Coyotes howl to a new beat

BY DWIGHT HEINS

The Borden County Coyotes' football team will be howling to the tune of a different beat this fall at Gail.

Boby Avery, after heading up the Loop Longhorns' attack the past seven seasons, is the Coyotes' new field boss, replacing Joe Bond who resigned after four seasons at the helm.

"Things have been going pretty smooth," noted Avery. "The kids out here have a willingness to work. The kids seem pretty eager to get the season started too."

A good scrimmage performance against defending District 6 six-man football champion Sands added to Avery's optimism.

"Sands might have outscored us but I still felt pretty good about some of the things we were able to do against them," said Avery. We didn't stop them as well as I would have liked but I feel like that area of the game is going to come around. Defense seems to be one of the hardest things to teach."

Avery admits that making the playoffs in his rookie season at Borden County would be like icing on the cake but he's prepared to take things one step at a time.

"I want the kids to have fun out here. I want to keep the participation rate high," he said. "As long as you're able to get those two things accomplished, I don't think you can help but win your share of ball games."

Avery is hoping that some of the speed he's been blessed with at Gail will enable his Coyotes to make a good run in the District 6 six-man football race.

"Definitely one of the best advantages that you can have in this game is speed since it is so wide open," said Avery. "As long as you've got the speed to turn the corner, you've got a shot at doing something. We feel like we've got four or five kids with pretty good speed too. We have pretty good quickness too. Speed and quickness is a pretty good combination to have."

Although the Coyotes will have a new field general this fall, don't look for the 1990 Coyotes to have many new wrinkles in their attack.

"Perhaps the nicest thing about the whole situation is that I like doing many of the same things they've been doing in the past out here," said Avery. "We plan on sticking with the "I" and the "T" that they've been lining up with in the past. Defensively, we'll stick with the two-three alignment."

Another advantage that the Coyotes have in their corner is experience, with four offensive starters back from a year ago.

Senior Shane Kemper is back to call the signals as the Coyotes' No. 1 quarterback.

Senior tailback Jimmy Rios is also back, along with starting ends Cole Vestal and Paul Sturdivant.

A couple of new faces in the Coyotes' starting lineup are sophomore center J.J. Kincheloe and sophomore fullback Klint Kemper.

A couple of other running backs to watch this fall are senior Rod Jetter and sophomore John Paul Harris.

"I like to keep it on the ground. We'll probably run the football 60 percent of the time," he noted.

Borden County's new head coach also sees the potential to have a strong defensive unit.

Shane Kemper and Rod Jetter have been given the nod at starting corner back. Jimmy Rios will be the starting safety.

Keeping those front liners healthy will be one of Avery's primary concerns.

"Like any other small school we're having to rely on a few kids at key positions," he said.

"As long as we're able to keep everyone on the football field and playing at 100 percent every week, I think we're going to be alright as far as the win-loss column is concerned."

GRANDPARENTS DAY

Grandparents have yet achieved the always been valued for sentimental reasons. For most Americans, they are living symbols of cultural traditions, family history and moral values passed along through the centuries. But they're more than just symbols. Recent social changes are bringing today's grandparents back into the mainstream of life as workers, providers, child-rearers and political leaders.

National Grandparents Day, which will be celebrated September 9, gives Americans a chance to honor their grandparents for all of their contributions, both traditional and current.

National Grandparents Day has been an official national day of commemoration since 1978, but it hasn't yet achieved the public recognition of Mothers or Fathers Days, but that is beginning to change. Recognition is overdue for older men and women whose contributions to society continue long after retirement and their children's establishment of their own families.

Grandparents are more important than ever to their families, and to society. Many of them are taking care of grandchildren for their working children. A significant number of grandparents end up with custody of grandchildren after their children's marriages dissolve. The role of seniors in the economy and

Basic First Aid

TO CONTROL BLEEDING: Bleeding from an artery is generally bright red and spurting in time with the beat of the heart. A bleeding from a vein is darker red in color and flows steadily. In either case if bleeding is severe, it must be stopped. If a patient loses more than 10% of his total blood volume, especially suddenly, the patient may show signs and symptoms of shock and could even die. It is imperative that we all know how to control external bleeding!! In almost all cases of external bleeding, the bleeding can be stopped; simply by applying direct local pressure. It is best to use sterile 4x4 gauze pads, if available. If not, use a clean towel, etc. Hold and maintain pressure directly on the area. When bleeding is under control, pressure can be maintained by wrapping the wound firmly with a sterile roller bandage or in cases of emergency, whatever is available. Do not remove a dressing after it has been put into place!! Simply add additional quaze pads and maintain direct pressure with your hand. When you think the bleeding is under control, you may re-wrap the entire area with another roller bandage.

