C of C NEWS

To Interested Kinney County Residents,

It has been sometime since our last news letter and due to numerous inquiries, we would like to give you a run down on donations made by the Chamber in the past year, (see attached sheet) and of future events to be sponsored by the Chamber.

For the past several years, it has been an annual event for the Chamber of Commerce to sponsor the Athletic Banquet and due to the hard work of the Coaches, Athletes, and Mr. Koch in selling advance tickets, the expense to the Chamber has been nothing. We plan to sponsor the Athletic Banquet again this year.

Plans are being made for our Annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet, and the date has been set for February 27,1975. We will again sponsor a New Years Eve Dance at the Brackettville Civic Center on December 31, and we sincerely hope you will join us in celebrating the New Year.

In the near future, you will be receiving your ballot to vote for new directors. These directors will take office in February at the Chamber Banquet.

According to the Del Rio News Paper, we are sponsoring the New Athletic Complex, WE ARE NOT, this is sponsored by the BRACKETT BOOSTER CLUB; however, we are supporting it as we do all community and school functions. A donation of $200.00 was made by an individual in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce but as of yet the Chamber has not donated.

We sincerely appreciate the support you have given us in the past and we sincerely solicit your continued support.

If there are any questions pertaining to any of the above, please feel free to come by the office or call us.

Sincerely,

Travis Wilson, President
Brackettville Chamber of Commerce

BY: JOE TOWNSEND

And so Christmas is soon to be here. It seems to come earlier every year. So far the politicians haven't changed the date. Commercial minded business has constantly shifted the promotion earlier and earlier. Have you tried to buy anything for decor for Thanksgiving? Aside from tradional food items it's next to impossible. That's understandable when some Christmas sales pitches and merchandise were on the air and on store shelves before Halloween. And what's so objectionable about this-nothing really if it is remembered that Christmas is the celebration of the coming of Jesus Christ into the world. It is a travesty beyond words that some of the most immoral and objectionable things done during the entire year are done at Christmas under the cover of celebration of Gods' great concern for mankind. Everyone should celebrate the coming of the Christ. It's wonderful to have a Christmas tree to mark ings. But--anything that detracts from the real reason for the season of rejoicing is not only out of place, but is a direct affront to God. Be sure to keep Christ in your Christmas.

This past summer, the Senate Transportation Subcommittee did something that has never been done before.

As Chairman, I had grown increasingly concerned in recent years by the lack of a comprehensive review of our overall transportation system. I felt there was a need to carefully examine the individual parts of our transportation system and how they fit together; then recommend improvements to insure the most efficient, least costly transportation possible.

So, during two full weeks of hearings, we listened to testimony from government leaders, from environmentalists, from industry people, and from private

Our responsibility is our nation's highway program, but we felt it important that we understand how this program fits into our transportation system as a whole. Using the information we had gathered, we then set out to draft a new highway bill that will fit in with our overall transportation needs and with the realities of our nation's economic situation.

My Subcommittee is working on the bill this week, and it will go before the full Senate sometime this month. The new highway bill now calls for spending $7 billion next year on our nationwide road system. This is $600 million less than was

Because of the pressing need to hold the line on government spending, we worked to keep the cost as low as possible, without causing important highway building and maintenance programs to grind to a halt.

Politicians like to talk about cutting government spending. But, when it comes down to doing away with specific programs or postponing specific projects it is, too often, a different matter.

This is especially true when you start cutting back on highway spending in a state as large as Texas. We depend heavily on good roads to get us where we need to go. There is a critical need for overpasses to eliminate railroad grade crossings, widening of narrow bridges, and funds to complete highways or freeways that today stand unfinished. And, there must be a proper maintenance program to keep our road system in

The upshot is that Texas will get more than $300 million next year for crucial highway construction and road projects. This isn't as much as we would like to have, but it will enable our state to maintain an active and effective highway pro-

That is the goal of the new highway bill, in a time of emphasis on reduced government spending: to cut out some of the fat and frills, but to keep our highway program alive and moving.

This highway bill was conceived after a long and careful review of our nation's overall transportation needs, a longer and more careful study than anything that's been done before. It represents an attempt to consider our highway needs, not by themselves alone, but as part of our overall transportation system, complementing other parts of the system to provide efficient transportation.

At the same time, it is a major step in the move to balance the nation's budget, an example of how we can and should save the dollars of taxpayers wherever and whenever we can.

COMMENTS from SAGEBRUSH

By: Joe Townsend

We're having a most interesting winter. It started much earlier than usual. It has been much more severe than usual for this time of the year. And yet if you'll notice carefully you can see many things that have not been killed by the freezing nights we've had. My thermometer read 24° one morning and 27° another. Yet I have some small green tomatoes that have not frozen nor is the plant killed. There are two contributing factors to this. The main one is that our night-time temperatures dropped somewhat gradually and have been somewhat consistent. This enables plants to orient to the cold. I see pink Oleanders freshly blooming, yet I've seen them frozen and killed at 24° temperature. This was because daytime temperatures had been in the high 70's and low 80's with nights in the low 60's and suddenly one night the temperature drops to 24° and many things freeze. Another factor is water. The afternoon before a hard freeze is expected the ground should be heavily soaked and the plants well sprinkled. Dry plants in dry ground freeze much more quickly. A good mulch of grass, dead weeds, bark mulch etc. covering the ground at the base of plants will also help protect from freezing. Most plants can withstand more cold than we give them credit for.

