SOCIAL OR POLITICAL SCIENCE

Leadership Qualifications
ITimothy 3:1-3

Dear Sir:

In the next elections, having a good name beyond riches may prove important. Performances may be "sided" for a better qualified leadership.

The Carter Administration has led in this direction and higher standing has been decided upon the Ethics Committees of Congress.

But already the Democrats are leaning toward compromise in order to win the election with popular Kennedy or Brown.

Setting the example as Carter and Mondale have done may not be easy in a world of political temptations.

The present Age of Peace does not require a leadership capable of winning a war, but a leadership capable of deciding on social and economic issues.

Some Congressmen desire a higher fellowship, but their hands may be tied because in a democracy, the people vote their convictions as to who their fellowship will be.

Wait 'til 1980? It will be interesting to see just what leadership the American People will choose.

The world waits to see!

On the local, state, and national level, some leaders are waiting on the voters with higher standards and convictions.

The people must decide what is socially acceptable in American Institutional Leadership.

If Democracy leaders compromise far enough for Kennedy or Brown, many southern and Great Plains Democrats may want to do a different direction than the Massachusetts and California compromises, and they may vote for Republican John Connally of Texas, if he runs, who is also "On the Main Road."

Frankly I still like the Carter-Mondale leadership where these real issues have not been compromised.

The Director in making the announcement emphasized that the participation of Texas Christian University of Ft. The Pageant theme is "WHAT'S RIGHT ABOUT AMERICA" and a $1,000 Cash scholarship is awarded the National Essay Winner. Each contestant will participate in the Volunteer Community Service Program which is designed to promote teen involvement and participation in Volunteer Civic and Community Affairs. A Mini-Modeling Charm Course will be given during the three day Pageant event.

to the editor

P.O.Box 1072
Del Rio, Texas
October 23, 1978

Dear Sir,

I am reminded of something my Father used to tell us boys as we were growing up. "Voting is not a right, it is as obligation, an obligation to one's country." I have always felt that this is indeed correct, and since it is an obligation it therefore applies to all citizens.

Sadly, we see a great many that fail to vote, and we hear all manner of excuses ranging from the speculation that all politicians are crooks, to the car wouldn't start. You and I know that those who consistently fail to vote do so out of apathy, an apathy generated by laziness or ignorance, or both. Odd as it may seem those who criticize the loudest are usually the ones who never show up at the polls. I would say that they have forgotten what their Forefathers sacrificed in order that they might have the privilege of living in a free country.

One cannot discuss voting without eventually arriving at party affiliation. My next remark might offend some sensitive souls but, it is a reality we must face. At one time our two parties might have stood for something but, that must have been before my time. Personally, I fail to see any delineation. George Wallace was probably right when he suggested that there isn't a dime's worth of difference between the Republican and Democratic Party. I do believe however, there are good men in both parties. For this reason I further believe that we had best consider trading party loyalty for a more important loyalty, that is to our country. We had best look for the truly good men, regardless of party. Repair the country first while there is something left to repair; then mend the parties.

Once a person decides to vote he must then decide for whom to vote. What do you look for in a candidate? It can be boiled down to two issues these days--money and control-- your money and government control. If you are of the liberal persuasion then go for the man who promises more government services, keeping in mind, of course, who will be picking up the tab. If, on the other hand, you tend to be more conservative then look for the advocate of limited government, understanding that more will be demanded of you as an individual citizen. As has been said, there is not free lunch.

The important thing however, is to vote, whichever way, realize that is is an obligation, not a right!

Sincerely,

/s/ C.F.Clements

VEGETABLE Task Force

Harvesting at the peak of quality, handling properly, and storing under the best conditions possible are factors which will help insure a superior product at the dinner table.

These are important points to consider whether canning, pickling, freezing or preparing the product for eating fresh.

Determining the point at which fruits and vegetables reach peak quality is no easy task. Keeping a record of what varieties were used and when they were planted, along with the guidelines which follow, will be helpful in determining maturity.

