 1976-77 unless the Board and USOE can agree on a plan to reduce the overall default rate of 15.56 per cent.

USOE wants the Hinson-Hazlewood loans limited to students at Texas institutions where default rates are confined to 10 per cent. Unless the agreement is reached with federal authorities, the program's lending capacity may be cut back from $21.1 million last year to $15 million. Many institutions have raised strong objections. Some default rates run as high as 41.8 per cent.

AG Opinions

State law prohibits public disclosure of city inspection reports on nursing homes, but federal law allows access to the information, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

The Animal Health Commission has authority to require inspection for ticks on herds located on premises in a free area suspected of infestation and to require stock yards to construct scratching chute facilities at private expense for tick inspection.

Austin State School may not use appropriated funds to lease or otherwise acquire facilities in San Antonio for residential services programs for mentally retarded persons in Bexar County.

Facade easements to a building's exterior (without disturbing private control of the interior) are valid in Texas and may be granted to Texas Historical Commission.

Unemployment Down

State unemployment rates dropped to 5.7 per cent in July — four-tenths of one per cent below the June figure.

Texas Employment Commission Chairman Harold K. Dudley said the decline follows a seasonal pattern, since many remove themselves from the labor force if unable to find employment by midsummer.

Last year's July rate of joblessness was six per cent.

The July work force was 5,469,500, with 5,156,500 employed. Total employment for June was 5,149,000.

National unadjusted jobless rate for July was 7.8 per cent.

Windmills May Help Solve Energy Problems of Future

AUSTIN—Windmills, a thing of the past, hold promise for the future, said Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.
Windmills are still in use today -- there are approximately 175,000 scattered throughout the U.S., with a good number of them in Texas.

But increasingly, scientists are looking to sophisticated counterparts of windmills as a source of alternative power to take the place of fossil fuels.

Many scientific agencies are turning to wind power research, with the federal government funding nearly 50 such projects. Scientists are now working to solve such problems as the high cost of installing equipment, energy storage, and energy conversion systems.

White notes that National Weather Service data indicates that many parts of Texas have a high wind energy potential.

In fact, one study will determine the feasibility of using wind power to pump irrigation water on the High Plains.

"Yet another relic of Texas' agricultural past has been salvaged," White commented. "It looks like windmills may make a valuable contribution toward solving a very real problem of the future."

Short Snorts

A fund-raising dinner for Gov. Briscoe to pay old campaign debts is scheduled here October 22, and is expected to draw 10,000 from 53 counties.

Pulitzer Prize winner Kenneth Towery, formerly of the Cuero Record, has accepted a position as an assistant to University of Texas Chancellor Charles LeMaistre.

Rep. Tom Massey of San Angelo, chairman of the House Public Education Committee, said a one cent increase in the sales tax is often suggested as a way to finance more public school spending.

Austin Rep. Sarah Weddington released a report claiming women suffer discrimination in insurance rates and availability.

Marjorie Gallion of Crane launched a campaign for U. S. Senate as a candidate of the American Party.

Chuck Parrish, a Georgian and former aide to Jimmy Carter, is the Texas coordinator of the Carter-Walter Mondale Democratic campaign.

According to a Harris County judge, Texas has jurisdiction over the estate of the late billionaire Howard Hughes who died April 5.

Fares for a new bus route between Bryan and College Station have been proposed to the Railroad Commission — 50 cents one way, monthly fare $16. Student rates would be 35 cents and $12 a month.

TEXAS MILK MARKET REVIEWED

Records from the Texas Milk Market Order indicate that both the volume of milk and the number of dairymen delivering milk on the Texas market is down from a year ago. Although the total volume of milk was down about five million pounds from July, 1975, the amount of milk used in Class I (fluid use) was 69 per cent of all producer milk, up 3.89 per cent from last July. Producers delivering milk on the Texas market decreased by 771 from July of last year, but the average daily milk deliveries per producer increased 586 pounds, points out an economist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

WISE WATER USE

Use water wisely around the home and garden to keep costs down, advises a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. First of all, apply water only as fast as the soil will soak it up. Use a mulch wherever possible to conserve moisture, prevent compaction, keep soil temperatures lower and reduce the weed population. Water thoroughly at 7-to-10-day intervals. Although night-time watering increases the chance for plant diseases, it does allow for more efficient use of water as evaporation is lower.

