

THIS IS ONE OF THE FOUR STREET SIGNS WE COULD FIND IN BRACKETTVILLE... (There may be more). The fact remains that Brackettville streets are very poorly marked. House numbers are practically non-existant.... While taking subscriptions for the CAVALRYMAN, we found that only TWO PEOPLE KNEW THEIR CORRECT HOME ADDRESS.....

With the new ambulance service going into operation in the near future, I hope the very near future, it will be necessary for these people to quickly locate local residents. Our new Doctor, that will be arriving the 1st of July, will be completely unfamiliar with Brackett. He will need precise locations for his emergency calls.

People in an emergency situation have a tendency to become "flustered" and if they have to give directions such as: "turn right at the Baptist Church, go ten blocks and it will be the eighteen house on your right.".... There could be a disastrous delay......

I heard the comment that "People just tear the signs down." I think that Brackett is matured enough that this is a thing of the past. We have some very fine and responsible young people in this community.

In a number of communities, local Civic Groups have assisted in the erection of these signs.

Several local groups have been looking for ways to raise funds, (Clinic, Little League, FFA, FHA, etc..... They might consider selling house numbers to local residents, with the proceeds going to their worthwhile projects.

BY GEORGE!

THANK YOU BRACKETT......

For your subscriptions to the CAVALRYMAN. We have received a number of out-of-town subscribers. Most are from people who have lived here, part time residents, and relatives of residents of the area.

We plan to improve and expand the CAVALRYMAN and bring YOU the news and information in the community that you want. Let us know what you would like to see and we will do our best to supply the information.

We would like to thank all of you that sent notes with your subscription with their nice and encouraging comments.

CORRECTION:

ALAMO VILLAGE

Sadi Perron, also toutered by Happy Shahan at Alamo Village, opens for one month at the KINGS CLUB, Del Rio. Her first appearance in Del Rio night Spots. Sadi recently appeared with Johnny Rodriguez in Laredo, prior to being on the Cerebral Palsy Telethone, in Corpus Christi.

JOHNNY RODRIGUEZ flew to Holly-, wood to cut the theme song for, Movie of the Week "THE RIVER MEN", tentatively set to be aired, Monday, March 24th, at 8 P.M., Channel 4, NBC.

The latter part of March, Johnny will be cutting a Dina Shore, Merve Griffin and Mike Douglas Show.

It has been confirmed that Johnny will be in Anchorage, Alaska performing on May 6th.

JOHNNY GUITAR

(Reprinted from Newsweek dated March 3, 1975.)

"He sure is a little thing.
But he's so cute," swooned the 30year old divorcee. He's like a country-singer and a rock'n'roll singer together," sighed the 12year-old. The object of their adulation, Johnny Rodriguez, 23, is not only country music's first chicano star but the sexist singer in country music since Elvis first bumped into the limelight.

Most male country stars sport too much Brylcreem and not enough hair to trigger the fantasies of nubile screamers. But not Rodriguez. At the recent San Antonio Livestock Show and Rodeo he broke his own record by selling out four straight nights at the 10,000-seat Joe Freeman Coliseum, and he required two Texas Rangers, sixteen county deputies and three private bodyguards to get him to the stage without being scratched or mauled.

The black-haired, green-eyed singer-songwriter, who stands 5 feet 6, tore up the crowd by delivering, in both English and Spanish, a versatile program of the eight country hits he's had in the last two years, including "We're Over" and Ridin' My Thumb to Mexico," plus rockabilly classics like "Johnny B. Goode," and the Beatles' "Something." In the mid-'60s, Charley Pride, the black star, broke the color barrier in country music. Now, the several million chicanos who live in the Southwest have a big country star to call their own.

Such success is heady for a Mexican-Cherokee-Irish kid who a few summers ago was spending time in a Texas jail for rustling three goats
"The deputy who caught us," explains

Rodriguez of his attempt to rustle a barbecue with some friends, "said, 'I ain't got enough room in my car for all you little bastards.' So I took the rap. I had no idea it was a felony." He didn't tell his family because his father had told him that if he ever got in trouble, he had to get himself out of it. With nine Children, Johnny's parents didn't look for problems. They lived in four rooms in Sabinal, Texas (population: 1,800), near the Mexican border. His favorite older brother owned a $12 guitar and taught Johnny to sing in both Spanish and English.