Some fruits and vegetables are more prone to damage during harvesting than others, but care in handling in order to avoid bruises and cuts is important with all commodities.

Any product which possesses decay and rot should be discarded so it will not infect the good fruits. Washing vegetables in cold water immediately after harvesting is important for two reasons: (1) to remove adhering soil, dust and other contaminants and (2) to help lower the temperature as quickly as possible.

In order to store any fruit or vegetable successfully there are requirements which must receive careful consideration.

Temperature. The conversion of sugar to starch is very critical in products such as sweet corn and peas. It is necessary to cool these products immediately in order to minimize this change.

Moisture. Proper humidity will vary with commodities. Leafy type vegetables require a high humidity (95%) whereas onions should be stored in a dry atmosphere (70-75% relative humidity.)

Ventilation. Wilting and Tissue breakdown can be avoided by proper air circulation. A discussion on harvesting, handling and storing the more common home-raised vegetables follows along with a chart about optimum storage condition:

The future of Texas is in your hands.

Bill Clements is a part of this great state. Texas has a great future, but that future is only as bright as the man who's in charge. The time has come to elect a proven businessman, a leader, and not just another politician.

We must control inflation and taxes.

Bill Clements knows how. With less government in Austin, not more. With reorganization and sound planning as alternatives to increased spending. With the elimination of unnecessary and excessive taxes.

We must solve our energy problems.

Federal control of Texas' gas and oil will destroy our state's economy for the benefit of the East and the North. Clements will fight that. He'll fight for an energy program of increased production. He's well qualified because he's worked in the energy business all over Texas and around the world.

We must improve state-wide education.

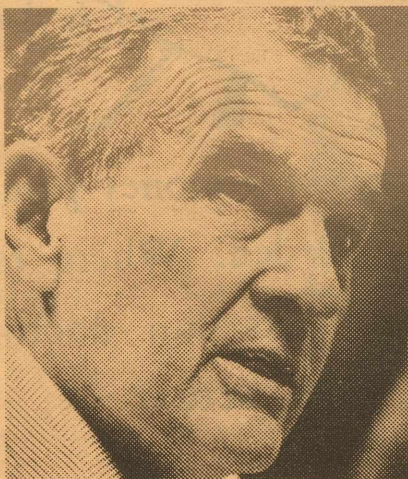

The Texas state education system ranks in the lowest third in the nation. Bill Clements will change that. As chairman of the Board of Governors at Southern Methodist University for eight years, he has been an innovator in education. He knows the children of Texas are our most valuable resource.

We must have a strong spokesman in Washington.

Washington doesn't understand farmers, ranchers, or Texas. Bill Clements is one person who can do something about it. He knows Washington. And, Washington knows him. As Deputy Secretary of Defense he managed the Defense Department for four years starting in 1973, and was responsible for the Pentagon's $100 billion a year budget and 3,000,000 employees.

He commanded respect—the one thing Texas demands now more than ever.

BILL CLEMENTS
A great governor for Texas.

BEANS, LIMA - Harvest when pods are about full grown but have not begun to yellow. Wash pods immediately and transfer to refrigerator.

BEANS, SNAP - Harvest before maturity when pods are not completely full for maximum tenderness. Wash immediately and refrigerate.

BEETS - Early beets should be pulled from the row when about 2 inches in diameter. If they are allowed to get much larger, they become woody, especially in warm, dry weather. Remove all but about 1-1½ inches of the tops. Wash and refrigerate immediately.

BROCCOLI - Look for tight, blue green buds, free of protruding leaves when harvesting. Cut the head with some 8-10 inches of stem and attached leaves. Chill immediately.

CABBAGE - Sever the head from the stem when they are solid, firm, and fully developed. Chill immediately.

CARROTS - Pick when roots get to be ¾ to 1½ inches in diameter. Remove tops and wash before transferring to refrigerator.

