— The first annual Rattlesnake Rally of Brackettville sponsored by the Lions Club

There always has been a surplus of rattlesnakes in Southwest Texas, and May 14, 15 and 16 have been designated as the first event of this type in this area.

Experts and professional snake hunters of Sweetwater, where an annual hunt is an institution, are assisting the Brackettville clubs in the big event.

200 hunters

So far about 200 professional hunters are expected for the event, Woolsey said, and anyone is welcome to enter for a nominal fee, but the inexperienced should avoid this dangerous sport.

Kinney County ranchers are cooperating in this rattlesnake control measure by providing plenty of high density rattlesnake areas for the hunt.

Headquarters for the hunt is the new Kinney County Civic Center in Brackettville, where a gun and coin show is also planned during the three day event.

Of course, there will be a rattlesnake barbecue, Woolsey said, as well as monetary prizes and trophies for excellent performance during the hunt. Such items as "most pounds of rattlesnake" and "biggest specimen," are considered.

Helping in the promotion for the affair will be the American Sportsman Association, and United Enterprise Films of Ohio is scheduled to make a documentary film of the event.

WHEN YOU GIVE HONEST ADVICE HAVE ONE FOOT OUT THE DOOR.

DEAR VOTERS:

Once again I must call on you for your vote and support.

It's that time again when YOU, the voter, must judge the past performance of your elected County officials.

I feel I have the experience to help continue the progress Kinney County has made in the last 8 years, While at the same time keeping our budget in close balance and a tax structure which is both liveable and appropriate.

I ask before you vote, to examine my past record in voting in the Commissioner's Court minutes.

I urge you to re-elect me for continued growth and economic progress in Kinney County.

At this time Kinney County enjoys one of the lowest tax structures in the State.

Please help us keep it that way.

Your vote and support will be sincerely appreciated.

Respectfully yours,

Preparing the big barbecue and assisting the Lions are the members of the Seminole Indian Scout Association.

Almost a story in itself are the Indian Scouts, who are descendants of the original Seminole Indians who worked for the Army at historic Fort Clark in Brackettville during last century efforts to control the Comanche and Apache depredations in border areas.

Big dance

Saturday night, May 15, is the date for a big dance at the civic center. The hunt will open early Friday morning with snake collection around "the big pit," a local geological phenomenon on the "Happy" Shahan Ranch with a concentration of rattlesnakes.

The ranch also is famous for being the site for reconstruction of the Alamo for the famous movie of that name starring such greats as John Wayne and Richard Widmark. The Alamo remains a tourist attraction of interest located seven miles north of Brackettville.

Interested snake hunters from anywhere may write to P.O. Box 321, Brackettville (78832), for information and applications. Woolsey said. Any profit realized from the various events in this first annual affair will go to various charities and benevolent activities of the Lions.

There are lots of snakes, most of them of the Western Diamondback variety.

to the editor

Dear Mr. Loos,

On behalf of South Texas Regional Blood Bank, I wish to extend my personal appreciation on the tremendous job Brackettville did on your recent Blood Drive on March 29th.

The blood drive in Brackettville was such a great success, which was due in large part to the good explanation you allotted in your community newspaper. We had a greater response in this year's drive than in the previous drive. We drew a whole 48 pints! The Blood Bank services 56 hospitals in 26 counties and it depends entirely upon the interest of citizens like yourself to keep a supply of blood available at all times.

Again, I wish to thank you and all of the community and will look forward to working with everyone again soon.

I supported the Campaign Reform Act of 1974 to help restore integrity and decency to our country's political system.

This landmark legislation sought to reduce the influence that a few men with a lot of money were having on our electoral process. It strictly limited the amount of money a candidate for office could spend and it set firm limits on the size of contributions to that candidate.

And although it had some weaknesses, which Congress and the Courts are trying to correct, it has had a very healthy impact on the way our elections are run.

There are no more J. Clement Stones, giving $2 million to their candidates for President; no more Stewart Motts giving $250,000 to theirs. Instead, the campaign reform law encourages millions of people to each contribute a small amount to candidates for a Presidential nomination.

Under the law, those taxpayers who want to have a bigger say in the political process can earmark $1 of their taxes for use in Presidential campaigns. You do it by simply checking the appropriate box on the front page of your Federal Income Tax return. By the same token, those people who do not want their taxes spent on political campaigns need only say "no" to the tax checkoff.

It is far better to permit millions of Americans to contribute $1 to a campaign than to rely on the million-dollar contributors, as has been done in the past.

The new system is not perfect, though. There are some inequities.

I have been quite concerned about the basic fairness of using the tax checkoff once a candidate is no longer a serious contender for the Presidency.

Some candidates have continued to apply for these funds after withdrawing from the race, to pay off debts and to balance their books.