TO OPEN AN AIRWAY IN AN UNCONSCIOUS NON-BREATHING PERSON: A maneuver called the head-tilt/chin-lift maneuver is recommended. Sometimes this simple maneuver is all that is required to cause the person to resume breathing spontaneously. Place the person on his/her back and kneel closely to the person's head. Place one hand on the forehead and apply firm backward pressure with your palm. Place the tips of the fingers of the other hand on the bony part of the chin. Be sure you do not compress the soft part of the neck; you may further obstruct the airway. Lift the chin forward and tilt the head backward. The person may then begin to breathe spontaneously. To check and see if they are breathing, place your ear about one inch from the nose and mouth of the person and listen for breath sounds. Also, turn your head where you can observe their chest for movement. If they are not breathing spontaneously, continue the head-tilt/chin-lift maneuver. Then pinch together and open their mouth; make a seal around their mouth with your mouth and breath for them. Remove your mouth and let them exhale. Then breathe for them again. After two breaths, you check the carotid artery, located in the neck to see if they have a pulse. To locate the carotid, simply slide your fingers down the trachea, then off to either side. If they do, continue to breathe for them at the rate of one breath every 5 seconds. If not, start CPR. Because of limited space, I cannot go into that, but every person needs to take a CPR course. The life you might save might be someone you love. At this point, call for help. The Borden County EMS in on call 24 hours a day and would immediately respond to your need.

MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS: When you come upon a motor vehicle accident, do not remove the person or persons involved from the vehicle unless there is a life threatening situation. Turn the ignition key off and leave them as they are until trained medical personnel arrive on scene. Removal from the car carelessly may result in permanent spinal injury that might be avoided if the individual is removed properly. If removal is necessary, be as cautious as possible with the spine. Move them, being careful to keep the body in strict alignment, while someone holds the head and neck straight. Move carefully, but swiftly.

More children die in automobile accidents than die from any other single cause! It doesn't even take an actual accident to injure a child. Braking hard or swerving to avoid an accident can seriously injure a child. These are needless tragedies! It is estimated that 90% of children ride unrestrained. In a crash, that small child literally becomes a missile thrown into the windshield or dashboard. A 30 mph crash equals a fall from a third story window! Parents can not hold and protect a child in a crash - no matter how hard they try. Put your child in a crash tested child safety seat when in a car. Begin using a car seat when you bring your infant home from the hospital until they are about four years old and larger enough for a regular car seat belt. Then a child should be belted in with the belt low and snug on the hips. Set a good example and "Buckly Up Yourself!" Put your child in the back seat to be safe. Keep your car free of sharp or heavy loose objects. They fly around in an accident. Lock all doors. Never let your child have candy or ice cream on a stick. A sudden stop can lodge the stick in his/her throat. Protect your child from harm in a motor vehicle. Be safe! Buckly Up!

Borden county EMS is a volunteer ambulance service that is on call 24 hours a day. We stand ready to respond to any need that you might have at any time day or night. Simply call the sheriff's office at 856-4311 and his office will dispatch us. We are also a non-profit organization that would appreciate any donation that you might feel you could donate to us in an effort to keep us and our equipment up to the very highest standard possible. Thank you for your past support. We strive everyday to better ourselves so that we may serve Borden County more efficiently and professionally.

CALCIUM DEFICIENCY MAJOR HEALTH CONCERN

Calcium deficiency is fast-approaching priority status as one of the nation's greatest health concerns. Not only is the average adult diet generally inadequate in this essential mineral, but other factors including lack of exercise, stress, cigarette smoking, excessive alcohol and caffeine also have been associated with decreased calcium levels.

Many physicians and nutritionists, in seeking "new" ways to help patients increase dietary calcium intake, are now recommending TUMS®—the effective, safe, sodium-free antacid that relieves acid indigestion and heartburn—as an inexpensive, readily available source of calcium.

The key to this added benefit of TUMS lies in the fact that the same ingredient that makes it work as an antacid, calcium carbonate, also is an excellent source of elemental calcium. In fact, each TUMS tablet contains 500 mg of calcium carbonate (nature's most concentrated form of calcium) and 200 mg of elemental calcium.

Inadequate calcium intake is particularly a problem for women. The daily U.S. Recommended Dietary Allowance of calcium for all adults is 1,000 mg. However, government studies show that the calcium intake of eight out of 10 American adult women is less than 650 mg per day. Low levels of calcium, combined with factors such as smoking or lack of exercise and decreasing estrogen levels which occur during and after menopause, can lead to serious thinning of the bones, resulting in osteoporosis. It is estimated that one out of every four women over 60 has osteoporosis to some degree.

One of the best ways to ensure an adequate calcium balance is to eat calcium rich foods such as dairy products and leafy green vegetables. Unfortunately, since many people are diet conscious or eat on the run, these foods are frequently omitted from the diet. Therefore, regular intake of a calcium supplement, such as TUMS, may be the best way for people to be sure they're making their adequate daily calcium deposit.

In China it was believed drinking wine made from aster flowers would encourage longevity.