CAULIFLOWER - Pick when curd is white and compact, free from protruding leaves. Heads should be 4-6 inches in diameter. Slightly yellowed heads will be acceptable, but dark cream to yellow will have a strong flavor. Chill immediately.

CUCUMBERS - Harvest when fruits are bright, firm and green, before they get too large; 1½ - 2 inches diameter is about right with the smaller size best for pickling. All nubbins, poorly shaped or light-colored, fruits should be picked and discarded. If possible, do not store in refrigerator for more than two days. It is best to pickle cucumbers the same day picked.

GREENS - Harvest before leaves start turning yellow or brown, while they are young and tender. Slight bronze tints are normal on mustard greens. Avoid wilted or flabby leaves. Wash and chill immediately.

LETTUCE - Select compact young heads which vary from 5-9 inches in diameter, depending on variety. Romaine lettuce does not form a tight head, but good heads are compact, 9-12 inches long. Wash and chill immediately.

OKRA - Three (3) to four (4) inches optimum length. After bloom has set, they will be ready to pick in two more days. Avoid pods which are dull, limp and yellowish. Chill immediately.

PEAS - Pods should be harvested when they are shiny and well filled. Overmature peas are of poor quality. Deterioration proceeds rapidly at high temperatures. Wash and chill immediately.

PEPPERS - Harvest when peppers are 4-5 inches long with full, well-formed lobes. Immature peppers will be soft pliable, thin-fleshed, and pale in color. Wash and chill immediately.

POTATOES, IRISH - A good tuber size is a 2-3 inch diameter. Individual preferences are the keynote here. Let potatoes dry several hours in the garden after digging. Remove adhering dirt, but it is not recommended to wash before storing. Store in cool, dry and dark area.

RADISHES - Harvest when diameter reaches approximately one (1) inch. Wash and chill immediately.

SPINACH - Harvest when six (6) or more leaves have formed that are crisp and dark green. Wash gently and chill immediately.

SQUASH - Harvest when fruit is 4-6 inches long for yellow crook neck squash, 6-9 inches for yellow straight neck, and 3-4 inches diameter for white scallop. Glossy color indicates tenderness. Wash, dry, and store in warm area of refrigerator. Squash, like cucumbers, is susceptible to chilling injury and should not be stored for more than two (2) days.

TOMATOES - Harvest at pink stage and ripen in warm area of house. This will not affect flavor and may save loss due to insect and bird damage. Store ripened fruit in refrigerator.

On Saturday and Sunday some of the Fort Clark people headed west to Del Rio for the Fiesta Amistad Grand International Parade. If was an exciting and beautiful parade—Miss Kinney County, Lucy Lucas, was beautiful in her crown and flowing robe on the back of a red convertible driven by Mr. and Mrs. 'Shorty' Perez from San Antonio.

The Brackettville High School Band with their high stepping music was a proud sight to see and hear.

The Breen Family, as always, were doing their thing in colorful Indian dress, were honored with great applause

Then on Sunday the Horsey Set turned mulish as we sat in the grandstands to watch the mules race. It was fun like when four four mules running a mile, on the other side of the race track one mule decided to dump his rider and cut across the center to come in with the other three who had outdistanced him by a half-a-mile, he tried to win! Spotted in the crowd: Lance Stanfield, Billy Joe Walker, Gloria Walrath, Frances Swift, Sylvia Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Witcraft, Molly Ardrey, Kathy Gulick, David Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Clements, Mr. and Mrs. John Lamb, Pat Anderson, Carl Eaton and your reporter. Right down in front sat "Mad Jack" Denver Pyle of the Grizzle Adams TV series signing autographs for everybody.

Fort Clark main gate is getting a new look. Two flag poles have been placed on either side proudly flying the American Flag and Texas Flag.

Gloria Walrath is now the Secretary for Fort Clark's General Manager Jim Hester, filling the vacancy left by Paula Ragsdale.

