HOME DEMO CLUBS

"Efforts are being made to organize home demonstrations clubs in Kinney and Val Verde Counties," reports Becky Rogers, County Extension Agent -at -large.

Home demonstration clubs have been the backbone of Extension home economics work in Texas. They provide homemakers an opportunity for continuous informal education in a variety of areas relating to the home, family, community, and county.

"A home demonstration club is composed of a small group of homemakers (8 to 10 members) who learn together, the agent explained. Everyone is involved. Members learn by attending club and leader training meetings. They teach lessons, take part in discussions plan recreation and participate in community projects sponsored by the club. The County Extension Agent, resource persons and members themselves give educational programs at club meetings," she continues.

If you are interested in learning more about home demonstration club work please feel free to contact Ms. Rogers through the County Extension Office, second floor of the Courthouse (563-2442) or by contacting her at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Uvalde, P.O. Drawer 1849, (278-9151).

Texas Agricultural Extension Service programs are open to all, regardless of race, color, creed, sex, religion, age, national origin, or socio-economic levels.

Governor Appoints County Men

AUSTIN--Fourteen agriculture leaders from Kinney County have been appointed by Governor Dolph Briscoe to serve on the Governor Committee to Make Texas Agriculture No. 1 in Income and Profit.

Committees are being established in every Texas County as part of the statewide effort "to strengthen the economic position of agriculture--our most vital industry," Governor Briscoe said.

The County committees have the responsibility of promoting cooperation and mutual support among agencies, organizations, and groups involved in agriculture and agribusiness.

Committee members from the County include:

CLINIC NEWS

Mr. Tupper, Administrator of the Eagle Pass Hospital and Clinic and Mr. George Garza, Director of the Southwestern Community Council, were guest at the Clinic Committee Meeting here January 27, 1978.

Mr. Tupper proposed to include Kinney County in the World Health Initiative Program with Eagle Pass. In this program, a doctor would be sent to Brackettville for three half-days a week to begin with and the time would be increased as the patient load increased.

The Doctor would be a General Practitioner and would be able to see all types of patients.

Eagle Pass has had this program for approximately two years and it has worked out very well.

The Clinic Committee voted to try Mr. Tupper's Proposal.

Why Work 8 Hours a Day For Someone Else, When You Can Go Into Business For Yourself And Work 16 Hours A Day?

Present Day Myths

by: JOE TOWNSEND

It is commonly accepted that when a person is elected to a legislative office he will represent the views of his constituents. For this reason labor union leaders spend fabulous amounts of union members money to try to elect persons who will vote as labor leaders demand. For this reason school teacher organizations do the same thing. Most members of the U.S. Congress send questionnaires to their constituents from time to time asking their opinions, supposedly so they can vote in representative fashion. More often than is good, however, the elected representatives turn their back on what their responsibilities to be representative. Mr Carter granted "Amnesty" to disreputable veterans admitting the American people did not approve. He signed a treaty with a Communist dictator to give him the Panama Canal and to pay him fabulous amounts of money to take it. He admitted the vast majority of the American people apposed it. His henchman are now involved in taking groups of Senators (at taxpayers expense) to Panama to be wined and dined for a few days so they can become instant experts on what's best for America. Among those who did become such experts is one Senator Bentsen from Texas. Coming back he displayed his oft revealed arrogance by stating he would vote to give the canal to "Mr. Panama Dictator". He would even call "the President" and tell him he could be counted in his crowd. Mr Bentsen admits his mail runs many times over a majority against the position he now espouses. So it truly is a myth that elected representatives represent the people.

TIPS FOR GREEN THUMBS

by: JOE TOWNSEND

If you have shrubery now is the time to trim it. Too often shrubery is neglected until it becomes leggy, overgrown and ugly. Topping it now will make it sprout and fill out at the lower levels. If it is not trimmed it will create deep shade at the lower level and all small shoots will die and drop off. Anything in the yard can so easily beautify with only a small amount of care. Trim the hedges, shrubs & bushes now and new growth will make it much more beautiful in the coming summer. Many a beautiful yard is made to appear shabby simply because shrubs are thoughtlessly neglected. Incidentally shrubs need to be fed just as does the grass.

Susan Gurley McBee

Representative Susan Gurley McBee of Del Rio has announced that she has filed in the Democratic Primary for re-election to the position of State Representative District 70.

District 70 includes Brewster, Crockett, Edwards, Kinney, Maverick, Sutton, Terrell, Val Verde, and Zavala Counties.

"It continues to be an honor as well as a pleasure to represent this district in the Texas House," Mrs. McBee stated.