COUNTY AGENT

BY: CARL ESSER

The current economic crisis in which cattlemen find themselves is a clear-cut case of too many cows. Brood cow numbers must be reduced if cattlemen are to get back on their feet and run a profitable operation, emphasizes Carl Esser, county agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

One thing that cattlemen need to look at in analyzing their operations is a "cow month of feed" -- a term that has a definite bearing on the income derived from cattle. It refers to the total number of cows maintained in the herd annually divided by the number of calves weaned. For example, if a producer has maintained 100 cows for the past year and weaned 90 calves, then 1200 cow months of feed are divided by 90, resulting in 14.2 cow months of feed per calf weaned. As this figure increases, production efficiency per cow-calf weaned drops and this is money down the drain, points out Esser.

The number of calves actually weaned becomes an especially critical factor when calculating the cost of keeping open cows. Current total costs per cow per year run about $204. This is a large investment if there is no return in the form of a calf weaned.

Using the total cow maintenance cost of $204 per year, the cost per pound of calf with a 100 per cent calf crop weaned at 450 pounds per calf is 45 cents. This cost figure increases drastically as the number of calves weaned drops. With only 50 calves weaned from 100-cow herd, the cost per pound of calf jumps to 91 cents.

So, as the winter season approaches and cattlemen start planning their feeding program, Esser advises giving close attention to culling those cows that are open. It doesn't take dollars and cents to feed them through the winter.

CHRISTMAS TREE SAFETY TIPS

A dry, brittle Christmas tree can go up in flames in a matter of seconds. With a few precautions and a little common sense, it's possible to keep a tree fresh and avoid fire hazards. "First of all," says Esser, county agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, "pick a tree that's fresh. The needles should be green and flexible and shouldn't fall off at the touch.

"Before setting the tree up, make a fresh cut diagonally across the trunk base to facilitate the tree's water uptake. Then put the tree in a sturdy water filled stand and locate it away from fireplaces, stoves, radiators or other sources of heat," he cautions.

Replace the evaporated water daily in the tree stand.

Before decorating the tree, check the lights and other electrical decorations for burned out bulbs and frayed, cracked or worn insulation. Replace any damaged items and don't overload electrical circuits.

Esser advises using nonflammable ornaments on the tree and throughout the house. Never use lighted candles on a tree and don't hang metal foil tinsel directly over wires or tree lights.

Remember to disconnect tree lights before leaving the house or going to bed.

Dispose of the tree as soon as possible after the holidays, adds Esser There will be a Wild Game Care and Cookery Program held December 16 at 2:00 p.m. at the Central Power and Light Company Auditorium in Uvalde. The program is open to all interested homemakers and hunters. The Wild Game Care and Cookery Program has been planned by the Family Living and Wildlife and Recreation Task Forces of the Southwest Texas Agricultural Resources Program and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Among topics to be discussed and demonstrated at the program will include skinning, scaling and dressing techniques used in processing fish, handling and storage of fish and game, boning venison, processing wild game birds, and suggestions on cooking different types of wild game. These programs will be held in Uvalde on December 16, San Antonio December 17 and Kerrville on December 18. A Wild Game Care and Cooking Publication can be obtained free of charge at the County Extension Office, states Carl Esser, Kinney County Extension Agent. The publication deals with field dressing and skinning big game and what you should do with it in the camp and at home. Also suggested recipes are included in the publication on cooking Venison, Elk and Antelope as well as small game such as squirrel, rabbit, oppossum and raccoon. Also processing techniques of game birds and recipes suggestions for wild duck, turkey, goose, quail, dove, pheasant, woodcock and rail are included. Points on packaging and freezing of wild game and trussing wild game birds are also included. If interested, come by the County Agents office and receive a copy of this very informative and interesting publication.

What is black and white and red all over? Pardon the world's oldest joke, but the yearbook sales staff does want to emphasize that the BHS annuals are on sale. This year, however, they won't be just black and white. There is to be a colorful surprise. The total cost is $8.50. A $5.00 deposit is required. See any yearbook representative.

Last Wednesday, several 4-H members were in Del Rio to sell ads for the 1975-76 stock show catalogue. Among those going were Kaye York, Candy Smallwood, Mark Baxter, Bill Baxter, Joe Hidalgo, Kimberly Trant, Mark Tidwell, Alan Frerich, Georgeanna Crain, Bill Pratt, Tammy Foust, Robert Lopez, and Jamie Davis. The group was accompanied by Mr. Carl Esser, Kinney County Extension Agent.

Basketball tournaments will be a big feature for the month of December. The Rocksprings Tournament was held December 4-6. On December 11-13, Coaches Villasenior and Wueste will take their roundballers to Uvalde for the Southwest Texas Junior College tournament. Brackettville will host the regular Christmas round robins the 18th-20th.

Auditions for the BHS Christmas play, to be presented to the elementary school children, will be Monday night. Those wishing to try out for parts are reminded to sign up for a time. The play is entitled, "That Stupid Christmas Play." It sounds appropriate to the season.

The Cheerleader and Drill Team banquet will be Monday night at 8:00 p.m. The party will mark the énd of football season for the two groups who contributed so much to the Tiger athletic effort.

December 7th will be remembered in history as the "day of infamy," but according to Brackett juniors and seniors, it's the whole month of December because the first term papers are due on December 19th. Just mention "footnote" or "research" and everyone screams. These papers are just the prelude to the big paper due in March.