A TAXPAYER'S BILL OF RIGHTS IS PAST DUE

Bill Clements believes we still have a chance to preserve our future by establishing constitutional protection against excessive taxation and runaway government spending.

Bill Clements believes the people of Texas should have the power necessary to ratify or reject tax policies made by legislators.

To establish this power (of the people), Bill Clements will introduce an amendment to the Texas Constitution that would give the people of Texas this right.

Bill Clements' "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights" would:

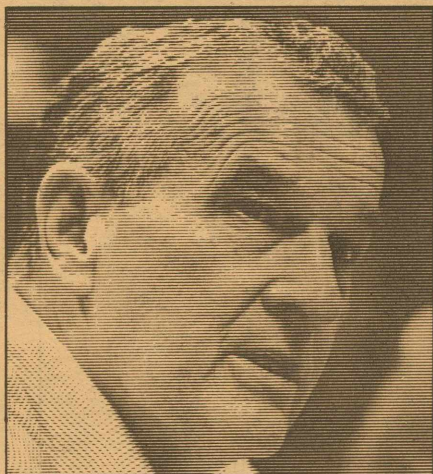

- Give Texans the right of initiative and referendum, a phrase that means we, the people, have a right to vote on the taxes to be levied on us.
- Place a ban on corporate or personal income tax in Texas.
- Require a two-thirds record vote of both houses of the legislature to pass a tax bill.
- Allow local taxpayers to call an election to ratify or reject a tax increase created by a local governmental unit.

Bill Clements believes in Texas and the people of Texas.

Bill Clements thinks that elected officials must work for the people and represent them properly.

As governor of Texas, Bill Clements will work for and with the people of Texas.

It's about time someone recalled that our form of government was conceived to be a servant of the people and provide the means to insure that principle endures.

John Hill calls for state tax freeze

"Our state taxes in Texas are among the lowest in the nation, and I want to keep them there. As I've said many times, I'll veto a tax increase before the ink dries on the bill."

As Attorney General, John Hill proved he could increase the efficiency of his office without any unnecessary budget increases. He absorbed a three-fold increase in his office caseload by hiring top legal talent capable of higher productivity. The result: his staff lawyers doubled their average workload, and the increased court judgments and enforcement of civil penalty laws returned $25 for every $1 of state funds spent on his office.

As Governor, John Hill will insist on this same type of increased productivity for all state agencies. He will institute new controls over federal funds, demand that we follow our "pay-as-you-go" budget policy, and use zero-base budgeting to eliminate unneeded programs before any new programs are added. And he'll block any state tax increase — there won't be any new taxes under John Hill.

THE SALVATION ARMY SERVICE UNIT DEPARTMENT

WHAT IS A SALVATION ARMY SERVICE UNIT?

Almost everyone knows something about the work of the Salvation Army and it's always something good, like their services to the flood victims in the Hill Country and North Texas recently. But often people whose contributions support these works are not aware how extensively the Army works to relieve the suffering and needs of their neighbors. This is the first in a series of 5 articles written to explain how the Salvation Army operates in this community and how it assists those with temporary, emergency needs who cannot get any other kind of help, so that they can get back on their own feet again.

When the Salvation Army was started in 1865, it was known---and loved---for a slogan:

"A MAN MAY BE DOWN, BUT HE'S NEVER OUT."

The Salvation Army took men who had reached the end of the line. It gave them a hand and tried to give them the hope that could turn their lives around.

The Salvation Army was founded in 1865 in England by William Booth, a Methodist minister who was shocked by the poverty and degradation in the slums of London. His small group of followers grew into an army and spread rapidly to 71 counties around the world. Over 85 years ago the Army came to Texas. Today full-time corps with their uniformed officers and personnel operate in 40 of the larger cities of Texas. Some have separate facilities for welfare, rehabilitation of alcoholics, neighborhood youth centers, and lodging for homeless women and children as well as men. Over 250 officers and personnel work in these programs; approximately 1,200 voluntary advisory board members contribute their time, talents, and money.