I don't believe this is fair. And I know it wasn't the intent of the campaign reform law. When I restricted my Presidential campaign to Texas I immediately stopped all requests for additional matching funds and even turned $74,000 back to the Treasury.

This, I felt, was the only equitable thing to do.

In addition, I recently supported an amendment which terminates payments to unsuccessful candidates. This provision would stop matching fund payments to any Presidential candidate who receives less than 10 percent of the vote in two consecutive primary elections.

The purpose of the campaign reform law was to lessen the influence of a handful of big contributors in our political system and to let more people have a bigger say in how their government works.

But the people must have confidence in this new law for it to be effective. And only by taking firm action to end abuses and close loopholes, such as this one, can we maintain that confidence and restore integrity to our political system.

ROTARY CLUB

Dora Cabral, Brackettville's Rotary Exchange student, models one of her country's costume.

One of the most recognized women's costumes of Brasil are the Baianas. These women are very gracious, beautiful, endowed with good rhythm and have a love for singing and dancing. The Baianas have inspired the Brazilian arts, music, literature, painting and theater. Celebrated in dress, amply displayed in magazines, newspaper and cinema. The Baiana woman has her part in Brazilian folklore.

COMMENTS from THE SAGEBRUSH

BY JOE TOWNSEND

Have you checked your trees in the last few days? You should do so immediately. Insects and worms are hard at work. Ash trees have an infestation of mealy bugs. They are not as bad as last year but if you find leaves drawn and curled up inwardly you can safely bet there are bugs. Where there are bugs they should be sprayed immediately with proper insecticide. They spread rapidly over the tree and to nearby trees. You should look carefully for web worms in your trees. I have found some already in mulberry trees and for the first time I've ever known it to happen I found some yesterday in an ash tree. You should do yourself, your neighbors and the world a favor and destroy these as soon as you see them. Again spraying with the proper technique and materials is best. If you do not have the proper equipment and materials to spray effectively the next best thing is to cut off the limb the web is on and burn it, web and all. Beginning this early it looks like we may be in for another hard summer insect wise. The best way to stay ahead of the damage is to begin treatment early and stay with it. Trees are too beneficial and attractive to be ruined by insects when proper care is simple and available.

DEAR KID:

Today you asked me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you believe by now that kids out of high school can't find work.

But, I hired a teenager today. You saw him. He was the one with polished shoes and a necktie. What was so special about him? Not experience, neither of you had any. It was his attitude put him on the payroll instead of you. Attitude, son. A-T-T-I-T-U-D-E. He wanted that job badly enough to shuck the leather jacket, get a haircut, and look in the phone book to find out what this company makes. He did his best to impress me. That's where he edged you out.

You see, Kid, people who hire people aren't "with" a lot of things. We know more about Bing than about Ringo, and we have some Stone-Age ideas about who owes whom a living. Maybe that makes us prehistoric, but there's nothing wrong with the checks we sign, and it you want one you'd better tune to our wave length.

Ever hear of "empathy?" It's the trick of seeing the other fellow's side of things. I couldn't have cared less that you're behind in your car payments. That's your problem, and President Ford's. What I needed was someone who'd go out in the plant, keep his eyes open, and work for me like he'd work for himself. If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you ask for a job. You'll be head and shoulders over the rest.

Look Kid: The only time jobs grew on trees was while most of the manpower was wearing G.I.'s and pulling K.P. For all the rest of history you've had to get a job like you get a girl: "Case" the situation, wear a clean shirt, and try to appear reasonably willing.

Maybe jobs aren't as plentiful right now, but a lot of us can remember when master craftsmen walked the streets. By comparison you don't know the meaning of "scarce."

You may not believe it, but all around you employers are looking for young men smart enough to go after a job in the old-fashioned way. When they find one, they can't wait to unload some of their worries on him.

For both our sakes, GET EAGER, will you?

Between Us

by:

JOE TOWNSEND

I enjoy the " barn swallows". I like their neighborliness. They'll build a nest under the ceiling of your porch or on your porch light or quite close to much human movement. They seem to enjoy just being where people are. To me it's delightful to hear a gleeful chattering away as they form a one line chorus along the telephone line leading to the house--a cheerful greeting of the new day. I enjoy watching them darting in flight. I like to watch them at dusk as they swoop down and get a drink on the fly from a lake or creek or stock tank. I love to enjoy the absence of mosquitoes where the swallows nest and fly. Raising their young is an interesting saga to watch. They are dependable creatures--they'll come back year after year. They are persistent, tear down the nest while they're gone--they'll build another when they return. Let an enemy such as a cat come near and they are quick to warn the world.

I can almost hear some one say, "They make such a mess " and "Just wait til they bring lice to your house" and other such criticisms. So? Where is there something worthwhile that has no cost? These birds can teach each of us some valuable lessons by the examples they set. After all if a person can't stand thorns he has no right to enjoy the rose.