FACTS & FIGURES

Direct Deposit is the banking service that lets employers deposit employee paychecks directly into their bank accounts. Over 70 percent of federal employees now get paid by Direct Deposit, as do 50 percent of the nation's 43 million Social Security recipients. The estimated savings to the U.S. government is more than $100 million a year—savings passed along to all taxpayers.

GRANDPARENTS DAY

workforce has also changed in recent years.

It takes an increasing amount of family income to maintain a decent standard of living these days, so a lot of grandparents are rejoining or staying in the work force after they turn 65. They do it to supplement their own income, or to help support their adult children, or sometimes both.

The truth is, most grandparents are far from the burden on their families they're sometimes thought to be. Their contributions are important - and often essential - to their families' economical survival.

Most people, though, would probably say their grandparents' greatest contributions are gifts of themselves like good advice, love, emotional support and a sense of family identity.

Everyone with living grandparents should take time to get in touch with the, and to let them know they're appreciated. This can be done individually, or by groups such as schools, civic groups, local governments, nursing homes or senior centers.

It's very easy for the elderly to feel forgotten or taken for granted. National Grandparents Day is a perfect time to show them that we remember and that we care.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED!

HOUSTON--(July 30, 1990)--Volunteers are needed at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston for drug tests which may help with the devastating memory problems that accompany Alzheimer's disease.

"There is as yet no cure for Alzheimer's disease," said Dr. Rachele Doody, an assistant professor of neurology at Baylor, "but we are hopeful that these drug trials now underway here and elsewhere around the country will provide us with new tools to alleviate some of the misery Alzheimer's patients and their families must endure."

The drugs are physostigmine and SQ29852, which is similar to the blood-pressure medicine Captopril.

If these drugs help in stemming memory loss associated with Alzheimer's, it could be good news for victims of the disease, Doody said.

Volunteers must be 50 or older, in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease and free of any other major health problems. In addition, there are restrictions concerning other drugs patients may already be taking.

People wishing to volunteer may call (713) 798-6660 for additional information.

Should You Plant A Greenfield For Deer This Fall?

Hunters have learned that planting greenfields of wheat, rye, oats and certain legumes to draw bucks into the open makes harvesting bucks much easier. New research tends to indicate that a greenfield can do more than just provide a deerstand for the hunter.

"Wildlife scientists have learned deer will travel great distances to feed on a preferred food source," Randall Rogers, Executive Director of the White-tail Institute of North America, says. "Biologists have determined that blending several varieties of clover like those found in Imperial Whitetail Clover to create a highly nutritional, preferred green food source throughout the year will draw deer from surrounding areas to a greenfield."

Other studies have indicated that does with access to plenty of nutritious food while they're carrying their young will produce healthier, stronger and larger fawns, which usually means bigger bucks in the future. But if you want to have greenfields to hunt over this season, you must plant now. One of the reasons deer hunters have not planted greenfields in the past is because of the cost involved in planting these fields each year.

However, Dr. Wiley Johnson, agronomy professor at Auburn University reports that, "A scientific blending of several different types of perennial clovers like those in Imperial Whitetail Clover provides not only a highly nutritious food for deer that's 30% protein and cost effective but also a year round food source that will regenerate itself for two years or more."

According to Dr. James Kroll, a professor at Stephen Austin University, "One acre of Imperial Whitetail Clover can provide as much food for deer as 40 to 60 acres of woods will, and the Imperial White-tail stays green and grows all year long."

But what happens to a food plot when the land floods or the earth is parched with drought? Robert Witte of Loranger, Louisiana, explains that, "Imperial Whitetail has been tested thoroughly by both drought and torrential rains this past season. But the clover has rebounded, and I shot a 3-1/2-year old deer with 16-1/2-inch spread that weighed 194-pounds in the clover."

However, just because the clover can withstand the weather and can produce nutritious food for deer, how can a hunter know that Imperial Whitetail is the best crop to plant for deer?

Bill Barnett of Murphreesboro, Arkansas, says, "After planting about 1-1/2-acres of Imperial Whitetail Clover on the edge of a three acre wheat field, I've regularly watched deer walk across the wheat field to eat the Imperial Whitetail. There is no question they like it better than anything else.

Teachers should conduct classroom research says education professor

COLLEGE STATION — Public school teachers should be conducting education research in the classroom because they know more about what occurs in schools than anyone else, says a Texas A&M University education professor.

Research by practicing teachers can often shake conventional wisdom about what should take place in a classroom, says Dr. John Stansell, who has been studying and prompting teacher research for several years. "If we in education really want to develop strong theories of learning, they must come from the classroom," Stansell said. "Nobody knows as much about that classroom as that teacher."

When teachers become researchers, the process can help reduce the distance between those in "the ivory tower" of higher education and teachers who practice in the field, the educational curriculum and instruction professor said.

Teacher research is not exotic studies or wild experimentation on students, Stansell said. Teachers generally examine what students are doing in classes as it pertains to learning and what helps or hinders that learning, he said.