Representative McBee serves as Vice-Chairman of the Calendars Committee and Vice-Chairman of the the Elections Committees, as well as being a member of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee. She also represents Texas on the Ruralevelopment Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures, which meets periodically across the nation.

In addition to her regular committee assignments, Mrs. McBee represents the House of Representatives on the Texas Election Code Revision Commission and is a member of the Legislative Council. She currently is Chairman of a subcommittee on Eminent Domain and Chairman of a subcommittee on Presidential Primaries.

"Having served in the 64th and 65th Legislatures, I feel that my legislative experience, knowledge, and seniority will enable me to work effectively for the best interest of District 70 and its citizens. Certainly I continue to pledge honest, fair and enthusiastic representation for all residents of this area," said Representative McBee.

Susan McBee, who is a fourth generation Val Verde County resident, is an honors graduate of Texas A&M University, where she majored in Spanish. She is married to Larry McBee, a rancher, and is the mother of an eleven year old son, J.R. Prior to her first successful legislative race in 1974, in which she defeated five opponents, Mrs. McBee taught in the former San Felipe School District, and later in the Consolidated School District. She ran unopposed for a second term in 1976.

"I feel that in general this district and its people fared very well in the last two legislative sessions, and I will certainly strive to see that this trend is continued in the 66th Legislature," said Representative McBee.

Deeper in debt

As of the beginning of 1978, the federal government is more than $700 billion in debt, and by spending more than it collects, is going deeper in debt each week by more than a billion dollars.

The interest of this growing debt is now costing the taxpayer $800 millions a week with interest rates going up and the debt total rising, interests costs might soon reach a billion a week!

For 1978, it's estimated, the federal government will spend $250 billions in welfare payments of one form or another. That's well over half the federal budget—and the payments come from 182 different welfare programs. Spending for this fiscal year (ending in October) is estimated to exceed tax collections by up to sixty billion dollars!

Q: My husband and I are separated, and our five children live with me. A friend told me that she saw several hundred dollars in checks made out to my husband's girlfriend recorded in his checkbook. Isn't he legally responsible for financially supporting his family first and foremost?

A: This is the kind of thing for which you need some personal legal help. You need to contact a lawyer who will institute court proceedings for temporary alimony and child support. Your lawyer will also help you obtain an order for an inventory and accounting. If you don't know a lawyer, call the Texas Lawyer Referral Service at 1-800-252-9690.

Q: A friend of mine wants to have a will prepared leaving all of his property to their grandchildren and leaving his daughter nothing. Could his daughter break a will like that?

A: In Texas, a person can disinherit any relative, including children, by leaving property to someone else. Grounds for contesting a will include: lack of mental capacity, failure to observe some legal requirement in the execution of the will, or fraud. However, disinheritance alone is not a ground for challenging a will.

Q: My divorce decree granted in 1966 states that I pay child support until each of my children reaches "his majority". Does the 18 year old voting rights act mean that I will pay until the kids reach 18 or 21 or what?

A: Generally, the law says you must provide child support until he is 18. But, if the court finds that the child requires continuous care and personal supervision because of a mental or physical handicap and is unable to support himself, the court may order child support after the age of 18 for an indefinite period.

Q: The manager of my son's apartment made him move to another unit recently saying that he was making too much noise by running the vacuum and dishwasher after 10 P.M. He went along with it even though the new place was too small. Can a manager legally force a tenant to move for these reasons?

A: The provisions of the lease agreement and the extent of the alleged disturbance will determine whether the manager had the right to require the move. If the lease permitted the manager to evict a tenant who persisted in annoying other tenants, then your son has no legal remedy, provided proper notice of termination was given. If the lease contained no provisions for notice, the landlord usually is required to give the tenant one month's notice.

Between Us JOE TOWNSEND

There are not many things in nature more beautiful to me than a wild turkey in flight. After they have lifted off and reached their needed altitude then set their wings and tail and sail to landing they are truly beauty of the highest degree. This is typical of other traits of this aristocrat of the wilds. Sharp of eye beyond belief this overgrown pheasant defies the hunter and natural enemies in amazing ways. Clever at self preservation, he is one of the most difficult to bag of any of the trophies of the hunt. (I don't count hiding near a feeder, or a watering place to shoot from ambush or shooting at night on the roost as hunting.) They are fascinating to watch as they feed and break the quiet of the morning in truly thrilling fashion as they fly down from roost and call themselves together on the ground. It is fantastic how quiet they become and quickly disappear when danger threatens. Calling themselves together and flying up into their roost at the close of day the sound is as a natural "taps" putting the wilds to bed. When you realize that the greatest contribution a wild turkey can make is to grace the table of hungry people. A real delicacy and nutritious food is this princely bird. It's difficult for some people to realize that such things as wild turkeys were put into the world for the good of man, including feeding him. Many loud and unthinking pseudo sophisticates seem to think many things in the plant and animal realm were put here merely to exist and man is obligated to make them exist. Such people should realize that the world (all and every part) was made for man not man for the world.