In jail, a Texas Ranger brought Rodriguez a guitar, and while awaiting sentencing he got special food by entertaing the Sheriff and deputies. After he got off with three year's probation, the Ranger took him to meet his present manager, James T. (Happy) Shahan. Shahan has a "little 35-square-mile spread in Brackettville, Texas, which contains the sets from the movie "The Alamo" as a tourist attraction. Johnny worked there, breaking horses and playing a village idiot in theatricals for the tourists and eventually met two of Shahan's guests, countty stars Tom T. Hall and Bobby Bare. 'Tom T. told me he liked my singing especially," says Rodriguez in a husky baritone, "but told me to just be honest and make my writing needed brushing up. He told me to just be honest and make it rhyme."

BOOT: In January of 1972,
Rodriguez's father died of cancer and his beloved older brother was killed in a car wreck. Within three months Johnny set off for Nashville with $8 tucked into his boot. He called Tom T. Hall, who offered him the lead-guitarist spot boot. He called Tom T. Hall, who offered him the lead-guitarist spot in his band. Later Hall arranged an audition for him with Mercury Records. Johnny was barely through the first Spanish chorus of the first song when a Mercury executive said, "I'll sign him." In short order, he turned out six No.1 country hits and four gold albums and appeared in a segment of the "Adam-12" series and this summer he expects to star as a cowboy in his first movie, "Rio Diablo." Today Rodriguez, because of his innate sex appeal and ability to write warm, soulful songs, is not only country music's biggest security problem, he's also something of a new Texas hero. Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe used him in his 1972 campaign. He was pardoned for goat-rustling, and the Texas Rangers, not particularly known for giving young chicanos a break, received him as an honored guest at their 150th anniversary celevration. To get away from the pressures of stardom and to collect song material in local bars, Rodriguez sometimes disguises himself in old clothes. Recently when someone asked him about his plans for that night, he replied: "I'm tied up now for the evening." Then he grinned and added," For the rest of my life."

YOUR REPRESENTATIVE REPORTS

Susan McBee

The pace is picking up around the Capitol since my last report. We experienced our first real floor fight of the session with the passage of the Presidential Primary Bill, which I cosponsored. Contrary to some of the adverse criticism you no doubt read and heard, the bill provides for a very workable, reasonable method of selecting delegates to the National Party Convention, Seventy-five percent (75%) will be elected directly by you, the voter, at the May primary. The remaining twenty-five percent (25%) will be selected by the present convention process. This is all subject to change in the Senate.

If you are interested in the status of any particular bill introduced in the Legislature, call 1-800-292-9693 toll-free; and the information will be provided.

The Agriculture Committee is studying several bills outlawing the use of imported meat by state agencies and requiring stricter labeling of imported meat products. The theory is that these would help our moribund beef industry, but there is a question of running afoul of federal statue and international trade agreements and thus being declared unconstitutional.

The three big plans for restructuring Texas' school finance system have been unveiled in the House. About the only feature the three share is an astronomical price tag. They differ, however, in the way the costs and the benefits will be apportioned. I like the Governor's weighted pupil approach, I also think Representative Kubiak's proposal of moving away and reliance on local property taxes bears strong consideration, and certainly Public School teachers need a resaonable pay increase. Veteran Legislators agree that what will emerge will be a composite plan, combining the best features from each proposal.

Under the new appropriations process initiated by Speaker Clayton substantive committees sit in with the Appropriations Committee to hear budget requests by the state agencies with which the substantive committee deals. Thus the Agriculture Committee hears the requests and recommends the amount of money that the House Appropriation Committee should budget for the Texas A&M Agricultural Experiment Station, the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Animal Health Commission, and so on. The Elections Committee does the same with the Secretary of State's budget requests that pertain to elections.

This method broadens the participation in the appropriations procedure and insures that each request for funds is heard by those familiar with the way in which the money will be spent and who can best judge the merits of the requests. The Appropriations Committee then acts as a co-ordination and ultimate authority, piecing the budget recommendations into the final appropriation bill.

The two bills dealing with rescission of Texas' ratification of the Federal Equal Rights Amendment are installed in subcommittees and are expected to stay there.