Another 3,000 volunteers make up the Service Unit Committee in 350 cities of Texas. In the absence of full-time officers, these committees conduct the Army's welfare program for those having needs in their area.

In Brackettville, the officers elected by the Service Unit Committee are Rev. Joe Townsend, Chairman; Mrs. Orlean Riley, Treasurer; and Mrs. Marty Miers, Welfare Secretary. Other members are Happy Shahan, Alvin Hall, and Dolores Raney.

Now that you understand the structure of the Salvation Army's Service Unit Organization, in our next article we will look at some of the services performed by the Service Unit which directly benefit the community of Brackettville and surrounding Kinney County. Though the slogan of yesterday is rarely heard today, The Salvation Army is still the last hope for many afflicted by temporary, emergency needs.

4-H REPORT

The champion finewool lamb was bought by Tom Thumb Stores of Dallas for $450.00. This is the second year in a row Kinney County 4-H has exhibited the Championship finewool lamb at the State Fair of Texas.

We are most extremely proud of this youth states Carl Esser, County Extension Agent from Kinney County. Thier hard work, determination and efforts continue to be demonstrated at major lamb shows across the state of Texas.

TAXPAYER ACTION ENDORSES TOWER FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Taxpayer Action, the political action committee affiliated with the National Taxpayers Union supported by over 75,000 members nationwide, today endorsed John Tower in his bid for re-election to the United States Senate from Texas.

Calling Tower "A friend of the taxpayer", Donald Baldwin, Finance Chairman of Taxpayer Action, cited Tower's legislative stands on run-away federal spending and other major tax issues. "Specifically John Tower supports a 33% reduction in income tax rates, a cut of the maximum capital gains tax by half and fully endorses a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget. This is a tax reduction package that can give taxpayers the relief they've been pleading for," added Baldwin.

Tower claims, and Taxpayer Action agrees, that these three planks of a tax reduction program would give the taxpayer an immediate tax break revitalize the economy, and clamp the lid on federal spending.

"Taxpayer Action has been getting strong feedback from all across Texas," said Donald Baldwin. "Taxpayers are fed up with high taxes and wasteful government spending. Responding to their demands for lower taxes, Taxpayer Action enthusiastically endorses John Tower for the United States Senate."

SHEEP & GOAT RAISERS NEWS

Good-neighbor stock hauling deals can get a fellow in trouble. Out of necessity, many gooseneck trailer owners have been hauling stock part-time for pay. The necessity is often that of helping neighbors whose loads can't attract a bigger rig, combined with the necessity of getting enough service out of the gooseneck to justify its cost.

Whatever the reason, a lot of these good-neighbor haulers have recently found themselves paying out considerable premiums to their local peace justices because the man who patrols the highways discovered that they had no legal permit to haul for hire.

These permits, known as Specialized Motor Carrier Certificates, are issued by the Texas Railroad Commission and are not to be had on a whim. Many would-be haulers who've tried to get them have given up on the often difficult and expensive endeavor and either quit hauling or resigned themselves to paying fines.

It's not that the permits themselves cost so much ---- a total of $25 for filing fees and $11 per vehicle for registration -- in fact, that expense is as little as a tenth or twentieth of what some fines have reportedly cost.

The real expense comes in, apparently, when an application is protested by already established haulers. Answering a protest means appearing before a hearing examiner in Austin, proving the public necessity of the desired permit, etc. A certificated hauler must also carry RRC-approved insurance, maintain certain records and follow established rate tariffs.

These last three items in themselves are not overly unreasonable or prohibitive, but added to the hassles and expense of battling a protest, they're enough to convince many part-time small-load haulers that fines are friendly by comparison. The end result? A lot of extralegal hauling.

Cooperative efforts by the Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers, the Texas Farm Bureau and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Assn. may be shedding a little different color of light on the subject, however. Representatives of the three groups met recently with RRC officials to seek a solution to what's come to be called the "goose-neck situation".