FALL PASTURES NEED FERTILIZERS

Perennial grass pastures should be fertilized now for increased fall production and quality, points out a forage and turfgrass specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Most grasses have plenty of time to grow, and the forage can be utilized for grazing or hay or left standing and grazed after frost. Moisture must be available for grass growth, and the eastern two-thirds of the state has a 50 to 80 per cent chance of receiving at least two inches of rain during September and October. Also, there is still time to make top quality hay and enter samples in the State Show to be held October 2, at the Harold Green Farm near Austin. All entries should be sent to the Travis County Extension office by Sept. 15.

FORMER LAKEVIEW RESIDENT — Kristen Wells, 9, tries out a tracing technique patented by her grandfather, B. V. Hughes of Oceanside, California. She watches her work. A former graduate of Lakeview High School, now retired, Hughes is at work forming an organization called the Captive Arts Society.

Invention Caps Long Career For B. V. Hughes, Former Lakeview Man

B. V. Hughes 73, of Oceanside, Calif., who was reared in Lakeview and is a graduate of the Lakeview schools, is now at work forming an organization called the Captive Arts Society, which would bring creative arts to prisoners, pensioners and other persons unable to get around on their own.

Hughes recently retired after having had a career in designing stage scenery, handling investments and teaching prison inmates to paint.

At present, Hughes is perfecting an artist's canvas that will make it easy for anyone, with the slightest inclination to painting with brush, crayon or felt pen, to learn to draw.

The transparent canvas, a lamination of open weave linen and plastic, is counted on a stand and a slide transparency is projects onto it. The "Artist" then sits behind the screen and traces the image with paint or ink.

With nothing better to do at age 20, Hughes traveled to Los Angeles with a friend in the early 1920's and sold real estate and stocks and made other investments. He lost his hearing unexpectedly and turned to painting, drawing on his experience at Texas A & M University where he majored in engineering.

He worked on stage sets for several years, mingling with the actors and actresses of the day. When business ground to a halt during the Depression, Hughes successfully passed an examination to be a supervising painter for the state. He joined the state architect's office was assigned to instruct inmates at the California Institution for Men at Chino as superintendent of painting.

"I began to realize what great therapeutic value art can have on a prisoner," Hughes said.

He took pride in helping one talented artist, who was loaned reluctantly by prison officials to Hughes, when he had to prepare the sets for the first production of "LaBambola" inside prison.

Hughes had six weeks to prepare the elaborate sets for the Metropolitan Opera of New York, which was on tour in Los Angeles.

Hughes spent 25 years with the state of California and retired with a gold pin in 1968.
A painting of his father, J. B. Hughes will be on exhibit at the Oceanside Library where he will have a one man exhibit during the month of September. The painting of his father is called "A Man of the Soil" and is being considered as a permanent exhibit at the museum. While living here the family farmed near Lakeview.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wood returned from Dallas Tuesday where they went to be with Mrs. Lowell McKown, who underwent surgery in Dallas Medical Arts Center. Mrs. McKown returned home with them to recuperate here.

Wendell Holmes, one of America's top jurists, was a philosopher. He said, "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in money." and this bit of philosophy lends itself to various interpretations.

As a banker, I agree and agree with him. Our banking system is one of the most stable in the world, and our banking system one of the most stable. You can put your money in our money. You, also, can put your money in a bank savings account. It is an excellent place to put your money.

Bank savings earn interest, and the longer they remain, the more interest you'll accumulate. Having a financial plan to fall back on is a good thing.

Put something, even a small amount, regularly. Mail your deposits if that helps. You can only help yourself.