AUSTIN --- State Rep. Susan McBee of Del Rio has been appointed chairwoman of the committee.

McBEE APPOINTED

AUSTIN --- State Rep. Susan McBee of Del Rio has been appointed chairwoman of the House Elections Committee by House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Ms. McBee, who is serving her second term in the House, has been vice chairwoman of the committee. The appointment came after committee chairman Herman Adams of Silsbee resigned his seat in the House.

The appointment runs until the next legislative session in 1979. During the course of the year the committee chaired by Ms. McBee will undertake a number of studies and report their findings for legislative action.

Among the studies are a thorough look at proposals for Presidential preference primaries, including the possibility of regional primaries; weighing the desirability and effect of moving the date for the general primary elections in Texas; a study of various voting procedures and systems with emphasis on the possibilities of fraud and abuse involved in each.

Ms. McBee was appointed previously as one of two state representatives on the 12 - member Texas Election Code Revision Commission.

She will continue her work in that capacity as the committee seeks to revise and recodify the Texas Election Code to eliminate conflicts in the code or between the code and other statutes. The clarification of vague provisions and improvement of the elective processes regulated by the Code are goals of the commission.

In making the announcement of Ms. McBee's elevation to chairwoman Clayton said he was doing so because of his faith in her ability. "Throughout her term as vice chairwoman of the committee she has been extremely dedicated to the job. She is very qualified to oversee the tasks of the committee. I am confident that she will perform thorough and effective studies in her roles as committee chairwoman and as a member of the Election Code Revision Commission, Clayton said.

Perils of newspapering not what they used to be

GUEST

Some 100 years ago the perils of pursuing a journalistic career on the American frontier were aptly illustrated by a report that showman P. T. Barnum had added to his collection of circus curiosities a man who edited a weekly newspaper in Texas for two years.

"He carries 37 bullets in his body", the account noted, "and 116 bowie-knife scars, has one eye gouged out, one ear bit off, his nose twisted around, all his teeth knocked out and his skull trepanned."

Upon his departure from Texas, he was the senior editor in the state . . . so the account goes.

Thankfully, things have changed a bit. Editors may yet be as deserving of such treatment as this side-show specimen, but the attitude of readers has joyously changed—they are considerably less violent than they were, apparently, a century ago.

Despite the fact that newspaper readership has been holding its own in competition with other forms of informational media, newspapers seem to be among the most misunderstood products of human endeavor even our back yard

by Tom Warden

though many readers—especially of weekly newspapers—consider themselves very close to their own community publication.

Perhaps the misunderstanding exists because newspapers simply fail to explain themselves to their readers.

Newspapers nowadays are no longer the personal product of one person, namely, the editor, who in years past wrote most of the news, set it into type and then hand-fed a press in the final stage of a process that had his personal touch from start to finish.

It is little wonder that editors such as the unfortunate chap from Texas had a bit of rough going on occasion.

The vast majority of weekly newspapers today are printed by the offset method—using primarily photographic techniques—involving computers and central printing plants in a nearby city.

From the technical standpoint, the same "bugs" that drove newspaper people crazy 30 years ago still exist, except in more sophisticated forms. Cams and pulleys do not break nowadays; computer panels, magnetic chips and various electronic snitties do malfunction, however.

But the more common annoyances, rooted in human nature, are still the same.

People still call in on press day—usually Wednesday for most weekly newspapers—and cannot understand why a news item or classified advertisement cannot be inserted at that very moment.

We simply cannot run into the press room and yell "Stop the presses!" without incurring the expense of a long-distance telephone call that will not stop the presses anyway.

EDITORIAL

told that the printed results will be somewhat less than desirable. "Print it anyway" they say, and then complain when the subjects are unrecognizable after publication.

Small news items come from one hundred-and-one different sources each week. Omit one, and a publicity chairman or ill-humored contributor calls promptly.

Some readers become irate whenever a news item they sent in must be re-written to conform to news styles, or to correct errors in grammar and spelling, with teachers and lawyers being the worst offenders in this regard.

And so goes the weekly grind of newspapering. For one reason or another, it seems that computers are more inclined to malfunction and readers more apt to become irritated when the weather is bad.

All of which, I might add in retrospect, is much more preferable than bullets, knife scars, gouged eyes, deformed ears and noses and a trepanned skull.

Ahhhh, spring, hurry thou thy entrance.