The outcome may not be apparent right away, because it involves no regulatory, legislative or interpretative change by the RRC. What the commission did offer was a suggestion, and it's one of those pleasant cases where a simple suggestion may eliminate the need for a difficult change.

What the RRC suggested was that prospective applicants voluntarily restrict their own hauling authority.

A standard permit might allow a hauler the right to use any size of equipment, move unlimited loads and serve a broad territory when all he really intends to do is pull an occasional gooseneck load to the local auction. It's generally best to get all the authority you can when the price is the same anyway, but such a broad request is sure to generate protest from established competition.

The RRC suggests instead that applicants specify that their authority be limited to such vehicles as gooseneck trailers and that their operating range be limited to their own local area. Other restrictions might include prohibitions against hauling to or from commercial feedlots or packing houses, limits on the number of head of stock hauled in one load and limits on the number of loads to be hauled in one day.

These limitations, again, are not mandatory, but may be handpicked by an applicant at his own choosing. In fact he himself must request that they be applied against him. The RRC simply says that the more restrictions, the less chance of a protest; larger volume truckers know all too well that they can't service the small loads and have no logical reason to protest competition from a fellow who's been obviously restricted out of competition at his own choosing.

There are no reported plans to lower minimum insurance requirements or alter tariff compliance. The insurance coverage required, however, does not appear out of line anyway, and one RRC spokesman says special low-volume rate tariffs could be considered upon request.

In short, the situation is not perfect, but the outlook is rosier. The Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers' Assn. has application forms available and would be willing and eager to assist low-volume livestock haulers who wish to apply for permits.

DISTRICT, DISTRICT, DISTRICT!

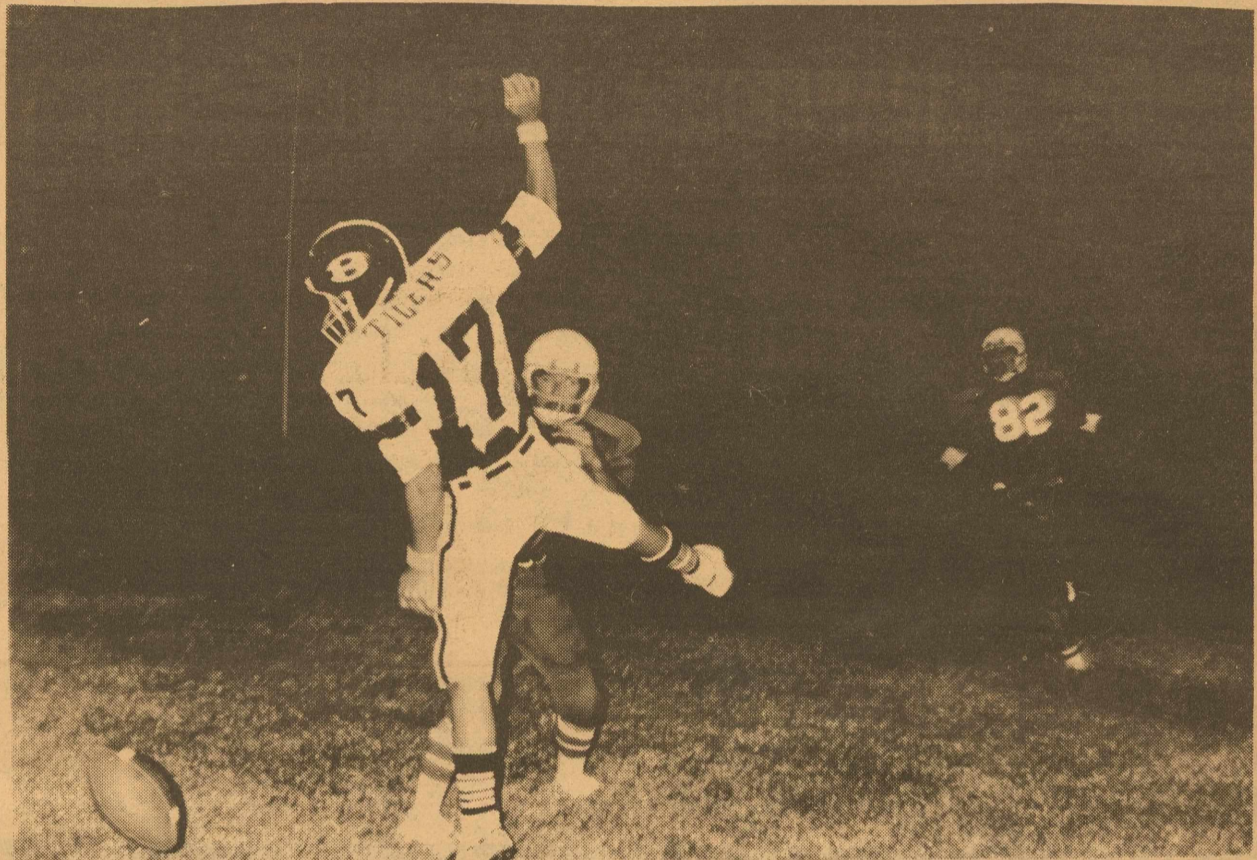

By Adrain Reyes

Brackett Tigers edge over the Nueces Canyon Panthers, 7-6. The game, played in Campwood Oct. 20, 1978, was an exciting one, both teams played excellent defense.

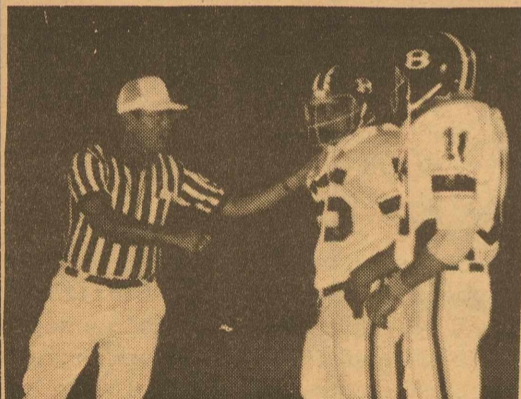

First half action started with both teams hitting good and hard, and this hard hitting lasted throughout the game, neither teams gave away points in the first quarter but in the second quarter the Brackett Tigers scored on a pass to Art Terrazas, who ran 15 yards for 6 points. Nelson Payne kicked the extra-point to make it 7-0 Tigers. The only scoring the Brackett Tigers had.

The second half was pure Brackett defense, the Panthers offense kept wishing wishing the game was all over. Brackett defense sacked the quarter back, stopped the backs halted the pass receivers and blocked kicks.

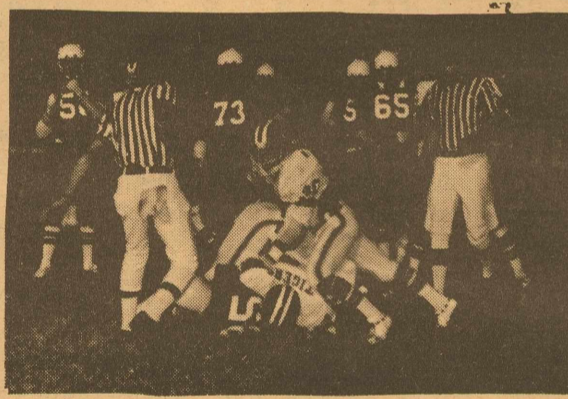

The only Panther score came after a long drive fired up Tigers defense blocked the extra point attempt. Making the final score 7-6. The Tigers had brought home their first district win.

Local resident, George Warick, who served at Fort Clark during his army days, recalls the days that this type of Howitzer was used at Fort Clark. The old weapon is now mounted in front of the new First State Bank building.

Warick recalled: "This old 75 could be disassembled into four separate sections and carried over any type of terrain by mules. It was one of the main weapons of the army for many years."
